TWO KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

A cloud of gloom and sorrow quickly spread over this community and Fort Clark Sunday morning when news was received of a terrible accident which occurred near Eagle Pass, in which an automobile carrying Joe and Carrie Stratton and Harold Berry of Brackettville and Joseph J. Bosch of Fort Clark, collided with a freight car, bringing swift death to two and severe injuries to the other two.

The sedan in which the four were riding struck a freight car on a railroad switch which had been put into use but a few days previous, it is said, and at the moment of the terrific impact the gasoline tank exploded throwing the flaming liquid over the car and occupants.

Joe Stratton and Joseph Bosch were probably instantly killed, and their bodies badly burned, and Miss Carrie Stratton received bad burns and bruises and several serious injuries. Harold Berry sustained broken bones and other injuries. The condition of both of these was reported serious.

The bodies of Joe Stratton and Bosch were brought here Sunday evening.

The body of Joe Stratton was buried Monday afternoon. The funeral services took place at 2:30 o'clock with brief but impressive services at the Catholic Church and at the city cemetery. Rev. Father Tonson officiating. It was one of the saddest and most largely attended funerals ever held here. Many beautiful flowers attested to the esteem in which Joe was held.

The body of Joseph J. Bosch was shipped Monday morning to his home in Pennsylvania. The 5th Cavalry band, of which Pvt. Bosch was a member, escorted the casket to the reservation gate and with heavy hearts watched their comrade 'going home.' It was a shock to post and town folk, as both of these young men were well known and liked by everyone.

As several versions of the accident have been current, and to present the account in an accurate, truthful manner we will wait until our next issue before publishing a full, detailed account of the terrible accident which snuffed out the lives of these two fine young men. The sympathy of everyone goes to those who mourn their loss.

STATE OFFICIALS NOW IN OFFICE

Texas once more has a woman Governor in the person of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, who was inaugurated at Austin Tuesday of this week. The outgoing governor, Ross Sterling, and other officials who were also going out of office, were not in attendance at the inauguration.

One of the first things that will engage the attention of Mrs. Ferguson, and husband Jim of course, is that of attempting to gain control of the Highway Department. With this aim in view a measure is being drafted for Mrs. Ferguson by which the State would be divided into five districts, with a member from each district, two of which would be appointed by the governor. The term of Cone Johnson member of the present Board, will expire soon and someone appointed in his place. This of course would give the Ferguson's control of the Board.

The measure is in for hard sledding in the legislature, and while it may pass the house it is doubtful if it can go through the Senate. Should the Ferguson's gain control, there would be a general shakeup in the Department.

Another interesting item is the Ferguson occupation tax bill based on the volume of sales, to replenish the state funds, now much depleted. This would tax those who now are not taxed.

R. F. C. LOAN TO KINNEY CO.

Unemployment relief funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were received at San Antonio last week for forty-five South Texas counties. Among the counties who did not apply for assistance in 1932 but who were included among those receiving aid in this group, were eleven from this district, among these being Kinney County.

At a meeting several weeks ago at the Court House, a committee was appointed for the purpose of applying for an allotment of funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Among the money given to the district, Kinney County was allotted $1,400 through the chairman, A. E. Bartberger. The recent shipments of Red Cross flour and cotton cloth was deducted from the amount asked by the relief organization. The money arrived Monday, and registrations were started Wednesday here and at Spofford. Ogden Dooley is office manager and is registering the men. The work of cleaning the streets started Thursday.

A meeting of the committee was held Saturday afternoon at the City Building. Plans were discussed for use of the funds and a committee appointed to govern this phase of the work.

The allotment of cloth has been received and organizations are now at work in fashioning clothes. Relief work is now beginning to make strides here.

Gets Promotion

The many Brackettville and Fort Clark friends of 1st Sgt. Oliver Enochs, retired, will be glad to know that he has been promoted to the rank of Captain on the retired list. We are all glad with this friend and fellow citizen in his appointment.

WEATHER VARIES IN EXTREMES

The weather in the past week or so has furnished us with a variety of weather ranging from cold weather to nice spring-like days.

The first sleet which we have had this winter fell Thursday afternoon, shortly before a norther drove away the clouds which had overcast the sky, and brought clear skies for the week end.

The sleet followed upon the heels of a mist-like rain, and fell heavily for several minutes, but it melted immediately upon hitting the ground. It was an unusual spectacle, as we had not seen such sleet here in more than an year. At that everyone was thankful that it was a of short duration.

The weather during the week end was clear and the air brisk and invigorating, and it was most delightful too. Several very heavy frosts carpeted the roofs and ground white. Light ice formed Friday morning.

Ranges are in excellent condition following the late fall rains of last year, and the inch rain of last week together with the moist weather has put a good season into the ground. Indications point to good spring conditions for ranchmen.

Cold weather was again bearing down on this section Tuesday.

NEW C. P. & L. OFFICERS NAMED

Officers of the Central Power & Light Company for the current year have just been announced by the company.

At a recent meeting of the company's Board of Directors the following officers were elected:

James C. Kennedy, president.
E. B. Neiswanger, vice president.

H. C. Loehr, vice president.
F. E. Kruesi, vice president.
W. D. Boone, secretary-treasurer.

H. J. Ludwig, assistant secretary.
D. A. Carlsen, assistant secretary.

C. G. Herrmann, assistant treasurer.
E. B. Rhodes, assistant treasurer.

Francis V. Barstrow, clerk.
G. Menger, auditor.

James C. Kennedy was formerly president of the Central and South West Utilities Company, Dallas, Texas, and was chairman of the Central Power & Light Company. He is now a resident of Corpus Christi, having moved to that city at the time the general offices of the company were transferred from San Antonio to Corpus Christi.

RANCH PROSPECTS OUTLOOK BETTER

The prospect ranchmen face for the present year appears to be a little bit more encouraging than it has been in the last several weeks.

The Boston wool dealers were quoted as regarding the tendency of the market toward firmness as very encouraging. The staple for several weeks past had been shown a tendency towards recovery and firmness that was surprising. The sheep and wool situation has been getting much brighter, but the mohair industry has nothing very encouraging to offer to ranchmen.

The condition of the staple is the only real encouraging prospect facing ranchmen, as the mohair is still somewhat under the influence of depressed market conditions. It was predicted that the prices for mohair would be 12 to 15 cents instead of 8 cents received in the last sales, but there is no telling what the market will do.

With range conditions in good shape, too, there is reason for some optimistic spirit.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR ARMY CUT

A contest over expenditures on the War Department was aroused in Washington when the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives reported an annual supply bill allowing $345,833,900 for the next fiscal year for the army.

The total was $110,000,000 under what is being spent by the department this year. However approximately sixty million of that was emergency funds, which would be an actual reduction of about fifty million dollars. This would cause the suspension of the Citizens Military Training Camp, a situation like that last year which Congress over-rode.

An increase was made in the National Guard budget. Due to some objections in the committee, no funds were allowed for purchase of additional mounds for the army. However the bill has not yet got through.

BUREAU OF STANDARDS

AN ELDERLY guide at the Smithsonian institution, the wonder of wonders and storehouse of the interesting, was asked by a tourist on an occasion what the purpose of the institution was. His reply epitomized the place in these words: "It shows what people have done."

I am indebted to him, therefore, for the thought that the bureau of standards shows what people are doing. And there can be no more accurate description, albeit; to state fully its meaning and to comprehend its scope it must be expanded and expanded until one's mental processes grow foggy.

Some years ago, a friend of mine who has devoted many years to the public service as an expert in the bureau of standards, invited me to ride in his car to my destination at another point in the city. Upon entering his automobile I was surprised to find a veritable battery of taxicab meters operating in the tonneau of the machine. His explanation of their presence may be used to illustrate the type of work performed by the bureau:

"We never have known whether taxi meters are accurate. In other words, we have been unable to say positively whether persons hiring taxicabs are cheated by the machines that register the fare. By installing these meters and using this car normally, we get a test of them under all sorts and conditions of operation. The speedometer on the car is tested regularly so that we can check against it. We will know in about two months whether any or all of these meters give the public a square deal."

Such is one phase of the work done at the bureau of standards and all of it has as its end and aim, the making of this a better world in which to live. Its accomplishments in this direction are endless, because those scientists are tireless in their pursuit of knowledge.

It will be impossible in a brief space to set out even a small portion or outline of the work done in the bureau, a place that to my humble mind contains more thrills than ever have been concentrated under one roof anywhere else in the world. But when one recalls that by persistent effort bureau experts have persuaded scores of commercial lines to do away with countless styles and types of products and to concentrate on standardized designs, all as means of reducing the cost to the consumer, some idea is given of the dollars and cents value of the work accomplished. Take for example, bolts and nuts. One can buy them anywhere in this land and if he calls for a certain type, that type will be supplied whether it is manufactured in the city of Pittsburgh or San Francisco.

Experiments have been carried on at the bureau for years respecting the best methods of heating homes and the best methods for steam production, always with the idea of economical operation in view. The same statement may be made concerning the manufacture of paper—writing paper, wrapping paper, paper for other specific uses.

A chemistry division operates one of the great laboratories of the country, testing, testing, testing. Thousands of chemicals that reach the public, ready for economical use and prepared to meet the everyday needs of one unskilled in handling delicate instruments, are better today because the scientist of the bureau of standards devoted many months to experimentation.

Development of the airplane has brought with it many and varied problems. Some has set about solving them. Some of them are mechanical, purely; others deal with natural forces. That explains why there is a gigantic wind tunnel in operation at the bureau. Air is forced through at every speed and at every angle and against propellers operated with certain horsepower behind them. The calculations arrived at enable engineers to know what weaknesses to avoid in plane construction.

And so it is, too, with tests made of such commonplace things as electric light bulbs. They are actually burned out. Tests are made with filaments of every known substance used for that purpose, and combinations of substances are tried. Manufacturers have the direct benefit of these experiments, of course, but the ultimate consumer gains eventually through lower prices on quality products.

Almost constantly experiments are carried on at the bureau with materials used for dyes, dyes for cloth, colors for paints, for inside and outside decorative purposes, for metals, etc. Their fastness must be known; the conditions under which they will fade are developed conclusively if they fade at all, and means of correcting that weakness are looked for. The scientists experiment with the cloth or the metal or wood, or whatever other base is used, to ascertain what results are brought about by a different foundation for the colors. When they get through with one job of testing, those men and women can be said to know the truth. But it seems that instead of the truth making them free, it merely starts them off again in search of something else that will be helpful in our life and mine.

A New President is Elected

Speaker
John N. Garner

A Joint Session of Congress

Vice President
Charles Curtis

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ON FEBRUARY 8, 1933, a new President and Vice President of the United States will be elected.

"What!" you exclaim, as you read that statement, "Why, I thought we attended to that two months ago—on November 8, 1932, to be exact, when the American people voted Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York into office as President and John N. Garner of Texas as Vice President."

As a matter of fact, they did nothing of the sort. They only voted for a group of men called Presidential electors and those men presumably have already voted for Roosevelt and Garner for those offices. But the actual election does not become official until the afternoon of February 8 when the two houses of congress meet in joint session and go through the ceremony of counting the electoral votes and the Vice President proclaims the fact that the Democratic candidates in the 1932 election had the largest number of electoral votes and therefore will be inducted into office on March 4.

Like so many other official ceremonies in government, the February 8 "election" is nothing but a make-believe and, under its 145-year-old load of tradition and custom, Vice President Charles Curtis and Speaker John N. Garner (he's speaker one minute and the next minute he's Vice President!) become companions in a hollow, but official, pretense. Side by side and in the presence of several hundred people, the two leading candidates for Vice President will act for 30 minutes as though the result of their contest had not already been known for four months and everybody else will help lend a solemn dignity to the empty ceremony.

The only new thing about the whole business will be two new boxes which a carpenter, an employee of the United States senate, has begun preparing soon after the November election. They are made of the finest mahogany and have brass handles. As soon as they are finished they are sent to the office of Vice President Curtis, where they will rest until it is time to receive 48 huge envelopes which have arrived in Washington some time during January. These envelopes contain the votes of members of the electoral college chosen on November 8 by citizens in the states from which the envelopes came.

The only person in the United States who has the authority to open those envelopes is the president of the senate (the Vice President of the United States) and even he is not allowed to learn their "secret" until the second Wednesday in February and then only in the presence of the members of the two houses of congress.

But the legislative mill must grind out a certain piece of legislation before even this can be accomplished. So the first step necessary to the election is taken when a minor senate committee labors and brings forth a resolution which provides for the joint session at which the ballots are to be counted. Then the senate adopts the resolution.

Soon thereafter, members of the senate line up, two abreast and in the order of seniority. Then, with dignity setting the pace, they start the march from their chamber to that of the house of representatives, located 500 feet in the distance.

Grim adherence to the letter of the rules would call for the Vice President to carry the two ballot boxes at the head of the parade, with the secretary of the senate and the sergeant-at-arms of the senate a step or so behind him. The theory is that the ballots must be in the custody of the Vice President, as president of the senate, and in his custody only, from the time they arrive at the Capitol. In practice, however, the vote-laden boxes are carried by two boys—chosen from among the senate pages—who march at the head of the double line of senators.

Four years ago the procession began to move at 54 minutes past noon, with arrival at the house chamber by 1 o'clock imperative. Since the affair has many years of guidance and experience behind it, the six-minute interval between the first shuffling of feet and arrival at the destination may be regarded as an established order.

The votes and their very consequential escort cause an initial stir at the entrance to the house chamber when a doorkeeper announces to the speaker that the senate awaits. The legislative equivalent of "Tell them to come in" brings the visiting contingent to occupancy of seats which are assigned under precisely-worded rules.

This stage of the proceedings will find Mr. Curtis mounting the dais at 1 o'clock on February 8, there to take his place at the right of the speaker. Thirty feet above, eyes of the press and the galleried public will gaze at the pair of men who went into November as opposing political candidates and came out of that month as victor and vanquished.

Election of the President and Vice President for the next term of four years should be completed within half an hour. In 1929, the job was completed and the senate was back in its own hall 38 minutes after the joint session opened.

At the rate less than one minute will be devoted to consideration of the votes cast by the electors chosen in each state. Within that minute is to be included the time required to move the envelopes from the mahogany boxes and to place them in the hands of the Vice President, as well as the seconds which will pass while the presiding officer opens the envelope and while official tellers scan the contents and tell what they see.

Under the venerable plan the tellers finally "discover" the identities of the men who next are to be President and Vice President. The names of those men are then announced by the president of the senate. Only when no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast does this procedure go awry.

But to return to the "official pretense" of electing a President February 8: Connected with its early history are two significant "ifs." If the roads between Georgia and Philadelphia back in 1787 hadn't been so rough and if a certain delegate to the constitutional convention from Georgia named William Houston hadn't suffered so much discomfort from the condition of the roads, the whole system might have been different.

The convention had almost decided to have electors chosen by the people of each state journey once every four years to the National Capitol to meet for the purpose of voting among themselves to decide who should hold the two high positions.

But Mr. Houston rose to his feet during a session on a hot July afternoon and, with memories of the road still fresh in his mind, told the assembled delegates what he thought about the idea. He directed the convention's attention to the "expense and extreme inconvenience of drawing together men from all states for the single purpose of electing the chief executive." He said also it seemed improbable to him that capable men would undertake the service under the penalty of having to travel far from home, only to turn right around and go back to the journey's starting point.

A suggestion was made that called for electors of each state to travel only to their state capital to cast their votes. Mr. Houston approved of that. Development of the plan then progressed, producing the proposal that each state appoint a messenger to bring the votes of its electors to the seat of the national government. The delegates, worn out after many weeks of debate, welcomed the compromise.

These periodical trips were continued for more than 130 years. The messengers, usually relatives of the leading campaign contributors, state-house employees, political newsmen and such, received 25 cents a mile for their travels to Washington.

About four years ago, it was found that this quadrennial sending of messengers was costing the national government more than $14,000. Economy demanded a change so a law was passed providing that the electoral votes, or "certificates" as they are formally called, be sent by mail instead of by messenger.

This act, approved May 29, 1928, reads as follows:

"The electors of President and Vice President of each state shall meet and give their votes on the first Wednesday in January next following their appointment at such place in each state as the legislature of such state shall direct.

The March of the Electors

ficate of such ascertainment of the electors appointed, setting forth the names of such electors and the canvass or other ascertainment under the laws of such state of the number of votes given or cast for each person for whose appointment any and all votes have been given or cast; and it shall also thereupon be the duty of the executive of each state to deliver to the electors of such state, on or before the day on which they are required by section 1 of this act to meet, six duplicates original of the same certificate under the seal of the state; and if there shall have been any final determination in a state in the manner provided for by law of a controversy or contest concerning the appointment of all or any of the electors of such state, it shall be the duty of the executive of such state, as soon as practicable after such determination, to communicate under the seal of the state to the secretary of state of the United States a certificate of such determination in form and manner as the same shall have been made; and the certificate or certificates so received by him for one year and shall be a part of the public records of his office and shall be open to public inspection; and the secretary of state of the United States at the first meeting of congress thereafter shall transmit to the two houses of congress copies in full of each, and every such certificate so received at the State department.

"The electors shall make and sign six certificates of all the votes given by them, each of which certificates shall contain two distinct lists, one of the votes for President and the other of the votes for Vice President, and shall annex to each of the certificates one of the lists of the electors which shall have been furnished to them by direction of the executive of the state.

"The electors shall dispose of the certificates so made by them and the lists attached thereto in the following manner:

"First. They shall forthwith forward by registered mail one of the same to the President of the senate at the seat of government.

"Second. Two of the same shall be delivered to the secretary of state of the state, one of which shall be held subject to the order of the president of the senate, the other to be preserved by him for one year and shall be a part of the public records of his office and shall be open to public inspection.

"Third. On the day thereafter they shall forward by registered mail two of such certificates and lists to the secretary of state at the seat of government, one of which shall be held subject to the order of the president of the senate. The other shall be preserved by the secretary of state for one year and shall be a part of the public records of his office and shall be open to public inspection.

"Fourth. They shall forthwith cause the other of the certificates and lists to be delivered to the judge of the district in which the electors shall have assembled.

"When no certificate of vote and list mentioned in this act from any state shall have been received by the president of the senate or by the secretary of state by the third Wednesday in the month of January after the meeting of the electors shall have been held, the president of the senate or, if he be absent from the seat of government, the secretary of state shall request, by the most expeditious method available, the secretary of state of the state to send up the certificate and list lodged with him by the electors of such state; and it shall be his duty upon receipt of such request immediately to transmit same by registered mail to the president of the senate at the seat of government.

"When no certificates of votes from any state shall have been received at the seat of government on the fourth Wednesday of the month of January, after the meeting of the electors shall have been held, the president of the senate, or, if he be absent from the seat of government, the secretary of state shall send a special messenger to the district judge in whose custody a certificate of votes from that state has been lodged, and such judge shall forthwith transmit that list by the hand of such messenger to the seat of government."

"God's Acre" Movement Has Helped Churches

The continuing spread of the "God's Acre" movement is credited with infusing new life into hundreds of country churches in a number of southern states.

Because of this plan, which gives church work definite shares in farm crops, many depression-hit churches once in danger of shutting down or curtailing their activities are showing renewed material and spiritual growth, say reports from leaders.

In Georgia where the modern movement began it is found in every section, and James W. Merritt, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist convention, estimates that the number of persons participating last year was double that of the previous one.

Various known as "God's Acre" plan, the "Lord's Acre" plan, the "Lord's Plot" plan, "Planting for the Lord," and the "Lord's Portion" plan, the movement aims to have its participants dedicate a certain part of their acreage to the church. The proceeds are given to carry on the activities of the denomination as well as of the local church.

Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, and the Disciples of Christ have churches following the plan.—Exchange.

FROM THE BEGINNING

Mark King, prospector, and his partner, Ben Gaynor, share with a desperado, Sven Brode, knowledge of a vast store of hidden gold. King is impressed by Gloria, Gaynor's daughter. He dislikes a house visitor named Gratton. In a spirit of adventure Gloria accompanies Gratton from San Francisco on a "business" trip.

He went a second time far back into the darkness of the further cave, carrying a smoking torch as before, vanishing from Gloria's eyes. She had but to snatch up the few things she meant to take with her, to go out, to find her way down the cliffs—She hesitated and time passed.

ever before filled with danger. But in the end it was done; again they were in Gus Ingle's cave. King built a fire, left Gloria lying by it, and went back for his pack. When he returned she had not moved. He made a bed for her, placed her on it, and covered her with his own blanket. Then he boiled some coffee and made her drink it.

He drew off her boots and stockings and found that her feet were terribly cold. He wrapped them in a hot blanket and hastened to set a pot of water on the coals. While the water warmed he knelt and chafed her feet between his palms. Finally the dead white began to give place to a faint pinkness, like a blush, and again he put the blanket about them.

CHAPTER IX

All night King kept his fire blazing. His nerves were frayed. Within his soul he prayed mutely that when morning came Gloria would be alive. With the first sickly streaks of dawn he came to stoop over the girl and listen to her breathing. Then he descended the cliffs for more wood.

In the noose of his rope he dragged up the cliff much dead wood. Throughout the noise of his comings and goings the girl slept heavily. While he waited for the coffee to boil he took careful stock of provisions. For two people there was enough for some twenty meals, food for about a week. He even counted his rounds of ammunition; here alone he was affluent. He had in the neighborhood of a hundred cartridges for the rifle. While he was setting the gun aside he felt Gloria's eyes upon him. He addressed her with prompt frankness.

"Inside fifteen minutes we've got to be on our way out. As we go we'll look for the horse. But, find it or not, we're going."

"The storm is over, then?" "No. But we are not going to wait. We have food for only six or seven days, at the most."

She let her eyes droop to the fire so that the lids hid them from him. It was not yet full day; it was still snowing. Gratton and the men with him would, of course, have ample supplies. She yearned feverishly to be rid of King and his intolerable domineering.

"I am tired out," she said faintly, still not looking up. "I can't go on." He stared at her. There was a flush on her cheeks. His old fear surged back on him: Gloria was going to die! So he did what Gloria had counted on having him do: he hastened to serve her a piping-hot breakfast of crisp bacon, hot cakes and jam. Hers was the victory. Mark King was again waiting on her, hand and foot, sacrificing for her.

"I am going to look for the horse," he told her. "But don't count too much on my success. Another thing: if I don't get Buck today he'd be no use to us; that is if the snow keeps on. But I'll do what I can."

When he had gone, she scrambled up and went to peer out. No sound out there. She sought eagerly for some sign of Gratton. There was none. But he would come soon; he must. She would wait, hoping for Gratton's coming before King's return.

Making his way back to the point where Buck had broken his tether, King came to the place whence the horse had fled. He knew that beyond two ridges was the valley of the giant sequoias. There a horse would find water, shelter, and grass. If he failed to find the animal there—well, then, Buck was well on the trail or lost to King in any one of a hundred places.

When at last he came to the grove of big trees as he had more than half expected, he found nothing. Gloria told herself, when King had gone, that she was glad to be alone. Five minutes later she began to stir restlessly; another five minutes and already she was listening for his return. She drew on her boots and walked up and down. When she peered out across the desolate world she drew back from its bleak menace, shuddering, returning to crouch miserably by her fire.

Repeatedly she was tempted to go forth and seek Gratton; to hunt up and down until at last she came to him. She sought to tell herself that she was not afraid of the snow or of being lost, of being unable to find Gratton. But she could not climb down the cliff; she knew that she would fall. Dizzy and sick, shivering with dread and cold, she turned back always. She let her fire die down, not noticing it. Then the cold reminded her, and she worked long building another. She knew where a block of matches was; she had seen King set it carefully away. In her excitement she struck dozens of matches, dropping the burnt ends about her.

At last her fire blazed up and she warmed herself. Then she was conscious of a strange faintness and realized that she was hungry. She opened a tin of sardines and came back to the fire with it in her hands. She had no clear conception of the deed when, half of the fish consumed, the smelly stuff revolted her and she hurried the remaining part into the bed of coals.

King stamped the loose snow from his boots and came in. Gloria stood confronting him, tense, rigid, white-faced, her hands stiff at her sides. The surge of her relief, like a suddenly released current, impacting with that other current of her unleashed anger, made of her consciousness a sort of wild, fuming whirlpool.

King was tired throughout every muscle of his body. Coming in from the storm-cleansed open he sniffed at the closeness of the cave. Then he noted the sardine can. With a stick he raked it out of the coals. "In God's name," he demanded, "what do you mean by a thing like that? Are you stark, raving mad?"

For a moment she was at a loss to understand what had enraged him. The act of tossing the distasteful food into the fire had been purely involuntary. She was not without reason; in their present predicament she was a fool to have done a thing like that; she could hardly believe that she had done it. And so, with an elaborate shrug of disdainful shoulders, she turned her back to him.

But King flung to his feet and set his hands on her two shoulders and swung her about.

"Listen to me," he said angrily. "I am going to talk plain to you. You are a fool, a downright, empty-headed, silly fool. What you have destroyed in wanton carelessness would have kept the life in a man a whole day. Be still," he commanded, as she sought to wriggle out of his grasp, to avoid the direct blaze of his eyes. "I am going to do what I can for you; to see you safe through this, if I can. Not because you are anything to me, but just because you are Ben Gaynor's, and he is my friend. Understand? But I am not going to have you throw all of our chances away by dumping grub into the fire. If you do one other brainless thing like that, and I catch you at it, I am going to tie you up, hand and foot, and keep you out of mischief."

"You wouldn't dare. . . ." But she knew better; he would dare anything. She went slowly to her bed to hide her trembling, and lay down.

Then for the first time he saw the waste of scattered matches on the floor. From them he looked to her in an amazement so sheer that it left him no word of expostulation. The suspicion actually came to him that the girl was mad. It was scarcely conceivable that a perfectly sane individual could do the things which she had done.

She saw him get up and begin gathering up all of the foodstuff. He carried it to the back of the cave, where he passed out of her sight in the dark. He made a second trip, after which there was left on a shelf of rock only half a dozen matches and enough food for one scanty meal.

CHAPTER X

King awoke filled with resolve and definite purpose. It was still snowing heavily, steadily, implacably. "The biggest storm in twenty years," he told himself.

He must seek immediately to locate his horse; one could eat horseflesh if driven to it. He must try to get game of some sort. He went to Gloria's bed. "You'd better get up," he said briefly. "Time to start the day. While we eat I want to talk with you. I never saw a storm worse than this. We have enough food for a few days. After that, if we stuck on here and did not find more somehow, we'd die like dogs. Therefore we are going to get ready to beat it out the first chance we get. Gloria, I am going to do all that I can for both of us. You are going to do all that you can. That is final."

She bit her lips and gave him her scornful silence. She ignored him when he called crisply that breakfast was ready. There were limits to her obedience, she thought rebelliously. To be told to do this, to do that, was intolerable. King looked at her and had the understanding to grasp something of her thought. So he explained:

"I want you to come outside with me. You'll find it hard work. It would be a first-rate idea if you'd fortify your strength by the little bit of nourishment which we can afford to take. No? Well, I'm sorry.—Here." He offered her the pieces of a sack he had cut in two for her. "Tie those about your feet to keep them from freezing."

"When I want your advice, I'll ask for it," she retorted icily. "Very well," he answered. "And I can't make you eat if you don't want to. After all, perhaps you are not hungry." He set aside her portion.

Her heart seemed scarcely to stir in her breast; then slowly it began to beat, swifter and swifter, hammering wildly. Her reason fled before the flood of the passionate willfulness of the old Gloria, and she cried shrilly: "I won't! I won't! I am not your slave and I am not going to jump at your bidding! You can't make me; you shan't make me. I won't!"

DAIRY

ONLY ONE WAY OF BUILDING UP HERD

Retain Offspring of Proved Producers.

The careful selection of cattle to bring about better and better butterfat producers during each succeeding generation has had a startling effect, when the figures from the inauguration of the movement in 1906 to 1930 are compared. In 1906 the average butterfat produced in a year by an average cow was 215 pounds. In 1930 this figure had increased to 302 pounds, or nearly a 50 per cent increase.

This figure for butterfat doesn't mean butter itself, because the yield of butter is always greater than the weight of the butterfat. For instance, figuring from the butterfat test in 40 per cent cream the total weight of the butterfat is multiplied by 1.2 and the resultant figure is the yield of butter. In the case of whole milk, the factor used in estimating the yield is 1.18.

To use definite figures, 1,000 pounds of 40 per cent cream would represent, of course, 400 pounds of butterfat. This cream, when churned, would yield 480 pounds of butter.

The manner in which the butterfat yield is increased is to take offspring of known producers of large percentages of butterfat and build up herds from them. In each succeeding generation those which show a retrogression or halt in the progress toward better yield are discarded and only the better producers used for breeding purposes. Of course, most of the effort is centered on sires which are offspring of big butterfat producers.—Exchange.

Ration's Effect on the Nutritive Value of Milk

When the feed supplied a cow does not contain enough mineral matter to supply the milk she produces with the mineral constituents normally found therein, she draws upon her own bones to supply the amount lacking. Some investigators hold that the addition of inorganic minerals to the ration does not help the cow, because she is unable to assimilate minerals in that form. But she can assimilate minerals held in organic combination. This is one reason why legume hays, which contain a relatively high percentage of mineral matter, are so valuable.

For two years the Ohio experiment station has been feeding milk to rats from cows that were fed a ration very high in protein and from cows that were fed a ration very low in protein, with identically the same results. This was merely another way of testing the nutritive value of milk secreted by cows fed different rations with respect to their protein content. Calves fed on this same milk did equally well. In other words these tests, conducted with a view of studying the biological qualities of milk, again demonstrated that its composition is not altered by the nature of the feed the cow consumes.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Gold Medal Winners

Recent winners of American Jersey Cattle club gold medal awards are E. M. Sherman, Charles City, Iowa, with 514 pounds of butterfat in 305 days; J. N. Marlin, New Providence, Iowa, on Ayresdale's Pure Gold's Nina, with 764 pounds of butterfat in a year; Sir Owl's Countess' Cactus, owned by W. H. Eddy, of Howard Lake, Minn., with 620 pounds of butterfat in 305 days; Elmer E. Keyt, of Lakeview, Mich., with 610 pounds of butterfat in 305 days, and Fomasa 2nd's Beauty, owned by G. H. McKinstry, of Washington, Pa., with 623 pounds of butterfat in 305 days.—Successful Farming.

DAIRY NOTES

Other things being equal, the more clover or alfalfa a dairyman gives his cows, the less protein he needs to purchase for balancing his grain mixture.

After calves are six months of age they will make normal growth on grain and hay. Pasture of good quality, abundant in quantity, is enough for helpers nine months or more of age.

Dairy rations do not need to contain as much high-priced protein as was commonly thought a few years ago, in the light of recent experiments of E. S. Savage of Cornell university, New York.

Legume hays and silage both produce the amount of grain required to produce milk and thus reduce feeding costs and increases profits.

Cows that go on pasture too early because of lack of available roughage are likely to be underfed throughout all the summer months.

The better the feeder understands his cows, the characteristics of feeds and the general principles involved, the better able he will be to make the changes as the need arises.

Lesson for January 22

JESUS FORGIVING SIN

Mark 2:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins. Mark 2:16. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Forgiving a Man. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Forgiving a Man. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How We May Be Forgiveness. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus' Power Over Sin.

1. Jesus Preaching the Word (vv. 1, 2).

1. To whom (v. 2). It was to the surging crowd which was gathered about the house where Jesus was stopping. So great was the crowd that there was no room to receive them, even about the door. This house may have been the home of Peter where he had healed his wife's mother of a fever. As soon as it was noised about that Jesus was in the house, the multitudes gathered where Jesus is.

2. What Jesus preached (v. 2). He preached the Word before he wrought miracles, for his supreme mission was to make known God's will. Miracles were not an end in themselves, but to authenticate his work. The people came, some to be healed, and some out of curiosity. The Word of God should be preached to all so that the will of God may be known even though the hearers gather with an unworthy motive.

II. Jesus Forgiving Sins (vv. 3-5). The man brought to him was suffering from the dread disease of palsy, but his deadly affliction was that of sin. Palsy was a type of sin. The miracle was wrought by Jesus in confirmation of his message. It was vital connected with faith. Observe:

1. Faith coming to Jesus (v. 3). The actuating impulse of the palsied man and his four friends who carried him was faith. They believed that Jesus had power to save.

2. Faith-overcoming difficulties (v. 4). Though prevented by the crowd from coming to Jesus, they ascended the outer stairway and let the afflicted man down through the roof into his presence. They disregarded conventionalities, knowing that the all-important thing was to go to the Lord with their need.

3. Faith rewarded (v. 5). No word was uttered by either the paralytic or his hearers. No words were needed. Their action was enough. The paralytic got more than he expected. He desired healing of the body and he received forgiveness of sins—the healing of the body plus forgiveness of sins.

III. Jesus Answering the Scribes (vv. 6-10).

1. Their objections (vv. 6, 7). a. Why does he thus speak? b. Who can forgive sin? They were entirely right in their reasonings that only God can forgive sins. Their blunder was in not perceiving him as God. The very one who was speaking and acting was the living God.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 8-10). Knowing their inner thoughts and reasonings, he manifested unto them his essential deity in that he had power to know their thoughts. He inquired, "Which is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise and take up thy bed, and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (he saith to the sick of the palsy), I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house." He was willing that his power in the invisible realm should be tested by his power in the visible.

IV. Jesus Healing the Paralytic (vv. 11, 12).

1. His method (v. 11). He spoke the word and it was done. Christ's words were enough. This man was helpless and unable of himself to move, but with the command was given the strength to obey. It is always so, that when Christ commands he gives the strength to perform.

2. The obedience of the man (v. 12). He immediately arose, took up his bed and went forth among them all. The poor helpless man walked away with his bed upon his shoulder. At the words of Christ, disease and death flee away. This was a fine example again of divine healing.

3. The people were amazed, and glorified God (v. 12). They said, "We never saw it on this fashion."

World Movements

God dwells in the great movements of the world, in the great ideas which act in the human race. Find him there in the interests of man. Find him by sharing in those interests, by helping all who are striving for truth, for education, for progress, for liberty all over the world.

Confide in Him

Confide to God that which thou hast from him, O thou soul weary of wandering! Confide to the truth that which is from the truth within thee, and thou shalt lose nothing.—St. Augustine.

The Disciples Sent Forth

Go your ways; behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves. Carry neither purse, nor scrip, nor shoes; and salute no man by the way.—Luke 10:3 and 4.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

It's hard for me to sit and knit Or sew up endless seams. I'd rather sit in idleness Just weaving little dreams.

Can Be Overdone Consistency is a jewel and also monotonous.

No Work For Aliens

Under conditions governing the use of Reconstruction Finance Company's funds for relief work no aliens can be hired. The conditions governing the use of the money will be followed.

The committee supervising the relief work here is composed of F. H. Fritter, W. W. Nipper and Mrs. Fred West.

Mrs. Long is in charge of the work at Spofford.

Freeze Misses Here

Reports from New Orleans and San Antonio weather bureaus Monday indicated that there was a real norther and freezing weather headed down this way by Tuesday. However, later reports indicated that the cold spell had shifted eastward and missed this section altogether. Cloudy, rainy damp weather remained with us for several days, adding but little to the rainfall record but much in the way of discomfort.

R. F. C. Funds Starting Work

The first allotment to Kinney County from Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds for relief work was received Monday by A. E. Bartberger, chairman of the Kinney County Emergency Relief Committee.

The committee had laid plans for putting men to work as soon as possible after the receipt of the money, and so headquarters for registration and office purpose was stationed in the handy Andy building, where Red Cross flour has been stored. Ogden Dooley was placed in charge of the office and at once started registering men for local work, and at this writing about 200 men have been registered.

Some of the men were put to work yesterday at cleaning the streets about town. This will contribute to the employment of men now idle and thus to the relief of their families, and incidentally will much improve the appearance of the town. Deserving men who need and are willing to work are welcoming this opportunity.

A portion of the funds has been allotted to Spofford, where men are being registered by Mrs. F. O. Long, and men put to work there.

Few Cases of Flu

Although there has been very little sickness apparent in the last two weeks, and the epidemic is ended, there are a few cases of the influenza reported. The flu left a few after affects, but on the whole departed without doing much damage to public health.

Social Happenings

Of Brackett and Fort Clark

BY MARY LOUISE THOMPSON

Parish Supper

The Episcopalians gave their annual church supper at the Parish House on Wednesday evening of last week. Tables were arranged and covers laid to accommodate one hundred people, but on account of illness in many of the homes, and the absence of a number of the church members and workers, there were only about sixty five present. The tables were attractively decorated at intervals down the long length with potted blossoming narcissi and bowls of fern and poinsettias.

Rev. H. Conger Jones was in charge of the devotionals. Reports were heard from the officers of the church, Sunday School and Guild, all of them remarkably good considering the financial depression from which none has escaped. At the close of the business reports congregational hymns were sung with Mrs. A. E. Bartberger accompanying at the organ.

The custom of having an annual supper with the parents and all the children present, as well as friends who are not affiliated with the church but are associated with the Guild or Sunday School work, is looked forward to each year with growing interest and enjoyment. The suppers are economically planned so that all may take part by bringing a dish of something good to eat, and by lending their presence to make the affair a truly hospitable occasion.

The small Sunday School children have their low table and chairs arranged in the Guild

Room, where they are permitted to have all the fun they are able to conceive, with a kindly chaperone, not too evident, in the back ground, seeing that all goes well.

Contract Bridge

Misses Ruby Hester and Maxine Walters entertained the Contract Bridge Club on Wednesday evening.

Miss Chrysta Kennedy was successful and received the souvenir awarded for high score.

Delicious refreshments consisting of "flapper salad", sandwiches and hot chocolate were served.

The guests numbered Misses Ellie Perry, Chrysta Kennedy, Grace Scarborough, Emma Jean Martin, Mary Beth McNealy, Jean Nipper, Sarah Beecroft. The club will be entertained next week by Misses Emma Jean Martin and Chrysta Kennedy.

Bridge Club

Mrs. Carl Westphal and Mrs. A. Miller and Mrs. Sidney Shoe maker entertained at bridge on Wednesday evening.

Miss Jessie Dudley received a luncheon set for high score; Mrs. Dan Fritter cat constellation and was awarded a linen guest towel.

A dainty sweet course was served to the following guests: Mrs. A. Williams, Mrs. Dan Fritter, Mrs. Clarence Keplinger, Mrs. T. C. Whitehead, Mrs. Carl Karter, Mrs. E. Stuer, Misses Emma Sauer, Elise Sauer and Jessie Dudley.

Guild Notes

Mrs. J. F. Dudley entertained the Guild ladies on Tuesday afternoon. The time was pleasantly spent in cutting and sewing Red Cross materials.

Refreshments were served to the following guests: Mrs. N. P. Petersen, Mrs. Helen Himes, Mrs. E. Webb, Mrs. E. Augler, Mrs. V. Christensen, Mrs. Jim Clamp.

Missionary Notes

Mrs. John MacWilliams was hostess on Tuesday afternoon to the Missionary ladies. Rev. W. C. Drake gave a summary of the mission study subject.

Silver Lake Article

An interesting write-up of the beautiful Silver Lake, located in the section north of this community and Fort Clark, written by H. Conger Jones, appeared in the last Sunday's edition of the San Antonio Express.

The article in question dealt at length with the rugged surroundings setting off this beautiful gem of nature in this county, and relates interesting Indian legends concerning the lake, and concerning its origin. It was well written, and the description was vivid and interesting.

There were several views of the Lake, and a map showing its relation to Uvalde, Fort Clark and Del Rio. The article gave good publicity to this Lake which we of Kinney County have long known and admired. Unfortunately Brackettville, nearest to the lake did not even get a mention.

Dal Shields

Dal Shields, about 33, colored war veteran, who died in San Antonio Friday last, was buried in the colored cemetery here Saturday evening. Having seen service in the war he was given a military funeral which was one of the largest in recent times accorded a colored person here.

Methodist Church

One month of the year is almost gone; for some of us, if we intend to make this a church-going year, there is need of our taking action. It is a fine thing to make up our minds to this effect when the weather is most difficult, because it is usually hardship and difficulty that brings out our better selves; bad weather sometimes brings out the best congregation of people to church and to Sunday School. If we harness difficulty, then we are sure to make use of the more pleasant "days of sunshine."

ENTER VALLEY FORGE THE VALE OF EXTREME SACRIFICE IN THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION. WASHINGTON WENT INTO WINTER QUARTERS JUST BEFORE CHRISTMAS IN 1777. HIS MEN WERE POORLY CLOTHED AND MANY WERE SUFFERING FROM WOUNDS RECEIVED AT BRANDYWINE AND GERMANTOWN. BLOOD STAINED FOOTPRINTS MARKED THE WAY FROM WHITEMARSH, AND THE MEN TOOK REFUGE FROM WINTER'S BLASTS IN HUTS.

THERE IS A STORY TO THE EFFECT THAT WASHINGTON, TOUCHED TO HIS VERY SOUL BY THE SUFFERING OF HIS MEN WENT INTO THE WOODS TO PRAY FOR AID. JOHN POTTS, THE OWNER OF A FINE HOUSE IN VALLEY FORGE CAME UPON WASHINGTON AND UNSEEN HEARD HIS PLEA. POTTS WAS SO STRUCK BY THE SINCERITY OF WASHINGTON THAT IN TELLING OF THE INCIDENT HE SAID, "THAT MAN MUST CONQUER IN THE END." HE THEREUPON OFFERED HIS FINE HOUSE TO WASHINGTON AS HEADQUARTERS.

CHILDREN'S BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE GREEDY COUSINS

NOW that Jack Frost had opened the chestnut burrs and the hickory husks the Merry Little Breezes saw a chance to help some of their friends. Ever since they had been unable to get anyone to play with them they had wished and wished that they might find some work to do. Every one else, at least nearly every one else, was so very busy making ready for winter that the Merry Little Breezes were beginning to feel just a wee bit ashamed to be doing nothing but play all day long. It was the sight of those open burrs and husks that gave one of them an idea.

"I tell you what, we can help Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Happy Jack and Striped Chipmunk, and it will be great fun!" cried the Merry Little Breezes.

"How?" asked all the others, crowd- ing around eagerly.

"Look up in the top of that tall chestnut tree, and tell me what you see," cried the Merry Little Breeze who had first spoken.

All the other Merry Little Breezes looked up in the top of the tall chest- nut tree and for a few minutes no one said a word. At last one of them spoke:

"I don't see anything that I haven't seen every day lately, except that Jack Frost has pinched open the burrs so that we can see the brown nuts. He must have done that last night."

"That's just it!" cried the first Merry Little Breeze. "Yesterday those burrs were closed, but today they are open and that gives us a chance to help the squirrel cousins. Don't you see now?"

But the other Merry Little Breezes didn't see, and they said so. "Watch me!" shouted the first Merry Little Breeze, and raced over to the tall chestnut tree. He shook the topmost branch on which were several wide open burrs and out fell the brown nuts and rattled down through the leaves to the ground all around Happy Jack Squirrel, who was just starting to climb the tree. He didn't keep on climbing. No, indeed. Without so much as a look up to see what had made those brown nuts fall, Happy Jack scampered after them. You see, he was afraid that if he left them lying there his cousin Chatterer, or his other cousin, little Striped Chipmunk would come along and find them. So Happy Jack scurried about hunting for those brown nuts the Merry Little Breeze had shaken down, and when he found them he hurried to hide them.

The other Merry Little Breezes saw right away what the first Merry Little Breeze meant by a way in which to help the squirrel cousins. They would just shake the brown nuts down and save Happy Jack and Chatterer the trouble of climbing the tall trees to gather the nuts. It would not only save them trouble and real work, but also be a great deal of fun. They always did like to shake trees, and now it would be more fun than ever because it would really and truly be helping others. So each one hastened to shake a branch, and the brown nuts fell and rattled down like raindrops.

Now Chatterer, the Red Squirrel had been passing on his way to a hickory tree, but when he heard those brown nuts rattling among the leaves on the ground, he came hurrying over to see what it meant, and his bright eyes sparkled as he saw so many nuts on the ground just waiting to be picked up and carried away. He darted forward to fill his cheeks with them, only to have Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel rush at him angrily.

"Those are my nuts!" shouted Happy Jack, and his voice was very harsh and angry.

"They are not!" screamed Chatterer. "They don't belong to anyone until they have been picked up. I have just as much right to them as you have. You don't own the tree. I guess if I want them I'll take them and you can't stop me."

"I found the tree first, and they be- long to me!" barked Happy Jack. "If you don't go away and leave them alone I'll make you sorry!"

Jack ground his long sharp teeth in a way not at all pleasant to hear. The Merry Little Breezes stopped shaking the branches of the tall chestnut tree and looked down in dismay. It seemed to them there were trees enough for both, but here were these two cousins so greedy that they were quarreling and growing angrier every minute. It was quite dreadful.

FISH AND SHELL FISH

FISH and shell fish are two of our most extensive sources of food, and in some form are found in almost all parts of our country. Where it is possible to get the fresh fish, one may always feel sure of a delightful dish, and even canned fish and shell fish are to be prized.

Deviled Clams.

Take 25 fresh or canned clams. If fresh, chop the hard portions and cook slowly for ten minutes in three table- spoonfuls of butter and add one minced pepper and onion. Now add one-half pound of sliced mushrooms and cook three minutes. Add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of celery seed and four table- spoonfuls of flour. Cook until smooth, adding two cupfuls of milk very gradually. Now add the soft parts of the clams or clams and pour into buttered ramekins. Cover with well-buttered crumbs and bake until brown.

Baked Fish With Potato Stuffing.

boiling salted water until tender. When tender, remove the onion and mash, adding butter, cream or milk, and seasoning to taste. Prepare the fish and salt well on the inside before putting in the stuffing. Sew up and rub the fish well with flour, cut diagonal slashes on each side of the back- bone and insert five narrow strips of salt pork. Dust with salt, pepper, and celery salt. Pour around the fish a can of condensed tomato soup, one table- spoonful of Worcestershire sauce and one-third of a cupful of water. Bake until tender, serve garnished with sliced cooked eggs and the tomato sauce poured over all.

Any fresh fish stuffed and baked, if pasted with a snappy french dressing, a bit of garlic or onion juice several times during the cooking, will be very much finer flavored.

Swatosh's Storm Theory

All storms are caused by magnetic influences in the upper atmosphere, which revolves around the earth, says Joseph S. Swatosh. "Then there is also the Heavistide layer, which like- wise revolves in about three years." He believes holes develop in this layer, due to lack of resistance to the magnetic influences of the upper at- mosphere, named by him the "stratosphere," causing wind or rain on the earth. From such a point, storms spread out along storm lines.

PLANS PROPER USE OF KITCHEN SPACE

New York Woman Succeeds in New Profession.

As a new profession for women, that of "kitchen planning" has just turned up in the trade directories. So far as known, there is only one exponent of this novel way of earning a living, but she has succeeded in making a good living out of it, even though she launched her new business just about the beginning of the depression period. She is Mrs. Ann C. Willis, and she has offices in six cities.

One day may find her in New York at the office of an architect, planning the ideal kitchen before the house plans leave the blueprint stage. Another day she is at a client's house, perched upon stepladder, measuring her china and the space it requires, asking about the size of the family, the scale of entertaining, and the consequent demands made upon the kitchen. Between these stops she may drop in to study a kitchen that, like Topsy, "just grew," full of mistakes that no one, least of all the owner, realized were being made, and that now is to be done over.

In the comparatively short time Mrs. Willis has been a "kitchen planner" she has discovered that a great many kitchens have exactly the same defects. For instance, they lack sufficient storage space, with the result that utensils have to be piled in stacks and working surfaces become cluttered. Another common defect is that sinks, stoves, and tables are the wrong height.

If your kitchen is so large and so old-fashioned that the unnecessary space wastes time and energy, move everything to one corner of the room, Mrs. Willis suggests in the American Magazine. Put the stove over within friendly distance of the sink. If your husband is handy with the hammer, get him to build a cupboard near the newly assembled kitchen, or buy a kitchen cabinet.

If on the other hand, your kitchen is small and you are cramped for space, her advice is to build cup- boards over the ice box and put slender ones in narrow places. Very often they can be built in under the sink, in space that usually goes to waste. Next, weed out pieces of china rarely used and banish them to the cellar or the attic.

HOW TO STOP A COLD QUICK AS YOU CAUGHT IT

A New Method Doctors Everywhere Are Advising

Take 1 or 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets.

Drink Full Glass of Water.

If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of warm water and gargle according to directions.

Almost Instant Relief In This Way

If you have a cold—don't take chances with "cold killers" and nostrums. A cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

The simple method pictured above is the way doctors throughout the world now treat colds.

It is recognized as the QUICK-EST, safest, surest way. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

That is because the real BAYER Aspirin embodies certain medical qualities that strike at the base of a cold almost INSTANTLY.

You can combat nearly any cold you get simply by taking BAYER Aspirin and drinking plenty of water every 2 to 4 hours the first day and 3 or 4 times daily there- after. If throat is sore, gargle with 3 BAYER Aspirin Tablets crushed and dissolved in a half glass of warm water, repeating every 2 or 3 hours as necessary. Sore throat eases this way in a few minutes, in- credible as this may seem.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets dis- solve with sufficient speed and completeness, leaving no irritating particles or grittiness. Get a box of 12 or bottle of 100 at any drug store.
