Mountain Echoes

By Barbara Kingsbery

We had nice rains in our area during the last weekend. Pastures and fields are really looking fine. Some farmers report rust in their wheat, but the oats fields are thriving with the moisture.

We consider all our customers important at the NEWS office, but we had one who had a most impressive title. Jack Douglas, Managing Editor of the Fort Worth Star Telegram, visited with us Monday afternoon. He had been in Brownwood for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce meeting and just came over here to see our little town. Santa Anna was featured on the San Angelo Standard Times Monday and Mr. Douglas had read the picture story with interest.

There is no lack of excitement in the Buffalo Community these days... or at least around the William Brown place. One day last week Mr. Brown ran over and killed a large coyote on the road near their home. Then a few mornings later upon investigating a commotion at the chicken house, he found a young bobcat asleep under the chicken roost.

Joe Riley, local poet laureate, won and lost a set of golf clubs without knowing it. It seems Joe's proxy ticket at a district Lions Club meeting won the matched set, and before Joe ever saw his prize the local Lions "voted" to give them to Jake McCreary. Fortunately Joe is not a golfer or the loss might be hard to take. We were told that years ago Joe played golf, scoring 118. The next day he played another round and scored 150. With that little improvement he decided to quit the game.

Mrs. Alfred Cullins was visiting Mrs. John Bray Monday and rescued a large white rabbit that was being chased down the street by a dog. She located the owners Tuesday—the big tame rabbit belongs to Let and Cleta Pollock.

Walker and Bonnie Taum of Winters were in town Tuesday tending to business and visiting his mother, Mrs. Lee Tatum. Their daughter, Babs, a Senior at Winters High School, was named to the Winters "Who's Who" this week for her outstanding basketball playing ability. Babs has been chosen to play in the North-South game this summer during the coaches clinic.

This is National Library Week. Don't forget that many new books are available at our City Library, on loan from the Brownwood Public Library. Memberships to the Library cost $1.00 a year, which entitles you to almost unlimited reading. Student or summer memberships are only a quarter—so take advantage of this bargain, and have something to combat the summer re-runs on TV. The Library is open each Wednesday from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m.

J. T. Avants, injured last week from an electrical shock while working at Brownwood, is getting along well and out of the hospital. He will be recuperating at home for a while, according to his wife.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

LENDING YOUR CAR:

It is common courtesy, when you lend your car to a friend, to fill it up first with gas. But what about checking the brakes or inspecting the tires? If the car is defective and there is an accident, are you legally liable for the consequences?

You may be indeed. Take this case:

A man allowed the woman next door — an inexperienced driver — to borrow his car. Although he knew it had a "grubby" clutch, he didn't tell her so. During the ride she lost control of the car, crashed into a tree, and suffered painful injuries.

She later sued him for damages, and the court decided he must pay for his negligence. The judge said that, under the circumstances, this was the kind of accident he could reasonably have foreseen and prevented.

What if there is an injury not to the borrower but to some third party whom you don't even know? Even then, you might incur liability.

Thus, a man who loaned a car with faulty brakes, without giving fair warning to the borrower, was held reasonably responsible for the resulting death of a schoolboy. The fatal accident occurred when, at a crucial moment, the brakes gave way.

That does not mean you have to make a through examination of your car before lending it, to discover defects you would not ordinarily know about. Accordingly, a car owner was held not to blame when the steering gear — seemingly all right until then — suddenly jammed while a friend was using the car.

Nor must you warn a borrower about things he can and should see for himself. A man who loaned a car with a dirty windshield was held not responsible for a later collision. The court said he had a right to assume that the borrower would have enough sense to clean the windshield on his own.

All the law demands is that you show, along with your generosity in lending the car, a decent concern for the safety of other people. As one court said:

"When a person lends, he ought to confer a benefit and not do a mischief."

Bentsen-Rio Grande To Get Nature Trails

A $5,000 interagency contract has been negotiated between the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and the Texas Department of Corrections for the construction of one-and-a-half miles of nature trails and selective clearing in Bentsen - Rio Grande Valley State Park. The clearing will be limited to areas slated for development. A new park residence, two restrooms with shelters, 60 to 80 trailer sites, 15 to 20 picnic sites, and playground equipment are to be built in the park.

Facilities at Bentsen - Rio Grande Valley State Park were virtually wiped out by Hurricane Buelah in 1967.

know how their public libraries stack up. Texans support their public libraries to the tune of $1.24 per capita per year; in California the figure is $3.89; in Massachusetts it's $4.61.

You might be interested to know that the Santa Anna Public Library budget amounted to 5c per capita. Shamefully below the state average.

National Library Week in Texas has set its purpose to call attention to the value of libraries in a free society, to note the essential need for books, magazines and other readily available information in a world where the sum total of all human knowledge now doubles every seven years.

Public libraries cannot begin to meet the demands of this technological revolution unless it gets adequate support from the community it serves. We are fortunate to have a library in our small city, and everyone in the community should support it by becoming a member and using the fine facilities that are available.

You are urged to give the Santa Anna Public Library your support during this special week and all year long.

29 Years Ago In The News

Items from the September 6, 1940 issue of the NEWS:

The War Department at Washington has decided definitely to establish a camp near Brownwood for training the 36th Division of the National Guard. This move was predicted Tuesday, although at that time it was reported Sweetwater was also under consideration.

Originally this development had been planned for Fort Clark but later the department decided the water supply there would be inadequate for such a large number of men. More than 18,000 men will be trained at the post.

The new camp will be located just south of Brownwood and the Government is now acquiring the necessary land for it. It is to be a tent camp, and other facilities including hospital, mess halls, administration buildings and others will be erected to complete it.

The 36th Division's normal camp site at Palacios, on the Gulf coast, is not adaptable to the field training, and presumably will be used for training of anti-aircraft artillery.

Dow McBride, 1940 graduate of Howard Payne, will direct athletic activities at Buffalo High School in Coleman Co.

"I would like to be back in Santa Anna next year to see the fastest and best rodeo I have ever had the pleasure to witness," says G. O. Markins, District sales agent of the Gulf Oil Corporation. "I think the success of this rodeo is a tribute to the business men of Santa Anna, and that they should be commended for their civic-minded cooperation in putting Santa Anna on the map. They are certainly a live bunch of men, and deserve a big success in their respective fields."

"Santa Anna will have a better football this year," is the view of Coach McDonald. It was a light-weight team the local school had last year. Some of them have taken on enough avoirdupois to put the team in the weight class with other large schools of the district.

SPORTS AFIELD

Compared to bird dogs, retrievers or spaniels, beagles—the most popular rabbit dogs in this country—require a little training—provided they have been started right.

Use the same whistle or call at each feeding time so that the dogs will become familiar with it and associate it with reward. On the first trip afield the puppy will probably trail along close to you for he doesn't know what it's all about. Take him a reasonable distance into the cover. Stop in a spot where the dog cannot see you for any considerable distance. Stand still for a few minutes and allow the puppy to investigate things about him. When you are sure he cannot see you, quickly shift your position to a spot 50 or 60 feet away and again remain still and quiet. The puppy will come back to where he left you, and when he finds you gone he will scurry about trying to locate you. Let him get all excited with that lost feeling. Then give the familiar call that you have been giving him at feeding time and watch him scramble his way to you.

It is essential that your young dog learn to obey certain simple commands. He must learn his name. Teach him this by using it whenever you speak to him. He should be taught to instantly obey the command, "Come here." Response to this command and the command "Whoa!" constitutes almost all the yard breaking a beagle needs. If you want to retrieve, start teaching him this while he is still a puppy and he'll take to it in a playful mood. And, of course, if your dog heels at command, this will make things easier when taking him through traffic or to and from the hunting grounds.

In starting your puppy, do not rush him too much. If he comes across a rabbit all the better, but his first lessons should be concerned with getting acquainted with the brush and learning how to handle himself in it. If he jumps a rabbit, leave him completely alone. What he needs to learn just now is what the game is all about. He'll catch on soon enough. If his first attempts to trail are unsuccessful, you may help him—provided you know where the rabbit went and where the correct line is.

Using a liberated rabbit is a shortcut to starting your puppy. If you are hard put to find sufficient game in your hunting country, then using liberated rabbits will pay off training dividends worth far more than the cost of the rabbits. According to Henry P. Davis, Dogs Editor of Sports Afield Magazine, working one or two puppies with an older hound is another good starting method. On the first few trips out, keep the youngsters near you

Accent On Health

It's a sad thing to disillusion those who cherish the myth of their "immunity" to poison ivy or oak or sumac, but the fact remains that a season of prevalence of these toxic plants is fast approaching, and "forewarned is forearmed."

Botanical scientists say it is quite doubtful that anyone is absolutely immune to the poisonous substance of the plants mentioned above. More and more authorities agree that susceptibility is a mere matter of degree, varying with the condition of the individual, the condition of the plant and the circumstances of exposure.

According to the Texas State Department of Health, Texas has its fair share of the 100-plus plants and plant products known to be capable of causing sometimes severe skin irritations. Among them are the parsnip, lady-slipper, cultivated primrose (especially when in flower), lily bulbs and stalks, stinging nettle and vanilla beans.

But by far the most common cause of plant dermatiand let the old dog do the hunting. Then when he starts after a rabbit, let the youngster enter the fray. If they want to hunt with the old dog, let them go. What you particularly want is to have the youngsters see and chase game as soon as possible.

When the spirit of hunting is firmly imbedded in him, and it exists in every well-bred young beagle, then it is time enough to take steps to correct his faults and errors.

tis in Texas and elsewhere in the United States is poison ivy—known to botanists by the tongue-twisting name of Rhus toxicodendron. A cousin—poison sumac, by name—is common to the swampy regions of eastern Texas, and can sometimes produce severe reactions.

For all practical purposes, poison ivy and poison oak are the same thing. Poison oak is simply any poison ivy that grows as a bush rather than a vine.

Poison ivy is an unusually inconsistent species of plant. Besides growing as a bush and as a vine, the size of its berries and the outline of its leaves often vary widely. Its leaves are characteristically egg-shaped and pointed, but the edges may be smooth and unbroken or saw-toothed.

Moreover, these variations might occur on a single plant, or the leaves on an entire plant may be similar.

But in one matter, poison ivy is almost invariably consistent—its leaves practically always grow in clusters of three.

Thus, ivy poisoning is best prevented by learning to recognize the plant and avoiding it. And of course, it is always prudent to wear protective clothing such as leggings and gloves when going into areas where poison plants are known to flourish.

24th GMO School To Start This Fall

Many still call him game warden, but the title doesn't do him justice.

A couple of years back, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department changed his title to game management officer in order to match his duties, which range from enforcement of the Texas Water Safety Act to conducting wildlife censuses.

This multiplicity of jobs, activities and special qualities require a distinct type of person. The game management officer today must have a knowledge of wildlife biology, public speaking, game laws and have a working knowledge of hunting, fishing, hiking, camping and outdoor cookery just to answer questions of school children and scouts.

Even though the hours are often long and the duties hard, four out of five of all those who have completed the GMO training schools since 1961 are still with the Department.

Why do they stay? Some will tell you they prefer the out-of-doors to an eight to five office routine or that their duties are seldom routine or dull. But most won't try to put it into words and will simply say, "I like it."

The face of the warden or GMO has changed over the years. At first, he was a lawman charged with stopping out-of-season hunting and enforcement of game bag limits.

Today, the GMO spends about one-third of his time in traditional law enforcement activities and makes a good number of game law cases. He also spends approximately one-third of his time talking to landowners, civic groups, sportsmen clubs or school children concerning conservation matters and another third involved with some phase of the Department wildlife management programs.

Department law enforcement personnel today believe that a better understanding of the reasons behind game laws and why they are necessary prevents more violations than would doubling the number of GMO's in the State. Department law enforcement officials say the effectiveness of a GMO cannot always be measured in the number of cases he makes.

In order to bring the force up to authorized strength, the Department will accept applications for the 24th Game Management Officer Training School until 5 p.m. May 22. The school will be held at Texas A & M University beginning in September with graduation scheduled for next January.

Applicants should be between 21 and 40 years of age; be in good physical condition, have a high school education and stand at least five-foot, eight inches in stocking feet.

Weight must be proportional to height, and must have not less than 20/40 vision in each eye separately without corrective lenses of any kind including contact lenses and not less than 20/40 acuity binocularly without correction. Vision must be correctable to not less than 20/20 acuity binocularly.

Applicants should be of good moral character and be willing to accept assignment anywhere in the State of Texas.

Outdoors in Texas

A new agricultural industry has been started in East Texas among the tall pines. This time it is not timber cutting, but catfish production.

For the last several years attempts have been made to produce "cultured catfish" but usually they were on the part of an individual with insufficient capital, or some landowner who just wanted to experiment. Now it is a different story.

More than 150 East Texas farmers have entered into a cooperative program which will supplement cotton, grain and rice income. They have formed the Tri-County Catfish Co-op, for Jasper, Tyler and Newton counties. They have already prepared a feasibility study. Through the Deep East Texas Development Assn., they are asking for federal assistance in getting a successful program underway.

Recently one of the original groups harvested more than 5000 catfish from a lake 50-feet wide and 900-feet long. Those that weighed more than one and one-fourth pounds were marketed and the smaller fish distributed to other lakes. There are 21 lakes already in the Stringer farm near Kirbyville.

These catfish sell for around 60 cents per pound liveweight, which puts them on a more profitable basis than poultry. Men behind the East Texas movement feel they now have a project that will surpass the gigantic East Texas broiler industry.

Planting stock is produced at around 5 cents each for fingerling size. Every care is taken to produce quality channel cats. Any runts or mud cats are tossed aside.

Through the cooperative effort a processing plant will be built to provide for the proper care of the fish before reaching the market. This also will make it possible for ready markets to be established in larger metropolitan centers. These men also are working with other government agencies, such as the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and the Farmer's Cooperative Service of Washington.

Another effort is made to produce a fish that will not have the usual "fishy" smell. This the housewives will greatly appreciate.

So, the famous catfish and hush puppy dinners soon may become as popular as fried chicken or broilers, thanks to the men in this cooperative East Texas movement. And who knows, some of the ponds may be opened to pole and line fishermen, who can catch their own fish as they desire.

As the program develops in East Texas, like the broiler industry, it probably will spread to other parts of the state. Senator Charles Wilson of Lufkin is president of the East Texas Economic Development District, which is promoting the program.

Joe Riley, a member of the Santa Anna Lions Club, was one of the lucky ticket holders at the District 2-1-A meeting in San Angelo recently. He won a set of monogrammed golf clubs, valued at $70. The first place prize, a color TV set, was won by a member of the Norton Lions Club, and third place prize, a deer rifle, was won by a San Angelo member.

The drawing was held during the session of the District Governor's board.

For years, Internal Revenue Service has told taxpayers — "File Early." The good tax folks have done a pretty good job of convincing taxpayers who have refunds coming to file early; however, taxpayers who owe money often wait until April 15 to file. IRS's Tax Education Program has also worked reasonably well in getting taxpayers to check over their returns before mailing them; and finally, there's pretty good evidence that taxpayers in North Texas do a better job of signing their returns than any other group throughout the nation. Most of us try to follow IRS's instructions. Every year, there are a few people who don't believe in "doing today what you could put off until tomorrow." These people maintain their annual membership in "The 11:59 p.m. April 15 club." It doesn't matter whether they owe the government or whether the government owes them.

Last week our 4-H judging team practiced at Santa Anna. The 4-H'ers really enjoyed the day and all of us appreciated the hospitality extended to us by Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bruce. Our 4-H Horse Club leaders and coaches are doing a good job working with the judging team. I took the Sr.'s reasons last week and Wilburn heard the Jr.'s. The competition is real keen for a place of the team. Those that make the team will travel to Rankin or May 3 for the District Quarter Horse Judging Contest.

97 Dove Bands Found By Hunters

Of the 97 mourning dove bands recovered between December 1968 and February 1969 from birds banded in Texas, 11 were sent back from out-of-state.

Ted Clark, head of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's statewide mourning dove research project, says three of the 11 birds recovered out-of-state were returned from Mexico. Two of these birds, one banded in Archer County and the other in Shackelford County, were recovered in the State of Michoacan, located in southwest Mexico. The third, banded in Brewster County, was recovered near Juárez.

Bands were also recovered in New Mexico, Louisiana, Mississippi and Kansas. Of the 97 birds recovered, 48 were shot in the same county in which they were banded.

Mrs. Bertha Sanders Sees Again After 52 Years

Mrs. Bertha Sanders of Bangs, virtually blind for 52 of her 65 years, has been the recipient of a plastic cornea so she can see clearly through her right eye, although she still has little or no sight through her left.

A Houston eye specialists has developed a technique to provide the plastic cornea to Mrs. Sanders, the first time this particular transplant technique has been used as far as the physician knows.

Mrs. Sanders cannot remember when she could see normally. She has had eye trouble since she was eight months old.

Several times in her childhood she was taken to places for treatment and she remembers being able to see "pretty good" until she was 13.

Despite her handicap, she remained in school until she was 21, learning mostly by having lessons read to her, but occasionally being able to see large block letters on the blackboard. Later she attended the state school for the blind.

Following her graduation, she stayed in Austin where in 1932 she met and married J. L. (Jesse) Sanders, also blind, who lost his sight in an industrial accident when he was 17.

In adult life Mrs. Sanders' eye problem was complicated with a disease called pemphigus, where the lining inside the eye lid and the transparent covering dried out. In this case the eyelid becomes glued to the eyeball and remains frozen so that the eyes cannot close. This causes the cornea to cloud and eventually the sight is lost.

"She has lived in a smoky world, dimly seeing objects and color," her physician said.

For those with this disease, cornea transplants are out of the question because of the poor condition of the lining of the inner eye, but since the discovery of plastic corneas, some have been helped by grafting skin from the inside of the mouth or nose to form a new lining for the eye.

The graft failed in Mrs. Sanders' case, failing to produce enough healthy tissue to cushion the plastic cornea.

Finally her physician simply cleaned out the entire lining of the eye and implanted the plastic cornea during a newly developed surgical adhesive to glue it in. He then sewed the eyelid over the implant, cutting a small "peep hole" in the lid so Mrs. Sanders could see.

She has to use a blinder or eye patch when she sleeps or rests, since she cannot close the eye.

"I'm looking forward to getting my first look at my three - month old grandson," she said. He is the child of her son, Rodney Sanders of Fort Worth. "Up to now he has just been a fuzzy blur," she added.

Her many friends in Bangs are elated with the news that she can see again, and are looking forward to her return home.

She has been in and out of the hospital for about two years in an effort to receive the plastic implant. During all her trips and the trials she has been through, Mrs. Sanders has kept her cheerful disposition, and was always filled with hope.

Chamber of Commerce
REPORT

By BILLIE GUTHRIE
Secretary-Manager

It is with extreme pleasure, and very little knowledge of the proceedings of the Community Chamber of Commerce, that I accepted the position as your Secretary - Manager of the Community Chamber of Commerce. With your assistance I shall learn and strive to make our community a place of enjoyment to live; I cannot say a better place in which to live because it already is a good place to live.

I welcome any and all suggestions and criticisms. Without these we do not know your desires, so please feel free to call on me at any time.

From time to time I shall be corresponding with you through the means of our local Newspaper, and at this time I shall bring you up to date as to the happenings of last week.

Regarding the application of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company to discontinue its agency station at Santa Anna, Texas, Docket No. 2056 - RO, which hearing was held on April 1, 1969 and tentatively approved. With the assistance 1, 1969 and tentatively approved. With the assistance of Mayor Thomas Wristen we were able to have this action postponed until June 3, 1969. If you have any objections to this depot closing please notify me at once.

Dues were paid to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The primary objectives of this organization are to make the "Voice of West Texas Business" more effectively heard in Austin and Washington during these critical times, improve the image of West Texas in and out-of-state and bring new dollars to our goals.

The annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Jess Howard and Miss Wanda Duggins visited with the Howards Thursday. On Friday Mr. Leonard Davis visited with them.

Over the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Howard Jr. of Midkiff and Elaine, Mrs. Joe Morrow, Jay Paul of Paluxy. Mr. Tom Howard and children from Zephyr visited on Saturday along with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Henderson, Dana, and Charlotte of Leveland and Mr. and Mrs. Will Howard of Bangs.

Americans Eating Much More Fish

Men, women, and children in the United States ate an average of 11.1 pounds of commercial seafood each during 1968, according to figures from the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries.

The 1968 figure marks the first time per capita consumption of seafood topped 11 pounds since 1955, but it is still short of the 1927 record when Americans ate an average of 12.2 pounds of fish each.

"The rise in per capita consumption of seafood was attributed in part to a stepped-up effort by industry, participating states, and the federal government to inform consumers of the many advantages of including more seafood in their diets," says Bill Schwartz, seafood marketing specialist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

In all, U. S. civilian consumption of edible fishery products in 1968 totaled more than two billion pounds, a 4.5 per cent increase from the previous year.

"The demand for fishery products will likely continue strong in the first quarter of 1969, especially for shell fish," according to the Bureau.

"Most species of shell fish are selling at or near record prices."

Identification Required To Purchase Ammo

Hunters and sportsmen need only to identify themselves to be able to purchase ammo under the 1968 Federal gun control law, B. Frank White, Southwest Regional Commissioner of Internal Revenue, said today.

There are no forms to fill out, but a person must show some identification such as a driver's license to indicate he meets the age requirements set forth in the gun law.

The 1968 Gun Control Act limits the sale of ammunition for pistols, revolvers and other handguns to persons 21 years of age and over. Ammunition for rifles and shotguns may be purchased by persons 18 years of age and over.

White said that unlike the restrictions on the sale of firearms, a person can buy ammunition outside his home state. Thus, a hunter on a trip or a sportsman attending a shooting match will have no problem obtaining ammunition.

Dealers are required to keep records of ammunition sales including the name and address of the purchaser.

White said the Federal gun legislation enacted in 1963 was designed to help law enforcement officials at all levels of government fight crime. The legislation was not intended to place unnecessary restrictions on hunters, sportsmen or citizens using firearms for any lawful purposes.

Administration of Federal gun laws is the responsibility of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of IRS.

Noxious Vegetation Amendment Sought

State Rep. Leroy J. Weiting, Portland, this week introduced an amendment to the Noxious Vegetation Act of 1967 which will permit the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to begin water hyacinth control on such rivers as the Nueces, Atascosa and Frio in South Texas.

Under the original act, authored by Rep. Weiting in 1967, the Department was authorized to participate in a Federal - State program with the U. S. Corps of Engineers supplying 70 percent of the funds, and 30 percent supplied by the State of Texas.

Passed at a time when Federal funds appeared to be available, the act was contingent upon the 70 percent of funds supplied by the U. S. Corps of Engineers. The original act also made State funds available only until the ending of the fiscal year, Aug. 31, 1969.

Rep. Weiting's amendment would also lift the Aug. 31, 1969, cutoff date of the original law, and in effect would authorize the Department to go ahead with water hyacinth control without Federal funds.
