IT TAKES LOTS OF ELBOW GREASE to re-finish furniture and the local girls working on their FHA summer project will be the first to tell you. The program ended this week and was highlighted with a picnic in Stanford Park.

Homemakers end projects

Summer homemaking projects, under the supervision of Mrs. Josephine Brown, were completed this week by a number of Plains high school girls.

Some refinished furniture and found it takes lots of work and patience to obtain the desired finish. One group chose to make soft pillows as their project. Lovely round and square pillows were made of velvet, taffeta, satin, corduroy and varied types of drapery materials. Training in hemming drapes was received by some and others studied child care, home management, food buying and meal preparation, home improvement, gardening and yard work, clothing construction and laundering, and family entertainment. Each girl will receive one-half credit for a completed project.

Girls participating in these projects are: Dana Dyer, Alice Hinkle, Evelyn Jaquess, Marilyn Jones, Sandra Lewis, Bobbie McGee, D'Lynn McGinty, Betty Steward, Paula Tidwell, Letha Watson, Mary Johnson, Ivy Beggs,

Donna Borland, Delores Carney, Kayla Clark, Louise Head, Marie Anderson, Billie Jean Coke, Peggy Hartman, Linda Ledbetter, Lela Parks, Linda Salyer, Sandra Smith, Roberta Snodgrass, Linda Taylor, Marsha White, Sandra Williams, and Sandra

Dunn. Annette Sudderth, Shirley Gayle, Kaye Spencer and Leta Steward did advanced work for their state degrees. Starting work this summer on degrees are: Lela Parks, Roberta Snodgrass, Billie See HOMEMAKERS on page 6

Placing in high-jump were: Moody Meixner, first, and a tie for second by Ronnie Brooks and Gary Liles. Discus-throw was won by Gary Liles with Meixner placing second; Shot-putt Meixner, Liles and Jack McDonnell placed first, second and third; Thirty-yard dash — Meixner, Billy Kennedy and Liles placing in that order; and broad-jump — Liles, Kennedy and McDonnell. Placing in the sack-race were McDonnell, Jimmy Taylor and Gary Hennington. No one was left out for a "heel and toe" for the mothers was held with Mrs. Bill Kennedy and Mrs. Leon Brooks taking first and second honors. The "Three-legged race" for "father and son" teams was won by Tommie and Jack McDonnell paced closely by Neil and Jimmy Taylor, and Obeo and Mike Harbour.

Following presentation of badges, arrow points and pins to a number of boys, hot-dogs, pickles, onions, potato chips, cookies and bottled drinks were enjoyed by all.

A special program commemorated the Golden Anniversary of Scouting will be held by Pack 78 and Boy Scout Troop 78, in conjunction with packs and troops all over the nation, Saturday July, 23. Definite and complete plans will be given at a later date, according to Cubmaster Nelson and his staff.

An editorial SEE PLAINS FIRST

Has anyone ever counted the number of times around the courthouse square it would take to equal 70 miles? This would be a good project for local businessmen—to aid the local residents who like to travel to shop. They could set up stop signs, increase the traffic, in fact make it just like a trip on a busy highway. After the prescribed number of times around the square they could stop and shop.

I will be the first to admit that there are some things you cannot buy at the local stores. But I was surprised at the number of articles you can buy here—and usually at lower prices.

The continued growth of Plains depends upon the consumer. Our record of new business openings is amazing. Since the first of the year we have had at least two a month established here. And each filling a need for our local consumer.

Play the advertising game—check the prices in the out-of-town papers then check the prices here for the same articles. I've seen dresses, air conditioners, food, and household items all advertised in other papers—and all higher than local prices.

This leaves, in my mind, only one conclusion about those that go out-of-town to buy everyday household items and wearing apparel—they just like to travel.

Salaried workers follow trend to small farming

There is a trend among people who have regular jobs to want to have a small farm in connection with their regular work. It is surprising how many people you can talk to who will tell you how well they would like to have a small place out at the edge of town where they could keep some livestock and grow some crops. There are many reasons for wanting a situation like this. They have a place for their children to play without getting in the streets and they get out of paying city taxes. They want their children to have some farm experience. The best reason I have heard is that they want to add to their family income.

To make a small farm pay off, requires better management than operating a larger farm. The investment in improvements and equipment is much higher on a per acre basis. The Joe L. Webb family, east of Denver City, are getting started in what looks like the right direction. Mr. Webb works during the week at the Southwestern Public Service Company plant and they live on a small acreage just east of the plant. They have a small irrigation well and they raise cotton, grain sorghum and sudan pasture. Last year Mr. Webb heard about Midland Bermuda grass and decided to try some of it. He bought enough sprigs for about a half acre. The grass was planted late in the season but he got a good stand and almost every sprig came through the winter in good condition.

By fertilizing and watering that half acre this year he will have a solid cover before fall. By next May he will be able to dig enough sprigs to plant five or six more acres and hardly realize that any seed stock has

Growth of Plains object of Chamber of Commerce

One of the most active civic groups in Plains is also one of the youngest. Officially organized in 1957 the local Chamber of Commerce has planned and organized several major projects and has seen them carried through.

The first attempt to organize a local Chamber was begun in May of 1954. A board of directors composed of Cecil Courtney, C. D. Bass, Lewis Howlett, Ford Hawkins, George Burke, A. N. Weaver, Roger Curry and Rudy LaFon was named from among the local citizens who attended the first meeting. Elected president of the group was Al Wolfenberger with C. D. Bass as vice-president, and J. H. Aschenbeck as secretary-treasurer.

The first efforts of the new organization was to secure a bank for Plains. Numerous inquiries were made on the bank and other projects but the first organization dissolved soon after.

In 1957 the local Lions Club sponsored a public meeting in the Courthouse for the purpose of organizing the Chamber again. The group met with representatives from Brownfield Chamber of Commerce.

The officers elected to head the newly organized group were Bill Loyd, president; Rod Duff, vice-president; David Levens, treasurer. Others named to serve on committees were Joe Curry, P. W. St. Romair, George Burke, D. C. Newsom, Allen Wagley, Pete Sampson, and Dick Mc-

STATE CAPITAL
Highlights
AND Sidelights
by Vern Sanford
 TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Tex. — Amid the searing, summer weather, Texans are putting new emphasis on getting a statewide water plan.

Though Texas is supposed to be mid-way in a seven-year wet cycle now, unexpected harsh drought settled on parts of South and South Central Texas in late spring and early summer. As one scorching day followed another, crops were stunted and pasturage began to burn.

Though conditions were better elsewhere, the difficulties of the farmers in the areas around the Capital City lent emphasis to Gov. Price Daniel's plea for a "crash program" to develop a water plan. If Texans don't do it, said the governor, the federal government will take over. Target is to have a complete master plan for development of Texas' water ready by May 1, 1961. To help meet this deadline, the governor asked representatives of the river authorities and districts to file updated master plans for their areas with the Water Board by Nov. 1. He also asked the river authorities to lend engineers and technical personnel to help prepare the state plan.

Meanwhile, farmers, watching their corn burn up in the fields, took what comfort they could from the often-repeated statement that "Texas has plenty of water; it's just a matter of distribution."

STEPPING GRADES AHEAD — Looking ahead 10 years at estimated costs of state government, the governor's State Finance Advisory Commission got a dizzying view of spiraling expenses.

Sub-committees of the commission will study the problem of future costs and how to meet them through the summer and make reports to the entire commission Sept. 10. Commission's report and recommendations to the governor are due Oct. 10.

Estimates of their future needs made by major state agencies for the Commission indicated a need for spending $29,000,000 more each year to meet growth needs.

Governor Daniel told the commission he hoped they could find ways to scale down the new money needs and find revenue sources that would grow as population and demands for services increase.

FINANCE STUDY GROUPS — Making up the Finance Commission sub-committees which will work through the summer to find answers to Texas' worrisome money problems are a group of citizens with more than average experience in public affairs and finances.

The panels and their chairmen, as named by Commission Chairman John Redditt are: Sources of Additional Revenue: Dr. George C. Hester of Georgetown.

Financing Law Enforcement, Welfare, Hospitals and the Industrial Commission: E. B. Germany of Dallas.

State's Fiscal System and Deficit Problems: Ben H. Wooten of Dallas.

Public Schools: Thomas B. Ramey of Tyler.

Higher Education: Dr. Frank Cornally of Waco.

Highways: Herbert C. Petry Jr. of Carrizo Springs.

MORE FROM FUNDS? — Facing a money-short future, a State Senate Committee is studying the possibility of earning higher returns from the investment of state trust funds.

Sen. Hubert Hudson heads the panel which is studying administration and investment of four funds totaling $1,200,000,000.

They are the University Permanent Fund, the Permanent School Fund, the Teachers Retirement System Fund and the State Employees Retirement Fund.

Mortgage bankers suggested to the panel that the funds could earn a higher return without sacrifice of safety by investing in government-insured home mortgages. Some panel members observed that the funds now invested in federal bonds were not earning as much as was being lost through inflation.

For the past three years some of the University's Permanent Fund has been invested in corporate securities which has increased its earnings over what it had been from government bonds.

Senators also discussed the possibility of saving through a unified organization for administration and counseling on the four funds.

GAS DECISION AWAITED — State of Texas and the natural gas pipeline companies are waiting for a decision in the first round of a long series of court fights on the validity of the natural gas severance beneficiary tax.

A total of 108 lawsuits have been filed against the tax by pipeline companies. Their attorneys argue that it, like the old natural gas gathering tax that was knocked down by the courts, is unconstitutional because it constitutes a burden on interstate commerce.

Companies have paid the $6,363,878 in severance taxes under protest. If the law is struck down in the courts, the money will be refunded to the companies.

Atty. Gen. Will Wilson, arguing for the state, declared the law is not unfair to interstate commerce because it treats gas sold outside of Texas and gas sold within the state exactly the same.

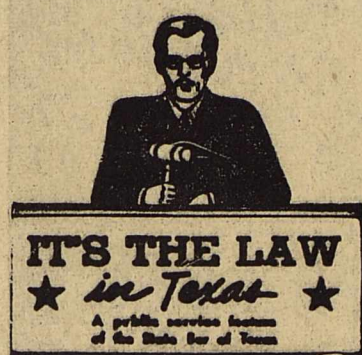

WARNING FOR DRIVERS — This year's Fourth of July falls on a Monday, making a longer holiday for fun — and accidents.

Department of Public Safety has predicted 27 traffic deaths in Texas between 11:15 p.m. July 2 and 11:59 p.m. July 4.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., DPS director, said all available patrolmen, including those from licensing and weights and inspection would be on the road. "Their purpose is to render a service to the traveling public," said Garrison. "They need the full cooperation of all motorists in driving safely and sanely at all times."

SAUNDERS CASE ARGUED — Court of Criminal Appeals is to rule next fall in a case hinging on whether a witness can be convicted of perjury in connection with testimony before a legislative committee.

Defendant in the case is J. Byron Saunders, former chairman of the State Board of Insurance, who was convicted and sentenced to two years imprisonment for lying to a legislative committee about funds received from ICT Insurance Co. while he was in office. Saunders' attorney contended that perjury is possible only before a judicial body, not before a legislative committee.

TREASON

The history of liberty often shows that a would-be tyrant likes to accuse his opponents of treason. So, to safeguard our liberty the constitution itself sets out the kind of proof we need to find some one guilty of treason.

For this reason America has had relatively few cases of treason. Not so in early English and Roman law. "Treasonous acts" covered many things, in fact, anything that seemed to threaten the community safety.

In the fourteenth century the English tried to define treason: Since every subject owed allegiance to the King, trivial breaches of a private nature became "petite (small) treason." But a subject disloyal enough as to attack or plot against the king himself was guilty of "high" treason.

The kings liked this: For one to imagine the king's death became treason subject to death.

The broadened treason widened further to include crimes against private persons. Later even the king himself was not exempt: In 1649 he indicted, convicted, and beheaded King Charles I for treason.

King Henry VIII made it high treason to slander Queen Anne or her children. Failure to take an oath not to slander the queen itself became treason.

Under Elizabeth I it became treason for anyone to hold a religion which did not conform to the crown's.

Conviction of treason was easy. In some cases you needed no witnesses. Trials were short and the accused could not have defense counsel.

In conflicts for power, the losing politicians often became "traitors" as they do in many countries to this day. Our early settlers lived in troubled times with the coming revolution creating new factions. For them treason was also a frequent accusation.

But after the revolution the founding fathers and the people had had enough.

They decided to limit "treason" and faced these problems: Should the new executive put down rebellions and define treasons himself? Should the Congress during "troubled times" have power to define treason?

No. The new Constitution took treason out of politics. It said treason "shall consist only of levying war against the United States or in giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

Conviction required testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act.

Smith and Mrs. Lucretia Cheek, who plan to visit Mr. Smith's niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Orem at Columbia Falls, Montana.

Mrs. T. E. Coke was a guest of her son, Earl and family, in Midland over the weekend. She went to Roswell on Monday to be with her aged mother, Mrs. W. H. One hundred years ago...

THIS WAS NEWS

that shaped today's world

TODAY'S NEWSPAPER BRINGS YOU THE NEWS THAT WILL SHAPE THE WORLD OF TOMORROW

One hundred years ago (August 27, 1859) Edwin L. Drake completed the drilling of the first commercial oil well near Titusville, Pa. Thus was born an industry without which the way of living that we enjoy today could hardly have been possible. Today nothing moves on land or in the air, on or under the sea, or into outer space but that oil helps to move it. Nothing is made but that oil helps to make it or improve it.

Drake's well was "just a news item" in the paper a century ago. Today it is history of world-shaping importance . . . history that is still being made as the oil industry continues to move forward to new achievements.

All of which simply serves to dramatize the importance of reading your newspaper regularly and thoroughly . . . ever alert to the kind of news that can reshape . . . even completely change . . . the world you will live in tomorrow. Only by so doing can you properly evaluate the future and purposefully plan to take your own place in it.

Your newspaper dedicates itself to fast, clear, accurate reporting in all the areas of interest and importance that can affect you and your family . . . today, tomorrow, next year, and as far into the future as you can project your imagination!

It is with deep gratitude I would like to express my sincere appreciation to all the people in Plains for making my teaching in the Plains School System a very enjoyable one. Had it not been for the parents, girls and people of the community, I feel that myself and the PFA chapter would never have accomplished the things we have in the past eleven years. There will always be a place in my heart for each one that I have worked with and taught. I am sure that I will never find a better community to live in, but I know that I am going to enjoy our new home. Please give the next teacher Miss Nelson as much help as you have me. If you are ever down our way, please drop by to see us. Our phone number is 591-MI and our address is Route 3, Gatesville, Texas.

By Vern Sanford

With school out and the summer holidays here, the number of persons enjoying the great outdoors is increasing tremendously.

Week-end driving is especially hazardous. Add to the ever-present dangers of highway accidents a big holiday week-end, such as the upcoming Fourth of July vacation period, and you have an especially dangerous time for the motorist.

July Fourth, this year, falls on Monday.

That means Saturday, Sunday and Monday traffic will be heavy, very heavy. In fact, the greatest traffic load of the year — any year — is the July 4th week-end. And this one this year has an extra day!

That means you've got to be careful!

You must observe the speed warnings as well as all other safety traffic signs. These signs are placed on the highway as a warning for you . . . not to you. However, there will be patrolmen on every highway and in the greatest numbers ever, come July 2-3-4.

So, be careful and play it safe. It's your life, as well as the lives of others, that's at stake. Your property and their property too. So don't let ever, one tiny black mark appear on your insurance record. That can prove costly too, you know.

Not more than two out of 10 outdoorsmen know that a motorist can be arrested if he drives more than 45 mph while pulling a boat.

Did you know that? Well, it will pay you to remember it — and especially so during the July 4th week-end.

A jacking trailer can do tremendous damage . . . to property and to people. So if you're trailering a boat, be sure that the trailer is well hitched. See that a safety chain is attached from trailer to car. Double-check to be certain that the cable pulls the boat snugly forward to balance your craft properly and seat it tightly.

See that the transom tie-downs are tight. Be sure that the tires are properly inflated and have no thin spots that may cause a blowout, or lost traction.

Either a red warning light must be on the rear of the trailer, or a red reflector attached to the stern of the boat, where it is clearly visible, when you're driving at night.

Equally important, be sure you have a 1960 trailer license . . . and that your boat is numbered in keeping with Texas laws.

Okay, you've launched your boat, and you're on your way. Do you have a coast-guard-approved life preserver aboard, for each passenger? If not you're violating the Federal and State laws regarding safety afloat.

And you're violating the first rule of safety if you don't make the kiddies wear life vests.

Do you have at least two paddles aboard, just in case of motor failure?

And, speaking of motors, did you gas up properly — carefully?

Outboarders should remove the tank from the boat and fill the tank either at the filling station pump or on the dock — not while the tank is in the boat. Inboarders should exercise even greater care.

Two inboards have exploded on Lake Austin, already, this very summer. Accumulated gas fumes in the bilge ignited when the ignition key was turned on.

Boating accidents are increasing. The Winslow Co. of Venice, Florida, reports that last year, in New York State, there were more fatalities from boating accidents than from cars. In New Jersey less than one per cent of the auto accidents proved fatal — as compared to a 14 per cent fatality rate for boating accidents.

The dangers of water are hidden ones. They develop suddenly and unexpectedly, and without any warning.

Or, the highways you often can see an accident coming. On the waterways an accident develops instantaneously. It can be caused by lighting a match, by a carelessly thrown cigarette, a safety belt that didn't hold, a ski that broke, a barrel that sank, a floating mattress or inner-tube lost its air.

There are hundreds of different ways. Nearly all are due to carelessness. Some are from stupidity — like trying to carry eight passengers in a five-passenger boat. Some are from pranksters who just must have their fun. But — ninety eight per cent of the accidents on our waterways could have been prevented — if the persons involved had been safety conscious.

Policing for safety in equipment is one thing. But policing the individual is equally important — and more difficult.

Take water skiing for example. There are more skiers this year than ever before. I've seen men, women and children, from 6 to 60 trying to ski — and most of them doing it, too. Truly it's becoming more and more popular as a family sport.

There is one dark blot on the enjoyment of water skiing, however. I refer to accidents. The distressing thing about it is that none of them are necessary. They seldom happen to the beginning skier. He or she usually is cautious and follows instructions to the letter, while trying to learn the sport.

Usually the man who gets hurt is the good skier. The man who thinks he is so good that he doesn't need to take even the normal precautions.

He's the guy who will go out without a life vest or belt-type preserver — and never come back alive.

He's the guy who will ski close to tree stumps and docks and other boats . . . and motors.

He's the guy who isn't with us any more. But as Barnum once said — there's one born every minute.

Field, Cobb quit hospital's board; successors named

Two Plains businessmen have been named by the commissioners court to serve as members of the board of directors of Yoakum County Hospital.

They are James Warren, owner of Plains Oil Company, and Rod Duff, who operates the Cotton De-Linting Service.

The new members replace Ty Field and Paul Cobb, both of whom submitted resignations to the court at an earlier date. Field had been serving as president of the board.

The court also named Coy Mathis of Denver City as a member of the county charity board, replacing Dr. M. A. Watts who has moved to Karsas.

Fall and summer dresses are shown displayed in the new Elsorita Shop. The building was built by Mrs. J. P. Robertson and was occupied this week by the dress shop. Next Wednesday afternoon an informal style show is slated to mark their opening in the new location.

Saving bond sales near county goal

Yoakum County is one of 67 counties in Texas which have surpassed 50 per cent of goal in 1960 Savings Bond sales, according to a report issued today by D. P. Moorhead, county savings bond sales chairman.

Thus far this year the county has sold a total of $41,326 in bonds, which represents 59 per cent of a goal of $70,000 for 1960. During May, sales in the county totaled $2,357, according to Moorhead.

Total sales in Texas for the first five months of the year amounted to $69,824,409, which represents 42.2 per cent of the 1960 goal of $165 1/2 million. May sales in Texas amounted to more than $12 million, a considerable increase over May of last year.

In issuing his report on May sales in Yoakum County, Moorhead stated: "The United States Savings Bonds program is one of the finest ways of encouraging regular savings. Through the payroll savings plan or other regular purchases, millions of Americans have become savers for the first time."

Widows, children of vets eligible for pension July 1

Several thousand widows and children of deceased veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict will become eligible to receive pension benefits on July 1. These dependents will be entitled to these benefits as the result of a new pension law enacted by Congress last year, according to Buford L. Dulin, County Service Officer.

Prior to passage of the new law, known as the Veterans Pension Act of 1959, dependents of deceased World War II and Korean Conflict veterans were entitled to pension only if the veteran had a disability which resulted from his active military service. The new law provides benefits to the dependents of deceased veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict if the dependents meet certain limitations with regard to income and the size of their estate.

Dulin said that a very small percentage of the widows and children in Texas who could benefit from this new law have applied to the Veterans Administration for the benefits to which they are entitled. Dulin pointed out that the children of deceased World War II and Korean veterans are eligible to receive pension, even though their mother may have remarried since the death of her veteran husband, and even though the children may have been adopted by the mother's new husband. These children are eligible to receive pension while they are unmarried and under the age of eighteen years. They may continue to receive pension until age twenty-one if they remain unmarried and are attending an approved school, and may receive pension indefinitely if they became physically or mentally incapable of self-support before their eighteenth birthday.

Unremarried widows and the custodians of dependent children may receive further information and assistance in obtaining these benefits by contacting Dulin at his office located at the Denver City Library on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday on Monday and Friday at the courthouse in Plains, or from any office of the Veterans Affairs Commission of Texas.

They also visited his brothers and families, Hugh at Denver City and Frank at Andrews, and another sister, Mrs. Ellie Cobb and their mother, Mrs. Mandia Donaghe in Brownfield.

Forty-two guests were registered by Mrs. John Camp. Many who could not attend remembered Mrs. Camp with birthday wishes and gifts.

been taken out. It will be 1962 before there is much income from the grass. The investment up to that time will be very little because he started on a very small scale and grew into the business.

Most people would not consider they were in the grass growing business if they had only six acres. Actually, it is not very much. It may, however, be about the right amount for a 10 or 12 acre operation. More acres of Midland might upset the plans and get things out of balance. A balance is necessary because grass must be converted into another product before it can be sold. This conversion process calls for some kind of livestock to eat the grass. Midland Bermuda produces good forage during the warm season but a man who has livestock has to furnish them with something to eat every day during the year. It is necessary to save some of the land for the production of winter feed.

Mr. Webb decided the best way for him to harvest his grass would be to own a small flock of sheep and sell lambs and wool. There was one big drawback to this idea. He was not acquainted with the sheep business and he realized that a successful sheep man had to really know what he was doing. He also knew that the best way to learn any livestock production business was to get a few head and get started. So Mr. Webb bought a few sheep last fall and he is learning the sheep business. He has a good lamb crop this year and he has learned to do his own shearing. The size of his flock will increase as his grass acreage increases and he plans to eventually have enough sheep to graze down the five or six acres of Midland Bermuda.

No body seems to know just how much grazing this grass will furnish when properly cared for. Some tall stories have been told but a conservative figure may be 15 head of ewes with their lambs. Five head of sheep will eat about the same as one cow and some people are running more than three cows to the acre. If 15 is a good figure, the Webbs will eventually have 80 or 90 head of sheep which should supplement their annual income to the tune of about $1,000.00.

Aphids, 'hoppers begin hitting county's cotton

Grasshoppers and aphids are beginning to make appearances on Yoakum County cotton farms, according to the weekly Cotton Insect Situation report of Texas A&M College System, issued last Friday.

The grasshoppers, according to the report, are causing damage to young cotton in Yoakum and three other West Texas counties. Yoakum County was the only one to report aphid infestations, and these were light.

Many counties in the High Plains and South Plains areas have reported large numbers of beneficial insects in the cotton fields and in weed growth at the field margins.

The weekend of June 18-19 brought with it some dry, hot weather which the cotton farmer has been looking for. Past few days have been first really good cotton growing period for most sections of this area.

Report states that due to the good growing conditions, the appearance of the cotton plant is much improved. Cotton in the Plains area is beginning to overcome much of the early season environmental, disease and insect damage.

Thrips infestations have been decreasing in most reporting areas, although heavy infestations have been found in Cochran, Hale, Lamb and irrigated cotton in Howard Counties.

Fleahoppers have been noticed moving into some of the older cotton plantings in the area. All fleahopper reports have been light thus far this season. Report of A&M says that although population is lighter than usual, problems in the area can be expected before the season is over.

A&M officials urge cotton farmers to consult the "Texas Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects," published by Texas Agricultural Extension Service, for information concerning control of various insects. Copies may be secured from County Agent Leo White.
