A Lesson In Economics

WASHINGTON. — America's neighbor to the north is being pointed to as an object lesson for this country in successful efforts to balance the national budget, reduce the national debt and curb inflation, all without the dubious benefits of price controls.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in its weekly newspaper Washington Report tells what Canada has done.

Canada curbed inflation by a pay-as-you-go policy which met a 50 per cent rise in government costs through the device of increased taxes on spending in the form of sales and excise taxes; by credit restrictions, and by raising interest rates to bring the flow of spending into better alignment with the stream of goods and services.

While the great productive capacity of the United States has been hampered, the Chamber notes, with all the uncertainties, confusion, costly red tape administration, discriminations and labor strife generated by price and wage controls imposed by government, Canada rejected these procedures at the outbreak of the Korean war.

Canada has succeeded so well by these simple proceedings it is now able to begin reducing some taxes. The Canadian economic steps taken dropped the consumers' price index from 191.5 in January to 186.7 in May.

Canada has had a budget surplus every year since the war, and between 1946 and 1952 it cut its national debt 17 per cent.

The rise of the Canadian dollar to $1.03 in American money serves as a striking example to all nations seeking to stabilize their economy, says the Chamber, which points out that rise has been due mostly to a rush of United States investment money. This money sought out Canada because, says the Chamber, Canada has minimized restrictions on international trade and has created a climate favorable to investment of venture capital.

Nations elsewhere, the Chamber points out, have sealed their doors by extreme nationalism, currency restrictions, abnormal tariffs, government controls and government monopolies, threats of property seizure and the like. Many such nations, warns the Chamber, are looking to Point Four for a solution to their problems.

80 Per Cent Of Food Under Price Control

Housewives still have ceiling price protection for the great majority of food items when they go to grocery stores to do their shopping.

About 80 cents out of every dollar she spends for food will go to buy a food product which has a ceiling price, OPS said.

Ceiling prices remain intact on such necessities of life as meat and meat products; bread, cake, cookies and other bakery products; milk, butter and cheese; cereals; coffee, tea and cocoa; oleomargarine; cooking and salad oils and a long list of other important foods which housewives regularly buy in grocery stores.

While ceilings have been removed from frozen fruits and vegetables, there are still ceiling prices on frozen meat items as well as canned meats, canned fish, and the like.

New Fire Schedule In Effect This Fall

AUSTIN, TEXAS, July 29. — Texas will get new standards for private fire protection and fire defense equipment when new General Basis Schedules of the Board of Insurance Commissioners go into effect this fall.

Fire Insurance Commissioner Paul H. Brown has called a public hearing here Wednesday, July 30, when the new revised schedules will be presented for adoption. It will be the first time in almost 30 years that the General Basis Schedules, the Bible of fire insurance industry, has been completely revised.

A committee representing insurance companies, local agents and the Board of Insurance Commissioners has worked on the revision for almost a year. The revised General Basis Schedules will contain the construction standards, maximum rate schedules and other information affecting the writing of fire insurance in Texas, Commissioner Brown said.

The old G. B. S., as insurance men call it, contained a number of items which will be missing from the revised edition. Night watchmen, for example, won't be required to carry a lighted oil-burning lantern, as the old book recommended. Also missing is the requirement that some fire department hook-and-ladder trucks be horse-drawn.

Under the old General Basis Schedules, a credit in fire insurance rates was allowed flour mills which used water power. This is eliminated in the new schedules, as are the regulations for gas lights in electric power plants. Rates for buggy repositories also were deleted in the revised book.

Colonel Brown said that revision of the schedules would have little, if any, immediate effect on individual fire insurance rates. The new schedules will, however, tend to streamline the fire insurance business in Texas and make it easier for agents to figure rates, he said.

A Curb On Spenders

WASHINGTON — The General Accounting Office, an agency set up to keep Congress informed as to how the money it appropriates is spent, has recovered since 1940 about $775 million in funds illegally or improperly paid out by government agencies. In that period, the agency cost about $500 million to operate, so it is one of the few government units showing any net return.

That net saving of $275 million over a 12-year period looks large, but it looks like peanuts when one recalls that government spending runs into many billions.

The watchdog agency set up by Congress has a tremendous potential for saving the money of taxpayers if Congress will authorize it to advise Congressional appropriations committees, in advance of spending, on the true needs of government bureaus. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has recommended just that and proposes that a specific division be set up within the GAO to fulfill the function.

Letter From State Health Officer

AUSTIN, August 5. — Are you packing too much fatty beef for the size of your frame? If so, you're probably one of the 100,000 or so Texans contributing to what State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox calls a "significant public health problem."

The number of obese (dangerously overweight) people in the state is growing, the doctor says, and they're laying themselves wide open to trouble.

For instance, if you are carrying too much fatty tissue you're twice as apt to get diabetes, and three times as likely to have heart trouble. Furthermore, if you get arthritis it will hurt you a good deal more because of your obese condition.

Many other conditions are made worse by a person's being too fat.

"Obesity is just as serious a form of malnutrition as starvation in the long run," the health officer will tell you. Ask why some people get fat while some don't and he'll tell you the plain and simple reason is that usually the fat ones eat more than their systems need or want.

"Obesity is exactly the opposite of starvation. Overweight people eat too much. Emaciated people don't get enough. Both types are malnourished."

But why do they eat too much? There may be many causes. The glands may not be working just right. They may be having emotional trouble.

"Dietary habits perhaps established in childhood. Part of the reason might be that an overly full stomach gives them a sense of emotional relief. They might be trying to satisfy an emotional hunger as well as a physical one."

The best way to fight obesity is to cut down the caloric intake, he says. But to do this you've got to have a real desire to have normal weight.

"This means," he explains, "the underlying emotional factors which created the obesity must be corrected by a greater urge, such as avoiding an early death."

When you get this desire you'll be willing to have your doctor prescribe a reducing diet and medicine if necessary and you will follow his advice.

"If you don't," Dr. Cox cautioned, "you'll probably find an early grave."

Fat people should get a good physical examination by their doctor before they start on a rigid reducing diet.

MENTAL MEANDERING

A sort of queer, but understandable, statement was recently made by political leaders on both parties. It seems, according to the commentator remarking on the statements supposedly made, that among other things, the rest of politics has also gone up—and considerably! But, nevertheless, both the Republicans and Democrats, according to this source, are going to spend much more than ever before in an attempt to stay in and or be elected. And we had thought that the value of the dollar had gone down. Maybe, since reading this, we might be tempted to believe we set our sights too high.

This matter of the "flying saucers" seems to be getting somewhat out of hand. Again maybe its the hot weather which has been causing some of these illusions. Or the cool air, according to the army air force. Anyways, we have yet to see our first of these flying objects, and can promise that if we do see one that we won't be shouting about it, getting too inquisitive of the object or too nosy. That is, even though they tell us these objects do not seem to be unfriendly.

The past month was a really hot one, brief of very little coolness, and, we might add, moisture. However, we still have the present month of August to contend with, and from what we recall, its about as whill-dilly as any of the summer months we have to endure. Maybe the ham-mock and the mint julep might be made to hang on for another 4 weeks. Wish we had 'em.

After going through the first primary and all of its hokey and hot air, we would not like to go through a run-off primary. That would certainly take what starch is left out of most of us.

They say necessity is the mother of invention. We certainly know that is the proud parent of thrift. There was a time when, because of lack, the family—or rather the housewife—did with the simplest of all things, even to foods, and was a good improviser. Then came the times of plenty and like all other things, living went up, but as the wherewith also climbed, living was plentiful and varied. Now that taxation is taking a good part of our wages, and the value of the dollar is down, many persons are again finding it necessary to trim luxuries and fancy foods from their menus so as to keep the budget in bounds. Perhaps it is best in a way, as when people lived in a simple manner, and ate basic foods without frills, their health on the whole was much better.

It won't be to long afore the summer vacations will be over and school will be starting up again. We are now on the last lap of the vacation. And while they may be somewhat tired of taking it easy, most of the youngsters will probably welcome the start of school again. And, possibly, also their parents who have them at home.

Apparently we do not always name things for what they are. We recall a friend of ours, who was asked to sign a "deed of Trust" in securing a loan, who, having read it and the numerous clauses and conditions contained therein, remarked, "Who's trusting who?" And of another who one time, reading through one of these, exclaimed, "Wonder why they call it a Deed of Trust? Don't seem like they trust anyone."

Its getting dry again, so the range dweller and workers tell us. There is always a need of rain in this country. Sometimes we have to wait a long time to get it, and then zowie — all at one time!

Since the end of the steel strike, which was said to have been the longest and costliest in the history of the nation, there have been some rather dire predictions as to the results of the same. The government economists, who favored the closed shop without a steel raise, predict the raise of the steel price will raise prices and give old man inflation a boost. Maybe. But the situation had been getting down to where wage boosts in steel items will not affect the public too much as their buying power is being steadily curtailed. It will effect the government spending for defense, and of municipalities and other political subdivision expenditures in public benefit. The whole delay centered on the union demand for closed shop—which the administration or rather President Truman had so well advanced and tried to enforce until stopped by the Supreme Court. Be as it may, it is over, and both the strikers, in wages lost, and the public, in articles not available for purchase, and the government in defense buying, have also all lost.

When they talk about the "young in spirit" it is not meant that attitude of "playing jokes, practical or otherwise," against anyone. All the would-be comedians are not in the movies, by a long shot.

Everyone has ideas of Communism, but no one has a more erroneous idea about it than those who string along in belief it is the best possible method of living, of getting for the masses the liberties they want. Seems that we have too many reformers in this country, who do not realize that Democracy is the biggest and the most extensive reactionary idea in the world. They tried out communism, and all the other isms, a long time ago. But Democracy seems to be the only one that clicks.

Just picked up a cook book the other day—a nice, big, fat book, and we were startled to learn in how many different ways you can fix up almost any kind of food. Take eggs, for instance, thought at the current prices we wouldn't advise anyone to take em even when no one is looking without having the price handy. There are so many ways of cooking and fixing these little gems of sunshine that it seems that unless a person has an iron-bound allergy concerning them, he can find some way in which he can enjoy, or at least tolerate them. And pastry, meats, fruits, vegetables, and even the fanciful extras are handled in a right smart manner. And the more we read the more we began to realize how much cooking has advanced, and the why of the many ulcers and digestive ailments we of this nation have.

Milton Tillman Hunt

Not only this community, but the people of the whole county, were shocked and deeply grieved when they learned of the sudden death of Tillman Hunt on the morning of August 5th, 1952. His wife and son, Clay, were with him when he passed away at his ranch home.

Milton Tillman Hunt was born in Brackettville, May 14, 1898, the son of Henry Clay and Mary Cornell Hunt. He was of pioneer stock for his grandfather, James Cornell, was one of the first settlers in Brackettville. Tillman was educated in the Brackettville Public Schools and at St. Edwards University in Austin; and his whole life was spent in Kinney County.

On December 21, 1914, he was married to Miss Myrtle Higginbotham. To this union were born Milton Tillman Hunt, Jr., a Major in the United States Army, Mrs. Mary Helen Kreiger, Mrs. Eloise Davis, and Henry Clay Hunt, all of Brackettville. The latter was associated with his father in their ranching interests.

Besides his widow and children the deceased leaves a sister, Mrs. W. J. Bradley, of Arlington, Va., a brother, Bryan Hunt of Sonora, Texas, and eight grandchildren.

Tillman Hunt was buried August 7, 1952, from St. Mary Magdalen Catholic Church of which he was a life long member. Reverend A. J. Taillon, O.M.I., officiated at the impressive services both in the church and the graveside.

The active pallbearers were: A. E. Bartberger, Darrel Franks, Payne Kilbourn, William McBee, C. H. McDaniels, Alfred Rose-Oscar F. Seargeant and Herman Sparks.

The quantity and beauty of the floral offerings bespoke the esteem in which the deceased was held.

Tillman, as he was known to his many friends, and respected for his honesty and integrity; loved for his genial personality; and his friendly smile and cheery greeting will long be a precious memory to the people of this community.

Sincere sympathy is extended to all who mourn his departure by this paper and his legion of friends.

Q Fever Research Program

A disease called Q fever has been studied in southwest Texas since February of 1950. This project has been financed in large part by funds from the National Institutes of Health of the United States Public Health Service. The Texas State Department of Health has furnished supervision laboratory, facilities, technicians and supplies. The southwest Texas Health Unit, under the leadership of Dr. B. Oliver Lewis serves as local headquarters.

A survey of Q fever among the people of Maverick and Kinney counties has been started recently. Beginning on July 23rd Miss Margarita Garza, Mayerick county nurse has been obtaining samples. These are sent to the director of laboratories of the State Department of Health in Austin. There they are tested for complement fixing antibodies against Q fever antigens Mrs. Mary Bernel, county nurse of Kinney county has been cooperating by taking blood specimens from the persons who come into the Brackettville branch office of the southwest Texas health unit.

Performing the field work and research are A. J. Blumberg and Harry E. Smalley. Mr. Blumberg was granted the degree of master science in biology by Trinity university of San Antonio. Mr. Smalley is a graduate of that University and also studied in the university of Texas medical branch at Galveston.

The germs which cause Q fever were first discovered 17 years ago in Montana and in Queensland, Australia—hence the "Q". They are a type of rickettsiae, related to bacteria and viruses. They can be transferred to humans from cattle, sheep, and goats. It is believed that wild animals act as a "reservoir" for the disease, passing the germs on to livestock.

Livestock which have been infected show few noticeable signs of illness. Their sale is not effected. Measuring for controlling the disease depend upon learning the method of its transmission, and the extent of its distribution among wild animals.

An outbreak of Q fever occurred in stock handlers and slaughterhouse workers in Amarillo, Texas, in 1946. There were 56 cases and deaths among 136 employees of three establishments, an attack rate of 56 per cent. The epidemiologic investigations revealed that cattle were probably the source of human infections in this particular outbreak.

Since that time, many cases have been found in the Los Angeles, Chicago, and other parts of the U.S. Q fever has been reported from every continent of the world.

From the start of the study in the Southwest Texas area, exposure to Q fever infection has been found, by laboratory serological examinations, in 18 humans residing in Uvalde and Zavalla Counties. 7 of these persons were seriously ill. There were no deaths.

Among humans, the disease is rarely fatal or crippling, but it can cause serious illness. Symptoms may include high fever, severe headache, chills, muscular aches, frequent urination, chest pain, and nausea vomiting.

It is hoped that if the manner in which the germs are carried into humans can be discovered a similar mode of transmission may be found for polio, thus leading to a method for control of that disease also.

AN ELECTRIC RANGE IS CLEANER!

Until electricity came along, all cooking was done substantially the same way this cook-puncher is doing it—over a fire. Whether you build it outside or bring it in the house, a fire is still a fire. It makes heat and smoke and soot.

Electricity makes heat, too...but no flame, smoke or soot. Because there's no flame, electric cooking is clean. Pots and pans and kitchen walls stay fresh longer. The heat can be perfectly controlled and transferred directly to food in the cooking process, so there's no waste. That's why it's fast, cool and economical cooking.

In thousands of kitchens all over South Texas today, you'll find automatic electric ranges. Homemakers know electricity is the modern, easy way to cook. Ask your friends and neighbors who have electric ranges to tell you why they like to cook electrically.

You'll have a cleaner kitchen with an ELECTRIC range. See your appliance dealer right away.

Veterans Questions And Their Answers

Q—I am on active duty, and I am covered by a $10,000 indemnity. May I name anyone as my beneficiary?

A—No. Under the law, you may name only those persons within the following categories: spouse, child or children, parent or parents or brothers or sisters, or any combination of these.

Veterans Questions And Their Answers

Q—I'm an honorably discharged World War II veteran interested in getting a GI business loan to open a neighborhood bakery. What are the down payment requirements?

A.—GI business loans are not subject to Federal credit restrictions. You and your local lender will have to work out between you the amount and terms of the loan he will make to you.

Q—I just received a dividend credit notice from VA notifying me that my NSLI 1952 dividend is being placed on deposit to my credit. What will happen to that money?

A.—The law requires that such dividends be used to pay premiums which are due and not otherwise paid. Should the dividends not be required for this purpose, you may instruct VA to pay the money to you in cash or to use it to prepay future premiums. Or it may be left with VA where it will draw interest.

Q—I have just been discharged from the Army after a year in Korea. A leg wound I received while on patrol is beginning to give me trouble. Will the VA give me outpatient treatment?

A.—Yes, post-Korea veterans who need outpatient treatment for service-connected disabilities may receive needed treatment from VA. In many instances, a prima-facie finding of service-connection is granted post-Korean veterans for the purposes of outpatient treatment pending determination as to whether the disabilities are service-connected. Apply for outpatient treatment at your nearest VA office.

Flavor Supreme — Mary McMeekin's Thrifty Rice and Frankfurter Meal

A superbly delicious rice dish teams a perfect combination of seasonings to tempt appetites and lift spirits. Using that perennial favorite, the frank, this rice quickie is stirred together in a matter of minutes, and is so easy on the budget. But the flavor — the flavor of the dish fairly sings, and you will join in too, after a bite of this ESPECIALLY GOOD rice — frankfurter platter meal!

- INGREDIENTS:
 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
 1/2 cup sliced green onion
 4 tablespoons flour
 2 1/2 cups milk
 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 2 cups cooked mixed vegetables
 1 pound frankfurters
 3 cups cooked rice
- PREPARING THE FLUFFY WHITE RICE: To make 3 liberal cups of fluffy rice, put 1 cup of uncooked rice, 2 cups of cold water and 1 teaspoon of salt into a two-quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible.

Cover saucepan with lid and leave over this low heat for 14 minutes. Do not remove lid nor stir rice while it is cooking. Turn off the heat. It is then ready — perfectly cooked — with all the grains separate and fluffy. Leave the lid on until time to serve the rice. When ready to serve, remove lid, and use a fork to help transfer the rice into the serving dish.

It is never necessary to rinse packaged rice cooked by this method. Washing clean packaged rice either before or after it is cooked wastes valuable food nutrients as well as time.

Use exact measurements of uncooked rice and water. Time the cooking accurately.

METHOD: Melt butter or margarine in a skillet. Cook onions in the melted fat until lightly browned. Stir in the flour. Gradually add the milk stirring constantly until mixture thickens. (A small cooking fork is ideal to use for blending the milk and flour.) Add the Worcestershire sauce, mustard, salt, pepper and vegetables. Add the frankfurters which have been sliced in 1/2 inch crosswise pieces. Cook 10 minutes. Serve over hot rice or in a rice ring. This recipe makes six servings.
