Creighton and Hanna Favored As Legislators

SEE POLLINATION INSIDE

Democratic voters of Eastland County put County Judge Scott Bailey into nomination for a third term by a substantial majority Saturday. Voting only about half of the registered number, they gave the incumbent Bailey a total of 2491 votes to 1946 for his opponent, Carl L. Garrett in unofficial returns Saturday night.

In other contested races county democratic voters favored challenger Lloyd Bentsen over U. S. Senator Ralph Yarborough for the senatorial nomination by a large margin, gave Tom Creighton a good majority over Walter E. Steimel in the contest for the state senatorial nomination; approved Joe C. Hanna's bid for state representative nomination over incumbent Burke Musgrove and gave Judge Austin McCloud a better than two to one lead over Roger Q. Garrett in the race for nomination for chief justice, Eleventh Court of Civil Appeals.

In the race for county commissioner, Precinct 4, which includes Cisco, C. B. (Runt) Dill, incumbent, and W. W. (Jack) Sawyers survived a field of four to go into a runoff in the second primary.

Dill received 702 votes; Sawyers 449. Jesse H. Reynolds, Jr., had 207 votes and Morris D. White 113 in this race.

Carl Lamb was nominated in the runoff for county clerk. Tom Holder, Lamb received 740 votes to 692 for Holder.

Former Automobile Salesman William A. (Bill) Hunter won over two opponents to claim the Constable, Precinct One, nomination. Hunter polled 736 votes and was followed by Allen Squyres who got 471 votes, John Daniels had 103 votes.

Scott Bailey received heavy support in his home box at Cisco where the vote, exclusive of absentee ballot, was 1031 for Bailey and 419 for Garrett. Bailey's county wide and unofficial majority was 545 votes.

With all returns from the 53rd district in except those from Palo Pinto county, Joe Hanna seemed assured of the democratic nomination for state representative over his opponent, Burke Musgrove. Hanna led in Eastland, Stephens, Shackelford and Callahan counties.

A report from the Texas Election Bureau at 10 o'clock Saturday night gave Tom Creighton narrow leads in all counties of the 22nd senatorial district over Walter Steimel in

South African Grass Is Becoming Popular Rising Star Area Pasture

JOHN W. LEE

Kleingrass is becoming a popular pasture grass for Rising Star area farmers. It was introduced to the area in 1957 when the late Guy Greynolds made a trial planting on his farm three miles south of Rising Star. Not until 1963, however, when seed became more plentiful, were local farmers able to buy the seed from retail seed dealers.

Kleingrass is a warm-season perennial bunchgrass introduced into this country from Africa. Introductions were made as early as 1842, but it was not until the 1950's that desirable types were introduced and evaluated. It is fine-stemmed, leafy and grows to a height of 3 feet at maturity. It is somewhat similar to switchgrass, a blue panicgrass. Kleingrass spreads by tillers or shoot rhizomes, and will root at points where the stems come in contact with wet soils.

Kleingrass is well adapted to all soils in the area but makes best growth on the clay and sandy loam soils. Fertilization is necessary for best growth, especially on all soils. Although it may not respond to high levels of fertilizer it will respond to fertilizer to maintain its vigor.

The leafy grass remains green all winter until temperatures drop below 25 degrees Fahrenheit. Growth begins early in the spring. It does not have the potential for extremely high levels of production of such grasses as Coastal bermuda grass or ermelo lovegrass.

Kleingrass is easily established from seed but its initial growth is slow as is true with most perennial grasses. Stands are obtained with about one and a half pounds per acre in rows and three pounds drilled or broadcast. The seedbed should be clean and firm.

Pete Roberts, Gerald Tucker, Melvin McCleery, Roy Harding, Louis Mayfield, Aubrey Lawrence, James Brush and Glenn Whitley are planning Kleingrass on their farms this year.

It Has Been

Editor's Note: The following item is taken from The Rising Star, a column written by Vada Arnold and titled "It Has Been"

When Texas was still a part of Spanish America and most of the seventeen young states were poorly settled journalism had its birth at Nacogdoches, Texas.

A small two-column sheet was printed in 1813, the paper was called "Graceta De Texas." The next year another newspaper came to Nacogdoches call "El Mejicano". The owner and editor of the paper was Jose Alvarez de Toledo. Both of these papers were short lived.

Soon Texas boasted of fifty newspapers in the new state. Among these papers were "The Lone Star" published at El Paso by S. N. Newman in the early 1800's. When Texas was a Republic Galveston News was founded and has been in business since April 11, 1842. During the critical years of the Civil War the paper rode through many difficulties. The followed him and copied his press. He was not a man to be beaten and his association and another press at Galveston, where he continued to "harass" the enemy and to enlist soldiers in the north.

Samuel Houston established "The Galveston News" on April 11, 1842, when the flag of the Texas Republic was flying.

During the early newspaper days there was no violence, it was no thing for an angry reader. The newspaper man in the days far from a bed of roses. Many word fights took place between editors of rival papers causing personal hatred and feuds between editors who had never seen each other. Editors were horse whipped, launched in the nose and wounded by gunfire. There were other vocations by which these early day editors could have secured a better living and vocations that were not nearly so hazardous. But hundreds of hard hitting newspaper men chose to live on a shoestring, money wise, in order to purchase the one thing that was a very live-liver's Tak-

The First to the Eighth grade pupils and teachers went to Dublin last Friday to ride the Goober Special train from Dublin to De Leon. Around 130 from Carbon, including teachers, parents and pupils, rode the train. They carried lunch and reported an enjoyable day. They also viewed the museum in De Leon.

non, it was a small sheet, the paper was so small it was hardly readable.

There was "The True Blue" a small manuscript paper published in 1842 by Texans in a Mexican prison.

When Santa Anna's forces pushed into Texas and started invasions, the crisis brought forth one of the Lone Star States most courageous and famous journals "The Telegraph and Texas Register". The paper was published by Gail Borden who later became very wealthy and had wide recognition in the milk business. But during 1835 the "invading hordes from Mexico" consumed his mind. The paper was only a year old when the massacre at the Alamo Mission at San Antonio occurred.

Mr. Borden reported the disaster in The Telegraph and Texas Register and his column was picked up by other editors throughout the States.

As a banner headline Borden used the famous historical words "Remember The Alamo".

As the Mexican Army advanced to Borden's printing shop he moved his plant to Harrisburg, Texas. Santa Anna and most anything else was offered for subscriptions, advertising and stationery.

Old West editors seemed to enjoy their position in the community even if they did have to keep iron bars, ax handles and a couple of old horse pistols handy for protection.

Machinery was scarce and hard to manipulate. All type was set by hand. Ink was cheap and so black that it stuck to the hands of workers.

Women played an important role in early day print shops. Setting type was easier for women typesetters, the type was small and women were adept at handling the clumsy handed men.

Mr. Borden stood at their work hour after hour women stood before high type cases, working long uncomfortably hours to get a paper ready to run.

An ad was run in an early newspaper that read "Wanted women Typesetters between the age of 10 and 15 years. Excellent pay. $15 per month." continued on last page.
