New Streets to Be Opened, City Council Decides

At a meeting of the Plains City Council last Thursday night the Council voted to assist in opening some new streets to serve the north and northwest parts of town.

The streets that have been taken into consideration are Ave. G from the light plant to the north city limit, and Second and Fourth streets from the northwest addition to Ave. E, which is the street on the east side of the park.

Several citizens living in the northwest part of town have asked that the streets be opened to allow traffic to reach the area around the park without having to travel back to town.

County commissioners have offered to open the streets after the city has staked the lines. Lowering of a water main will be required on Ave. G north of the light plant.

In other business transacted by the City Council, application was made for workmen's compensation and public liability insurance for the city.

Libraries Are Accepted

New Pastor at Christian Church

New pastor at the First Christian church here is the Rev. R. C. Brown, who has arrived in Plains with his wife from Paducah, Texas.

Rev. Brown succeeds the Rev. James Todd, who resigned to accept the position as pastor at Claude, Texas.

Rev. and Mrs. Brown have made their home in Paducah the past several years and he had spent his time filling in for churches which didn't have regular pastors. He received his education at Texas Christian University at Fort Worth.

Rev. and Mrs. Brown are parents of one daughter, Mrs. John L. Nichols. Mrs. Nichols and two children, John age 14, and Nancy 7, are making their home at Roswell, New Mexico while Major Nichols is overseas in Korea.

Rev. Brown stated that a teachers' training course will be held each Wednesday evening at the church and that a young people's group had been organized.

They are also making plans for a Halloween party to be held

The county library buildings, under construction for the past several months, were accepted Monday by the commissioner's court.

Mrs. Bert Bartlett, county librarian, has moved her office into the library here, and reports that on Monday, November 4, the assistant librarians, Mrs. Norelle Sloan and Mrs. J. S. Wade, will begin their work. As soon as materials are organized, the librarian and assistants will be working part of each week in Denver City preparing for an opening date which will be the same for both librarians.

Greatly appreciated is the nice collection of books that have been donated to the Plains library by the Tsa Mo Ga Club. This club has been working on the idea of a library for a period of years, and feel that they have reached another goal by their efforts. Individuals who have donated books other than club members are E. S. Bandy, Mrs. Joe Cheek, Mrs. Vicie Hinkle and Mrs. Herbert Barnes, to whom thanks was expressed.

Anyone having usable books that they may want to give to the library, is assured that they will be appreciated and gladly accepted, with the provision that they be used as is thought best.

It has also been suggested by some that money be donated with requests for books, as well as the giving of books in memory of friends. Both suggestions were welcomed by the librarian.

ACROSS THE CATTLE GUARD

by LEO W. WHITE
County Agent

The delegation of Yoakum County folk who attended the State Fair at Dallas last week came home in good spirits and in good health. One of the things that we were afraid of before we left was that someone would get sick but everyone came through in good shape. There was a great deal of sickness among the exhibitors from over the state. Some of them sent their animals and had other boys handle them while others had to be taken home about the middle of the week.

Our reason for going to the Fair was to take four steers entered in the Junior Livestock Show by Margaret Henard, Marsha K. White, Kenneth McCinty and Harold Lee Swann. Going along with these four 4-H Club members were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henard, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Swann and Mr. and Mrs. Leo White. This is the fifth year that Yoakum County 4-H members have entered livestock in the Dallas show and we came out this year with the highest placing of any of the five years. Margaret Henard placed fifth in the light weight Hereford class. Her calf sold for 35c a pound in the sale last Friday. Kenneth and Harold Lee each had calves in the Market Steer Show and were choice. Kenneth's calf sold for 25c a pound and Harold Lee sold his calf for 24c. The State Fair will add to the price of these calves and all animals that graded choice will receive 26c a pound.

Marsha was the one who had hard luck. Her calf was in the medium weight Angus class in the Fat Steer Show and there were fourteen calves in the class. Her calf placed 12th and they only give ten ribbons. She was all lined up to sell her calf with the group of non-placing calves when the Assistant County Agent from Hale County offered her $237.50 to lead him out and let him take him back to Plainview. That figured about 26c a pound for her calf and the others sold just minutes later for $23.90 cwt.

This year there were more calves at the State Fair than we have ever seen there before. About 200 more calves were entered this year than last year. Most of the increase was in the Market Steer Show where the animals were graded into either prime or choice group. They had a sifting committee that took out about 125 of the more undesirable calves and we felt good last Tuesday afternoon when all four of our calves stayed in the show. Within the next few weeks we will be looking for calves to take to the Fair next year. We would like to have weaning age calves that weigh about 400 pounds. After they have been on feed for 10 or 11 months they will weigh about 1,000 pounds and they will be fat enough to stay in the Show in order for them to place very high, we will need to start with a calf that is deep, thick and heavy set. If we can find calves of the right type we can enter the best ones in the Fat Steer Show again and the others in the Market Steer Show. The little calf that was Reserve Champion Angus was a dry lot fed animal. Many of the other calves in that division were also fed without the aid of a nurse cow. We arrived home in time for

Homespun Hints

By Myrna Marshall
County H. D. Agent

On September the 26th and 27th, seventeen home demonstration agents met in Plainview for a meeting on household equipment. Purchasing and repairing household equipment was discussed by the group. Several things are important to consider before you purchase equipment for your house.

The first point to consider is "What does my family need?" The appliance will need to be worth the money invested in it. Consider also, "How often will my family use the appliance?" An expensive waffle iron may not be used enough to justify the money spent on it. Remember to check the wiring of the house to be sure that the circuit will not be overloaded by the new appliance.

Notice if the appliance will be expensive to operate. An example would be an inadequate water supply for an automatic washer which uses several gallons more per load than the wringer-type machine.

When buying electrical appliances, buy those which have the "UL", Underwriter's Laboratories seal of approval. Such appliances have been tested for electrical and mechanical safety.

Be sure to read the instruction book which comes with the appliance. It will give the hints on the way to obtain the best service from the appliance.

It is almost time to get out the electric blanket. It may be a problem of how to wash the electric blanket. The Good Housekeeping, March 1954, has some good suggestions for the housewife.

"Automatic electric blankets, like regular blankets, should be fresh and clean when they are put away for the season. But they should always be washed, never dry-cleaned, because dry-cleaning fluids may injure the wiring system. Good Housekeeping research workers have washed many automatic blankets, and they recommend two machine-washing methods that are gentle enough to use on any electric blanket. One is for agitator-type washers, the other for tumbler types. (Incidentally both methods were developed by washer manufacturers). But don't let a blanket get too soiled. Wash just one blanket at a time, and follow exactly the procedure given as right for your washer. The gentle washing will be kind to the blanket and will protect it against shrinkage, an important point, since automatic blankets contain wool.

AGITATOR - TYPE AUTO-

MATIC WASHER. This method is called nonagitated washing because the agitator is removed from the washer after the suds are prepared, and it is not used during the washer procedure. Fill the washer with warm water — about 100 degrees F. Add 1 cup of mild synthetic detergent, and agitate until dissolved. Stop washer. Remove agitator. Immerse blanket in washer, and close cover. Set control dial for 10-minute wash. Allow washer to proceed through all cycles and stop. Remove blanket, shape over two clotheslines a few inches apart, and let dry. Press bindings with steam iron or dry iron set at low heat.

TUMBLER - TYPE AUTOMATIC WASHER. This method combines a soaking with carefully-timed washing and spinning. You can't leave the washer unattended. Place blanket in washer, fill washer with warm water, adding ½ cup of low-sudsing detergent. Then stop washer. Soak blanket for 5 minutes; then tumble it 1 minute. Advance dial so water drains out. Then advance dial a second time, and let washer fill for deep rinse; run for 1 minute. Finally, turn dial to give final drain, for 2 minutes, or until drain hose stops ejecting. Remove blanket; dry and press as directed for agitator-type washer.

Since Yoakum County is blessed with many good cooks, it would be nice to receive recipes from these 'good cooks. Each

Band Show Pleases Crowd

The band show Friday night followed the theme of a cowboy. The band marched onto the field, forming a horseshoe. Cowboy Joe came riding out on his white stick horse and promptly began to enjoy himself with the majorettes. It was not to last for long, however, because his wife quickly appeared on the scene.

Poor Cowboy Joe pleaded, but alas, his wife had no feeling for his outside interest. With two shots, Cowboy Joe dropped dead in his tracks.

Then as Cowboy Joe's wife rode along, she sang "My Sweethearts the Man in the Moon."

BAND TO MARCH
The band is busy getting ready for a trip to Fort Worth. It will march in a parade at the TCU homecoming and later attend the game between TCU and Rice. The band will leave November 22 and return the 24th.

Color, Cover for Annual Selected

Several of the editors of the annual staff met during the third period on Tuesday the 14th to select the type of cover for the P. H. S. '57-58 Annual. After a long hard argument the staff decided (with the help of their sponsor, Miss Leithauser) on the stiff back cover. The staff chose the cover to go along with the theme "The '58 Cowboy Turns Musical."

The editors also had a hard time choosing the color for the annual. In past years, the color has usually been black, gold or white. So to be a little different from those, they decided on a silver background and a blue foreground.

The staff hopes that everyone will be pleased with this decision.

Sunshine Boosts Hopes of Farmers For Cotton Crop

Oh! Man Sun, conspicuous by its absence for almost the past week was greeted Wednesday with thanks by county farmers who had been faced with steadily mounting crop damage due to the rainy weather which had buffeted the area for several days, especially since Saturday.

The sun, coupled with a good wind, was drying out the fields enough to allow a few hands to be put in the cotton fields by Thursday.

With less than 10 per cent of the cotton out of the fields, most of the farmers felt this week that with a little luck and continued good weather, plus a sufficient supply of help, they would be able to go over the fields before frost.

Estimates are now placing the cotton crop in the county at 17,000 bales, some below the 19,000 bales made last year. There are a total of 31,000 acres in the county planted to cotton, it was reported.

Although accurate gauging of the rainfall over the weekend was not available, local reports placed it at about three inches.

THIS WEEK IN AUSTIN

By Preston Smith

One of the main targets of the special session is a better lobby control bill which would, among other things, better define ways a trade association or interest group could have its voice in state government.

Mainly, though, new lobby control measures will prevent bribery situations which in the past have cost Texas plenty. Just exactly how much it has cost the state would be impossible to find out.

One measure introduced in the Senate has to do with "direct communication." This bill would allow a lobbyist to spend any amount of money on a lawmaker for entertainment without reporting it, as long as he didn't mention legislation during the entertainment.

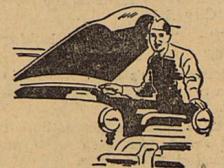

"Direct communication" has been defined as "any personal appearance before a legislative committee, or any personal contact or communication with any member of the Legislature for the purpose of explaining, discussing, or arguing for or against pending or proposed legislation or any action thereon by the Legislature, the Governor, or the Lieutenant Governor."

Under this bill, by Sen Crawford Martin, only those persons who make total expenditures of more than $50 during any one calendar year through "direct communication" would be required to file an accounting of the money spent.

The effect of entertainment on legislation is a subject that can be debated in the Legislature from now on.

Even when trade associations, civic groups, private industry and other sponsors entertain groups of legislators through their Austin contacts, legislation is seldom if ever mentioned.

With discussions underway in the Senate, action is underway toward lobby control measures. Just what the final outcome of this work will be, we can only wait and see. At any rate, it is a subject well overdue for consideration.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

Literally, the weather is great for ducks.

A lot of Texans, you may be sure, have been thinking it over, inasmuch as the duck season opens November 1 and extends to December 30.

Big rains this year have broken the drouth along the Gulf Coast, providing plenty of surface water for the birds. Conditions in the marsh areas of the upper coast are the best in 10 years.

There will be an excellent crop of such native waterfowl food as wild duck millet, smartweeds, duck potato, and pondweeds.

Along the lower coast, the duck prospects are also very good. October rain caused habitat conditions to improve rapidly.

Add to all this the fact that the duck breeding season in the North was a successful one, and you have every indication of good duck hunting in Texas during the coming season.

Many varieties of ducks come to Texas with the cool winds of Fall.

Of the various kinds, the mallard predominates. A graineater, the mallard's flesh has a mild flavor. Fish-eating ducks have a stronger taste.

Biggest of the ducks available to Texans is the American Merganser, which may go to four pounds. Smallest is the green-winged teal, averaging three-quarters of a pound.

A duck hunter must know his birds—bag limits vary with the species.

How To Do It

What's the secret of duck hunting—or any wing shooting? Well, it takes a steady hand, a clear eye, and good coordination, of course, but it also takes a gun that fits the shooter.

With time and money, you can do business with gun specialists who will fit the gun to your particular needs.

You'll get all kinds of tests, including some in the field. At the end of a year or so you'll have your gun, which will fit you like an old shoe. It will cost you about two thousand dollars.

Most of us don't have that kind of moola. But we can take our time in selecting a weapon, try it out, borrow a gun from a friend, talk about it, and be sure, before we purchase, that the gun fits.

Then we can go duck hunting, and if all the factors are right we can get birds.

Practice Helps

It goes without saying that practice is one of the elements of accurate wing shooting. Some rounds of skeet, before the season opens, should serve to sharpen the eye.

Another item is distance. A beginner is likely to blast away at ducks from afar, but a more experienced shooter will wait until they come closer.

At 12 yards, a duck looks bigger than a turkey. At 20 yards he shrinks to chicken size. At 30 yards, he's more like a pigeon and at 40 yards, he's down to dove dimensions. Off there at 50 yards he's an English sparrow, and at 60 yards, he's a hummingbird.

Too Many Deer

Game management officials are in some disagreement about reducing the deer population in some areas.

In Kerr County, for example, game commission biologists found that the land is overstocked and overgrazed. They recommended that hunters be permitted to kill doe as well as buck deer this season.

Kerr County commissioners rejected this proposal, and the state commission held with the Kerr County group, so there will be no legal doe shooting in the county this year.

There is a strong likelihood, say the biologists, that many Kerr County deer will die of starvation this winter.

There is a different situation in the Engeling area of Anderson County where, on a block of land owned by the state commission, permits will be issued to kill 100 deer of either sex.

An excess of does was discovered in the area.

Gal Wardens?

Maybe Texas is going to have female game wardens. The notion has been put forward by Sportsmen's Club of Texas.

Pickeral in Texas

Did you know you can catch chain pickeral in Texas? You can. That would be at Caddo Lake, where this relative of the northern pike and the majestic muskellunge abounds.

The pickeral lives in quiet, weedy waters and grows to 26 inches or so, and four pounds. A hungry citizen of Caddo's cypress swamps, the pickeral will strike practically anything that moves. He especially likes flashy underwater lures and noisy top-water baits.

A mystery is where the pickeral goes in midsummer, but a good guess is that he seeks a deep cool place and remains practically dormant. But in the Fall he perks up, and by November he is really ready for something to eat.

The pickeral, by the way, is a good eating fish. Skin him, remove bones, cut into narrow strips, dip in batter, and fry until well done.

Skier-Fishermen

After trouble between fishermen and water skiers on a California Lake, the U. S. Forest Service has set up some restrictions.

Anglers and skiers have agreed to these regulations: Fishermen have the lake all to themselves on Saturdays, with no skiers allowed. Skiing is permitted from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. other days, within boundaries marked by buoys.

Well, nobody wants to be regulated, but regulation will come to our Texas lakes if the fishermen and skiers can't get along with each other. They can because all it takes is courtesy, thoughtfulness and consideration of the other fellow.

Caution plus courtesy, plus common sense, equals safety. — DRIVE SAFELY.

Deputy Sheriff Olan Heath, who was the first to arrive at the scene, reported the car apparently went out of control some 100 yards before the impact, crossing over the highway and then traveling about 75 feet in a muddy bar ditch. The right front of the car crashed into the bulldozer, which was parked near the fence line, the impact throwing Green threw the windshield. He apparently died instantly. 1960 Census to be Taken on Different Basis in County

In a joint program with the state and each of its counties, the U. S. Census Bureau is establishing areas, known as "Census County Divisions" for use in statistical reporting. Similar areas were established in Washington prior to the 1950 census, and since then have been put into effect in 11 other states.

Jack Burkhardt, member of U. S. Census Staff, spent the latter part of last week here consulting with officials and seeking their advice in regard to the proposed areas for Yoakum County.

"The proposed Census County Divisions should be of much use for local administrative purposes," explained Burkhardt. "The Census County Divisions generally are larger in area and population than the justices or commissioner's precincts. They have clear-cut boundaries which can be identified easily, and they are intended to remain as permanent areas."

The staff member went on to say that the Census County Divisions—of which there will be two in Yoakum—are based on the communities which serve as the focal point of each area.

Burkhardt continued: "The statistical data for these divisions will serve as a yardstick with which to measure the sphere of influence exercised by such communities. It is believed that the divisions will be a hand tool for the use of county officials, local newspapers and business and civic organizations."

For the 1960 census purposes, Yoakum County has been divided into two census county divisions, Denver City and Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Dooley recently returned from Pampa where they visited their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wardlow and sons.

Kin of Local Resident Dies

Funeral services were conducted in Corpus Christi last Sunday for C. X. Woodruff, age 87, brother-in-law of Mrs. L. D. Camp of Plains. He is survived by the widow and one daughter, Mrs. Carl Lyndergreen of Corpus Christi. Mrs. Camp had just returned home at the time of his death from Corpus Christi where she had spent a week at his bedside and was unable to return for the funeral service.

Urge Caution by Motorists During Hallowe'en Time

Now that the haunting season is here again, little make-believe ghosts and witches are advised to see and be seen on Hallowe'en. J. O. Musick, General Manager of the Texas Safety Association, asked parents, today, to help Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents by cooperating with TSA through following a few simple rules to protect their own little spooks.

"We want our youngsters to be a treat and not a trick to drivers," Musick said. "In the first place, they must see, and see well. Many false faces limit the vision of anyone wearing one—makes it hard to see approaching cars. I strongly advise parents to help the kids disguise their faces by using makeup. Rouge, lipstick and eyebrow pencil can do an amazing job of painting weird and funny faces on freckle-faced and rosy-cheeked boys and girls."

Musick also stressed the importance of being seen. He appealed to parents to see to it that the youngsters wear costumes made of light-colored or reflectorized material. These precautions aid drivers in seeing the trick-or-treaters, should they dart into the street. "Actually, the best Hallowe'en traffic accident prevention is to keep children off the street at night," Musick said. "Of course, this is not an easy thing to do. But parents can get together and arrange indoor parties at Community centers or in their homes. Those parties will keep our make-believe spooks from taking the chance of becoming honest-to-goodness ghosts."

Organize County Group to Direct CROP Activities

A county-wide board to direct the Christian Rural Overseas program on an area basis has been organized, it was learned the week.

Selected as chairman was Leo White, with Alf Carpenter to serve as vice chairman. Secretary of the board will be G. W. Cleveland and treasurer, Mrs. Viva Hale.

Handling publicity will be Mrs. Kenneth Hale, with Cal Snyder as campaign director. Additional board members include Rev. R. C. Brown, Rod Duff, Kenneth Hale, Rev. Garland Huffman, Bobbie Field, Rev. Weldon McCormick, Hank Goehry, Minister B. C. Stapleton, Eugene Payne, Rev. C. J. Coffman, Roger Curry and Rev. R. H. Meixner.

CROP, as it is widely known, is supported by 35 different church denominations, and it is hoped that each church in the county will add their support to this worthy cause. It is believed that a sizeable donation in cotton and milo will be forthcoming from Yoakum County, according to the board.

Youth of the Methodist Churches in both Denver City and Plains are planning a "trick or treat" offering for CROP next week. The local Methodist youth, under direction of Mrs. Charles Pritchard, will canvas the town next Wednesday night. Plains youth, with Mrs. Sarah Field in charge, will solicit contributions for CROP the same evening.

8th Graders Sell Chances On Gun

The 8th grade classes are doing very well with the sale of chances on the 16 gauge shotgun to be given away October 31, at the Hallowe'en Carnival. If you would like to purchase one of these tickets, you can get one from any 8th grader. The tickets are 50c each. They would appreciate your support.

Wage Survey

Wage findings effective October 16 for cotton harvesting in Yoakum county were announced this week by the Texas Employment Commission. First pulling on irrigated and dryland have been set at $1.50 to $1.55 per hundredweight. Rate less than $1.55 for pulling is not applicable to Mexican contract workers, according to Ed McDonald, regional director, Bureau of Employment security.

Paper Is Cause Of Car Accident

A piece of paper was the innocent cause of car accident last Friday afternoon, in which the vehicle overturned twice. Luckily, the occupants escaped with no injuries other than bruises and shock.

Mrs. Ocie Mason of Brownfield was traveling east on the highway three miles out of Plains, when her six year old son rolled down the window to throw out a piece of paper. As Mrs. Mason reached over to roll up the window, she apparently lost control of the car.

Said the boy after being asked by Deputy Sheriff Olan Heath if he was injured: "I'm not hurt, but I sure am scared!"
