GO JET-SMOOTH CHEVROLET for luxury and all the new ways it saves money—with a brand-new 6, battery-saving Delcotron generator, rust-resisting flush-and-dry rocker panels, self-adjusting brakes. This is the Impala Sport Sedan.

GO CHEVY II to give your budget an even bigger break. It has a family-size Body by Fisher, a choice of thrifty 4- or 6-cylinder engines and the same lower upkeep features as the Jet-smooth Chevrolet. That's the Nova 4-Door Sedan above. Nice?

GO CORVAIR for the new self-adjusting brakes, more fully aluminized muffler, refined interiors and trim and new taillight rings that make this beauty even more fun. Aside from these changes, we haven't touched this Monza Convertible at all.

GO NEW CORVETTE STING RAY for two exciting new versions of America's only all-out sports car—a sleek Convertible or that daring new Sport Coupe above. Both have new independent 4-wheel suspension. Only problem: deciding which.

 South trumped the opening lead then drew trumps in two rounds, ending in the closed hand. South next led a low heart. West played the king and South wins in the dummy with the ace. South then plays the king of spades and sluffs her losing heart. South forces out the ace and king of diamonds, trumps the heart return and lays down all good diamonds and clubs to make contract.
COMMENT: West chose a very bad lead which made the contract for South. West should have led the king of hearts then when South had to give West the lead with the diamonds. West would have had another heart trick for a one set.

Asks defeat of 'Trial de Novo'

Austin, Texas—A Texas Supreme Court justice Friday called for defeat of the proposed "trial de novo" amendment to the State Constitution.

Associate Justice Meade F. Griffin told a group of lawyers and judges here that "it will be a very sad day for Texas" if the amendment is adopted on Nov. 6.

The proposal would permit the Legislature to prescribe conditions on which appeals can be taken from decisions of state and local agencies into the courts. A "de novo" trial would mean that findings of the administrative agency could be ignored, and the whole proceeding tried anew in court.

Griffin told the Travis County Bar Association and a number of visitors attending a state-wide judicial conference that judges and juries lack the qualifications and staff to reach proper decisions on such technical questions as spacing and proration in oil and gas reservoirs.

Critics say the Legislature intended mainly to remove some of the administrative powers from the Railroad Commission and State Board of Insurance when it submitted the amendment.

On this point, Judge Griffin said: "The Railroad Commission and Insurance Commission were created by the Legislature, and if they (legislators) want to do away with them, they can abolish them."

Griffin said the amendment's wording provides for "complete subordination" to the Legislature regarding appeals from "executive and judicial" acts of cities, school districts and other political subdivisions.

Cotton Quality Reported Good

Cotton harvesting was getting well underway this week according to W. K. Palmer, Officer-in-Charge of the Lubbock Classing Office.

Sample receipts were up this week with 13,700 samples being classed as compared to 5,950 the previous week. This gives a total of 22,500 samples classed to date by the Lubbock office.

In the Lamesa and Brownfield offices, 5,000 and 4,900 samples have been classed. A total of 42,100 samples has been classed on the South Plains this year.

Quality of cotton being classed is good. Middling comprised 56 percent of that classed in the Lubbock office this past week. Strict low Middling constituted 14 percent and Middling Light Spot, 18 percent.

Average staple length was 30.3 thirty seconds of an inch.

Micronaire readings for the week were as follows: 3.4 and below, 5%; 3.5 to 3.9, 20%; 4.0 to 4.4, 44%; 4.5 to 4.9, 26%; and 5.0 to 5.4, 4%.

Middling one inch is quoted by the Lubbock Spot Quotations at 32.30; this compares to 33.15 a year ago.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

Two new Great Plains contracts were delivered this week. They are H. B. Price northwest of Plains and R. Z. Ravis, North of Plains. Maps were received to be used in writing a conservation plan on the Ira Allen farm in the Pleasant Hill community.

A new District conservation plan on the L. L. Smith farm southwest of Tokio, was completed and mailed for typing this week; and Ira Tidwell has a new plan for his farm west of Plains on the Old Lovington highway.

Now is a good time to start planning to use crop residue to the fullest extent for wind erosion next spring. There are several ways that grain sorghum stubble can be used to help control wind erosion. Too many are shredding and plowing under what could do a good job of control and are then trying to plow up clods to take the place of the residue. Some plowing to supplement the residue is not only better, but costs less and in these days of high costs, that is an item not to be overlooked.

Cotton Allotment Sugar Beet Men Gird For Effort To Gain Acreage

Over a period of weeks, West Texas cotton farmers have expressed concern to me, said Representative, George Mahon, over the rumor that the national cotton allotment may be reduced for the 1963 crop. The allotment this year is 18.1 million acres. I have discussed this problem with the Secretary of Agriculture and other USDA officials and have urged that no reduction be made. A reduction in the national allotment would, in my opinion, be a serious mistake.

We need to continue the allotment at not less than the present level in order to supply domestic needs and keep U. S. cotton in world markets. Our exports for the cotton year ending last August 1, totaled 4.9 million bales. It is generally agreed that we must not fall below exports of about five million bales per year.

On or before October 15, the Secretary of Agriculture is required to announce the 1963 acreage allotment. The cotton picture is complicated by the fact that there is a government subsidy on all cotton exported and by the further fact that domestic use of cotton is declining below anticipated levels.

Dr. Karl Menninger, in his classic study of human self-destruction, "Man Against Himself," points out that suicide is every where more common than murder—and the reporter of running history cannot help but wonder whether this is not equally true of nations.

Two Senators on the same afternoon—Goldwater and Stennis—recently brought this grim thought to a reporter's mind. In Senate speeches on matters otherwise unrelated, these two men touched on the point of what the USA is insanely doing to herself quite apart from what our enemies would like to do to us. Goldwater of Arizona addressed himself to the accepted principle of civilian control of the American Government. Nobody in his senses would question this principle, but Goldwater was wondering aloud whether our psychotic fear of non-existent Caesarism has not given us a phobia which is causing a quarantine upon military thinking—one that could be the death of us. He cited an opinion by Adlai Stevenson to the effect that we should stop short of full nuclear preparedness in the hope that Russia might also practice nuclear restraint. No military mind would think that way. Only a civilian mind, in an excess of antimilitarism could conceive the now-familiar concept of disarmament-by-example. Goldwater also cited the opinion of Roswell Gilpatric, Deputy Security of Defense, who has enunciated the military doctrine of Second Space, saying we will never put weapons there until the Russians do so first. No military mind would choose to give the enemy that kind of advantage. It is the talk of a civilian who is out of his field of competence.

Suicide, as Dr. Menninger goes on at much length to show, is often chronic and non-violent. The alcoholic and the hunger-striker, the accident-prone person and the religious fanatic, are all self-destructive. So, one must conclude, is a country which carries demilitarization so far that civilian-mindedness takes over the decisions of how to arm the country for war, to the exclusion of military advice.

Stennis of Mississippi dealt with another aspect of excessive civilian-mindedness. He was speaking on reports that the Kennedy brothers, President and Attorney General, might be sending troops to force Negro James Meredith's admission to the University of Mississippi. The use of American soldiers against American citizens is another quirk of civilian-mindedness which views political reform as a fighting matter. No admiral or general in his lucid moments would see Ole Miss as an enemy made citadel. President Eisenhower made the mistake of his life, and so recognized it, as Stennis implied, by letting his lawyers talk him into sending paratroopers to Little Rock—a maneuver which Ike never tried again, but which modern fanatics, like John Brown of a century ago, are fully capable of undertaking in the name of establishing their pet theory of sociology.

There is a sickness in any man or nation that will commit deeds of self-destruction. To say that such deeds can be rationalized is only to say that a derangement of thinking has set in. A Government which will spike its own guns, and muzzle its military, with the enemy at the gates, is carrying the principle of civilian control to the jumping-off place. A government which sends its soldiers against its citizens to put one man into one university is performing an irrational act as the circus clown when he cracks a peanut with a sledge hammer.

It is written that whom the gods would destroy they first make mad. Sometimes it seem that we are bent upon becoming our own executioner.
