Business Briefs

Where do Americans put their money? A new study by Brookings Institution shows that life insurance, owned by four out of five families, is the most popular investment for savings. Next came savings accounts, held by about one in two families, then U.S. Savings Bonds, held by about four of ten families.

Tennessee Valley Authority has charged off more than $150 million of its construction costs as flood control expenses, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States notes. Yet the Government's own General Accounting Office has stated that TVA "has not conclusively substantiated the flood control benefits."

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States reports that forest fires dropped 21 per cent in number in 1951 below the 1950 total, and the number of acres destroyed was even less. More than 164,000 fires involving 15 million acres occurred in 1951, whereas the figures for the previous year were 208,000 fires on 15 million acres.

A recent advertising survey, noted by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, indicates there are about 27,500,000 radio-equipped autos; 20,000,000 of these auto-radios were purchased in the last seven years. And when people leave their cars for hikes or out-door sports, they switch on their portable sets. All of which challenges the notion that out-door activities keep people away from their radios.

School construction is booming, particularly elementary schools, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States reports. Three billion dollars were spent during the years of 1946-1949 and the sums spent since have consistently increased. Only a small percentage of the total was federal money. According to the Chamber, the figures indicate states and localities can and will undertake major school building programs, despite predictions to the contrary.

The federal payroll has jumped again. Figures for fiscal 1952 show that federal civilian salaries totalled $9.5 billion, a 24 per cent increase over the preceding year. Part of this increase is due to federal pay raises, part to the fact there were more than 100,000 new federal employees in fiscal 1952. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States calls attention to the fact that the $9.5 billion payroll cost an average of almost $200 per family for the entire nation.

It would cost $45,000 to make a fine automobile by hand, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Mass production and mass sales made possible by national advertising are the reasons why today's cars sell for $2,000 to $5,000.

One national firm got 1,580 suggestions from 4,000 employees in a single Suggestion Day, after appropriate promotion, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States reports.

Jokes about women struggling with the family checkbook may be just masculine propaganda. Nation's business, published by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, notes in the September issue that women bank employees now outnumber men 55 per cent to 45. The figures are included in a survey by the Association of Bank Women.

Coke Stevenson For Ike

JUNCTION, TEXAS, October 24. — Coke R. Stevenson, a distinguished Texan who served his state as legislator, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Governor, stopped work on his ranch near here today long enough to say that he will vote for Dwight D. Eisenhower on November 4.

"There is no question that Texas Ike is best qualified to lead in the dangerous, momentous years ahead," Stevenson commented, adding:

"He has made good on every job. He is a familiar figure to the leaders and people of all nations. No other man in America commands such respect and confidence, both at home and abroad."

Predicting a decisive victory for Eisenhower, Stevenson observed that the general, in his opinion, is the right choice of farmers and ranchers.

The former governor pointed out that in recent years farm and ranch economy has not kept pace with the economy of the nation, and that consequently, during the census period ending 1950 Texas farm ownership decreased 86,465.

At the same time, Stevenson said, Texas' overall population increased 20.6 per cent in the ten-year period while farm population was declining by 20.3 per cent.

"The squeeze between rising cost of living and farm operation, more taxes, lower prices for what the farmer and rancher sells and government control and manipulation is crippling the big operator and putting the little one out of business," Stevenson said. He concluded:

"We need a change and need it now."

A Texas Farmer Speaks His Mind

The Truman administration has allowed the federal farm program to stagnate, to become bogged down in a mass of red tape and senseless regulations. That is the meat of a charge made the other day by Frank Hamm, a Dallas County cattleman and farmer.

Ham discounted any promises made by Stevenson, because Stevenson is pledged to continue the present administration, to do business in the same old way at the same old stand. The Dallas County farmer calls for election of Mr. Eisenhower and fulfillment of Texas Ike's pledge to decentralize the farm program.

Hamm is quite right. Decentralization is the only satisfactory way to untangle the mass of red tape and regulations that the highly centralized authority in Washington is cramming down farmers' throats. Actually, decentralization is a complete farm program in itself, because it flashed a green light for the many farming regions in the nation to take control and fashion their own individual farm programs in keeping with their individual soils and climates.

It is not often that a Texas farmer — or one anywhere else, for that matter — will get up publicly and criticize the federal farm program. But Hamm apparently did just that, after he had taken all the red tape, regulations and threats he could stand. It is to be hoped that his action proves a timely example before it is too late; that is, before our farm lands become completely socialized.

Veterans Questions And Their Answers

Q—I am the widow of a World War I veteran, and I want to apply for a pension. I've been running a small dress-making business. Must I count the money I made from my business, in figuring out whether I am eligible under the law's ceiling on income?

A—Yes, you must compute the income from your business, for nonservice-connected pension. However, you need not figure in your gross income; instead, that sum may be reduced by the necessary expenses of carrying on your enterprise.

Q—I served in World War II, was disabled, and am drawing VA disability compensation payments. I went back on active duty since Korea, and was again disabled in service. Will I be eligible for two disability compensation checks from VA — one for my World War II service disability, and the other for the disability I received recently?

A—No. Not more than one VA award of compensation may be made to any veteran, but the award will be for the combined service-connected disabilities.

Q—I plan to enroll for training under the Korean GI Bill. Does VA want a photostat of just the front side of my discharge paper?

A—VA needs a photostatic or certified copy of both sides of your discharge paper, in order to process your application.

Q—I am a World War II veteran, and I am entitled to a GI loan, although I never used this benefit. I returned to active duty, and as a result of my recent service, I meet eligibility requirements for a GI loan under the new Korean GI Bill. Will I be able to get two GI loan entitlements, as a result?

A—No. World War II veterans who reentered service since Korea will have their unused loan entitlement under the World War II Bill cancelled after their discharge and will have it replaced with new entitlement under the Korean GI Bill. In your case, you will have 10 years from the end of the present emergency to apply for a GI loan — rather than July 25, 1957, the World War II deadline for loans.

Garden Tool Makers Granted Price Hike

The Office of Price Stabilization has authorized an increase of eight per cent in manufacturers' prices for agricultural and garden hand tools, District O.P.S. officials said.

They said the increase was allowed because earnings of the industry have proven to be below the level of the earnings standard by which fair and equitable price ceilings are measured.

Industry earning standard used by O.P.S. provides that ceilings are fair and equitable as long as earnings do not fall below 85 per cent of the average earnings for the best three of the four years 1946 through 1949.

In Navy lingo, the Black Gang is that part of the ship's company which comprises the engineer's force.

MENTAL MEANDERINGS

Don't forget that it is the great American privilege, one of the few that to date has not been challenged by anyone, to VOTE. And, on General election day, November 4th, you and I and everyone in America who is qualified, will have the privilege and the duty to go to the polls, vote for whom we please, and cast a ballot. It matters not, as has been pointed out, who you are going to vote for (that is excepting to the candidates) but that you vote. If you think there should be a change, vote. If you think the present administration or its party is OK — vote. But don't sit back and say what's the use of my voting, my one vote won't change anything. One vote has several times counted for much, even to the naming of an emperor for the whole world.

Science says it is hard to differentiate between drinking drivers and drunk drivers, as there is no set point at which one can say that a person is "drunk." That a few drinks may make one person drunk and be just a starter for another. That the chemical composition of the body, as it differs between persons, is such that it is practically impossible to say when one is at the stage of drunkenness or not. We have always believed that a drinking driver is as, and sometimes more, dangerous than the drunk driver because of the added exhilaration and well-being drink seems to give to some, adds a touch of carelessness, which is the percussion cap for the dynamite of power in such an attitude.

National letter writing week observed recently. This is one week which should be continued throughout the year. For there is nothing that brings people closer together than letter writing. And those who are far away, like those in foreign countries and Korea, want those letters "from home."

A fellow was one day throwing up sticks into a tree trying to get some pecans, but without success. A passerby watched him for a few minutes, then remarked: "Mister, if you was have to move every day."

One puzzler we were asked recently, was why, if the speed limit puts the speed of motor cars on the State Highways at 60 miles per hour, were the motor vehicles made with unlimited power, and much in excess of that legally allowed. Well, we confess we don't know how to answer that one to our own satisfaction. Speed is without doubt one of the prime causes of traffic casualties on the highways today. The feel of power at one's disposal, at the beck of his finger tips, is a terrible one when its urge is measured in results. We don't know if keeping the speed of engines down to the maximum would have much effect, as we remember one time when the government put governors with seals on trucks only to find it was almost a useless gesture on their part for safety. The only thing we hope for is to be able to out-guess the next motorist we meet bearing down on us, and to be able to jump out of the way.

The confusion grows each day in the political scramble and the battle royal of charges and counter charges. The smoke is getting so thick that it is hard for the average voter — other than the dyed in the wool party member who sticks to it through thick and thin, no matter what — to figure out what is what and who is who. Which may have been the intention of some of those masterminding the campaigns.

Then we were told just recently one rancher, who had ordered and finally received a load of government disaster hay for his stock, opened up a bale to feed his animals and found within said bale of hay the carcass of a skunk. Whether same was intended to flacor the hay, or for what purpose no one knows, but assuredly the baler processing the hay had wind of what new odor the hay had and what new smell it acquired at one point in the said processing. And chicken feathers are no good as fodder, either.

Just what effect weather conditions could have just now are also a matter of considerable discussion. At least it can cause much speculation as to its effects of course on ranges and livestock. Should it rain and then a cold spell follow it, we could very well figure that it might get cold enough and stay that way long enough to keep the ranges from reviving. Or whether if the cold came first and then brought rains with it, what effect it would have on the animals. But then, of course, all discussions are concerned with whether it rains or not. Which, after all, is the moot question.

Whenever we get to thinking about the world in general as of today and the many evils which beset it, we feel like doing what an old-timer once told us he did — going back and reading either history or the Bible, and then he took consolation from the fact that bad as much of humanity is, it hasn't been so bad as to merit, or so it seems, destruction. But, it seems, that with wars and everything else, it is slowly slipping down the road to where there may be that "point of no return."

The National Hallowe'en Association has come up with an idea that might keep down lots of the mischief that "happens" around Hallowe'en. "Tricks or treats" have helped some, but the new idea is to extend that and provide for innocent mischief. Anyways, parties, outings, refreshments, etc., are being scheduled to try to turn the mischief-bent youngsters to less-destructive channels. If we could only turn the mischief-mindedness of adults as easy!

The animosity which President Truman has shown towards his friend, General Eisenhower, is a strange thing to many. But when one realizes that often friends can break up over even the most trivial things, it is no wonder that even the big fellows at the top can fall out. It is, however, something very few had wanted or cared to see — that of politics degenerating to as low a level as has been reached. The start was good and everyone seemed to be willing to go on a gentlemanly plane, but now!

Funds from the sale of Christmas Seals financed approximately 250,000 chest X-rays for Texans last year.

Qualifications To Vote

The question of what qualified a voter for the general election in November is answered if one recalls these requirements:

The voter must have resided in the state for one year and in the county for six months.

The voters between the ages of 21 and 60 must have a poll tax. Those attaining twenty one years before election must have made application for 30 days before election for an exemption certificate from the tax collectors office.

Tigers Loses To Del Rio

The Brackettville Tigers invaded the home of the Del Rio Wildcats Friday evening and lost to the heavier and more powerful Wildcats 27 to 6.

The Del Rio team outweighed practically every player man for man and had plenty of reserves which in the final analysis enabled the wildcats to win this one.

Del Rio made their first touch down in the first quarter on a long pass and some fancy stepping but were held throughout the first half by a determined Brackett team. The score at the end of the first half remained Del Rio 7 and Brackett 0.

The Del Rio's weight and plentiful reserves began to tell on the Tigers in the second half and their bruising tactics continued to cause injuries to the Tigers of whom at least six were temporarily disabled and had to be replacements. The Tiger team being short of these was handicapped the remainder of the game. Richard Cardenas was hospitalized during the game.

Ernest Jaso made the Tigers only touch down when in the few remaining seconds of the game, made wide holes through the Wildcats and went over from the four.

This was by far the most rough and bruising game the Tigers were in, and they were well mauled in the process.

Mrs. Eunice Wittiff of San Antonio spent several days here last week with her mother, Mrs. Rosa G. Perry.

United Nations Day was observed here one day last week by raising the UN flag on the flag pole at the court house together with the American flag and other program.

Rev. Brucks, Superintendent of the San Angelo District, was in Brackettville Sunday morning and preached at the Methodist church and held the first quarterly conference. After the service a covered lunch was served to the members and friends of the church.

THE NEW WORLD STUDY CLUB

On the third Monday of the month the New World Study Club held its regular meeting, Mrs. A. P. Utterback, president, presiding.

Since the regular meeting date was the nearest to the United Nations Day—October 24—the subject of United Nations had been chosen for discussion. Mrs. John Keenon was chairman of the program and the members responded to roll call with the names of "member Nations". The subject, "United Nations to Date" was most ably presented by Mrs. A. E. Bartberger and Mrs. F. M. D. Hill had as her subject "UNESCO" what is it? The whole program was very interesting and instructive.

Mrs. Utterback stated that the President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs had requested that each club in the nation do three things:

1. Display the American flag at every meeting.
2. Have the Pledge of Allegiance at every meeting.
3. Open every meeting with a period of devotion.

The members voted unanimously to follow these suggestions and a discussion on the purchase of American flag followed since the club does not own one at this time Mrs. Bartberger expressed a desire to donate a flag to the club, which was gratefully accepted. At this meeting both the American and United Nations flags were displayed.

At the conclusion of the program, Mr. George (Top) West was invited to address the meeting regarding the necessity of voting in the national election November 4th. Mr. West passed around some sample ballots for inspection; a list of voters in the two precincts was given the president and each member present was given a part of this list in order they might contact all the voters before Nov. 4th simply urging that they go to the polls and vote as they like; but vote.
