HAPPY THANKSGIVING

THE BEGINNING

Tomorrow we will celebrate one of the oldest and most widespread of celebrations. Thanksgiving, observed on the fourth Thursday in November, is a day set aside to offer our thanks for all the blessings we have received.

The pilgrims, along with ninety Indians, celebrated the first Thanksgiving in the early 1600's with a feast of deer, fowl, corn, fish, and wild turkey. The celebration was not officially recorded as a day of thanks at that time and it was not until two years later, following a severe drought, that a day of thanks was set aside.

George Washington proclaimed a National Thanksgiving Day on the last Thursday of November 1789 in honor of the new United States Constitution, but Abraham Lincoln, believing the Union had been saved in 1863, was the first to decree that the holiday be observed every year.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, feeling that Thanksgiving fell too close to Christmas, moved the celebration up to the third Thursday in November, but not all of the states complied with his decision. It took a joint resolution of Congress to specify that Thanksgiving always be celebrated on the fourth Thursday of the month.

Be Thankful!

Martha Reyna

The first Thanksgiving was held December of 1621 over 360 years ago. Governor William Bradford of the Plymouth Colony had appointed a day of celebration. The Governor had sent four men out to shoot wild turkeys for a feast.

The custom was abandoned in 1622 after an Indian massacre. The celebration was then revived with a change of dates, March 22, by the Virginia General Assembly in 1623, as a day of gratitude for the settler's deliverance from the Indians.

In 1775 George Washington called on all colonies to observe Thursday, November 23, as a day of Thanksgiving. This was soon after the start of the Revolutionary War. In 1781 after the defeat of Cornwallis, the Continental Congress proclaimed October 29 as a day of prayer and Thanksgiving.

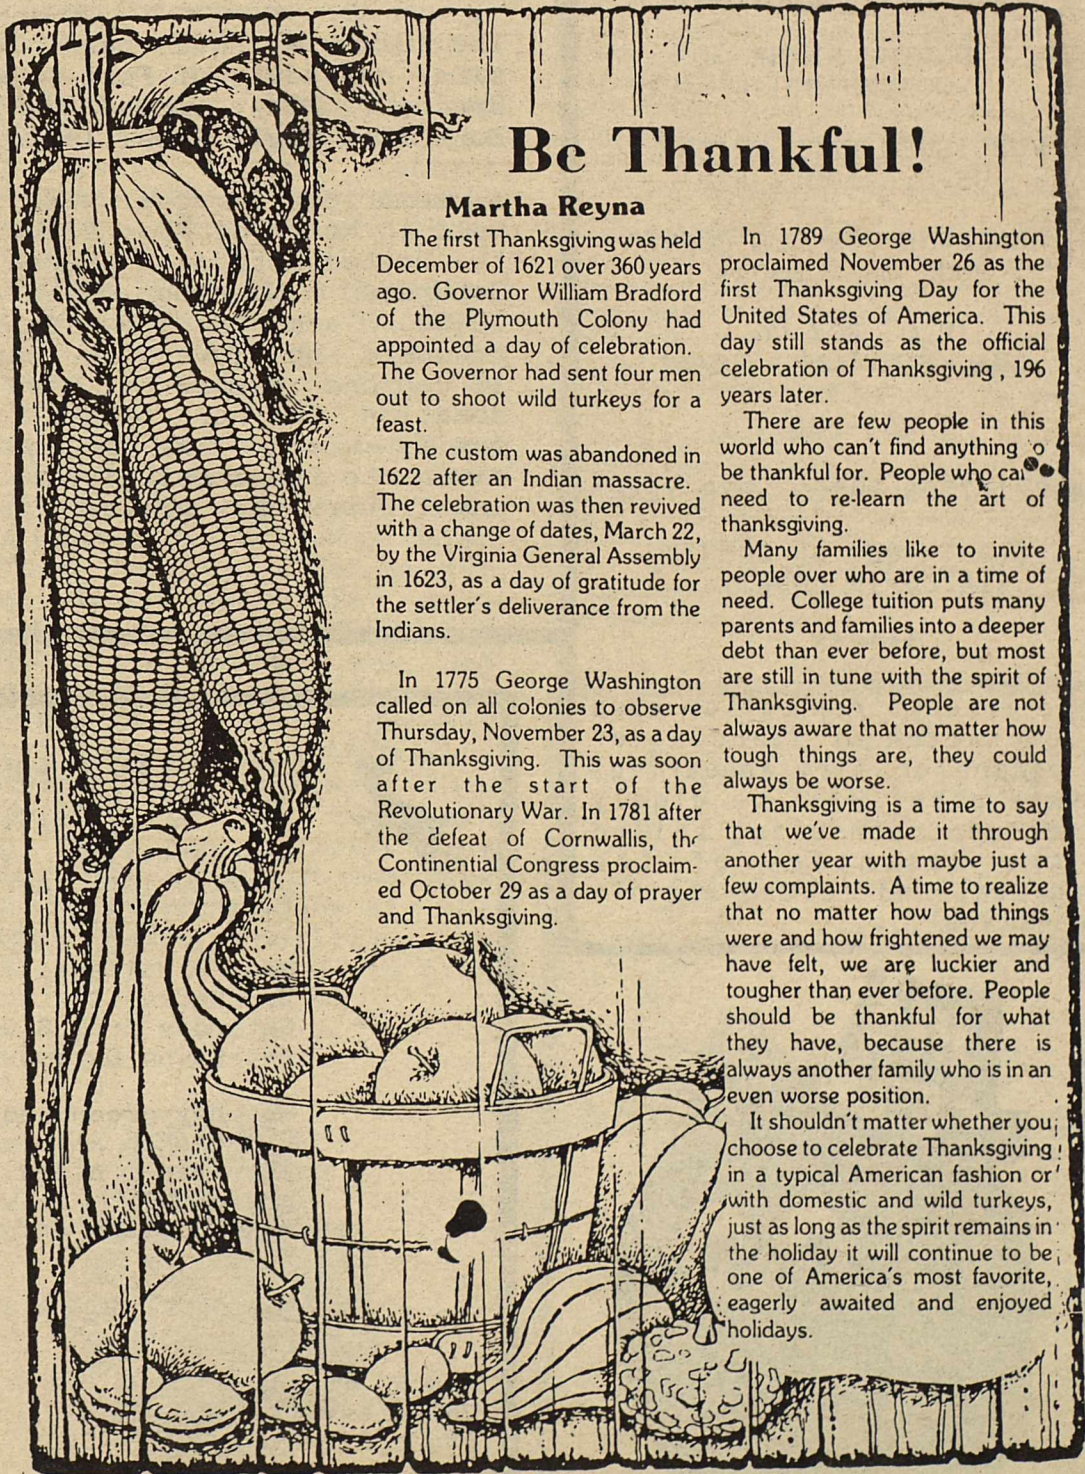

In 1789 George Washington proclaimed November 26 as the first Thanksgiving Day for the United States of America. This day still stands as the official celebration of Thanksgiving, 196 years later.

There are few people in this world who can't find anything to be thankful for. People who can't need to re-learn the art of thanksgiving.

Many families like to invite people over who are in a time of need. College tuition puts many parents and families into a deeper debt than ever before, but most are still in tune with the spirit of Thanksgiving. People are not always aware that no matter how tough things are, they could always be worse.

Thanksgiving is a time to say that we've made it through another year with maybe just a few complaints. A time to realize that no matter how bad things were and how frightened we may have felt, we are luckier and tougher than ever before. People should be thankful for what they have, because there is always another family who is in an even worse position.

It shouldn't matter whether you choose to celebrate Thanksgiving in a typical American fashion or with domestic and wild turkeys, just as long as the spirit remains in the holiday it will continue to be one of America's most favorite, eagerly awaited and enjoyed holidays.

First, let me say that all arrests occurred on the same day. Two were the result of joint efforts with local Border Patrol Agents, which also netted several illegal aliens. The agents responding receive my thanks in this column for responding in a timely manner.

You may have noticed by now that one of this week's arrests was for traffic violations. The only violation that one cannot be arrested for is speeding. All other traffic violations, no matter what the offense, may result in the offender being arrested. In this case, the offender was an illegal alien, and was part of one of the joint efforts mentioned earlier. However, arrest is one of the avenues available to the peace officer.

Finally, I have been and am cracking down on speeding on Ann St. and all residential streets. Some have been commenting on my becoming "chicken" on their speed, and whether or not I should have written them a citation for that number of miles per over the speed limit. I counter by saying that Ann St. and other residential areas have a high number of bicycle and pedestrian traffic. And cyclists don't seem to care that pulling into a car's path could kill them, and children are playing on or around these streets. I have been asked why I don't grace a little more. That is because I find it more graceful to issue a citation to a driver than to scrape a kid off the street and arrest the driver for reckless driving or negligent homicide.

POST OFFICE NOTICE

In observance of Thanksgiving, all postal units will be closed on Thursday, November 27, 1986. No residential, business or rural deliveries will be provided. Retail windows for purchase of stamps and postal products will be closed; however, stamps may be purchased for letters and parcels at the Postal Service Self-Service Postal Centers utilizing the stamp vending machines and scales at these centers.

Mail will be distributed to Post Office boxes on Thursday and Express Mail and Special Delivery service will be provided.

Mail will be collected from collection boxes on a holiday schedule posted on each box. City Operations Director Ruben Sanchez stated "The public often is not aware that mail is processed on holidays and weekends, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. It will help us greatly if customers deposit their mail on Thursday, Thanksgiving, rather than accumulate it for the next day. Business mailers may deposit their mail at the Bulk Mail Acceptance dock at the General Mail Facility, as usual, from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m."

Home Hints

PESKY FRUIT FLIES — To rid yourself of those fruit flies which seem to descend upon us in swarms during certain seasons, put some orange juice in a small glass and stand it where flies appear. In no time, the flies will go into the juice and die. Grace DeV., Jamesport, N.Y.

TRAVEL TIP — While traveling, I have found it convenient to carry a roll of quarters with me. They're used for tolls, telephones, and vending machines. In fact, a person who's always on the go might want to carry extra quarters in the car for parking meters, etc. Clifford V., Agodra, Calif.

EASY APPLIQUE REMOVAL — To remove those appliques which get old and dirty in your tub, pour boiling water on them, or use a hand-held hair dryer. After applying hot water, or aiming hot air on the decals, use a razor blade and carefully scrape one corner and try to pull it up. Then spray a petroleum-based pre-wash spray over it. Let it set. It should peel off without too much struggle. The gummy residue which is left can be removed with nail polish remover. Another good thing to do is sprinkle baking soda or dishwashing detergent on the area and scrub the rest of it off. Sandra Y., Tempe, Ariz.

SLIDE STOPPER — I have narrow shoulders. As a result, my bra straps are constantly sliding off them. I solved the problem by buying a bra a size smaller than I wear and added a bra extender for my back. The straps are closer together on a smaller size bra and that's what I needed for my narrow shoulders. Kerry G., Stuart, Fla.

PIERCED EARS — I used to have trouble wearing my pierced earrings through the whole day. I decided to try putting anti-bacterial ointment on the posts before putting them on. It made a difference, because now I can wear them all day with no discomfort. Christina N., Waycross, Ga.

ODOR BANISHER — If you wear sneakers which have cloth or terrycloth linings, they will develop an odor after a while from the perspiration of your feet. To remedy this, make a solution of mild soap and water. Using only the suds or foam so as not to soak the shoes, scrub the inside lining with a toothbrush. Put the shoes on a shoe form so they'll keep their shape while they air dry. Nancy O., Seneca, S.C.

CLEAN UP WITH RICE — We make iced tea in half-gallon glass jugs which fruit juices comes in. It's amazing how tea scale builds up in the bottom. To clean it, I put about two inches of hot water in the jug and add a couple of spoonful of dry rice, shake, swish, etc. and dump it out into a tea strainer. I rinse the rice off under the faucet, spread it on a paper towel to dry out, and put it away to use again and again.

LIBRARIANS MAKE
READING FUN

Kinney County's Public Library plays a significant role in the lives of many residents of Brackettville and the surrounding area. Library employees work hard to create the perfect atmosphere for reading, studying, and exploring of new and different lifestyles and worlds.

Working the circulation desk at the library entails many things; including checking out material to patrons, assisting patrons in finding books and other materials, checking for overdue materials, and collecting money from fines, donations, book sales and photocopies.

Employees must make a daily count of library users and materials used, a daily cash sheet for all monies collected, and fill out several monthly and annual reports including those to the Library Board, County Commissioners, and the Texas State Library.

The processing, classifying, and shelving of books is an important part of working at the Library as is the repairing of damaged materials and "weeding" of the collection (recycling, replacing, and retiring of material) in order to help keep the Library's materials current and in good condition. Much creativity is employed in the designing of signs, posters, displays, and in the planning of programs.

Throughout the work involved in creating a library full of interesting materials and ideas, employees enjoy the benefit of information gained by the many people who visit the Library. According to Librarian Frances Hernandez, "the experience and knowledge from the many people who visit the library add much enjoyment and pleasure to the job."

BLOOD DRIVE

Selecting a present for those on our Christmas gift lists is a perennial problem! What do they want? What size will fit? The Brackettville Ministerial Alliance and the South Texas Regional Blood Bank have a solution for many: Give the Gift of Life for Christmas!

A need for an average of 250 units of blood exists each and every day of the year in the 54 hospitals of the 35-county South Texas area; requirements during the Holiday Season, particularly, raise that figure considerably. On Saturday, December 13th, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., a community-wide blood drive will be conducted in the First United Methodist Church's Slator Hall on James Street (across from the Medical Clinic). All prospective blood donors, ages 17 through 66, are encouraged to give the gift only they can give.

The Brackettville Ministerial Alliance reminds everyone that in this period of Thanksgiving and the Christmas season of giving, it is an appropriate time to give one of the most meaningful and welcome gifts that anyone could provide to someone having a real and genuine need: Give blood on December 13th!

CHAPTER I

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Older Americans Act is the basis upon which local programs for older persons are built. This chapter gives an overview of that Act, the programs it has created, and the policy framework under which the programs operate.

I. THE OLDER AMERICANS ACT

The Older Americans Act was first enacted in 1965, and was amended eight times between 1965 and 1978. As first enacted, the Act authorized funding under Title III to support separate state agencies on aging. Title III also provided funds for each state agency to initiate local community programs to provide social services to older persons. Activities under the Act began on a modest scale; in FY 1966, the total appropriation was $7.5 million.

In 1972, a new Title VII was enacted which authorized funds for local community programs to provide nutrition services to the elderly. They were designed to provide older persons aged 60 and older with at least one hot, nutritious meal five or more days a week. Emphasis was placed on serving older persons with the greatest economic need and on reducing their isolation from the rest of the community.

A second major change occurred in 1973. The Title III state grant program was amended to provide for better organization at state and local levels and to authorize the targeting of limited resources to priority services. Each state agency was directed to divide the entire state into planning and service areas, determine which areas would develop an area plan, and designate an area agency on aging to develop and administer the plan in each area. The 1973 amendments also added a new Title V to the Act which authorized the Commissioner to make grants directly to local community agencies to pay part of the cost of acquisition, renovation, alteration or initial staffing of facilities for use as multipurpose senior centers.

The 1975 amendments specified four priority services to be provided under state plans: transportation, home services, legal services, and residential repair and renovations.

The 1978 amendments represented another evolutionary step in the process of establishing in each planning and service area a basic capacity to respond to the needs of older persons. They consolidated, under an amended Title III, the social services, nutrition, and multipurpose senior center programs authorized before under Titles III, V, and VII.

II. DEVELOPMENT OF COMPREHENSIVE AND COORDINATED SERVICE SYSTEMS

The purpose of the Title III program is to provide assistance to states and local communities in the development of a comprehensive and coordinated system of services for older persons. Title III authorizes the designation of state agencies on aging by governors and provides for the allocation of federal funds to states on a formula grant basis under an approved state plan on aging.

Each state agency is responsible for the development and implementation of its state plan, establishment of priorities for services for older persons, and advocacy on behalf of the needs and concerns of the elderly. It is responsible for dividing the state into planning and service areas and designating area agencies on aging in each planning and service area.

Each state agency is responsible for providing technical assistance and training to area agencies as well as for monitoring the effectiveness of the area agencies' administration of the aging program throughout the planning and service area.

The area agency on aging serves as the focal point for aging programs throughout the planning and service area. The area agency is responsible for advocacy on behalf of the elderly; assessing the needs and priorities for services throughout the planning and service area, focusing the delivery of services for older persons with greatest economic and social need; planning and coordination of existing services, development of new services and resources for the elderly wherever possible; and the award of grants and contracts for the provision of social and nutrition services.

III. NATIONAL NETWORK ON AGING

There are a total of 57 state agencies on aging. Of these, 13 have received approval from the Administration on Aging to operate as single planning area states with the state agency serving as the area agency for the entire state. Nationally, a total of 669 area agencies have been designated.

State agencies on aging reported the following information for FY 1980, which reflects the kinds of social services provided and the approximate number of older persons served under the Title III program.

Social Service—No. of Persons Served

Transportation—2,259,000
 In-home services—700,000
 Legal & related counseling—417,000
 Residential repair—108,000
 Information & referral—5,028,000
 Escort—282,000
 Outreach—1,743,000
 Other—5,033,000

The total number of older persons receiving social services under the Title III program in 1980 was 9,336,993. Of this number, approximately 54 percent of the older persons served were in the low-income category.

Under the 1980 Title III nutrition allotment, approximately 1,200 service providers received funds and provided services in approximately 12,500 nutrition sites. These sites are located in senior centers, religious institutions, schools, low-income housing facilities and other community agencies. The majority of these sites provide at least one meal per day, five or more days per week. A few locations provide meals twice daily; and a number of areas serve meals every day, making a special effort to keep the meal sites open on holidays.

The total number of meals served in FY 1980 was 168,390,299. Approximately 55 percent of these meals were catered, with the remainder prepared on site. Approximately 78 percent of the meals were provided in congregate settings, and 22 percent were delivered to the home. Of all the meals served, approximately 62.5 percent were served to low-income, older persons.

IV. CONCLUSION

It is crucial that nutrition service providers understand where they fit into the service system, what their direct responsibility is, what responsibilities they share with others, and what is totally out of their domain.

By working closely with the area agency on aging, each provider will understand the policy and related program expectations under which it must operate. Such an understanding will not only facilitate the effective delivery of nutrition services, but will make these services an integral part of the overall service delivery system serving older persons at the local level.

In the very near future I will inform the public of the monies we will be operating with for fiscal year 87 and what the responsibilities of the director and clerk are.

At this time the staff at the center would like to thank Commissioners Joe York, Tim Ward, Plunker Sheedy, Joe Garza and County Judge Albert A. Postell for their assistance in all the decisions that have expired in the past. The Commissioners Court play a big role in our program, as they are our governing body and the responsibilities of this program rests on them.

We are very sorry that we will lose commissioners York, Sheedy and Judge Postell. We have enjoyed working with them and it has been an enjoyable experience.

We are also looking forward to working with the new administration and will assist them in every way possible to make it a smooth sailing operation.

Next week we will report expenditures for November and also Chapter II of the program overview.

Just a reminder, the center will be closed on Thursday and Friday for Thanksgiving Holidays. Happy Thanksgiving to all!

Dear Diane
by Diane Van Arsdale

DEAR DIANE:

I am a successful career woman in my mid '30s. Actually, the irony of this is I never wanted a career; it simply happened to me. I find myself more and more dissatisfied with my life. I am restless and bored and yearn for what I always wanted — a good marriage and children. However, I find myself always involved with men who either have problems, or don't want a commitment. In fact, that is the case right now. Quite frankly, I'm sick and tired of waiting around and hoping. Although I care deeply for my current boyfriend, I honestly don't believe he'll ever make a move. Do you have any suggestions?

UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY:

It seems that you've established a pattern in your life in which you always end up the loser in love. There could be a number of reasons for this, not the least of which is you may actually fear what it is you crave — the intimacy of a good, satisfying relationship. Be that as it may, you need to discover what is driving you on this path of self-destruction and unhappiness. I strongly suggest professional counseling to help you break out of your pattern.

As for your current boyfriend, see what your counselor suggests. Perhaps, in some way, he is feeling the pressure of your silent desires and is reacting negatively by refusing to make a commitment. Or, it could be as you say, he'll never do it. However, I believe counseling will help you find the answers.

DEAR DIANE:

I am considering marrying a man who has children from a previous marriage. He has custody, because she is an unfit mother. I have some fears about this. I'm not used to children and I don't know if I could handle them. Also, I'm not crazy about having a ready-made family from the very beginning of my marriage. I always thought the ideal situation was for the couple to have time to themselves to get to know each other before they had children. However, I do love this man very much. He's wonderful, and I've never known anyone like him. Do you think I should just ignore my fears and hope that everything will work out?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED:

Your fears are justified, and you should not ignore them. Talk these things over with a priest, minister or rabbi. While I think your problems can be worked out, you will need to realize that it's going to take a lot of patience and hard work on all your parts. In fact, it wouldn't be a bad idea for you, your fiance and his children to talk to someone. You are all going to have to be open, loving and accepting with each other so that you can become a solid, happy family. Good luck. And take heart, I think this can work.

If you have a question, send it to Dear Diane, c/o Diane Eckert, editor of Weekly Features; King Features; 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

HOLIDAY PREVENTION TIPS TO AVOID VIOLATIONS OF POSTAL LAWS

1. Do not mail cash by regular mail.
 - a. We encourage our customers to use our insured or registry services whenever mailing an item of value.
 - b. If the grandparents insist on sending cash as gifts in greeting cards, watch for delivery and remove mail from the mailbox daily.
 - c. If you suspect money was mailed and not received, ask the sender. They may think your kids received it and were too inconsiderate to say thanks.
2. At "central delivery points", i.e. hotels, motels and many apartment houses, coordinate mail acceptance procedures with managers.
 - a. The responsibility of the Postal Service ends at that point.
 - b. Encourage managers to complete an "agent's" authorization with the U. S. Postal Service to receive your mail for which a signature is needed.
 - c. Call your local post office and report lost or rifled mail. Payment of claims for loss or damage will be made only if a parcel is insured, registered, COD, or Express Mail.
3. Practice security habits regarding receipt of mail.
 - a. Anticipate dates and time of day for any check deliveries.
 - b. Observe suspicious persons/activities around your mailbox.
 - c. Observe suspicious persons/activities around your carrier's vehicle.
 - d. Report such persons/activities to your local post office.
- Maintain a good rapport with your letter carrier or clerk.
 - a. Secure your pets. We provide the best possible delivery service, but we must keep the welfare of our personnel in mind.
 - b. Report discourteous employees. We urge employees to execute their duties in a professional and courteous manner. We also encourage them to avoid confrontations that could lead to their safety or that of the public.
4. Avoid offers that are "too good to be true".
 - a. Scrutinize promotions of "letters from Santa or North Pole" to be sent to kids.
 - b. During this high unemployment period, avoid work-at-home job opportunities for holiday income.
 - c. Be careful of questionable charity promotions, COD sales promotions and television mail order promotions to post office boxes rather than to known physical addresses.
6. Refrain from mailing articles that you believe are nonmailable.
 - a. Call the post office or ask the acceptance clerk if you have doubts.
 - b. Do not mail appliances or toys with batteries connected. Ticking sounds are suspicious and costly.

One year-round goal of the Postal Inspection Service is to anticipate crime risks related to mail security and to provide information to the American public so that cooperation can be elicited in avoiding those risks.

No other disease commands public concern more than Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS). First identified about six years ago, AIDS has been called the "disease of the century." Already the illness has killed at least 15,000 Americans and infected an estimated 1.5 million more. The search continues for a vaccine or cure.

Among the states, Texas ranks fourth in the highest rate of incidence. Nearly 1,700 cases in the state are registered at the Texas Department of Health (TDH), and that number increases each week. There may be as many as 100,000 Texans infected with the human immune deficiency virus (HIV) which causes AIDS.

TDH is responsible for administering statewide programs aimed at controlling the disease.

One such program is AIDS surveillance. Medical personnel throughout the state report to TDH the incidence of AIDS and demographic information about all AIDS cases. Texas was among the first states to require such reporting. From these reports, TDH gains a profile of the disease' status statewide. From TDH, the statewide report is forwarded to the federal Centers for Disease Control, which keeps track of AIDS nationwide. The statewide profile shows the numbers, population characteristics, and other factors about AIDS cases.

The agency's Sexually Transmitted Disease (STD) Control Division oversees the sampling of blood from persons at risk of exposure to HIV.

Need pecans for your holiday goodies? The Lions Club stand on Hwy 90 is open each weekend to take care of your needs. On weekdays, contact any Lions Club Member.

The samples are tested at the TDH laboratory in Austin and in Houston.

The division also offers counseling, both before and after blood tests, keeping individuals' identities confidential. In addition, STD staff conduct local seminars and workshops to educate groups about AIDS prevention and case management.

TDH health educators develop training and counseling materials to help the public better understand how to prevent the spread of HIV. Their programs are offered through schools, churches, community organizations, and blood banks. They also offer technical assistance to anyone who plans to hold a conference or seminar about the disease.

Assisting TDH in finding ways to confront the spread of AIDS is the Commissioner's Task Force on AIDS, headed by Dr. Robert Bernstein, Texas Commissioner of Health. The task force includes 48 members representing medicine, public health, elected officials, religion, the gay community, AIDS foundations, the prison system, blood banks, law enforcement agencies, other state agencies, and the general public.

For more information, contact Rocco Pelosi, AIDS Education Coordinator, or Margaret Wilson, Public Information Coordinator, Public Health Promotion Division, 512-458-7405.

TIGERS MAKE IT TWO

Brackettville-- The Brackett Tigers upped their record to 2-0 with their second consecutive win over the Rocksprings Angoras by the score of 54-44.

There was a full house Friday night to watch the Tigers maul the goats again. Brackett was a bit more offense minded though, increasing their point production by 17 over last Tuesday night in Rocksprings.

The Tigers were led by Charlie Baker who poured in 20 pts. and hauled in 22 rebounds. Hector Pena added 14 pts. and 5 boards, Frank Morgan was 7/6, Steve Boutwell 6/5, Robert Estrada 4/0, Placido Samaniego 2/0, Mitch Frerich 1/2, and Wesley Reisinger was 0/1.

Baker led the team defensively as well with 2 blocked shots and 6 steals. Pena was 1/4. Morgan had 1 blocked shot, Estrada and Samaniego had 4 steals each, Frerich had 3, Boutwell had 2, while Dutch Wardlaw and Sonny Garcia had 1 apiece.

The JV boys lost the preliminary contest 12-37, and the girls varsity evened their season at 1-1 with a 43-37 win.

For close onto thirty years I had lived in the vicinity of historic Horsehead Crossing on the Pecos River without ever having seen it or even discovering its exact location. Yet many was the story and legend I had heard about this famous ford, once the most important river crossing between the East and the Southwest. Dozens of people had told me they had been there, but their versions differed as much as thirty miles up or down the Pecos.

Came one November day when we decided to track down the Crossing. We knew its approximate location--about ten miles down river from Crane, Texas--so we struck out for Crane, planning to play it by ear from there. Most people who visit the Crossing do it from the west bank, where there is a marker. We decided to do from the East, the hard way.

At a service station in Crane we were referred to the Chamber of Commerce. From there we were sent to an insurance office to talk to the rancher who owned the land we would have to cross. The rancher was out of town but we talked to his wife. Finally, with the help of an obliging local resident, we found our way to a locked gate leading into a pasture bordering the river. After being allowed in, we followed a fence line for five miles, meandered through the mesquite a short distance, and came to the river. Here we stood where once had been a stage station and corrals.

Five men, it is said, are buried here, but their graves are unmarked. How they died, history does not tell. Presumably they were victims of the river, which often went on rampages in the years before Red Bluff Dam was built to the north.

This is beautiful rugged country, now all sheep range, and it is not hard to imagine how it was when the Spaniards ventured through here. Before a misguided settler came along and planted salt cedar saplings, the shores of the Pecos must have blended into the landscape. Wild mustangs, which were more than plentiful in the area, often plunged or slipped into the water. Except at the crossing, they were doomed because of the river's steep muddy slippery banks. Horsehead Crossing apparently got its name from the many skulls of mustangs found in the vicinity.

Maximilian's men, fleeing from Mexico with gold, crossed here in carts and, as the legend goes, were murdered ten miles to the east. The story is that they hid the gold in Castle Gap before they were killed, but the treasure has never been found. Later Indians returning over the Comanche War Trail with horses stolen in Mexico, lost many of their animals while attempting to cross the Pecos. Some died from drinking the water, others were trapped between the river's treacherous banks, adding their bones to those already there.

Horsehead Crossing was a favorite camping place on the old trail to the Southwest, as it was a full sixty miles to the next waterhole. In 1849, J.S. Ford and a group of surveyors camped here while looking for a practicable wagon route to El Paso. And in 1850, John R. Bartlett while surveying the Mexican boundary, recorded that the crossing was marked by the skulls of mustangs.

One of the first cattle herds to pass up the south Concho and through Castle Gap and the Crossing, was driven by William A. Peril in 1864. Two years later Charles Goodnight and Oliver Loving drove cattle from the upper Concho via Horsehead Crossing to Fort Sumner, New Mexico and Pueblo, Colorado. John Gamel and D.H. Snyder of Georgetown, Texas and other cattlemen soon followed.

John Pope while seeking a route for the Southern Pacific built a wagon trail up the east bank of the Pecos, all the way from the Crossing to the Texas-New Mexico line. Across Horsehead passed James E. Birch's famous "Jackass Express", which was to become, in turn, the Overland Mail and the southern route of the Butterfield stageline.

At the time of our visit, the river was less than bank full at the crossing, so we waded it. The water rose to our waists, and we reached the other side well smeared with odoriferous Pecos mud. But it was worth it, one of the biggest thrills of our trip was finding buffalo horns along a bank not far from the crossing.

They participated in two contests, FFA Quiz and FFA Creed Speaking. The Quiz team consisted of four members, Sean Mulligan, Fidel Hernandez, Arturo Lincon and Bonnie Frerich. The Creed was performed by Fidel Hernandez. First place was taken by both teams allowing them to proceed to the Area VII Contest.

The Area VII Contest was held on November 22, at Southwest Texas University in San Marcos. Area VII consists of 93 high schools ranging from 1A to 5A. At this contest the Quiz team placed 9th and Fidel placed 11th in the Creed contest. This is the first year for all of these students to be enrolled in the Agriculture Program at Brackett high school and they did a good job.

MOVIE VIEWED WITH INTEREST

"Sam Houston-The Legend of Texas" which aired Saturday, November 22, was viewed with special enjoyment by many residents of Brackett and of the surrounding area.

Several "parties" were thrown in honor of the movie and of the many extras from our community who shone brightly in their roles. Many were crying out "There I am," and "I recognize that place" as everyone watched the movie closely for details and compared notes on actors met, and experiences on the set.

January will offer another opportunity to relive the summer as "The Alamo-Thirteen Days to Glory" is aired. Many residents will be able to see their names in lights as their names roll in the ending credits of the movie.

Many thanks to Happy Shahan and Alamo Village for providing these and other opportunities and experiences to our community.

the illustrated BIBLE

Do the Wicked Prosper?

"Why does the way of the wicked prosper?"

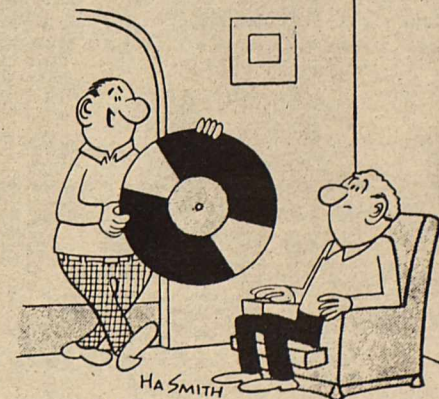

— Jeremiah 12:1

Most of us have asked the same question as Jeremiah in his lamentation to the Lord. We hear and read of crime, corruption and the dishonesty of men who seemingly go untouched by the laws of God or man. Many of those pose behind the facade of pillars of society or upholders of the common good. How, we ask, can such people prosper without some retribution? Yet there is retribution, although it may not be evident. In their hearts such people know they are doing wrong, they are suspicious of everyone, and, most importantly, they fear losing whatever power or wealth they control. Even greater may be the knowledge that though they outwit man's justice, they cannot win against God's final tribunal. Who needs such prosperity?
