PRACTICAL BAKING LESSONS

MUFFINS
When properly made, there is nothing more appetizing for breakfast or tea than muffins, or gems, as they are sometimes called. With honey, preserves or marmalade, they readily make the chief feature of the meal, and there are so many ways to vary them, that one can have a different kind about as often as she likes. Below I give a few choice and successful recipes.

Nevada Briggs
A great many housewives have had trouble in making rich, light, moist muffins without their falling, and to overcome this, they have resorted to making the batter so stiff that when baked, the muffins are very dry. A muffin can be made almost as light and just as palatable as a pop-over, but to make a light, moist muffin which is not soggy in the center, a double-raise baking powder such as K C must be used. K C Baking Powder has two separate and distinct raises: one when moisture is added, and the other when heat is applied, so that the raising is sustained until the muffin is baked through, and all danger of falling and becoming soggy is past.

Like biscuits, the softer the dough goes into the oven, the lighter the muffins that come out of it.

One-Egg Muffins
2 cups flour 1 teaspoonful salt
2 slightly rounded teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup melted lard or butter
1 egg 1 cup water or milk
Sift dry ingredients together three times. Add to this the unbeaten egg, melted shortening and water or milk. Then beat all together until perfectly smooth. Oil muffin or gem pans and have oven slow until the muffins come to the top of the pan, then increase the heat to bake and brown the muffins. This recipe makes 12 large muffins. Raisins or currants may be added if desired.

Graham Muffins
1 cup graham flour 1 cup pastry flour
2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
1 to 2 level tablespoonfuls sugar
1/2 teaspoonful salt 1 egg
1/2 cup milk or water
2 to 3 tablespoonfuls melted butter
Mix and bake as One-Egg Muffins.
Graham batter should always be quite soft to insure lightness and a moist muffin.

Corn Meal Muffins
1/2 cup butter 1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten 1 cup milk or water
1 1/2 cups corn meal 1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoonful salt 1 egg
1 level teaspoonful K C Baking Powder
Cream the butter; add the sugar and eggs. Sift together, three times, the meal, flour, salt and baking powder. Add this to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Bake about twenty-five minutes, baking a little slowly to start, then increase heat to bake brown.

Bacon Muffins
2 cups flour 1 teaspoonful salt
3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder
1/2 cup sugar (if desired)
1/2 cup melted lard or butter
4 or 5 slices of bacon fried crisp and broken into small bits 1 cup milk or water
Mix and bake as One-Egg Muffins above.

John Cooper Is Dead.

Saturday evening about 7 o'clock the angel of Death relieved John Cooper of his suffering and his immortal spirit winged its flight into the vast realms of eternity, where there is no more suffering, sorrow nor pain. Though never of a very robust constitution, yet he made a heroic fight against the grim destroyer and bore his infirmities with a spirit far more cheerful than multitudes who are in perfect health and full vigor. He was perfectly resigned to the dispensation of Providence and frequently expressed his readiness to meet the final summons.

John Cooper was a young man of much promise; of genial spirit and most companionable ways. He had many friends, who highly esteemed him for his many good qualities. He was followed to his last resting place in Odd Fellows' cemetery last Sunday afternoon, by a large crowd of friends, who, though sorrowing over his loss, yet realized that in that inscrutable providence that orders all our ways, he was better off than to continue in suffering without hope. The Record joins the entire community in expressions of condolence to the family.

STELL

For the second time Brother and Sister Stell have been called upon to pass under the rod of deep affliction.

Little John W. Stell was born Feb. 14, 1906. He was stricken with typhoid fever and died July 9, 1907, after an illness of three weeks. His little remains were laid to rest in the neighborhood cemetery at Union church. Little Raymond Arvol made his advent into the Stell home on April 19, 1911. He was in every sense a welcome visitor into the home. He was a very bright, sparkling little fellow and had greatly entwined himself around the affections of his father and mother.

In a peculiar way, they felt attached to him because he resembled to a very great degree his little deceased brother. Little Raymond was very suddenly attacked with an acute bowel trouble and died on the morning of March 28th, 1913, after an illness of a few days. The little fellow made a brave fight. Everything was done, as it seems, that could be done by faithful physicians and attentive friends, but all to no avail. It was the will of the Father that he be transplanted in a more congenial clime.

He was the most patient sufferer the writer has ever known.

The funeral service was conducted at the Union Methodist church in the presence of a large number of sympathizing friends, and his little body laid to rest beside that of his little brother.

The father and mother can take comfort in the thought that their precious babes are safe with Him who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not." As one of old said, "Your children cannot come back to you, but you can go to them."

Young People's Mission Meeting.
Miss Sa'llie Herrington was hostess for the Young People's Tuesday. The lesson was "Non-Different Religions in America." Some special music was given and a refreshment course of fruit served before adjourning to meet next with Miss Eva Davis.

EL PASO PRESBYTERIAL.

Tuesday and Wednesday the El Paso Presbyterial was in session in Colorado, with a part of the Missionary societies represented and several guests present.

The meeting was called to order Wednesday morning by Mrs. Van Tuyl, president of the Presbyterial. She conducted the devotional exercises, then a beautiful address of welcome was given by Mrs. S. N. Sherwin and gracefully responded to by Mrs. J. I. McDowell, of Big Springs.

The delegates were next enrolled by Mrs. West, the secretary who read the minutes of the preceding meeting. The president and treasurer gave their yearly report which showed a gain in the work in spite of the drought. Two new societies, one at Lubbock, one at Post, were reported. Mrs. Van Tuyl gave a fine address her subject being, Every Member. She urged every member to give, to pray for the work and workers, and to pray "Lord what wilt thou have me do?" She reviewed the work and the workers on the foreign fields and urged all to help speaking of the hardships and trials of those so far from home and loved ones. The home missionaries' deprivations were pictured. We were blessed according to our prayers and all could give of prayer and the Lord would show us what is the work for us. She said every member counts, plan for the meetings, and if we could not be a solo voice in the Lord's work be glad to be a member of the chorus. She closed by urging that this year be a year of prayer and service.

After reports from the delegates were heard, prayer was offered and the meeting adjourned for lunch. A table in the rear of the church was filled with literature, pictures and curios, which were exhibited during the sessions. The opening exercise of the afternoon session was conducted by Mrs. Lane, of Big Springs. Mrs. Currie read a fine paper upon "What it would mean to the church if Assembly Home Missions were Abandoned." This was discussed. Miss Lois Prude sang very sweetly. The Synodical president, Mrs. Dullnig, gave an inspiring address upon the work, the new features adopted at the last convention, and how they should be carried out in each society. She is thoroughly conversant with the work and a magnetic, forceful speaker. She spoke beautifully of intercessory prayer. Urging all to take time to pray, to be emptied of self, to put first things first, told a beautiful story illustrating Christ's love for us, and how he is always giving us another chance. She urged greater efforts for the coming year's work and urged the women to get together as a great band to win the world for Christ. The constitution and by-laws of the Presbyterial were revised to make the changes needed in the advanced work. After prayer, the meeting closed.

In the evening, Rev. P. C. Craig, of the Christian church, conducted the devotional exercise. Miss Blandford sang a beautiful solo. Dr. Smith of Brazil, gave an address upon the country here he has worked for nearly twenty years. This was very full of information concerning the country, the people, their morals, home life and religion. He showed a dark picture of a beautiful land, filled with immoral, irreligious, illiterate people, priest ridden and denied the Bible and a pure gospel. He urged that our sons and daughters be given for the foreign work for the Lord had said, "go," and we must obey His command. At the close of this, Dr. Marshall gave a fine solo a beautiful quartette was sung by Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Hazzard, Dr. Marshall and Mr. Webb. Mr. Hennessy pronounced the benediction.

Wednesday morning, the devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Major. Mrs. Coleman told of the Sunday School and Young People's work. News from Korea was given by the president. Mrs. Dullnig's Echoes from the Memphis Convention, were so inspiring that all felt as if they had been there.

The praise service of the afternoon was conducted by Mrs. Dullnig. Mrs. Rorden made an earnest plea for aged ministers. Mrs. Smith of Brazil, told of her life as a missionary's wife in that country, the great work to be done and the privilege of working for these people. Election of officers came next. Mrs. Van Tuyl was made president and Lubbock was selected as the next place of meeting.

The visitors present were: Dr. and Mrs. J. Rockwell Smith, Brazil; Mrs. Dullnig San Antonio; Mrs. W. H. Lane, Big Springs; Mrs. J. I. McDowell Big Springs; Mrs. L. S. Currie, Big Springs; Mrs. Brown, Big Springs; Mrs. West, Big Springs; Miss Lee, Big Springs; Mrs. Mann Post City; Mrs. Worth Lubbock, Mrs. Echols, Coahoma; Miss Owens Coahoma Mrs. Tamaitt, Big Springs.

Reception at Mrs. Van Tuyl's.

As the closing feature of the Presbyterial, a delightful reception was given at the home of Mrs. Van Tuyl, Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. To this were invited all the Presbyterian ladies and girls the ministers' wives and presidents of the Missionary societies to meet the visiting delegates and guests. A delightful hour was spent. Solos were given by Misses Prude and Blandford, which were lovely. Mrs. Webb and Mrs. Hazzard sang a beautiful love song and the rest of the time was spent in pleasant conversation. The visiting ladies were all charming women, a pleasure to meet, and it is hoped they found Colorado hospitality so genuine they will wish to return.

Notice to Automobiles and Motorcycles.

In order to stop over-speeding within the fire limits of the town of Colorado, the ordinance against it will be hereafter strictly enforced. The speed limit is 12 miles per hour and can be determined as follows:

3 blocks run in 55 seconds is 12 miles per hour; 3 blocks in 45 seconds is 15 miles; 3 blocks in 34 seconds is 20 miles; 3 blocks in 27 seconds is 25 miles; 3 blocks in 24 seconds is 30 miles; 3 blocks in 14 seconds is 35 miles. All these except the 12-mile limit are violations of the law, and offenders will be arrested if caught, and I shall do my best to catch them.

Twelve miles is the limit within the fire limit and 18 miles outside of it. Motorcycles come under the same ordinance and require a number just as do automobiles. Govern yourself accordingly.

It is a violation of this ordinance to fail to sound the auto horn when turning every corner and to have both front and rear lights after night-fall.

Dr. Abbott's Lecture.

Dr. Abbott gave a very fine lecture Tuesday evening at the tabernacle upon Pure Foods and Drugs. He was introduced by Dr. Phenix in his usual pleasant manner, and after complimenting our town and the sanitary conditions, in the main of our grocery stores, he told what had been done, what was to be done, and what could be done by the home people. Dr. Abbott disclaimed being a speaker, or an orator, but his explanations were so clear and plain that any one could understand him, which made him more interesting to the masses. Not a large crowd was out, which was unfortunate, as pure food and drugs is something all should be interested in. Dr. Abbott has offered his services to the club ladies along the T. P., and is now filling his dates to speak. He is a brilliant man and Texas should be proud of him.

The spirit of vandalism that prompts a yearling kid to deface and destroy property which has cost another money, is beyond fathom. Mr. G. B. Harnes had a very attractive sign painted last week on the big plate glass window in his office. It was an artistic piece of work of novel design. Part of the sign was painted on the out outside of the glass. The secrecy of the first night after it was finished was the opportunity for some vandal to scratch the silver paint, just to see if it would come off. The most noticeable feature of the pretty sign is now the mutilated letters. The hemp still grows and wide doors yawn for the finished product of such beginnings.

EASTERN STAR BANQUET.

On Thursday evening the Eastern Star met in business session with their district deputy Mrs. Monroe, of Snyder, and initiated two candidates, Misses Roxie Coughran and Cecil Nunn, besides putting on the work for the benefit of their superior officer.

At nine o'clock the two ante rooms were filled with guests who had been invited for the banquet. Soon after the doors were thrown open and the large hall filled with the guests who were greeted by the numerous members of the Eastern Star already inside. The hall was prettily decorated with draperies of yellow and white, Easter lilies and potted plants.

Splendid music was provided by Messrs Gardner, Roland and Roland.

Dr. Weston was introduced by Dr. Phenix, and gave an address upon Masonry, telling a humorous story of why women were not allowed to become full-fledged Masons. He extolled fraternalism, said if he were allowed only one word with which to express himself that word would be fraternity. He closed with the beautiful poem of Abou Ben Adam.

After more music a "bean" contest was announced. Little bags, holding fifty beans each were passed and all told that if a question was answered by yes or no the one so answering must pay a forfeit if a bean. The one having the most beans when the time was up was to be given a surprise. Miss Stonerod was found to have been the most fortunate. She was seated and a streamer pulled over her head which showered her with beans.

The Worthy Matron asked all the guests to stand, then told them to follow the Worthy Patron, Dr. Phenix, into the dining room. The doctor escorted Mrs. Monroe, the deputy, and these two stood at the head of the table. A blessing was asked by Dr. Smith, then the guests tried to eat a little bit of the many good things on the table. There were meats, sandwiches, salads, pies and cakes of every sort; every one just as good as could be. It was indeed a feast, and the ladies in attendance seemed to have a new dish every time they passed and each was just a little better than the last. Mr. Morgan served coffee from his urn, so of course it was good coffee. Everything was delicious and the abundance spoke of great work on the part of the hostess. Over two hundred were present and all greatly enjoyed the occasion.

HESPERIAN CLUB.

Mrs. Edgar Majors was hostess for the club Friday. The meeting was called to order at three o'clock by the vice-president, Mrs. Doss, and reports of committees and business completed roll call was responded to with current news. Miss Doss gave a good paper upon Shakespeare's pastoral lovers. Mrs. Johnson led the Shakespeare lesson. The roll call for household economics was tried household hints. Mrs. Doss read a fine paper upon arranging the housework. Mrs. Majors had as her guests, Mrs. Coe, Mrs. Blanc, Mrs. Myrtle Vaughan, Mrs. Carter and Mary Broadus and Roddy Merritt. She served lovely strawberry cream with homemade cake. Mrs. Sam Majors is hostess this week.

CLASS MEETING.

Mrs. Arnett entertained the organized class, The Kings Daughters, Thursday. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Merritt in the absence of the president, Mrs. McCall. The minutes were read, dues paid and some unfinished business concluded. The chairman of the committee to see about better sanitary conditions in public buildings had consulted a lawyer, and urged that the city health officer be appointed if it could be arranged with the city council. Further work is to be done on this line. The lesson in books of the bible was studied which concluded the program. The meeting next month is with Mrs. Williams. The hostess served a salad course with coffee.

C. W. B. M. MEETING.

On account of illness in Mrs. Craig's family the C. W. B. M. meeting Thursday was changed to the home of Mrs. Dr. Smith and a good meeting was held with Mrs. Jones as leader. The Bible lesson was II Kings. The subject was the value of conventions. Mrs. Jones gave a paper on the value to be derived from conventions. Mrs. Broadus had a mighty pretty paper on the Uplifting Influence of Communion of Congenial Spirits. The State Convention which meets in San Angelo was much discussed and Mrs. Crowder was elected delegate. She, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Coe, Mrs. Jones and Bro. Craig are all going, so Colorado will be well represented. During the social hour the hostess served lovely cream and cake. Immediately following the refreshments, a meeting of the Aid was called, and it was decided to have a market Saturday afternoon at the Colorado Mercantile Company's store. The women are in earnest about their Sunday school rooms and money is being made for it.

Have the Ladies' Thanks.

The ladies of the Eastern Star lodge request us to express publicly their thanks both to the Colorado Mercantile Company and to Mr. Ben Morgan, for their valuable contributions to the success of their entertainment last Thursday night. The Mercantile Company, through its most efficient and popular manager, Mr. R. P. Price, donated the excellent coffee used on that occasion, while Mr. Morgan gave his personal attention to the making of the coffee, loaning the use of his large urn. Both these gentlemen did much to insure the success and enjoyment of the occasion. But this is nothing uncommon for either of these gentlemen. Whenever there is an occasion of public benefit, depending on voluntary contributions of personal help or commodities, they are to be found in the very forefront of the most generous.

U. D. C. MEETING.

Mrs. D. H. Snyder, Jr., very delightfully entertained the Daughters of the Confederacy Monday afternoon. Roll call was responded to with the name of some Texan prominent in the affairs of the state and also in the war between the states. Blanks for veterans at Lubbock were sent by this Chapter. Letters on various matters were read and acted upon. The annuals containing minutes of the State Convention at Fort Worth were received and given to the officers. Mrs. Snyder told of the eleven seceding states and the order in which they withdrew from the union. Mrs. Shepherd told of the four border states and why they did not secede. The president led a discussion upon the fitness of the Texas soldier by past experiences for his part in the war. This ended the program. While the hostess served most tempting refreshments a lively discussion upon the good of federations and conventional work was indulged in. The Chapter adjourned to meet next month with Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Allen as convenient.

The Record believes that Mitchell county could get up a very creditable poultry show, say, during the month of May. There are many people in the country raising fine chickens of different breeds. We believe it would be no trouble to get up several nice premiums for the winners; besides which such an occasion would give wide publicity to the chickens of every exhibitor and do much to stimulate a greater interest in the industry. The wives of the farmers in Coleman county recently got up and managed a poultry show which was a great success. The chicken and egg business is the largest single industry in the United States and there is never a time when both are not in active demand. The business is effected less by drought and other crop calamities than any other and demands but little real hard work.

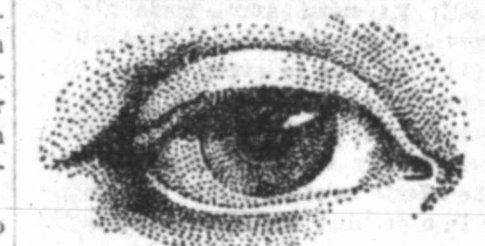

Solid Car of Fine Hogs.

The shipment of a solid car load of fine hogs, wholly home raised, by Mr. L. L. Hammond, last Tuesday, marks the beginning of an important industry for Mitchell county. There were 78 of them, everyone a very picture of the perfect type of the kind of hogs the packers have been trying to get the people of Texas to produce. We learn that this particular bunch of hogs have been fed very little corn, being turned out into a peanut field after harvest, where they were told to "root hog or die." But to such advantage did they root that when they were taken in hand to prepare for market, they required but little more substantial feed to harden them. They were consigned to Fort Worth, but we did not learn the price received for them. This is a most encouraging sign and gives hope that the farmers of this county will devote more attention to the raising of hogs, poultry and other things to eat than to that "old Man of the Sea," called cotton, which has kept more noses to the grindstone than any other folly of which the farmer is capable. We wish every farmer in Mitchell county could have seen this bunch of hogs.

Scholastic Age Advanced.

By the provisions of a bill which passed the recent legislature and is now a law, the scholastic age is advanced to 21 years without tuition. The only feature of this law that may prove objectionable is that it will materially cut down the funds of the schools, as there will be no income from pupils over 17 (the former limit). But it will be of great advantage to young men and women who had no opportunity to complete the public school before attaining the age of 17.

Card of Thanks.

In giving expression to a word of thanks through the columns of the Record, we wish to say that our hearts go out in gratitude to those who in any way rendered assistance and gave words of sympathy in our sad bereavement, occasioned by the death of our dear son and brother. Especially do we wish to thank Bro. Craig, pastor of the Christian church, for conducting the funeral services, and others for the beautiful floral offerings. May God's fullest blessings be with you all, is our most earnest prayer.

Bascom Broadus has again shied his castor into the business ring, took up a couple of holes in his belt, mottened his hands in the usual way and opened an un to the second restaurant in the Shepherd building, next Burns & Bell where he proposes to cater to the yearnings of the inner man for something to eat.

Colorado Slaughtered.

The Westbrook "Red Britches" team came over Saturday and made a Colorado slaughter for a Westbrook holiday. The home boys played like hospital convalescents in comparison with the husky work of the visitors. It manifestly was only because of the obligations of hospitality that prompted the Westbrook bunch to allow Colorado to mutilate the score card. They ploughed around the squared ring a dozen times, while Colorado limped past the home plate but once. Of course, there were as many differing excuses for the defeat as there were home players, and none of them had any reference to lack of knowledge or skill in playing ball—some accident got in the way.

But the patent reason is, that the Westbrook boys had been working out and had agreed on team work. Players, however good individually, can not be thrown together at a moment's notice and hope to defeat even indifferent players who have been disciplined to team work and continuous practice. If Colorado hopes to cut any sort of figure, she had better smoke up and organize her forces.

30,000 VOICES!

And Many Are the Voices of Colorado People.

Thirty thousand voices—What a grand chorus! And that's the number of American men and women who are publicly praising Doan's Kidney Pills for relief from backache, kidney and bladder ills. They say it to friends. They tell it to the home papers. Colorado people are in this chorus. Here's a Colorado case.

G. W. Fuller, horseshoer, Colorado, Texas, says: "Several years ago I was suffering intensely from pain in my back and sides caused by weak kidneys and had other troubles common to kidney sufferers. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I procured two boxes and they cured me. It gives me great pleasure to endorse them."

Sunday was a magnificent day—just such an ideal day as West Texas in one of her amiable moods and holiday clothes, can produce. Everything happy in glees, wheels or wings, was on parade. Conditions were perfect for one's fullest enjoyment and appreciation of the time of recreation and rest. Warm enough to be comfortable, the wind laid, cloudless sky, trees just putting forth the tender leaf, the earth fairly starting at the seams with its pregnancy of life and power; the very joy of living manifest in all animal life—all these actually put to shame complaining critical and never satisfied Man.

COLORADO, TEXAS, APRIL 18, 1913.

There is a strong probability that young King Manuel may be recalled to the throne of Portugal. The republic has never been a success and the affairs of that nation have gotten into a deplorable condition. Emigration has almost depopulated the rural districts, while taxation amounts almost to confiscation. Manuel has learned much since his abdication, exile and life in other countries that will doubtless make him a better and more acceptable ruler than he was or would have been.

The disposition to place the burden of taxation on those best able to bear it, received a new impetus last week when Senator Jones, of Washington, introduced a bill proposing an inheritance tax on all estates except where the bequest is to members of the immediate family in which case there would be an exemption of $25,000 and a reduction in the tax rate. Beginning with 1 per cent tax on estates of $5000, the rate increases with greater amounts until 50 per cent is imposed on fortunes exceeding $15,000,000. No constitutional amendment would be required to impose an inheritance tax.

A ride over the city will convince anyone who has visited many other towns in Texas, that the streets of Colorado are away and beyond those of any other West Texas town—barring none. It was the judgment of Dr. Carrick, inspector in the Holland cleanest town contest that Colorado possessed more concrete sidewalks than any other town in its class visited by him. As a place of residence or permanent home, it offers many advantages. Its water supply alone would be exploited by many other towns as an asset of incalculable worth; but with us our excellent water is but one of several other advantages which we have come to accept simply as a matter of course. The people of Colorado do not realize the value of their own assets.

Which town do you wish to see benefited—Dallas or Colorado? You may possibly say you would rather see your home town prosper than Dallas; but every time you send a dollar to any of the mail order houses which have established branches at Dallas, for goods you can buy from your home merchant, you baffle your words and give your own friends a black eye. These foreign vampires have established branches in Texas because of no love for you, but solely because they can deliver their stuff to you cheaper than if sent from Chicago or other northern cities. They gather your dollars in Texas, but send them whence they will never return to the local channels of trade. That same money spent with your home merchant will surely find its way back into your hands indirectly, for what the home merchant must have.

The Record has never supported Governor Colquitt in his races for the governorship, more because of the crowd behind him than for any objections to him personally; but believe we can give him credit for the good things he has done. He has been the Good Samaritan to the neglected platform demands of the Democratic party during the recent legislature. In the exercise of his veto power he seems to have kept in mind the best interests of the state. In his veto of the bill creating more courts we believe he performed an eminently pious act. We are top-heavy with courts now; what we need is officers who have the nerve and honesty to use the powers already vested in our courts. We need a better administration of justice in the courts we already have, by the elimination of delays, technicalities and the clap-trap that clutters our jurisprudence and prevents the courts transacting business promptly and efficiently.

April 28th will be Arbor Day—a day set aside by this government for planting trees; when every boy, girl and patriotic citizen will co-operate in this most laudable enterprise. Nothing so beautifies, attracts or enhances the money value of a home, as pretty trees. Although it requires more time, patience and work to grow trees in West Texas than many places, the result is worth all it costs. The Record hopes that the day will be observed in Colorado with appropriate exercises and that many trees will be planted.

There was a time when the moral character of a statesman, if he were a national figure, cut little ice with his usefulness and standing. The godlike Webster the brilliant Clay and the matchless Beecher, held the confidence of the people with no lessening of influence, though their moral defects were proverbial. Today they would be stripped of influence and unfrocked by public sentiment and held up to a scorn of a betrayed people. The effort of W. C. P. Breckenridge to defy public sentiment; the prompt and quiet capitulation to it by Foraker; the degrading of our J. W. Bailey; the kicking out of Lorimer, are all cases in point that clean character is becoming a political asset, and when the people find they have been honoring a moral leper, his finish is swift and sure. If there be any truth in the recent charges against a certain western senator who has made a meteoric ascent to place and notoriety, he may as well resign now without feeling the temper of his people by threatening to do so. His name will be Ichabod, and that pretty seldom already.

Don't Expect the Millennium.

A test by actual operation will be required to determine just how far the new tariff bill will simplify and reduce the cost of living. Undoubtedly much relief will be afforded. But if anyone expects the country to return to the 19th century cost of living with the enactment of the bill, he will be mistaken. The trouble is not alone in the advanced price of given commodities but in the necessity of many things which fifty or twenty-five years ago, were not in general use or not in existence. Our tastes have far outrun our earning capacities, and there are many other factors that contribute to the higher cost of living than obtained twenty-five years ago. The reduction the tariff will bring will merely put cheaper living within the power of people; but whether they will be content to confine themselves to the range of relief the bill offers, is another and doubtful question. Those who are compelled to do so, will find relief, while those who have acquired the "spending" habit will simply buy more. Even with the prevailing high prices, there are people who managed to escape the burden by self-denial. When meat went too high, they cut it out with no inconvenience. Like the scourge of boll weevil, the high cost of living has taught the people lessons of economy, which many will not forget. The evil has not been wholly on one side. We spend as much and many times more, for the luxuries as for the necessities of life.

Hall Chambliss, who was indicted on five counts for embezzlement of funds belonging to the West Cotton Mill, plead guilty last week, and on refusal of the state to prosecute, he was given the minimum of two years in each case, but was put immediately on parole or suspended sentence, pending his good behavior.

Capt. R. H. Watlington, the esteemed J. P. of the Loraine precinct, has been transacting legal business at the county capital this week.

The Wisest Are Helpless.

If there be a time in the experience of the average man when he feels more helpless than when brought face-to-face with his first born infant it is when the electric light man comes in to read his "wattmeter." This individual comes in one's place, book and pencil in hand, and while standing flat-footed twenty feet away can read the figures on the meter at a glance when the consumer can hardly distinguish them with a step ladder and reading glass. What is there about the kilowatt and the kilowatt-hour that so mystifies the average citizen and reduces him to a state of incoherent submission to any statement made by the expert or bill rendered for its service?

The gas meter has long been an object of suspicion, but in spite of its innate depravity, men assume to understand it and occasionally dispute its verdicts. But a "wattmeter." How often have you heard one of the many thousands of users of electric current casually tell a neighbor just how much each kilowatt hour is costing him? He knows how much his ice costs; how much he pays his butcher and the milkman; but he is very shady about how much he pays that other servant—electricity.

Cart Before the Horse.

"Experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in none other," has been a proverb since the time men began to make mistakes. Had the people of this community known three years ago what they are just beginning now to learn, they had likely been saved the useless and untimely investment of sixteen thousand good American dollars. Few people believe then, or believe now, that there are sufficient cows in this community to sustain a creamery profitably. The conditions did not then exist favorable to the dairy industry which is the basis of all creameries. But a new era is fast developing. With the general use of the silo the question of feeding any number of milk cows through a winter, or at any other time, will be solved. People did not keep cows because they were not prepared to feed them. With a silo there are a dozen crops, (including wild grasses and even weeds) that can be converted into the most satisfactory feed for cattle. Besides, the silo makes available stuff that otherwise could not be saved for winter feed.

When the silo comes into general use and every progressive farmer has one, the dairy business will begin to grow. This will stimulate the work of the creameries and the wheels of our plant will begin to turn again. It will be on a far different basis from that which it was built. The feed will be here in superabundance; the cows will follow as a natural sequence, and the services of the creamery will be in active demand. We only got the cart where the horse should have been; but it will all work out in good time for the benefit of the community.

"When the Season Opened" A Reminiscence.

Four o'clock p. m. Thursday April 10. This may be put in type later, if the linotypers show up again. The editor is alone—acting as business manager, bookkeeper, reporter, proof-reader, solicitor for advertising, ditto for subscriptions, collector, foreman, pressman, ad man, "make-up man." Everybody in the house—even to the "devil." We ring up Sanger Brothers. Nobody answers. Ditto a wholesale grocery house; ditto a clothing house; ditto a jewelry store; ditto a bank; ditto a lawyer; same way with a doctor; no response from a real estate agent. Nobody answers. What's the matter in Waco? Has everybody vanished? And then we reflect a moment. Why didn't we think of it at the start? Why, of course, most natural and proper thing. Might have known it. Ten-year-old boy would have known, certainly—opening of Base Ball Season, and at Waco at that. Everybody at ball game. Can hear yells of frenzied "fans" at Katy park, six blocks away. Exactly. But what else, save baseball could create such a situation? Never saw the beat of it. Memorable enough to keep the date, Thursday, April 10, Nineteen Thirteen.

"Dallas won." was the story they brought back. It does not matter how it happened. It happened, and that's enough. But the season isn't over. That was a lonesome afternoon.—Waco Tribune.

THE KNOCKER.

The Knocker will knock, as all knockers do, He may hurt his own business, as well as hurt you, But that makes no difference, he sees nothing good. He knocks and does nothing, wouldn't it if he could.

He knocks the new railroad, says there's nothing to it, Knocks the new bank, says it won't last a minute, Knocks the new school house, there's not enough kids, Said the price was too high when they opened the bids.

He knocks at the paper, says 'taint worth a cuss, Knocks at the preacher, he is a mighty weak "muss," Knocks the merchant—says the prices are too high, Knocks at the lawyers—says they all lie.

Knocks at the doctors—says they are all quacks, Says real estate men don't deal in facts, So he knocks and knocks—poor lonesome devil, Trying to get others down to his level.

Oh! give me the booster—the man with a smile, Who gives you the glad hand without any guile, Who will go out of his way to show you around, And tell of the good things found in his town.

When he gets to Heaven at the pearly gate, He will find a welcome, early and late, While the poor old knocker, so sour and crusty, Will find the gate closed and the hinges rusty.

Joy Riding.

The editor is indebted to Mr. Willis, state agency demonstrator for the Overland car, for a delightful spin Sunday morning in one of the very latest models of that popular automobile. It is noiseless and runs as smoothly as a Pullman palace parlor car. Mr. Willis was engineer of the electric light and power plant here about twelve years ago, afterwards going to Dawson county, where he was elected county judge and ran the Dawson County News. He has made a commanding success in selling and demonstrating the Overland cars. The pleasure of the Sunday morning ride was doubled by the distinction of accompanying a banker, and we rode so fast that pedestrians could not distinguish the banker and the newspaper man.

Drive Slowly, Gentlemen.

The entire immunity this community has enjoyed from fatal accidents through fast and at times reckless automobile driving along the public streets, is well nigh miraculous. True, there have been two or three minor accidents, which produced no serious results, and which were due more to mutual confusion than reckless speed, but there is scarcely a town in West Texas where a like number of machines are owned, but has suffered more or less fatal automobile accidents.

With such splendid streets and public roads as Colorado and the whole of Mitchell county offer drivers of autos, we realize the temptation to "burn the wind" whenever one cranks his car and hits the road. The danger is in ratio to the speed on the streets of the town, particularly in turning corners quickly. Much of the prejudice against automobiles is based on this one thing—every other thing, man, beast and vehicle must literally jump out of their way.

Besides the considerations of human rights, there is an ordinance prohibiting a speed above six miles the hour on public streets of a town, which law, we regret is more honored in its breaking than observance. No citizen of the town wants to make voluntary complaint against a friend who compels him to jump for life and limb by a brief warning toot of the horn and so it is that the speed regulation has become a dead letter in our ordinances. It's all right to "hit it up" lively on the country roads and many residential streets, but in the business part of town, where there are always people passing and crossing about, in vehicles and other machines, motives of personal safety, as well as regard for the rights and safety of others—say nothing of the requirements of the law—should prompt drivers to keep within the speed limits. Otherwise, the day will inevitably come when some fatal accident will sadden the lives of more than one family of our town. Just a trifle less steam, gentlemen, and the life and limb of the community will be rendered safer.

Yellow House Manager Contracts Unborn Calves to Spade Ranch.

J. P. White, manager of the Yellow House Ranch, and W. L. Ellwood, owner of the Spade Ranch, have made a contract by the terms of which the latter buys all but 500 of the calves of the former for the year 1913. Prices and terms private. The calves will number about 6,000. The unusual feature is the purchase of such a large number of unborn cattle.

GALVANIZED, AIR-SPACED GYPPRESS LINED SILOS

"THE BEST ON EARTH"

In a class by themselves; at the head and lead all others on the market. Overcomes defects of all others—imperfect curing of silage next the walls, freezing in winter and dry mould in summer.

Conducting materials like concrete, cement, tile stone, brick, convey HEAT OUT and COLD IN, preventing perfect fermentation and producing poor silage. Chemical tests show its nutritive elements have been destroyed.

Tests show the temperature in other silos vary from 120 degrees two feet from top layer, to 70 next the inner wall, showing 50 degrees loss. A galvanized, air-spaced and wood lined silo filled same day showed only 4 degrees loss; proving even temperature and curing.

This is the only silo with a grain door—a feature secured by patent. This silo has never been blown down by wind. Can be enlarged any time to any extent. Being light weight, it never sags out of plumb, like cement and tile silos. Often pays for itself in one season.

In Memory of Mrs. Gregg.

Death always seems terrible to some and glorious to others. It has ever been so since time began, we suppose, but in the present case, while sad to those left behind it was glorious to Mrs. Emily Gregg, the wife of our esteemed citizen, Mr. J. H. Gregg.

Her life had been an unbroken one for God, His cause and the community in which she lived. She fought a good fight, and there are stars in her crown in glory, while we mourn her loss and pen these lines.

Her life made death but the doorway to the greatest life to which we mortals look.

She had impressed her life upon her family and every member is a Christian and prepared to meet her in the better land, when they, too, shall be called to enter in.

She was converted when young and joined the Baptist church and lived in active touch with it all her life. She was a valued member of the Ladies' Aid and her sisters will sorely miss her loving help and wise counsel.

The people who knew her best valued her most. Next door neighbors who lived by her for 18 long years, when they had the best chance to try her, came to her funeral only to say to the writer "there never was a better neighbor or a truer Christian in every time when trials come to test men and women.

Her pastor, who at the time of her funeral, was denied the privilege of being with the family on account of sickness had known her for years, and gave in no uncertain language his splendid tribute of an abiding faith in her life and deep love for her as a Christian and one of God's very own. She was born near Valley Mills, Bonque county, Sept. 15, 1855, and died at her home at Loraine, April 9th, at 12:30 a. m.

Only a part of the family was present as death came earlier than was expected.

She leaves a husband and seven children, Messrs. Roe and Jake Gregg, Misses Oma, Annie Ethel and Willie Gregg and Mrs. Ben Wallis. All live here except Ross at Valley Springs, and Mrs. Wallis, at Alvin.

She was buried from the Baptist church, Rev. J. W. Smith, of the Methodist church officiating for her pastor, who was confined to his bed.

The body was interred at the Loraine cemetery by one of the largest concourse of people that has ever assembled at a funeral in this little town.

There is no uncertainty in the minds of the people about where they will find such a character in the sweet bye and bye. Her family has the great consolation of knowing that she has gone to be with the Master and is only another incentive to draw them heavenward.

A FRIEND.

In Honor of Mrs. Blanc.

Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Burns most pleasantly entertained in honor of Mrs. Blanc, daughter of Mrs. W. V. Johnston. About twenty-four guests were present. On entering, each lady was told to select from a table heaped with Persian ribbons, floss and silk materials for a bag; each had been asked to bring her thimble. Soon all were busy making bags as a prize, as a prize was offered for the one first completed. Mrs. Carter was the first to produce a finished bag and was given a handsome pink brocaded one as a prize. Besides this, the ladies were each given the bag they had made.

A lovely salad course, with hot biscuits, was followed by strawberries and cake. It was, indeed, a lovely afternoon most pleasantly spent.

Dunn beat Ira 10 to 0, and in the game between Cuthbert and Dunn, the score was 5 to 4 in favor of Cuthbert, entitling the Cuthbert boys to the premium. In the game between Cuthbert and Dunn, Claude Hicks, the Cuthbert pitcher, sprained his ankle, and was unable to play any more. To the County or Ex-Officio County Superintendent.

In view of the fact that a great many teachers in the State holding certificates which will expire before the regular June examinations desire to build upon these certificates in accordance with the law before their expiration, and in view of the further fact that the time for grading and reporting upon the papers of the June examination before the summer normal examinations are held is very limited, it has been deemed wise and proper to call a special examination at each of the county seats in the State on May 1, 2 and 3, 1913. This examination will not take the place of the June examination, which will be held on the 5th, 6th and 7th of June, in accordance with the requirements of the law. The papers of all applicants from each of these examinations will be graded and reported upon before the beginning of the first series of summer normal examinations.

You are requested to give notice to the public, through the local papers of your county, and by other available means, with respect to these examinations. It should be noted that the special examination for May is authorized for the issuance of State certificates only. The same rules and regulations which govern the regular examinations will also govern in this instance.

The following is a schedule of the examination:

Thursday, forenoon—History of Education, Physics, Solid Geometry, English and American Literature.

Thursday, afternoon—Psychology, Chemistry, Plane Trigonometry, Book-keeping.

Friday, forenoon—Physical Geography, Physiology and Hygiene, Composition, Plane Geometry.

Saturday, forenoon—Spelling, Writing, Methods and Management, Civil Government, Reading.

Saturday, afternoon—United States History, Algebra, Agriculture, General History.

CONSTIPATION.

Its Cause and How to Cure it.

Eat too much, Stomach feels bloated, All out of sorts, Don't feel like work to-day. Guess I've another case of biliousness. "Take anything?" "Yes; some pills, but no results; suppose I'm getting ironclad. Sometimes I double the dose, then they physic me so hard I'm too weak to work. Think I'll have to try something new."

"Ever try Prickly Ash Bitters?" "No; I've heard a good deal about it, but never tried it."

"Well, you'll be pleased with the results." The purgative action of Prickly Ash Bitters not only removes hard impactions, gas and impurities, but it strengthens the muscular action of the bowels which causes them to move regularly.

Prickly Ash Bitters is a bowel tonic and regulator in the truest sense. It promotes daily evacuations, establishes healthy movements and is the best known remedy for disordered digestion, flatulence and a constipated habit.

D. M. Blackwelder, of Litchfield, Ill., says in the Litchfield News: "I am perfectly willing, in fact glad to testify to the value of Prickly Ash Bitters as a medicine for the kidneys, stomach and bowels. I have used it whenever I needed anything of the kind for the last fifteen years and it has always given satisfaction."

MANY WEST TEXAS MEASURES PASSED.

Irrigation, Land, School of Mines and Cattle Quarantine Bills Among Those Acted Upon Favorably.

A general irrigation bill, a district irrigation bill, a mining bill, the school of mines bill, a West Texas land bill favorable to homesteaders, a bill to establish a normal school in West Texas, an insane hospital in the western part of the state, and a cattle quarantine bill.

These are the accomplishments of the state legislature for El Paso and the western district of Texas, as given by Representative Richard Burgeas, who returned Thursday from Austin. "It was the first legislature that did everything West Texas asked," Mr. Burgeas says. "Not all of the bills passed by the legislature were signed by the governor, but it has refuted the old belief that the legislature was not."

The school of mines bill is now in the hands of the governor and I am trusting that he will sign it. It provides for the establishment of the school of mines in El Paso as a part of the Texas University, providing that El Paso give the grounds and buildings of the military institute. The bill carries an appropriation of $15,000 and its operating expenses will be taken care of out of the general educational fund. It is of interest in this connection that the national congress is considering a bill at the present time granting aid to all schools of mines now in existence. This will make the El Paso school, if it is established, come under this head, as it will become a law if the governor signs it, before the passage of the congressional bill.

The West Texas bill authorizes those who forfeited lands to obtain prior rights to the purchase of such lands upon terms fixed by the land commissioner. A cattle quarantine law, which is an excellent one, establishes efficient quarantine measures for the eradication of all contagious diseases among cattle. The state normal and West Texas insane hospital bills were passed by both houses, but vetoed by the governor.

It was a favorable year for West Texas legislation and much was accomplished for the good of the western part of the state.

IRRIGATED LAND. At Bollinger, Mr. Farmer paid $17,000 for 340 acres of land, and the first year's crop brought the neat sum of $23,160, the rent alone making the owner a net profit of $7,580. Dr. Phenix is now offering a small tract of his farm for only $50 per acre, including water right pumping machinery and all. The first year's crop will more than pay for the land. When he makes one more sale the price is to be raised to $75 or $100 per acre.—Adv.

ADVERTISING AN ASSET.

There are but two businesses that advertising will not stimulate—the undertaking business and house burglary. Every other line is helped thereby, and no class of people can make advertising pay as handsome returns as the farmer. Take an instance at home: A young man began to pay some attention to his chickens, ducks and to the selections of the seed he planted. This was two years ago. He greatly improved the breed of his chickens and ducks, while he produced twice as much cotton by seed selected as he had done before. He had more chickens, ducks and cotton seed on his hands than he could use, which he wished to sell, but had no market.

He ran a 25-cent advertisement one month in The Record, before the expiration of which time he told us he had sold all his cotton seed, while orders for both kinds of eggs were coming in almost daily. He was not able to supply the demand. He bought boxes in which he sent a setting of eggs by parcel post, and found no trouble in disposing of every egg at from $1 to $1.50 per setting. This young farmer has now established a business which will grow just in proportion as he will advertise it and meet the demand with a reliable article. This is no fictitious case, but one right here at home.

It takes a great deal of money for a manufacturer to make any radical change for the better in the quality of his output, but the farmer can by exercising care and attention to the selection and cultivation of his crops produce a better quality of whatever he plants and more of it. This can be done with practically no increase of cost, and he is directly benefitted. Having produced a better crop than his neighbors, he only has to advertise what he has, to sell it at better prices. No line of business can be more greatly stimulated by judicious advertising than farming or stock raising. Every farmer in Mitchell county who has tried it, will testify to this fact.

DRUGGIST GIVES MONEY BACK.

Dodson's Liver Tonic Gets a Four Square Guarantee from Beall's Drug Store.

When an article is sold a druggist who is willing to give it his personal guarantee, it's a mighty strong proof of real merit.

That's exactly the case with Dodson's Liver Tonic. It is a pleasant-tasting, vegetable remedy for a slow and sluggish liver. Since Dodson's Liver Tonic came on the market the sale of calomel has gone way down. The reason is simply this: Dodson's Liver Tonic is safe and harmless and guaranteed to be satisfactory—Calomel is often uncertain, sometimes dangerous, and no druggist wants to guarantee that it won't knock you out of a day's work and maybe send you to bed.

Floyd Beall sells Dodson's Liver Tonic and guarantees it. For you and for your children, it's a good thing to keep a bottle always in the house.

Floyd Beall will give you your money back if you think Dodson's Liver Tonic is not worth the price. "Keep your liver working and your liver will not keep you from working," is good advice to go by.

PAUL'S BIG DEAL

Wins Fortune and a Bride Through Well Timed Speculation in Grain.

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

"Get out and stay out!" yelled old Peter Griscom, irate and aggressive. "And never come back again!" he yelled additionally after his manager that had been, but was never to be again.

Paul Burton took it all quietly and without resentment. It was a rude dismissal, but he was used to the old fellow's furious ways.

"I am sorry, Mr. Griscom," he said simply. "Certainly, however, I have not exceeded my instructions."

"Exceeded!" shouted Griscom. "Why, you've acted like an idiot. Here I leave you, on the first vacation of my life for two weeks. I come back to find that during my absence, for the first time in six years, wheat jumps up to 80. You knew that I had forty thousand bushels in the elevator, bought at 63. Think of it! Sixty-eight hundred dollars profit! And you sat by like a stouthead, and let the golden chance of a lifetime go by. Here wheat has dropped to 65, and may go lower. Oh, I'd like to fight somebody!"

"I won't talk about it. Get out. Stay out!" and old Griscom slammed the door of his office, and Paul Burton went his way.

"If it wasn't for Edna," said the young man to himself, "this would be almost amusing."

Yes, Edna was an element to consider. She had been away with her father on his vacation, and more than once Paul's heart had hungered for a sight of her bonny face. Now a flare-up had come. He was "fired"—ignominiously, and the girl he had secretly loved was a thousand miles away from him, so far as any hopes of winning her were concerned.

Paul Burton, grain clerk in a Chicago board of trade house, had come to

Easton early in the spring, ordered by his physician to get employment where the air was pure and sylvan life a boon. He had just fitted in as bookkeeper for the small country elevator business of Peter Griscom.

When the big price bulge came he was aware that the chance to make a small fortune was at hand, but he dared not act on his own initiative.

Paul hung around Easton the rest of the day, hoping for a sight of Edna. The next morning he went to another village. By the end of the week he had made a circuit of all the county towns, but had not found employment.

"The reserve cash is getting decidedly low," he said, as he went to his room at a little village hotel one night. "Well, I've got my old rugged health back, anyhow. I suppose it's the humdrum of the city again. After Easton! And after Edna! Ah, me!"

Thoughts of the ideal to whom he had never told his love kept Paul wakeful. He found he could not sleep, and got up and sat by the open window, watching the moon and continuing to think of the sweet, innocent face that it seemed he could never forget.

Suddenly his attention was called to a noisy tumult in the next room. Two persons had entered it. They seemed to be strangers on their way to the city after a long western trip. Paul could not help but hear what they said. As he did so his mind became intent.

"We'll wait till we get to the city before we write up our report?" asked one of them.

"Yes," came the definite reply.

"There are so many notes and memoranda to look over, it will take time and a quiet place. I say, there will be some scrambling when the government issues the wheat crop bulletin."

"I should say so," came the answer.

"Why, in the two states alone that I covered the wheat yield is twenty per cent. short."

"I have the data for three states," remarked the other. "It shows up, with blight and rust, nearer thirty per cent."

"Prices will go up."

"Yes, that is certain."

And then the two men went over a lot of details immensely interesting to the listener. Paul realized that unexpectedly there had been disclosed to him facts regarding the coming crop report that were of immense value. He was not an intentional eavesdropper, but he could not escape receiving the valuable information.

With daylight he was out on the streets. He took the first train for Marshall. He recalled a shrewd, sharp trader living there who seemed just the man to impress with the important knowledge he had acquired.

Before noon this man, John Lane, was in his confidence and a sort of provisional co-partnership was cemented. Mr. Lane was to furnish the capital. Paul was to engineer the scheme. It was inevitable in their opinion that wheat would make a tremendous jump in the markets of the world when the shortage report was made public.

It now became the mission of Paul to buy up all the grain he could. A great many, discerning this, held on for good prices, and the quotation rose in the district.

One day Paul went to Easton. He boldly faced the lion in his den. In a business-like, matter-of-fact way he intruded on Mr. Griscom.

"I have come to buy your wheat," he announced, "if it is for sale."

"How much?" inquired the old man, ungraciously and suspiciously.

"Because you fancy my being a stouthead bottle lost you a big profit," observed Paul, "I will offer you 80 cents."

"What!" shouted Griscom incredulously.

"I mean it," nodded Paul, planning to make the trade his own personally. "As it is, I advise you to hold on to your wheat. It will go still higher."

This old Griscom would not believe, but he was so delighted at the bargain that he actually invited Paul to dinner. That meant a sight of pretty Edna. When Paul left Easton that night he felt happy. He had regained old Griscom's good will and Edna had been more than friendly.

A happier man still, however, was Paul a month later. The government report came out, sending prices kiting. Paul and his partner were prepared to take advantage of the wildest grain market known for years. Dollar wheat electrified the farming world, and Burton & Lane sold at top notch price and made a fortune.

The papers were full of the successful coup of the enterprising partners. Dropping off the train at Easton one day, Paul met with a most gracious reception from old Griscom.

"Well," said the latter, "I wish I had held on to that wheat."

"You got a pretty good price for it, as it was," reminded Paul.

"That's so," agreed Griscom. "See here, Mr. Burton, I was rather hasty when I let you go. I suppose you are too well fixed now to think of coming back?"

Paul thought of Edna, and silently mused.

"As a partner, of course," explained Griscom.

"Well, Mr. Griscom," replied Paul slowly, "I was thinking of taking a partner—if I could get her."

"Her?" repeated Griscom, picking up his ears.

"Yes, a young lady—a life partner. As a plain man asking a plain question, Mr. Griscom, can I have your permission to pay my addresses to Miss Edna?"

"That would bring us together in business, too," said old Griscom thoughtfully. "I certainly consider you a remarkably bright young man, Mr. Burton."

"I wonder if Edna thinks so, too," Paul questioned himself.

He asked her that same evening. The result was a double partnership—one of business, and the other of love. (Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman.)

RACE OF PYGMIES INTEREST

In People Recently Discovered in Papua, Scientists See a Connection With the Stone Age.

In a race of pygmies recently discovered in Papua, scientists see another connecting link between the average savage races of today and primitive man of the stone age. Tapiro is the name given to this pygmy race. The men are extremely small but well molded, strong and active. In contrast to the Papuans, they have stocky, well-made calves instead of the thin, straight legs of their neighbors.

Unlike most savages, they do not practice tattooing or cicatrization. Their needs for comfort are few. Each man may carry all his portable property in a sort of haversack, which is slung over his shoulder. This contains his sleeping mat, fire stick, rattan for kindling a flame, tobacco and other odds and ends.

They are remarkably skillful in hewing rough but absolutely balanced canoes from the heavy trunks of trees. The craft are beautifully carved and are propelled by paddles with long shafts and wide blades. Skillful as they are in the making of canoes, their only implements are stone axes and bone knives.

In disposing of their dead they wrap the body in mats and place it in a rude coffin usually constructed of broken canoes. The coffin is raised on a sort of trestle and left until decomposition is complete. The skulls of the dead are kept by their relatives and friends and in a short time become worn smooth from handling.

Indeed, Yes.

"You admit that you stole the man's automobile?" said the stern judge.

"Yes, your honor," replied the prisoner, with downcast eyes.

"And then you broke into a bank and stole money?"

"Why, yes, your honor. You know it takes money to keep an automobile, judge!"

The Valuable Silo.

The state of Texas now contains six silo factories, three of which are located in Fort Worth. No one thing has ever proven more valuable to the stockmen of this state than this same silage as a winter feed. Thousands of head of cattle and other stock can now be kept in good condition through the winter that formerly ran great chances of dying during a winter of short pasturage. No farm is too small, if only half a dozen head of stock are kept, to afford the building of a silo.

The silo enables the farmer to preserve a larger quantity of the food materials of the original fodder for the feeding of his animals than is possible by any other system of preservation now known. It has now been proved in the dairy states that where the silo has been in use for several years producing capacity of the farm is increased at least ten per cent, and often more. A 160 acre farm with a silo will produce as much revenue as one of 180 acres without. As compared with the producing value, the cost of constructing the silo is small. Round wooden or stave silos which are the most generally used in Texas cost from $1.50 to $3.00 per ton capacity, while those of stone, brick or cement from $2 to $4. The average size of the silo in this state is from 90 to 150 tons. To hold 100 tons of silage the structure must be about 14 feet in diameter and 32 feet high. As the silage is always fed from the surface of the stored mass it is necessary that the diameter be such that the surface layer be fed off every day if the feeding is done in warm weather. Therefore the diameter of the silo will vary from ten to fifteen feet to meet the demands of the herd.

Plaintiffs aver that for the purpose of protecting themselves and the interest of the defendant they have purchased the outstanding notes and accounts which they have been able to locate, and in which they were sureties, and are now owners, except as stated of the same and are entitled to maintain suit on same for the entire amount of the same against the defendant, and that if plaintiffs had not done so, there would have been a multiplicity of suits, greatly increasing the cost of Court, expenses and attorney's fees, and that their sole object in buying up the aforesaid notes and accounts was for the purpose of preserving, as far as they could the estate of said defendant and protecting themselves.

Plaintiffs allege that by reason of the defendant making and signing all the notes aforesaid, and delivering the same, he became liable and bound to pay the same, and my making and incurring said accounts, he became liable and bound likewise to pay the same, and also became liable and bound for the attorney's fees specified in said notes, which plaintiffs allege are reasonable.

Plaintiffs allege that they are the owners and holders of the notes aforesaid and the said accounts, except the interest of said Wm. Hall, in the notes mentioned in paragraphs (d), (e), (f), (g), (h) and (i), of section No. 2 of this Petition, and as to such claim Wm. Hall, Plaintiff, J. B. Jordan has full power and authority from said Hall to sue for the said Hall's use and benefit, which also is done for the purpose of avoiding a multiplicity of suits.

Plaintiffs further aver that all the said accounts and notes are due and unpaid, and that though often requested, the defendant has failed and refused and still fails and refuses to pay the same or any part thereof, except as shown.

Plaintiffs aver that the defendant,

H. C. Jordan, is the owner of the following described lands situated in the County of Yoskum, State of Texas, known and sectioned as follows: All of section No. 800, Block "D," certificate No. 120, Original Grantee, John H. Gibson, and containing 640 acres. Also all of section No. 764, Block 8, certificate No. 102, Original Grantee, John H. Gibson, containing 640 acres of land, both of which said sections of land having been originally sold by the State of Texas to the defendant, H. C. Jordan.

Plaintiffs, in order to secure themselves, say that they are entitled to have in an attachment issued and levied upon said above described land, that the debts and the amounts thereof against the defendant, which plaintiffs have been compelled to pay are the sum of Thirty-two hundred Dollars, and will be a greater sum at the time of their return, and that they are entitled to recover for the damages in the premises to be the sum of Four thousand Dollars.

Premises considered, plaintiffs pray that defendant be cited in terms of the law, and that on final hearing hereof, they have judgment for the debt, interest, attorney's fees and costs, and all expenses herein incurred, and that J. B. Jordan do have and recover for the use and benefit of said Wm. Hall, the proportionate amount of said Hall's interest in the notes mentioned in said petition, and referred to especially in Section 5 of this Petition, and for a foreclosure of their attachment lien on the said above described property and for such other and further relief, either in law or in equity, as they may show themselves, and the said Hall entitled to.

Herein fail not, but have before said Court on the said 1st day of the next term thereof, this writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Witness Earl Jackson, Clerk of the District Court, Mitchell County, Texas.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court in the Town of Colorado, Texas, this 10th day of April, 1913.

A BIG LIST OF 'EM.

Contestants From Mitchell County Entered in the $10,000 Crop Contest of the Texas Industrial Congress for 1913.

(Class A, four-crop, model farm; Class B, Texas Corn Club; Class C, Texas Cotton Club; Class D, unirrigated forage crop; Class E, irrigated forage crop.)

Who would have thought it? While the Record and all others interested in the agricultural advancement of Mitchell County, were deploring the fact that so few farmers and their children had shown enough interest in the splendid prizes offered by the Texas Industrial Congress, these same farmers and their children were quietly sending in their names and enrolling for the contests. We print this week a complete list of the enrollment from Mitchell County, a furnished by the secretary of the contest, and were simply amazed when we looked over the long list—108 of them. We notice there are several contestants in the irrigated crops class. This is encouraging, and on the success of these very contestants may depend the development of irrigation in this county. Every farmer whose name does not appear in the list below should determine to get up a contest of his own and endeavor to raise a better and larger crop this good year than ever before in his life:

Its Cause and How to Cure it.

Eat too much, Stomach feels bloated, All out of sorts, Don't feel like work to-day. Guess I've another case of biliousness. "Take anything?" "Yes; some pills, but no results; suppose I'm getting ironclad. Sometimes I double the dose, then they physic me so hard I'm too weak to work. Think I'll have to try something new."

"Ever try Prickly Ash Bitters?" "No; I've heard a good deal about it, but never tried it."

"Well, you'll be pleased with the results." The purgative action of Prickly Ash Bitters not only removes hard impactions, gas and impurities, but it strengthens the muscular action of the bowels which causes them to move regularly.

Prickly Ash Bitters is a bowel tonic and regulator in the truest sense. It promotes daily evacuations, establishes healthy movements and is the best known remedy for disordered digestion, flatulence and a constipated habit.

D. M. Blackwelder, of Litchfield, Ill., says in the Litchfield News: "I am perfectly willing, in fact glad to testify to the value of Prickly Ash Bitters as a medicine for the kidneys, stomach and bowels. I have used it whenever I needed anything of the kind for the last fifteen years and it has always given satisfaction."

MANY WEST TEXAS MEASURES PASSED.

Irrigation, Land, School of Mines and Cattle Quarantine Bills Among Those Acted Upon Favorably.

A general irrigation bill, a district irrigation bill, a mining bill, the school of mines bill, a West Texas land bill favorable to homesteaders, a bill to establish a normal school in West Texas, an insane hospital in the western part of the state, and a cattle quarantine bill.

These are the accomplishments of the state legislature for El Paso and the western district of Texas, as given by Representative Richard Burgess, who returned Thursday from Austin. "It was the first legislature that did everything West Texas asked," Mr. Burgess says. "Not all of the bills passed by the legislature were signed by the governor, but it has refuted the old belief that the legislature was not."

The school of mines bill is now in the hands of the governor and I am trusting that he will sign it. It provides for the establishment of the school of mines in El Paso as a part of the Texas University, providing that El Paso give the grounds and buildings of the military institute. The bill carries an appropriation of $15,000 and its operating expenses will be taken care of out of the general educational fund. It is of interest in this connection that the national congress is considering a bill at the present time granting aid to all schools of mines now in existence. This will make the El Paso school, if it is established, come under this head, as it will become a law if the governor signs it, before the passage of the congressional bill.

The West Texas bill authorizes those who forfeited lands to obtain prior rights to the purchase of such lands upon terms fixed by the land commissioner. A cattle quarantine law, which is an excellent one, establishes efficient quarantine measures for the eradication of all contagious diseases among cattle. The state normal and West Texas insane hospital bills were passed by both houses, but vetoed by the governor.

It was a favorable year for West Texas legislation and much was accomplished for the good of the western part of the state.

IRRIGATED LAND. At Billinger, Mr. Farmer paid $17,000 for 240 acres of land, and the first year's crop brought the neat sum of $23,160, the rent alone making the owner a net profit of $7,580. Dr. Phenix is now offering a small tract of his farm for only $50 per acre, including water right pumping machinery and all. The first year's crop will more than pay for the land. When he makes one more sale the price is to be raised to $75 or $100 per acre.—Adv.

ADVERTISING AN ASSET.

There are but two businesses that advertising will not stimulate—the undertaking business and house burglary. Every other line is helped thereby, and no class of people can make advertising pay as handsome returns as the farmer. Take an instance at home: A young man began to pay some attention to his chickens, ducks and to the selections of the seed he planted. This was two years ago. He greatly improved the breed of his chickens and ducks, while he produced twice as much cotton by seed selected as he had done before. He had more chickens, ducks and cotton seed on his hands than he could use, which he wished to sell, but had no market.

He ran a 25-cent advertisement one month in The Record, before the expiration of which time he told us he had sold all his cotton seed, while orders for both kinds of eggs were coming in almost daily. He was not able to supply the demand. He bought boxes in which he sent a setting of eggs by parcel post, and found no trouble in disposing of every egg at from $1 to $1.50 per setting. This young farmer has now established a business which will grow just in proportion as he will advertise it and meet the demand with a reliable article. This is no fictitious case, but one right here at home.

It takes a great deal of money for a manufacturer to make any radical change for the better in the quality of his output, but the farmer can by exercising care and attention to the selection and cultivation of his crops produce a better quality of whatever he plants and more of it. This can be done with practically no increase of cost, and he is directly benefitted. Having produced a better crop than his neighbors, he only has to advertise what he has, to sell it at better prices. No line of business can be more greatly stimulated by judicious advertising than farming or stock raising. Every farmer in Mitchell county who has tried it, will testify to this fact.

DRUGGIST GIVES MONEY BACK.

Dodson's Liver Tone Gets a Four Square Guarantee from Beall's Drug Store.

When an article is sold a druggist who is willing to give it his personal guarantee, it's a mighty strong proof of real merit. That's exactly the case with Dodson's Liver Tonic. It is a pleasant-tasting, vegetable remedy for a slow and sluggish liver. Since Dodson's Liver Tonic came on the market the sale of colomel has gone "way down. The reason is simply this: Dodson's Liver Tonic is safe and harmless and guaranteed to be satisfactory—Colomel is often uncertain, sometimes dangerous, and no druggist wants to guarantee that it won't knock you out of a day's work and maybe send you to bed.

Floyd Beall sells Dodson's Liver tone and guarantees it. For you and for your children, it's a good thing to keep a bottle always in the house. Floyd Beall will give you your money back if you think Dodson's Liver Tonic is not worth the price. "Keep your liver working and your liver will not keep you from working," is good advice to go by.

PAUL'S BIG DEAL

Wins Fortune and a Bride Through Well Timed Speculation in Grain.

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

"Get out and stay out!" yelled old Peter Griscom, irate and aggressive. "And never come back again!" he yelled additionally after his manager that had been, but was never to be again.

Paul Burton took it all quietly and without resentment. It was a rude dismissal, but he was used to the old fellow's furious ways.

"I am sorry, Mr. Griscom," he said simply. "Certainly, however, I have not exceeded my instructions."

"Exceeded!" shouted Griscom. "Why, you've acted like an idiot. Here I leave you, on the first vacation of my life for two weeks. I come back to find that during my absence, for the first time in six years, wheat jumps up to 80. You knew that I had forty thousand bushels in the elevator, bought at 63. Think of it! Sixty-eight hundred dollars profit! And you sat by like a stoughton bottle, and let the golden chance of a lifetime go by. Here wheat has dropped to 65, and may go lower. Oh, I'd like to fight somebody!"

"I won't talk about it. Get out. Stay out!" and old Griscom slammed the door of his office, and Paul Burton went his way.

"If it wasn't for Edna," said the young man to himself, "this would be almost amusing."

Yes, Edna was an element to consider. She had been away with her father on his vacation, and more than once Paul's heart had hungered for a sight of her bonny face. Now a flare-up had come. He was "fired"—ignominiously, and the girl he had secretly loved was a thousand miles away from him, so far as any hopes of winning her were concerned.

Paul Burton, grain clerk in a Chicago board of trade house, had come to

"I'd Like to Fight Somebody."

Easton early in the spring, ordered by his physician to get employment where the air was pure and sylvan life a boon. He had just fitted in as bookkeeper for the small country elevator business of Peter Griscom. When the big price bulge came he was aware that the chance to make a small fortune was at hand, but he dared not act on his own initiative.

Paul hung around Easton the rest of the day, hoping for a sight of Edna. The next morning he went to another village. By the end of the week he had made a circuit of all the county towns, but had not found employment.

"The reserve cash is getting decidedly low," he said, as he went to his room at a little village hotel one night. "Well, I've got my old rugged health back, anyhow. I suppose it's the humdrum of the city again. After Easton! And after Edna! Ah, me!"

Thoughts of the ideal to whom he had never told his love kept Paul wakeful. He found he could not sleep, and got up and sat by the open window, watching the moon and continuing to think of the sweet, innocent face that it seemed he could never forget.

Suddenly his attention was called to a noisy tumult in the next room. Two persons had entered it. They seemed to be strangers on their way to the city after a long western trip. Paul could not help but hear what they said. As he did so his mind became intent.

"We'll wait till we get to the city before we write up our report?" asked one of them.

"Yes," came the definite reply. "There are so many notes and memoranda to look over, it will take time and a quiet place. I say, there will be some scrambling when the government issues the wheat crop bulletin."

"I should say so," came the answer. "Why, in the two states alone that I covered the wheat yield is twenty per cent. short."

"I have the data for three states," remarked the other. "It shows up, with blight and rust, nearer thirty per cent."

"Prices will go up." "Yes, that is certain." And then the two men went over a lot of details immensely interesting to the listener. Paul realized that unexpectedly there had been disclosed to him facts regarding the coming crop report that were of immense value. He was not an intentional eavesdropper, but he could not escape receiving the valuable information.

With daylight he was out on the streets. He took the first train for Marshall. He recalled a shrewd, sharp trader living there who seemed just the man to impress with the important knowledge he had acquired.

Before noon this man, John Lane, was in his confidence and a sort of provisional co-partnership was cemented. Mr. Lane was to furnish the capital. Paul was to engineer the scheme. It was inevitable in their opinion that wheat would make a tremendous jump in the markets of the world when the shortage report was made public.

It now became the mission of Paul to buy up all the grain he could. A great many, discerning this, held on for good prices, and the quotation rose in the district.

One day Paul went to Easton. He boldly faced the lion in his den. In a business-like, matter-of-fact way he intruded on Mr. Griscom.

"I have come to buy your wheat," he announced, "if it is for sale."

"How much?" inquired the old man, ungraciously and suspiciously.

"Because you fancy my being a stoughton bottle lost you a big profit," observed Paul, "I will offer you 80 cents."

"What!" shouted Griscom incredulously.

"I mean it," nodded Paul, planning to make the trade his own personally. "As it is, I advise you to hold on to your wheat. It will go still higher."

This old Griscom would not believe, but he was so delighted at his bargain that he actually invited Paul to dinner. That meant a sight of pretty Edna. When Paul left Easton that night he felt happy. He had regained old Griscom's good will and Edna had been more than friendly.

A happier man still, however, was Paul a month later. The government report came out, sending prices kiting. Paul and his partner were prepared to take advantage of the wildest grain market known for years. Dollar wheat electrified the farming world, and Burton & Lane sold at top notch price and made a fortune.

The papers were full of the successful coup of the enterprising partners. Dropping off the train at Easton one day, Paul met with a most gracious reception from old Griscom.

"Well," said the latter, "I wish I had held on to that wheat."

"You got a pretty good price for it, as it was," reminded Paul.

"That's so," agreed Griscom. "See here, Mr. Burton, I was rather hasty when I let you go. I suppose you are too well fixed now to think of coming back?"

Paul thought of Edna, and silently mused.

"As a partner, of course," explained Griscom.

"Well, Mr. Griscom," replied Paul slowly, "I was thinking of taking a partner—if I could get her."

"Her?" repeated Griscom, picking up his ears.

"Yes, a young lady—a life partner. As a plain man asking a plain question, Mr. Griscom, can I have your permission to pay my addresses to Miss Edna?"

"That would bring us together in business, too," said old Griscom thoughtfully. "I certainly consider you a remarkably bright young man, Mr. Burton."

"I wonder if Edna thinks so, too," Paul questioned himself.

He asked her that same evening. The result was a double partnership—one of business, and the other of love. (Copyright, 1913, by W. O. Chapman.)

RACE OF PYGMIES INTEREST

In People Recently Discovered in Papua, Scientists See a Connection With the Stone Age.

In a race of pygmies recently discovered in Papua, scientists see another connecting link between the average savage races of today and primitive man of the stone age. Tapiro is the name given to this pygmy race. The men are extremely small but well molded, strong and active. In contrast to the Papuans, they have stocky, well-made calves instead of the thin, straight legs of their neighbors.

Unlike most savages, they do not practice tattooing or scarification. Their needs for comfort are few. Each man may carry all his portable property in a sort of haversack, which is slung over his shoulder. This contains his sleeping mat, fire stick, rattan for kindling a flame, tobacco and other odds and ends.

They are remarkably skillful in hewing rough but absolutely balanced canoes from the heavy trunks of trees! The craft are beautifully carved and are propelled by paddles with long shafts and wide blades. Skillful as they are in the making of canoes, their only implements are stone axes and bone knives.

In disposing of their dead they wrap the body in mats and place it in a rude coffin usually constructed of broken canoes. The coffin is raised on a sort of trestle and left until decomposition is complete. The skulls of the dead are kept by their relatives and friends and in a short time become worn smooth from handling.

Indeed, Yes. "You admit that you stole the man's automobile?" said the stern judge.

"Yes, your honor," replied the prisoner, with downcast eyes.

"And then you broke into a bank and stole money?"

"Why, yes, your honor. You know it takes money to keep an automobile, judge!"

The Valuable Silo.

The state of Texas now contains six silo factories, three of which are located in Fort Worth. No one thing has ever proven more valuable to the stockmen of this state than this same silage as a winter feed. Thousands of head of cattle and other stock can now be kept in good condition through the winter that formerly ran great chances of dying during a winter of short pasturage. No farm is too small, if only half a dozen head of stock are kept, to afford the building of a silo.

The silo enables the farmer to preserve a larger quantity of the food materials of the original fodder for the feeding of his animals than is possible by any other system of preservation now known. It has now been proved in the dairy states that where the silo has been in use for several years producing capacity of the farm is increased at least ten per cent, and often more. A 160 acre farm with a silo will produce as much revenue as one of 180 acres without. As compared with the producing value, the cost of constructing the silo is small. Round wooden or stave silos which are the most generally used in Texas cost from $1.50 to $3.00 per ton capacity, while those of stone, brick or cement from $2 to $4. The average size of the silo in this state is from 90 to 150 tons. To hold 100 tons of silage the structure must be about 14 feet in diameter and 32 feet high. As the silage is always fed from the surface of the stored mass it is necessary that the diameter be such that the surface layer be fed off every day if the feeding is done in warm weather. Therefore the diameter of the silo will vary from ten to fifteen feet to meet the demands of the herd.

Combining beauty, grandeur and usefulness and representing the patriotic devotion of loyal Texans to the memory of the pioneers who fought for and won liberty, the Alamo Heroes Monument, to be erected in San Antonio on ground hallowed by the blood of the fortress' defenders who preferred death to surrender, will be one of the greatest works ever undertaken in Texas. Its graceful lines that emphasize rather than conceal the rugged strength of the structure will mark it as a work of art; its great height and the massive character of the base, its columns and statuary within and without will give it grandeur, and its usefulness to the people of the whole state will be realized in its galleries, its auditoriums, its museums, its art gallery, its halls for state and national patriotic societies or associations and its individual rooms for each county in Texas for the maintenance of art or historical exhibits.

The Alamo Heroes Monument will rise to a height of 802 feet, the highest structure in the world. It has been designed along modern lines to possess strength and stability such as would not have been possible when the tower of Babel was built, for modern engineering has made possible feats that were impossible then or, for that matter, were impossible only a generation ago; yet with all the advance the science of engineering has made this monument will be one of the greatest accomplishments. It will contain four spacious auditoriums, a museum, an art gallery and statuary hall and a separate room for every county in Texas, to be devoted by each to the encouragement of art and history, by the maintenance of exhibits along these lines associated with that county. Near the top balconies will be provided for visitors that wish to take a look into the neighboring counties through the large telescopes to be provided for that purpose.

The base of the monument will be of solid granite rising to a height of fifty feet. On this base will be placed at each corner of the monument and arranged around the shaft huge pillars, each eight feet in diameter and seventy feet high, all of solid Texas granite. These pillars will be surmounted by heroic-size statues of Travis, Crockett, Bowie and Bonham, the four great leaders who died in the Alamo with the men in their commands who had followed them devotedly in the early days of the campaign for liberty, and who did not hesitate to follow them even to death. Above these statues will be placed the six flags that have waved at different times over Texas, the Lone Star and the United States flags in the center, and on each side the flag of the Confederate States of America, of Mexico, Spain and France. Place will be made, too, for an emblem representing the Indian tribes that possessed this land before the Spanish adventurers found their way here.

The exquisite grandeur of design and the architecture of the structure will impress itself on the mind whether viewed from without or within. The great lobby will focus the extent and magnitude of the monument like a beautiful and magnificent image that takes possession of the thoughts to the exclusion for the moment of all else. Everything about the structure will be on grand proportions and the lobby will be one of the most impressive sights of the monument. Visitors are to have free access to it at all times. Its inside measurements will be 82½ feet square, which also will be the inside measurements of the auditoriums, museum and art gallery, each of which will be larger than any hall in San Antonio today. The ceiling of the lobby will be fifty feet high, an opening is carried up through each succeeding story until it reaches a height of 700 feet. Here will be set into the ceiling, beautifully lighted by electricity, the Lone Star of Texas.

The space for one hundred feet beneath the star will have no opening from without to admit the light, so this star will be almost as brilliant in the day as at night.

The elevators in the monument, four in all, will be located between the massive columns as far up as these extend, which will be to a height of 120 feet from the ground, and above that in the shaft, in which one will be placed in each corner and extending to the base of the dome. These elevators will have large carrying capacity, which will be necessary to accommodate the immense crowds that will visit the monument.

The rooms apportioned to the different counties of Texas, in number between 275 and 300 (for some will have to be provided for new counties that will be created in the years to come) will be located within the shaft of the monument, above the four floors in which will be placed the auditorium, museum, art gallery and chambers for patriotic organizations. These will be reached by the elevators, one of which will be designated to serve them while the other will run on express schedules between the first landing at a height of about 120 feet, and the balconies at the top.

The dome of the monument will not be open to visitors, but will be offered to the federal government for an observatory such as is now maintained at a few places in the United States and which is much needed in the south. At the very top of the great structure will be located a powerful searchlight, the strongest that it will be possible to obtain. This powerful light may be turned on far-away towns if so desired, but generally it will be turned towards the clouds and its rays will be visible at great distances, far beyond points from which the great tower itself may be seen.

For the maintenance of this monument an admission price of fifty cents will be charged to the museum and art gallery, and another price of fifty cents will be charged for a trip in one of the four elevators to the balconies near the top of the structure. These now are for sale at half price, that is, one ticket now being sold for the building fund will entitle the holder to admission to art gallery and museum and to the elevator trip to the balconies and return. It is contemplated to raise the sum of two million dollars for its construction by and through the sale of four million admission tickets at half price. There are four million inhabitants in Texas and this association, with the aid of its county organizations which are now being formed, purposes raising fifty cents for each inhabitant in each county. The projectors of the monument believe that this amount may be raised within one year by hard work and estimate that three years will be required to construct the monument. On this basis they hope in 1918, the two hundredth anniversary of the building of the Alamo chapel, the cornerstone of Texas Liberty, Texas may unveil the most magnificent and tallest monument in all the world. Then loyal Texans may feel that they have paid a debt of gratitude owed to those valiant and sacrificing men who gave their lives to free Texas from oppression.

Many persons feel they cannot afford to give anything to this great work, and others may not consider it worth fifty cents to them to live in a free country where their lives and property are safe, forgetful that Travis and his brave band gave their lives in this cause, but there are many that will contribute not only for themselves but for others also, will do far more than their share, each of them, because of being loyal Texans and above sectional pride and prejudice. That posterity may know who have helped to build this monument, a card index or register will be kept in the archives which will show each contributor to the building fund, each card bearing the signature of one donor and a record of place and birth, residence in Texas and amount contributed. These cards will be in the custody of the superintendent of the monument and be preserved in the museum where they may be seen and studied by visitors.

Active work of raising the building fund was begun a few weeks ago, tickets having been placed in banks and trust companies throughout Texas for sale to those desiring them, each bank retaining the money received on deposit until called for by the trustees to be put to the use for which it is given. Already much interest in the monument has been aroused and county agents are explaining the plan and purpose to the people in their respective territories, arousing more interest every day, so the monument fund is increasing rapidly. Each day brings nearer the time when the actual work of constructing this new world's wonder may be begun, each ticket purchased makes this work possible.

HERE'S AN "AD" FOR THE "35" IN VERSE

We want a Studebaker, Dad,
And nothing else will do;
We want to get a good machine,
Just for me and you.

We've tried the others, fair and square,
Myself, as well as you;
Unless you spend a quite large sum,
They're nothing but a "Boo."

Just look at its fine finish,
That always looks like new,
Its aristocratic body—
Their equal, Dad, is few.

My Jack now has a car like this,
And he is always right,
And you know Jack my dear old Dad,
He's always in the fight.

He says that its rear axle,
Full-floating as it is,

Is just the kind that you should buy,
And Jack Dad, knows his biz.

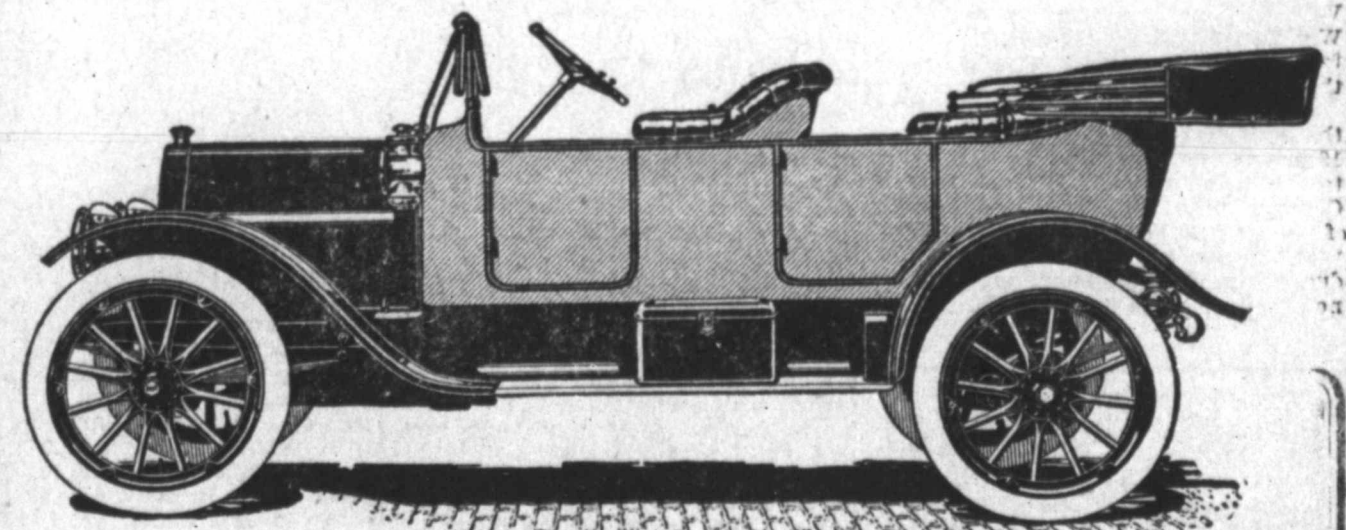

Its motor, which is simple
He says is just the thing,
And when Jack says a thing like this,
My hat is in the ring.

And Gee! that electric starter
That starts without a crank,
Just pull the string and off she goes!
And its failing record's blank.

Electric lights you know, it has
That light when you desire
And the beauty of that is, Dad,
You don't have to have a fire.

And when you sum the whole thing up,
And still be fair and square
It's just the thing that we both want,
The "35" is there!

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering, and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by all dealers.

Bounties were paid on 5,437 rabbit scalps by the county this week, checked up by the commissioners' court. There were 2,083 jack rabbit scalps and 3,354 mottles. At this rate, which is about an average for the year, and all the counties warring on them at the same time, it does look as if the tribe would soon be decimated. But when we reflect that they multiply something like an hundred fold annually, the difficulty in cleaning them up becomes apparent.

HOW'S YOUR SOLE? If it is not saved you are in a bad fix. But you can have it put in good order, promptly, with small expense by taking it immediately to TOM PAYNE, The reliable Cobbler and Boot Maker. He'll save your sole while you wait, or turn out a pair of boots in short order. When you come for your work, bring the price with you. Short settlements make long friendships.

One of the season's big dramatic successes is "Along the Kennebec," which will be seen at the Colorado opera house Tuesday night, April 22nd. The scenery for this production is said to surpass anything ever carried by a rural production, as every scene and picture is staged with special scenery, and fine music is furnished by the company's own band. The play is full of good comedy and the comedians of the company are said to make the most of the laughable side of "Along the Kennebec" and also introduce many pleasing singing and dancing specialties.

Frank Rickard, an old time Coloradoan and formerly express driver at this place, was visiting the scenes of his early days this week. His backing a loaded wagon into a lighted street lamp at the corner of Front and Walnut streets, was the origin of a fire that swept everything from the corner to the alley, and which entailed quite a long drawn litigation as to responsibility. The express company paid the freight in the end.

There is no better medicine made for colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions, aids expectoration, and restores the system to a healthy condition. For sale by all dealers.

A fishing party made up of Messrs. E. R. Williford, R. P. Price and the latter's brother, O. B. Price, left Tuesday morning for the North Concho, where they will commune with nature in her varying moods and incidentally tempt the finny tribe to take the hook.

Tomorrow is the date for the arrival of the Dallas Trade Excursion, and though it is scheduled to arrive rather early and will remain but forty minutes, still, there should be a respectable number of "leading citizens" at the station to extend them the glad hand. It may serve to bring out a crowd by saying one of the best brass bands in the state will accompany the excursion, and at every stop will unlimber a time or two to stir up the natives. Come out and hear the music.

Do you know that cold red danger lurks in a common cold than in any other of the minor ailments? The safe way is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a thoroughly reliable preparation, and rid yourself of the cold as quickly as possible. The remedy is for sale by all dealers.

Mrs. Robt. Terrell, who accompanied her brother, W. T. Mullin, to Roscoe and remained with him several days in order to observe the result of the treatment, tells us that she is much encouraged to hope for his great betterment, if not ultimate recovery. SCHOOL PROGRAM.

Friday afternoon at the auditorium a joint session of the literary societies of the high school was held. The program was unusually good, showing much work and preparation. Mrs. Whipkey gave the opening piano solo, then readings, songs and music followed. A play—The Uninvited Guest—was given by the girls of the eighth and ninth grades. This was very fine showing a feast in boarding school with the teachers and one girl as the uninvited guests. Another play with Frank McLure, Van Ellis and Ella Mae Reese as the star actors, was very funny, and splendidly carried out. A large number of guests were present and all very much enjoyed the occasion.

THE PLACE TO EAT.

I have opened a restaurant and short order eating house in the Shepherd building next Burns & Bell, where "pure food" and perfectly sanitary conditions will be first consideration. I will cater particularly to the fastidious trade, and ladies unattended, can feel perfectly free to come here at all hours and find a privacy equal to that of their own homes. I will make a specialty of Sunday dinner, thus saving all trouble and worry for those who wish to attend church. I ask a share of the public patronage, based on the best of service and an attractive place. H. B. BROADDUS. Proprietor "Pure Food" Restaurant.

"It didn't kill me, but I think it would, if it had not been for Hunt's Cure. I was tired, miserable and well nigh used up when I commenced using it for an old and evere case of eczema. One application relieved me and box cured me. I believe Hunt's Cure will cure any form of itching known to mankind. CLIFTON LAWRENCE, Helena, Okla.

"Along the Kennebec," a New England comedy, with a fine band, comes to Colorado Opera House Tuesday night. The piece is now in its third successful season and has met with popular approval wherever presented, and has been used as a text by two ministers in their sermons. The play is full of comedy hits. It is comedy that a girl or woman can laugh at and not blush at the same time. The burlesque duel scene in the third act between Zeke Dasher and Bimrick Tubbs is said to be one scream from start to finish and five other comedy characters keep the audience in a happy frame of mind. All special scenery is carried for the production. Some pleasing singing and character specialties are introduced during the action of the piece, and "Along the Kennebec" sends its audience home feeling pleased and satisfied that "Along the Kennebec" has been in town.

Regular communication of Mitchell Lodge No. 563, Saturday night; work in Master's degree. All Master Masons are invited to meet with us. C. M. ADAMS, W. M. Earl Jackson, Sec'y.

Special Notice to My Customers. Owing to the rapidly advancing price of all kinds of meats, such as beef, pork, sausage, mutton etc., I will be compelled to make some adjustments in my prices. All regular meals will remain at the same old price of 25 cents, but when special or short orders are given, each article will be charged for separately.

I make this explanation for the benefit of my old and regular patrons. The traveling people have been paying more than I have been charging for some time and wondering how I could continue short orders at 25 cents when meats are so dear. With the further advance this week in all meats, I am compelled to make this advance also on special orders. Remember, regular meals will still be only 25 cents.

No man appreciates his friends more than I do, or will do more to serve them, and I am sure they realize I am forced to do this in self-protection. I will continue to give the best our market affords and appreciate a continuance of your patronage.

Yours to serve, JAKE MAURER, The Old Reliable Restaurant. 5-1c

Make Us Prove It

We dare not exaggerate to you. We are dependent upon your patronage. To get it we must have your trust and confidence. We make the following statements with a full understanding of what they mean to us. You are safe when you believe in these statements.

For the Bowels

If you only knew as much as we and those who have used them know about Rexall Orderlies, you would be as enthusiastic about recommending them as we are. They taste just like candy. They act so easily and so pleasantly that the taking of them is a pleasure.

Even children like Rexall Orderlies; and you know that if a medicine appeals to a child, it will appeal to grown-ups.

Rexall Orderlies

help chase gloom, dispel blues and make you feel happy by their splendid tonic, cleansing and strengthening effect upon the bowels.—They act to free the system—and keep it free—from the distress and ill feeling that naturally results from irregular and inactive bowels.

Rexall Orderlies do this quietly, without griping or causing nausea, purging or excessive looseness. They act to overcome and remove the cause

The special train bearing the business men of Dallas, which will pass through this city April 19th, arriving at 8:50 and leaving at 9:30 a. m., will be equipped with complete telephone equipment by which those on board may communicate with one another while the train is in motion and at the principal points en route may place local and long distance calls as they desire.

As soon as the train reaches this city linemen will be ready to connect telephones on this special train with the local switchboard, and calls will be handled exactly as from any residence or business house. For the information of those who may desire to call the train, the number of the special telephone will be 432.

Complete miniature switchboard will be installed in the baggage car of the special train and an operator will connect lines from each car as directed. The train telephone system extends from the locomotive cab to the rear platform. This will be in service all the time. It will not be necessary to walk back and forth through the train to find friends and business associates who may be in some other car.

The Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Company will be represented on this trip by General Commercial Superintendent P. K. Baker.

Date of Baptist Meeting.

The date of the beginning of the meeting at the Baptist church was announced in last week's Record as April 27th, when it should have been the 20th—next Sunday. Rev. W. M. Merrill, of Abilene, will do his preaching and a very successful meeting is being hoped and prayed for.

No Calomel Necessary.

The injurious effects and unpleasantness of taking calomel is done away with by Simmon's Liver Purifier, the mildest known Liver medicine, yet the most thorough in action. Put up in yellow tin boxes only. Price 25c. Tried once; used always.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF.

The person who buys property in the town of Colorado, who spends both time and money in its improvement, certainly has every right as a taxpayer and constructive citizen to expect that his property shall not be molested or damaged. There is a point at which innocent and harmless fun becomes malicious mischief and vandalism, and which deserves the punishment our law provides. Mr. Thomas Dawes purchased the old brick school building and has gone to no small expense in its improvement and repair. Certain boys (undoubtedly men could not be capable of such petty mischief) have for some time worried him by means that can only be evolved from sappy gray matter of adolescence. So long as their pranks produced no damage, Mr. Dawes has seen fit to make no complaint, believing the mood would pass. But recently their annoyance has taken a more serious turn. They throw stones through his windows at night and despoilate in many other ways. Mr. Dawes thinks he has done his part by patience and forbearance and will hereafter seek redress at law, and if these vandals can be caught they will be taught a wholesome lesson. He gives this ample warning, but hopes the boys will see the unmanly and vicious side of the fun and stop it of their own volition.

Buy a box of Rexall Orderlies at our store. Use them once, or use up the whole box. Then, if you are not thoroughly satisfied, just come back empty handed and tell us. Without obligating you or questioning you we will return the money you paid us for them.

We particularly recommend Rexall Orderlies for children, delicate and aged persons. Rexall Orderlies come in convenient vest-pocket size tin boxes. 12 tablets, 10c; 36 tablets, 25c; 60 tablets, 50c.

Mr. Sam Snowden requests us to state that he has determined the most effective time to kill rattlesnakes, and is anxious that everyone else should know it. He said he was so badly scared several times last summer that he determined to find out when they could be easiest exterminated. The first warm days of spring, they come out to lie in the sun for a week or two before they begin their peripatations in search of food. After locating their den where they have hibernated by the hundreds, they can always be found sunning at the same place every bright day. A target rifle or shot gun with plenty of ammunition will do the rest.

There was a larger crowd in town Saturday than for some time, and there was noticeable among them a spirit of optimism and confidence that this year would be a good one. They are all preparing to do their part, believing that nature will do hers. This section of West Texas has a good crop year coming, and we all believe this will be the one—just such another as we had in 1906. Believing this and working in full confidence to that end, will do much to bring it to pass. In these latter days, believing is seeing; we work out our faith to realization. If we did not believe we were going to have a good crop this season, we would do absolutely nothing toward bringing it to pass.

It is a common sight at night to see numbers of fishermen wending their way up or down the river with worm can and poles long enough to stay in town and fish in any of the neighboring holes of water. Fishing in West Texas has always been to us a huge joke. Longer poles are used here than one sees at Galveston. But fishing is fishing, no matter what one is after, and it's the uncertainty, after all, that gives zest to the sport.
