BAILEY REMOVED FROM OFFICE

KINNEY COUNTY ELECTION RETURNS INSIDE

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

TO THE PEOPLE OF BRACKETTVILLE AND FORT CLARK SPRINGS.....

The "Shady" Characters who sent the vicious letters thru the mail to the Voters of Precinct 4, better know what they are talking about before they start talking.

They meet in the dark corners of a restaurant, pick-up trucks, in the early morning, behind buildings and on country roads to plan their lies and dirty politics. They didn't have to sign their names because everyone knows who they are. I want you to know the "bail bond" for Sheriff Bailey was put up by ME and only ME. The document is on file in the Kinney County Clerk's Office and open to the public.....READ IT.

Katherine Fritter Bailey

EDITORIAL BY GEORGE!

I have seen the copy of the letter that Mrs. Bailey refers to (See Letters to the Editor).

I will have to agree that the people involved in this unsigned slanderous letter may enjoy a free trip to the Federal Pen. courtesy of the Postal Inspectors or the FBI.

It does not matter who's side you are on or where your sympathies are, but this kind of liable garbage has no place in our community.

We considered printing the above mentioned letter, however, thru the ages cowards have typically been afraid to sign their names on documents they produce.

Thank God for our American ideals when John Hancock stepped forward to sign our Constitution at the risk of his life.

TEXAS SAFE BOATING WEEK

Governor William P. Clements, Jr. recently declared the week of June 16-22 as Texas Safe Boating Week and the Texas Safety Association is helping spread the word about safe boating.

Nelson Mueller, TSA Vice President for Home and Leisure Activities, said, 98 persons died in Texas boating accidents last year. On Texas lakes and waterways there were 178 persons who required a visit to the hospital due to a boating accident and 379 boats were involved in accidents.

Mueller explains the role of the Texas Safety Association in helping prevent boating accidents: "Safe boating is largely a matter of education. Through the more than 1200 members of the association we are helping people learn more about water safety."

"We've asked each of our members to conduct special boating safety classes in their companies, towns or schools. Our members are personnel directors, safety managers, traffic safety officials, and public school administrators who are able to reach large numbers of Texas."

"The Texas Safety Association is also cooperating with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Water Safety Enforcement division and the auxiliaries of the United States Coast Guard in this effort."

Your Highway Safety

Tips From Experts At United Parcel Service

YOUR BRAKES FAIL

You're driving along the road and prepare to slow down as the traffic up ahead gets more congested. Suddenly, your brakes fail. What do you do? Here are some actions that could assist you in this frightening situation:

- See if there is any resistance at all in your brake pedal. If there is, pump it. This may enable you to build up enough pressure to provide some braking help.

- If there is no pressure in the brake pedal and your driving path is clear, coast in the drive gear and use your parking brake. If you need to slow quickly, shift to the lowest forward gear. In this way, engine compression will offer some braking effect.

- On a hill or mountain grade, look for something to sideswipe (roadside brush, wheel where you can curb, or a guard rail),

Pumping your brakes may enable you to build up enough pressure to provide some braking help.

thus helping your car to slow down.

- Make use of your horn or lights to warn other drivers and pedestrians that your car is not in control.

Your greatest single safety item is your seatbelt. It won't prevent your involvement in an accident, but it will minimize the possibility of injury. It will also keep you behind the wheel where you can control the vehicle.

NEED KNOW NO SEASONS

While our society most often measures success by material possessions, there is an increasing number of people in our society whose yardstick for success has become survival.

The people using this yardstick go far beyond those traditionally living on the fringes of society--such as drug addicts, sidewalk alcoholics, runaways, leftover flower children from the '60's, etc. Until recently many of those in this new class of survivalists held jobs in the auto industry, housing, airlines, educational institutions and every field that has been hurt by the economic wrecking ball. Or if it wasn't the economy that got them, it may have been a tornado, fire, flood, and act of crime, or perhaps the death of a family's breadwinner.

It's not a position any of us would envy, yet none of us is immune we all are vulnerable to being swept away by forces over which we have no control. When one becomes such a victim, he or she often has no choice but to turn to others for help.

The Salvation Army has been helping such powerless victims since 1865. While the charitable organization is most visible in Christmas season, its work goes on quietly behind the scenes 365 days a year. It seems that peoples needs know no seasons.

The week of May 10--16 is National Salvation Army Week. The Army asks that you support them during this special week as they continue to practice their theme of "Heart to God, Hand to Man". By doing so, you will be helping all of those whose needs do not end simply because the Christmas trees have been taken down.

NEW ALL-RISK OR MULTI-PERIL CROP INSURANCE LOSS REPORTING REQUIREMENTS IN 1982

"The dramatic increase in participation in All-Risk or Multi-Peril Crop Insurance mandates a change in notice of damage procedure," according to R.W.Crouch, Jr, Field Operation Director of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. "New regulations in effect in 1982 will give rapid, responsive, accurate service to the producer, and increase the efficiency of the loss adjustment process," Crouch added.

Current requirements for prompt written notice of damage during the growing season will remain in effect. In addition, the producer is asked to provide written notice of probable damage at least 15 days prior to the beginning of harvest. If damage is not discovered until harvest, the grower is required to file a notice of damage report immediately, and to reserve a representative sample of the unharvested crop at least 10 feet wide and extending the full length of the field. The crop residue must be left undisturbed for 15 days from the date of the notice, or until written authority is given by the Corporation to do otherwise.

Notices of damage are to include policy and unit number, estimated yield per acre, and estimated amount of indemnity.

"The increased volume of business and farmer reliance upon the All-Risk Crop Insurance program make it imperative that loss adjustment procedures reflect the realities of the added work load," Crouch stated.

THE RENEWABLE CHALLENGE

As our economy has been tip-toeing through a downhill minefield of high interest rates, inflation, unemployment, high energy costs and foreign competition, one industry has experienced an annual sales increase of nearly 40% in each of the last five years.

That industry?

Solar energy.

And while the products and services of this industry have been demonstrating sustained market strength in both the residential and the commercial sectors of the American economy, these same technologies have been simply booming in many foreign markets.

This June, in Houston, the industry will "strut its stuff" at an international renewable energy trade fair expected to attract thousands of buyers, sellers and lookers. The Exposition, sponsored by the U.S. Department of Commerce and the American Section of the International Solar Energy Society (AS/ISES), will run concurrently with the American Section's annual meeting and Technical Conference.

The Department of Commerce is promoting the Exhibition, called THE RENEWABLE CHALLENGE, as part of its Foreign Buyers Program through all Consulates and Embassies, thus insuring the international flavor of the event. Already some 100 nations have responded and over 1,000 foreign buyers are expected.

The Conference and Exhibition is called a "renewable challenge" partly because of what Lee Salmon calls the "benign neglect" of the federal government. Salmon is the Executive Director of AS/IESE, the nation's largest association of solar professionals. He points out that although the industry's "health is good and its future exceeding bright" the elimination of most of the U.S. Government's solar programs has deprived the industry of needed research and market stimulation.

The "challenge" is to continue market growth without the kinds of subsidies afforded other energy industries. Most solar practitioners are confident this challenge will be met. And a few actually regard the withering of government participation as a position sign. As one Texas manufacturer put it, "Too much federal money was going to reinvent the wheel. We know what works and how to build it. The problem is high interest rates."

However, renewable energy technologies, including solar, wind, and weatherization are proving to be growth industries in the residential sector in spite of those inflated interest rates; the use of alcohol fuels for agricultural purposes is reducing the farmer's energy cost, as well as enhancing America's over-all energy picture; privately-financed photovoltaic (solar electric cell) homes are beginning to appear on the market; and small hydro-power projects are popping up around the nation like bluebonnets on a Texas hillside.

Some of these technologies, such as Passive solar architecture, have been in continuous use throughout the world for over 2,000 years, and solar hot water systems have been used in this country for nearly a hundred years. (Other technologies are being developed and market tested today.)

All will be on display at the Albert Thomas Convention and Exhibit Center in Houston this June 1--5. Long time solar experts say it will be the most extensive array of renewable technologies in the history of the United States.

The nearly 300 exhibitors will feature displays of low and moderate cost solar and wind devices; solar thermal systems for oil recovery, food processing power generation and desalination; photovoltaics for telecommunications, water-pumping and rural electrification; and almost endless selection of solar hot water systems.

There will also be exhibits on solar refrigeration; thermal walls; greenhouses; computerized controls; screens, shades, shutters, and awnings; and a bazaar of pumps, collectors, meters, panels, valves, and the other wares of the solar industry.

With an emphasis on Agriculture Solar Cooling, and trade within the Americas, the Exhibition, and the Conference, are designed to be the latest in the state of the art technology and market development.

The Conference sessions and workshops will address solar design for industry; wind for the home and farm; oil from plants; small scale alcohol production; profit from exporting; solar utilities; marketing, mortgages and sales; the economics and politics of energy; and a variety of other topics.

THE RENEWABLE CHALLENGE is not only a look at the current solar market, but is also a door wide open to the future. As the Solar Society's Salmon boasts, "the long-run economics are with us."

SMOKING--AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY TRAGEDY

More women than men now suffer from chronic bronchitis, according to the American Lung Association of Texas, the "Christmas Seal" People.

The signs of an epidemic of smoking related diseases are appearing among women. Rates of smoking cessation have dropped faster for men than women, and cigarette smoking is the major cause of long-term lung diseases such as chronic bronchitis. There are now 4.1 million women--compared to 3.4 million American men--who have chronic bronchitis.

Another cigarette-related disease emphysema, is more prevalent in men than women. But this severe lung disease takes decades to develop. Women as a group started smoking about 25 years later than men in this country, says the Lung Association, and this difference may explain the current discrepancy.

While chronic bronchitis can be treated, the destruction involved in emphysema cannot be reversed. One of the chief symptoms of chronic bronchitis is a cough that lasts. If untreated, the disease can develop into emphysema, which means that the delicate tissues of the air sacs are damaged. People with advanced emphysema often feel as if they are drowning in a sea of air.

The American Lung Association of Texas is making a special effort to convince women of all ages to stop smoking as fast as possible. In its tests to evaluate the effectiveness of its new self-help manuals, Freedom From Smoking, the Lung Association has found that women were as successful in quitting as men. Not all previous studies showed such results.

According to the Lung Association, other research has shown that babies whose parents smoke at home have more bronchitis and pneumonitis than babies with non-smoking parents. Acute respiratory problems are also more common in young children if their parents smoke in the home.

Copies of the Freedom From Smoking manuals are available from the American Lung Association of Texas, 7701 North Lamar Blvd., Suite 104, Austin, Texas 78752-1088, phone 512/458-2206 or dial Operator for Enterprise #86761 (toll free).
