Eleven Inches Of Rain Soaks County

Most Of County Benefits From Last Week's Rain

Although it will be several days before all the damage can be assessed Bailey County Extension Agent Spencer Tanksley says the southeastern corner of Bailey County has been 'wiped out' of crops at this time. All the damage was due to rain that deposited more than 11 inches between Monday morning and Wednesday evening in an area roughly bounded by Circleback, Bula and Enochs in far southeastern Bailey County.

A heavy rain on Monday morning left more than six inches of rain, along with washouts in fields throughout the area. Beginning to the southwest of Morton, the heavy rain moved into Bailey County, after forcing the evacuation of 15-20 families in Morton.

The Bula area was inundated with more than six inches of rain, then the heavy clouds hovered over Sudan, dropping more than five inches of rain before moving into the Morton area, with like results.

As the storm moved through the county, the fast, heavy rain quickly filled the numerous playa lakes in the area to overflowing, a condition Tanksley predicts will last through the summer, as the only outlet for the water will be natural evaporation.

"There will be a lot of fields farmers will not be able to get back into for this summer," said Tanksley. "A lot of wheat ready to be cut is under water at this time, and the water will be evaporating very slowly. But, most of the damage is to cotton. Some grain sorghum in the southeastern corner may possibly be saved, but at this point, it looks as if hardly any crop can be saved around Circleback, Bula and Enochs."

He reminded that it is too late now to plant cotton, and that some farmers in the Bula area had already planted two to four times, so will now be going to grain sorghum, soybeans and sunflowers.

All over the inundated area, fields will have to be re-shaped and re-bedded, as deep gulleys are noted in almost all fields from wash-outs.

West of Muleshoe, the draw was still running at a fairly good rate on Wednesday, and wash-outs were noted all along the draw in the West Camp to Lariat areas. Most areas received from two to four inches of rain west of Muleshoe.

Tanksley said corn benefitted most of all from the rains, and corn that had been ready to be irrigated again will be waiting.

Dry and hot weather is needed for the cotton west of Muleshoe, to offset the heavy rains during the week. Wheat is ready to cut as soon as farmers can get into fields, he added.

There was quite a contrast in the southwestern corner of the WHEAT READY FOR HARVEST-This proud stand of wheat is ready for harvest as the producer, J.G. Arnn, waits for the land to dry out enough to get harvesting equipment into the field, located northwest of Muleshoe. He expects to get an excellent yield from the wheat, which is dryland wheat. No cattle were grazed on the wheat, according to Mrs. Arnn.

Lakes Overflow; Roads Underwater To South

Beginning around 4 p.m. Wednesday afternoon, officers from the Bailey County Sheriff's office, members of the Bailey County Civil Defense, and of the Muleshoe Fire Department were kept very busy, following and confirming numerous funnel clouds to the south, southwest and southeast of Muleshoe in Bailey County.

A dangling funnel cloud was first reported from Bailey

County Electric Co-op, and Sheriff Bob Henderson, Deputy Hal Bynum and Deputy Jerry Hicks quickly confirmed the funnel. This was followed by the sighting of as many as three to four funnels at one time, as the weather spotters kept an eye on the boiling clouds to the south and west of Muleshoe.

At one time, one funnel apparently touched ground briefly, and became a tornado. The National Weather Service office in Lubbock said the thin rope-like funnels were rather common with a cloud such as neared Muleshoe, but no major damage was expected. However, the officers reported at least two large funnels during the next hour as they kept a close watch on the clouds as the major part of the system passed to the northeast between Muleshoe and Needmore.

It was believed that the closest funnel to Muleshoe was approximately six to seven miles south near Highway 214.

At the edge of the storm touched the Muleshoe area, up to a half inch of rain was recorded, with some very light, very small hail, unlike the heavier amounts that fell to the south and east of town.

The half inch of rain in Muleshoe brought the three day total to above three inches in the city, proper, while areas to the south and east of Muleshoe recorded over 11 inches during the same three days.

Celebration For July 4 Is Extended

According to Toni Eagle, manager of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, the July 4th Celebration will begin a little early this year. A city wide sidewalk sale is scheduled for Wednesday, July 3. All businesses are invited to participate in the sale. Also planned for July 3 is a miniature golf tournament at the Mule Putt Golf Course.

On Thursday, July 4, everything begins early with a 10-K run at 8 a.m. originating from the parking lot at KMUL Radio Station on West Eighth St. Registration for the World's Championship Mule Shoe Pitching contest begins at 8:30 a.m. with the contest scheduled to be held behind the Ben Franklin Store beginning at 9 a.m.

The Civic Center will open at 10 a.m. with booths, kids activities, entertainment, and lots of visiting. The Muleshoe Fire Department will be holding a water polo event and the Muleshoe Square Dance Club, Danny Kelley will feature his karate students, Ricki Kelley's tumblers, and the Muleshoe Dance and Gymnastic students are all scheduled to entertain at the Civic Center.

The Freedom Parade begins at 5 p.m. at the Boy Scout grounds; will travel north on Main Street, turn west on Avenue B and back to the south on South First Street, to the Boy Scout grounds.

Bailey County 4-H Club will sponsor a barbecue supper in the new city park beginning at 6 p.m. Live entertainment and contests will hold the attention of persons in the park until 10 p.m. when the Muleshoe Fire Department will once again light up the sky with brilliant and colorful fireworks.

Mrs. Eagle said booth space is still available at the Civic Center and entries for the parade can be obtained from the Chamber of Commerce office at 215 South First St.

Deadly Cotton Fungus Wet Weather Hazard

Thunderstorms rumbling across the South Plains and flooding many acres are increasing the potential for a fungus that can seriously damage young cotton plants, warns a cotton agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Ascochyta--commonly called wet weather blight--is a disease that periodically causes serious problems on the Texas High Plains, said Dr. James R. Supak, the cotton specialist. "Outbreaks generally follow three to five days of rainy, cool weather in late May or early June", Supak noted.

Infestations of the disease are more likely to occur in young plants that have been damaged by hail or blowing sand, he said.

The disease is caused by a fungus that overwinters in the soil on old crop residues. Raintdrops splash the fungus onto the stem and leaves of the cotton. The return of warm, open weather usually stops the development of the disease before serious plant infection occurs.

"However, when the proper weather conditions--cool, cloudy and wet--occur, the fungus survives and becomes established in leaf and stem tissue," the Extension agronomist warned.

"In a matter of days, this disease can destroy most of the plant leaf tissue and even kill many seedlings. As the disease develops, the stand of cotton seems to disappear as the leaves begin to discolor and break off. This gives the impression on the entire field has been destroyed by the disease," Supak said.

Leaf infections start as small, round spots or lesions which are purple to brown. These rapidly grow in size and unite with other spots. The centers of the spots become tan or ashy in color, and may fall out as the

Former Resident's Son 'Critical' After Accident

Twelve-year-old Shane Thomas, son of Dusty Thomas, former Muleshoe resident, and Judy Thomas, both of Lubbock, was still reported to be in "very critical" condition at presstime in a Lubbock hospital.

Lubbock police are continuing searching for the driver of a brown car that may have triggered the accident in which Shane Thomas received his very severe head injuries.

At Lubbock General Hospital, a spokeswoman said he is in "very critical" condition after the three car mishap on 50th Street in Lubbock around 12:09 p.m. Monday.

A witness said the brown car pulled out into an intersection in front of a car driven by Stephanie Williams, also of Lubbock. She swerved to miss the brown car and struck an oncoming pickup driven by Kristi Franklin, also of Lubbock. Neither driver was injured, and the officers said the car that caused the accident left the scene.

Thomas was a passenger in the car driven by Miss Williams.

Shane is the grandson of Spud and Lena Thomas, former Muleshoe residents, and a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. James Warren. Mrs. Warren said most family members are staying near the patient at Lubbock General Hospital.

Local Players Do Very Well In Tournament

Coach Jerry Johnson, who recently helped coach a Clovis AAU team in state competition at Albuquerque, reported on results of the tournament which was held last weekend.

He said the Clovis 14-under team of girls, with Debbie Brown and Michelle Cox, both of Muleshoe, tied for fifth in the tournament.

The Farwell 14-under girls' basketball team with Julie Crittenden, Michelle Stout and Laurel Dillard, all of Muleshoe, tied for the fifth place.

Coach Johnson's own team was second in the tourney at Albuquerque.

Heather Hutton is a member of the winning team, who will play in national competition in Kansas City on July 28. The coach said anyone wishing to help sponsor Heather to the national tournament may call him at 272-5053, to make contributions for her trip.

CHECK PRESENTED TO MEALS ON WHEELS-Jess Bryant, left, president of the Muleshoe Roadriders, and Billy Reese, treasurer of the Roadriders, presented a check in the amount of $100 to Margie Merritt of the Meals on Wheels, Inc. to help with providing hot meals for the locally elderly and disabled. This is not the first donation by the local group to the Meals on Wheels.

Agriculture Takes Legislature Lumps

Agriculture producers fought an uphill battle during the Texas Legislature's recent regular session, but Sen. Bill Sarpalius said farmers and ranchers did not come away empty handed.

Sarpalius, D-Canyon, pointed to passage of a new farm and ranch security program, improved width laws for heavy machinery and a new seed labeling bill as proof that agriculture was not completely forgotten by lawmakers. "Agriculture had a tough time this session," said Sarpalius, who serves as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Subcommittee. "There were more bills introduced this session to hurt agriculture than to help it."

"Still, we won a few battles and got some good ag bills passed. With farmers hurting all over the state, we'll take anything we can get," he said.

By Spencer Tanksley County Extension Agent

A healthy, green lawn is the single most important part of any home landscape. Maintenance of an attractive lawn is relatively easy if proper management practices are used at the correct time. Rainfall amounts have been very limited this spring in Muleshoe and many yards need timely watering to develop a green lush, healthy growing grass.

Watering is probably the single most important factor in maintaining a good lawn turf. Soil type, grass species, and management influence the amount and frequency of supplemental water required for lawns. Sandy, coarse-textured soil absorbs water at a much faster rate than finer textured soils, but retain less moisture. Sandy soils require more frequent applications of less water. In contrast, heavy clay soils retain more moisture and require less frequent waterings.

Grass species and management practices largely determine the amount of supplemental water required for lawns. Grasses with good drought tolerance should survive without watering, but most home lawns are not established to these grasses. The following table gives the classification of common turf grasses with degree of drought tolerance:

Good, Buffalo grass; Moderate, Bermuda and Zoysia; Poor, St. Augustine, Kentucky Bluegrass and Tall Fescue.

Timely applications of water are required for effective and efficient water use. Apply water first as the grass begins to discolor and wilt. Most grasses take on a dark, dull appearance and the leaf blades begin to fold or roll when the grass goes into water stress. If dry conditions persist, the grass wilts, then turns yellow and straw colored.

When water is applied also influences the effectiveness of watering. Early morning is considered the best time to water. The wind is calm and the temperature is lower, therefore, water evaporation is lower. Early morning watering helps wash dew off of leaves which reduces diseases occurring to grass. Later evening is considered the worst time to water.

Apply enough water to a lawn to wet the top 6 to 8 inches of soil. Light, frequent applications of water produce a shallow-rooted turf highly susceptible to stress conditions of heat and drought. The applications of one inch of water on most soils will adequately wet the soil. Be sure water is applied uniformly to the lawn. Uneven applications result in dry spots throughout the lawn. A lawn needs 0.3 to 0.4 inches of water per day during the hottest months (June, July, and August) and approximately 0.2 inches per day in the spring and fall.

Management also influences the amount of water needed to maintain a healthy green lawn. Frequent fertilization and close mowing tend to increase the amount of water required. Spring and fall fertilizer applications meet most grass requirements without significantly increasing watering needs. When lawns appear yellow because of iron deficiency, apply iron sulfate or iron chelates to make the grass green without increasing water needs.

During hot, dry, windy conditions raise mowing heights to reduce watering needs. Grass mowed at 2 to 3 inches maintains a deeper root system than grass mowed at 1 to 1 1/2 inches. Watering needs are reduced with more effective use of water in the soil. Mow St. Augustine, Bluegrass, and Tall Fescue lawns at 3 inches during the summer months. Do not mow Bermudagrass and Zoysia higher than 2 inches.

As water becomes more costly it will become more important to use good watering practices to maintain the beauty of the home landscape. The key to success in watering home lawns is to condition the grass to get by on as little supplemental water as possible. More information on lawn watering can be obtained in Extension fact sheet L-1682 on Lawn Watering at the Extension agent's office.

Spencer Tanksley, CEA-AG

Sarpalius said he was proud of the passage of House Joint Resolution 19 and House Bill 196, both of which he sponsored in the Senate and co-authored with Rep. L.E. "Pete" Patterson, D-Brookston. Together, the resolution and bill create a $500 million loan program for young farmers.

H.J.R. 19 is a constitutional amendment authorizing the state to sell $500 million worth of bonds and the General Land Office to implement a loan program similar to its Veteran's Land Board. The amendment must be approved this November by Texas voters.

H.B. 196 serves as companion legislation to the constitutional amendment. If the amendment is approved, the Land Office will be able to follow the guidelines in H.B. 196 when administering the program.

Guidelines include requirements that applicants for loans under the program be a U.S. citizen and Texas resident, be part of a predominantly farming household and have a net worth of less than $250,000. The idea is to give young farmers a chance to purchase their own land through low interest loans generated by the bond sales.

"Right now, the average farmer in Texas is in his 60s," Sarpalius said. "If we don't find a way to help young people get into farming, this state is going to have an agriculture crisis on its hands. We think these low-interest loans are a young farmer's best chance."

Sarpalius also said he was proud of Senate Bill 16, which cleared up a problem caused by a law passed two years ago. S.B. 16 makes it legal to take oversized farm vehicles on state highways, a practice accidentally made illegal by the old law.

"Farmers woke up after last session and found out they technically couldn't drive a dual-wheel tractor on the highway without a permit. The only thing that saved them was a willingness on the part of the Department of Public Safety to look the other way," Sarpalius said.

He said S.B. 16 went on to spell out specific width limitations for trucks carrying hay bails and other agriculture items. It also allows implement dealers to deliver tractors without a permit.

Along similar lines, Sarpalius also passed Senate Bill 1114, allowing custom harvesters to buy a single yearly permit instead of daily permits every time they travel on the highway.

"The daily permits got to be a needless restriction on the ability of harvesters to get from one job to another," he said. "This yearly permit just concentrates the fee they've been paying into one lump sum and saves them the hassle of going to the highway department every day when they want to travel."

Sarpalius also said he was pleased with the passage of Senate Bill 559, streamlining the state's seed labeling requirements. Instead of having a lengthy list of labeling requirements, seed companies now need to put only the information that is on vital importance to the farmer such as weight, variety and germination date for seeds.

In all, Sarpalius said the session was a good one for farmers that could be made even better by voter approval of the farm and ranch finance program.

"That program probably will be the single-biggest legacy of this session," he said. "If that amendment gets passed in November, I think we'll have taken a big step toward preserving agriculture's future in Texas."

More cases of multiple personalities being documented

TEMPLE — More cases of multiple or "split" personality are being documented than ever before, and such disorders may be tied to child abuse, says a psychologist with Texas A&M University's medical school.

Many people are aware of multiple personality disorders through the widely publicized cases of "Eve" and "Sybil," subjects of books and films.

But psychiatrists are just now coming forward to report documented cases of multiple personalities they have seen, says Dr. Joseph Rickard, chief of psychology services at Teague Veterans Center here and one of the few professionals in Texas to observe a case firsthand.

Perhaps the most significant development of pioneer researchers in the field has been a possible link between child abuse and the onset of multiple personality disorders, added Rickard, a Texas A&M professor of psychiatry and behavioral science.

It takes a lot of patience to improve the human race and it also takes a lot of time.

Sewing For Easy Profit

Working at a computer terminal may be the newest home-based business, but an old one -- sewing for profit -- is making a comeback.

Custom dressmaking has been a profession since the early 1700's. Into the 1910's and 20's, many skilled dressmakers operated shops, where they employed others and trained apprentices. But custom sewing gradually faded as the ready-to-wear industry developed.

Ironically, it's working women who are now expanding the market for custom sewn clothes. "An increasing number of women don't have the time to sew, but appreciate the quality, fit and distinctive nature of home sewn garments," says Alma Fonseca, a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service clothing specialist.

At the same time, custom sewing offers an employment option for some women with young children or other responsibilities at home. These home based entrepreneurs can add to the family income without leaving their homes.

The popularity of craft items, ranging from baby quilts to wall decorations, and the availability of craft shows, consignment shops and mail-order outlets through which to sell them, have also encouraged home sewing for profit, she says.

Many home sewers have the ability to fit, tailor, work on special fabrics or help clients plan wardrobes to enhance their coloring or figure. Others specialize in specific needs, such as bridal wear, tailored suits for the professional woman, western wear and children's wear, Fonseca explains.

"Starting a home-sewing business requires entrepreneurial skills that not everyone has," says the specialist. Self-confidence, originality, task and result-orientation are all important.

She reminds potential home sewers that they may want to learn more about timesaving shortcuts, quick tailoring techniques, seam finishes, pants alterations and women's pattern alterations, before starting a business.

Extension courses or programs on custom sewing and starting a home businesses are available in many locations, Fonseca notes. There are also several organizations and publications geared to custom sewers and home-based entrepreneurs.

For information about resources for home sewers in your community, she advises contacting the home economist at your county Extension office.

Heating Baby Food In Microwave Ovens

Warnings about the safety of heating baby food and infant formulas in a microwave oven have led to some confusion and unnecessary concern, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutrition specialist.

"Parents see a precautionary statement on the labels of some baby food products and assume it applies to all baby food," says Dr. Alice Hunt. "Others have simply heard second or third hand that microwave cooking is bad for baby foods."

But parents can be assured that microwaves are safe to heat any food, including baby food, she says. "Microwave simply supply the energy which causes the food molecules to vibrate and causes the food to become warm."

Hunt notes that the problem, if there is one, arises from the speed and unevenness with which microwaves heat food, causing splattering and hot spots.

Baby food products which cause the most concern are dense, high protein products like plain meats and poultry, high meat dinners, egg yolks and meat and poultry sticks, says the specialist.

These foods have a tendency to form a dried layer on their surface that can prevent steam from escaping during heating. When the film is disturbed, by taking the food out of the oven or stirring with a spoon, the trapped steam suddenly escapes and the food splatters, Hunt explains.

To avoid this problem, some baby food manufacturers put a precautionary statement on the labels of their dense, high-protein foods, she remarks. But they don't put a warning label on plain and mixed vegetables or vegetable and meat combinations, since these products have higher water content and heat more evenly.

"Any baby food that is warmed in a microwave oven should be heated on a medium or low setting just to lukewarm. Also stir the food frequently during microwaving to promote even heating and the dispersion of any steam pockets that might be forming," recommends the specialist.

Infant formula can also be safely heated in a microwave oven if certain precautions are followed, Hunt maintains.

First, heat the milk only to barely warm, not boiling. Remember that the container may remain cool, while the milk is to hot.

Microwave the bottle of milk without the top at a medium setting until warm, which is about one minute per six ounces from refrigerator temperature. Attach the nipple and cap and shake the bottle to redistribute the heat.

"Most importantly, let the bottle stand a few minutes before testing the temperature, and always sprinkle several drops on your inner wrist before giving the bottle to the baby," she cautions.

Retaining Nutrients In Food

There's more to nutritious eating than just selecting wholesome foods, says a Texas University A&M Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

"With only a few exceptions, nutrients begin to be lost from the moment a food is picked or processed," says Dr. Dymple Cooksey. "Buy you can hold these losses to a minimum with proper food storage, preparation and cooking."

The nutritionist advises the following steps to retain food nutrients:

- Keep milk cold, covered and away from strong light. The riboflavin in milk may be destroyed by sunlight or artificial light.

- Sun-ripen fresh fruit and vegetables and then chill them to preserve the content of Vitamin A, Vitamin C, folic acid and other nutrients.

- Avoid storing cut vegetables, since nutrients can be destroyed when the food is exposed to air. If necessary, wrap them tightly.

- Place a freezer thermometer in your freezer to make sure it's set at 0 degrees F or below. Nutrient losses occur when food is stored at temperatures above that level.

- Wash produce without soaking it to avoid leaching out nutrients. Then trim the produce only as necessary to remove the damaged parts. Also prepare vegetables close to serving time to minimize the exposure of cut surfaces to oxygen and light.

- Steam produce or cook it in as small an amount of water, for as short a time as possible to minimize nutrient losses from water leaching and heat.

- Cook only the vegetables you'll use at one time, since reheating causes loss of vitamins.

After you have bought nutritious food, don't let its nutrient value go down the drain by poor storage or preparation, cautions the nutritionist.

Library News
BY ANNE CAMP

There were 58 present for this Wednesday Mornings activities in the meeting room of the library...and they visited South America as part of their "Round-the world" pretend trip! Clothes, foods, customs - from "Siestas to fiestas" were discussed with items shown on a display table. The first movie was a Walt Disney "Gaucho Goofy" about the South American Cowboy. Anne Camp did a South American chant with puppets. "Five Little monkeys sittin in a tree"-with the children joining in. The second movie was "South American Animals"-and strange ones there were! Then a challenge was given for the children to name as many South American animals as they could remember from the film and to turn in the list before next Wednesday. Twelve boys and girls returned the puzzle they were given last week, and received a little prize.

Jarah Redwine was featured in an interpretive dance...she is a student at Sherri Hawkins dance school...and a member of the Summer Reading Club.

At the close of this Activity session some of the kids stayed for a tasting bee of Mangos; avacodas, bananas & Kiwees and all thought the Mangos were most delicious! These South-American delights were all found at the local grocery stores.

As of now there are 147 registered boys and girls, and reading "up a storm"! There have been about 26 that have read, listed and returned 15 or more books and got to "go for it" We have kids from Lazbuddie; Bovina; Earth; Friona; Farwell; Sudan; and Three-Way as well as Muleshoe all participating this summer.

We are very happy to have two new sponsors-this week. Fry & Cox their treat for the kids will be coupons for a Super-Bubble-Maker; also Town and Country Food store will treat the kids with 6-packs of cokes! This brings a total of 11 fine merchants who are contributing a variety of treats and encouraging Muleshoe Area kids to read this summer.

Prayer is and remains always a native and deepest impulse of the soul of man.

In severe infections, dark, elongated lesions may also develop on stems and leaf petioles. Under conditions favorable to the disease, these lesions can girdle the stem and kill the plant, but Supak said this isn't common in West Texas.

Since Ascochyta blight tends to attack young plants early in the growing season, its damage frequently is associated with or mistaken for seedling disease. Generally, young plants already infested with seedling disease are more susceptible to the blight. But Supak said that even strong, healthy seedlings can develop blight infections, especially if they're subjected to wind and sand abrasion prior to the onset of cool, wet weather.

In evaluating blight damage, first consider how the planting came up to a stand, Supak said. "If emergence was rapid and uniform with good early growth, then the crop should have a good strong root system and has the potential to recover quickly, even though leaf damage may appear extensive. On the other hand, a slow-emerging, slow-developing crop is apt to have a higher mortality rate and sustain more permanent damage that limits recovery and yield potential."

Next, make a stand evaluation by digging up all the seedlings in a three- to five-foot space of row at several random locations in the field. "It's better to dig, rather than pull the plants to get a good look at the taproot and secondary root systems of the plant. Examine each seedling and discard those with obvious root and stem damage," the cotton specialist said.

Check the terminal buds for new growth. If there is healthy green tissue visible in the bud area, the plant has the potential for rapid recovery with the return of warm, open weather.

In making the final stand count, the Extension agronomist said to include the obviously healthy plants as well as plants that may have missing or damaged leaves but have clean roots and stems and evidence of new growth in the terminal buds. "If the count averages two or more plants per foot of drill and there aren't too many skips more than two to three feet long, the stand is adequate for near optimum production."

county, added Tanksley, as no more than three inches of rain fell, and many farmers needed more rain in order to insure adequate moisture for planting.

"Farmers have a lot to do in their fields, but can't get into the fields due to the rain," commented the county agent.

"Some farms suffered major, major setbacks, as the rain has put the land in certain areas in bad condition," continued Tanksley. "Terraces have broken, and most land will have to be repaired."

He predicted the Bailey County Disaster Committee will be meeting sometime this week, as soon as Danny Noble, executive county director for the ASCS office returns from an out of town trip.

There are no recommended chemical treatments for the control of Ascochyta blight. Warm sunny weather, protection from wind and sand, and tillage to allow aeration and evaporation of excess moisture are the best control measures. "Generally, once the sun breaks out and the temperatures rise, the spread of the disease will stop," Supak said. "At this point it's important to provide protection against blowing sand and break up the crust to allow aeration and more rapid warming of the soil."

Because disease damage symptoms can develop rapidly, Supak said, the first impulse is to destroy the sickly looking crop and start over. "Too often the decision to replant is based more on emotion than on a hard-nosed evaluation of the crop condition. The best approach to Ascochyta blight problems is to make a good stand evaluation after the return of warm, open weather. If the stand is adequate, give the crop four to five days to "react" before making the final decision regarding replanting."

School Board Faces Decisions During Meeting

Monday night, tomorrow, the Board of Trustees of the Muleshoe Independent School District will meet in regular session at the administrative offices with a number of items to consider.

Informational reports will be given on a resolution regarding drug abuse adopted by the State Board of Education; a report from Anthony Gibson the 1984-85 Mighty 'M' band program and a preliminary report on the 1985-86 budget.

Full financial reports will be studied by board members.

Considered during business items will be: approval of a waiver of 1985 Education for Economic Security Act, Title II Funds; approval of bus routes for 1985-86 school year; accepting bids and/or alternatives to restroom/weightroom facilities at high school; appointing counselors to act as liaison officer for court-related children for their respective campuses; policy statement regarding travel reimbursement to all school employees and approving voting delegates to the 1985 TASB delegate assembly in San Antonio.

Members will also consider resignations; employment contracts and a 12 month employee salaries; winding up with correspondence and the school and community events outlined by Superintendent H. John Fuller.

continued to overflow, and roads and highways in some areas were four to five feet under water, and no place to go, except surface evaporation.

Bailey County Agent Spencer Tanksley said most roads from Bula were closed Thursday morning, with water very deep over some of the roads. He said a large truck was stuck in silt on Highway 54 in the area of the Bula School, and there was more water than he had seen in that area in the years he had lived around here.

Mrs. Jack Hodnett, who resides in the Maple community, said they had received nearly three inches of rain and "everything is really growing right now."

At Needmore, more than five inches of rain was recorded, as they were on the edge of the system that dumped the 11 inches, plus, around Bula to Circleback, and on to Sudan and Olton.

Mrs. Floyd Davis, on the Arch highway, near the New Mexico line, said they had recorded three inches of rain and were attempting to get into their fields to try to assess what damage, if any, they had to young crops.

Varied reports of two to four inches of rain were common in western Bailey County from the West Camp-Lariat-Progress areas, with the draw running for a couple of days, and some crop wash-outs reported.

For a brief time early Wednesday morning, FM1760 west of Muleshoe was closed to through traffic due to the high water running across the highway. It was opened later in the morning after some of the water had run down.

North and east of Muleshoe, two to three inches were reported, as those areas failed to receive the heavier rains to the south.

National Weather Service reported clear skies and hot days returning to the area and said the same type weather would continue through the weekend.

Letter To The Editor

On May 31, 1985 we were asked to chaperon the Muleshoe Youth Dance. These dances are sponsored by the Muleshoe Youth Center. This is a group of adults who are interested in the Muleshoe Youth. Who will devote 4 to 5 hours to sponsor these dances. At about 10:15 or 10:30 p.m. the Chief of Police and one of his officers visited us and told us he had been called out to tell us he had a complaint that we were too loud and that we would need to do something about the loud noise. So I closed the back door and closed a couple of windows we had opened. This was asked of us and also to turn the sound system down. This was too keep him from shutting down the dance. Late after doing these items that was asked of us I decided to step outside and see how loud it was. I stepped behind the American Legion building and could barely hear the music. Also later that night about 11:30 p.m. Some of the parents were picking up their children and we asked them if they could hear the loud noise as they were crossing the street to come to the American Legion building. The remarks were received was no not until we got to the front door. So it must be an old grouch who is always complaining even about the Muleshoe Square dance club. What are the Muleshoe Square dance to do in Muleshoe? They have been run off everywhere they go so I guess lets run them out of town like we have the resident of the nursing home. I would rather have my child in town at a sponsored activity than running the streets or going out of town. The attendance at these dances range from 66 to 172 youth. Most parents are concerned about the youth of Muleshoe and want to be active in helping the Muleshoe Youth Center. LET'S NOT DRIVE OUT YOUTH OUT OF TOWN!!!! LET'S SUPPORT THE YOUTH.

Prevention and treatment of eye disease, disorders goal of Texas A&M center

COLLEGE STATION — A first-of-its-kind institute to improve prevention and treatment of eye diseases and disorders has been established at Texas A&M University.

"Research for maintaining healthy eyes has been much too little for far too long," said Dr. George C.Y. Chiou, head of the Medical Pharmacology and Toxicology Department at Texas A&M.

Chiou, a highly successful researcher who recently found a new treatment for glaucoma, will head the new Institute of Ocular Pharmacology.

He said the institute will unite researchers from a variety of disciplines including ophthalmology, pharmacology, biochemistry, physiology and pathology.

Their research, and that of others in the field, will be reported in the new Journal of Ocular Pharmacology to be published by the institute.

Areas of study for the new institute will include glaucoma, retinal and choroidal diseases and corneal diseases.

Research activities are supported by the National Institutes of Health, the American Heart Association, the pharmaceutical industry and Scott & White clinics in Temple.
