

Muleshoe's Margie Moore was a Yankee Doodle Dandy

By Martha Toles Frost

Muleshoe High School's Mighty "M" Band members—who recently won the UIL sweepstakes, taking three first place trophies in district—may not be aware that in their hometown is a former member of the famous Uncle Sam Band.

Her name is Margie Moore, and she moved to Muleshoe from Happy, TX—the home of the Uncle Sam Band and the Happy Cowboys—in 1942 with her parents, the late Bill and Pearl Moore, when she was a senior in high school.

She would have graduated with the MHS class of 1943, but she went to college at Tech instead and finished her two high school credits by correspondence. She earned her bachelor's and master's degrees at Texas Tech.

Moore, 69, taught English in Brownfield, Muleshoe, Post, Sweetwater and Lubbock. The long-time Muleshoe resident taught in room 210 at Matthews Junior High School in Lubbock for 24 years.

Moore, who still has fond memories of Happy and the Uncle Sam Band, retired from teaching 1981 after 35 years.

Moore sponsored the MHS Class of 1950, which instigated the first powderpuff football game. "They were a good class," she commented. (Moore has the pictures to prove that she herself played in that very first game.)

Moore, who played the cymbals in the Uncle Sam Band, sometimes attempted to play the accordion while marching. "It was kind of hard to carry. I played at it," she said, laughing.

According to an article by Mary Neal Henry last year in "The Happy News" of the Tulia Herald, the Uncle Sam Band, was organized by Doug Forbus, a teacher and band director in the Happy Independent School District from the mid-1930s until 1940.

"That band led many patriotic parades and participated in numerous other events because of their red, white and blue uniforms. They were much in demand at the beginning of World War II," according to the October 6, 1994 ar-

Moore said the costumes were designed by Ruth Forbus, the wife of the band director. "Her fingers could walk all over a piano, but she never had any lessons," Moore said.

The first band began in September of 1934, winning first prize of $100 at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo on Sept. 26, 1935.

The money was divided equally with Tulia High School band, which had collaborated with Happy to win that first place. The prize money was spent on new uniforms.

There were 37 members in the original Uncle Sam Band, according to an article by Maurine Allison, of Happy, in the same issue of the Tulia Herald.

"We were a little band. We weren't very good, really. It was the uniforms that got us in parades everywhere," Moore said. "We gave concerts," she remembered, rolling her eyes.

The Uncle Sam Band had the honor of being the first band to play in the Hall of State at the Texas Centennial in Dallas in October of 1936.

They played again at the Tri-State Fair in 1937. Membership increased as did participation.

The band wore the Uncle Sam Band uniform for the first time when they played and marched in the Mother-in-Law parade in Amarillo on March 5, 1938, according to a write-up in the 1939 Round-up,

Allison wrote that Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of Franklin D. Roosevelt, was a special guest that day. "Band members witnessed the presentation of the world's largest bouquet of red roses, which was lifted by a crane and presented to Mrs. Roosevelt."

"The Uncle Sam Band enjoyed the reputation of being the most colorful band wherever they played," Henry wrote.

On July 11, 1938, the Uncle Sam Band led the world's largest band, composed of more than 2,500 members, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt visited Amarillo.

The band played "The Eyes of Texas" in the key of B flat. "It was a successful event, even though the band members were drenched in rain," Henry's article states.

Allison's article says, "The parade, which ended in Elwood Park in Amarillo, was drenched with rain—the first one in the Panhandle in months. Band members remember how their top hats crumbled from the rainwater."

On Aug. 17 of that year, the band participated in the Will Rogers Memorial Celebration, also in Amarillo.

And on Nov. 11, 1938, the band led the parade that celebrated the Armistice of the war in Europe, and another prize was won, Allison wrote.

U.S. Postmaster James A. Farley visited Amarillo in May of 1939. Band members were invited to have breakfast with him in the Herring Hotel banquet room. "Some members remember getting his autograph," Allison's article states.

The Uncle Sam Band won a prize when it led the American parade celebrating the 20th anniversary of the American

Ruthardt wins awards

The United States Achievement Academy announced recently that Kody Brynn Ruthardt has been named a United States National Award winner in football, speech and drama, honor roll, leadership and service and all district basketball.

This award is a prestigious honor that recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students.

Ruthardt will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Collegiate Yearbook, which is published nationally.

ENMU receives grant

PORTALES — Eastern New Mexico University has received a three-year $343,041 grant to recruit minority speech-language pathology (SLP) students and a faculty member.

Project Lejos: Southeastern New Mexico Hispanic, Bilingual Distance-Education Project in Speech-Language Pathology, funded by the U.S. Department of Education at $114,347 per year through May 31, 1999, will pay for tuition, books and stipend of $2,000-per year for 10 students to earn a master's degree in speech-language pathology at ENMU. The funds will also pay for the hiring of a full-time tenure track professor in speech-language pathology at Eastern.

"The primary purpose of the project is to train Hispanic, bilingual individuals who have bachelor's degrees in speech-language pathology to become fully licensed speech-language pathologists by earning master's degrees," says project director Dr. Robert Rimac.

Students do not have to live in Portales and may take classes in the summer and evenings at instructional television sites in Clovis, Hobbs, Roswell and Ruidoso.

According to Dr. Rimac, who submitted the grant and is director of the ENMU communicative disorders program, "The project addresses three critical, chronic shortages in New Mexico as well as the nation: a shortage of SLPs in public schools; a shortage of Hispanic and bilingual SLPs, especially relative to the numbers of Hispanic and bi-lingual students with communicative disorders; and a shortage of openings in graduate programs in speech-language pathology."

The grant was a cooperative effort with the Alliance 2000 Project and Project Success at the University of New Mexico, which assists people with writing grant requests. Dr. Jeronimo Dominguez, dean of Continuing Education at UNM, is Dr. Rimac's grant mentor.

"There are 120 openings in the New Mexico public schools for speech-language pathologists," Dr. Rimac noted. "In southeastern New Mexico, there is a 29 percent vacancy rate in filling these positions. We hope that this project will help fill some of these vacancies."

Minding Your Business

By Don Taylor

Independence Day is coming soon. It is one of my favorite days. As a youngster, I loved July fourth because school was out and there were usually fireworks to watch. Summer meant frequent dips in the cow tanks or wading in the creek.

As I grow older, I'm becoming increasingly aware of the more important aspects of Independence Day. When I read our carefully crafted Constitution, I'm proud to be an American. In more than 200 years, we have only amended this guidebook for freedom 27 times.

The first ten amendments - better known as the Bill of Rights - were written not long after the original document. They brought clarity and focus to key issues, and gave the original colonies enough confidence to ratify the whole.

I could go on here and review some of the salient points found in the Constitution and Bill of Rights. However, as a business columnist I feel some responsibility to relate this back to business. Therefore, I'd like to acquaint you with a new Bill of Rights that I wrote recently for a customer service workshop. I call it the Customer Bill of Rights.

• Customers have the right to buy what, when they wish, from whomever they choose and as often as they'd like. Business owners should remember that no customer owes them their loyalty: It must be earned.

• Customers have the right to fast, accurate service. Someone told me the three most important words in business are "good, fast and cheap." I'm not sure I agree with cheap, but I like good and fast. Fast, accurate service means giving customers exactly what they expect as quickly as is humanly possible.

• Customers have the right to assume that all employees are well trained and capable. People represent the businesses they work for. Research shows that every year businesses lose as much as 30 percent of their potential sales because of poor customer service. Training can help your employees learn to deliver the service customers expect.

• Customers have the right to fair and courteous treatment. Courtesy is becoming rare, and fair is often forgotten in the passion of getting ahead. However, customers tend to have memories like elephants. They return to businesses where employees treat them well.

• Customers have the right to assume that wrongs will be made right. We all make mistakes. However, customers are certainly correct in expecting businesses to fix any mistakes. Particularly, if the business created the problem in the first place.

• Customers have the right to tell to expect (and get) truth and integrity. Of course, this is common sense and good business practice. However, truth isn't as common as it should be, and integrity is more of a buzzword than an every day business practice.

• Customers have the right to expect flexible payment terms. We are a society of credit consumers. Most successful businesses realized early in the game that they could attract more consumers if they offered to sell on credit. Now customers feel it is their right.

Texas Association of Dairymen to move headquarters to Austin

AUSTIN - The Texas Association of Dairymen (TAD) board of directors has decided to streamline the association by moving its headquarters from Stephenville to Austin.

"At a time when everyone in the dairy industry is tightening their belts, we felt it prudent to tighten ours," said Sulphur Springs dairyman Don Smith, who serves as TAD's president. "This move will allow us to provide more services to our members at a significantly lower cost," Smith stated, "and we feel this is a real positive thing for our organization."

The board also named Merrell Anne Graham, who has been working for TAD in Austin, as the group's executive director.

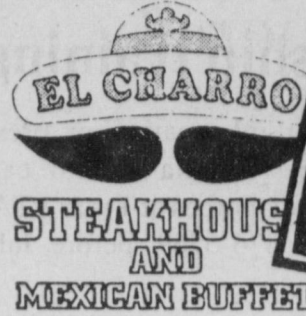

TAD is a group of about 300 dairy families and related businesses organized to help educate consumers and policy makers about the impact of governmental actions on the dairy industry. Very few Texans realize that milk production is the third largest - and fastest growing - commodity sector in Texas. In 1994, approximately 2,000 dairy farmers produced 6.2 billion pounds of milk with a gross value of $831 million.

The organization was formed in 1991 by a group of Central Texas dairymen and women to help cope with an onslaught of new state and federal waste management regulations.

"In a short period of time, TAD's efforts have helped dairy families across Texas,"

"The sun was about the only problem we had," said Coach Johnson. "It was very exciting to see those kids get out there and run. Almost all the kids placed very well for their first meet. It also was something new for us and we needed to go and find out how to get this summer program started. The kids really had fun and they competed as good as expected with not much workout time."

Academics score with Diamond Shamrock Hooray for Excellence

Rochell Elementary students in Rockwall are taking a ride through cyberspace to learn more about another culture.

High schools in Lubbock are using closed-circuit television to interact with one another while grooming young men and women for the world of broadcast journalism.

And students in Amarillo's Crockett Middle School are interviewing city officials and CEOs of local companies to learn about community service. These efforts are just a glimpse at the exciting and innovative programs being developed all over the state that, unfortunately, often go unnoticed.

Diamond Shamrock, Inc., a Texas-based refiner and marketer of petroleum products, and the University Interscholastic League, the organization that manages all inter-district school competitions in Texas, have set out to create more awareness of academic excellence through the Hooray for Excellence idea-exchange brochure.

The brochure is a feature of the 1995 Hooray for Excellence campaign, which, for the past three years, has highlighted some of the state's most innovative academic programs during the half-time of the Diamond Shamrock radio broadcasts of 5A state football playoffs. The program and the idea-exchange brochure are aimed at getting the public as excited about academic excellence as it is about Friday night football.

The idea exchange brochure recognizes the strides some Texas schools have made in getting the public involved and interested in education. Schools recognized by Hooray for Excellence over the past three years are listed in the brochure along with short synopses of what these schools accomplished through creative programs.

Hooray for Excellence encourages schools to make two-to five-minute audio tapes detailing the innovative programs they have developed. The most interesting of these tapes will be played during 5A football playoff broadcasts. Selected finalists will receive $500 and Hooray for Excellence recognition from Diamond Shamrock.

Schools of all sizes and grade levels may obtain information about the program by contacting Diamond Shamrock Hooray for Excellence, P.O. Box 1931, Amarillo, TX 79189, (806) 374-5333.

This will be the 31st year Diamond Shamrock has sponsored live, play-by-play radio broadcasts of Texas high school football playoffs, allowing radio listeners back home a chance to follow their teams. Hooray for Excellence invites them to tune into Texas classrooms as well.

New Covenant Youth Takes Trip To Toronto

On June 8th the New Covenant Church youth group took a 4 day trip to Toronto, Canada. By the time we returned on July 11th we were all deeply touched and changed by the power of God. Never before had our group felt such a sense of unity and harmony.

"What's going on in Toronto?" One might ask. Well, I'll tell you. At the Toronto Airport Vineyard Church, God is moving mightily and touching many lives through His awesome power.

So the youth of New Covenant church wanted to go and see for ourselves what exactly God is doing, and hopefully get a taste of the mighty things of God.

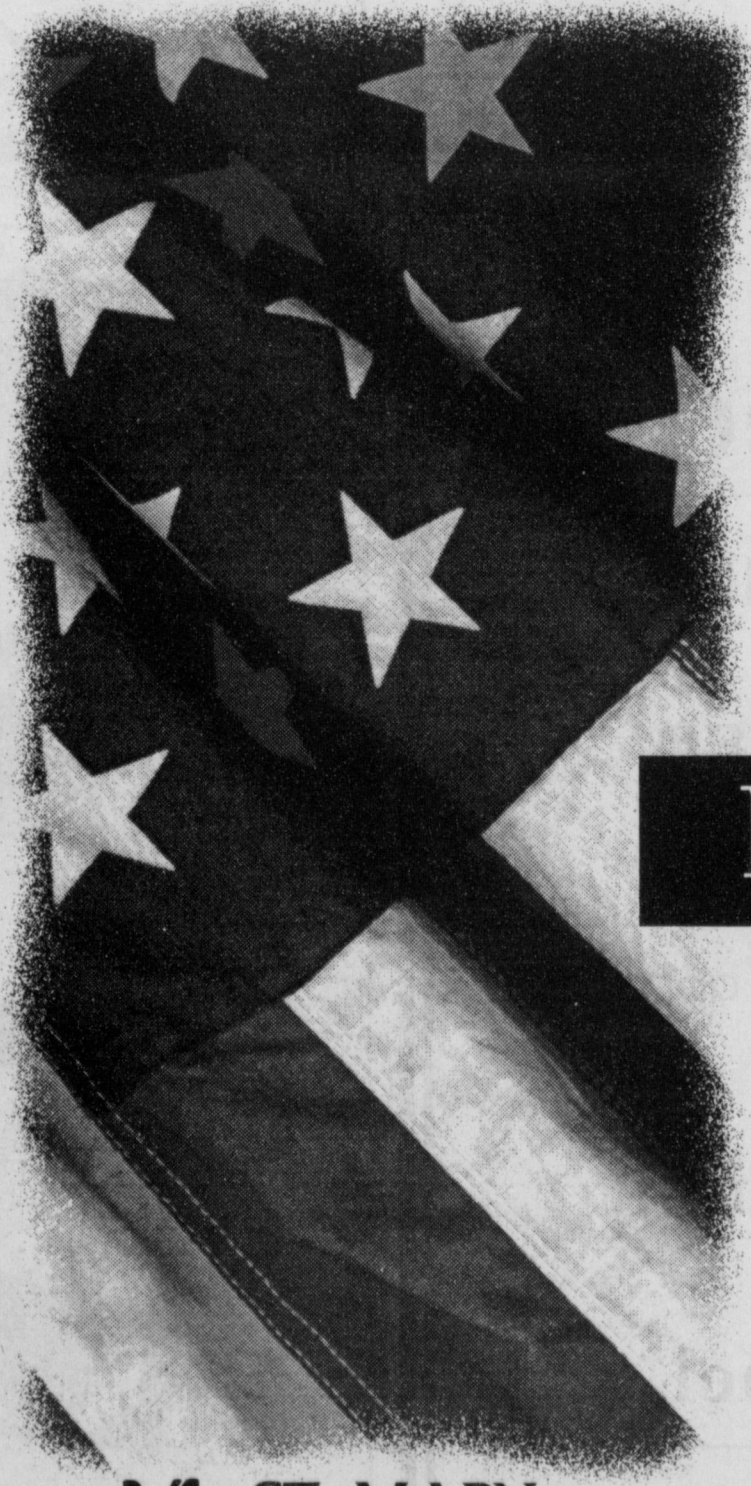

"While in Toronto the youth experienced a larger picture of what is happening world wide. At the Toronto Airport Vineyard Church people from around the world came to get a touch from God. While at the Billy Graham Crusade we attended they were able to see thousands give their lives to the Lord," said David Low, a youth sponsor.

Overall, the trip was definitely worth it. Many of our youth received countless blessings from God, and you can't put a price on that. God touched our hearts and changed our lives. He gave us joy, and more of a desire to serve Him. He healed many wounds, and also anointed us to minister to others.

"We were asked to go with the youth as sponsors, but we got as much out of the trip as the youth," said David Low.

"The youth of today are searching for a 'special love'. They need a place they can go to where this love is shown and freely given. Only when we can see through the eyes of Jesus will we be able to find the love within us to share with others. While in Toronto the youth at New Covenant Church experienced this relationship with Jesus Christ and are eager to share it with you," said Connie Torres, assistant youth director.

If you are a teenager of high school age, we would like to invite you to our youth meetings so that you can experience God with us. We meet on Thursday nights at 7:30 at New Covenant Church located 3 1/2 miles east of Muleshoe, on the Plainview Highway.

Dryland farming explained by AG-CARES

LUBBOCK — Dryland farming got you down? Cheer up. Researchers have come up with better dryland farming techniques that may prove to increase profitability.

Dr. Eduardo Segarra, an associate professor of agriculture economics with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station here, has been studying dryland farming techniques for the past even years on both irrigated and dryland production systems.

"Because of the significance and importance of irrigated agriculture, a lot of studies were conducted first on the irrigated cropping systems," Segarra said.

"We started looking at different dryland systems to see which ones had been doing the best," said Segarra.

Segarra took data from Lubbock, and established systems, such as the minimum tillage and conservation tillage systems that help conserve the soil.

"We harvested the water from the rainfall, and used other practices to see which systems had been doing the best," Segarra said. "We found out that some of the systems that seem to be doing well are the rotational systems. An example of one that was doing really well was a rotation between wheat and cotton," he said.

In the first four or five years, research was conducted at Lubbock, Wellman and Halfway. Then the Agricultural Complex for Advanced Research and Extension Systems (AG-CARES) at Lamesa was started. AG-CARES is a 160-acre farm on which research is conducted with full scale fields rather than small research plots.

In that time a majority of the possible alternative farming systems were eliminated.

"There were some of the systems that were doing well, and we had to make a transition because we were looking at them on an experimental level," said Segarra. The next step was to see if what worked on a small plot level would work on a large farm.

"This is where the AG-CARES facility came in, and now we do have some of these systems that were developed back then on a large scale down in Lamesa to see if their performance is what we thought it would be," Segarra said. "They have proven to be good."

There is a problem, and it stems from the policy point of view, he noted.

"In the U.S., given the way the crop commodity programs are structured, there is very little if any flexibility on base acreage," said Segarra. Base acreage relates to the maximum number of acres a farmer can dedicate to one crop. The farmer can only receive deficiency payments on his base acreage.

Farmers receive government subsidies if certain rules are followed. Deficiency payments are provided by the government to supplement a farmer's income obtained from cotton and other crops.

In the case of cotton, deficiency payments depend on the five-year moving average yield of cotton coming out of the field. If for one of those five years a farmer produces wheat instead of cotton, then he must average in a zero on his five-year cotton average.

"The level of support a farmer receives goes down, and that is the reason some of these systems have not been adopted yet," Segarra explained.

"In the long run, because we are looking at the possible elimination of the farm program as we know them, we know farmers will be looking for alternative ways to produce some of these crops that will give them a profit," Segarra continued.

Segarra and the team of researchers working on these issues have found that some new ways of producing cotton are not only as good, but have proven to be more profitable than some of the practices used today.

"In many cases, the current farming practices out there do not rank even at the middle in effectiveness," Segarra commented.

Down Memory Lane

By Holly Millsap

Here it is July, and 1995 is half gone! It will be Christmas before we know it. Folks, time is really flying.

1935

The U.S. Government bought 6,000 acres and lakes in Bailey County for a Lake Preserve for wild fowl. This was the first preserve of its kind in this section of the state.

At the Jennings Grocery store, you could buy a pound of Folgers coffee for 29 cents. Now that was the good ole days!

The July 18 edition of the Journal, reported that Muleshoe saw a full eclipse of the moon on the preceding Monday evening, for the first time since 1927.

1945

News about local young men returning from WWII, and some who didn't make it home filled the 1945 issues of the Journal.

A year's subscription to the Muleshoe Journal was only $1.50!!

The movie showing, at the Valley Theater, Saturday, was "West of the Rio Grande," starring Johnny Mack Brown.

Davis-Lenderson, the local

John Deere dealer has moved into a new larger building on the Clovis Highway.

1955

Grocery specials at Wagon Grocery included a 12-bottle carton of Coke for only 39 cents, and a 10-pound bag of C&H Sugar was only 89 cents.

The July 14 issue of the Journal reported that Earl Richards had been named manager of the Muleshoe Coop Gins.

Blackburn Food has begun building a new store. This building sat on the Northeast corner where the First Bank now sits.

Muleshoe planned a huge July 4th for 1965. Thousands of people attended the celebration as Muleshoe unveiled the "famous" statue of "Old Pete." There was a big parade, and "lots" of activities in the city park. The day ended with a very noisy fireworks display.

The July 1, 1965 Journal had LOTS of Muleshoe history stories and pictures of mules and their various duties.

Wheat harvest in Bailey County is winding down with wheat prices looking good.

Among the specials advertised at Cashways, were cantaloupe for 7 cents a pound and a 10 pound bag of Imperial Pure Cane Sugar for 98 cents.

1975

Muleshoe planned entertainment for all ages at the July 4th celebration. The celebration was declared a "BIG" success.

Grocery specials at Piggly Wiggly included a five-pound bag of potatoes for 79 cents.

The South Plains harvested a large sunflower crop. Farmers planted around one million acres of sunflowers due to the floods and drought in other areas of the U. S., where they are usually planted.

Muleshoe School Exes plan a big all-school reunion of classes 1924 to 1949. The July 4th edition of the Journal was chock full of pictures of these classes - formal and snapshots.

Huge crowds enjoyed the July 4th activities, from early to late! The parade included exes riding in vehicles of the year in which they graduated, and other patriotic floats.

Well folks, that concludes my ramblings for July. I hope your fourth is a safe and happy one and I'll see you in August.

Lowe's Market Place to host tournament

LUBBOCK — The American Cancer Society announced that Lowe's Marketplace will host the 1995 Invitational Golf Tournament in memory of Calvin Walker on Monday, July 24 at Lakeridge Country Club.

This is the second year for Lowe's Marketplace to sponsor the tournament. Last year Lowe's Marketplace raised $49,000 in the fight against cancer.

The tournament is a four person team scramble with two flights. Proceeds from the tournament support the American Cancer Society's local education activities and services for cancer patients in Lubbock.

Gift certificates from Lakeridge Country Club will be awarded to the top three finishing teams as well as the last place finishing team in each flight. First place team will receive a $1000 gift certificate. Second place team will receive a $800 gift certificate. Third place team will receive a $500 gift certificate. Last place team will receive a $750 gift certificate.

Alderson Lexus and Lexus Champions for Charity will sponsor the hole-in-one contest. Southwest Coca Cola Bottling company will raffle a golf trip to any one of four cities.

Additional prizes will be awarded for closest to the pin, longest drive, a putting contest and Roger's hole. All players will receive a tee bag and be eligible for plenty of door prizes. The tournament will conclude with an Award's Dinner for all participants.

Corporate sponsors of the tournament include: McCormick/Schilling, Nabisco and Whisperwood National Bank.

"Hey, Catcher, Get Your Head in the Game!"

Don't tell my baseball team, but I'm sore all the way up to my eyeballs today!

Our regular Little League baseball season ended this week, but after the closing ceremonies that evening, my team stayed around for a brief but hotly contested three-inning in a safe command post. Give me a guy who remembers eating dirt and dodging bullets! He's been there!

On the baseball field, the battle was on. We coaches and parents who'd been fairly free with advice all season got a taste of life at the "front."

I played catcher for the old folks. Up and down. Up and down. The ball kept getting away. My dear wife in the outfield kept yelling, "Catcher, get your head in the game!" If they'd move that bat out of the way, I might have been able to see to catch the silly thing.

My first time at bat, I mis-fired a pop-up for an easy out. The second time, I hit a fly ball for a double. The most memorable part of my trip around the diamond was a dive into third base dirt. It was dive or limp back to the dugout defeated, so.... The dirt was softer than I expected, but it was also a great deal farther down.

Kids, nine; parents, eight. But the parents learned more.

Coaches ought to play the game occasionally. I for one am more thankful than ever that the Coach of this universe wasn't content to stay in the divine dugout. He's been in the game, and, for you and for me, thank God, He played it just right.

Curtis Shelburne is minister of the 16th & Avenue D Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

game. Kids versus parents.

Some fool (a kid, I think) decided that, to make it fair, any parent who hit the ball over the fence should be automatically out. An adult fool (me, el coacho) agreed. "To make it fair?" It occurred to me later that I've got 26 years more miles than the oldest kid on the team, and Nolan Ryan, I'm not! Any scout could see that running would not be our strong point, and I'd gone and negotiated away our only hope!

Anyway, we played a great game, and, in the process, I learned something. I've always been a bit skeptical about generals whose idea of fighting guts and glory battles is moving around markers on a map

Pointer To Heaven

Did you ever stop to wonder why so many churches have steeples? The answer is simple — a steeple has meaning — it is a finger pointing to Heaven. The steeple is the architect's way of showing what is important about life, and that is life's relation to God. The steeple also symbolizes the role of the Church as showing men the way to eternal life. Eternal life is not just an extra tacked on to the end of life, but those who know God, and thereby really know themselves aright, share now in the eternal, or heavenly, kind of life, for theirs is the Kingdom of God. If you would live, look for the nearest steeple, and go there to find the meaning of life.

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church should be in everyone!

Better Business Bureau Report

By Nan Campbell

Money collected from canisters, coin boards, acrylic candy boxes and other collection devices is more than a mere drop in the bucket for some charities.

Contributed coins can add up to millions of donated dollars; however, in some cases, far less than that actually goes to the charity itself.

The bulk of the funds end up going to the owner of the collection devices. By now, virtually everyone has seen collection devices bearing charities' names or logos.

They are popping up at all types of businesses through the South Plains. One advantage for charities which use coin collection devices, aside from raising money, is an increase in public awareness of the charity's work.

The containers are a form of free advertisement. Your BBB asks donors to use their heads as well as their hearts when they give. Some collection devices are not charities at all. Call your Better Business Bureau at (806) 763-0459 or (800) 687-7890 before you give.

If you are having money problems and are tempted to answer an ad offering to remove bad credit from your file, the Better Business Bureau advises caution.

They promise to fix your report for exorbitant fees, but the fact is, negative information that is accurate cannot be removed.

A consumer can go directly to the credit reporting agency to request inaccurate information be corrected and there is no charge.

The credit repair companies sometimes take advantage of consumers' lack of knowledge of the law by offering to provide services that consumers can usually do on their own.

Consumers should be suspicious if the company asks for money in advance; if you are told that accurate information will be changed or erased; if you are told that only the credit repair company can remove old or inaccurate information. Call the Better Business Bureau at (806) 763-0459 or (800) 687-7890 and check them out first.

Legion. They were known the "Famous High School Band," Henry noted.

The band attended the football Cotton Bowl Classic in Dallas on Jan. 2, 1939, and it was considered to be one of the most colorful of the 58 bands.

Bill Moore was president of the Businessmen's Club in Happy, which was instrumental in providing opportunities for the Uncle Sam Band to perform.

Margie Moore said that her father, an avid band booster, had made a previous arrangement with the parade marshal: "We waited in the alley, and when he motioned, we pulled out in front of the big Tech Band and led the Cotton Bowl Parade. They were a little bit shocked, I think," Moore said with a twinkle in her eye.

The first Uncle Sam Band had black and gold (Happy's school colors) capes and hats as their uniforms.

The Uncle Sam red, white and blue uniforms were made by people from Happy. Henry wrote in the 1994 article that the uniform of R.B. Gist, Jr. has been preserved and displayed in a glass case in the foyer of the Vivian Wesley Auditorium in Happy.

Moore's father helped start the Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture and the Little League in Muleshoe. He was a Lion's Club member and worked in a grain elevator in Muleshoe and owned a farm in Parmer County.

Margie Moore started a division in the Opportunity Plan at West Texas State University for students who need to borrow the money to go to college.

The division is called the William D., Pearl M., Margie L. Moore Division.

The Boom or Bust Cycle

I caught a ride from Sioux City to Wisner, NE this spring with Bruce. He drove a fancy car and was a stylish dresser. We had a great conversation about everything from politics to Plato...or was it Pluto? I was dazzled with his knowledge and almost regal bearing.

When we arrived at Jeff's house I commented to Jeff how much I was impressed by Bruce. Jeff confirmed my impression then pointed out that Bruce was the individual in charge of cattle procurement at Iowa Beef Processors, the biggest meat packer in the solar system. He was the head cattle buyer at IBP.

My memory flashed back to the previous June when I'd sold a pen of fat steers, missing the market's ventral peak by only one day and one dollar. I felt like I'd helped buy Bruce's car. But then it occurred to me that it's only fitting, the Sheriff of Nottingham always rode good horses.

This year the cattle market is acting like it's trying to cycle again. The boom and bust cycle has been disrupted since the beginning of the Beef Check-off in '85. It's been a good run. Cattle feeders have had a couple of bad blips along the way but for the most part it's been a prosperous time to be in the cattle business.

But CattleFax observed that total cattle numbers are increasing. Numbers have stayed down these last few years due to high demand created in part by the Checkoff advertising. Cowmen didn't keep their extra heifers because they couldn't afford not to sell at the price they were offered for them as beef.

Now cow calf producers have been doing so well they have kept back those heifers and expanded their cow herd. This increased our supply. Advantage packers.

Fair to feature Country Music

LUBBOCK (Special) — A slate of four fast-rising country music stars is set to perform in Fair Park Coliseum during the 78th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair, according to an announcement from Steve L. Lewis, fair manager. Lewis also reported that shows are scheduled at 7 and 9 p.m., and reserved seating tickets for every show is $10.

Performing opening Saturday, Sept. 23, is Rick Trevino, returning to the fair after a standing-room-only K-LLL free show last year. The 21-year-old Austin native attracts cross-over audiences among country and Tejano music fans with his popular recordings in English and Spanish.

Collin Raye, who song "If I Were You" is ranked in the top ten country hits this summer, will take center stage Wednesday, Sept. 27. Raye's tenor voice is well suited for country ballads but is also versatile enough to range from honky-tonk to the blues.

Pam Tillis will headline the Friday, Sept. 29, coliseum show. Her debut record release "Don't Tell Me What To Do" streaked to #1 on country music charts in the early nineties, making her one of only four female vocalists in country music history to reach that ranking with their debut label release.

Closing out the fair Saturday, Sept. 30, is Chris LeDoux, who earned a grammy nomination in 1993 for a duet with Garth Brooks. LeDoux's songs chronicle cowboy and rodeo life from his unique perspective as a cowboy and former rodeo performer who won the Bareback Bronc World Championship in 1976.

Mail orders for coliseum show tickets will be accepted beginning Monday and processed daily in the order in which they are received, with tickets being mailed after August 1, Lewis stated.

To order tickets by mail write SHOW TICKETS, P.O. box 208, Lubbock, TX 79408. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, a check or money order for the tickets and $1 for handling charges.

Across-the-counter ticket sales will begin July 24 at the following Lubbock locations: Luskey's Western Store, 2431 34th St.; Ralph's Records, 909 University or 3322 82nd St.; Tejas Western Outlet, 5715

19th St.; and the fair office, 105 E. Broadway.

Fair staff members are preparing the 1995 Panhandle South Plains Fair Catalogs, containing premium lists and exhibitor information, for mailing to more than 5,000 current and past exhibitors. The catalog front cover features a castle, mountains and Snow White, who is one of the Outdoor Stage attractions this year and the back cover highlights "Heigh Ho Fun For The Entire Family" country music stars who are performing in the coliseum during the fair.

The catalog lists more than $100,000 in exhibitor premium money and contains exhibition categories, rules, entry and show times. It also contains schedules of events and livestock judging times.

Persons wishing to receive the catalog who have not exhibited within the past three years may pick up the booklet at one of the following local sites: Lubbock County Extension, 1418 Ave. G; Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, 14th St. and Ave. K; the City of Lubbock Public Information Office, 1625 13th St.; or the fair office.

BAXTER BLACK

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

Cattle feeders, chronic gamblers that they are, have gotten caught in these market swings. Although the constant tension must reactivate their ulcers and insomnia, I think they are more comfortable.

They miss the cold sweats, the margin calls, the sinking feelings and the exhilaration of guessing right. They are philosophical about the whims of the market. One self-defense mechanism they employ to relieve the stress is what is called 'gallows humor'. It is common in people involved in life and death situations, i.e. soldiers, doctors and stock-brokers.

This spring when the price of fat cattle was bumping sixty-two cents, one cattle feeder told me he'd called several of his fellow cattle feeders in the area. When they weren't home he left a message saying, "If you're contemplating suicide, would you do me a favor and shoot all your cattle first!"
