P. T. A.

Your president urges all members to attend the book shower at Mrs. P. C. Coleman's Tuesday, March 24, from four to seven. The books given at the shower are to be donated to the public lending library that is being sponsored by the County Federation of Women's organizations of which we are a member. As an organization standing for education, we realize the value of books in the home, school and a place where our young people may secure good reading. A public library.

Books are keys to wisdoms treasure. Books are gates to lands pleasure. Books are paths that upward lead. Books are friends, indeed.

Come bring a book to the shower that all may in time to come, have access to books that preserve all that mankind has done, thought or been. Remember in the selection of this book give which may be a book you have in your library or one you buy, what Carlyle said: "The value of a library depends not upon the number of its books, but upon their character." Please visit the school, if you have not done so. Visiting encourages the pupils and the teachers. Let me ask again that we as parents do our part toward helping our children to be on time at school. There were a large number of tardies last month. Please remember to attend the next meeting. We have election of officers and other important business. Come and invite others to come. Mrs. J. G. AMERICAN LEGION PRESENTS MUSICAL COMEDY MAR. 27

Mrs. and Mr. Polytickk

Get ready to laugh 'cause tis surely a scream
 Mrs. and Mr. Polytickk make a good team,
 The little Ticks too, lend much joy and fun:
 Now Senator Highbrow carries her gun,
 Till Bridget O'Brien takes her in charge,
 And then they all want to go to the lodge.
 But wife is voting and learning to roam,
 So poor hubby must darn and knit and stay home.
 The songs they all sing will please you too,
 Never a minute will we let you feel blue.
 The chorus will add just worlds of joy
 With the dance they do and their way so coy,
 Oh Goodness, Oh Gracious, you just watch the rest!
 Come sweetheart, come child, come husband, come wife,
 We guarantee you the time of your life!

D. W. GRIFFITH AT THE MISSION NEXT WEEK

Colorado is getting her share of the big new motion picture successes this season. In line with the continuous array of big productions being given in local theatres, is the announcement that D. W. Griffiths new special attraction, "Isn't Life Wonderful," is scheduled for a two days showing at the Mission theatre on Monday and Tuesday of next week. It is a simple life story with the deepest touch of human interest ever instilled into a picture by this famous Director General, so it is claimed. D. W. Griffith has never been associated with anything but the greatest successes in motion pictures, which within itself is sufficient to recommend it to theatre goers the country over. It will doubtless be one of the seasons unusual treats.

THEORY OF EVOLUTION WILL WRECK HOME AND CHURCH

Charging that the proponents of Darwinism, or evolution, were striking at the very heart of the social and religious life of America, Elder M. L. Vaughan of Fayetteville, Tenn. in a lecture at the Church of Christ, drew a distinct line between the two great systems of thought prevalent in the world today—theism, called belief in God, and atheism, the denial of God. The lecture was delivered Sunday afternoon and heard by a number of church people of the city.

Elder Vaughan, among the strong ministers of the Church of Christ, is at present on a tour of Texas to raise funds with which to place a Bible chair by his church in the University of Texas. In his lectures he is denouncing in terms not to be misunderstood the hurtful effects of the efforts of followers of Darwin to spread their propaganda through our churches and schools.

Quoting the declaration of the president of a strong society in California, the speaker declared that it was the purpose of this society to come to Texas with their propaganda, money and personal representatives to do everything within their power to cast the Bible, with special reference to the book of Genesis, from our schools and set up their own theories instead.

"These proponents are striking at the very heart of our social life, and will leave no stone unturned to make atheists of your children. If you are not happy in your home, run your wife away and break up some other man's home. That has been taught in your State schools. I was there and heard it taught. Friends, what are you going to do about it? I want to tell you people of Texas not to sit down and make atheists out of your children."

Elder Vaughan declared that he nor the Bible had no fight to make on science. The Bible itself is a revelation of science never to be equalled by any man made treatise, he outlined. "All great scientists, in the past and those of today, have been men of God," he stated.

The speaker took up Darwin, Spencer, Morris, Harris and other advocates of the theory of evolution and quoting from the Bible read Scripture authority to disprove their teachings as being contrary to the plan of the Creator and the very principle of Christianity itself.

Science variation is not evolution, he said, neither is improvement evolution. "You can vary and improve everything, but that is not evolution. Whenever you show the change from a pig to man, or dog to monkey then you show organic evolution. But take it in a laboratory test. Instead of man having come from a monkey, the monkey's blood is the farthest removed from human blood. The dog's blood is the closest allied to man, so you came from the dog instead of the monkey, if descendants from the animal state.

"The evolutionist may account for the unity and harmony of the solar system and thousands of heavenly bodies. And you tell me this thing came by chance and that we have this wonderful heavenly body by chance? Surely, friends, that is beyond human credulity. There must have been a designer."

Elder Vaughan read the first chapter of Romans as his Bible lesson. Quoting David in his description of a "fool," he declared that the great Psalmist catalogued the atheist as a fool.

William Franklin McCollum, citizen of Mitchell county since 1911 died of paralysis at his home Friday morning, March 13, after an illness of several days. Funeral services were held at the Church of Christ Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Bro. Vaughn of Abilene, who was expected was unable to come and funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. W. Hanks, assisted by Bro. A. Phillips and J. W. Fairbairn, friends of the deceased, who with the impressive spiritual record of the life that was spent, hallowed the otherwise sad occasion as one of triumph than of sorrow. There was a moment when the very atmosphere of the church seemed charged and death in Christ seemed restful and altogether natural, as it should be. Deceased obeyed the gospel at the age of 20 and his life of service for Christ was as the highest tribute and an example for others. Mr. McCollum was born at Fayetteville, Alabama, Sept. 20, 1854, age 70 years, 5 months and 20 days. He was first married to Miss Mary Jane Moore, who died April 10th, 1880. To this union were born three children two of whom are living. He was again married November 30th, 1881 to Miss Imilda Collins. To this union twelve children were born, six of whom are living. He has three brothers and one sister living. He came to Grayson county, Texas, in 1882 lived there 12 years, moved to Cooke county, where he lived 17 years, moving to Mitchell county January, 1911, where he has lived continually since. A substantial and respected man numbering his friends by his acquaintances. The family have the deepest sympathy of friends and neighbors in their loss of husband and father.

PATRIOTIC FILM SPONSORED AS LIBRARY BENEFIT

That stirring patriotic drama of Civil War days, "Barbara Frietchie" was selected by the committee of the 1921 Study Club as a special benefit performance in behalf of the library fund. The management of the Mission Theatre brought the picture to Colorado for a private screening a few days ago at which time a number of the leading citizens witnessed the presentation. It was proclaimed by all as one of the greatest patriotic productions of all time, many declaring that it was greater than "America." Under such circumstances, the attraction would hardly need further comment or recommendation, and it is indeed fortunate that the picture could be arranged for this particular benefit program. Tickets are in the hands of the 1921 Study Club, and everybody should avail themselves of the opportunity to assist in this worthy community undertaking by purchasing liberally. "Barbara Frietchie" will no doubt prove one of the biggest film treats yet witnessed by Colorado people. It will be shown afternoon and night, Thursday and Friday of this week at the Mission Theatre.

MARSHALL, Texas, March 15.—The Texas State-wide garden contest for the Hasting's prize of $100 is being directed by the Harrison County home demonstration agent, Miss Georgia Lacewell. The above article is taken from the Dallas News. Miss Lacewell was formerly home demonstration agent in Mitchell county, resigning her work in December, 1923. She is doing commendable work in Harrison county.

MARKED PROGRESS IS MADE BY LORAIN CIVIC BODY

That the Loraine Chamber of Commerce is making commendable progress is indicated in press reports carried from time to time in the Loraine Leader and other papers. A few months ago the organization instituted the luncheon plan for its meetings and every succeeding month has registered a larger and more active Chamber of Commerce.

In reference to the March meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held March 23, the Loraine Leader says:

"The next monthly banquet of the Loraine Chamber of Commerce will be held the 23rd of this month and will be in the Wimberley building, instead of at the Royal Cafe, where it has been heretofore.

"The plans are to make the coming banquet one of the best since the starting of the custom the first of the year, and the women folks will be included in the invitations given by the members this time. The usual plan will be followed, each member paying for a plate and for the plate of a guest. The exception to the rule is that the band boys will be fed free of charge this time by the Chamber of Commerce.

Since the adoption of the luncheon plan the Chamber of Commerce has shown a decided growth and new life has been put into the organization, and the local body is fast becoming one of the liveliest commercial organizations in West Texas.

"If you are not a member of the Chamber of Commerce pay your dues and become a booster for your town."

HAPPY CHARLIE.

The Death of Bob Anderson.

The death angel came March 9th, at 9 a. m. and called Robert H. Anderson home.

Robert H. Anderson was born Sept. 6, 1900 at Azle, Tarrant County, Texas. He moved to Hamilton county with his parents when a small child five years of age. He lived there until some three years ago, he moved to Colorado, Texas, to make his home with his brother and family, Mr. Joe Anderson.

Bob has many friends in Hamilton county who will mourn his loss. Bob had won many friends since coming to Colorado. He had pneumonia, was sick only 14 days. He bore his suffering patiently. He said "he was ready to go." We know our loss was heaven's gain. He leaves a mother, four brothers and four sisters to mourn his loss.

Bob made his stay here on earth 24 years, 8 months and 3 days. Only a bud on earth but a rose to bloom in Heaven.

He was laid to rest in the I. O. O. F. cemetery at Colorado Tuesday at 2:00 p. m. to wait the glad resurrection morn.—A Friend.

Why Not Realize Grady's Vision?

The Troup Banner recently reproduced in a "box" on its front page a quotation from a speech by Henry W. Grady that ought to be framed and hung in every farm home in the South. Here it is.

Clip it and put it where it can be seen often:

"Whenever the farmer in the South shall eat bread from his own fields and meat from his own pastures, and, disturbed by no creditor and enslaved by no debt; shall sit amidst his teeming gardens and orchards and vineyards and dairies and barnyards, pitching his crops in his own wisdom, and growing them in independence, making cotton his clean surplus, and selling it in his own time, and in his chosen market—and not at his master's bidding—getting his pay in cash and not in a receipted mortgage that discharges his debt, but doesn't restore his freedom—then shall be the breaking of the fullness of our day."

Learning to Make Their Clothes.

The State Department of Education of Texas is sponsoring a movement that should meet the approval of every parent in the State. This is a clothing contest to be held at Austin, April 23-25, which will be open to all the schools in Texas that have home economics departments. More than 100 schools will be represented in the contest by several girls from each school who have won the trip through local school contests. These girls, some 500 in number, will have with them the clothing made in their schools that will be entered for prizes aggregating $100.00 offered by the Texas Mothers' Congress. The girls will give exhibitions of the clothing made by them and as worn by them. This will be a fashion show worth while. How I wish every Texas girl could see it.

Travel is a Great Educator.

The making of their clothes and the prizes received in the contests will not be the only advantage the girls will receive from their efforts. The trip to Austin at their age will be a most wonderful lesson for every one of them. They will get to see the capitol of Texas, that marvelously beautiful building under its brilliantly lighted dome. They will see many other institutions that belong to them as much as to any one else in Texas. They will be filled with pride of citizenship in so great a state so rich in inspiring history. They will see other sections of the state than the familiar surroundings of their own homes. They will have experiences that will be treasured through life. Surely Texas school children have many advantages now that their parents never dreamed of in their school days. Getting an education is being made attractive to those who work hard enough to get the best that is offered even in the remote country schools.

Making Billions for Texas.

A University of Texas professor of physical chemistry, Dr. E. P. Schoch, has announced the completion of experiments that, if his conclusions are correct, will mean the conservation of more than $50,000,000,000 of Texas wealth. There are "in sight" some 22,000,000,000 tons of Texas lignite and probably many more billions that may be revealed by further exploration. This lignite, when exposed to the air, soon slacks to fine powder, is burned with much difficulty, and is unpleasant to handle. Hence, the sale of it is restricted, as it cannot be stored. The governments of this country and Canada have made many costly experiments in efforts to dehydrate and briquette lignite, but all the processes have been too expensive. After some eight years of experimenting, Dr. Schoch says he has found a way to process lignite to make it commercially available at a reasonable cost. According to his figures lignite can be mined, processed, and loaded at the mine at a total cost of $2.51 a ton, the processed fuel being as good for fuel as, and having heating units equal to, soft coal. On account of difference in freight rates this should be a great saving to all Texas fuel users.

The Figures Are Astounding.

It is hard to think, in figures, just what Dr. Schoch's discovery may mean. First, there is the 22,000,000,000 or more tons of lignite of which but little use could have been made in its natural state. It is now worth at least that many dollars. Miners will be employed to get it out. Then, the processing will require $1.50 for each ton. The railroads will get a haul. So will teamsters or draymen. Then, there is the saving to the buyers of coal. Can you estimate it? But that is not all. Think of the additional manufacturing that will result—the location of cotton mills near denim mines, the work of a small-salaried university professor, done during the spare hours he might have spent playing golf or fishing.

BAND CONCERT BE GIVEN ON STREET SUNDAY P. M.

The first of a series of concerts by the Colorado Booster Band is to be given Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at Second and Walnut streets, M. S. Goldman, director of the band, announced Tuesday. Goldman stated that the band would give these concerts at regular intervals throughout the spring and summer months.

Interest in the coming West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Mineral Wells May 4, 5 and 6 is growing, Goldman stated. He declares that the Colorado Booster Band was never in better condition and is optimistic over the opportunity for taking first prize in the band contest.

The general public is invited to hear the concert here Sunday afternoon. There is to be no collections, Goldman said. In the event weather conditions do not permit the concert on the street it will be given at the American Legion building.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Lee Anderson, Royal Canadian Mounted Police sergeant, is sent to Stony range to arrest a man named Pelly for murder. He is also instructed to look after Jim Rathway, reputed head of the "Free Traders," illicit liquor runners. At Little Falls he finds Pelly is credited with having found a gold mine, and is missing.

CHAPTER II.—At the hotel where Anderson stops, a girl, obviously out of place in the rough surroundings, appears. A halfbreed whom Anderson hears called Pierre, and a companion, "Shorty," annoy the girl. Anderson interferes, earning the enmity of the two men.

CHAPTER III.—The girl sets out for Siston Lake, which is also Anderson's objective. He overtakes her and the two men with whom he had trouble the night before.

CHAPTER IV.—Pierre and "Shorty" ride on, Anderson and the girl following. In the hills the road is blown up, before and behind the two. Anderson, with his horse, is hurled down the mountain side, senseless.

CHAPTER V.—Recovering consciousness, Anderson finds the girl has disappeared, but the finding of her hair, evidently hurriedly cut from her head where it had been caught by her falling horse, assures him she is alive and probably in the power of Pierre and "Shorty." On foot he makes his way to Siston Lake. There he finds his companion of the day before, Anderson, Rathway, with a girl, Estelle, a former sweetheart of Anderson's, who had abused his confidence and practically wrecked his life. Rathway strikes Estelle, and after a fight Anderson, with Estelle's help, escapes with the girl.

CHAPTER VI.—Anderson's companion's mind is clouded and she is suffering with a dislocated knee. Anderson sets the knee.

CHAPTER VII.—Memory of her past life practically gone, even to the extent of remembering her name, Anderson and his companion go on.

CHAPTER VIII.—The two plan to make their way to a Moravian mission, of which Father McGrath has charge. Their experiences and their mutual love have naturally drawn them together, and their acquaintance ripens into mutual love.

CHAPTER IX.—The girl remembers that her name is Joyce Pelly and that she is the daughter of a man Anderson has been sent to arrest. Torn between her love for her father and her regard for Anderson, the girl practically drives him from her.

CHAPTER X

The Tunnel Under the Rock

Lee stumbled out of the cabin, dazed, stupefied by Joyce's revelation. The man he sought stood, an invincible barrier, between himself and the woman he loved. Never, if he had any power to read the human heart, could Joyce Pelly look on him again with anything but hate and horror.

Beneath her gentle nature there lay, he knew, a soul of steel, calm and resolved. He could not look upon her only as a relentless enemy as long as her father lived. His little spell of happiness was ended forever.

And he groaned as he strode through the blizzards, and beat his fists into the whirling snow.

Then to the man there came temptation fiercer than any he had known as he perceived the one way out, the only way.

It was only necessary to find Pelly, to warn him out of the district forever, to return to Manitowish, making a report that Pelly was dead, in order to win Joyce, taking her away with him, earning her gratitude, her love— But would she love him then? Could their happiness be based on that dishonor?

externals as the icy flakes whipped his face, discovered that he had left the clearing far behind him; he could no longer discern the cabin in the distance through the whirling snow. He had been traveling across the ridges of the broken ground, apparently making unconsciously for the shelter of the friendly forest behind it, with the instinct of a wounded beast to take cover.

Well, he must go back, and they two must face that night together, and the next day. There was no help for it. As he strode on, suddenly instinct pulled him up sharply. He had been tramping through a mass of withered undergrowth and bramble; and now, directly in front of him, he perceived a great gorge, so concealed in this growth that he had all but stepped over the edge.

He advanced cautiously and peered down into it. It was an extraordinary formation. He had seen such before. In that and other regions, where the limestone, pushed up through molten granite by volcanic action at some prehistoric time, and then abraded by rain or torrent, left strange hollows and gullies.

But he had never seen one on such a scale as this. He was looking into a natural fissure in the ground, a long, irregular, winding chasm, extending indefinitely into the distance, but so narrow as to be merely a lip or crack in the rugged surface of the ground.

It had not been worn by rains or water; it was too deep for that. Probably the limestone, thrust up originally from the earth's inner core, had been sucked down again in some final convulsion, while the granite was still half molten, leaving the granite shell about the chasm.

And in spite of its depth the chasm was so narrow that it almost looked as if a man could have leaped across it. This was undoubtedly incorrect, the distance between cliff and cliff being only apparently reduced by the dense underbrush that fringed the orifice; but the distance between the walls, which inclined inward toward the summit was less than half that of the base.

It was just such a chasm as a man might step into in a storm, to certain death. On the floor of this gorge Lee could see a few scrub birches standing primly erect, seeming to be hardly larger than tree seedlings in a horticultural nursery.

The fissure extended diagonally to the cabin. Lee began to retrace his steps, following it along its edge, until he came to a place where it terminated suddenly in a pile of great rocks of granite outcrop.

Two of these rocks stood up, one on each side of the end of the chasm, like monoliths, although it was clear that they had not been fashioned by human hands. Between them was a third, like a monolith that had been flung down.

Resting on this was an enormous rock and Lee, who had been walking into the face of the wind, stopped and leaned against this stone for a few moments in order to catch his breath. To his astonishment the massive boulder seemed about to topple backward under his weight. He felt himself slipping. He turned round, clutched at the stone, and saw it heaving under his gaze like a ship at sea.

And then he realized what had happened. The stone was not collapsing, but the pressure of his body had set it in motion. It came slowly to a standstill. Lee pressed his hand against the boulder, and immediately it was in movement again.

It was a rocking stone, and probably one of the largest in the world. The next touch started it, so delicately was it poised, but a team of horses could not have shifted it from its position.

As the huge, overhanging side tilted, at Lee's touch, he saw a narrow opening underneath it. He first thought was that it was that of some burrowing animal. Then he perceived that the sharp edges of the hole had undoubtedly been made by a spade.

Human hands had made it. Lee stared at it until the stars, returning, hid the opening from view. He swung the boulder again, and, as it tilted, revealing the hole once more, he flattened himself, face downward, upon the ground underneath. The stone, in its return, just grazed his shoulders.

Lee came to the conclusion that the hole extended downward beneath the base of the great stone, and, lying flat on his face, he pushed it up with his shoulders. The light that came in as it rocked backward showed him a foothold in the granite beneath the strip of mould that covered it—a rock ledge with gapping blackness below.

by the precipitous walls of the chasm. Then Lee understood. He had found an entrance, probably the only one, into the gorge; but someone had preceded him, patiently assisting nature in the creation and enlargement of the steps of that rocky ladder, which had been eroded, during the course of millenniums, by the action of a now dried-up waterfall.

Only water could have hollowed out that course by the play of the leaping torrent on the projections of the granite. Looking down from where he clung, Lee saw that a thin stream trickled over a sandy bed in the middle of the gorge below, issuing from one end, where it burst out of the granite, carrying with it the debris of the alluvial land above—mud, gravel, and sand.

And suddenly the idea occurred to him that in all probability he had stumbled upon old Pelly's gold mine. In which event, what more natural than that Pelly was hiding in that inaccessible spot, where he would be absolutely secure against discovery—unless he had incautiously permitted some one to share his secret?

And perhaps Joyce knew, and had come up in order to be with him, and to procure food supplies for him. Lee gnashed his teeth at the thought of it. Fortune had played into his hands.

Lee saw that from the point where he was clinging, there appeared to be a fairly easy descent to the bottom. It was only the upper parts of the cliffs in the gorge that were unscalable. But he could go no further now. Anxiety for Joyce was rising in him. He was half afraid she might do something rash.

In some way Rathway seemed to be associated with Pelly; perhaps he was protecting him. Suppose, then, that the girl had gone back to the Free Traders' headquarters on Siston Lake? Or fled into the storm in her frenzy?

Suppose they had been followed? Lee remembered his fancy that he had seen an Indian watching them. The Free Traders would surely have been watching the trail at either end of the lake, knowing that sooner or later they must emerge out of the forests.

Then he remembered the shadow in the log house, and this specter in which he had disbelieved, now began to assume in his mind a formidable aspect. Suddenly, as Lee clung there, he heard a rumbling sound above his head, and a moment later something hurtled past it and smashed upon the ground of the chasm. Looking down, Lee saw the fragments of an enormous boulder lying on the ground immediately beneath him.

He had had a narrow escape. And reluctantly he turned to re-enter the tunnel. But before he had thrust his head and shoulders in, there came another rumble. And this time it was only the little projecting ledge above his head that saved his life.

The boulder struck the edge of it, shot out into the air, and just missing him, smashed to pieces below. Lee looked up, but the overhanging cliffs shut out the view of everything except the overhanging bushes and the sky.

Whether or not human agency was responsible for the fall of the two boulders, it was certain that the tunnel's mouth did not appear to be a particularly healthy spot at that moment. And Lee forced his head and shoulders through, and groped for the rock ladder within, bruising his thighs and shins against the edges of the openings. Extending his hands, he felt the smooth surface of the water-worn, interior wall. He grasped the ladder, clung to it, pulled himself up, and found his footing.

And then of a sudden Lee had the unmistakable instinct that he was not alone. There was another living thing within the tunnel! Though it was absolutely dark, except for the faintest reflection from the interior of the gorge, which filtered up from below, and though Lee could not hear the faintest sound, he felt its presence; he some inner sense that was not hearing, he felt the rhythmic pulsations of its life.

And it was a human being. Lee felt the fog of human hatred flung out toward him. Instinctively he knew the possibility of an encounter under conditions more nerve-racking than any he had ever experienced. He knew for sure now that the fall of the two boulders had been no accident.

He had been watched, he had been seen to enter, and that watcher meant to fight him to the death. And of course it was Pelly! He did not relish the prospect of a struggle with the crazed old man, one which could hardly end in any other way than by the death of one of them. It would be a sharp, relentless struggle, in which Lee's disadvantage lay in the fact that he could not be the first to flee.

Lee called: "Is that you, Pelly? I want to talk to you." No answer came. He strained his eyes upward through the darkness. Colors and wheels of light flashed across his vision and went out again. "Pelly, listen to me!" Lee tried again. "You know what I'm coming for. You've got no chance. Surrender, and you'll get fair treatment." Still no answer; and yet Lee could feel that other human personality close to him. He waited, held, d. There was no way to move, save vertically; and there was no possible retreat for him. The ice-smooth granite walls were all about him. The tunnel was a straight, narrow shaft, up and down, from the rocking stone above to that deadly drop below.

hear the roar of Pelly's pistol and to receive the bullet in his breast. It was absurdity. And once again Lee tried: "Pelly, you'd better give up. I can shoot you from here. Surrender, and—" He did not end that sentence. For, as he clung there, in a moment the thing above him had materialized into life, action, fury. A hollow burst from its throat, and the sound, compressed within the shaft, and deflected from wall to wall, sounded like the roar of some prehistoric monster.

And a heavy body was precipitated against him with a force that all but dislodged him. For an instant Lee struggled wildly to retain his balance—and then there came a blow over the heart that knocked the wind out of him.

Lee's hand encountered an enormous hand at his chest. Within that hand he felt the hilt of a knife. Reaching back, Lee's fingers closed upon the last inch or two of a wide blade. The steel appeared to be hurled almost to the extremity within his body.

There was no sense of a stab, but for an instant Lee felt a deadly faintness overcome him, and again he reeled and clutched for foothold. Then he had torn the hand away, plucked out the knife, and hurled it down through the darkness of the tunnel into the gorge below.

The next instant he was fighting the most desperate battle of his life to win through the tunnel before he bled into unconsciousness. He caught at two long, sinewy arms that clutched his body in the endeavor to fling him down; and, holding on by their knees and feet, the two wrestled in complete silence.

It was a man—the thing that held Lee, but it seemed more like a monster, for the naked arms were covered with thick hair, underneath which the sinews moved over each other like steel bands. Lee was no match in wrestling; he could only cling on like grim death, feeling his lungs constrict under that pressure, and expecting every moment to feel his injured rib crack in his side.

His left hand encountered a groove in the rocky rung above him, and, gripping it, determined that nothing should tear his hold away, with his right fist he began hammering his assailant's face and body incessantly. His blows rebounded from the great chest as if it were of rubber, and each blow sent the breath issuing hoarsely from the lungs with raucous wheezing that filled the tunnel.

If the other could have got Lee's left hand, he might have torn him from his hold, but as if unaware of his hold, his assailant put all his strength into the endeavor to force breath from his body and twist him backward; while Lee, clinging on desperately, continued to batter the face and body.

Although it was impossible to draw back his arm far enough to deliver a blow with full force, Lee's lower position gave him the advantage of equipoise over his strange assailant, and enabled him to administer fearful punishment. For a minute or two it was problematic whether Lee could withstand the strain long enough to conquer. The great shoulders swung Lee from side to side in the shaft like a child, and all the while Lee, believing himself seriously, if not fatally wounded, fought on with the mechanical action of a piston, dashing his fists into his opponent's face until at last groans began to burst from the other.

Then, feeling the clutch relaxing, Lee let go his hold, and, standing straight up on the rung, brought both fists into play. No human being could have stood up against that fearful punishment. Lee's fists were wet with blood. The grasp about him relaxed. He redoubled the fury of his blows—and suddenly found that he was hammering at the bare face of the rock.

His assailant was gone. Fatally Lee heard the scraping of his feet on the upper ledges of the rock ladder. Then, feeling cautiously above him, Lee continued his ascent, until at length there came a tiny glimmer of light from above, changing into a sudden glare as of high noon. The tunnel was empty.

The glare decreased to a glimmer. Lee understood what it meant. His assailant had flung back the rocking stone and fled. In another moment or two Lee was beneath the stone. He flattened himself.

He Flattened Himself on the Ground and Drew His Automatic.

self upon the ground and drew his automatic. He fired one shot, and before the echoes had died away, had pushed the stone back and emerged, pistol in hand.

The glare had been only in contrast to the dark of the tunnel. Outside it was melancholy twilight. Lee emerged into a solitary, snowbound world. There was no sign of his antagonist, who had evidently had enough for the present.

Lee looked down at the fragments of shirt that remained to him, expecting to find himself soaked in blood. He was astonished to see only a thin thread on his chest. He tore the rag open.

There was only a scratch on the skin from the knife-point, but there was a spreading bruise—under the thick coils of Joyce's hair, in which the knife blade had become entangled. The blow, struck immediately over the heart, would have killed him instantly but for that. Lee raised the tresses reverently to his lips. And with a deep feeling of tenderness toward the girl, he began to make his way through the twilight toward the log house.

He was torn between apprehension for her and speculation as to his assailant. His first thought had been that the man was Pelly. But now he began to doubt this. An old man might have had his assailant's strength—he would not have had the endurance. But stronger still was the conviction that that monstrous form which had attacked him in the shaft could never have been the father of Joyce.

Yet who but Pelly knew the secret of the mine? The problem was at present insoluble, but its consideration brought with it the fear that Joyce might have been attacked as well. Lee quickened his footsteps through the storm, which was now subsiding, though the snow still fell steadily. He blamed himself bitterly for having left the girl. Surely the strength of that love and tenderness he felt toward her would reach her, and she would respond!

And he planned what he would say to her. He would advise her that it was improbable that her father would receive anything but a nominal sentence, that he might even go free, that in the absence of witnesses a conviction might prove impossible. His best course would be to surrender. Lee began to grow more hopeful.

The log house came into sight, standing bare and bleak in the snowy wilderness. There was no light within. Lee's alarm increased. He hurried to the door. He called, but no answer came. He struck a match. By the tiny light he saw that the kitchen and the adjacent room were empty.

And he began going from room to room, striking matches and calling her, and knowing all the while the futility of it. Joyce was not in the house. She had fled into the snow, and, desperately weary as he was after his encounter, Lee had no alternative but to take up the quest. She could not have gone far, but she must have been in a state of desperation to have gone out into that storm. Which way? The falling snow had surely long since obliterated her footprints.

He made his way down toward the trail beside the river. Only two ways were possible: one ran toward the mission, nine or ten miles away, the other in the opposite direction to the Free Traders' headquarters. But suddenly Lee's hopes and spirits leaped up confidently. Stooping, he traced the tracks of a sleigh along the trail. It had been drawn by a single horse, and it was going in the direction of the mission.

There was only one reasonable inference. Father McGrath must have been passing, perhaps he had met Joyce, and he had taken her with him. Lee took up the long walk immediately. The snow was deep, progress was difficult without snowshoes, and the frost had already crusted the surface, so that his feet sank in uncomfortably at every step. But a great load was removed from his mind; the future now looked rosier.

At last the mission came into sight—a group of log huts clustered about a larger one on a low elevation surrounded by the forest. Lights glimmered pleasantly inside them. A horse was neighing in some stable. Over the largest but a wooden cross stood on against the background of the sea-gray sky.

Lee strode up the ascent, hesitated as to which hut to approach, stood irresolute for a moment in the open space at the crest of the little hill. Then, as he waited, the door of one of them was flung open, and a man in a mackinaw and lumberman's boots stepped out toward him. Under his arm he held a rifle. He presented it at Lee's breast.

He looked to be about fifty years of age, or a little older. He had a round, smooth face as soft as a babe's, an incisive punch. A silver cross hung from his neck. A jolly-looking priest; but the eyes within the face were steel-gray and ice cold. He stepped two paces distant. "Take yourself off, ye damned Free Trader," he said softly, "or I'll blow ye into Kingdom Come!" (To be continued)

Let's Keep Him In Colorado

Every boy and girl in Colorado is a potential asset to us all. Right development of this asset implies better schools, wholesome amusement, promising industrial and professional opportunity—environment that recognizes the developing power of youth—and gives it a real chance.

When you let John or Mary leave the home town—you may have lost a budding Lincoln, Edison, Ford—a future great.

Do your part in making COLORADO a better place to live and thrive. Spend your money at home—where your dollar continues to do a hundred cents worth of work for the boys and girls of our own city—and incidentally to give you far greater return both directly and indirectly than you could otherwise obtain for it.

SWEETWATER PRAISES DR. RAYBURN AS EVANGELIST

The coming of Dr. James Rayburn to Colorado for an evangelistic campaign of four weeks in May and June means as much to the citizenship of Mitchell county as any program they might seek successfully to project, prominent church laymen of Sweetwater declared in addresses here Sunday evening at the First Methodist church. The rally was arranged by the Colorado laymen's organization, of which Dr. P. C. Coleman is president, and was the first of a series of preparatory gatherings to interest the people of Colorado in the Rayburn revival.

Dr. Coleman presided at the meeting and pastors of the city, members of the laymen's organization and others taking an active part in plans for the revival occupied seats behind the chancel rail. After prayer the 91st Psalm was read by Rev. W. M. Elliott, pastor of the First Christian church. The church auditorium was well filled with people.

J. L. Ross of Sweetwater was the first speaker to be introduced. In an interesting address this Sweetwater layman told of some of the outstanding results of the Rayburn revival held there last year, the most important of which, perhaps, he described as the permanency of results obtained and the splendid unification of all Protestant religious organizations in religious activities.

Dr. P. T. Quast, Sweetwater optician and jeweler, declared that Rayburn possessed every good quality to impress one as being among the greatest evangelists of the age. In many respects, Dr. Quast, stated, Rayburn is the counterpart of Abraham Lincoln in the power of preaching and effectiveness of reaching the unsaved.

Judge James Beull, Jr., Sweetwater attorney, was the third and last speaker. Judge Beull praised Rayburn as one of the strongest men ever to fill a pulpit. Rayburn was described as a speaker who never lost his reason, in the pulpit or out of it. He never becomes emotional and always repeats his declarations by the Bible. He declared that the evangelist never made a personal attack, but conducted his fight against sin on such a plane as to make the unsaved love him and at the same time obtain a vivid impression of their lost state.

"Colorado is to be congratulated in having such a man as Dr. Rayburn come to your city for this revival," Beull stated. "He will bring you an abundance of lasting good, calculated to revive and enlarge every religious organization represented in the work. I am confident that long before the revival closes you will see services lasting three hours or more, in which the interest will be so gripping that the people will leave the place of worship reluctantly."

The visitors came to Colorado to address this meeting in response of invitation from local churches and from Dr. Rayburn, himself, who recently urged Sweetwater to lend its co-operation in the revival here. The visitors stated that Sweetwater was very much interested in the campaign and would be glad to render their neighbor city such co-operation as might be desired in furthering plans for the campaign.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM AT LIONS CLUB VISITORS

Members of the Colorado Lions were delightfully entertained during the luncheon hour Friday by Miss Lucille Blume, teacher of expression in the Colorado schools, and Mrs. Lois Prude Bennett. Mrs. Blume appeared in a reading and Mrs. Bennett rendered a vocal selection. Both of the ladies are artists and there is no need for the statement their presence and entertainment numbers were very much appreciated.

F. F. DuBose and W. S. Cooper returned the first of the week from a motor trip to Austin and San Antonio where they had gone on a business mission for the Colorado Chamber of Commerce.

COLORADO CITIZENS WIRE FUNDS TO STORM VICTIMS

Two hundred dollars of the fund being raised here for relief of storm sufferers in the five mid-western states was wired to relief headquarters at Murphysboro, Illinois, Tuesday afternoon by the Chamber of Commerce. Additional funds were being collected and another remittance is to be made later during the week. The fund was contributed by about one hundred citizens of the city who readily answered the appeal of the Chamber of Commerce asking citizens of Mitchell county to aid the storm victims.

The most disastrous cyclone known to America swept portions of Tennessee, Missouri, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky Thursday of last week, taking a toll of approximately 1,000 killed, 3,000 injured and destroying millions of dollars worth of property. Thousands of people in the wake of the storm were left destitute.

The appeal that citizens of Mitchell County raise the fund was issued by the Colorado Chamber of Commerce soon after press dispatches telling of the awfulness of the disaster had reached Colorado. The response with which the appeal has met has been very gratifying but there are a number of citizens throughout the county who are invited to have some part in the contribution.

"The splendid civility evidenced by people throughout the United States following the disaster in Mitchell county May 14, 1923, should prompt us to hasten to these unfortunate storm sufferers with our funds and have some part in making possible the relief of suffering," an official of the Chamber of Commerce stated. "And there is no doubt in my mind but that the people of this county will not be slow in placing funds at disposal of relief workers."

It was recalled that within a short time following the Mitchell county storm funds began to pour into Colorado and Louisiana from practically every state in the Union. To relieve suffering humanity and rehabilitate the devastated territory left in the storm's path, financial assistance, representing the pennies or dimes of school children up to the larger donations, totalling about $75,000 came from throughout the republic. Mitchell county will not forget this act of benevolence.

Dr. P. C. Coleman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in directing that an appeal be issued to the citizenship of the county to make a contribution to the storm sufferers, recalled the splendid spirit evidenced by people the country over after the storm here, and urged that Mitchell county hasten to the relief of the injured and destitute, Colorado bankers and others of the larger business concerns have joined the Chamber of Commerce in the appeal.

For convenience of those desiring to have some part in this service, a coupon is printed in The Record today. Those directing the drive to raise funds urge that all contributions be made without delay, requesting that donors use the coupon and mail it to the Chamber of Commerce with remittance attached. Funds thus collected will be transferred by telegraph to relief centers in the storm swept area.

1,161 "TRAIL HITTERS" IN RAYBURN SHAWNEE REVIVAL

Dr. James Rayburn of Newton, Kansas, evangelist who will conduct the union revival at Colorado in May and June, recently closed one of the most successful revivals ever held in the Colorado schools, and Mrs. Lois Prude Bennett. Mrs. Blume appeared in a reading and Mrs. Bennett rendered a vocal selection. Both of the ladies are artists and there is no need for the statement their presence and entertainment numbers were very much appreciated.

Pastors and laymen of Colorado are expressing much interest in the campaign to be held in May. Already a number of important meetings of these workers have been held and members of the five co-operating churches are being organized.

WILL COLORADO MAINTAIN ITS PLACE?

(AN EDITORIAL)

The Seventh Annual Convention, West Texas Chamber of Commerce is only six weeks in the future and as yet Colorado has made no definite plans for sending its band and delegation. This convention, to be attended by 40,000 men and women, representing the best citizenship of the Southwest, will be the largest convention ever held in Texas. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce estimates that 55 bands will be in Mineral Wells for the three days. From every angle, the convention will be the biggest and best ever projected by West Texans.

Colorado and Mitchell county have in the past filled important places in these annual conventions. With the continual expansion of the conventions from year to year, this city has manifested a more universal interest in West Texas through the part played in these conventions. With the representative delegation and Colorado Booster Band conspicuous at these West Texas Chamber of Commerce Conventions, Colorado has become recognized as a formidable member of the great regional organization, determined to fill its place commendably in carrying on the development program of West Texas.

Nineteen twenty-five is to be no exception to this public spirited policy. Colorado will be in the lime light at Mineral Wells May 4, 5 and 6. But the time is short and definite plans for sending the band, sponsors and other representatives should be formulated without delay. The Southwest knows of Colorado because of her paved streets, progressive citizenship, Booster Band and oil field. We cannot afford to lose interest to the extent of permitting them to forget us.

Colorado has a brilliant future. Just now more capital and more labor are being concentrated for development of the oil field in this county than ever before. Development of the farming, poultry and allied diversified industries was never advancing with more magnitude and everywhere throughout the country and city the citizenship are united to accomplish one goal—that of maintaining an enviable distinction of progress. There is no better avenue opened to us through which this end may be accomplished than our liberal and enthusiastic participation in such publicity and booster gatherings as the West Texas Chamber of Commerce conventions.

Colorado must have an important part in the Mineral Wells convention. We are in need of new citizenship, new industries and new capital, if we would keep pace with the progress of West Texas. The only effective means of reaching these is to go after them. Let's begin now to formulate definite plans for placing Colorado before the eyes of the Southwest. We may do this at Mineral Wells.

J. FRANK NORFLEET WILL APPEAR AT PALACE APR. 1

J. Frank Norfleet of Hale Center, nationally known character and who is well known in Colorado, is to appear at the Palace Theatre in person Wednesday evening of next week. Mr. Norfleet will deliver an address, relating some of his experiences in hunting down the five men, who victimized him out of a fortune a few years ago.

Norfleet grew up on a ranch in Hale county, some 35 miles south of Colorado and as a youth and young man frequented this city. His father died recently at the old Coke county home. The vast of the man here is expected to create considerable interest, especially in that his friends in Colorado will have the first opportunity of hearing him tell of his man hunt, which took him into practically every State of the Union and into foreign countries.

31,171 BALES GINNED IN COUNTY FROM 1924 CROP

The Department of Commerce, through the Bureau of Census at Washington, announced a preliminary report on cotton ginned by counties in Texas last Friday, for the crops of 1923 and 1924. The report shows that 31,171 bales, counting round bales as half bales, were ginned in Mitchell county last year, as compared with 30,478 bales in 1923.

LIONS ORCHESTRA RENOVATING INTERESTING CONCERT

The Lions Club Orchestra, official musical organization of the Colorado Lions Club, rendered an appreciative concert during the luncheon hour last Friday. Personnel of the orchestra is composed of M. S. Goldman, director; Joe W. Earnest, Raymond Jones and Robert Whipkey.

ADAMS NO. 1 TEST BLOWS IN FOR BIG AIR PRODUCTION

Adams No. 1 of Morrison & Thompson, test being drilled on the Col. C. M. Adams lease in Section 1, Block 28, blew in Monday morning for big production, but, according to Earl Morrison, one of the owners of the well, the production is air and not gas or oil.

The air pocket was encountered at a depth of 1,280 feet, Morrison reported. Pressure was strong enough to hurl stone and water above the crown block. Morrison stated that the air would be eased off any drilling continued.

A few years ago quite a sensation was occasioned by Badgett No. 1, a huge gas gusher drilled in on the Badgett farm 15 miles northwest of Colorado. The crew lost all control of the well and a salt spray was distributed over several acres of territory about the well. After some time of continuous action the strong spray tore away part of the derrick and finally the entire rig collapsed.

LORAIN WILL SEND BAND WEST TEXAS C. OF C. MEET

The Loraine Chamber of Commerce has about completed arrangements for sending its band to Mineral Wells for the Seventh Annual Convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Fred Brown, president of the chamber stated in a message to the Colorado Chamber of Commerce Tuesday afternoon. Brown stated that funds with which to defray expenses of the band at Mineral Wells were subscribed at a banquet given by the Loraine Chamber of Commerce Monday evening.

In addition to sending its band to the large regional convention, Loraine will also have a representative delegation in Mineral Wells for three days.

MEXICAN FUGITIVE LOCATED LOCATION SIX TESTS IN FIELD MADE DURING WEEK

SWEETWATER, 2:30 P. M.—Mexican pinned in a box car at Lawn Taylor County, Lopez Morales, wanted in connection with death Howard and Taylor County officers, is reported to have also shot Sheriff Yearbough of Nolan County. According to unverified report reaching here two o'clock.

Lopez Morales, slayer of Sheriff W. W. Satterwhite of Big Spring and Deputy Sheriff George Reeves of Merkel, was believed surrounded by a posse of 1,500 heavily armed men Thursday afternoon. Wires received by The Record up to 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon stated that the fugitive and his brother, Pete Morales, had been located in a mountain four miles southwest of Ovalo, 30 miles south of Abilene, and it was probable that capture of the two would be effected during the afternoon.

Sheriff I. W. Terry of Colorado, who has been assisting in directing the large posse hunting the slayer, stated late Wednesday that the brother and his brother were trailed by blood hounds Tuesday night for a distance of fifteen miles southwest from where the murder of Sheriff Satterwhite and Deputy Reeves occurred. Here the trail was lost but soon picked up again several miles to the east.

Wednesday night the two Mexicans called at a ranch house near Ovalo to obtain food. Description of the men given the posse by those at the ranch fit exactly with the fugitives. Blood hounds picked up the trail at the ranch, following the Mexicans to a hay stack where evidences showing they had slept there were found. From the hay stack the trail led to a mountain a few miles southwest of Ovalo, where it is believed the men are hiding.

The wire from Abilene at two o'clock reported that the Mexicans were soon to be captured. The country about Ovalo is level and open and it would be difficult for the fugitives to effect an escape from the mountain. Preparations were being made to storm the mountain Thursday afternoon.

The Mexican, wanted by Sheriff Satterwhite for murder at Big Spring had been trailed by him from Big Spring to the hills near Iatan and from there through Colorado to Merkel where the fugitive had relatives. At Merkel Deputy Sheriff Reeves of Taylor county joined in the hunt and they located the fugitive in a grabbing camp 11 miles southwest of Merkel.

Satterwhite and Reeves went out to make the arrest and went through the brush toward where the Mexicans were grubbing. The Mexican being sought is said to have looked up, saw the officers coming, drew his gun, and started to run. The Mexican opened fire, hitting Reeves. The sheriff started across the pasture to a house to summons help. At the house Satterwhite asked to borrow a car. As he was getting into the car, the Mexican opened fire with a rifle. The bullet went through the back of the front seat into the sheriff's right side and ranged upward to the heart. After being shot the sheriff drove the car 150 yards, ran into a fence, knocked down three posts and came to a stop. He died almost instantly.

The Mexican got into the car threw the sheriff's body into the back seat, and took his pistol and belt off of the Mexican and went to the house and tried to get help with the car in making his escape, during which considerable damage was done to the farm. His wife came out with his gun, but was refused, and the Mexican hid at the house on foot.

Within a few hours after the shooting a number of Big Spring city men, heavily armed passed through Colorado en route to Merkel to assist in capturing the murderer. Definite announcement of six new locations for oil tests was made during the week by Colorado oil men. Five of the tests are to be drilled on location in the field near Westbrook. The other location is on the Spade ranch, about 25 miles south of Colorado. These new wells are to be drilled on leases controlled by the California Company, the Sloan Oil Company and George Northup of Okmulgee, Oklahoma, independent operator just entering the field.

Three of the new locations were made by the California Company on their Morrison and Elder leases. The Morrison location, to be known as Morrison No. 13, is in section 27, Block 28. The Elder tests, in section 15, Block 28, are Elder Nos. 2-2 and 2-3.

The California Company reports two additional tests to be near the Morrison sand. Their Abrams No. 8 is, drilling at 2,765 feet, and their Elder No. 2-1 at 3,047 feet. Elder 1-1 is drilling at 1,460 feet.

The Sloan Oil Company is rigging up to spud their Miller No. 4. Dan J. Lewis, drilling contractor, at this location, expects to begin making hole today or Saturday. At Smartt No. 2 of the Sloan Oil Company drilling is down 475 feet. The crew is rigging up at Smartt No. 7 location.

George Northup, independent operator of Okmulgee, Oklahoma, has closed drilling contract with Wm. Elwood, owner of the Spade Ranch, to develop 150,000 acres in that territory. Location for the first of four tests to be drilled without delay was made Monday. J. F. Carey, Colorado drilling contractor, has contract to drill the first four tests. Carey began loading out rig materials and going at Breckenridge Wednesday for the first well.

Development in this territory will attract considerable interest here. On the H. S. Ranch, adjoining the Spade holdings, Sloan & Owens are rigging up to spud their Owens No. 1, at location in the Lavaca Navigation Company survey. Both the Spade and H. S. properties lie along the southern end of Mitchell county.

Sloan & Owens will drill their test with a Clark drilling engine, and the huge 4-cylinder motor has already been received and set up. The first test to be drilled by Carey on the Northup contract will also be operated with one of the engines.

Extending still further to the southwest into Sterling county considerable activity is reported. A number of new tests are scheduled in territory as yet undeveloped by operators who have acquired acreage.

Carey has completed landing six-inch casing at 1330 feet in Moore No. 1 of the Northwest Company, in section 11 of the H. and T. C. Survey, near Elm. Drilling is progressing at this location.

After cementing out the strong air pressure in Adams No. 1, in the Col. C. M. Adams lease, Thompson and Morrison are landing 8-inch casing at 1,400 feet and will be drilling again before end of the week.

The Eastland Oil Company have resumed drilling at their Keynard No. 3, in Section 15, Block 28, after landing 10 inch casing at 600 feet. The week has witnessed the coming of still additional oil men to Colorado some of whom are the personal representatives of large companies which plan to become identified with development out of Colorado. Operations extending north and south from Colorado, and as far as southwest as the Reagan county field, will be directed from Colorado should present indications materialize.

With designation of the north and south highway giving this city highway connection to the southwest, the heavily armed posse through Colorado may easily attract a number of companies operating along the Fee-Meridian Field between Westbrook and Big Lake. The Chamber of Commerce is devoting much activity in officers and citizens of Colorado in forming the posse, leaving highways leading out of the city to

COLORADO ATTORNEY WINS $50.00 CROSS WORD PRIZE

Joe Earnest, Colorado attorney, is manifesting unusual ability in solving the difficult cross word puzzles being run in the Dallas Morning News from time to time, for which cash prize awards are offered for best solutions. Three weeks ago Earnest won a $10.00 prize in the contest and in the News for Sunday morning it was announced that he won the $50.00, or first award prize for writing the best essay on a given subject.

The interesting feature of the prize won by Mr. Earnest Sunday lies in the fact that he submitted his essay under the name of "Joe Craig Porter," his little five-year-old nephew. The News published the essay under the name of the child.

The essay, which is described by the puzzle editor of the News as being one of the best ever submitted to his office, follows:

(Words in caps are puzzle words)

Small Men as Lawmakers.

Now that the legislature has adjourned it may not be amiss to say that there are too many small caliber men making the laws of Texas. The present legislative body is no less able than some others that have preceded it, but a look at it in action was enough to convince anyone that as a whole the body lacked the ability and experience Texas has a right to expect from those who make its laws. It is doubtful whether an increase of salary to $10.00 a day or to $1,000 a year will greatly improve the legislative personnel. Improvement can come only from a greater interest on the part of the voters. Under our present methods a number of men offer for the legislature regardless of their qualifications as lawmakers. The voters then select from the list, all of whom may be wholly incompetent. We need to go back to the old system of mass meetings or conventions at which capable men are urged to accept legislative positions from a patriotic sense of duty.

Lawmaking by Lobbyists.

It does not take much acumen to see that the laws of Texas are not made by those elected to represent the people, but by lobbyists employed to represent special interests. Legislators pass unimportant local bills and other measures in which capital or other interests are little concerned, but when it comes to important matters where big business or large organizations are concerned the lobby directs what shall be done. Lobbying has become almost a dignified profession and is not necessarily a corrupt one. Most present-day lobbyists are highly honorable men and women who would scorn corrupt practices. They are employed at good salaries, many of them by the year, ostensibly to serve in other capacities, but really to influence legislation should their services be needed by their clients. They have brains and large experience and put their wits against those of the weaker legislators. The result is that the people, represented by weaklings, if at all, suffer when their interests conflict with those whom the lobbyists represent.

Lobbying in Self-Defense.

There is another side to this subject of lobbying. The more ignorant a people are the more unreasonable and prejudiced they are. Ignorant and incapable legislators often "have it in" for capital of every kind and for organizations of which they know little or nothing. They are against everything they do not understand and they understand very little. Lobbyists often are retained as a protection against destructive legislation. Their employment is justified by their employers on that ground. It is hard to maintain a purely defensive attitude. Those who feel themselves in constant danger of attack are likely to go out and do some attacking themselves. So, lobbying in self-defense brings about lobbying to advance selfish interests. The best remedy that can be suggested against harmful lobbying is the election of legislators who are equally as strong as those persons employed to lobby. To give such men commensurate pay would be difficult; they should be persuaded to serve from motives of patriotism.

Stop Knocking Any Part of Texas.

I see papers from all parts of Texas and have reached the conclusion that the greatest harm that is being done the State comes from the sectional "knocker." East Texas knocks West Texas because a few of its citizens move out there. The west knocks the east when any of these citizens become dissatisfied and go back. North Texas hits at the Rio Grande Valley because of the high price of land, and the Valley slaps back at the "cold wind-swept plains." The Eastern States, fearful of losing their citizens to Texas, pick up these cudgels and use them against all of Texas, and so all of Texas gets back these sectional knocks.

It is not just the newspapers that do this harm, for the people—many of them—seem to delight in saying ugly things about other parts of the State in their own papers. The papers should discourage this knocking habit on the part of the people and should quit it themselves. Texas is not all alike—neither are the people—and there is diversity enough to please all. We need to unite in our efforts for all of Texas, just as California and Florida and many other States have done.

Could My Thomas Might Try This.

C. H. Walker, of the Dalhart, Texas, says the "Fort Worth Record" got a nail protrusion in his automobile tire and ordered it replaced by a dozen for rusty nails picked up by boys on the streets of Dalhart and taken to the Texas office. He received some nails. Merchants who doubt that people read newspaper ads might try out the value of advertising by such an offer. Who wishes to do his town a good turn in this way?

HAROLD BELL WRIGHT'S "WHEN A MAN'S A MAN"

It is claimed by many that the most humanly interesting book ever penned by Harold Bell Wright, is "When a Man's a Man," which was recently pictured and has brought to life on the screen the remarkable characters of the famous book. For the more than two million people who have read this stirring story in book form and many million more who will view the screen version, there is one of the greatest treats yet accorded theatre goers throughout the United States. Manager Bonner in commenting on the picture stated that he would be willing to put his stamp of personal approval on the picture as being one that would please every patron of the house, young or old.

poor or rich, during its run in Mission on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

As a matter of fact to all who have read the book, the picture probably needs no better recommendation, for it was one of the most universally liked stories ever published. The spirit of cleanliness that pervaded the original story has been well preserved in the motion picture version, and the things that thrilled the reader will thrill them much more when they see those favorite characters come to life before them on the screen.

Does Advertising Pay?

Some years ago a certain "small man" in the auto industry wanted to advertise. He had little capital—to be exact he had one hundred dollars and sixty-five cents. He started advertising on that. Now he can afford to spend several hundred thousand for that purpose. This is not only an argument that advertising pays; it is also an argument that a man doesn't have to have a silver spoon in his mouth to have his business success assured.

A certain chewing gum manufacturer who annually makes an appropriation of four million dollars for advertising alone, once had thirty-five dollars to spend for this purpose.

SWEETWATER, March 26. (2 p. m.)—With an army of more than 1,000 heavily armed men with blood hounds reported hot on the trail capture or death of Lopez Morales, wanted for the slaying of Sheriff W. W. Satterwhite of Howard county and Deputy George Reeves of Taylor County, and another Mexican, is expected before night.

Latest report from Ovalo, in the south end of Taylor County, were that pursuers were hot on the trail with a cordon of armed men thrown around the section where the fugitive with his brother is known to be. The country is rough, interspersed with dry canyons and covered with cedar brush, making concealment easy. Feeling is running high among the grim faced silent, sombered westerners many of them survivors of the old days before the law came to West Texas.

All who had the privilege and pleasure of seeing the special screening of the "Abraham Lincoln" picture which took place at the Mission Theatre from ten to twelve o'clock Wednesday morning, were very enthusiastic in their praise of the picture. Introductory of the presentation, Manager Bonner made a talk to those present, bearing especially upon the significance of good pictures and particularly those of educational value.

The picture, "Abraham Lincoln," deals with the life of this great statesman from his birth to his assassination. It portrays in life-like simplicity the hardships and struggles, the happiness and joy that went into the wonderful character of a man whose influence is a living inspiration to every American citizen. Dates, times and places are authentically recorded, and truly it seems that nothing has been left out to make it re-live the well spent life of Abraham Lincoln. It is to be hoped that Mr. Bonner's effort to have all school children of the county see this splendid picture, will meet with success, for no greater privilege could come to them in the study of Abraham Lincoln and his achievements.

MISS WEST TEXAS WILL BE CHOSEN BY SECRET BOARD

"Miss West Texas" the woman who will be the head of the social and pageant life of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention May 4, 5 and 6, at Mineral Wells, will be selected within 10 days by a secret committee, whose makeup will never be disclosed.

This announcement was made following a conference Monday by Porter A. Whaley of Stamford, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; Homer D. Wade of Fort Worth, assistant manager, and Ray Leeman, secretary of the Mineral Wells Chamber of Commerce.

The woman selected will not be from Mineral Wells, they announced. She will be notified of the selection as soon as it is made, but her name will not be disclosed until just before the holding of the convention.

Miss Eleanor Thomas of Colorado received this distinction last year, having been designated "Miss West Texas" for the convention at Brownwood. Selection of Miss Thomas for this honor was effected through the Colorado Chamber of Commerce in competition with several prominent young ladies of West Texas.

A man insures his life so that his wife and children will be provided for after his death. He does not want them to be dependent upon others. And yet, insurance statistics show that only 18 out of every 100 widows live on their incomes. Many men take out what seems to them to be a large and adequate amount of insurance, but forget that unless they own their own homes a big share of that money will have to be spent for rent. In our opinion, an investment in a home as one way to provide for one's family is just as sound just as logical and just as necessary as an investment in insurance for the same purpose. Don't leave the rent "bugaboo" as an inheritance to worry your wife through the years to come. Build that home now, before it is too late. Make a start today. Come in. Let's talk it over.—Rockwell Bros. & Company, Lumbermen.

"To decide a discussion please advise if there were any Hereford cattle in the Texas herds in 1865."

To the above we replied: "No Hereford cattle in Texas in 1865. The first Hereford bull was shipped from Illinois by Col. C. C. Slaughter of Dallas in 1881 and great crowds of people went 500 miles to see this bull."

Colonel Dick Arnett says there were no Herefords in the United States in 1865 and no cattle of any kind in Texas except a few native long horns in South Texas. Ft. Worth at that time was a small Fort and all this country was inhabited by Indians and Buffalo.

J. LEE JONES, Clerk District Court, Mitchell County, Texas. 4-10c

That on or about the 1st day of April, 1920, in the County of Eastland plaintiff was lawfully married to defendant then a single woman; that they continued to live together as husband and wife until on or about the 1st day of August, 1924, when, by reason of the cruel and harsh treatment and improper conduct of defendant toward plaintiff he was forced and compelled to permanently abandon her since which time they have not lived together as husband and wife. Plaintiff alleges that during the time he and defendant lived together as aforesaid he was kind and affectionate to her and always provided for her support and maintenance but defendant unmindful of the duties and obligations of her marital vows and about two years prior to the time of their said separation began a course of unkind, harsh, cruel and tyrannical treatment toward plaintiff which continued until plaintiff was forced and compelled to abandon defendant as aforesaid. That during said two years period the defendant would and did associate herself with other men in a way unbecoming a wife, would be out with such men at all times of the night exercising improper relations with them unbecoming a lady. That plaintiff would implore defendant to deter from such conduct but that she would pay no attention to him and that about 10 days before said separation as aforesaid defendant left home without consent or knowledge of plaintiff and was gone for about a week during said time associating herself with divers men, whose names are unknown to plaintiff, in a way as to and did compromise her virtue and render herself unfit to longer occupy the position of wife; that all of said conduct on the part of defendant was of such a nature as to and did cause plaintiff to suffer almost unbearable mental agony, wherefore the further living with defendant was rendered insupportable and plaintiff was compelled to abandon defendant as aforesaid. Wherefore plaintiff prays the Court that defendant be cited to appear and answer herein and for judgment dissolving said marital relations and for such other and further relief, general and special, in law and in equity that he may show himself justly entitled to. Herein fail not but have before said court, at its aforesaid regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same. Given under my hand and the seal of said court, at office in Colorado, Texas, on this the 17th day of March A. D. 1925.

DR. SPLAWN WRITES ON THE GROWTH OF UNIVERSITY

(By W. M. W. Splawn)
The college of nursing of the Medical Branch of the University of Texas has progressed along with the other departments. With fifteen students in 1893, maintained by the lady board of managers, it became a definite branch of the University in 1896, requiring a two year course. While in 1893 there was one director of the training school who was the sole special instructor, the medical faculty supplementing with appropriate lectures, there is today the following special staff in the college of nursing: Director, instructor in nursing, assistant to the director of nursing, instructor in chemistry, instructor in nutrition and cooking.

In 1907 a three years' course was inaugurated and there is now available for those who may desire it, a combined five year course at the college of arts and sciences and of nursing, covering three years in the Main University at Austin and two years in the John Sealy Hospital and leading to a combined degree of B. S. and graduate nurse.

In harmony with the progress in medical, pharmacy and nursing education, the prerequisites in general education have been equally advanced. Thus, required premedical education has steadily advanced in the past thirty years from the equivalent of the more advanced grades in the primary schools through graduation in a high school, then one year in college and now two years in a college of arts and sciences, covering certain required subjects, which are prerequisites to the medical curriculum in all Class A schools, while a few require a B. A. degree before admission to the medical school.

Similarly, in pharmacy the start was made with a simple entrance examination, afterward requiring certificates covering twelve high school subjects until at present the Medical Branch of the University of Texas, as well as the American Conference of Pharmaceutical faculties, require graduation from a high school with fifteen units, including certain required subjects.

In the college of nursing only a deficient supply of pupil nurses delays the absolute requirement of a certificate of graduation from a high school with fifteen units. Occupations for women have become so numerous and so attractive that there is a distinct deficiency in the supply of properly qualified candidates for the course in the college of nursing.

In acknowledgment of a growing desire on the part of doctors to keep in touch with modern advances in medicine, by occasional visits to educational centers, and responding to the expressed desire of the Texas State Medical Association, the School of Medicine has inaugurated a short summer course of clinics to physicians. This has now been conducted successfully for three years and will be continued and expanded as occasion requires.

The evolution of pharmacy has been irregular. Its changes and vicissitudes have been many. Its heterogeneity has always been marked and only within comparatively recent years have organized efforts been expended to standardize its field of endeavor. Through all its metamorphoses there has remained a distinctiveness of service, which, in its fundamentals, has retained one important phase of public contact and service--the preparation and sale of medicines. More and more pharmacists are fitting themselves for wider public service by taking special courses in bacteriology, technical analysis, hygiene and such like, and are becoming valuable aids in public health work in their respective communities. Not only is it desirable for individual pharmacists to thus prepare themselves for such general public service, but it is equally desirable that the school of pharmacy should be ready to serve the pharmacist who is out in the field constantly meeting new problems in the practice of compounding and dispensing medicines. It is the desire and aim of the School of Pharmacy to so equip itself that it can render this needed assistance to the practicing pharmacist. Not only does it offer what assistance it may render to the solving of the problems of the pharmacist, but it solicits the physician's prescription problems as well. Thus does the school of pharmacy strive to repay those citizens whom it can assist for its very generous support and highly prized good will.

Visit New Homes

Miss Irma Sealy, home demonstrator, Mrs. A. L. Whipkey, Mrs. Bill Broaddus and Mrs. Henry Vaught visited two of the beautiful new homes in the Buford community--Mrs. James Bodine and Mrs. M. C. Holt--Thursday with the view of enlisting them in the State better kitchen contest. Both of them entered and the committee made the proper entries for them. Such homes as these are a joy to behold and a firm foundation for Mitchell county's future. They are both modern homes with all modern conveniences. Have Delco lights, running water, both hot and cold in their kitchens and bath rooms. All kinds of built in features in kitchen and bed rooms that go to save a house-wife steps and add joy to housekeeping. Not only are these houses splendidly equipped but grass and flowers are on the lawn hydrants are there also, and in a short time will be a beautiful picture to see. Many such homes are being built in Mitchell county and are the best assets of it or any other county. Great is Mitchell county and greater its citizenry.

Stop Night Coughing This Simple Way

People who have persistent, annoying coughing spells at night, and who through loss of valuable sleep are weakening their systems and making themselves open to dangerous infections can stop their distressing trouble promptly by a very simple treatment. Hundreds who have hardly been able to rest at all for coughing, have gotten their full night's sleep the very first time they tried it.

The treatment is based on a remarkable prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You simply take a teaspoonful at night before retiring and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it, without following with water. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing. The result is that you usually sleep as soundly as a babe the very first night, and the entire cough condition goes in a very short time.

The prescription is highly recommended for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness and bronchitis, and is wonderful for children's coughs and spasmodic croup—no harmful drugs, economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. It is on sale at all good druggists. Ask for

SLIM JIM.

SEEN FROM COLORADO STREET CORNER MONDAY AFTERNOON (BY OLD TIMER).

The sun this afternoon has the feel of spring. It makes one itch to grab a spade and hie to the garden to prepare a place in which to broadcast the seeds of lettuce, radishes and celery. Yes, and potato-planting day is just around the corner. I wonder how many of us who had such orgies of gardening with the February seed catalogs, will be hanging on in July.

A Ford runabout sprints around the corner. Protruding we see what appears to be a broken plowshare, and the driver is peeved—probably because he had to leave his plowing to rush to the blacksmith shop. Personally we would welcome the excuse. But, I suppose, days like this are precious to the agrarian citizenry.

"I understand that they are letting the hair grow again in New York, and the papers seem to think the fad of bobbed hair is doomed." The speaker, as you probably have guessed, wore long tresses. Her companion comes back with this: "I'm afraid, by the time long hair again becomes the thing, there will be nobody to wear it, all of them having been shingled." She wore a semi-shingle. This scribbling person opines that bobbed hair will stay just as long as the dominant sex continues to call on the barber.

"Of course, you just hate to say it about a person, but if she will play, you would think she would have gumption enough to keep her trumps off of a perfectly good ace—when she has the last play." Evidently there has been a bridge party, and the deponent of the foregoing did not win the prize. And it is consoling to know that I am not the only person who should always play the "dummy" hand.

"Why, man, it's only seven hundred miles. We'll get the old flivver greased up, and then, counting 20 miles an hour, twelve hours a day, we will be there in just a little less than three days." Talk of optimism. I hope I'm permitted to hear him when he gets back. I tried it once.

The world must be growing better. Two boys standing on the corner. An old gentleman stumbles. Falls. Do the boys laugh? No. They rush to his assistance, help him to his feet, with never a smile. As he continues on his way the red-haired lad says to his companion, "Ge, I had begun to think we was never gonna get a chance for our good turn today." You guessed it—that's what they were.

"Keep your head down. That's the trouble with you—you raise your head." Funny advice to give another. But wait—the other is speaking: "I don't think that is the trouble—it's my right foot comes up. Then when I hit the ball I top it sinfully." Oh, yes—golf.

Circle No. 1 Entertains

Circle No. 1 of the Baptist church entertained the women of the church Wednesday from 3 to 5 o'clock at the home of Mrs. C. H. Lasky. The entertainment was a newspaper party. The hostesses wore newspaper hats and the whole house was decorated with newspapers. Colored sections were used for doilies, lamp shades and the punch table decorations. Fringes of paper were used for window draperies etc. The fun began as the guests arrived and had large advertisements pinned on their backs. They guessed what they represented by the descriptions others gave of them. Then each one was asked what department of a newspaper she liked best and as many answers were given as there are departments in a paper. Volume 1, No. 1 of the "Try-Weakly" was read by the managing editor, Mrs. A. L. White and so much was it enjoyed that the circulation was greatly increased. Special solos were sung by Mrs. Huth with Mrs. F. B. Whipkey accompanying on the accordion. They were encored until their repertoire was exhausted. Punch and little cakes were served.

"NEVER SAY DIE" HAS PLENTY OF RICH COMEDY

The new feature attraction in which Douglas MacLean appears at the Mission Theatre on Thursday and Friday of this week, "Never Say Die," is one of the genuine laugh treats of the season and one of the outstanding real feature comedies of the season. It is pretty good evidence that Douglas MacLean is making Harold Lloyd look to his laurels, according to exhibitors reports from all parts of the United States. The box office is the thing that finally tells the tale, and it is surprising how many instances Douglas MacLean has held the high place in many parts of the country. You'll get thrills a plenty, too, and if you are not careful you'll lose your breath when this notable star climbs to the top of the flag pole as one of the hilarious and thrilling stunts of this rousing comedy attraction. At least these are the reports the Mission management wishes safe for, and judging from numerous other attractions seen at that popular play house, you will not likely be disappointed. The picture runs for two days only.

HUNDREDS HEAR BAND IN CONCERT ON THE STREET

The first of a series of band concerts by the Colorado Booster Band was given Sunday afternoon on the street in the down town district. The concert began at 3 o'clock and for one hour and thirty minutes the splendid musical organization entertained hundreds of local citizens. M. S. Goldman, director, has announced that a series of these concerts are to be given during the ensuing months. The citizenship of Colorado continue to feel proud of the Booster Band. The organization has contributed much to keep this city before the people of West Texas, having filled an important place in practically all notable conventions held in West Texas during the past few years. For cities of Texas can claim to possess a better band than Colorado.

Goldman stated Monday that the band personnel had completed their plans for attending the Seventh Annual convention, West Texas Chamber of Commerce, at Mineral Wells May 4, 5 and 6th. "Every man in the band is now, as he has always in the past been, solidly back of every worthwhile undertaking calculated to bring additional good to the city of Colorado," Goldman declared.

ANNUAL INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE TO MEET FRIDAY

Annual meeting of the University Interscholastic League will open at Colorado Friday afternoon with the literary events at the Colorado high school. More than half of the rural and all of the independent school districts of the county have entered to compete for prizes in one or more of the literary and field events.

Friday evening at the school auditorium the annual declamation and debating contests are to be held. This feature of the annual league meet always attracts a large audience.

Saturday will be a full day at the ball park in South Colorado. Here teams and individuals, entered by the several competing schools, will contest for supremacy in a long list of varied field and track events. Prizes are to be awarded all first winners in each of the events.

Considerable rest is expected about the high school track contest, in which the MACI cup has been won for the last two consecutive years by the Colorado high school team. The cup is to become permanent property of the team winning it for three successive years.

Mrs. M. L. Jackson of Dallas is visiting her daughter, Mrs. S. H. Kent.

Mr. Russell Cope left Tuesday for El Paso and other points west.
