Cold weather, most of it dry norther-type visited this section recently, and has been giving most of Texas that "dry spell" effect that usually means more expense to ranchers who must feed livestock. In this great Southwest, it seems there must be areas which at time are very prosperous and at others must pay their way. This appears to be one of the times when the weather is acting adverse to their interests.

It doesn't seem exactly right to us, but it appears that most of our highly prized propogan dists are being run ragged by the masters to be found in the Kremlin, and elsewhere in the service of the Reds. We are sup posed to be rather smart in many ways, but apparently profiting by our own mistake is not one of them. We have always been proud of our prog ress, but we should also be ashamed of our blunders, and should try to profit therefrom.

This is a fast world we move everywhere, and it seems to be increasing all along. It is no There is too much to be said for relaxing, and too much against speed, hurry and bustle. It's Faith. But

- the faith required is not attained in a single bound, unless perhaps by superhuman efforts or under special circumstances. It must be built up gradually.

We have often wondered what items we used to have years in an old novelty catalog, in some curio stop, or being sold under a new name and under improved conditions.

It is none of our business, but country, if we gave it back to ting it out of the hands of the But all joking aside, this place been doing pretty good for all we can do against it with incompetence, insufficiency, lack of leadership and all that. It just has grown big and powerful in spite of the drawbacks.

The work of the ladies who gave their time and effort to beautifying that corner across from the Post Office was a wonderful gesture of civic pride. We wish that there were more of this self-same spirit prevalent in the community as it would do much to improve our people's moral and general spirit. There is much of this sort of work to be done. Why not prepare for some of this for next year.

Already we are being besieged with seed and plant catalogs and almanacs for the new year, 1951. Seems odd to be thinking about it. But then, as always, time never stands still, and the days are going and time a-fleeting. Let's make the best of it. For, like that now popular phrase, "It's later than you think" a new meaning, a new conception of the value of time is coming up.

There is nothing which so makes a world forget its many sorrows and remember its many memories than Christmas time. Let's all chip in and help make this a merry Christmas, one that will make everyone happy, and that the children will long remember.

We have no quarrel with Russia, says a so-called American. Neither have we with our neighbors, if they leave us alone.

Bird Bands

Doubtless many people wonder what they should do with bird bands they recover. The following instructions from the Fish and Wildlife Service states exactly what procedure is required in reporting bird bands. We particularly wish to encourage sportsmen to report the bands they may find on waterfowl taken this fall. This information is important in helping biologists learn more about bird migration

1. Print the full number of the band, including the series designation and the serial number. The series designation may be a single letter or a two or three digit number. It may be stamped to the left of or over the serial number and may be at right angles to the serial number. A designation such as "48" is not a date and should not be so interpreted. Samples of full numbers and the manner in which they should be written are: A-678901; 48-345920; 141-543678; 220167; and 496-

2. If the bird is alive, read the number without removing the band and release the bird again. If dead, remove the band, flatten it out, and fasten it to the letter with scotch tape. If it is desired as a souvenir, the band will be returned to the finder after being examined.

Turkey Topics

MR. GOBBLER can score several triumphs after the big feast is over if he's dressed with the proper trimmings. Even the smaller turkeys which are purchased for small families have much good eating on them, and certainly the large ones do, too, even though you may have had the whole big family around the table.

Cheese Pastry

Melt butter in saucepan, blend in flour, salt and pepper. Gradually add milk, cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add turkey, lima beans and corn; heat. Pour into 6 individual casseroles and top with cheese pastry cut in turkey shapes. Bake in a hot oven (425°) for about 12 minutes, or until pastry is lightly browned. . . .

Turkey Pilaf (Serves 6)

- 7 tablespoons cooking oil 4 mushrooms, finely sliced
- 3 tablespoons finely shredded green pepper 1 tablespoon tomato puree
- 1 cup light cream or top milk 1/4 cup sour cream
- 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper 2 cups diced cooked turkey
- 2 medium onions, sliced 1 cup raw rice
- 3 cups meat stock or bouillon 1/4 cup blanched, fried almonds

Heat three tablespoons of cooking oil in heavy pan. Add sliced mushrooms and cook over fairly high heat for two minutes. Add green pepper and tomato puree. Stir in the light cream or top milk and sour cream very slowly. Add mustard, one teaspoon salt, the pepper and mix well. Add diced, cooked turkey. Cheese Pastry

- 1 cup flour 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/3 cup butter 14 cup grated cheese 2 to 3 tablespoons water

Sift together flour and salt. Cut in butter and cheese until consistency is like coarse cornmeal. Add water, mixing lightly with fork and form into ball; chill. Roll out and cut with round or turkey shaped cutter.

Turkey Corn Casserole

- (Serves 4-6) 2 cups cubed, cooked turkey
- or chicken 1/2 cup finely chopped celery
- 1 12-ounce can (1½ cups) whole kernel corn
- 14 cup chopped pimiento 1 tablespoon chopped onlon
- 1/4 cup fat 3 tablespoons enriched flour
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 cup turkey stock
- 2 well-heaten eggs Green-pepper rings
- 3/3 cup buttered bread crumbs 1/4 cup grated American cheese

Arrange turkey, celery, corn and pimiento in greased baking dish. Cook onion in hot fat until golden. Add flour and salt; blend. Gradually add stock; cook until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Quickly stir sauce into eggs. Pour over turkey mixture. Top with green-pepper rings. Mix crumbs with cheese; sprinkle over top. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 minutes.

Bones, Skin and Scraps For Rich Stock

To prepare broth, crack the bones if possible. For the cracking use a

War Unlikely

THE FINAL DECISION as to how ■ the Russo-Chinese alliance will go toward all-out world war will depend largely on one factor-how many atomic bombs we have, compared with the number Russia has. The preponderance of atomic weapons in our favor continues to be the most reassuring thing in the otherwise unhappy international pic-

For definite information has been obtained that Russia has been able to manufacture only 24 atomic bombs and is making them only at the rate of two per month.

On the other hand, the American atomic stockpile, while a secret, is vastly greater. Furthermore our rate of production is much faster.

This superiority of atomic strength has been the main factor deterring the Soviet from world war up to now, and the chances are it will continue to be a deterrent in the future. It is also why the Russians have adopted the policy of wearing down American resources by wars of attrition in which satellite nations, not the Red army, do the fighting.

In brief, it is likely that the Kremlin will not risk a major war in which Russian troops must do battle and in which Russian cities are exposed-until there is a better balance between our atomic stockpile and Moscow's.

Guarding the President

Until the recent attempt on his life, President Truman had given little thought to his personal safety. He once told my assistant, Fred what he would do if an assassin came into the room. Most assassins, U.S. government. The final battle dent to get under the desk, but he in 1952. was planning to reverse things and attack the attacker-just as An- KOREA: drew Jackson did when attacked in the halls of congress . . . When last week's shooting started, Mrs. Truman rushed into the president's China's ultimate aims in Korea, the bedroom where he was napping, to tell him a secret service man was lying wounded on the street. Actually she mistook assassin Collazo for a plain-clothes man . . . One secret service man was in front of Blair House at the time of the shooting, the others were in the rear eating lunch. The White House police, which bore the brunt of the attack, are under the secret service . . . The secret service have been under some criticism in recent years for having become partially political. Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan intervened in the early days of the Truman administration, fired Mike Reilly, who operated under Roosevelt, and gave the impression he wanted to run the service. This would not have been tolerated in the old days of Chief William Moran . . . Later, during the senate fivepercenter probe, Reilly was hastily rehired and given a $10,000 job in the interior department. (He knew too much about how the secret service gave a special pass to Vaughan's other political wire-pulling.) . . .

the secret service does a good job. Problem for U.N.

Despite occasional politics, however,

The North Korean-Manchurian area is an ideal one for United Nations cooperation-if Moscow would permit it. Reason is that the Japs, which once controlled both Korea and Manchuria, developed power and industry regardless of international boundaries, just as Grand Coulee and Bonneville dams serve several states, regardless of state boundaries . . . Seven major dams are reported on the Yalu river between Manchuria and North Korea. The Suiho dam, one of the largest in the world, is 328 feet high, 2,788 feet long, has a reservoir 40 miles long and delivers 700,000 kilowatts of power . . . Another dam, Mamposhin, delivers 234,000 kw. The total system, when completed, will produce 2,000,000 kilowatts and will operate industries as far south as Port Arthur at the southernmost tip of Manchuria . . . Two other reservoirs are south of the Yalu river, wholly in North Korean territory, and about 20 miles north of the present U. N. front. It was about the time U. N. troops approached these reservoirs 'hat Chinese troops crossed the border . . . The only possible way these power projects can be operated is under some form of United Nations control, since they are located in and supply power to two countries. This is a ticklish situation and one that the U.N. has to be doubly careful about in the solution to prevent war.

Behind the Iron Curtain

RED ARMY CHIEFS MEET-The American legation reports that a mysterious meeting of eastern European Communist bosses is now going on at the Russian resort town of Sochi in the Crimea. This is Prime Minister Stalin's favorite hideaway and it's believed he may be present. A number of Polish and Rumanian generals are known to be present and American diplomats believe the subject being discussed is how to bring greater coordination between the satellite armies.

Foreign Policy May Be Big Issue When the 82nd Congress Convenes; Slight Advance Made in N. Korea

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

G.O.P. VICTORY:

The Battle Is Underway

The echo of the G.O.P. victory in the November national election had not subsided before another voice was heard on the national scene. It was a Republican chorus of "fire Acheson" and a hint of congressional reorganization. The battle began for greater G.O.P. power in the coming session of congress.

On the domestic scene, Republican leaders opened fire on what they called the "grave inflationary situation." This was not believed to mean price controls for the benefit of the American housewife, how-

Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, fresh from a re-election victory, said: "It is a national tragedy the way prices of military items have been allowed the freedom of America." to leap since the Korean conflict started." Controls were expected to Tibet, appealing to the U. N. to be along this line.

acknowledged "big-wig" of the Republican party, made it clear he would like to hang Acheson's scalp to his belt when he stated: "I haven't the slightest confidence in Acheson's judgment."

To most observers it was clear the Blumenthal, that he had figured out Republican party had launched an all-out campaign for control of the he said, would expect the presi- will be fought with the ballot box

Reports from the scene were confused. Military observers estimated as many as 90,000 Chinese Communists fighting in North Korea, but said United Nations forces continued slow advances behind smashing air

Meanwhile, a Chinese delegation was invited to the United Nations to hear the charge of aggression in North Korea lodged against them by

The Chinese Reds apparently were willing to fight to protect them. With this in mind, Chinese forces plunged into North Korea and forced United Nations troops to withdraw from the area. Since the Chinese have constructed a "Maginot Line" below the vital plants and will put up a determined defense when U.N. forces reach the area again.

Mao Tze-tung does not want that power shut off. Although the Russians looted much Manchurian productive equipment during their post- | belt. war occupation, what is left is China's chief hope for industrialization. And the Communist party line says industrialization is the answer to China's historic poverty.

Greatest Upset

Vincent Impellitteri (right) scored the greatest upset of the recent election. He was turned down by the Democrats as a candidate for the mayor of New York. He ran on his own, defeating Democrats, Republicans and Independents.

Headliners

Sen. Robert A. Taft has held several press conferences since his astonishing election victory. On one occasion he said, "Only an idiot would be an isolationist today," This was in reply to the label so often applied to him. On another occasion he said, "Unquestionably some of this sacrifice is necessary to protect us against the real threat of Soviet aggression. But the facts ought to be clearly brought before the people, and they must be satisfied in their own minds that the sacrifice is essential. CRIME: Dwarfs the 20's

To those who remember the "roaring twenties" and such gangs as the Capone boys, Senator Kefauver, chairman of the senate committee investigating crime, made a shocking announcement.

The senator said that "organized crime in the country today would make kindergarten play out of the operations of the Capone boys" and that the influence of crime on public official is "very sinister and very Kefauver's nation-wide study is aimed at strengthening federal laws crime. Such laws would include interstate ban on the shipment of gambling devices, more control over the wire services, strengthening of the postal laws, and amendments to the internal revenue laws which would "require real bookkeeping." Gamblers and racketeers now cheat the United States out of hundreds of millions of dollars a year

CORN BELT:

Rural Vote Counts

Leaders of both major parties have spent considerable time since the election trying to read the future from the election results. One obvious conclusion was drawn. The major battle ground for the 1952 election will be in the midwest corn

As most voters remember, Truman won the 1948 election because three Midwest states jumped from their traditional G.O.P. column to the Democrat side. They were Ohio, Illinois and Iowa. Had any two of these states voted for Dewey in 1948, he would have been elected.

In the recent election, however, the rural vote returned to the Republican ledger. Two factors may have influenced the switch in the farm voting: a tendency for farmers to return to their traditional Republicanism when times are good and to vote Democratic only when their prices and incomes are declining. and, apparent dissatisfaction with foreign policies of the administra-

For these reasons the farmers of the Midwest will find themselves the target of both Republican and Democratic candidates in 1952. The Republicans will attempt to increase their gains and the Democrats can be expected to launch a full-scale attack to retake command. It might even be said that the farmers of the midwest will elect the next president of the United States.

FOREIGN AID:

Extension Proposed

A vast extension of America's foreign aid program was proposed by President Truman and the question will undoubtedly be subject to hot debate in congress.

Urgent recommendations for lengthening the period of Marshall type aid to western Europe stood high on the list. The area was termed as this country's "most critical area" in a security sense.

The declared immediate objectives of the new program are to promote adequate western rearmament, bulwark southern Asia and the Middle East especially against Communist aggression, and expand production of strategic raw materials throughout the non-Communist world. The program would entail an indicated several billion dollars a

Just what attitude the new congress will take concerning the problem is still a question in the minds of most observers.

One thing can be sure, the new congress will be one of the most unpredictable in a number of years. The balance of control is so narrow anything might happen. The issue of more money for Europe and Asia will face bitter de-

TAFT:

The Next President?

If the Republican national convention were scheduled for today, there is little doubt but that Robert Taft of Ohio would get the G.O.P.'s nomination for president. The question remains, can he get it in 1952?

A recent nation-wide survey of Republican state chairmen showed Taft an overwhelming choice, with Earl Warren of California and James Duff of Pennsylvania, second and third in that order.

Democrats and labor's political chiefs have tagged him the man to beat. The senator beat them both by 430,000 votes—the biggest plurality of his career.

Taft is reported to have said he was not a candidate for the presidency right now, but he indicated he could be influenced.

"I don't say that I wouldn't take the nomination if it were offered to me," he said, "but I shall make no campaign to get it."

Ray Bliss, Ohio Republican chairman, summed up the opinion of most Republican leaders throughout the country: "If Senator Taft is interested, he would in my opinion be the logical person for the Republican nomination in 1952. He took the issues to the voters in Ohio this year sive campaigning we need in 1952."

BUSINESSMEN:

To Fight Profit Levy

A group of more than 100 businessmen announced they had formed a committee to fight against an excess profits tax.

They based their campaign on the idea that such a tax is inequitable, inflationary, destructive and dan-

The businessmen, however, did not have the gall to stand on that announcement alone. They tempered their campaign with, "Business profits must bear their fair share of increased taxation.'

One of the committee members said: "The excess profits tax is a very harmful and dangerous tax, in spite of its superficial plausibility. It is inequitable and inflationary."

The businessmen were worried because congress convened November 27 with consideration of an excess-profits tax the chief item on its agenda. Before it quit in September it instructed the house ways and means and the senate finance committees to have proposals for such a levy ready for consideration.

RUSSIA:

Meeting Rejected

For some time the Soviet Union has been waging a false peace campaign. One of the latest moves was a demand for a Big Four foreign ministers conference on Germany. British Foreign Secretary Bevin firmly rejected the demand. Inasmuch as the allies are in close consultation on their replies to Russia's demand. Bevin's statement left no doubt that the answer will be a unanimous "no."

Stella Moore, as Dorinda LaCroix, has developed a real affection for Grandmother Thorndyke, whom she is deceiving by posing as her granddaughter who died in a lifeboat at sea after the ship in which she was fleeing Paris and the Nazis with her Uncle Edward Thorndyke was torpedoed. Edward and his financee, his cousin, the beautiful Fay Thorndyke, had set up the masquerade because they feel-they made the spurious Dorinda believe-that it would be fatal to tell Grandmother Thorndyke of Dorinda's death. Dorinda finds on business, you might say." Lana, daughter of Edward's Aunt Harriet, distasteful. A romance begins to develop between Dorinda and Cleve Adams, a neighbor.

"Wen, I don't know Van Sillar or want to for that matter, and it doesn't alter the fact that I can't come this afternoon.'

"Don't look so sad about it The pups'll keep until tomorrow." But ne looked a little puzzled as if some hint of her perturbation had touched him. "Cleve," she said, "I want you to know I've had a wonderful time this spring." She thought, "When I've been with you," but did not say it. "In some ways it's been the most wonderful time I ever had. We've had fun together, you and I and Trixie.' "You're a funny kid, Dorinda."

Cleve's tone was serious now. "Sometimes I feel as if we'd been brought up together. Sometimes I don't know you at all. Maybe it's just that you've spent most of your life in another country. Perhaps it's just that you've been through so much in this last year. I can't tell." He sounded dissatisfied as if he could not accept his own reasoning. "Anyway, you're a swell girl and I like you a lot. You know that or you're not as smart as I think you are."

He laid one brown hand over hers. "Maybe this will sound foolish but I'm saying it anyway. If you're ever in a jam or need help, | frequents," Edward interposed stif-I'll be standing by.'

He broke off with a chuckle. "Willing and ready, that's me. Fees reasonable. Terms strictly cash. What's the matter with us, Dorinda? We're playing heavy tragedy. You're not saying good-by forever, are you? 'Leave me, Lord Cleveland, I love you but cruel fate demands I wed another!' That sort of thing."

Hawley Reports Death Of Salesman, Taylor

Dorinda laughed. "Maybe I'm trying to be mysterious. Mystery in a woman is supposed to be fascinating, isn't it?"

"You're not the type, my child. If you're going in for mystery you want to dye your hair black and wear something long and slinky. of the road to the other as if he You aren't a Nazi spy, are you, might have been drunk and of honey?"

"Certainly I am, but don't tell the neighbors. Maybe we'd better go up to the house, Cleve. Uncle Edward will wonder where I've gone." They climbed up the wooden steps, followed the graveled driveway past the kitchen garden and the golden privet hedge that divided it from the clipped grass lawns, to the front of the house. "There's your uncle. I'll bet he's never even missed you." Across the green turf they could see Edward Thorndyke. He stood on the small portico leaning against one of the white columns, and appeared to be talking earnestly to a man who stood on one of the steps

As Dorinda came in sight, Edward raised his voice and called to her. "Dorinda, we've been waiting for you." And as she came up to the steps, "This is Mr. Hawley from the sheriff's office."

Edward's black eyes were on her face. They were trying to tell her something, trying to warn her. But his voice did not break from its customary smoothness as he went on. "You remember telling me about the man who accosted you in McGregor's store yesterday? Well, it seems he-a salesman, He'd come in a little before twelve. wasn't he?-was killed in an auto- The bartender, Steve, remembered mobile accident last night. There him. Hawley did not smile and his gray eyes, fixed on Dorinda's face were serious. "I've seen you around town, Miss LaCroix. I'm sorry our first meeting has to be like this-

"I can't imagine what business you could have with my niece." Edward's voice was carefully controlled but Dorinda could sense the impatience behind his calmness.

"Well, Miss LaCroix, it's like this. You see-" Hawley stopped, moistening his lips. One could almost see his struggle to marshal words into proper sequence. "This young and lean.

"It's a roadhouse just this side of Westport."

"Not the sort of place my niece

"This Taylor-he was a salesman from Los Angeles. Early this morning his car ran off the beach road a couple of miles this side of Westport and smashed up on the rocks below. You know how the road from Westport runs along the cliff until it turns inland the last half mile to Trentville. Another motorist found him at daylight this morning. It's pretty dark along there and last night the road was wet and slippery and at first we thought it was just an ordinary accident. But there were some queer things about it. "In the first place, there hadn't been any traffic to speak of late last night and we could trace Taylor's tire marks back along the road for a couple of hundred feet. They sort of weaved from one side course that's the first thing we just now. We don't want any atthought of, although we couldn't smell any liquor on him and he didn't have any in the car.

Dorinda Must Account For Meeting Taylor

"And we found out later in the morning that there couldn't have been any mechanical difficulty. His car turned clear over and lit on dryly. the top when it fell. The top was smashed in but there wasn't a thing wrong with the steering gear or lights. We had a mechanic from the garage look it over. "Taylor was thrown out. His wrist watch was broken and stopped at twenty minutes to one. Dr. Hanlon said that seemed about right. He'd been dead around six hours when we found him.'

Hawley's eyes swept their intent faces. He was more at ease now, absorbed in his own story.

"We figured he was coming from Westport. And the first place we inquired, we hit the jackpot The Silver Slipper. We weren't so lucky as it sounds maybe because that's the only place anywhere around where you can get liquor late at

"Well, Taylor had been there.

"About that time a girl came in and went into the back booth and Fred Hawley was tall and young Taylor said, 'There she is now,' girl got up and left and then Tay-

Cleve laughed. "Fred and I went | lor came up to the bar and told Steve good night. He definitely seemed mighty pleased about something. He went out at twelvethirty. You understand, the bartender was keeping his eye on the clock as it was getting along toward closing time.

"Now it's a queer thing, but neither Steve nor Tony, the waiter, saw the girl's face. She had on a big black hat and Tony said she sort of bent her head down when he waited on them. He was pretty sure though that it wasn't any girl he knew and he knows most of the girls, by sight anyway, around Westport and Trentville, too.

"But he could see that she was slim and under medium height and that she had yellow hair that came down around her shoulders. And then we saw McGregor when we checked back at the store and he told us about Taylor speaking to you. He said he had the impression Taylor followed you.

"So you can see why I had to ask you about the Silver Slipper, Miss LaCroix. This was Taylor's first trip here so he couldn't have been much acquainted in town. You know girls change their minds sometimes about talking to fellows Dorinda was a little pale but her brown eyes did not waver. "It was just as Mr. McGregor said," she admitted. "Taylor spoke to me and he did follow me. But I don't suppose we exchanged a half dozen sentences altogether. I told him if he didn't stop annoying me, I would lodge a complaint against him with your office. I think he believed I meant what I said for he went off and that was the last I saw of him." She drew a long breath, feeling a sense of danger skirted.

"At any rate, I certainly wasn't at the Silver Slipper last night. Uncle Edward could have told you that. Why, we played cribbage until quite late-the clock in the hall was just striking twelve when I went upstairs. So you see it couldn't have been I."

Hawley smiled for the first time. "I sort of hoped I'd find you were that girl when I came here. Now since I've met you, I'm sort of glad you're not. I won't bother youfolks any more. You understand we've got to follow up everything we can."

"Oh, certainly," Edward's frown relaxed. "Naturally, I dislike anyone connecting Dorinda with a man of that character even in thought. But I understand you had no choice but to make inquiries. You'll find, I haven't the slightest doubt, that the man was too intoxicated to handle a car. Or it's possible he might have had a heart attack."

Fay Appears Piqued At Edward, Dorinda

"On the surface it seems there was no reason the accident should have happened. But I expect you're right. Dr. Hanlon's handling the autopsy this afternoon and he'll find out just how much of a load he was carrying. Or it could have been a heart attack, as you say." Hawley pulled his hat down on his sandy hair. "Thank you, Miss La-Croix. Sorry to have troubled you.'

Edward was grumbling as Dorinda followed him into the hall. "This is an unfortunate thing to happen tention focused on you." He laid his hand on her shoulder. She could feel his touch, heavy and warm, through the brown sweater.

'You're a sweet child, Dorinda." Fay stood in the door of the living room, her cold blue eyes watching them. "I think you were more disturbed than Dorinda," she said

Edward whirled, startled. He was incredibly quick on his feet for so large a man. He took one step toward Fay. "You heard?"

She bent her head. "I was just inside the open window. I didn't see any object in joining you but naturally I wanted to know what had happened since I've let myself become involved in your affairs."

"Our affairs, Fay," Edward corrected softly.

Fay's icy face softened. She leaned toward him, her lips curving. Then awareness caught her. She drew herself back

"I'm afraid we're boring Dorinda, she said crisply. "Don't tell me you've forgotten your little 'niece.' " Her tone was heavy with irony. "To get back to the matter in hand, I don't believe I'd let the situation bother me. It will all have blown over in a day or two Hawley is satisfied He won't be

Linda and Boyd Morse, greatgrandchildren of Adolph Zukor, titular head of Paramount, have roles in the Pine-Thomas "The Last Outpost." They are also greatgrandchildren of Marcus Loew, founder of Loew's M-G-M.

Richard Whorf, well known in Hollywood, heads the cast of the wholly delightful new play, "Season in the Sun." He staged "Champagne for Caesar" and "The Groom Wore Spurs" before leaving for Broadway. Nancy Kelly, appearing opposite him, has made some 25 films as an adult, 50 as a child; Anthony Ross has also included the movies in his career. The play is one of the best comedies to reach New York in some time, and will make an awardcontending comedy when it reaches the screen.

"Nora Drake" has reached the book stands. "The Story of Nora Drake"is signed by Cornelia Blair, the novelist in the daytime serial; it begins with the heroinne's early years and concludes with her becoming a nurse.

The new March of Time, "Schools March On!" presents a vivid story of public school consolidation in Woodford County, Ill. It also strikingly presents the advances of educational techniques and facilities in other parts of the United States. But it emphasizes the necessity of improving our public schools and raising educational standards throughout the country.

Margaret O'Brien has been signed to make her stage debut in Ibsen's "The Wild Duck," now that she has finished her new picture, "The Romantic Age." Anne Revere, no newcomer to Broadway, also has an important role.

Morton Downey first captured an audience when he was knee-high to a grasshopper. It was at the opening of "The Birth of a Nation" in his home town, Wallingford, Conn. The orchestra played "Dixie," and young Downey began to whistle. Everybody joined in, drowning out the musicians. For once Mrs. Downey had forgotten to bribe her son to keep quiet when the band played.

Point Mugu, the Navy's 4200-acre guided missile training center, is being used for many scenes in Columbia's "The Flying Missile," which stars Glenn Ford and Viveca Lindfors. Built at a cost of 30 million dollars, the installation has always operated under a cloak of secrecy; this is the first time a motion picture company has been allowed to work on the premises.

Two members of the CBS "Young Dr. Malone" cast are on the stage this fall. Billy Redfield, ("Gene Williams,") is in the new Cole Porter musical, "Out of This World"; now 22, Billy has appeared in 11 Broadway shows. Evelyn Varden, mother-in-law of "Anne Malone," will be featured in "Hilda Crane"; she appeared with Otis Skinner in "The Honor of the Family."

The Reprobate!

A prominent business man fell in love with an actress and decided to marry her, but for the sake of prudence he employed a private detective to report on her life. When he received the report it read as follows:

"The lady has an excellent reputation. Her past is without blemish. She has an excellent circle of pleasant friends - the only breath of scandal is that lately she has been seen a great deal in the company of a business man of doubtful repute."
