LAND VALUES FOR TAXATION PURPOSES.

Contrary to current notions, there is very little land value in farming communities. Farmers should pay very little for the support of the government, for they get very little from government. Taxation is payment for social service, community advantages, schools, policing, roads, maintaining order, etc. The measure of this service is land value, and the extent to which this service is developed is the extent, in the main, of the desirability of land for a site for a home. An ordinary farm in Texas, worth $5,000, really has a land value of not exceeding one-fifth of this amount, measured by this social service value of the land itself. The rest of the amount taxed is for the improvement and labor values on it, and for these things the farmer gets no adequate return for the taxes he pays. He should really pay only on the land value itself.

It is absurd, as well as dishonest, to charge a farmer for building a barn, for the barn represents a service, not rendered the farmer by the community, but a service rendered the farmer by himself; involves the community in no added expense, nor does the farmer receive from the community any more after he builds the barn than before.

The only and the sure way for the farmer to get rid of unjust burdens of taxation is to take for federal, state and county use the values that are due to social presence and the service, and that value is not to be found in rural communities, but in our great cities, and in taking this value no injustice is done to anyone, for he but takes socially created value for social needs.

While it is not obvious that taxing land values instead of labor products would greatly relieve the farmer of his present burden, it must not be forgotten that at the same time it would lift the heavy burden from his fellow workers in the cities, who are his chief customers, setting them free with ready cash for all the farmers' products.—Southland Farmer.

"IF I WERE PRESIDENT"
—JOSEPH W. BAILEY.

Joseph Weldon Bailey was for ten years a congressman from Texas and for twelve years a United States senator.

Even his enemies admit that in all these years when it came to statecraft and knowledge and fearlessness he stood among the giants of this nation.

Mr. Bailey is a private citizen now, but he yet retains the confidence of millions of his countrymen and appears to be as influential as one of the shining lights of the American bar as in the days when he was one of the acknowledged leaders of the Democratic party of this republic and admittedly one of the foremost among statesmen.

His voice is not for war. His voice is for peace. He has neither lost his courage nor abated his interest in those of his countrymen who are the producers of wealth and who help pay the taxes for the maintenance of government.

His doctrine is that the American who goes into a dangerous position should take the consequences. In other words, an American should sail on a ship under the protection of his own flag or the protection of the flag of some neutral nation.

The Dallas banquet in his honor was a remarkable contribution to the political history of the day. This was one among the notable utterances of this former senator, and in his speech he said many notable things:

"If I were President of the United States I would summon congress tomorrow morning in extraordinary session and send a message asking that Great Britain and the allies, having made cotton contraband, should not be permitted to get an ounce of lead or a pound of powder from this country until their order in council had been revoked. (Great applause.) Our people have borne the American burden of this war. Splendid profits have been made in the North and East, but the losses have fallen on the farmers of the South. They have gotten little more than one-half price for one crop of cotton; they ought not to be required to stand this again. If congress would do as congress did in Jefferson's day—lay an embargo on munitions—Great Britain would revoke that order in less than thirty days. (Applause.) But I do not criticize anybody until I know what they are going to do; then I am not afraid to criticize anybody. I hope that congress will act wisely."

The scene that followed baffled description. Thunderous acclamations of approval greeted the words of the distinguished orator and the sentiment conveyed. He did not criticize the President of the nation, the lawmakers of the nation or the leaders of the Democratic party of today. He told them that "If I were President," something would happen. He harkened back to the days of Thomas Jefferson, the illustrious founder of the Democratic party and the writer of the American declaration of independence, and those who are familiar with American history know the proud story of American valor and American achievement in the contest for the freedom of the seas and the supremacy of American rights and American commerce.—Fort Worth Record.

CHANDLER SIX
$1295

A Plain Talk About Automobile Values

PEOPLE are asking their friends a lot of questions about the relative values of the best known automobiles.

Interest centers chiefly, of course, in the light-weight sixes, because the light-weight six is the most popular type of car, and much of the interest centers in the Chandler.

The Chandler cannot supply the entire demand for light-weight sixes, but for thorough, careful purchasers who want to be very sure of relative values, there are some interesting facts well worth considering.

Such a purchaser will not forget that the Chandler was the first high-grade six selling for less than $2000 and weighing less than 3000 pounds. He will not forget that the Chandler pioneered the way for light-six domination and established the Light-Six Era. That was three years ago. The price was $1785.

The popularity of the Chandler Idea has grown by leaps and bounds ever since.

Other light-sixes quickly followed into the market but the Chandler has occupied a position of leadership all the way. A leadership in quality and price. And now Chandler is building Ten Thousand cars a year and still unable to fill the Chandler demand.

A vital element in the history of Chandler success—and the secret of Chandler high quality and low price this year—is the fact that essentially the Chandler car of this season is the Chandler car of the first season.

There has never been any reason for bringing out a radically new model. The original Chandler, in all its principles of design and construction, was final. From season to season we have refined it and beautified it and added the newest standard features of equipment. And this season we have brought out the really wonderful new seven-passenger body. But, from the mechanical standpoint, the car is practically unchanged. That marvelous Chandler motor—the foundation of Chandler supremacy—has remained untouched.

Standing pat on a model that was, and is, right, we have avoided costly experimentation that must attend the production of new models. We have lowered our overhead to a minimum. We have been enabled to make sensational price reductions from season to season and still give better value.

The world's greatest manufacturer of low-priced cars has built his tremendous success on this policy, and the public knows—you know—it is the policy that gives the purchaser "most for his money."

That is why no other car of like size and character has caught up with the Chandler price.

From $1785 this price last year went down to $1595. And this year down to $1295. In practical effect, Chandler offers you a $1785 car for $1295. And we ask you to try to match its value in any other car.

Look them over, all well-known makes. Study them carefully. Compare them part by part with the Chandler. Compare them with the Chandler for comfort and power and snap and finish and style. Then you will realize how much it means to you as a purchaser that the Chandler was right in the first place and that the Chandler manufacturing policy has been a policy of devotion to this one model.

A STATE FAIR PRIZE WINNER.

Dallas, "The Show Window of Texas Industries"—that's the 1915 State Fair of Texas in an nutshell. The State Fair begins Saturday, October 16, and closes Sunday, October 31.

All of the important activities of the State will be represented as never before—agriculture and kindred industries; livestock and the dairy interests; manufacturing—in fact, a splendid array of exhibits mirroring the progress of Texas and the achievements of her people.

The State Fair will furnish an education so practical and so broad as to appeal to all—and particularly does this apply to the splendid exhibits now being prepared by the University of Texas, the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, the College of Industrial Arts; and other educational institutions of the state.

The girls and boys of the State are interested in judging contests and in the prizes offered for boys' and girls' club work; and in the splendid building housing the textile, culinary and fine arts departments there will be much to interest the women and girls of the State.

County exhibits filling to overflowing a mammoth building, three thousand head of registered stock; twenty-five hundred blue-blooded fowls; ten acres of machinery and implement exhibits; an automobile show of 1916 models; a fine art exhibit valued at more than $100,000; an industrial arts exhibit that will interest the housewife; a superb showing of styles and fashions in women's wear, millinery, jewels; in fact, something to interest every man, woman and child in the state—this gives some idea of the 1915 Exposition.

Offerings in the livestock department are the richest of any in the country. This year approximately $20,000 in premiums and specials will be awarded for exhibits of cattle, horses, sheep and swine. All of the big organizations in the country with livestock men as members are offering special premiums. Applications for stalls and pens received indicate that the display will be mammoth in proportion.

The dairy and creamery interests will be represented in three divisions—dairy cattle, dairy demonstration and dairy products departments.

These three features are of special interest to dairymen and dairy cattle breeders; the awarding of the American Jersey Cattle Club's special premium for the best Jersey cow, get of sire, breeder's young herd, grand champion bull and grand champion female; the twelve days' competitive dairy test for butter fat; and educational displays and lectures dealing with the dairy and creamery business.

A staff of experts from the A. and M. College will spend their time at the Fair giving attention to helping Texas farmers with their home problems. The A. and M. exhibit for the coming Fair is being entirely reorganized.

STATE FAIR AMUSEMENT FEATURE.

Dallas: New, novel and up-to-date, with splendid attractions as features, describes the Amusement Park offerings at the 1915 State Fair of Texas, which begins in this city Saturday, October 16.

C. A. Worsham, who is at the head of this big carnival attraction, has achieved a national distinction for producing clean, entertaining and wholesome shows.

Among the prominent ones for the State Fair may be mentioned the society horse show, where no less than seven trained and educated horses are the participants in a monster program, headed by Miss Essie Fay and her equine paradox, "Arabia," the horse with a human brain.

Then there is the Hippodrome, the Mecca for all those who enjoy circus and wild animal acts. Here Mlle. La Rose, the interpid trainer of seven lions, will show them off to a real advantage. Other features will prove entertaining in the extreme and well worth seeing, whilst, in addition, there will be an extensive menagerie filled with strange and curious animals, reptiles and birds from all parts of the globe.

The auto stadium is a place where thrills will be produced at the rate of one per second. Here four riders, one of them a woman, Mlle. Marie, late of the vivandiere of the Chasseurs D'Afrique of the French Army, will drive high power racing autos around a perfectly perpendicular wall, flirting with death at every performance. Mlle. Marie and three other riders attempt the globe of death at one and the same time and their performance is hair-raising to a degree.

The Miracle Girl with Miss Etta Louise Blake in the title role is an exceptionally good attraction, devoted to mystery, mirth and music. The poses will be found to be most artistic, the singing and other spectacles refined, and the big spectacle, "Pharaoh's Daughter," exceptionally interesting and worth while.

Among the other features may be mentioned Zetta and her tango queens; "Neptune's Daughter," with Miss Lillian Cooley, famous swimmer, in the leading role; the Phillipino Midgets; Princess Carite, a diminutive entertainer; A Trip to Mars; Crystal Tangle and Crazy House.

Mr. Worsham brings to the State Fair a high-class musical organization—the famous Jameson Band of forty trained musicians and instrumental soloists.

In other words the carnival end of the State Fair this year will be what it ought to be—well produced, well fitted and well managed.

Cavalry, artillery, air scouts and polo teams from the United States Army will, it is believed, form a big encampment in the race track infield during the run of the State Fair. This will be a big feature with visitors, as a splendid army program will be assured. The program will be entirely different from that which created so much interest last year. Artillery drills, exhibitions by the aerial branch of the army, cavalry drills will make a realistic war presentation that will be both educational and thrilling.

CHRIST: "A SMALL TOWN MAN."

(Mary Austin, in The North American Review.)

He was a small-town man, and no world-builder. He preached the Kingdom of God, knowing God for a spirit and having an increasing realization of the Kingdom as a state of being. But He had no program. He followed the inward voice, and followed it instinctively, with the freedom of a river in its natural channel, with no fretting of the flesh. But where the voice left Him uninformed, He was simply a man from Nazareth; His social outlook was the outlook of a villager. All the great prophets of Israel had come out of the wilderness; their words were full of terrible things—thunders, earthquakes, fire on the mountains. But the words of Jesus are of the small town—the candle and the bushel, the housewife's measure of yeast, the children playing in the street. The rich He knew only as the poor and the oppressed knew them; the kings of His parables were the kings of fairy tale and legend; such rulers and potentates as make the stock of the village story-teller. His very way of speaking was a folk-way; the pithy sentence, the pregnant figure. He saw God reflected in every surface of the common life, and taught in parables, which are, after all, but a perfected form of the quizzes and riddles dear to the unlettered wit. This is why so many of them are remembered, while His profounder sayings escaped his audience. It is evident, from the form of these, blunted as they are by retranslation, that they were, many of them, cast in the matched and balanced sentences of Hebrew verse, which accounts, in part, for their easy retention. He was a man, wise in life, but unlearned. He read no books but the Scriptures; wrote nothing; took the folk-way of transmitting His teaching from mouth to mouth, and trusted God for the increase; and He had the folk-way in His profoundest speech, of identifying Himself with the Power that used Him. He dramatized all His relations to the Invisible. And, with it all, He was a Jew of the circumcision. He grew up beyond Judaism, as a stalk of grain grows from its sheath, but never out of it. Always, to His death, it was there about the roots of His life.

REMEDIES FOR FLEAS.

Permanently to Get Rid of the Pests They Must be Attacked in Their Breeding Places.

Persons whose houses, pet animals, or live stock are infested with fleas are warned in a new publication of the department, Bulletin No. 248, that it is almost hopeless to get rid of the pest if no attention is paid to the breeding places in the insects. It is, of course, important to destroy the adult fleas, but this should be accompanied by a thorough cleaning out of all places in which their eggs may be laid. Since it takes from two weeks to many months for the eggs of fleas to develop to adults, there is always danger of a re-infestation unless the breeding places are thoroughly destroyed.

It is a well-known fact that certain kinds of fleas are responsible for the spread of the bubonic plague, and this alone would make their destruction a universal duty. They are, however, responsible for other diseases as well as the plague; and entirely apart from their share in spreading contagion, they are a great nuisance to human beings, and may annoy live stock to such an extent that they seriously injure the health of the animal. The flea can exist practically everywhere that man can, and if the conditions are permitted to be favorable it will multiply with great rapidity.

Of the approximately 400 species of fleas known to exist, the human flea, the dog flea, the cat flea, the rat flea—which carries the plague—and the sticktight flea are the varieties which most commonly affect human beings and domestic animals. The sticktight flea differs from the others in that when it has once attached itself to a host it remains with its mouth parts immovably embedded in the flesh. Chickens suffer in particular from this pest, and for this reason it is sometimes called the chicken flea. It is frequently seen in dense masses also on the ears of dogs and cats. It is difficult to loosen it from its hold, and its destruction therefore presents some difficulties. Fairly good results are obtained from the local application of kerosene and lard in the proportions of 1 part kerosene and 3 parts lard, but if used too freely this may injure poultry.

In the case of other species the insects hop about much more freely, and may or may not, therefore, be found at any given time on their hosts. When dogs or cats, however, are found to be suffering, a bath in a 3 per cent solution of creolin will probably be found to be effective. A sufficiently accurate method of making such a solution is to add 4 tablespoonfuls of creolin to each gallon of water. Warm water should be used, and the animal placed in a tub with the solution in it. A stiff brush should then be used to work the solution into the hair, particular care being taken to wet the fleas on the head of the animal. The bath should last 5 or 10 minutes, after which the creolin should be rinsed off and the animal washed with warm water and soap. This treatment is desirable for cats and will prevent the skin of the most delicate animal from being burned. Finely pulverized moth balls worked into the fur of the cat are also useful. The naphthalene in the moth balls drives the fleas out of the hair. They emerge in a stupefied condition and can then easily be killed.

Insect powder, sometimes called pyrethrum, buhach, or Dalmatian insect powder, may be used in the same way. Fresh unadulterated pyrethrum is necessary to secure satisfactory results.

It has already been said, however, that it is useless to attack the adult flea if no attention is paid to its breeding places. The flea may lay its eggs upon the host animal, but in the case of the human flea most of the eggs are probably deposited while the insects are in their nests somewhere in the vicinity. In houses the cracks of floors or under matting or carpets are favorite places. The conditions under buildings are often favorable for breeding. For this reason it is desirable that dwellings, stables, and sheds should be so arranged that cats, dogs, chickens, and other animals that harbor the pests can not go beneath them to sleep. Dirt floors in chicken houses and sheds furnish more favorable conditions than wooden floors, and young fleas are often found in the straw, feathers, and waste in such places. Where chicken houses and sheds are found to be infested the manure should be hauled away and spread in fields. Unnecessary rubbish and dry animal matter should be piled up and burned. The ground, the floors of outhouses, and similar places where the breeding is supposed to occur should be sprayed with kerosene or crude petroleum sprinkled about. An inexpensive preventive measure is the liberal use of salt scattered about the breeding places and then wet down. Semi-weekly thorough wettings with water have been found to keep fleas out of poultry runs in Texas and salt water from the Gulf is used extensively for this purpose along the coast.

Where it is supposed that dogs or cats are largely responsible for the infestation, it is desirable to compel them to sleep in a definite place in order that the eggs from the fleas be concentrated and thus more easily destroyed. A few gunny sacks or a mat for infested animals to sleep upon will be found to contain a great majority of the eggs, and these can be destroyed by shaking the cloths over the fire or exposing them on a bare spot in the rays of the sun.

Where fleas are found to be breeding in the house itself the first step is to sweep up all the dust and burn it. Floor coverings should be removed, aired, and beaten, and the floor scrubbed with strong soapsuds. Various insecticides have also been found to be effective, but many are either dangerous to health or injurious to various articles.

Fumigation with sulphur fumes or hydrocyanic acid gas has also been employed to rid dwellings of fleas. Both of these have the additional advantage of killing rats and mice as well as fleas, but sulphur is open to the objection that it corrodes metal and injures plants. Hydrocyanic acid gas is so deadly that its use except under expert direction is quite out of the question. In fumigating with sulphur, 4 pounds to each 1,000 cubic feet of space should be used. The sulphur is piled up cone shaped in a pan, which is placed in a larger pan or tub of water to avoid fire from the heat generated. A depression is made in the top of the cone of sulphur, a little alcohol poured into it, and a match applied. The room to be fumigated should be tightly closed beforehand and kept closed from 10 to 12 hours. At the end of that time the doors and windows should be opened from the outside and the room thoroughly aired before it is entered.

Various methods of trapping fleas have been tried at one time or another, but none of these appear to be of as much practical value as the methods already discussed. It is well to remember, however, that the flea can not jump upward very far—a few inches being the usual limit—and for this reason if the legs are protected a person is rarely bitten. In plague-infested areas, where it is of the utmost importance to prevent even a single flea from biting a man, fly paper has sometimes been wrapped around the legs and the fleas that jump against it have been caught and killed in this way. In badly infested regions it is also possible to isolate the bed, if sufficiently high, by taking care to keep the clothing from hanging down. If the legs of the bed are sufficiently rough to enable the fleas to climb up them they should be placed in large pans of water or fly paper should be wrapped around them.—U. S. Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

A New Back For an Old One. How it Can be Done in Colorado.

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys and again the loins are so lame that to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Colorado residents would do well to profit by the following example:

A. A. Princess, Sweetwater, Texas, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with excellent results. I had weak kidneys which caused my back to ache and I had other pains, common to kidney sufferers. A friend told me of the wonderful good Doan's Kidney Pills did him, so I got a box and used them as directed. In a short time I was cured and I haven't had any need of a kidney medicine since."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Princess had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE BLIND RUSH TO THE CITY

The idea seems to prevail among our young people on the farms that an education is to be valued principally as a means of getting away from the farm to the city to live. And the parents seem to look at it in the same way. It is a matter of common knowledge that the brightest of our young women and of our young men have gone to the city in such ever increasing numbers that the cities have been continuously enriched by their coming, while the country has been correspondingly impoverished.

In bringing this obvious fact to the attention of Southland Farmer readers it is not our intention to lay the attraction of the city to the bright lights, the lust for amusement and a desire to avoid hard work. Many excuses have been given for the constant movement from the farms to the cities, but few reasons have been brought forward on the other hand, showing how the farmer boy and the farmer girl are better off on the farm.

Unfortunately there are no statistics to show what becomes of our boys and girls when they leave the farm and go to town to live. But our observation, reaching over a period of twenty years, points clearly to the fact that they are swallowed up in the great stream of wage-earners, and are seldom heard of except as being employed at wages which seem large to us at home, on the farm, but which, in reality, are meager pay, when the cost of living in the cities is taken into consideration.

Every county can point to a few who have won success in the city. But these are exceptions to the rule, and it is wrong for young women and men to rush to the cities expecting to make an easy living and have a good time. The better plan would be to get the very best and highest education it is possible for our young people to get, and then go back to the farms of Texas and apply the knowledge toward better homes, better schools, better social surroundings, better preachers, better school teachers, better crops, better live stock, better living—everything better on the farm.

Just turn the custom around and let us retain on our farms for the next ten years the bright, intelligent, educated men and women, instead of sending them off to the cities and see what a marvelous advancement farm life and everything pertaining to farming will make. What we need is more education on the farm, not in the cities. What we need is educated young men and young women who will farm with such intelligence that every acre of land in the principal farming counties of Texas will go up to $150 to $300 per acre, which is easily possible. What we need is farmers who will send their boys and girls to school where they may receive the best education to be had and then bring them home, where they may interest themselves in building up the agricultural, horticultural and live stock interests and wealth of Texas, and then they will truly be engaged in laudable occupations.

Instead of our farmer boys flocking to the cities to run the street cars, to clerk in stores, become bookkeepers and stenographers at meager pay, let them live out in the open and with no limit to the success they may attain. By all means get an education, but do not let a thing so valuable and an accomplishment so dearly bought drag you to the city already overcrowded and underpaid.—Southland Farmer.

CHURCH GOING AS A BUSINESS ASSET

In the New York papers one Saturday a few weeks ago there appeared a large advertisement beginning with the words, "In this commercial age, here is a business asset," and closing with the appeal, "Go to church tomorrow." This appeal, declares an editorial writer in the Christian Herald (New York) should be repudiated by the churches of New York, because it puts the duty of Christian worship upon an unchristian basis. True enough, he says, "the appeal to the business interests was acknowledged to be but a means to an end; that is, the advertisement stated that church attendance would be a business gain, and went on to state that spiritual gain would undoubtedly result. But we are told the advertisement contained these words: "Right within your reach is a business asset—a very definite one—which you are perhaps overlooking. This asset is derived from your going to church. Undoubtedly you have never looked upon it in this light. It is obvious, if you are known as a steady, sober-minded churchman, those with whom you deal have greater confidence in you. Going to church will tend toward establishing you in the mind of everyone as a man to be trusted. This is a decided business advantage, a personal asset, and worth while in every way."

Whereas the Christian Herald repeats with this indignant and vigorous protest:

"It is simply impossible to think of Jesus or any of his first followers using this appeal to induce people to come into their fellowship. Their call was quite opposite—a call to poverty, a call to sacrifice, a call to danger, a call to probable death. This advertisement in the New York papers is a striking indication of how far the church in some quarters has allowed itself to drift from the spirit and teachings of Jesus.

"One of the greatest reproaches of the church has always been the fact that some men have sought membership in it for this very cause, and it is inexcusable to make this very thing which has been the church's shame, the basis of an appeal to outsiders to come in. Peter on one occasion said to a man who sought to gain spiritual information and gifts in order that he might coin them into money: 'Thy money perish with thee, thou child of the devil.'

"Some such spirit as this would do much to bring the church back to the purity and the power she has lost. For the most part we are altogether overlooking the appeal of the prosperous. These were not the people whom Jesus particularly sought. It was the common people who heard him gladly, and it is the common people with their poverty and their woes, their struggles and their hopes, that the church must try to reach and help today.

"Of course we should try also to help the well-to-do, but we may help him best by sounding again the warning which Jesus spoke that it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. Particularly we must do all we can to purge the church of the reproach of containing people who have sought her courts for the sake of gain. It is to be hoped that the churches of New York will in emphatic terms repudiate the advertisement referred to and bring to an accounting the men who were responsible for its insertion in the public press."

IS GERMANY BACKING HUERTA?

A very sensational story was printed in a Washington paper a few days ago, claiming that General Victorino Huerta's recent attempt to enter the republic of Mexico was the result of a German-made plot, in which the German ambassador was concerned, to embroil the United States in war with Mexico, and thus check shipments of war munitions to the Allies in Europe.

The chief instigator of the alleged German plot is said to be Captain Boy-Ed, of the German embassy. The German foreign office, it is asserted, worked with the embassy in fomenting the scheme, which was nipped by the United States government through the arrest of Huerta as he was preparing to cross the border.

HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.

To restore that strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equaled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining nourishment invigorates the blood to distribute energy throughout the body while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way.

If you are run down, tired, nervous, overworked or lack strength, get Scott's Emulsion to-day. It is free from alcohol.

Secretary Lansing has denied that the state department has any knowledge of this alleged conspiracy. The object of the plot, according to the Washington newspaper, was to divert the public mind from the sinking of the Lusitania, to divert the shipments of munitions of war from the Allies, to compel the American government to purchase German-American ships now lying in our ports and which would be needed as transports in the event of a Mexican war, to stop the shipment of oil from Mexican fields to France and Great Britain, and to force President Wilson to declare another embargo on the shipment of arms to Mexico, which would be cited as a precedent by Germany. The essential features of the Washington newspaper's story are as follows:

"It was when Captain Boy-Ed, acting as a mouthpiece of Count von Berstorff, tried to hire some American citizens to secure Huerta's safe conduct into Mexico and to undertake the work of transporting arms across the border, that the exposure came.

"The moment this offer was made President Wilson was informed of it. As a result of this information, Huerta and many of his fellow plotters in New York were shadowed night and day by secret service officials. When Huerta left New York with the avowed intention of going to San Francisco the department of justice was warned that the alleged objective was a blind. Had Huerta proceeded to California he would not have been molested at that time. The moment he turned South and headed for El Paso it was decided to arrest him on his arrival in that city."

Whether there is any truth in the Washington story or not, it will be remembered that a very hurried occupation of Vera Cruz was made last year by American forces to prevent the delivery through that port of large quantities of German munitions of war to General Huerta. Germany was furnishing him with fighting material while he was maintaining his usurpation and it is not unreasonable to suppose German friendship for Huerta has not been entirely dissipated.—El Paso Times.

GREAT POULTRY SHOW.

Dallas. The poultry exhibit at the State Fair of Texas this fall will in every way be indicative of the importance of this thriving industry. The big building at Fair Park which houses the poultry division has been thoroughly overhauled. New coops have been installed, especially the coops large enough to take care of "flocks"—a new classification this year. A flock will consist of one male and eight females. The usual generous premiums are offered for individual birds and for pens. The Texas Barred Rock Club offers a special prize of $25 this year for the best dark and light Barred Rock exhibited.

MADE-IN-TEXAS EXHIBIT.

Dallas. A new feature for the State Fair of Texas this year is the Made-in-Texas exhibit. Displays of Texas manufactured products covering more than 40,000 square feet of floor space will be a big boost for home industry. In several of the exhibits machinery will be in actual operation making the products on exhibition. Texas factory products are equal in quality, price, desirability and usefulness to those made outside the State. The Made-in-Texas exhibit was decided on to impress visitors with this fact.

POLO TOURNAMENT ASSURED.

Dallas. This city will be the Mecca of polo enthusiasts during the run of the 1915 State Fair of Texas. Assisted by Captain A. J. Edmonds, the "father of American polo," the State Fair management has arranged for a series of games to be played the first and second weeks. Crack teams from civil life and from the United States Army have already entered—some of the best players in America are assured. Polo will be played on the big athletic field at Fair Park.

Polo is a popular game with all lovers of outdoor sport. It requires courage, keen and active thought, and expert horsemanship. It is now a part of the curriculum in the mounted service of the United States Army.

WORLD'S GREATEST AVIATOR TO FLY AT STATE FAIR.

Dallas. Art Smith, the most daring aviator of all time, has been engaged to make flights each day and on six nights during the run of the 1915 State Fair of Texas. This "comet of the air" has recently out-beached Beachey in every phase of flying at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. At the State Fair of Texas Smith guarantees to put on all his hair-raising thrills. In his contract he promises, among other sensations, the from an altitude of about 2500 feet; roll-over loops, finishing within 500 feet following. Ten straight up and over loop-the-loops in absolute succession of the ground—causing the machine to roll over sideways, wing over wing until upside-down, and finishing by diving and leveling to right-side-up; vertical drop from about 2000 feet down to landing; wing slide in which the machine is rolled sideways until the wings point up and down, machine then falling sideways, tail slide, in which the machine is rolled sideways until the wings point up and down, machine is rolled straight up until it "stalls," then falls backward tail first; looping-the-loop at 1000 feet with hands off the steering wheel and arms outstretched; and flying upside down with hands off wheel and arms outstretched.

Smith's night flights are especially sensational when he loops-the-loop not less than a dozen times, his machine all ablaze with brilliant fireworks.

CHICAGO TRADUCES THE SOUTH.

The Chicago Tribune, a journal which calls itself "The World's Greatest Newspaper," apropos of a lynching in Georgia, launches this diatribe at the entire South:

"The South is backward. It shames the United States by illiteracy and incompetence. Its hill men and poor whites, its masses of feared and bullied blacks, its ignorance and violent politicians, its rotten industrial conditions and its rotten social ideas exist in circumstances which disgrace the United States in the thought of Americans and in the opinion of foreigners. "The South is half educated. It is a region of illiteracy, blatant self-righteousness, cruelty, and violence. Until it is improved by the invasion of better blood and better ideas it will remain a reproach and a danger to the American Republic."

The Tribune is backward. As an American newspaper it shames the United States by its ignorance and incompetence. Its blatant self-righteousness passes belief. Until it is improved by the invasion of a better spirit and better ideas it will remain a reproach and a danger to a true nationalism. But its sentiments with regard to the South must be typical of community opinion, since otherwise they would have met with public and concerted rebuke from Chicago's citizenship.

When the Civil War broke out the North as rich; the South, thanks to an industrial system which was as mistaken economically as it was wrong morally, was poor. The war stimulated the North and prepared it for the conquest of the New West; it prostrated and bankrupted the South. After the war the North was as it had been before; the South was a land in ruins. Not only its capital was gone; its institutions were to rebuild, on new and better foundations. And while the South stood so bitterly in need the laws of the United States were shaped to benefit the protected manufacturers of the North at the expense of the agricultural South. We recall that the esteemed Tribune, in the Medill days, used to argue powerfully for a low tariff between campaigns; then when the time for action came, it always became "regular" and fought with and for the tariff barons.

There is no more shameful story than that of the "reconstruction" of the South, for which the North was responsible. There is no more inspiring story than that of the reconstruction of the South by itself. Which is typical of the South; the shameful deed of a mob or the steady, persistent advances of industrial reform, of popular education, of city making, of literature and the arts, of charity and philanthropy?

Is Chicago in a position to throw stones? Has the Windy City nothing to learn from the despised South? Look at the way in which Chicago has muddled her terminal situation and compare it with the splendid municipal terminals of New Orleans. For Chicago to prate of "ignorant and violent politicians" is, as a certain Venetian gentleman once remarked, "hypocrisy against the devil." Can the South match Bath-House John and Hinky Dink? Has the South ever equaled the Lorimer scandal? Yet Lorimer came from the great and good City of Chicago.

brought disgrace upon the politics of a nation; its municipal government has been sordid and corrupt; what did Chicago ever do in a constructive way to advance the political thinking of America or help forward-looking men to better things? Nothing at all; in the realm of political construction Chicago has been as barren as a stretch of alkali desert under a blazing sun. But look at little Galveston, a few years since stricken by one of the worst disasters in history; yet setting out, with a courage that tempest and ocean combined could not daunt, not only to build a city impregnable in the face of the wrath of Nature but also to fashion a city government on new principles, where honesty and efficiency might come into their own. The one great contribution to the practical art of city government made by the United States since the birth of the nation came out of the Far South.

What has Chicago done for Cook county, except to debauch its politics? The Illinois metropolis might well take a leaf out of the book of Fort Worth, Texas, which has so stimulated the good roads enthusiasm of Tarrant county that that jurisdiction has within two years invested $2,000,000 in improved highways, expended, not according to the methods of pork-barrel politics, so well comprehended in Cook county, but under the personal supervision, with full responsibility, of one of the most eminent highway engineers in America.

Chicago prides herself on her achievements in literature. Atlanta, one-twentieth her size, has given the nation Joel Chandler Harris, Henry Grady and Frank Stanton. Can Chicago equal that honor roll? Chicago is a musical center. Yet Chicago's opera company has collapsed in ruins, while Atlanta continues to give to opera a patronage unmatched in the United States, population for population.

The Tribune sneers at the "hill men" of the South. Does it not know that these "hill men" stepped out in front of the grape-shot in the Civil War to fight for freedom? Does it know that nowhere in the United States are personal morals higher and gracious hospitality to the stranger more universal than in the hills of the South? Has it followed the progress of Missouri communities peopled by this same stock, and the records of the young people who have gone out of these hills to the universities of the land, and then to honorable places in the nation's life?

Did the anarchist outrages of a quarter-century ago prove Chicago a nest of anarchists, outside of the pale of civilization and beyond all hope?

Chicago has, in one sole respect, shown herself quick to respond to the growth and improvement of the South. That is in the realm of trade. Chicago is acutely conscious of the value of Southern dollars, anxious to conserve trade relations with the region whose "rotten industrial conditions and rotten social ideas . . . illiteracy, blatant self-righteousness, cruelty and violence" are so far unworthy of the city of Lorimer, Hinky-Dink, Bath-house John, and the rest of Chicago's municipal saints. But Chicago serves notice to the world through her press that her commercial relations with the South carry with them no hint of good neighborliness, of approbation of great men and great movements, of knowledge of the harvest of the field of civic effort, education, social advance, literature and art, in which the South has labored.

Chicago's relations with the South are on a revenue basis only.—St. Louis Republic.
