REQUEST FOR FUNERAL HOME OP- POSED

The re-zoning request from residential to business for property located at 302 Fort Street to establish a funeral home was opposed by a majority of home owners in the immediate area.

The City Zoning Commission chaired by Mr. Alvin Hall met Monday evening at City Hall to consider the requested change. Fourteen (14) concerned citizens attending the meeting and 5 signed letters were presented expressing their opinions to the Commission members.

The Zoning Commission recommended that the request be denied. Mr. Maxwell appeared at the City Council Meeting on Tuesday and withdrew his request for re-zoning citing the unfavorable response of neighbors in affected area.

The Council assured Mr. Maxwell that they would support and eagerly desired additional business based on orderly growth in City.

The Planning Commission, City Council, and Mr. Maxwell expressed their concern for the good of the Community and thanked those citizens for their active participation. Your City Government is responsive to your desires and needs.

These are the workers at City Hall that donated their time to build the City Float that brought home "First Place" from Rocksprings

The City won two "First Place" Trophies with the float as they took home the "First Place" trophy from the Brackettville Frontier Fair.

STATE'S FIREMEN'S AND FIRE MARSHALS'
 ASSOCIATION MEETING

The executive board of the State Fireman's and Fire Marshals' Association of Texas, meeting in Austin, has voted to ask Governor Mark White to include emergency equipment funding for fire departments on the agenda for the upcoming special legislative session.

"This fund is something Texas fire departments need and need now," says Marvin Setzer of Brazoria, president of the 107-year-old association. "They can't wait another two years for the Legislature to meet again."

Legislation calling for a constitutional amendment to create such a fund was passed by the Texas House of Representatives during the regular session, but got bogged down in a Senate committee. Monies for the fund would come from 1% of fire insurance premiums in an existing tax the State Board of Insurance collects from insurance companies on premiums paid in Texas. The funds would be allocated through grants and low-interest loans to individual fire departments.

Funding will be one of the topics addressed by delegates to the SFFM's annual conference/convention opening in Beaumont on Sunday, June 19. Delegates to the four-day conference will be asked to drum up local support for the proposed legislation and to petition Governor White to put the funding question on the legislative agenda.

Equipment funding for Texas fire departments is a pressing need in today's fire service. "Departments have lost two major sources of funds in recent years," says Ron Waters, SFFMA executive manager. "low-interest loans previously available on a competitive basis through federal revenue-sharing programs have dried up, and the traditional fund-raising barbecue no longer nets enough money to buy a major item like a pumper-which today costs over $100,000.

"The need is here and now," says Waters.

Pike Powers, ececutive assistant to the governor will address convention delegates. Powers is from Beaumont and is a lawyer and former member of the Texas Legislature.

Convention delegates will also spend time in business sessions and seminars designed to increase their firefighting skills.

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY COLLECTIONS INCREASES BY 51 PERCENT

State Treasurer Ann Richards said today that unclaimed property collections in Texas are running more than $2.5 million ahead of 1 last year, a 51 percent increase.

Richards said receipts in the unclaimed property program through the end of May were just short of $8 million, compared to $5.2 million for the same nine-month period in Fiscal 1982.

"We've already exceeded total collections of $6.3 million for last year, and we've still got three month before the end of our reporting period," Richards said. The State's fiscal year ends August 31.

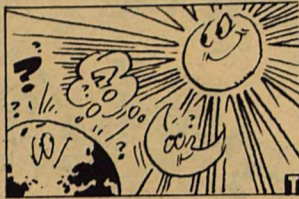

"Greater public awareness of the unclaimed property program and our expanding audit program are beginning to pay off," Richards said.

Richards explained that Texas law provides for property that has been unclaimed or abandoned for seven years to be turned over to the state treasurer. She noted that Texas holds the funds until claimed by rightful owner or the heirs. In the meantime, the money goes into to state's general revenues and the Available School Fund.

Types of property covered under the law include dormant checking and saving accounts; uncashed money orders, cashiers checks and travelers checks; unclaimed insurance benefits corporate dividends, mineral royal-

If the sun were the size of a skyscraper, the earth would be the size of a man. The moon would be the size of a cocker spaniel standing next to the man. Yet, because the sun is about 93 million miles from the earth, it does not appear larger than the moon.

Light-skinned people and those with red hair, as well as those who live in the sunbelt ... should be especially careful about prolonged exposure to the sun. Years of exposure can lead to a condition called solar keratosis. Its symptoms include irregular, red, scaly patches usually on the back of the hands or on the face, neck or a bald head.

Once a doctor diagnoses solar keratosis, it can be treated with a prescription cream or solution made by Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. It's often applied to the skin with good results and is available in cream or solution.

Sunlight takes about eight minutes and 20 seconds to reach the earth, traveling at more than 186,000 miles per second. Though it's 93 million miles away, we still need to prevent over-exposure to the sun's fiery rays.

ties and security deposits; unredeemed gift certificates; abandoned safe deposit boxes; abandoned brokerage accounts; unused escrow accounts; and many other types of property.

Financial institutions, business and others who hold property that has been unclaimed or abandoned for at least seven years must file reports with the state treasurer and attempt to locate the owners, according to state law. If still unclaimed, the money or property is sent to the treasurer, who is responsible for preserving it until claimed by the owner, if ever.

"The unclaimed property program we're running at the Treasury has two important benefits to Texans," Richards said. First, it represents a sizeable source of income to the state and helps pay for vital state programs like education, law enforcement and transportation.

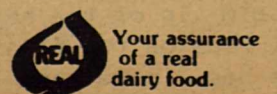

"Secondly, it is a consumer protection program. It assists owners in locating their misplaced or forgotten property or money."

More than a half-million dollars in claims were paid to owners last fiscal year. For January through May 1983, a quarter-million has been paid to owners, an increase of 89 percent over the same four months in 1982.

Richards said she is impressed with the willingness of most banking institutions and business to comply with the law. "Our collections refunds to owners would have been much higher years ago if somebody had taken the time to inform people about the unclaimed property program," Richards said. "That's what we're doing now, and we are finding that most businesses were are more than willing to cooperate."

Anyone with questions about the Texas Treasury's unclaimed--should write to the Unclaimed Property Division, Texas State Treasury, P. O. Box 12608, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

If we are to solve the drug problem, then we must work together. Law Enforcement can't be everywhere at all times, YOU must be our eyes and ears. If we all work together, we can make our community a better place to live. We can all be proud of the fact that by working together, we solve our drug problem.

If you see someone who fits the mold of a drug dealer, try to identify him by name, address, type of car, race, and the type of drugs he sells. Then call one of the community law enforcement agencies or call me personally. Your confidence will be respected and assured.

This will conclude my article on drugs in our community for now. I hope to be able to print the names of convicted drug dealers from our community in the future. Our children are our future, let's keep them off drugs.

SAFETY TIP

Home Eye Injuries Are Preventable!

More eye injuries—some 42 percent—happen around the house than anywhere else.

Cleaning agents are very often the cause—oven cleaners, drain cleaners, lye-containing detergents, ammonia, bleaches—harsh chemicals that can produce serious injury, even blindness.

According to the National Society to Prevent Blindness, which was founded 75 years ago, 90 percent of these accidents are preventable by using protective eyewear and taking a few safety precautions.

• Read the label and instructions thoroughly before using the product.

• Before you use a spray, be sure the nozzle is directed away from you.

• Wear special goggles to protect your eyes from dangerous substances.

For a free brochure on Eye Safety, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to your State Society to Prevent Blindness, or the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

HEALTH TIPS

CALCIUM & HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Sodium has been branded as the dirty dog in high blood pressure. At least that's the common lore in medical circles. Now researchers have come up with evidence that it "ain't" necessarily so."

Young adults who increased their calcium intake for 22 weeks significantly lowered their blood pressure, according to a recent study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. This research supports studies sponsored by NDC that have singled out calcium as a vital nutrient in blood pressure control.

Participants in the study took a one-gram calcium supplement daily. The men lowered their diastolic blood pressure by about nine percent, while women's blood pressure dropped about 6 percent. The study at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore concluded that high calcium intakes may guard against hypertension. Dairy foods provide more than 70 percent of the calcium in the U.S. Diet.

David A. McCarron, M.D. and Assistant Professor of Medicine at the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center, is seriously questioning some basic assumptions.

Most of the debate over hypertension centers on "deranged kidneys." It's all part of the "salt theory" which says that overloaded kidneys can't eliminate the appropriate amount salt and water each day.

"The salt theory", Dr. McCarron says, "is an attractive hypothesis that remains largely unproven. In the American population, (people with high blood pressure) and normal subjects consume, on the average, an identical amount of salt."

In raising questions about the salt issue, McCarron has discovered an intriguing relationship between high blood pressure and --calcium.

McCarron points out, "Sodium and potassium have dominated the interest of (health professionals) trying to eliminate the excessive prevalence of high blood pressure in our society.

"Compared to sodium and potassium, calcium plays a more active or dynamic role in blood pressure control."

By the way of example, McCarron points to minority populations. "Blacks" he says, consume significantly less calcium and they also have a two to threefold greater incidence of high blood pressure. Sodium intake for (both whites and blacks) is equivalent.

"A number of investigations reported from several laboratories around the world, including ours at the University of Oregon, have documented the existence of abnormalities of calcium balance in both human and experimental high blood pressure," McCarron says.

Furthermore, the doctor says, "At least two laboratories have demonstrated that the introduction of a high calcium diet in experimental animals will prevent the development of sustained high blood pressure in animals otherwise predisposed to this disorder."

The United States is the world's largest producer of oats but only about five per cent of the crop goes for human consumption.

SUN FACTS & FANCIES

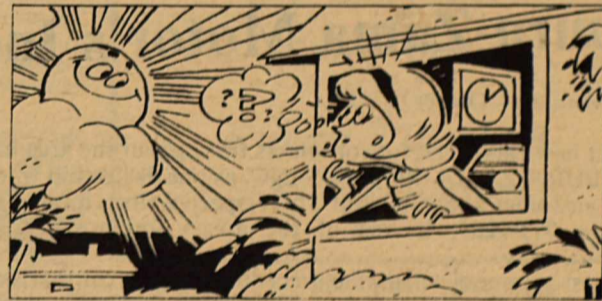

If you were ever in the dark about the sun, here are some facts about our closest star that may shine some light on the subject.

The earth takes a year to revolve around the sun, but the sun takes about 200 million years to make one revolution around the center of the milky way. During this period, the sun travels about ten billion times as far as the distance between it and earth.

How far is the sun from us? Some 93 million miles. To imagine how far that is try to imagine a newborn child, placed on a spaceship flying toward the sun at 500 miles an hour. When he reaches the sun, he will be 21 years old.

Too much sun can do more than give you a suntan. The fact is that years of exposure may be harmful to your skin. Moreover, working or playing long hours in the sun may cause premature aging, wrinkling, leathery skin texture and precancerous conditions. This is especially true of blondes, redheads, fair-skinned people and sunbelt dwellers.

Solar keratosis, a condition which in some cases may become malignant if untreated, may result from too much exposure over a long period of time. Its symptoms include irregular, red, usually painless patches, often found on the hands and face. People who have such symptoms should see their doctors. If not treated in time, solar keratosis may lead to skin cancer, the most common form of cancer among people.

The sun's burning rays are most intense between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

A prescription cream or solution made by Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. is often applied to the skin with good results. It is available in solution and in cream forms. Only a physician can diagnose solar keratosis and prescribe proper treatment.

For most people with light skin, first exposure to the sun early in the season should not exceed ten to 15 minutes for each side. If you begin tanning later in the summer, first exposure should be shorter, particularly if you start in a climate sunnier than the one in which you live.

Increase exposure time by about a third each day. The time of day is also important. The sun's burning rays are most intense between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Compared with other stars, the sun is actually only medium-sized. Still, its diameter is about 109 times the diameter of the earth. Though it's more important to us than any other object in the sky, we should still be careful about overexposure to its rays.

NEWS Of The South

More and more Americans are taking a shine to the good life they find in the sunbelt states. But along with the special pleasures of living there, there are also a few special things to be careful about.

One of these is over-exposure to the sun.

Working or playing long hours in the sun may cause premature aging, wrinkling, leathery skin texture and precancerous skin conditions. This is especially true of blondes, redheads, fair-skinned people and sunbelt dwellers.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

It's Outdoors Time!

The season is finally here for outdoor activities... while some may be "chores," most are pure recreation, and the wise planner will get the work out of the way for play.

For example, sharpen those garden and lawn care tools...hoe, edger, trowel and mower to make the work go easier. All you'll need is a Nicholson Home & Garden File. Make sure your pruners are sharp, too.

Now you can think camping, hunting and fishing! Your sporting goods dealer has many new products to make camping and related activities the best ever. Like space-age lightweight portable stoves, camp axes and a great combination hammer/pick by Plumb, a compact folding saw from Nicholson, and a new Boker camper's knife with rosewood handle.

Fishermen will welcome small stainless steel bladed Wiss scissors for intricate fly-tying, and their fillet knives complete with leather sheath.

Spring has at last sprung — enjoy it to the fullest with the right equipment!

SAFETY SENSE

One-Piece Capsules Have Many Advantages

Nowadays, when it comes to packaging, safety is no accident.

In the discussion regarding safer packaging for over-the-counter pharmaceutical products, some experts have pointed out that one-piece hermetically-sealed soft gelatin capsules are more tamper-resistant than tablets and two-piece hard shell capsule products since they are manufactured in one continuous operation. From a heated gelatin mass, soft gelatin capsules are formed, filled and hermetically sealed. Besides being more tamper-resistant, the seal prevents oxidation and evaporation.

A number of products such as vitamin E, lecithin and beta carotene are marketed in soft gelatin capsules. The Pharmacaps and Encapsulations subsidiaries of Iroquois Brands Ltd., manufacture the one-piece sealed soft gelatin capsules and point out that they offer the advantage of improved stability, taste, ease of swallowing and accuracy of fill compared with compressed tablet dosage forms.

Pharmacaps said industry estimates indicate that soft gelatin capsules account for only two percent of the total capsule and tablet dosage form market in terms of units sold. However, significantly over 40 percent of consumers reportedly have indicated a preference for soft gelatin capsules over the two-piece sealed soft gelatin capsules and tablet dosage forms.

DIAMOND DOINGS

Only two players have won baseball's coveted "Triple Crown" twice—the St. Louis Cardinals' Rogers Hornsby in 1922 and 1925, and Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams in 1942 and 1947.

The American League set an all-time sports league record for attendance in 1982 when more than 23 million people went through stadium turnstiles.

Lou Gehrig holds baseball's all-time record for grand-slam home runs. He hit 23 during his career with the New York Yankees. Willie McCovey holds the National League record with 18 while with San Francisco and San Diego.

According to Figgie International's Rawlings Sporting Goods division, manufacturer of baseballs for both major leagues, each ball contains 219 yards of wool yarn and 150 yards of cotton string.

THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE ULGY

SOME WAYS TO RECOGNIZE A DRUG DEALER

1. Persons who maintain an economic lifestyle which is not compatible with their visible means of support.
2. Residences that have a large number of visitors in and out at odd hours.

3. Vehicles in and out of a residence with out-of-state or out-of-county license plates.
4. Persons absent from their residence fro two or three days and upon their return have an unusual number of visitors in and out.
5. Several visitors entering and leaving a residence with packages.
6. Persons with fluctuating

7. Residents who discourage any unknown visitors. (Many drug dealers use highly trained "guard dogs" and will post signs of "Beware of Dog" around the perimeter of their residence.)

8. Person purchasing items, such as vehicles, with large amounts of cash.

9. Unusual oders coming from a house or apartment.

10. Large trucks or rental trucks unloading quantities of unknown substance at night when no appearance of movin in or out of a building or residence is present.

The ways in which drug dedealers operate vary depending on the amount and type of drug involved. A person dealing small quantities of marijuana (such as bags for $40.00) may have a tendency to be more lax in his appearance and attitude and in his illegal activities. Dealers on this level have large numbers of visitors at their residences and will probably be well-known to most of the local drug users. The operate in this illegal activitiy, not only for the money, but also for the importance and presitge they gain with with their peers. They may also be dealing in other drugs, such as pills or small amounts of cocaine.

The higher level drug dealers are usually very cautious and paranoid; therefore, they are harder to identify and apprehend. As indicated in the characteristics above, they do everything possible to maintain a low profile. They normally deal to the same group of people who in turn cater to the lower level dealer. The drug dealer on this level, either goes out-of-state, or has someone from out-of-state bring the drugs into the state.

Dealers make an enormous amount of money because of the large quantities and types of drugs they handle (large quantities of pills, pounds of marijuana and cocaine.) The dealer on this level may also use another person to actually handle the drugs while he provides the money and reaps the highest benefits. He may have a good job and appear to lead a normal life while he is actually a criminal of the lowest order.

NEWS FROM BOB BULLOCK

Comptroller Bob Bullock Friday certified the state budget passed by the Legislature as being in balance--and little else.

"After paying the bills there will be only small change left in the bank," Bullock said of $30.9 billion in spending measures he certified under the Constitution's pay-as-you-go provision.

Based on Bullock's last revenue estimate, the Legislature left only $15.1 million unspent in general revenue.

Bullock said also that current tax collections through the first few days of June show that his revenue estimate "remains right on target."

"Actual collections are the proof of the pudding," Bullock noted, "not the skepticism voiced by some other state officials and a few freshman legislators."

Bullock pointed out that the budget was in balance only because he counted nearly $600 million in revenue-raising bills passed by the Legislature. The bulk of that will come from measures proposed by Bullock to move up tax due dates to capture more money in the 1984-85 budget period.

The budget measures certified by Bullock now go to the governor for his action.

Pointers For Parents

Helpful Information For You

Play is an important activity for young children learning to interact socially, solve problems, and develop a strong self concept.

Parents of preschool age children will want to actively encourage a variety of play experiences that develop fundamental reading and writing readiness skills in an atmosphere of fun.

There's a wide selection of preschool activity products available today that contain simple, satisfying projects to keep a young child's interest level high.

Look for play materials that help develop hand-eye coordination, stimulate curiosity and creativity, encourage verbal expression and allow for interactive play with others.

With specific instructions to the parent on each package, the Scribbler's activities are designed to both entertain and impart a variety of skills required for early childhood development.

colored outline and that gives them an opportunity to experiment with various colors. Heavy pages allow children to use either crayons, paints or the Scribbler's non-toxic, water-based markers.

Guided by a parent or an older brother or sister, younger children can learn to recognize and name objects with the first color books. They also learn to associate letters and words with pictures. Both skills are important for children preparing to enter school and supplement day care or pre-school classroom activities.

KAZEN

The House Armed Services Committee last week began hearings on the proposal to base MX intercontinental ballistic missiles in Minuteman silos and to authorize development of a small, mobile missile for deployment in the next decade.

I was present at the White House when the President announced his strong support for this concept, developed by the President's Commission on Strategic Forces, and as a member of the Armed Services Committee I look forward to serious consideration of this critical issue.

Because of the vital importance of an adequate deterrent force to all American--and its crucial link to arms control and a peaceful future--I want to bring you up to date on this most pressing issue.

First of all, I believe in the Triad Concept of land-based, submarine-launched and aircraft weapons systems because at this time it would be impossible for the Soviets to attack and destroy all three systems before we could retaliate. This knowledge tends to keep them "honest" and at the negotiating table, but time and technology do not stand still. Consider these comparisons:

--The Soviet ICBM force has grown to nearly 1,400 launchers carrying over 5,000 warheads, while we have 1,047 launchers and about 2,150 warheads. Our experts believe the Soviets possess the numbers and accuracy to destroy almost all of our ICBM silos with only a portion of their force, while we could not destroy theirs.

-- The Soviet ballistic missile submarine force consists of 62 modern subs armed with 950 missiles and almost 2,000 nuclear warheads. We have only 34 submarines and 568 missiles, but more warheads--about 5,000--and clear superiority in submarine quietness and anti-submarine warfare.

--Soviet heavy strategic bombers now number about 150, about half equipped with air-to-surface missiles. This is considerable less than our 270 B-52 bombers and 60 FB-111 bombers, but a new Soviet bomber is now being flight tested.

The ICBM missile leg of the Triad is an integral part of our deterrent system, regardless of survivability, because it creates a situation where a Soviet planner could not with confidence attack all three legs simultaneously. But the fact remains that four presidents, six secretaries of defense, and a majority of the members in several sessions of Congress have all concluded that we need to modernize the ICBM force.

As you know, there has been a long dispute over how to house, hide or harden the powerful MX missile, which our experts believe is necessary to deter aggression. The Commission recognizes that deployment in Minuteman silos may sacrifice the ability of the MX to ride out an attack, but it also points out the dangers of a decision to cancel the MX.

In the case the Soviets could concentrate their research on tracking our submarines and improving their own, and the number of aim points of a surprise attack would be reduced. In addition the Soviets would have little incentive to negotiate a reduction in total nuclear weapons in general or land-based systems in particular.

In the longer term, the ICBM modernization plan would achieve survivability through development of a new, highly accurate small missile, and research and development on mobility, silo hardening, ballistic missile defense and deep underground basing.

These single-warhead ICBM weapons, suitably based, would deny an attacker the opportunity to destroy more than one warhead with one attacking warhead.

The ultimate goal of the plan, as I see it, is to use the MX to keep the Soviets at the negotiating tables, followed at some point by an agreement by both countries to move toward a more stable ICBM force and reduction in numbers of missiles.

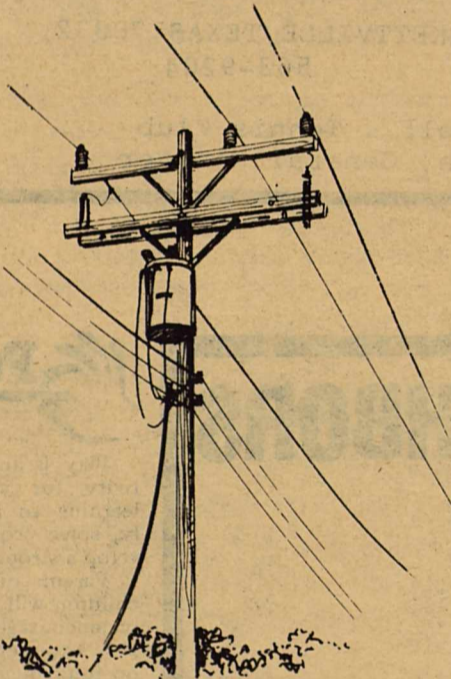

Stay alert and stay clear—

AVOID POWER LINES

Putting up the antenna for your TV set or for the base station of your CB radio can be dangerous unless you take certain precautions.

Plan the project carefully if you install the antenna yourself. First, know where all the power lines are—then stay well away from them. Any contact between a power line and you or your antenna can be serious.

Make sure you locate your antenna (including the supporting mast and guy wires) at least one and a half times its total height from all power lines. For example, an antenna 30 feet high should be 45 feet away from power lines in all directions.

Don't use a ladder near power lines—during an antenna installation or while performing any other task. The danger from using a metal ladder is obvious. But a wooden ladder can conduct electricity, too, if it's damp or if it has dirt or paint on it.

Electricity brings a more comfortable life to all of us, but it must be treated cautiously. Stay alert—and stay clear of power lines!

try to picture yourself relaxing with a tasty snack and a frosty glass of iced tea. Then after you've finished the dishes, the dusting or the laundry—put your feet up and put yourself in the picture.

IT'S THE MOST!

Most of the world is covered by water. Only about 30 percent of the earth's total surface is dry land.

The most inexpensive utility is the one that supplies water. Safe, clean drinking water costs an average of a penny for ten gallons across the country.

The American Water Works Association points out that water itself is free. What you get billed for is the cost of gathering, treating, storing and distributing it. But what a bargain it is.

FIREWORKS

The Texas Society to Prevent Blindness reports that separate surveys conducted by the Society and the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) indicated that fireworks pose a major threat to public safety and that fireworks injuries are on the rise.

The CPSC study reports that 11,400 people were treated for fireworks injuries in hospital emergency rooms around the country during the July fourth holidays in 1981. Of these injuries 1,600 were to the eyes. These figures only begin to indicate the extent of the problem as they do not include injuries treated at home and in private doctors' offices or those admitted directly into hospitals.

The survey of Texas ophthalmologists conducted by Prevent Blindness shows that the average victim of a fireworks injury is a teenage male and that the majority of serious injuries are caused by bottle-rockets. However, the statistics show that men and women of all ages annually suffer injuries from virtually all types of fireworks. The Society's study also shows that the majority of reported accidents occur around the home.

"Both studies confirm our viewpoints that fireworks are not toys but rather dangerous projectiles and that there are no 'safe' fireworks," said Raichard Evans, M.D., San Antonio Branch Medical Chairman. "A great deal of the responsibility for reducing the tragic toll of fireworks injuries must be accepted by parents since two-thirds of all reported injuries occur to youngsters under the age of 19," he continued.

The statistics are grim, but the solution is simple. Don't buy fireworks this year, instead take the family to a safe licensed public display," concluded Dr. Evans.

The Texas Society to Prevent Blindness is an affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness, the oldest voluntary health agency nationally engaged in sight conservation through a comprehensive program of community service, public and professional education, and research.
