Tourist Markers Help Travelers In Texas Travel

AUSTIN — Authorization today for four more Texas Tourist Markers means that travelers through the Lone Star State will learn still more about Texas from legends permanently etched in metal.

The Texas Highway Commission gave the nod for the erection of the aluminum tourist markers to commemorate:

Pilot Knob in Travis County, the only example of an exposed submarine volcano in Texas; the Geographic Center of the State in McCulloch County; the Llano Estacado in Garza County, that mesa-like area that is one of the world's most perfect plains regions; and Old Tascosa in Oldham County, famed for its Boot Hill Cemetery and known as the Cowboy Capital of the Texas Panhandle.

These four markers, the Commission said, will round out the Highway Department's 1963 participation as a member of the Texas Tourist Marker Committee whose membership also includes the Game and Fish Commission, the State Parks Commission and the State Historical Commission.

The markers, which were purchased by the Highway Department, will be placed in the following locations:

Guadalupe Peak in Culberson County, Texas' highest mountain at 8,751 feet; Galveston Island in Galveston County, whose varied history has played one of the most exciting roles in the life of Texas; the Law West of the Pecos in Val Verde County as handed down by the legendary Judge Roy Bean at Langtry; and the Highways Paved With Gold, sections of U. S. Highway 81 and 287 literally studded with the precious metal.

All eight markers the Commission said, will be erected before the end of the year. They will be placed in safety rest areas (roadside parks) or in turnouts along the highway for the convenience of the traveling public.

Vets Questions And Answers

Q — Under what conditions can a peacetime veteran be admitted to a VA hospital for a nonservice-connected disability?

A — Veterans who were discharged or retired for disability incurred or aggravated in line of duty or are receiving compensation or would be eligible to receive compensation except for receipt of retirement pay may be admitted for ailments not connected with their service if beds are available.

Q — In the fall, I will be retiring from the Army after 20 years of service. Will I be eligible to go to school under the GI Bill?

A — It will depend upon when you receive your first unconditional discharge after January 31, 1955. If less than three years have passed since that discharge, you are eligible. If more than three years have passed, you are not. Immediate re-enlistment at the time you received that first unconditional discharge after January 31, 1955, would have had no effect on extending the deadline.
