

Wagon Buying TIME

Many farmers have determined to buy a new wagon this fall; they need it, and nothing is so important about a farm as a wagon. It is therefore economy to buy a good one.

IT IS THE CHEAPEST

I handle only the most reliable makes, the LEUDINGHAUS and the STUDEBAKER. For the cash I am offering these famous wagons at the following prices:

- 2 3-4 Wagon either make, $82.50
- 3 inch Wagon either make, $85.00
- 3 1-4 Wagon either make, $87.50

The celebrated John Deere Surries, Traps, Ranch and Top Buggies cheaper than you ever bought them before. Before you buy either a wagon or a buggy come see what I can offer you.

3000 ACRE FIELD BROOM CORN

LAST YEAR HALF THIS ACREAGE PAID OWNER $25,000.

A. J. Lundergreen, known as the Panhandle Broom Corn King, was interviewed recently as to his large growing broom corn crop.

Near Wildorado, Mr. Lundergreen and W. I. McAlester of Chicago incorporated under the firm name of Amarillo Broom Corn Company, have three thousand acres of broom corn growing in one field.

The rains around Wildorado have come just right and Mr. Lundergreen says the crop is immense. Every indication points to a bumper crop from this large field. They will begin harvesting Sept. 15th. Four new broom corn harvesters pulled by traction engines will be used. This plan of harvesting broom corn is new on the plains. The old plan of hand pulling being the method used heretofore here as elsewhere. Mr. Lundergreen informs us that in all the work on this immense farm this year only one team of horses has been used. They plowed and did all other work by the use of engines instead of horse power.

"We have just completed" said Mr. Lundergreen, "perhaps the largest broom corn storage barn in the state, it measures 100 feet long, 80 feet wide and 25 feet high. While it has great capacity, we will need it and more too to care for our big crop."

In addition to the big field just described, Mr. Lundergreen individually has in a crop of 200 acres this year on his place three miles north-east of Amarillo. He says he already has had a force of men pulling corn for a week past on his early crop, but that his late crop will suffer if it does not rain soon.

Last year Mr. Lundergreen raised 1500 acres of broom corn, which sold for over twenty-five thousand dollars.

It is his opinion that year in and year out, there is no better or surer crop for the Panhandle farmer than broom corn. There is no better broom corn country in the world, said he, than we have right here. Mr. Lundergreen's own big acreage proves him sincere in his statements and may we not also add probably correct in his estimation of it as a money crop for our farmers.

It is the intention of Mr. Lundergreen and Mr. Alester to put in an extensive broom corn factory in Amarillo this fall. Their plans are for a factory to make 200 dozen brooms a day from the start.

Men like A. J. Lundergreen help develop a country. We need more factories to consume our products and a broom factory is certainly an institution that should receive the support and encouragement of our citizens.

Howard-Brown.

Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. B. Coleman. Mrs. Mamie Brown and Mr. John Howard of Midland were married by Father O'Grady of Sweetwater. Mrs. T. J. Ratliff acted as matron of honor and Mr. D'Armond as best man, the ceremony being performed according to the ritual of the Catholic church. This was a very quiet but altogether charming affair. The friends present were, Mr. and Mrs. Sandusky, Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Ratliff, Bob and R. L. Slaughter of Soash, and Mr. D'Armond. Mr. Brown's law partner of Midland. After the ceremony six o'clock dinner was served by Mr. and Mrs. Coleman. The bride and groom left on the westbound train for an extended tour through California. They will make their home in Midland upon their return. The Record offers sincere congratulations.

Come See Me.

If you want to sell or trade your farm, ranch or city property, and will list it with me, I will do my best to find a buyer. I would like to list a few good farms and ranches at once as I intend to spend some time in the east and north, and I believe I can interest some home-seekers in this country. Write or see me for listing blanks. Don't overestimate your property, but give the facts. If it is heavily encumbered I cannot sell it. Office with Judge Shepherd. E. B. GAMEL, Colorado, Texas.

We would certainly like to show you our big line of goods even if we do not sell you.—H. L. Hutchinson Furniture and Undertaking Co. 9-20c

TARIFF MAKES LIVING HIGH FOR AMERICAN PEOPLE

There are about twenty-two million households in the United States. That not one of them escapes the greed of the tariff-protected manufacturer will be very plainly seen by comparing export and domestic prices on articles of common use in the home.

Nearly everybody is familiar with the discrimination that has been practiced by the "Watch Trust" against the American consumer, resulting in some merchants buying Elgin, Waltham and other American watches cheaper in Europe than the trust sold them here and shipping them back to this country. But clocks are too bulky to make this practice profitable, and the American is helpless.

The American family meets tariff discrimination at every turn. To get breakfast they use a kitchen coffee mill which is offered for export at ninety cents, but to the American purchaser not under $1.13—one-fourth added to the price—while the tariff permits the American manufacturer to do business without competition from abroad.

The oil heater on which the workingman's family might make a hasty cup of coffee and boil the eggs for breakfast—if they could afford eggs—is sold for export at 32.20 but for the "protected" American purchaser the price of 40 per cent higher, or $2.08.

A 2-quart aluminum coffee pot, on which there is protection of 45 per cent, is sold in this country for $1.50, which is 44 per cent more than the American manufacturer asks for it for export to any place not under protection's wing.

On Monday morning the American mother puts the wash boiler on the tariff-taxed cook stove. A Peekskill N. Y. manufacturer quoted the tariff reform committee's "export agent" $15 as the foreign price for the stove he charged $20 for in this country because the government has decreed a tax of 45 per cent on cook stoves.

If the American mother wishes to let her baby sleep in the baby carriage in the yard she meets the tariff tax again. For Newfoundland a leading American manufacturer quoted $9.50 for his baby carriages, but for all those who enjoy the blessings of "protection" the wholesale price is $12.67, or one-third more. By a duty of 45 per cent the American baby is often "protected" out of having any carriage at all. For the poor the protective tariff has made a go-cart a luxury.

Tuesday is ironing day, which the kind hearted protectionists have tried to make happier for the house mother by compelling her to pay nearly a third more for her flat irons, as is proven by the export prices quoted by Philadelphia manufacturers. The heavier the iron the greater the weight of protection, as it is fixed at four-fifths of a cent per pound. The set of sad irons these honest Quaker City people offer for export at ninety-three cents they will sell to the "protected" Americans for $1.23.

The meat chopper costs just double the export price, the saw and vegetable cutter and the potato shredder cost two-fifths more than they would sell for across the line in Canada, and the pots and pans of aluminum come 50 per cent dearer. It is chiefly due to that 45 per cent duty.

Even the vanilla flavoring extract for the cornstarch pudding costs the American family a third more than for export to the foreign family.

The children's clothes have to be made, and the domestic sewing machine is handy. It would be just as handy, however, if the American family could get it for the export price, $18.62 instead of the $30 or more they have to pay. The $11.38 extra charged his wife for this sewing machine is a week's wages for many millions of American workmen.

ANOTHER SLICE FROM NOTED RANCH

In connection with the big ranch deal made recently, the Plainview News correctly states a bit of Panhandle history:

"With the sale of the famous herd of XIT black poll cattle, consisting of 27,000 head, and the leasing of 6000 acres of land by J. M. Shelton of Shamrock, D. C. and S. L. Trigg of Panhandle and R. B. Masterson of Amarillo, another step has been taken toward the dissolution of the largest ranch in the world.

The XIT ranch at one time consisted of 3,600,000 acres, owned by the Capitol Freehold Land and Investment Company, better known as the Capitol Syndicate.

About two years ago 200,000 acres were sold to the Matador Land and Cattle Company, and on different occasions other large blocks have been sold. Some of the famous ranch has been sold in small tracts, until more than half of it has been sold or leased.

The State of Texas gave this large area to the Syndicate in 1885 for building the magnificent state capitol at Austin. John V. and Charles B. Farwell, Chicago merchants, were at the head of the syndicate. Foreign capital is also interested in the ranch. It is stated that litigation between the parties interested in the syndicate is largely the cause of the steps to dispose of the ranch.

Some idea of the great era of this ranch can be gained when it is compared with Rhode Island. The XIT ranch is approximately four and a half times as large as the entire state of Rhode Island. It is 5,625 square miles.

The land is located in Dallam, Hartley, Oldham, Deaf Smith and Parmer counties. If it were in a square, it would extend 75 miles each way.

For many years the ranch has had the finest herd of cattle in Texas. The 27,000 head of black polls sold to Masterson and Trigg, composed the finest bred large herd in the Southwest. The cattle and lease on the land involved $1,100,000, and is the largest deal consummated in the Panhandle in the past year."

SNEED KILLS THE SECOND BOYCE

Meets Boyce on Amarillo Street Last Saturday Afternoon and Fires 3 Shots from Shotgun.

Another chapter was added to the story of love and crime which began one year ago at Amarillo between the Sneed and Boyce families. A few days ago the daily papers contained a story to the effect that Beal Sneed and his wife had become reconciled and had begun life over again in their old home at Georgetown, where they once lived happily before the cowering of the evil days for both. Hardly had this story been circulated when the news was flashed over the country last Saturday afternoon, that Sneed had shot and killed Al Boyce Jr. on the streets there that afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Boyce had but recently returned to Texas and had that day returned to Amarillo from Plainview, where he had spent several days on business, while the presence of Beal Sneed in that vicinity was not known to even his most intimate friends. The tragedy fell upon the people of Amarillo like a bolt from the blue. Young Boyce had just returned home, and after spending a few hours with his widowed mother in her home, started down to the business portion of town. About half way between the Boyce home and the business part of town, stands the Polk street Methodist church. When Boyce reached a position just in front of the church he met the pastor of the church, Rev. Robinson, to whom he spoke and passed on his way. Hardly had he gone ten steps when a man on the opposite side of the street opened fire on him with a shotgun. At the first shot Boyce fell to his knees, when the man with the gun advanced to the middle of the street and fired two more shots at the fallen man.

Sneed, after shooting three times, started down the street toward the court house, reloading his gun as he went and speaking to several acquaintances as he went. People who saw Sneed at this time failed to recognize him on account of a heavy growth of beard on his face and from the fact that he was clad in a dirty shirt, overalls and wore an old derby hat.

After giving himself up to the officers of the law Sneed waived all preliminary hearing and went to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury which convened Monday morning. He also refused to make any statement in regard to the killing, but wired several relatives apprising them of what had happened and summoning his lawyers from Ft. Worth.

An added excitement incident to the tragedy grew out of the fact that a day or two before the killing, two strange men had rented a vacant cottage just in front of the Methodist church and had moved an old bed, mattress and chair into it the night before the killing and there was evidence of the house being occupied on that night. Shades had been put over the windows, while in the screen covering the window which looked out upon the street on which the killing occurred, a hole had been made about the size of the muzzle of a shotgun, behind which window the bed had been drawn, so that one might lie on the bed and put the gun through the hole—and command the whole street in front of the cottage.

A week before the tragedy, a stranger had rented a room less than one block from the above cottage, but further away from the scene of the killing, and not commanding so wide a view of Polk street at a point where the tragedy occurred and leading to the Boyce home. Although the rent was paid in advance for this room to T. E. McKibben, the occupant, it was suddenly vacated and the cottage at 803 Polk street occupied, the occupancy of the latter coming in close proximity to the vacation of the former. Families living on either side of the cottage leased by the mysterious party complained to the owner of the property that the new occupant or occupants behaved suspiciously and asked that an investigation be made. The investigation was delayed and the cottage is now vacant, except for its scant furniture, although it had been occupied less than three days.

It is known that during the days the cottage at 803 Polk street is believed to have been occupied by the stranger that Boyce passed several times on the opposite side of the street without being molested.

The grand jury is now at work on the case, but there is little expectation that more will be done than the return of an indictment. The second trial of Sneed for the killing of the older Boyce has been set for November 11th at Fort Worth.

Later, Sneed has been indicted for murder by the Potter county grand jury, and it is thought habeas corpus proceedings will be instituted this week for his release on bail.

The latest rumors in the case are to the effect that Sneed and his family had become reconciled and had lived together in Dallas for two months, and that the finding of letters to his wife from Al Boyce, which Sneed had photographed, was the dominant factor in his killing young Boyce, when he learned that Boyce had returned to Texas.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—George Percival Algernon Jones, vice president of the Metropolitan Oriental Rug company of New York, arrives at Cairo on a business trip.

CHAPTER II—Horace Ryannne arrives at the hotel in Cairo with a carefully guarded bundle.

CHAPTER III—Ryannne sells Jones the famous holy Yliordes rug which he admits having stolen from a pasha at Bagdad.

CHAPTER IV—Jones meets Major Callahan and later is introduced to Fortune Chedsoye by a woman to whom he had loaned 150 pounds at Monte Carlo some months previously, and who turns out to be Fortune's mother.

CHAPTER V—Jones takes Mrs. Chedsoye and Fortune to a polo game. Fortune returns to Jones the money borrowed by her mother. Mrs. Chedsoye appears to be engaged in some mysterious enterprise unknown to the daughter.

CHAPTER VI—Ryannne interests Jones in the United Romance and Adventure company, a concern which for a price will arrange any kind of an adventure to order.

CHAPTER VII—Mrs. Chedsoye, her brother, Major Callahan, Wallace and Ryannne, as the United Romance and Adventure company, plan a risky enterprise involving Jones. Ryannne makes known to Mrs. Chedsoye his intention to marry Fortune. Mrs. Chedsoye declares she will not permit it. Plans are laid to prevent Jones sailing for home.

CHAPTER VIII—Ryannne steals Jones' letters and cable dispatches. He writes agent in New York, in Jones' name, that he is renting house in New York to some friends. Ryannne, keeper of the holy carpet, is on Ryannne's trail.

CHAPTER IX—Ryannne promises Fortune that he will see that Jones comes to no harm as a result of his purchase of the rug.

CHAPTER X—Mahomed accuses Ryannne and demands the Yliordes rug. Ryannne tells him Jones has the rug and suggests the abduction of the New York merchant as a means of securing its return. The rug disappears from Jones' room.

CHAPTER XI—Fortune quarrels with her mother when the latter refuses to explain her mysterious actions. Fortune gets a message purporting to be from Ryannne asking her to meet him in a secluded place that evening. Jones receives a message asking him to meet Ryannne at the English-Bar the same evening.

She loitered before the porter's bureau till she saw him busily engaged in answering questions of some women tourists. Then, with a slight but friendly nod, she stepped into the bureau and stopped before the key-rack. She hung up her key, but took it down again, as if she had changed her mind. At least, this was the porter's impression as he bowed to her in the midst of the verbal bombardment. Fortune went up-stairs. Ten or fifteen minutes elapsed, when she returned, hung up the key, and walked briskly toward the side-entrance at the very moment George, in his fruitless search of her, pushed through the revolving doors in front. And all the time she was wondering how it was that her knees did not give under. It was terrible. She balanced between laughter and tears, hysterically.

She had gone scarcely a hundred yards when she was accosted by a tall Arab whom she indistinctly recollected having seen before; where, she could not definitely imagine. It was the ragged green turban that cleared away her puzzlement. The Arab was the supposed beggar over whom Percival (how easily she had fallen into the habit of calling him that!) had stumbled. He stood so tall and straight that she knew he wasn't going to beg; so naturally she stopped. Without a word, without even a look that expressed anything, he slipped a note into her hand, bowed with Oriental gravity, and stepped aside for her to proceed. She read the note hastily as she continued her way. Horace? Why should he wish to meet her that evening, at the southeast corner of the Shari'a Mahomoud-El-Falaki, a step from the British Consulate? And she mustn't come in a carriage nor tell any one where she was going? Why all such childish mystery? He could see her far more conveniently in the lounging-room of the hotel. She tore the note into scraps and fung them upon the air. She was afraid. She was almost certain why he wished to meet her where neither her mother's nor her uncle's eye would be within range. Should she meet him? Deeper than this, dared she? Why had she come to Cairo, when at Mentone she had known peace, such peace as destiny was generous enough to dole out to her? And now, out of this tolerable peace, a thousand hands were reaching to rend her heart, to wring it. She decided quickly. Since she had come this far, to go on to the end would add but little to her burden. Better to know all too soon than too late.

That the note had not been directed to her and that she was totally unfamiliar with Ryannne's handwriting, escaped her. She had too many other things upon her mind to see all things clearly, especially such trifles. She finished her walk, returning by the way she had gone, gave the key to the lift-boy, and in her room dropped down upon the bed, dried-eyes and weary. The most eventful day she had ever known.

the window and watched, and at length fell into a frame of mind that was irritable, irascible and self-condemnatory. And when he found that his precious Yliordes was gone, his condition was the essence of all disagreeable emotions. It was beyond him how any one could have stolen it. He never failed to lock his door and leave the key with the porter. And surely, only a man with wings could have gained entrance by the window. Being a thorough business man among other accomplishments, he reported his loss at once to the management; and the management set about the matter with celerity. At half after seven every maid and servant in the hotel had been questioned and examined, without the least noticeable result. The rug was nowhere to be found. George felt the loss keenly. He was not so rich that he could afford to lose both the rug and the thousand pounds he had paid for it. His first thought had been of Ryannne; but it was proved that Ryannne had not been in the hotel since morning; at least, no one had seen him.

George gloomed about. A beastly day, all told; everything had gone wrong, and all because he had overslept. At dinner something was wrong with the soup; the fish was greasy; the roast was dry and stringy; the wine, full of pieces of cork. Out into the lounging-room again; and then the porter hurried over to him with a note from Ryannne. It stated briefly that it was vitally important for Mr. Jones to meet him at nine o'clock at the English-Bar in the Quarter Rosetti. Any driver would show him the way. Mohamed-El-Gebel, the guardian of the Holy Yliordes, had turned up, and the band was beginning to play. Would Mr. Jones like a little fun by the wayside?

"I'm his man," said George. "But how the devil did this Mahomed ever get into my room?"

Had fortune dined down-stairs instead of alone in her room, events might have turned out differently. Ryannne had really written to George, but not to Fortune.

Mahomed, fatalist that he was, had thrown everything upon the whirling scales of chance, and waited. Later, he may have congratulated himself upon his good luck. But it wasn't luck; it was the will of Allah that he, Mahomed, should contribute his slender share in working out the destinies of two young people.

George was in the proper mood for an adventure. He went so far as to admit to himself that he would have liked nothing better than a fastidiff. The one mistake he made in his calculations was dress. Men didn't generally go adventuring in such flimsy attire. They wore bowlers and sackcoats and carried heavy walking-sticks. The only weapons George had were his two hands, now adorned with snug-fitting opera-gloves.

He saw Mrs. Chedsoye, spoke to her, inquired about Fortune, and was informed that she had dined in her room. A case of doldrums, Mrs. Chedsoye believed.

"I'm in a peck of trouble," said George, craving a little sympathy.

"In what way?"

"The rug I told you about is gone."

"What? Stolen?"

"Yes. Vanished into thin air."

"That's too bad. Of course the police will eventually find it for you."

"I'm afraid that's exactly the trouble. I really don't put the case in the hands of the police."

"Oh, I see," Mrs. Chedsoye looked profoundly sorry.

"And here I am due for Port Said tomorrow."

"That's the kind that bowls you over," said the Major. "If there is anything I can do after you are gone."

"Oh, I shouldn't think of bothering you. Thanks, though."

"You must have lost your key," suggested Mrs. Chedsoye.

"No. It's been hanging up in the porter's bureau all day."

"Well, I hope you find the rug," said the Major, with a sly glance at his sister.

"Thanks. I must be off. The chap I bought it of says that the official guardian from Bagdad has arrived, and that there's likely to be some sport. I'm to meet him at a place called the English-Bar."

"The English-Bar?" The Major shook his head. "A low place, if I remember."

"And you are going dressed like that?" asked Mrs. Chedsoye.

"Haven't time to change." He excused himself and went in search of a carriage.

"The play begins, Kate," whispered the Major. "This Hoddy of ours is a wonderful chap."

"Poor fellow!"

"What; Hoddy?"

"No; Percival. He'll be very uncomfortable in patent-leather pumps.

The Major laughed light-heartedly. "I suppose we might telegraph for reservation on the Ludwig."

"I shall pack at once. Fortune can find her way to Mentone from Naples. I am beginning to worry about that girl. She has a temper; and she is beginning to have some ideas."

"Marry her, marry her! How much longer must I preach that sermon? She's growing handsomer every day, too. Watch your laurels, Kate."

Mrs. Chedsoye inspected her rings. Meanwhile, George directed his driver to go post-haste to the English-Bar. That he found it more or less of a dive in nowise alarmed him. He had been in places of more frightful aspect. As Ryannne had written him to make inquiries of the barmaid relative to finding him, he did so. She jerked her head toward the door at the rear. George went boldly to it, opened it, and stepped inside.

And vanished from the haunts of men.

CHAPTER XII.

The Caravan in the Desert.

Yes, George vanished from the haunts of men as completely as if the Great Roc had dropped him into the Valley of Diamonds and left him there; and as nobody knows just where the Valley of Diamonds is, George was very well lost. Still, there was, at the end of a most unique experience, a recompense far beyond its value. But, of course, George, being without the gift of clairvoyance, saw nothing save the immediate and imminent circumstances: a door that banged behind him, portentously; a sack, a cloak, a burnouse, or whatever it was, flung about his head, and smelling evilly.

George hit out valiantly, and a merry scuffle ensued. The room was small; at least, George thought it was, for in the space of one minute he thumped against the four sides of it. He could see nothing and he couldn't breathe very well; but in spite of these inconveniences he put up three rounds that would have made some stir among the middleweights. In the phraseology of the fancy, he had a good punch. All the disappointments of the day seemed to become so many pounds of steam in his shoulder; and he was aware of a kind of barbaric joy whenever he hit some one. All the circumspection of years, all of the gentle blood of his peaceful forbears, gave way to the strain which still lurks in the blood of civilized humanity, even in the veins of poets and parsons. He fought with all the tactics of a sailor in a bar-room, not overnicely.

Vitally Important to Meet Him at Nine O'Clock at the English-Bar.

A table toppled over with a smashing noise. George and his assailants fell in a heap beside it. Thwack! Bang! George struggled to his feet and tugged at the stifling envelope. Some one jumped upon his back. Old Man of the Sea style. A savage elbow-jab disposed of this incubus. And then the racket began all over again. George never paused mentally to wonder what all this rumpus was about; time enough to make inquiries after the scrimmage. Intrepidly, as Hereward the Wake, as Bussy d'Ambois, as Porthos in the cave of Loch-Maria, George fought. He wasn't a trained athlete; he hadn't any science; he was simply ordinarily tough and active and clean-lived; and the injustice of an unprovoked assault added to physical prowess a full measure of nervous energy. It was quasi-Homeric: a modern young gentleman in evening dress holding off for several minutes five sleek, sinewy, unhampered Arabs. But the days of the gods were no more; and no quick-witted goddess cast a veil across the eyes of the Arabs. No; George had to shift for himself. Suddenly there came a general rush from the center of the room into one of the right-angular corners. The subsequent snarl of legs and arms was not unlike that seen upon the foot-ball field. George was the man with the ball. And then to George came merciful darkness. The conjunction, as in astronomy, of two planets in the same degree of the Zodiac—meaning George's head and the stucco-wall—gave the Arabs complete mastery of the field of battle.

From the opposite side of the room came the voice of the referee: "Curses of Allah upon these white dogs! How they fight!" And Mahomed peered down into the corner.

One by one the Arabs got up, each examining his honorable wounds. George alone remained unmoved, quiet and disinterested, under the folds of the tattered burnouse.

"Is he dead?" demanded Mahomed.

"No, my father. His head hit the wall."

"Hasten, then. Bind his feet and hands and cover his eyes and mouth. We have but little time."

There was a long way to go, and Mahomed was too wise and cautious to congratulate himself at this early stage. George was thereupon trussed up like a Christmas fowl ready for the oven. They wrapped him up in the burnouse and carried him out to the closed carriage in waiting. No one in the street seemed curious. No one in the English-Bar deemed it necessary to be. Whatever happened in this resort had long been written in the book of fate. Had a white man approached to inquire what was going on, Mahomed would have gravely whispered that it was a case of plague they were hurrying away to prevent interference by the English authorities.

Once George was snug inside the carriage, it was driven off at a run toward the tombs of the caliphs. As the roads were not the levellest, the vehicle went most of the way upon two wheels. Mahomed sat beside his victim, watchful and attentive. His intention was to take him no farther than the outskirts of the city, force him to send back to the hotel a duly credited messenger for the rug, after which he would turn George adrift, with the reasonable assurance that the young man would find some one to guide him back to the hotel. After a while he observed that George had recovered and was grimly fighting the imprisoning ropes.

"You will need your strength," interposed Mahomed gently. "If I take the cloth from your mouth, will you promise not to cry out?" There was an affirmative nod, and Mahomed untied the bandage. "Listen. I mean you no harm. If you will send to the hotel for the Holy Yliordes, you will be liberated the moment it is put into my hands."

"Go to the deuce!" snapped George, still dizzy. The fighting mood hadn't evaporated, by any means. "You know where it is better than I." So this was Mahomed?

"Fool!" cried the other, shaking George roughly.

"Easy there! I had the rug, but it was stolen this afternoon." He was very weak and tired. "And if I had it, I shouldn't give it to you," with renewed truculence; "and you may put that in your water-pipe and smoke it."

Mahomed, no longer pacific, struck George violently upon the mouth. He, on his part, was unknighly enough to attempt to sink his teeth in the brutal hand. Queer fancies flit through a man's head in times like this; for the ineffectuality of the bite reminded him of Halloweens and the tubs with the bobbing apples. One thing was certain: he would kill this pagan the very first opportunity. Rather a startling metamorphosis in the character of a man whose life had been passed in the peacefullest environments. And to kill him without the least compunction, too. To strike a man who couldn't help himself!

"Hey there!" he yelled. "Help for a white man!" After such treatment he considered it anything but dishonorable to break his parole. And where was Ryannne? "Help!"

Mahomed swung his arm round George's neck, and the third cry began with a gurgle and ended with a sigh. Deftly, the Arab rebandaged the prisoner's mouth. So be it. He had had his chance for freedom; now he should drink to the bottom of the bitter cup, along with the others. He had no real enmity against George; he was simply one of the pawns in the game he was playing. But now he saw that there was danger in liberating him. The other! Mahomed carelessly his wiry beard. To subject him to the utmost mental agony; to break him physically, too; to pay him back pound for penny; to bruise, to hurt, to rack him, that was all Mahomed desired.

George made no further effort to free himself, nor apparently to bestir himself about the future. Somewhere in the fight, presumably as he fell against the table, he had received a crushing blow in the small ribs; and when Mahomed threw him back, he fainted for the second time in his life. He reclined limply in the corner of the carriage, the bosom of his shirt bulging open; for the thrifty Arabs had purloined the pearl-studs, the gold collar-buttons, and the sapphire cuff-links. And consciousness returned only when they lifted him out and dropped him inconspicuously into the thick dust of the road. He stirred again at his bonds, but presently lay still. The pain in his side hurt keenly, and he wasn't sure that the rib was whole. What time had passed since his entrance to the English-Bar was beyond his reckoning, but he

A Missionary Tea.

Thursday at five o'clock Mrs. Lyon and the Juvenile missionary gave a delightful program on the parsonage lawn. The songs, readings and little plays were all missionary in character and were just as pretty as could be. The scripture lesson was read by Leona Herrington. Mrs. Cooksey played the first song by the intermediates being about the babies of heathen lands. Godfrey Sprull had a cunning speech about the Japanese babies. Six little girls showed the ways the babies of other lands were carried, on the back, in a hammock, in a bag, in a palm leaf, on a mat and how we put our babies to sleep. Melba Cooksey said a speech. Lorena Smith in a Japanese kimono with flowers in her hair, showed the politeness of Japanese children. One especially pretty song by the larger boys and girls was "If a Christian met a Heathen," this was sung to the tune Coming Through the Rye. Every song and reading was splendidly rendered and the mothers and guests present were filled with pride over the abilities of their little folks. At the close of the program the guests were seated at the tables scattered over the lawn and cake and cream served. There was pineapple, chocolate and plain cream and ever so many kinds of cake served. A silver offering was taken and the children received $6.50 which will go on their pledge money. They were asked to repeat this entertainment in the church some night or give this at the park. This may be done after the meeting.

A good hotel business in a town helps every other line of business.

No other factor helps build a town more than a first class hotel. Nothing would help Colorado more.

B. J. Strickland is again editor and proprietor of the Pecos Times, Messrs Link and Somes retiring from the field.

We never see a treeless home but we wonder why the owner or the man who occupies it does not plant something, if only gourd vines or castor beans. These would shade the house and make it more habitable in summer time, at least.

Every man, woman and child in the county would feel a personal pride in a new, attractive court house with a well-kept park surrounding it. They would prove an incentive to property owners in the same neighborhood to have their property in harmony with the example set by the county.

The white wife of Jack Johnson, the "champion" heavy weight pugilist of the world—and native of Texas—succeeded last week because she was shunned by her former friends for marrying a negro. The sensitive thing! why didn't she do it before she married the nigger.

Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards, the former leader of the Hillsville (Va.) court house murder gang, were arrested by detectives from Roanoke, Va., at Des Moines, Iowa, last week. The sweetheart of Edwards was trailed from her home in Virginia to the place where the men were arrested. She and Edwards were to have been married soon.

It is a strange kink of the human mind that regards suicide as the highest expression of patriotism. General Nogi looked upon his death by his own hand as the act of the greatest devotion to his dead emperor, and the wife of general Nogi regarded her death as necessary to evince her devotion to her husband. Queer folks, these Japs.

The farmers of Mitchell county are, many of them, deeply interested in the subject of irrigation. They have come to realize that it is the hope of this section. If farming is to be done with certainty of results, it must be removed from the pale of chance. As it is now, it is but a gambling game of chance with the odds preponderatingly against the farmer. Better ten or twenty acres with a certainty of a good crop and diversified products, than a whole section with an inferior crop, the difference in time, seed and amount of labor. Many farmers have come in and commended the irrigation articles appearing in the Record and asking that more of them be published; they like to read them.

There are many farmers who have expressed a determination to try irrigation next year, if only on a small garden patch. One acre put under water and planted to such things as can be used on the table, will save many dollars that have heretofore gone to the grocery store. Instead of buying their living in paper bags in small quantities, they will get it from their own garden patch. And it does not matter if the garden does come late; it will be just as much a saving in the fall as if it came in the early spring. The Record hopes to see hundreds of Mitchell county farmers and dwellers in town as well, irrigate on some scale next year.

The brightest and grandest thing that can ever come into a man's life is the religion of Jesus Christ. It transforms every power of his being, inspires every energy of his soul. It floods the life with joy deeper than the world can ever give. The assurance of God's eternal love brings to the heart a thrill of joy such as no earthly possession, no earthly honor, and no earthly relationship can ever give.—Christian Observer.

The longer we live the more we marvel at the ignorance of biblical matters among people who arrogate to themselves the advantages and blessings of a liberal education. We have heard several persons—two men and as many ladies—ask where, the battle of "Armageddon" was fought and what it was all about. In the expressive, if not choice idiom of "Sairey Gamp," "There never was no such person." In the apocalypse of St. John, on the isle of Patmos, he saw a vision of the "great day of God," a figurative place where the final battle between the forces of good and evil will be fought; this place St. John called "Armageddon," possibly with some reference to the battlefield of Megiddo. The expression was made use of by Mr. Roosevelt in an effort to express the idea that the conflict between his party and the old line republicans was one of finality; that they stood in battle array at Armageddon, to do battle for the right against wrong.

Wall Street Picks Wilson for Winner.

New York.—Curb brokers who specialize in election betting says that the election news from Vermont brought numerous inquiries for odds. Most inquiries came from stock exchange firms in behalf of clients. In each instance the reply was there was plenty of two to one Wilson money, but no Taft or Roosevelt money at any odds. As no one seemed anxious to take the small end of the Wilson bet, not a single wager was recorded. Wall street's belief that the odds should work around to four to one on Wilson against the field was based on the argument that the Vermont result showed that the democratic vote was solid and larger, while the republican vote was split and smaller.

When the Trouble Began.

When certain political gentlemen tear their shirts about abolishing national conventions because they have become disorderly and corrupt, it may be well to hark back to the nineties before the present "progressive" mania had seized the people and note that there was no such disorderly and indecent scenes at our national conventions in those days as we have witnessed this year at Chicago and Baltimore. Then there were order, decorum and decency among both delegates and spectators.

The game was played according to the rules and the results were accepted in gentlemanly good faith by all. Those were the days before the muck-raker and the agitators had poisoned the public mind with their gospel of hate and made discord, suspicion, bitterness and beligerency the rule—instead of the exception among American citizens.

Drive men like these from public life; take from their control the machinery of our government—the ballot and the jury boxes—and there will no longer be a necessity for policing a single convention hall with 500 armed officers of the law to prevent riot and bloodshed among 10,000 assembled citizens. The state of public mind and morals that makes such a thing necessary is a shame.

The biggest dollar that ever came to the Standard office was put by a sister who has five children, makes her money by washing and goes eight miles to get the washing. Those children are greatly blessed in having such a mother. She is putting the main things first. That family will grow up intelligent in the things of the Kingdom.—Baptist Standard.

Yes, those children are blessed in having such a mother, and we glory in her courage and enterprise; but, at the same time, we deprecate the penurious policy of the Standard toward widows and orphans.

The man who has been perpetrating the News-Record for the last fifteen years is a sinful old cuss, who smokes, chews and has been accused of fishing on Sunday, but he was never guilty, or even accused of taking a "wider woman's" dollar that was earned by washing duds that she had to go eight miles for. If ever a member of this force gets so "chinchy" that he would take a dollar that should be expended on five orphan children whose mother washes for a living, the moment the fact comes to the notice of the old boss, will be the date of his discharge.

We wear old clothes, and sometimes in winter we feel the need of a new overcoat and shoes, but there is always a free copy of the News-Record for the poor "wider" woman and her helpless children, even if the heathen has to forego the luxury of a tin whistle for a season.—Sterling City News-Record.

A Narrow Escape.

While a number of boys, who were examining a pistol in the barn of O. M. Mitchell last Wednesday night, and while the weapon was in the hands of Harry Schroeder, it was accidentally discharged, inflicting a slight scalp wound on Huron Costin. Beyond a scare that will probably prevent him from growing as tall as he otherwise would, no injury was done. It is needless to add that the incident sent the others home faster than any curfew law or parental command could have done. It was a miraculously narrow escape from death, which would have been the death of one, the ruin doubtless of the life of the other and the heartaches of mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters, for a life time. It is hoped this accident will be a lesson, to not only this crowd of boys, but to all others, that the safest place for boys is at home nights with their parents, and that it is only the "unloaded" gun and the dog that "won't bite" that do the most mischief in the world.

Burns & Bell's Big Ad.

We call special attention to the page advertisement this week of that popular and always progressive firm of Burns & Bell. They have been constant and liberal advertisers in the columns of the Record since the paper began, and are now reaping the legitimate results of their faith in the doctrine of newspaper publicity. They know how to advertise liberally and continuously. They have been running a half page ad, and because it has brought such satisfactory results, they are now running a full page one. The true secret of their successful advertising is that they always keep faith with what they advertise. They do not use their advertising space merely as a bait to get people into their store, but they always have the bargains they advertise. You can always rely implicitly on whatever you read in one of their advertisements. That is one secret of their great business success. Their keep-faith policy has put this firm to the very forefront of West Texas mercantile establishments. Mr. C. A. Pierce, the popular manager for this firm, is the artist who writes their ads, and in this department as well as all others in the dry goods business, he is thorough, conscientious and up-to-date. He knows how to write a good advertisement, which is saying a great deal.

Death of Miss Sophia Manns.

Miss Sophia Manns, one of the Northwest Texas Conference Missionaries, died Sunday in Sungkiang, China, of cholera. She was a Fort Worth girl who went out in 1906 and has many friends here who met her at the various Methodist Conferences. Her death was very sudden and comes as a great shock to her friends. She was a teacher in the Susan B. Wilson school, a most talented and lovable girl whose loss seems irreparable, but it has been the history of all churches that the death of a missionary in the field has called forth numbers of others to take their place.

W. M. S. Entertains.

Some time ago the members of the energetic W. M. S. of the Methodist church, entered upon a contest, after choosing sides, the aim of which was to raise funds for several laudable purposes. The contesting sides were named Korean and Chinese, and the latter was victorious. One condition of the contest was that the defeated side should entertain the victorious side. So the defeated Koreans gracefully entertained the victorious Chinese on the afternoon of the 12th, at the home of Mrs. S. D. Dunnahoo. The rooms were brightened by Korean fans and lanterns, and the ladies who received wore Korean coiffures. Mrs. Dunnahoo was assisted by Mrs. Johnson, president of the society, and others. The program for the afternoon's entertainment opened with the reading of slips of paper bearing items of interest regarding far off Korea and the noble missionary work now being carried out. To assist our memories, cards lettered with the names of our missionaries were placed about the walls of the room. Following the reading of the slips came a flower guessing contest with a time limit of ten minutes, when the questions were read by our hostess and answered by the sadly puzzled contestants who were woefully surprised at some of the answers. The ladies then indulged in the amusing old game of proverbs which certainly taxed our wits nimbly and elicited hearty laughter. After guessing a word puzzle "bologna sausage," cleverly acted by Mrs. Frank Miles, the guests were summoned to the dining room which was darkened and then illuminated by gaily flowered Chinese lanterns. From the dining table daintily set with embroidered doilies and glittering china and silver, we were served orange ice, cake, and iced tea. As we stood around the table enjoying these refreshing edibles, each lady was requested to narrate her experience in making the $2 required, and some hilariously entertaining experiences resulted. A few illustrated the apt truths that "necessity is the mother of invention" and "where's there's a will there's a way." After returning to the living room, the society discussed various business matters, chiefly the bazaar which will be held sometime before Christmas. The "Korean" ladies most assuredly merited the thanks and praise of the "Chinese" ladies for one of the most thoroughly enjoyable events of the season.

I had been an invalid for 5 weary years! Cardui relieved me, when everything else failed."

REMINGTON-UMC

AUTOLOADING SHOTGUN

For singles-trap or field—just toss in a shell, press the button and—"PULL." The side bolt makes it easy. You don't have to tug at the barrel or watch an on-and-off device. The action stays open after each single shot is fired.—It always stays open when the magazine is empty. Five shots—three to get the cripples—each under absolute control of the trigger finger. The recoil reloads for you—kicks another shell in; takes the strain off the gun—the discomfort out of the kick—all without diminishing the drive behind the shot.

Simple take-down—a few turns of the readily handled magazine screw-cap makes cleaning, carrying and interchange of barrels quick and easy.

Send for a motion picture booklet telling how the kick is used—how a friction device found only on the Remington-UMC Autoloading Shotgun takes the punishment out of heavy loads.

Hyde-Lovelady, John F. Lovelady, Mary Hyde Ray, Robert Ray, Paul Beeman and Dottie Beeman, minors, and Susie Hyde are defendants and said petition alleging that plaintiffs on the 21st day of December, 1911 were the owners in fee simple of lots five (5) and six (6), thirteen (13), fourteen (14), and fifteen (15) in block fifty (50) of the town of Colorado in Mitchell county, Texas, according to the map or plat thereof on record in Book "C," page 250, of the Deed Records of said county; that they were in possession of and were entitled to the possession of said property; that the defendants on the first day of January, 1912, unlawfully entered upon and dispossessed them of such premises and are now and have ever since been withholding from them the possession thereof to their damages Five Hundred and no-hundredths ($500.00) Dollars.

Plaintiffs allege that the nature of claim of the defendants is by, through and under a deed executed by Julius Johnson and wife, dated December 3, 1906, recorded in Volume 24, Page 29, of the Deed Records of Mitchell county, conveying to William Hyde and John Hyde said property, but erroneously describing the same as being in the Waddell & Martin addition to said town of Colorado. That the said William and John Hyde executed in part payment therefor, a series of Eighteen (18) purchase money notes of even date therewith, each for the sum of twenty-five and no-100 ($25) Dollars, with Ten (10) per cent interest per annum from date, the said interest and notes being payable monthly to the order of Julius Johnson, El Paso, Texas, and being secured by the express retention in said deed and by the recitals of the notes themselves of the vendor's lien on said land; that by an instrument dated February 3, 1909, recorded in Volume 27, Page 378 of the Deed Records of said county said Julius Johnson transferred said notes and lien to T. H. Roe, and that T. H. Roe by a similar instrument dated July 21, 1912, recorded in Volume 36, Page 440, of said Deed Records, transferred the remaining seven (7) unpaid notes of said series together with the express contract vendor's lien on and against said land to Mary S. Scruby, J. M. R. Price, and Adelaide E. Roe which said plaintiffs are now the legal owners and holders of said notes and have the superior title in and to said land. That William Hyde died intestate and insolvent, at Dallas, Texas, on or about December 16, 1911; that there has been no administration on his estate nor any need; that the defendant John Hyde is a son and the defendants Minnie Harvey, Bessie Lovelady, Mary Ray and Susie Hyde are the daughters, and the defendants Dottie Beeman and Paul Beeman are the children of Ellen H. Beeman, a deceased daughter and they are all the heirs of the said William Hyde. That plaintiffs elect to and do rescind the executory contract whereby Julius Johnson and wife conveyed said lands to William Hyde and John Hyde, averring that the rental value of said premises far exceeds the amount due on said notes, and that said defendants and their ancestor have had complete possession and exclusive use and enjoyment of said property ever since its conveyance as aforesaid. Plaintiffs allege that the description of said land in said deed as being in Block fifty (50) in the Waddell & Martin addition to the town of Colorado was an error on the part of the draftsman drawing the deed and that all parties meant and the land was in fact in block fifty (50) of the town of Colorado, wherefore they pray that all of said deeds and transfers be reformed so as to show correctly the description of said lands, and in the alternative plaintiffs pray that if for any reason they can not have judgment for the title to and possession of said lands that then they have judgment for the principal, accrued interest, interest on past due interest and ten (10) per cent attorney's fees due on said notes, alleging that by their execution William Hyde the ancestor of the defendants and John Hyde promised to pay said notes, and that they have placed same in the hands of an attorney for collection and have promised to pay the said attorney the reasonable value of his services which they aver to be far in excess of ten (10) per cent on the amount due, whereby the said William Hyde and John Hyde became obligated to pay said attorney's fee that the said heirs of William Hyde have received this property from the estate and therefore if they retain same are obligated to pay the purchase price thereof.

Premises considered plaintiffs pray for the citation of the defendants and for a judgment on final hearing for the title to and the possession of said property, and in any event for a decree reforming said deed and the subsequent transfers thereon so as to show the correct description of said land with writs of possession and such other and further relief both general and special, legal and equitable as they may show themselves entitled to including in the alternative in the event judgment can not be rendered in their favor for title and possession for the aggregate amount due on said notes with ten (10) per cent interest thereon, order of sale, writ of possession and all other process needed together with execution for the deficit, if any, and for their costs.

Herein fail not, but have before said court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Witness Jesse H. Bullock, Clerk of the District Court of Mitchell county. Given under my hand and Seal of said Court, at office in Colorado, this 26th day of August, A. D. 1912.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN.

The Session of 1912-13 of Colorado Public Schools was Begun on Last Monday Morning.

Monday morning every parent and all the friends of the Colorado public schools gathered with the school children in the beautiful new auditorium of the high school building to witness the opening exercises of this school term, meet the new teachers and admire the new building. The auditorium, balcony and rooms in the wings were filled, while upon the stage were the honorable board of trustees, the teachers, Revs. Broome and Lyon, and Superintendent Hart.

The program was begun at 9:30 by Rev. Lyon reading from Paul's letter to Timothy, and commenting upon the passage, "Study to show thyself a workman approved of God." Mr. Lyon said he was asked to deliver a short sermon, and this was it. He then introduced Rev. Broome, who was to speak upon the duty of children to parents, and the duty of children to their teachers. Mr. Broome said he had written a speech upon this subject and then lost it, and was sure all were glad. He made a fine talk. He said children owed obedience to parents and teachers, honor to both; they should be honest with both and faithful to both. By doing these things they will receive the reward. He closed by saying, "I trust this will be the best and most profitable session you have ever had and that God will bless you all."

Dr. Phenix' subject was the New School Building, and of course upon this he was both eloquent and witty. He reviewed the troubles of the past, and spoke of the beautiful and good work done by the contractor and builder; said we are proud. He quoted a funny poem upon "It Can't be Done." Then presented the teachers and made puns upon their names.

These are, Miss Ellis, principal of the high school; Mr. Stewart of the high school; Miss Shuford of the 7th grade; Miss Wallis, 6th grade; Miss Holder, 5th grade; Miss Collins, 4th grade; Miss Shopshire 3rd grade; Miss Hutton 1st and 2nd grades. He also made announcements for the various music teachers, and their location, and as the last, but not least of the faculty, Will Garner, the janitor. The doctor said that Will was the best janitor they ever had, especially about finding things, and one morning he entered a room and saw written on the board, "find the least common multiple," and Will hunted and hunted, and because he could not find it resigned, but the resignation was not accepted.

Mr. Hart had a written speech on the duties of parents and children, which was requested to be published. He also spoke of the rules, urging the parents to insist upon home study and leave the school management to the teachers.

The children were now dismissed by grades. The first and second grades will be in the ward building, Miss Hutton taking the first grade in the morning and the second grade in the afternoon.

There was a good enrollment of students and a new branch, that of bookkeeping, added.

The school is certainly well housed and we do hope for both pupils and teachers good work and perfect harmony, throughout the year.

Package Tea.

Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock the ladies of the Methodist church gave a delightful package tea at the home of Mrs. Annis. The bundles were all numbered and sold for fifteen cents; each person receiving a number upon entering and this number they fitted to their package. The things sold were mighty nice; dainty aprons, doilies, neck pieces and other pretty things, all of which were useful and quite worth the money paid for them. Dainty home made cake and iced tea were sold in the dining room for ten cents. The ladies cleared $15. During the afternoon Mrs. Bodine gave a delightful reading, the rest of the time was spent in pleasant conversation. The ladies plan to have an apron sale in November—about thanksgiving.

PARADE AT NOON.

Yankee Robinson Circus and Wild West Parade Takes Place at Noon.

In order that the country folks can have as much time at home on circus day as is possible, also that incoming excursionists can have the opportunity of witnessing the immense circus and wild west parade of Yankee Robinson and Texas Bill, the event does not take place until high noon. Promptly at that time the parade moves, then all the outside free exhibitions are given at the show grounds. For those who come in early there is plenty of amusement, however, and it is advisable when convenient, to come in as early as possible. Will exhibit at Colorado, Wednesday, October 2.

George Oderholz has accepted a position in the silk department of Stripling Dry Goods Company, at Fort Worth, and has entered upon the discharge of his duties already. His family will follow in a short time.

Man 100 Years Old Becomes Democrat

On his one hundredth birthday Benjamin West of Belleville, Mo., renounced his half century allegiance to the Republican party and announced that for the first time in his life he would support a democrat for the presidency.

To reach the age of 100 years is some distinction in itself, to change a political opinion that has been fixed for fifty years is very remarkable.

Benjamin West is older than any or all of the present political parties. He was an elderly man when he joined the republican party in the late '50s. Other parties had come and gone before its formation. The Whigs and the Free Soldiers, the Anti-Masons and the Federalists were the parties of his early recollection. The party that he will support in the coming election is younger by far than himself.

To Secure National Prohibition.

Congressman Richard Pearson Hobson of Alabama, has introduced into the House of Representatives at Washington a resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the manufacture, sale and importation of intoxicating beverages. The resolution is as follows: 1. The sale, manufacture and importation for sale of beverages containing alcohol are forever prohibited in the United States and in all territory under its jurisdiction. 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Thou Shalt Not Steal.

The Socialists have a right to indict the insurgents for larceny. All that distinguishes an insurgent from a progressive, is the socialism he has stolen without the courage to carry the banner.

Socialism is at least a frank and honest propaganda for a believed principle. I disagree with all Socialists, fundamentally. But we respect the honesty of their belief, and the courage of their conviction. They are a fair foe, fighting under an acknowledged banner.

The insurgent who steals their ammunition and equipment, and fights with it under a white flag, is a pot-hunter who, in the warfare of economics, is entitled to neither confidence nor respect.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Advice
Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are common symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. It has cured many stubborn cases in this vicinity.

Can Colorado residents demand further proof than the following testimonial?

W. T. Brice, Snyder, Texas, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and have found them very beneficial. My kidneys were weak, obliging me to get up often at night and I also suffered from rheumatic twinges. As I had heard of the excellent results of the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box and in a short time after I began taking this remedy, my kidneys were well and my rheumatic pains were removed. I can highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from weak kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

He preaches with great power and earnestness, carrying conviction to the hearts of sinners, causing them to repent of their sins. Every christian man and woman in Colorado is earnestly requested to join with the Methodist congregation and make common cause against sin and all the influences that are working for evil in our community.

Mrs. Simon Loses Home and Contents.

About 3:15 o'clock Tuesday morning the bell at the fire station and then the whistle at the light plant announced that a fire was in progress somewhere within the town limits. It was soon located at the residence of Mrs. Ella Simon on Oak Street in the block just north of the court house.

By the time the wagon reached the scene of the fire, the flames had gained such headway that nothing could be done to save the house or any of its contents. Every effort was given to the saving of the house just north of the burning building, which is occupied by the family of Mr. Wm. Green, who recently moved to town. The two houses are separated by only a narrow space and several times the roof of the Green house was afire; but by the hardest work the building was saved.

Sam Simon was the only person at home at the time of the fire; Mrs. Simon and daughter being absent on a visit to Ed Simon at Big Springs. When Sam awoke the house was filled with smoke and he had time only to snatch a few articles of wearing apparel and make his escape. The origin of the fire is unknown, but a neighbor living near says he noticed a very small blaze on the southwest corner of the house, but as he had noticed a burning trash pile near by in the afternoon, paid but little attention to it just at the time, but was soon aroused by the alarm.

Insurance was carried on the house for $1,800 and $700 on a piano and household goods.

This fell to Margaret Davis, Myrtle Fields getting the consolation prize. Lovely gold and silver cake and ice cream were served and the young host received many pretty gifts.
