FORCING BULBS IN POTS.....

When forcing bulbs in pots, nature is imitated, and time for development and blooming is shortened. Root development stage required 5 to 8 weeks, and top growth and blossoms require about 6 additional weeks. The prodecure described with apply to daffodils hyacinths, tulips, crocus and grape hyacinths.

Clay pots with a good drainage source are a good choice for forcing bulbs. A good potting mix should include 1/3 soil, 1/3 sand and a mixture of peat moss, small gravel mulch in equal proportions for the other 1/3. Add large gravel or broken crockery to the bottom of the caly pot to insure that the drainage hole stays open. Fill the pot with the soil mixture to about 2 inches below the rim of the pot. Insert bulbs, allowing 1/2 inch space between each one. Add more potting mixture to cover 1/3 of the bulb. The bulbs should be just above the pot rim (add slightly nore potting mixture when using the smaller bulbs.) Firm the soil around the bulbs and sub merge the pot in a container of water to soak thoroughly from the bottom(use a container that would hold about 3 inches of water) Leave the pot soaking for about an hour, or until the top of the mixture is visibly moist.

The pot must now be placed in a dark area that will maintain a temperature between 40 and 55 degrees. Root development should take 5 to 8 weeks, or until roots are showing out of the drainage hole. When the pots seem full of roots at the bottom, bring the pot into the light and room temperatures. Check the bulbs weekly to be sure that the soil mixture is remaining moist. If more water is needed add more from the top of the soil. Gradually expose the pot to more light every few days and finally to a sunny window. A cool window, 70 degrees or below makes for superior blooms includes assorted pieces of It should take about 6 weeks for top growth and bloom development. Turn the pot to keep growth from baning towards the sun. Enjoy a window of spring blossoms!

What A Gift!

The best gifts are those that keep on giving yearround. A fine art reproduction, for instance, attractively framed, or a subscription to a special magazine can be constant reminders that you remembered someone with something special.

Another gift that keeps giving long after the season's over is a carpet cleaner. Carpeting is one of the more important purchases in decorating a new home or apartment and the homemaker wants to keep it clean and new looking. Periodic shampooing with a Bissell Carpet Machine, for example, removes deepdown dirt and restores color and brightness for less than a penny a square foot. You don't have to wheel a lot water around the room, either. A 50-foot hose supplied hot water from the faucet directly to the Carpet Machine.

Cream soups often come out better if heated in the top of a double boiler and allowed to

LEARNING IS FUN!

These scaled-down wonders of space-age technology are already an accepted part of the school scene in many places, but the latest innovation is the home computer specifically designed for children.

Young computer users can learn that learning can be fun.

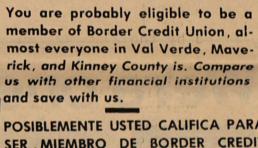

Wonder of wonders, children need no urging to work at learning their spelling and multiplication tables when they can do it with The Children's Discovery System computer, a fun learning device recently introduced by Mattel Toys. It's a product that makes the learning process both challenging and fun. Developed for children in the 6 to 11 age group. The Children's Discovery System computer works in conjunction with a variety of learning fun module activity cartridges which provide a selection of subjects including the language arts, math, art, music and arcade games. Additional subjects planned include history, science, geography, memory and logic, and nutrition.

The hero of the scene is 'Cursor the Great," personification of a computer cursor, who guides the child through the activity books that come with each learning fun module.

Insomnia

Having difficulty going to sleep or finding yourself wide awake in the middle of the night are symptoms of a problem experienced by many people. The Texas Medical Association estimates that nearly 50 million Americans are occasionally plagued by insomnia

Worrying about sleeplessness compounds the dilemma. The more you are concerned, the more tense you become and the less likely you are to fall asleep.

Insomnia usually is a temporary condition. The loss of a loved one, concern about your job or other personal problems can disrupt your sleeping habits for a short period of time. However, your body can temporarily adjust to a shorter sleeping schedule. When you finally become really tired and the problems are less pressing, you will likely revert to your previous sleeping habits.

There are ways, however, to deal with temporary insomnia without using sleeping pills. You can establish certain habits so that you will more easily fall asleep. For example, you should try to go to bed at the same time each night. Establish a nightly routine that may include reading a chapter of a book or working on a relax-

A glass of warm milk is helpful because it contains an element called L-tryptophan that can induce sleep. A small glass of wine at bedtime also may help you relax.

I don't recommend exercising before retiring for the night. Exercise may burn off excess energy, but its effects can be stimulating.

A few other don'ts: Don't drink anything that contains caffeine after mid-afternoon. Don't take naps in the daytime. Don't take any pills to help you sleep; they can be dangerous and habit forming.

Most of all, try to stop worrying about insomnia. Your body knows when it needs sleep. Eventually, it will take over and let you sleep longer and more sound-

KAZEN

Texans have long joked that if all the ice melted in Alaska that state would be the size of Rhode Island. We might also say that something elese is inflating Alska--the largest natural gas field ever discovered in the United States.

All jokes aside, the rich pockets of Alaskan gas may prove to be a tremendous benefit to all of us in the lower 48 states if we can move that energy source down here. That is why I support removing obstacles to private fin ancing and construction of the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation System (ANGTS).

Let me explain why I consider the project so important. When completed, ANGTS will transport natural gas from Prudhoe Bay through Alaska and Canada to terminals in the West and Midwest where it will be distributed across the nation. Our experts say they know there is 26 trillion cubic feet of gas there--13 percent of all U.S. proven domestic gas reserves -- and they believe that the 4,800-mile pipeline would stimulate exploration and development of 1000-200 trillion cubic feet of potential Alaskan

MANY BENEFITS

South Texas are fully aware of our need to end dependence on foriegn energy. Initial delivery levels would offset the need to import 400,000 barrels of foreign oil per day for the next 25 to 30 years, and ANGTS can be expanded to offset an additional 200,000 barrels per day. This would reduce our balance of payments by saving over $7 billion in foreign payments in the first year.

The pipeline will create jobs for U.S. workers and more business for U.S. firms. It has been estimated that ANGTS will require a peak work force of 13,000 workers for the Alaska segment alone, and that the pipeline will produce a net national economic benefit of $40-$90 billion for the United States.

While demonstration to the world our commitment to the development of deomestic sources of energy, we will also strengthen our relationship with Canada and provide a basis for continuing cooperation between our two countries. As an example, the first phase of the project will be used to import surplus Canadian gas to U.S. markets pending the Alaskan gas deliverties.

NO FEDERAL FUNDS

Although completion of the system must be considered an important national security objective, there are no federal subsidies or loan guarantees involved. ANGTS is a private sector project—the largest privately financed project in history. Participants are a consortium of gas tranmission companies and producers.

sidnet Reagan endorsed the project and requested waivers to remove any barriers that might prohibit private financing and full participating by Prudhoe Bay producers.

Backers say that without the waivers by Congress, provate financing cannot proceed. It has been estimated that one year's delay in the completion of the project could add up to $30 billion in cost escalation.

I supported the pipeline recently when the issue was before the house Interior Committee and it is my hope that Congress will approve it this month. Surely by now we have learned our lesson to take full advantage of all domestic sources of energy.
