Dare to Live Without Limits

By Bryan Golden

Imagination

Imagination is more important than knowledge. Imagination looks to the future. Knowledge is a result of the past. You know what you have already experienced. You imagine what you want to happen next.

Young children have very few experiences, so their minds are filled primarily with imagination. Since they have little past, children fantasize about the future. They have not yet learned many limitations, so their imagination knows no boundaries.

In their minds, children can become anyone and do anything. As they grow they are taught what supposedly is and is not possible. They learn about reality and thinking realistically. This is a shame because it extinguishes the mental flame they are all born with.

So as you mature, you develop self-imposed restrictions based on your knowledge of the past. However, you would be much better served maintaining your boundless imagination. The reason is simple: all accomplishment is preceded by imagination.

Anyone who has succeeded has first imagined success. Regardless of how you define success, no one has achieved it without being able to imagine it. Imagination is not just something for kids, it's just as important, if not more so, for adults.

Imagination takes you to a destination that does not yet exist outside your mind. But your mind has to visualize it, and you have to believe it's possible, before you can accomplish it. Yet it is at the imagination stage that people receive the most criticism from others and are most prone to becoming discouraged.

The list of accomplishments that would never have happened without imagination is virtually endless. Modern medicine, automobiles, airplanes, electricity, radio, TV, computers, the internet, space travel, and telephones would never have become reality if the inventors of the world did not first imagine them as possible.

How active is your imagination? Do you think about how much is possible? Or do you restrict yourself by what you believe is impossible? If your imagination has been smothered, the good news is that you have the power to rekindle it.

A good first step is to stop listening to what other people feel is possible, practical, or Coyote Pup, Trace Richey scores another two points for the team in last Monday nights' game against the Grady Wildcats. Richey scored a total of twelve points in the game.

Pups Start Season Off With a Bang Defeating Grady

By Coach Edwards

The Coyote Pups picked up where they left off the football field by using an aggressive defense to kick start their offense. Borden's pressure racked up 16 points in the first stanza with Trace Richey scoring 10 of his 12 points. The Wildcats only managed four points in the quarter.

Grady did answer with a couple of three point shots in the second quarter, however the Pups would outscore the Wildcats by two points to extend their lead, 24-10, to end the half.

In the third quarter, Borden extended its lead to as many as 18 points. The Wildcats managed to knock down another shot from behind the arc and one from inside the paint to end the third quarter trailing 30-15.

The Pups made one of six from the free throw line in the fourth period, but held on to the season opener victory.

"The boys looked great having very little practice," stated Coach Bubba Edwards.

"These guys love to play the game. They love success so they always give it their all from buzzer to buzzer."

Along with Richey's 12 points, Braxton Barnes added seven of his own. Payton Merket chipped in six points while Riley Lewis, Brian Torres, Clayton Addison and Morgan Wilson added two points.

The Junior High hoopsters will continue play after Thanksgiving, Monday, December 2nd at home against Sands starting at 6:00 p.m.

Junior High Girls Defeat Grady to Start the Season

By Coach Skelton

Last night the Junior High girls made their season debut against the Grady Lady Wildcats. The Missy Coyotes who started off a wee bit shaky found themselves up only two points at the half 9-7. However they did finally settle down and outscored the Lady Wildcats 16-2 in the second half to win 25-9.

Bench players really stepped up for us tonight and scored 14 of our 25 points.

Having 20 girls it is going to take a few games for me to figure out what 5 plays well together, but what a great problem to have.

Scorers: Katie Gray and

Caitlyn Summers 6, Preslea Hall 5, Emma Key 4, Braylee Walker and Brooklyn Cheatham 2

Emma Key shoots a free throw in their winning game against the Grady Lady Wildcats. The Ladies defeated Grady 25-9.

A Showcase of the Texas Spirit

The Texas Trail of Fame

"Being in the stockyards makes you feel like a cowboy and you act like one, walking with a swagger wearing boots and a hat." - A citizen of Norway visiting Fort Worth. When the railroad got to Fort Worth in 1876, the city became a cattle-shipping point. The area by the railroad where the cattle were kept in pens became known as The Stockyards. Swift and Armour meat companies set up shop there and soon a neighborhood sprang up, with cafes, saloons, western wear stores and saddle shops. The anchor for the stockyards was the Exchange Building, where cattle barons bought and sold. Because of the high volume of business it was called the Wall Street of the West.

It really hasn't changed much since those early days. The cattle auction still takes place on a regular basis and the cattle pens are still used. Cowboys drive a herd of longhorn cattle down Exchange Avenue twice a day. Rodeos take place every Friday and Saturday nights in the Cowtown Coliseum, which has an arena about the same size as the arena at the National Finals Rodeo. Big name rodeo competitors go to the stockyards rodeo. So do spectators from all over the world.

The sidewalks in Fort Worth's historic stockyards area have huge bronze stars imbedded in them. The stars, which look like an old fashioned Marshall's badge, contain names of Texans who have been inducted into the Texas Trail of Fame. "The trail recognizes individuals who have made major contributions to the preservation of our western heritage," says H. R. (Hub)

Baker, President of the Trail. "It began back in 1997 and since then we have inducted 130 individuals."

The idea for the trail came from Allen Short, who developed much of the present day stockyards area and was the first president of the trail. On a trip to Hollywood he saw the stars in the sidewalks there, came back and went to work getting the trail started in the stockyards area.

The inductees are nominated and voted on by a board of directors and advisory committee. Sam Houston, Roy Rogers, Dale Evans, Charles Goodnight, Bob Wills and Nolan Ryan are just a few of the names found on the 24-inch stars. "School kids come down on scavenger hunts to find names," says Hub. "Some of them do rubbings as part of the reports they have to do on the names they find."

The induction ceremony takes place every fall during the Red Steagall Cowboy Gathering, one of the most well attended functions in the stockyards district. Chuck wagons are set up on the grounds in front of the Exchange Building with all the authentic paraphernalia of the old days. Visitors sample a typical cowboy meal cooked on a Dutch Oven. I had the privilege to be inducted into the Texas Trail of Fame this past October 26. It is a high honor.

Dare to Live...

realistic. Take a few minutes each day to imagine what you would like to be doing. Visualize your life being any way you want it.

Imagining what you want puts your brain to work trying to figure out a way to make it happen. Once an idea is put into your mind, it will spend 24 hours a day trying to bring the thoughts to reality.

Just look at people who constantly imagine negative situations. Invariably these people experience exactly what they are imagining. It's easy to identify them. They advertise their imagination with statements such as "bad things always happen to me," "I never have any good luck," "I can't seem to make things work," "I can't do it," "it's not possible," or "I'm just not that successful."

Make sure you are not imagining outcomes you really don't want. If you are, immediately replace them with thoughts of what you actually do want. You have to be vigilant. It so easy to start imagining the wrong things.

Your imagination is the first step to creating the future you want. It's the mental blueprint your brain uses in directing your thoughts and actions. Since it's rare to accomplish more than you imagined, allow your imagination to soar to any destination you desire. The greater your imagination, the greater your results.

Turn your imagination loose. Go for whatever it is you want. Whatever you can conceive and believe, you can achieve.
