TO ALL INTERESTED IN CANNING.

Not only the wives and daughters of the farmers of Mitchell county, but those of Colorado, as well, and all interested in the process of canning fruits and vegetables, are urged to apply to County Demonstrator, W. A. Dulin, for copies of the most recent bulletins from the federal department of agriculture on the most scientific and successful process of canning. It is the purpose of the agricultural department that these valuable bulletins be placed in the hands of people who will appreciate their usefulness and use the methods approved. Copies can be had free by calling at the Colorado Chamber of Commerce.

J. A. Buchanan, Secretary.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

All who expect to take the farmers' short course at the A. & M. College, beginning July 26th, are requested to notify W. A. Dulin, county demonstrator, that entertainment may be arranged for them at the college.

The condition of "starving to death in the midst of plenty" is verified in the inability of the moderate priced auto factories to keep up with the demand for their machines. The Ford agencies seem to be the only ones able to deliver the goods on demand. It is not so much a matter of what make of car one prefers, as to which one can be gotten in the current season. D. A. Neal and D. S. Nettles annexed a Ford last Saturday, while J. A. Dunn of Lorraine, contented himself with the acquisition of a Studebaker "Four."

COMEDY OF MISHAPS ATTEND HAM REVIVAL AT SWEETWATER.

The Ham-Ramsey evangelistic campaign which has been in progress in Sweetwater for the past five weeks ended last night. The number of converts was 600 and the free-will offering given to Evangelist Ham amounted to $900. Dr. Ham went at once to his home in Anchorage, Ky., Mr. Ramsey to Chattanooga, Mr. Baumgartel to Hamlin, Texas, where he will conduct a meeting, and Mr. Matthews arrived in San Angelo this morning and will visit friends here. The party reassembles at Temple, Texas, the last Sunday in August.

"A series of unusual incidents marked the Sweetwater meeting," said Mr. Matthews. "A man wrote to me and threatened to fill me full of buckshot if I continued to wobble while playing the piano. He said it was the most idiotic stunt he ever saw. Dr. Ham's voice disappeared for an entire day and he could only talk in whispers. One pastor's home burned down while the meeting was in progress. Evangelist Ham received an invitation to attend a dance in a neighboring city at 4 a. m. Fourth of July. Oscar Chittwood 'hit the trail' one night and then went home and prayed for the Lord to restore his wife's voice. She had been totally mute since last March. He got up from his knees and she spoke to him at once in her normal voice and testified at the tabernacle that night. One pastor had a fight with a Sweetwater citizen before the services and they were reconciled at the altar. One of the pastors disagreed with Dr. Ham about the method of conducting the revival and following a spectacular speech at the morning service withdrew from the revival followed by his congregation. Up to this time, though within ten days of the close of the meeting, there had been only 64 converts. Afterwards there were over 500. At street meetings the Ham-Ramsey party occupied one corner, a socialist orator another and a medicine salesman another. A terrific hail storm so riddled the roof of the tabernacle that it was impossible to repair it. A heavy wind-storm broke up one meeting in the middle of the sermon. In the midst of one 'after-service' some one threw a rock through the plate glass window of a bank adjacent to the tabernacle and the report of robbers flashed through the audience. The best solo sung in the campaign was sung by a colored girl. Practically every railroad man running into Sweetwater was converted. Business houses closed for the morning service throughout the campaign. Eighty-five converts 'hit the trail' in a single night. One church received seventy-five members Sunday. Two men broke out of jail while the jailers were at the meeting."—San Angelo Standard.

The revival came to a close Sunday afternoon after a campaign lasting about five weeks. The revival was a most wonderful success in many respects. Never before have so many people been reached with the gospel and many men who have hitherto stood aloof from all religious services have aligned themselves with the work and are now among the most enthusiastic workers. Five hundred and seventy persons were included in the number that made public confessions, were reclaimed or otherwise won back to the service of the master. —Sweetwater Reporter.

JOINT INSTALLATION.

The officers elect of both the subordinate lodge and Rebekahs, I. O. O. F., were jointly installed last Monday night by District Deputy Grand Master Simon, of Lorraine. After these ceremonies, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Several visitors from Snyder were guests on this occasion.

FARMERS' UNION, ATTENTION!

An important meeting of the Farmers' Union is called to meet at the county court house on Monday, July 18th, at 2 o'clock sharp. A full representation is urged, as matters of much importance will be under consideration.

E. M. McCRELESS.

CONSTABLE KILLED; DEPUTY FATALLY WOUNDED AT DANCE.

Brownsville, Tex.—Pablo Falsot, a constable, was shot and killed and E. Cueller, a deputy sheriff, was fatally wounded at a Mexican dance early today here.

Special attention given Palm Beach suits at Greene's.

HOLT BURIAL QUIET.

Few Attend Funeral at Dallas Sunday of Morgan's Assailant.

Dallas, July 11.—The body of Frank Holt, assailant of J. P. Morgan, was buried in Oak Hill cemetery in Dallas late today. J. P. Mussett of Fort Worth delivered the sermon at the grave. The funeral procession was composed of but few carriages.

However, a large number of friends of Rev. O. F. Sensabaugh, Holt's father-in-law, congregated in the cemetery. The grave was covered with floral offerings from friends of Mrs. Holt and Dr. Sensabaugh.

Holt's body arrived in Dallas early today by express, but attracted very little attention.

The body of Holt was taken directly from the railroad station to a local undertaker's establishment. Later in the day the casket was opened and the body viewed by Mrs. Holt and other members of the Sensabaugh family. Except for a slight facial discoloration, it is said, the features appeared natural.

The body remained at the undertaker's until 5 o'clock this afternoon, at which hour the funeral procession started for the cemetery.

Members of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, under whose auspices the funeral services were conducted, acted as pallbearers. They included former Mayor S. J. Hay of Dallas and Postmaster B. M. Burgher.

A BUSY INDUSTRY.

We paid a visit Tuesday afternoon to the McMurry orchard and canning plant now in operation. It was an interesting and busy scene that was encountered on arrival upon the grounds. A dozen boys, working under the direction of Mr. W. C. Brown, an experienced canner, were bringing in the peaches from the orchard, cutting them up and filling the cans, which were soldered by a simple twist of a circular soldering iron, transferred to the cooker, thence to a tub of hot water, and after all air had been exhausted, the vent hole was sealed in a jiffy and the finished product packed away in boxes.

The capacity of the cooking plant is, of course, the limit of the daily output. The cooker now in use was guaranteed for 1500 cans output daily, but Mr. McMurry says about 600 cans per day is the best he has been able to get out of it. A larger capacity cooker will soon be installed. He is now putting up pie peaches, but will begin next week on the choicer varieties, many of which will be put up in the syrup. Of this latter kind, the orchard produced an abundance this season. Only the culled fruit will be canned, and every can put up by this plant, has behind it the personal guarantee of Mr. McMurry.

The Record is glad to see this industrial move by Mr. McMurry. It is a move toward a better economical condition in Mitchell county, and a long step toward the ultimate solution of that ever vexing problem of the cost of living. We hope this pioneer work on the part of Mr. McMurry, may not only prove of immediate profit to himself, but encourage many others to a like course next year.

A. & M. COLLEGE EXCURSION RATES.

Rates from Colorado to College Station, on account of Farmers' Congress and Institute and Good Roads Meeting, July 26th and August 8th, 1915, will be $8.50 for the round trip. Selling dates, July 25th-26th; August 1st, 2nd and 4th. Limit August 9th. No reduction for children.

SPECIAL PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES.

The superintendent, teachers and trustees of Colorado public schools, will co-operate to the height of their ability to make the next session of the schools the most successful and valuable in its history. To this end a full attendance is urged.

Pupils wishing to transfer must attend to this matter before August 1st, as that date is the limit in which transfers can be made.

O. E. S. MEETING.

The local chapter of the Eastern Star will meet next Thursday night at the Masonic hall. A full attendance is requested, as important business will come before the chapter.

SCALP CLAIMANTS SWAMP THE COURTS.

Commissioners "Snowed Under" With Jackrabbit and Wolf Scalps Monday.

The commissioners' court of Mitchell county, beginning the July term Monday, was fairly swamped with jackrabbit and wolf scalps. This was the first meeting of the court since the new bounty law went into effect.

The crowd had hardly begun to arrive at 10 o'clock, yet 7086 jackrabbit and 127 wolf scalps had been laid before the commissioners. This represented an outlay of $354.30 for rabbit scalps and $254.00 for wolf scalps, the bounty being five cents each on the former and $2 each for the latter. Men and boys from all parts of the county presented their claims to the court and received their vouchers good for a check when presented to the county treasurer. Each claimant had to make affidavit that the scalps turned in by him were secured in Mitchell county after the law went into effect June 19.

The largest individual claim presented was 510 rabbit and scalps and 7 wolf.

Observing a portly and well-kept appearing individual approaching the Record office last Saturday afternoon, we naturally assumed him to be either a pithoric and purse-proud banker or minister to some city church. Imagine our surprise therefore when he turned out to be our old friend and fellowcitizen, L. R. Tilly, now sojourning in Colorado's eastern suburb—Ablene. Despite his increased girth and sophisticated air, he remains the same old Tilly, optimistic and cheerful even to hilarity. If half an hour's conversation with this old scout, wouldn't dispel a chronic case of grouch, expenses will be saved by immediately calling in the undertaker. May he live long, grow fatter and greatly prosper.

BILLION BUSHEL CROP OF WHEAT IN U. S. THIS YEAR.

Washington, July 8.—The department of agriculture today announced that the prospects for a billion bushel wheat crop in the United States will be increased by the favorable growth last month. The corn crop is estimated to be nearly three billion bushels.

Baptist Revival Announcement

REV. J. M. DAWSON

Pastor of the First Church of Waco, Texas, assisted by a trained and efficient singer, will begin a series of revival services at the Union Tabernacle Wednesday, AUGUST 4th. The meeting, however, will begin on Sunday, August 1st, at the Baptist church, prayer services being held on Monday and Tuesday nights at the church, and on the arrival of Rev. Dawson services will be transferred to the tabernacle. Rev. Dawson needs no introduction to the people of Colorado. He has been heard here before in revival meetings, and his work is known to be sound and soul-saving. Let us all get ready to receive the greatest blessing Colorado ever had.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body. In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, restlessness, dreamlike sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown.

To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutriment gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. It is free from alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

PRESS COMMENT ON GERMAN REPLY TO AMERICAN NOTE.

New York, July 11.—New York newspapers commented editorially on the German reply this morning as follows: World—Whatever may be thought or said of this note, it is always to be remembered that actions speak louder than words. For the present we would say that Germany is to be judged more by its deeds than its diplomacy. It has not been sinking any American ships of late.

Tribune—We have come, then, to the crisis. The Tribune believes we should recall Ambassador Gerard, since further negotiations seem impossible. Sun—Latest communication from Berlin, by making distinct proposals of a new kind and offering new arguments, however fallacious, invites and requires a reply.

Chicago Tribune—The German reply offers a modus vivendi by which safe passage of Americans in the war zone can be assured. The adoption, however, involves a waiver, in fact, of the full right asserted by the American notes of May 13 and June 10. The gate is open but it is the gate of compromise.

Chicago Herald—In short, the German government has failed to meet the issue. New York Staats Zeitung, the leading New York German newspaper, commenting on the reply said: "It goes without saying that the German government cannot afford to give assurances which would directly or indirectly embody the obligation to discontinue the German submarine warfare against British commerce and ammunition transport without having an equivalent in the form of an assurance from England that she will simultaneously give up her 'starvation war' against Germany."

The right of free neutral traffic on the seas which is being claimed by the president seems very plausible in an abstract sense. However, practical experience has demonstrated that this right is being ignored on all sides.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLUGGISH LIVER.

Crashes into sour Bile, Making You Sick and You Lose a Day's Work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious headache, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children they like it.

NEGRO HOTEL DYNAMITED AT SNYDER.

Snyder, Texas, July 8.—Dynamite this morning tore up the floor of the negro hotel here. There had been no negroes in this county until last year and the feeling against them is reported to be very strong.

MITCHELL COUNTY GIRL IN VAUDEVILLE.

Little Miss Manora Menshaw of Ft. Worth, made quite a hit this week at Byers on the program of summer vaudeville and movies.

Her act includes a singing and dancing specialty, while the piano work is her crowning feature. She offered first a child life song that "took," followed by a ballad; then the instrumental work, and she concluded with a "Sailor Boy," song and a well-presented horn-pipe.

In her work she shows not the slightest "stagefright" and though her voice showed a slight strain when pushed to the effort of filling the big opera house which was packed, yet her refrain, in which she dropped to usual tone, was clear and sweet. Her dancing was especially good and her stage presence remarkable.

The diminutive little actress leaves today for Waco, where she is to accept a professional engagement that is expected to start her well on the road to fame. She will be with the E. G. Morris company now playing there. —Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

BANDITS GET NEARLY $500,000 IN ALABAMA TRAIN ROBBERY

Washington, July 10.—Nearly $500,000 fell into the hands of the bandits who held up the New York-New Orleans Limited on the Louisville and Nashville railroad at Greenville, Alabama, treasury officials said tonight.

Officials here believed the haul was the biggest of any train robbery in history. In the loot was supposed to have been $400,000 which the treasury department was sending to New Orleans. After securing their plunder they escaped in an automobile. Conductor McRea died of heart failure, due to the excitement, while the robbery was in progress.

At last accounts three suspects had been arrested and were being held at Montgomery, Ala., but how strong the case against them was uncertain.

FERGUSON WILL VOTE FOR ONLY 3 OF 6 PROPOSED AMENDMENTS.

Austin, Tex., July 10.—In a statement to the people of Texas this afternoon, Gov. Ferguson announced that he will vote for three of the six proposed amendments to the constitution to be voted on at the special election on July 24, and will oppose the others.

The Governor said he would vote against the senate resolution providing for additional judges for the Supreme Court, as he considers three better than five for dispatch.

He will vote against the students' loan proposition as he says, "I do not believe that it is any more the province of the government to make personal loans to worthy students than to loan money to the widow to feed her children."

Thirdly, he will oppose the proposal to separate the A. and M. College and the State University, as he believes the two can be controlled better by a single board.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

State of Texas, County of Mitchell.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a certain order of sale issued out of the Honorable District Court of Mitchell County, on the 29th day of June 1915, by Earl Jackson, Clerk of the said District Court, for the sum of Four Hundred and Eighty-three and 15-100 Dollars and costs of suit, under a judgment in favor of S. E. Brown, in a certain cause in said Court, No. 3010 and styled S. E. Brown vs. S. H. Johnson, placed in my hands for service, I, A. W. Cooksey as Sheriff of Mitchell County, Texas, did on the 30th day of June, 1915, levy on certain Real Estate, situated in Mitchell County, Texas, described as follows, to-wit:

All of Lot No. Ten (10) in Block No. Nineteen (19) in White's Residence Addition to the town of Loraine; and levied upon as the property of S. H. Johnson, and that on the first Tuesday in August, 1915, the same being the 3rd day of said month, at the court house door, of Mitchell County, in the town of Colorado, Texas, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., by virtue of said levy and said order of sale, I will sell said above described Real Estate at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, as the property of said S. H. Johnson.

And in compliance with law, I give this notice by publication, in the English language, once a week for three consecutive weeks immediately preceding said day of sale, in the Colorado Record, a newspaper published in Mitchell County.

Witness my hand, this 30th day of June 1915.

That these are high-grade cars in every essential will be evident from the most superficial examination, and the specifications as given by the engineering department at the Detroit factory indicate that the quality is even higher than with last year's cars. They show that finer steels have been used, that the upholstery is of the highest grade of leather the market affords; that the finishing operations have been increased to 25 in number, while numerous other details of manufacture are still further indicative of quality. It is expected that should the increase be authorized at the polls, there will be a lively contest for the two positions thus created.

Opera House Movies. William H. Crane in His Great Characterization, "David Harum," at Last Immortalized on the Screen.

One of the greatest character studies ever contributed to the American stage, "David Harum," enacted for several years by the distinguished star, William H. Crane, has at last been converted to the screen.

The human note that is struck in the early part of the production, and maintained consistently throughout the story, is the main strength of the subject. In all the eulogistic reviews of the play that have appeared in newspapers throughout the country its human qualities and fidelity to truth have always been emphasized as the dominant keynote in the drama.

There are many "David Harum" all about us—men with a stern exterior and a kindly heart that beats in sympathy for all they rest of the world—who do good quietly and secretly, and who sometimes bring about a pretty and tender romance, such as the one "David Harum" creates for his two young friends.

COLORADO, TEXAS, JULY 9, 1915.

The Roby Banner compounds the felony by calling it "Marriage Nuptials."

Let any man speak long enough, he will get believers.—Robt. Louis Stevenson.

"Is Bryan after Wilson?" queries the esteemed Waco Times-Herald. Yes indeed, and the Peerless One will soon recognize the precedence himself.

The European war has proven among other things, the strength of the tie that binds the United Kingdom and the perfect cohesiveness of the German Empire.

We learn from the Borden County News that a "Demented Man Exploded a Bomb in Capital." We extend sympathy, as we have long been a "bum in capital" ourself.

A San Angelo school teacher replying to a board of trustees, which demanded to know something of her qualifications to govern a school and manage insubordinate boys, sent them the following specifications: "Five feet six; weigh 120 pounds; wear an automatic Colt .32; can lick my weight in wildcats."

Another thorn in the egotism of that class of men who believe that woman's sphere is limited to presiding at the frying pan, darned stockings and rocking cradles by the hour, is the fact that women have proven their fitness for military service. On the battle field, in the hospital and amidst contagious diseases, they have proven their equality with men.

Now is the time to come to West Texas, and particularly to Mitchell county and Colorado. Crop conditions were never better, nor the people more optimistic. The faith and confidence of those who have stayed by the staff have been more than justified. A heavy influx of immigration will doubtless begin this fall, and Colorado should see to it, that when the sky rains soup, its dish is not bottom upwards.

The Jones County, Miss., News, among the numerous other good things it is doing for its county, has inaugurated a movement looking toward the naming of every farm in the county. Editor McLean is reproducing the suggested list of farm names published some time ago in The Progressive Farmer, and already dozens of the farmers have responded to the suggestion. Here's a splendid idea for our country papers to take up and push.—Progressive Farmer.

If oil or gas is developed in the well now going down four miles north of San Angelo, all the country along the Colorado river between here and Bronte, should be a fertile field for further exploitation.

George Powell, who lived near Kent, this county, is dead, and Commissioner Fred G. Irby, of Kent, is under bond of $5,000 on the charge of killing him.

The finest, nicest and largest peaches on the market at McMurry's.

The Record is convinced from a conversation with manager Beckner of the Ice and Cold Storage Co., that the farmers of Mitchell county are overlooking a golden opportunity in not fostering the local creamery. Never has there been such active demand for creamery products, and the larger plants in cities are scouring the country, locating local agencies in every town, in the hope of getting more cream. Such an agency has been established in Colorado on two different occasions, and every inducement made for the farmers to bring their cream here, sell the butter fat it contains, and feed the skimmed milk to pigs. But somehow the local enterprise has never prospered. Reports from neighboring towns indicate that the farmers in those different localities are patronizing the local agencies with great profit to themselves. There is no earthly reason why Colorado should not be the center of an extensive and profitable dairy industry. Let's take a new start in the matter and show that whatever another community can do, we of Mitchell county do go them just a trifle better.

MITCHELL COUNTY CLOSE TO TOP.

The department of agriculture, bureau of plant industry of the federal government, has just issued its annual bulletin of the production of cotton, corn and oats, for the past year, with special reference to the results of the Farmer co-operative demonstration work, from which report we glean the following interesting figures. Periods of five years considered, without and with the instruction of farm demonstrators. From the year 1910 to that of 1914 inclusive, the average yield of cotton per acre under farm demonstration, was 924 pounds of seed cotton; the yield for the state with and without such instruction, was 594 pounds per acre. The average yield of corn for the state regardless of methods used, was 19.5 bushels per acre, while under demonstration methods, the yield per acre was 30.9 bushels.

But the most important item in the report is that Mitchell county stands fourth in the yield of cotton per acre under scientific methods. Its record is 1439.25 pounds of seed cotton per acre. This record is not only a splendid commentary upon the fertility of Mitchell county soil and its adaptability to the culture of cotton, but a concrete compliment to its efficient farm demonstrator, W. A. Dolin, as well.

The evidences of civic pride are multiplying on every hand in Colorado; particularly is this virtue attested in the appearance of private homes. Well kept lawns, an abundance of shade and ornamental trees, flowers freshly painted house and a general appearance of thrift, comfort and contentment. Some of the more industrious citizens, who are not afraid to look the rising sun in the face, keep down the weeds on the ungraded part of the streets next their premises, by planting to vegetables, such as black-eyed peas—which by the way, is a most consoling, filling and comfortable "yarb", appealing less to the aesthetic sense than to the more fleshy needs of the constitution.

LIGHT AT THE EVENTIDE.

We met "Grandma" Cooksey on the street this week, and her first salutation was: "let me see you walk." We walked off under our own "steam," without aid of crutch or cane. "Thank God," she exclaimed; "You will never know how rejoiced my old heart is to see you so nearly well again."

If the death of His saints is precious in the sight of the Lord, how much more so must be their last declining years, when all the dross of life has been transmuted into fine gold, and their ears catch the vagrant notes from the celestial choir and their faces reflect at times the radiance from the Great Light of Beulah Land. God thus prepares his saints before their departure for the supernal glories of His Paradise.

Crabbed Age is an anomaly—a perversion of God's plan, and frequently the result of an ill-spent or useless life. But when one has lived close to both God and Nature for more than four score years, not alone in physical preservation, does he or she, grow more like unto Moses, whose "eye was not dim nor his natural strength abated," but also like him, the saint is taken upon high places, and catches glimpses of the land of spiritual promise before his translation thereto.

May God bless "Grandma" Cooksey abundantly, and vouchsafe to her many years of strength and continued usefulness. May her spirit of optimism and practice of bringing flowers to the living and despondent heart instead of to the silent tomb, encourage others as it has given new strength to this writer; and while resignation and the knowledge of "whom she has believed," slope the way to the valley that leads to eternal rest and divine glory, may there shine unthwart her pathway daily, the radiance of that divine promise: "At the eventide it SHALL BE LIGHT."

A HEAVY INDICTMENT AGAINST THE ONE-CROP SYSTEM.

The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly fine. So for a good many years the one-crop system so common throughout the South has been dragged before the bar upon first one charge and then another, but each time has scored an apparent victory. To all the charges it has set up the plea that all that is said about it might be true, but it was the easiest system that all understood, and above all by it some were making a splendid living. These pleas before a packed jury have too often resulted in a hung jury and no verdict, or at least no verdict of sufficient strength to cause a change.

But last fall the one-crop system was caught in the act. At its door was laid the near catastrophe of a people with the products of their year's work upon their hands and no one to whom they could dispose of it, and no means of a living unless this was done. The charge has been proven beyond a shadow of doubt. So the one-crop system stands at last discredited, and we feel sure, even with no other indictment, will never again occupy the place in the farm economy of the South that it once filled.

But there is even probability of its banishment forever. Few criminals are caught in their first offense, and when a man is caught in a crime for the first time it is nothing uncommon to discover that he has been guilty of others. So having been convicted of the offense, the one-crop system has now been caught in an even more serious one by the University of Texas, as explained in Bulletin No. 21, "Studies in Farm Tenancy in Texas."

No worse fate can befall any country than that the land shall fall into the hands of the few. It is recognized that home ownership makes patriots, while without homes men become a prey to all sorts of evils. Any thing then that tends to prevent the home ownership is in every way to be condemned. That Texas has been drifting to this latter condition has become evident by the rapid growth of farm tenancy and it has been recognized that something should be done to correct this tenancy. Already our statute books contain some laws that were designed to correct and curb this growth.

Now comes the University with the direct accusation that farm tenancy growth is the direct result of the one-crop system. These conclusions have been arrived at only after an expert study of conditions. But the indictment is even more far-reaching. It shows that the one-crop system and tenancy go together. Closely connected with these two are the lack of personal property on the part of the tenant, decrease in livestock production and soil depletion. Should there be any doubts as to the other charges, that last one, "depletes soil fertility," is sufficient upon which to inflict the capital punishment, for any man or any system that willfully depletes soil fertility is guilty in our opinion of the most heinous crimes, not only against the present but against the future generations.

Along with the indictment the bulletin carries a number of suggested remedies, the most prominent of which is education. Without doubt this is the most powerful weapon with which to fight and to vanish this foe, and it is well that the University is emphasizing this fact so effectively.

MARY PICKFORD IN BEHIND THE SCENES.

Mary Pickford gives a pathetic charm and winsome grace to the dainty little actress who is the heroine of "Behind the Scenes," the charming drama of theatrical life by Margaret Mayo, authoress of the famous farce, "Baby Mine," and the current comedy success, "Twin Beds." As Dolly Lane, Mary Pickford stirs the pulse and grips the heart, and gives one of the best screen performances of her career. Dolly Lane is a poor and pretty little musical comedy soubrette, rehearsing and playing day and night, living in poor lodgings quietly and meagrely and devoted to her work and stage ambition, which are the dominant factors in her life. One night, in the final scene of the play, she and her comrades throw confetti into the audience, nearly blinding a young man who sits in one of the front rows of the orchestra. Dolly's sincere concern over the accident amply atones for it, and the young man, Steve Hunter, induces his friend, a wealthy young chap, to take him behind the scenes after the performance. There he and Dolly meet, and their romance begins. Though not a devotee of the theatre himself, Steve is not long in falling in love with little Dolly, and one night, after the lights of the theatre are dimmed, they are made man and wife.

One day Steve receives word that an old uncle in the west is dying and that he is to come to him immediately. Steve goes, and Dolly now gives all her heart and energy to her work, succeeding so well that when an accident happens one day at rehearsal to the leading woman, Dolly is given that exalted position and told to be ready that night. She hurries home, her heart full with the success so near at hand, to find that Steve has returned from the West, the heir to his dead uncle's great wheat farm. She hears Steve's news, hardly conscious of what it means, and then quickly tells him of her own good fortune; but instead of congratulating her, Steve tells her she will have to abandon her position on the stage and go West with him. After a terrific struggle between ambition and love, Dolly yields, surrenders her career and leaves all behind her to go West. But she soon wearies of the quiet farm and Steve's seeming neglect of her for his work, and one day, revolting against it all, she returns to the city. There she finds a wealthy man only too ready to back her as a star in a new play. Trying to forget Steve, she throws her whole soul into her ambition, and the new play and star become the sensation of the theatrical season. Opera House Movies Tuesday, July 20th.

THAW SANE.

New York, July 14.—Late this afternoon the jury pronounced Harry K. Thaw sane. His case now rests with the decision of Justice Hendrix as the verdict of the jury is only advisory. Hendrix will announce his decision Friday morning.

THE COCA-COLA CO. Atlanta, Ga.

Approximately one hundred and thirty-five cars are this week being required to ship San Angelo's season wool accumulation to market. Between 2,725,000 and 3,500,000 pounds have been sold for a figure about $700,000. The wool has sold at prices, ranging from 17 to 24 cents; the majority of the sales have been for over twenty cents.

Reports reaching C. W. Woodman, state commissioner of labor, are that competent labor is in great demand in the Texas Panhandle to harvest the wheat crop. Able men between 21 and 45 years of age receive $2 per day board, the report said, this being 50 cents more than the customary. This year's crop is reported abundant.

A BIT OF PHILOSOPHY
FROM
REACH YOUR HAND TO ME
BY JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

Reach your hand to me, my friend,
With its heartiest caress—
Sometime there will come an end
To its present faithfulness—
Sometime I may ask in vain
For the touch of it again,
When between us land or sea
Holds it ever back from me.

Sometime I may need it so,
Cropping somewhere in the night,
It will seem to me as though
Just a touch, however light,
Would make all the darkness day,
And along some sunny way
Lead me through an April-shower
Of my tears to this fair hour.

SANITARIUM BENEFIT.

The ice cream supper given by the ladies of the Baptist ladies, on the court house lawn, last Friday evening for the benefit of the sanitarium, was a success in every way.

The lawn was put in excellent condition by the efficient county officials, the evening was delightful, the crowd large and in the best of mood. The object for which it was given was a worthy one and for the good of the entire country, so of course it was a success. The flag drill given by the little girls in white with the red, white and blue draperies was well done and that alone was worth the walk there, to say nothing of the band music that made to seem like other days to many who lived here when band concerts were frequently enjoyed.

Both fun and profit were had at the fish pond which was conducted by Mrs. Pierce, assisted by Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Douglas Burns. Also the Gypsy wagon where by crossing the hand of the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter with a small piece of silver the past, present and future were revealed. In real life this capable one is Mrs. Abnis.

The ladies who had charge of this affair wish to express thanks to all who helped to make it a success and especially Mrs. Guitart, who worked so faithfully with the children. The band for furnishing the music, the Colorado Mercantile Co., the Colorado Record, the young ladies who graciously served at the tables, Robertson at the Nickle Store, the county sheriff Cooksey, and the light plant.

INFORMAL LUNCHEON.

Mrs. M. K. Jackson entertained a few young ladies Monday with an informal luncheon, honoring Miss Bernice Day of Baird, who is a guest of Miss Jones-Burk. A matinee party to see Cinderella concluded the pleasant day.

Rev. Williams, colored, dean of the colored Baptist Theological Seminary Fort Worth preached to the colored church here Wednesday. He is a fluent speaker and is doing a great work in Fort Worth.

AUXILIARY TO C. W. B. M.

Mrs. Engne Pond was hostess for the C. W. B. M. Auxiliary last week, with Mrs. Harness as leader.

There was a large attendance and an interesting program was carried out.

Mrs. Crowder gave an interesting paper on "Glimpses of Jamaican Life and Needs in Jamaica."

The bible questions were on "The Epistles" and Mrs. Porter read a splendid paper on "The Loaves and Fishes."

Also Mrs. Jones read a paper that was given by the State president, Mrs. Dave Smith, sister-in-law to Dr. Smith, at the State convention, which was instructive and inspiring.

The guests were Mesdames F. D. S. Pond, J. P. and Lewis Pond, Pickard, Willis R. Smith, of El Paso, and Charles Smith of Colony, Kansas.

Orange ice and wafers were enjoyed at the social hour.

PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church held its monthly meeting with Mrs. C. C. Forwalt last week.

The subject was "The Indians, their lives and needs," were so much more understood and appreciated after the three weeks meeting that was conducted here by Rev. Frank Wright, the talented and consecrated Indian preacher, which all had the privilege of attending. Mrs. Van King, Mrs. A. L. Whipkey, Mrs. Millican, of Van Horn, and some of the young lady friends of her daughter, Miss Courtney, were guests at the social hour and enjoyed the ice cream and cake served by the daughters of the house.

After the program Miss Louise Roe delighted all with a solo with Mrs. Duff as accompanist.

BREAKFAST AT SEVEN WELLS

Last Saturday morning Mrs. F. B. Whipkey prepared an elegant breakfast in honor of her guest, Mrs. J. P. Glenn, of West, invited a few guests who were brave enough to rise before six o'clock and motored to Seven Wells to eat it. It was enjoyed to the last slice of breakfast bacon and the West Texas grit that went with it spread on by the gentle zephyrs.

AMUSEMENTS.

The special Paramount features put on by the Opera House Movies are creating quite an interest among the movie fans. The first one to appear was Cinderella, last Tuesday night, which was a great success. The house was crowded to capacity, even after chairs had been placed in the aisles a number had to stand. Last night the 6-reel feature "The Sign of the Cross," was also a great success. Next Tuesday night "Behind the Scenes" a 5 part photo play will be the bill, and on next Friday night the great play of "David Harum" will be shown. This will be followed by other famous features, showing one every Tuesday and Friday.

At the Shadowland—which is now in the air dome—are also shown special features from time to time. Next Thursday night the beautiful story in 15 parts, "The Goddess" will be commenced at the Shadowland. Read first installment in the Record this week.

BAPTIST MEETING NOTES.

The meeting will begin on Sunday, August 1st. Prayer services will be conducted at the Baptist church Monday and Tuesday nights. Rev. J. M. Dawson of Waco, under whose direction the meeting will be held, will arrive Wednesday morning, after which time services will be held at the union tabernacle.

CENTRAL CIRCLE.

Mrs. J. B. Annis was hostess for the Central Circle of the Methodist church Monday afternoon. Besides the regular monthly business the Christmas bazaar was planned for and some money received for it. Dues and offerings amounted to $10.50.

Mrs. Root and Mrs. Hester were guests. Refreshments of orange ice and cake were served. The August meeting will be with Mrs. Cooksey.

PHILATHEA PICNIC.

The Philathea Sunday school class of the M. E. church had a very enjoyable picnic on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Winn Monday evening.

A splendid time was spent in games and music, then almost every imaginable good thing was spread before them to eat and after that Mrs. Winn further tempted their appetites by serving delicious pineapple ice. There were several guests who shared the pleasant time. Mrs. Herring and Miss Cochrane of San Angelo, were the out of town guests. Miss Fry is teacher of this splendid class of young ladies.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Winn and Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Payne entertained a few intimate friends of the Winn and Wulfen families in honor of Mr. F. A. Winn's sixty-sixth birthday Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Winn. The evening was spent with pleasant conversation. A birthday cake with the candles forming "66" was cut and served with peach ice cream and cake. The dime was found by Master Winn Payne and he already looks forward to being a rich man.

The Record joins the many friends of Mr. Winn in wishing him many happy returns of the day.

Dr. B. F. Dulaney is adding a second story to his already attractive suburban residence.

G. E. Sutphen of Iatan, is now the owner of a car of his own, and regards distance as a mere negligible quantity.

Mr. J. E. Woodfin, general agent for the Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain, Denver & Rio Grande and Western Pacific Railways, was the guest of W. B. Ralph and wife this week.

W. L. Edmondson installed this week a gasoline filling station at the rear entrance to his store on Second street.

Johnnie Rasden, the popular carrier on Rural Route No. 2, is now enjoying his annual layoff—vacation; which period of recreation, we are apprised, he will fill with a round of serious pleasures, at home.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Pool and two daughters of Sterling City came in yesterday on a visit, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Whipkey. The daughters will stay several weeks in Colorado.

MARRIED IN EL PASO

W. W. Inkman and Cecil Wasson went to El Paso where they played an important part in a double wedding. Mr. Inkman and Miss Camille Gallagher and Mr. Wasson and Miss Marybell Gallagher being united in marriage at the same time.

These happy young couples arrived here yesterday morning and have been receiving the congratulations of their friends.—Big Springs Enterprise.

George Callen, of Del Rio, who was here recently, called by the death of his father, was stricken with appendicitis immediately upon his return to his home and was taken to a sanitarium at San Antonio for an operation.

Who does your laundry? Is it satisfactory? What do you pay? Do you get your clothes home on time? Are you willing to pay 50 to 75 cents per dozen for washing and ironing when you can get better work at cheaper prices?

Answer these questions, but if you cannot make the answers satisfactory ones try the old reliable.

COLORADO STEAM LAUNDRY.

Secretary T. H. Roe, of the Colorado Chamber of Commerce made a business trip to Dallas Tuesday night.

AIRDOME OPENS.

The dog days have fairly come and the confining walls of no play house longer look or feel good to the moving picture patron. In keeping with her usual spirit of enterprise and belief that nothing is too good for the comfort as well as entertainment of her patrons, Mrs. Payne has had the air dome annex of her movie theatre refitted according to the latest standards, and added every accessory that can contribute to the convenience, comfort and entertainment of the picture loving public.

The initial entertainment in the air dome was given last Tuesday night presenting special and highly entertaining features for which this theatre has been characterized. The public evinced its appreciation of this up-to-dateness and consideration of their comfort, by an exceedingly generous patronage. To get a trustworthy impression of the appointments of this popular play house, you should attend once, and one visit calls for another, and another and yet others, ad infinitum.

You Need a Tonic

There are times in every woman's life when she needs a tonic to help her over the hard places. When that time comes to you, you know what tonic to take—Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, which act gently, yet surely, on the weakened womanly organs, and helps build them back to strength and health. It has benefited thousands and thousands of weak, ailing women in its past half century of wonderful success, and it will do the same for you.

You can't make a mistake in taking

GARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Miss Amelia Wilson, R. F. D. No. 4, Alma, Ark., says: "I think Cardui is the greatest medicine on earth, for women. Before I began to take Cardui, I was so weak and nervous, and had such awful dizzy spells and a poor appetite. Now I feel as well and as strong as I ever did, and can eat most anything." Begin taking Cardui today. Sold by all dealers.

Has Helped Thousands.

TRIP TO COLORADO.

A crowd of Snyder young folks went to Colorado Sunday and there were entertained by the young people of Colorado. The Snyder boys and girls extend their hearty thanks to Miss Bennie Morgan, the hostess, at Colorado for showing them a good time. Including those who went from here were: Misses Lucile Galloway, Charlotte Sturdivant, Dora Dawson, Velma Howell, of Lorraine. Messrs. Augustine Howell, Grayum Baker, Forest Sears, Dick Henderson, Newt Galloway and Ollie Bruton.

Miss Ruby Clark had been spending last week with the Colorado girls and returned home Sunday afternoon with the Snyder crowd.—Snyder Signal.

Mrs. Housewife—Had it ever occurred to you that what you pay for cold creams and face lotions with which to remove the blisters and sunburn after washing would almost pay for both washing and ironing, to say nothing of saving you from the tired feeling and probable sick spell. Try us this summer and be convinced.—The Laundry.

Those desiring to take piano lessons next term, please remember that I will be ready in my new studio, opposite the high school building, to open my class, with or before the beginning of the school term.—Lela Whipkey.

I Want

To swap new cotton seed meal and hulls or coal for cotton seed or maize. I will also buy and pay cash for these articles. I will exchange threshed maize for heads, or thresh your grain when brought in big enough lots to justify starting engine.

Cloves Are Dried Buds

The buds of an East Indian tree are picked, dried and then graded according to the percentage of oil they contain—this oil is the source of the clove flavor.

But unless care is taken in grinding, even oily cloves lose much of their flavor. After grinding, the cloves must be protected from evaporation by most careful packing.

You see then that it is not only pure cloves you must insist on, but selected cloves which have been handled throughout the best way to keep them full of the oil which flavors.

That's why we suggest that you insist on White Swan Cloves. Selected from the best grade, ground by our "cool" process to retain flavor and strength and packed in air-tight tins. Your grocer sells White Swan Cloves—the cost is a little more, but the economy is greater because a tin lasts longer.

YOU GET STRONG, if you're a tired-out or "run-down" woman, with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

And, if you suffer from any "female complaint" or disorder, you get well. For these two things—to build up women's strength, and to cure women's ailments—this is the best medicine to benefit or cure. The "Prescription" regulates and promotes all the natural functions, never conflicts with them, and is perfectly harmless in any condition of the female system. It brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and vigor.

Mrs. KATE WADE, Route 2, Box 2, Wapakoneta, Ohio, says: "I was in very bad health, could not get any relief. Through the advice of a friend I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and began to mend. Can say I am now sound, and well, and will always praise your medicine. I advise young mothers and women who are in bad health to use Favorite Prescription." Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

JUVENILE VAUDEVILLE.

Little Manora Meushaw, of Fort Worth, who has recently become a favorite among juvenile professionals, will be at the opera house on July 22nd. She will present a musical sketch that will please old and young alike.

The little maid, while barely ten years old, has been entertaining since the age of twenty-two months.

At the age of three she gave a "black face" character song that was pronounced unequalled by any child of six or more.

At five, the little one entertained the National Congress of Mothers, in session at San Antonio. On this occasion she gave a costume rendition of "The Zama Zama Man," and danced the well known Zama, Zama dance.

This performance won her recognition from theatre managers in San Antonio, and for the next two years she gave "character work" for Mr. Lloyd Spencer at the Plaza theatre.

The past three years have been devoted to school and music. During this time little Manora has been especially trained for a professional career, and the past season made quite a reputation in North Texas with her vaudeville work.

She is on a visit to relatives near Lorraine and while here her services have been secured for Thursday and Saturday.

Don't miss this rare treat. Bring all the children and let them see the little maid.

Her act will include a number of piano selections, wherein she shows her wonderful temperament and musical interpretation.

In addition to the above, Manora will give a number of songs and dances calling for quick costume changes, while a novel monologue will be presented also.

Manora has worked in Ft. Worth and other towns and has always won the hearts of her audiences.

Meet me at Jake's Restaurant.

It was ordered by the court that the list of taxes delinquent for the year 1914 be published in the Colorado Record.

The important matter of per diem having been attended to, the court adjourned in great harmony and unanimity of purpose.

The timid old lady asked the baggage master if her parcel would reach "Frisco intact."

Said that official, "Let's see."

Thereupon, he threw it on the floor. Once, "That's for Chicago." Twice, "That's for Kansas City." Third, "That's for Denver." The fourth time, he dashed it on the floor with extra violence. The box broke. The contents were scattered about.

"You see, mum, it wouldn't reach."

Fortunately, you are not in that position. You do not have to RISK the trial of the various things you need in your home or business. You can pick out a well-known article, one that has been tried and tested for years under actual working conditions in other places. Among such articles the trade mark "Texaco" has secured for Texaco Products the recognition to which their careful preparation and their suitability for the purpose entitles them.

Whether you use steam, electricity, or gas; whether you operate a farm, cotton gin, laundry, ice plant—anything.

There is a Texaco Product for you—under the "Made-in-Texas" Red-Star-Green-T emblem. Order from our agent.

HIS LATEST "PARAMOUT."

San Francisco, July 7.—William Jennings Bryan, former secretary of state, declared himself in favor of woman suffrage here and told an audience of women that he had not espoused their cause sooner because he had been busy with other matters. He added that he usually did not take up questions until they were capable of solution.

"I believe it is only a question of time when women will share governmental burdens with men," he said. "Let me give you an argument for those who question the morality and intelligence of giving the ballot to women. More than 90 per cent of the inmates of the Nebraska penitentiary are men. You will find a majority of the women in churches. If women are intelligent enough to keep out of the penitentiaries and have enough morality to go to church, there is no question of their fitness for the ballot."

WANTED NOW.

THE BIGGEST COTTON CROP EVER RAISED

The American Production of Cotton For 1914 Exceeded all Records.

Washington, July 8.—The American cotton crop of 1914—the largest ever produced—reached 16,134,930 equivalent 500 pound bales which, if placed end to end, would reach more than half around the world. That figure, announced today by the census bureau, is the government's final report. The former record crop of 1911 was 442,229 equivalent 500 pound bales less.

Ellis county, Texas, was the banner cotton county of the United States, having grown approximately 75 per cent more than the entire crop of Missouri or Florida, about three times that of California and nearly six times that of Virginia. Ellis county has an area of 975 square miles and a population of about 55,000.

CHAPTER I.

Dear Barclay:
Every individual voter feels that he could run the nation better than those appointed to do so by himself and thousands of others like him. One voter would do the tariff higher than it ever was before; the next would abolish it. But, whichever type of thinker gets his candidates into power, there remain always in these United States millions of people who have to be poor, dirty and discontented.

From this even a child would conclude either that a vast majority of people are doomed to unhappiness by the God who made them or that a vast majority of politicians are incapable governors. As to the first conclusion, we know nothing; but as to the second, we are certain beyond peradventure. With mighty few exceptions, those whom we put over us to govern are the most incompetent lot of legislators and administrators in history. For the most part they are men vaguely trained to the law. They talk better and oftener on a greater variety of topics than the average man who is making or trying to make an honest living. They make it their business to be conspicuous, instead of the opposite, and so get themselves elected. As a body of men they know practically nothing about anything useful or important, and their small minds are so tangled with the little law they know that they are unable to see through the tangle into the heart of law, which is justice. If lawyers could be counted on to do right the pawnbroker down the street and the shoemaker round the corner would not have to be called away from affairs, important to them, to sit on juries and do justice.

But the thing goes deeper. What in each voter's judgment is the one chief thing that is wrong with these United States? There would be almost as many answers as there are voters. I've asked lots of men, and no two agreed, but I liked one man's answer a lot. He said: "This country with the country is that its citizens have to pay taxes when they ought to be receiving dividends. And this," he said, "would be the case if from the start we had been governed by our best minds instead of by our worst; if as a nation we had been run from the beginning the way Standard Oil, for instance, has been run as a trust."

I am not standing up for the rapaciousness of trusts, only for their efficiency. As a nation we have been more rapacious and dishonest than any trust that ever lived. This being so, and a blot upon us that can never be wiped out, let us bring our own doing that can never be righted, it is ten thousand pities that we haven't been efficient, too.

How many billions of dollars was this country worth as late as 1870? Gold, silver, iron, etc., etc.? Only astronomers think in big enough figures to answer that. Anyhow, as a nation we grabbed, stole and cheated it away from the people who earned it. And then we began to pay ducks and drakes with it. If from the start our resources could have been handled by a Rockefeller he-well he might be a thousand times richer than he is, but we-well we would none of us be poor. And our house would be clean and efficient from garret to cellar, and not gutted and creaky and full of vermin and half the ceilings down.

Think of a whole country run as a trust, with employment at more than a fair return for every able-bodied man, and fat dividends for everybody in good years! In such a state by force of public opinion even a Bryan might be made useful. Even in Utopia there are offices which have to be swept out.

If there is salvation ahead of us, instead of ruin, something of this sort will have to be worked out from what is left to us of our natural resources. Failing this those of us who are rich enough and contented enough as individuals will be pulled down from our high places and trampled by an unreasoning mob until there is no longer anything stable nor anyone contented. The air of this great city which we breathe is 30 per cent air and 70 per cent revolution. In other parts of the country the percentage of revolution is greater.

The only man with sufficient mind and power to effect anything good is yourself. But if you personally were to preach the gospel of efficiency people would think you were working to put it bluntly, for your own pocket. This gospel then ostensibly must not come from you. It must not come from the rich. From whom then? From the poor, you answer. But alas, my friend, even the champions of the poor are open to suspicion.

This gospel then must come from where? Why, from heaven, of course, whence all good gospels have come, or are generally believed to have come. And, seeing that we are in America, where the women are given the best of everything, our heaven-sent messenger must be a woman.

I see your gesture of horror. But she shall not be as you see her. She shall be young and beautiful and good and sincere. She shall not speak her own thoughts, but ours. The masses will believe in her. The classes may, and if they don't they will have sense enough to pretend to.

With you to help, I believe, upon my word of honor, that I can make this thing happen. Will you help? What do you think?
Yours as ever,
MILES STILLITER.

To this letter Professor Stilliter received the following answer by return messenger:
Dear Stilliter:
I'll help if you can answer one thing satisfactorily. To be a successful gospelist the woman, as you intimate, must be sincere. She must believe what she preaches. But she is sincere, how can she tell people that she comes from heaven? You say she must come from heaven in order to believe. It is quite a riddle, and I know that you have been thinking and experimenting for years toward some such end as this. But I am a business man, and I have to be shown.

Yours with sincere interest,
Professor Stilliter answered to this:
Dear Barclay:
She only has to believe that she comes from heaven. If she can be made to believe that, are you satisfied?
That night the two men met by appointment. Outlining his plan, and occasionally going into detail, Professor Stilliter talked rapidly for almost two hours without stopping, till the sweat stood on his brow and his voice began to fail him. He finished with these words: "And for a few of us, as a mere side issue, there's billions in it."

Gordon Barclay remained for a long time in profound thought. "There is, as you say," he said at last, "billions in it. Yet if I was sure that we could make it happen, really make everybody contented and not poor, I'd be content to give up everything I have already, and I could die happy."

"So would I," exclaimed Stilliter hurriedly. "But I'd rather make the world happier and myself with it. Wouldn't you?"

Barclay shook his heavy shoulders, lifted his lonesome head and smiled. "Of course," he said, "I was dreaming. I believe the thing can be done. And without any sacrifice whatever, either spiritual or material."

"It will take a long time," "I understand that. You have to teach her almost from the beginning."

"I don't teach her exactly. I make her believe."

"Have you a child in view?" "Now that you're with me, I shall soon find one."

"What are the chances against us?" "Only these: That before we bring her to earth to preach our gospel you are dead, or I am, or the revolution has already come, and borne a different and better fruit for us all."

Professor Miles Stilliter was never idle, except when he was asleep. On a certain morning in the spring of 1906 Professor Stilliter, having mislaid his glasses, was unable to tell what time it was, though he held his watch as near to his eyeball as he could without touching it. It was, however, his usual time for beginning the day, for at that moment his valet brought in the morning papers.

The following headline in a New York newspaper almost immediately caught his eye, and put an end to any further search for news:

"TRAGIC END OF A EUGENIC ROMANCE

"Brilliant John Amesbury, Who Married One of America's Greatest Beauties, Killed by a Trolley Car—Widow, Prostrated by News, Not Expected to Recover."

A cut of a handsome young man and a beautiful young woman lent to this unusual item of news a tinge of real tragedy.

Professor Stilliter was out of bed in a twinkling of an eye.

The late John Amesbury's house was at Scarsdale. On the morning in which this narrative opens a number of village boys were pulling off a dog fight in the quiet country road that bordered the narrow front lawn. Tommy Steele, aged twelve, hearing this racket from afar and full of the tragedy which had overtaken the kind and friendly people in the big house, came up on a dead run. His efforts to interfere with the sport and to secure peace and quiet for the sick woman in the house were not met with approval, and indeed for a moment it looked as if the noise of the dog fight was going to be swelled by the noise of a boy fight, a dozen to one. Fortunately for Tommy, the door of the house opened, and a trained nurse, with a long face and a domineering eye, came running down the front walk with an expression so ominous and formidable that, without a word spoken, the dogs were dragged apart and the boys made off at high speed. Something in Tommy's face attracted the nurse's attention. She was far kinder than she looked.

"Do you want anything?" she said.

"The papers said," said Tommy, "that Mrs Amesbury wouldn't get well." He said no more, but his whole attitude and expression was a poignant question. The nurse laid her hand suddenly on his brown head, patted clumsily, shook her own head just the veriest trifle and hurried back to the house.

A shadow fell upon Tommy, and he found himself looking into the immense, thick-rimmed glasses of Professor Stilliter. Intuitively the boy and the man disliked each other. Professor Stilliter would have rather asked almost any other small boy if that was the Amesbury house. Tommy would have preferred to tell almost any other man that it was. Professor Stilliter, his question answered, moved energetically upon the house, and from the maid who answered the bell inquired for the latest bulletin of Mrs. Amesbury. He stepped forward as if to enter the house, and the servant made the least show in the world of shutting the door in his face. Professor Stilliter turned reluctantly away and heard the closing of the door.

At that moment a buggy, driven furiously, stopped at the front gate, and, thanks to his glasses, which gave his helpless eyes an almost hawklike vision, Professor Stilliter recognized Doctor Wainwright, an old acquaintance, if not a friend.

"Glad to see you," said Professor Stilliter. "Are you in charge here?" "Yes," said Doctor Wainwright.

"Then you can help me, and nobody else can. I never knew Amesbury. I don't know his wife, but as a eugenic was immensely interested in their marriage, and I have a deep scientific interest in seeing the daughter. Now at such a time as this I could not very well force myself upon the household, but if you could slip me in with you as a consulting physician I will be immensely obliged to you, and there will be no talk of splitting fees."

Doctor Wainwright smiled and nodded.

The object of Professor Stilliter's interest was not hard to find. She was seated, forlorn and disconsolate, upon the bottom step of the front stair. Doctor Wainwright picked her up in his arms and kissed her. He made her shake hands with Professor Stilliter.

Professor Stilliter could not conceal the fact that the child's appearance delighted him, and that his appearance did not furnish her with the same delight affected him no more than a duck's back is affected by water. She had been too well brought up and carried her three or four years with too much dignity to run from him and hide, as her instincts prompted her. She did not resist when he lifted her from the floor, asked her age and said, "My, how heavy she was!" She winced a little and finched a little when he prodded her arms and chest and felt with evident admiration the firm and chubby calves of her legs, and when he made her open her mouth and looked in and murmured, "Colossal!"

But when he asked wouldn't she show him the pretty house in which she lived, she did so gladly, for it seemed to put an end to being handled.

For his immediate purpose Professor Stilliter did not need to penetrate beyond the cheerful living room, for here his eyes at once singled out from many three photographs, in which justice had pretty nearly been done, not only to his small companion, but to her famous father and her mother.

"What is that funny thing on the piano?" asked Professor Stilliter. The little girl looked in the direction indicated, and told him that it was a Chinese "ephepant."

During the moment in which he had succeeded in diverting her attention the young man had slipped the three photographs in their folded leather frame into one of his capacious pockets. His mission in the house finished, he asked her if she would give him a kiss. This was a thing which it seemed to her she could neither accord nor refuse. She simply burst into tears. The professor shrugged his great shoulders, grunted like a pig and abruptly took his departure.

Still weeping, the little girl found her way to a piazza that opened off the living room and a few moments later Tommy Steele, still lingering about the premises, traced the infantile walls to their source. The sight of his sympathetic face above the veranda railing, across which he had thrown one leg, started tears again, for he was her best friend in the world, and she chimed of corrugated iron roofs, the chimneys belching black smoke; streets as bright at midnight as at noon, and as crowded.

And then he showed them some of the failures of capital—men and women starving in hundreds, rotting of disease or perishing of sheer disappointment and despair. Bread lines, soup kitchens he showed them; roofless men dying of exposure. And then, in swift flashes he showed them, standing upon a soap box at the corner of a slum, a man in tattered rags, with the forehead of the first Napoleon and the lion-roar voice of Mirabeau—a man who spoke to the wretched and the unfortunate, and the idle and the mischievous, and filled their hearts with fire and passion and hate.

He showed those same men, armed with guns, with poles, with machetes, with hammers, stopping a limousine on Fifth avenue, dragging out an old man in a fur-lined coat and hanging him, more dead than alive, to the nearest lamppost. He showed them that same crowd, ever growing in numbers and anger, tearing a policeman to pieces; he showed them banks and other strongholds of capital that rose suddenly heavenward in puffs of soot-smelling gray smoke, and were—

And he showed them themselves fleeing by night, in disguise, a price upon them, dead or alive; and he showed them Napoleon-Mirabeau bringing order out of chaos, and preparing to hold what he had taken, now begging, now commanding, now wheeling, now killing, and then he showed them battles and leaping cannon—and at last a white flag raised over a fortress, and themselves personally, all three, in the uniform of generals, led forth blindfolded and bound and stood with their backs against a whitewashed wall.

Finally Sturtevant looked his friend and master in the face and said: "Well, what's the answer?"

"I think," said Barclay, "that I have devised a remedy which shall serve us all. Mr Stilliter."

As Professor Stilliter advanced Mr. Barclay said to the others: "The world's greatest psychologist."

"You do not have to tell us that," said Semmes, and they bowed to the professor.

"Well," said Barclay, "let's have a look at her."

Professor Stilliter drew from his pocket a folded picture frame of red leather.

"But," said Sturtevant, "what is the remedy?"

For answer Barclay simply touched the photograph of the little Amesbury girl with the tip of his finger.

"She is the answer," he said, "but, by the way, Stilliter, what do you hear of the mother?"

Professor Stilliter shrugged his shoulders very slightly.

"Dead?" "Dying."

Barclay was not unmoved. "She thinks," he said, "that she is only dying of grief. As a matter of fact, she is taking a great place in the march of events."

"What are the child's habits?" "She has a nap," said Professor Stilliter, "from 10 to 10:30, and from 3 to 3:30. At other times she is mostly out of doors with her nurse. There is a wood back of the house, in which she has a playhouse, a seesaw, etc. If you wished to see her it would be a simple matter, but I am ready to stake my reputation on her. She is absolutely cut to our plan."

"Which," said Semmes, "is so far a complete mystery to Sturtevant and myself."

CHAPTER III.

In spite of Professor Stilliter's guaranty, the triumvirate, as they were both popularly and unpopularly called, determined to have a look at the little Amesbury girl for themselves. Tugged out in Indian dress so that she resembled the ornamental side of a cent, they found the object of their search.

"Well," he said brusquely, "am I right? Is she the finest child you ever saw, or isn't she? Just see the breadth of her skull above the ears."

He would have touched her, but she shrank from him. When Barclay, however, spoke to her she showed neither fear nor aversion, only a pleasant shyness.

At first Barclay showed them some of the achievements of capital—steamers too great to be tossed by the waves, interminable freight trains creeping over high trestles, square

She Never Recalled the Long Drive into the Woods.

"I have never seen you before," he said, "but I am very fond of little girls, and since I have none of my own I do not propose to lose sight of you in a hurry."

The little Amesbury girl was of an age when most impressions do not long survive. She would neither remember her father nor her mother nor her nurse, nor her Indian dress, nor the playhouse, nor the seesaw in the woods; but always she had a vague recollection of three great and important personages, who treated her as if she were more important than they were, and who on parting from her bowed over her chubby, dimpled hand and kissed it for all the world as if she had been a princess. It wasn't exactly a recollection, either, for she did not remember their faces nor how they came into her life, nor how they departed. It was more like a dream, only fragments of which here and there survive in the waker's mind. It wasn't altogether a pleasant dream. There mingled with it a certain something of the essence of a nightmare. Whether it was another man in the background or some monstrous beast with extraordinarily large, black-rimmed eyes she did not know.

It is curious that she should remember a little of all this and nothing of that message which came presently from the house—a message brought by one servant to another and crudely blurted forth in the hearing of a child.

"Come quick, Mary, and bring the baby; the missus is dead." She does not remember running to the house between two women, dragged by the hand, and if she did it is most likely that she should remember only the novelty of the swift locomotion, and not the reason that called for it.

The little Amesbury girl continued to live on in her father's house. The law said she might until things were straightened out. There were no relatives to interfere.

But it was a strange life. There was no longer any discipline in the house; even the trained nurse had to go. The servants began to neglect their work and to amuse themselves.

But being neglected by nurse had its advantages, for Tommy Steele came every day to play with her, and often many times in one day. He was a much better nurse than nurse was. He took good care of one all the time, and she loved him with all her heart. Once nurse told them that they could play hide and seek in the wood if they would be very good and not get lost or wet or let rotten trees fall on them or wasps sting them. And that was a morning to be remembered in many ways. Tommy Steele was always "it."

At first she would hide behind the nearest tree and make a great deal of noise and peek out to see if Tommy was hunting for her or not. But gradually she learned to keep mum, and to tuck herself into very small places, or to move quietly or to keep mousy still.

Gradually she hid with more and more boldness, running quite long distances before she called "cuckoo," and the last time she went to hide she ran a long way, and just when she had dodged behind a big white oak and was going to call "cuckoo" she found herself looking into the great, round, black-rimmed glasses of Professor Stilliter. Before she could scream he had seized her around the waist with his left arm and had muzzled her with his right hand. Then he picked her up and started to run. As the hand over her mouth prevented her screaming, she simply opened her mouth and bit it.

In his rage and pain Professor Stilliter almost dropped her. He snatched his bitten hand from her mouth, and she began to scream at the top of her lungs, to struggle and kick and to make herself limp between times. And once she twisted clean away from the arm that had her round the waist, Still she was only a little child, and Tommy Steele saved her. He came out upon them in a shower of broken twigs, hatless and bleeding from an altercation with a greenbrier. Professor Stilliter did not at once realize that he was only being attacked by a small boy. He let go of the little girl completely, then tried to catch her, as he realized the caliber of his assailant, in so doing, his attention momentarily diverted, received a savage kick on the ankle bone and something like twenty-five blows upon the head and face. During this assault Professor Stilliter's glasses were knocked from his nose.

It was as if, for his sins, some supernatural power had struck him stone-blind.

CHAPTER IV.

That night about twelve o'clock nurse's bed in the little Amesbury girl's room was empty. The house was in darkness, except for the kitchen. From this came sounds of revelry and of a talking machine. The little Amesbury girl dreamed that a man with immense, black-rimmed eyes was bending over her and she waked with a scream.

For once in her life she had dreamed true, for Professor Stilliter was bending over her, and the fingers of his left hand were clasped almost chokingly about her baby throat. In his right hand he held before her eyes a lump of rock crystal the size and shape of a hen's egg. The crystal appeared to exercise an instant fascination upon her. She forgot that she was afraid and that she wanted to scream for help. She even forgot the presence of Professor Stilliter. She thought, indeed, that she was all alone and that somebody had opened a door through which she was at liberty to look into fairyland.

Very far away she heard a voice that said, very quietly, "Now you can't scream."

Of course she tried to, and found that she couldn't.

"And now," said the voice, "you can't do anything unless I tell you to. Get up." She slipped obediently out of bed.

"Dress yourself," said the voice.

For the first time in her baby life the little Amesbury girl dressed herself. She even tied her own hair ribbon in a presentable bowknot and buttoned her own tiny boots.

"Now, give me your hand," he said, "and don't make any noise." He led her downstairs and out into the night.

She never afterward recalled anything of the journey to the north woods which she made with Professor Stilliter. The long automobile ride, the Montreal express held up between stations, the long drive into the woods, and, after that, when they had come to the end of the road, the long, toilsome up-and-down-hill tramp, through which she rode first on the shoulders of one man and then on the shoulders of another, until the party came to a wild spot at the foot of the cliff. Here, in the warm spring sunshine on ledges of rock, a number of drowsy rattlesnakes were coiled in a horrid mass. She does not remember that here, as if waiting for her, were three men who wore black masks over their faces.

When the man who had brought her to the foot of the cliff had gone, with the exception of Professor Stilliter, the three masked men removed their masks. So that when Professor Stilliter withdrew a little so that she should not see him first of all and be frightened, told her to wake up, she looked into the friendly faces of Barclay, Semmes and Sturtevant.

Barclay advanced with great ceremony, dropped on one knee before her and kissed her hand for all the world as if she had been a princess. Then Sturtevant came forward and did likewise, and then Semmes.

Although Professor Stilliter had told her to wake up, the spell of the crystal was still upon her like drowsiness after sleep. To reduce her once more to a complete state of hypnosis it was only necessary for him to say quietly, "Go to sleep again."

What looked like a portion of solid cliff rose suddenly, without any sound, and disclosed a black passage that appeared to lead to the bowels of the earth. In the mouth of this passageway stood a handsome woman, a little under middle age. There was a diamond star in her dark hair, and she wore a white garment that fell from her shoulders in stately folds like those of a Roman toga. She came forward, caught the little Amesbury girl up lovingly in her arms, turned, and, without a word, walked back into the passageway and disappeared. For a long time the sound of her sandaled feet upon the rocky floor could be heard. Then the moving portion of the cliff slid slowly and noiselessly back into place, and the four men who remained without turned somewhat slowly to each other.

Barclay was the first to break the silence. "Gentlemen," he said, "fifteen years from today she will leave that cavern and bring the world to her feet—and to ours."

wished to tell him all about the wicked man with the black-rimmed spectacles. Tommy took her on his knee and listened and gave comfort. Presently he took from his pocket a little rag doll, and, very shyly, for now that he looked at it again, it seemed a poor gift, he offered it to her.

CHAPTER II.

There was silence in the room, at once so rich and repressed in its moldings and furnishings, where Gordon Barclay received and gave orders to such of his fellow millionaires as were in his confidence.

Semmes and Sturtevant, of all men deepest in his confidence, were strangely moved. The great mad for once had not been dealing with facts, but with fancies. Very quietly and earnestly he had been painting for them that terrific future to which, as he saw it, the restless forces of the world were driving.

It may have been that the presence of Professor Stilliter in the room had a kind of hypnotic effect upon the two men. He stood in shadow against the wainscoting, and his eyes never left the back of their heads.

At first Barclay showed them some of the achievements of capital—steamers too great to be tossed by the waves, interminable freight trains creeping over high trestles, square

THE COTTON-LEAF WORM.

The time is at hand when the cotton grower should begin to watch his fields for insect pests. In the meantime, he should know what to do in case of attack, and where, on short notice, he can get the dope best to use.

The leaf-worm is most liable to make trouble, and paris green mixed with cheap flour, two pounds of the poison well mixed, with a 50 pound sack of flour, being about the right proportion.

Make a couple of bags of cheap cotton cloth, open enough to let the poison flour sift through. Fasten the sacks to the two ends of a pole, long enough to reach the middle of a cotton row on each side. Put a small boy on a horse, with the pole across in front of him, and give him a stick with which to tap the bags to make them "give down."

Twelve to twenty acres, according to size of stalk, may be covered a day by this means, and unless a rain comes to soon and washes off, the application will get the worms. In case of rain following the application, there is nothing to do except to apply again.

I have heard of loss of stock from pasturing on the poisoned fields, but never had any trouble of this kind myself, or personal knowledge of such trouble. However, it is well to be careful, especially when heavy rains have not come prior to turning stock in the fields.

Great care should be taken to prevent injury to the horse used for applying the poison. He should be protected front and sides, by heavy canvas shields, reaching to his knees. The first time I used this dope I nearly killed the best horse on the place and it is just as bad for the boy.

Arsenate of Lead is a most effective remedy for the leaf-worm, but the paris green is easier to procure, and will do the work. Last season, we printed this warning and remedy in good time, but a great many seem not to have paid much attention to it until the worm attacked their fields, when they deluged this office with letters for the information we had given in the brief bulletin.

CURED OF INDIGESTION.

Mrs. Sadie P. Clawson, Indiana, Pa., was bothered with indigestion. "My stomach pained me night and day," she writes. "I would feel bloated and have headache and belching after eating. I also suffered from constipation. My daughter had used Chamberlain's Tablets and they did her so much good that she gave me a few doses of them and insisted upon my trying them. They helped me as nothing else has done." For sale by all dealers.

GIRLS AS CANNERS.

No better example for conservation could be cited than the girls' canning clubs that have organized and instructed in most of the states of the South and Southwest. The lessons of thrift and economy impressed upon the minds of these young girls cannot fail to be of great benefit to those of them that take upon themselves the responsibilities of keeping homes. The value of the information given to these girls will not be confined to the members of the canning clubs, but it will also help many mothers who have had meager advantages for the duties of preparing the foods and saving the surplus. Many of the club members will be a messenger to carry inspiration to the home and it is not difficult to see the influence of such work on society.

The problem of saving the waste is of paramount importance. The production we permit to waste because of poor markets amount to an enormous sum every year. Fruits and vegetables are perishable and the local markets can use only a small per cent of what is produced annually. Canning is a means of conserving the foods by saving the waste. That many farmers have not availed themselves of the opportunity to save by canning is sadly true. By teaching the girls and giving the mothers where canning has not been practised a chance to learn, the department of agriculture under lady agents is rendering valuable service.—Farm and Ranch.

WHERE THE PRIZES WENT.

During the four years 1911-14, the Texas Industrial Congress, has awarded 429 cash prizes aggregating $40,000 for agricultural products, including corn, cotton, cow peas, peanuts, kaffir, milo, feterita, hogs and baby-beef. It is a singular fact that 82 of these prizes have been won by farmers with Bohemian names, according to a statement made by Mr. Wehrwein of the Division of Home Welfare of the University of Texas. A map has been prepared by this division showing the location of farmers winning prizes and using different colored dots to indicate the nationality of the farmer receiving the prizes. For instance, a green dot is used to indicate a prize-winning farmer of German name, a purple dot is used to indicate a prize-winning farmer of English, Scotch or Irish names, and so on.

The map is thus interesting as showing at a glance the location of the prize-winning farmers, with regard to counties and soil belts of the state, and also the nationality of the prize winners.

Fayette leads every other county, having captured sixty prizes. In this county ten farmers of German names were prize winners, 5 with English, Scotch or Irish names, and the rest 45, were Bohemian. The Central Neocene Area (Black Sandy Loam) took 100 or nearly 25 per cent of the prizes, although this belt is extremely small, comprising the counties of DeWitt, Gonzales, Lavaca, Fayette, Austin, Washington, Waller, Brazos, Grimes and part of Burleson. The great black land belt, stretching fan-shaped across the state from a point on the Rio Grande in Maverick county to the rich Red River counties on the northeastern border captured only 112 of the prizes, while the comparatively small area known as the East Texas Timber Belt was awarded about the same number.

GIRL KILLS PROMINENT YOUNG MAN.

Quanah, July 9.—Miss Winnie Morris, daughter of the foreman of the local rail road shops, shot and killed Garland Radford last night here. Radford was twenty-three years of age and is the son of the wealthiest man of this place. Miss Morris worked at Radford's office last year. After some trouble Radford left here with his wife and child, returning to this place recently. The girl met him at the gate. Radford jumped from his wagon. The girl emptied a pistol and a shot gun into his body and death resulted immediately. The girl and her father have been placed under arrest.

CHARLES FROHMAN PRESENTS

Wm. H. Crane IN "DAVID HARUM"

"BEHIND THE SCENES"

There are many "David Harums" all about us—men with a stern exterior and a kindly heart that beats in sympathy for all the rest of the world—who do good quietly and secretly, and who sometimes bring about a pretty and tender romance, such as the one "David Harum" creates for his two young friends.

When David was a child, a courteous neighbor took the neglected little country boy to a circus, treating him to red lemonade and all the trimmings, and when, in later years, that boy, David Harum, has grown to manhood, and again meets his benefactor's widow, he gives her the deed of her home, about to be taken from her, and calls the loan of a day of happiness square.

"BEHIND THE SCENES"

The Date for This Interesting Play is Friday, July 23rd

Thursday, July 22nd, Juvenile Vaudeville
Presenting LITTLE MANORA IN SONG AND SKETCH DANCE

"Little Manora" will appear at the Opera House Movies on July 22nd. Don't fail to see her. She is a Mitchell County product and a niece of Mrs. J. L. Johnson of Champion and W. L. Edmondson of Lorraine. Press notices of her appearances in other places are most commendatory.

Mr. J. E. Poindexter, a banker of Cleburne, was here Friday looking into the security of some vendor's lien notes. He was a very pleasant visitor to this office.

For the next three weeks we will make extra low cash prices on all millinery.—Mrs. Mills.

Judge A. J. Coe, in these torrid dog days, claims to be not only a man of business, but a real laboring man. And his works attest his claims. He has just finished moving the old Sam Majors house over on his lots and connecting the two by a long and cool hallway. The Judge now has one of the most convenient and comfortable as well as attractive homes in Colorado, as befits any hard laboring man.

Extra low cash prices made on all our millinery before the season closes. Buy your hats now at reduced prices.—Mrs. Mills at Adams.

Mr. Watt Collier and family motored over from Colorado Sunday and spent the night with his brother, J. S. Collier, returning Monday.—Fluvanna Cor. Snyder Signal.

We will furnish everything but the baby and for the cold cash we can certainly interest you if you will give us a chance.—H. L. HUTCHINSON & Co.

The damage wrought by fire in the Callaway home two weeks ago last Saturday is being repaired this week.

Fresh fruit and vegetables every day at McMurry's.

Miss Minnie Ballah, who has been holding a responsible position with the Southwestern Telephone and Telegraph Company at Cleburne, the past year, is the guest of Judge J. H. Bullock and family.

If you build a house or repair the old one and don't let us figure the hardware you may be the looser.
H. L. HUTCHINSON & Co.

Dr. Corry of Collin county, was the guest this week of J. P. Hunter. It was the doctor's first visit to West Texas, and he expressed himself as well pleased with conditions, etc.

"Pete" Avery's Baggage Service Baggage hauled to and from all trains. Phone 273 for your trunks. Quick service is our motto.—"Pete."

Mrs. J. L. Doss left Monday for a visit with relatives and friends at Weatherford and other points. Mr. Doss will follow later.
