OUR 37TH YEAR, THE PLAINS RECORD, THURSDAY, AUGUST 1, 1968, NUMBER 29

around plains square

with Teny Lester

It is a startling fact to find that half of one month's arrests made by our law officials involved local boys and girls being charged with consuming and possessing alcoholic beverages.

I have found myself ignorant of many laws and feel like there are many more parents in the same boat. This brings to mind that what you don't know will hurt you!

If enough interest is shown by parents and youngsters maybe we can get our local law officials to hold a lecture or seminar type meeting to educate us all. We have a fine staff of law enforcers in our midst and I will take it on myself to say that they will be happy to help in anyway.

Our personal congratulations go to Bill Overton for his recent Certificate of Recognition. A little bird whispered in our ear concerning this and when I encountered Bill for a picture and story he was always busy. In fact I think he ignored me for two weeks but I finally caught him Tuesday. I don't know of a person in our city or county that would not say "I am mighty glad you stayed."

We find that the 50th Annual Convention of the American Legion, Department of Texas, will be held in Houston August 8-11. If any local members plan on going they are asked to contact Commander Jess Batchelor. From all accounts a great time is in store for ones attending.

How about our young golfer. Would like to take this opportunity to congratulate them all for their fine showing during the junior boys tourney.

J. C. Chambliss and son Chris made a visit to the Record Tuesday and we held quite a discussion on greenbugs. J. C. brought in a head of maize that was literally covered with the little bugs, but there doesn't seem to be much concern about damage unless they are in the younger plant which hasn't booted or headed out yet.

After seeing what they looked like my scalp itched for the rest of the afternoon. I wouldn't call them bugs—they look more like lice to me.

Teenagers and parents—don't forget to pick up the information booklet "Laws That Teenagers Should Know" We have a supply here or drop by the Sheriff's office for one.

PIONEER IN AGRICULTURE HONORED WITH AWARD

W. M. Overton, office manager of the Yoakum County AGS, was recently recognized in a Lubbock meeting for his many years of interest during the formative years of national farm policy.

The Certificate of Recognition read: "In recognition of your pioneering effort and contribution to American agriculture and the public interest during the formative years of national farm policy, this citation is presented in the 35th anniversary year of the signing of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933."

Mr. Overton, better known as Bill to local residents, started his career back in the 30's and was out of service only four years of the 35 as stated above.

Bill recalls his first job brought him $1.50 a day, since he was married. Unwed fellows received one dollar per day. This particular job was with the old "AAA" system at Gainesville in Cook county.

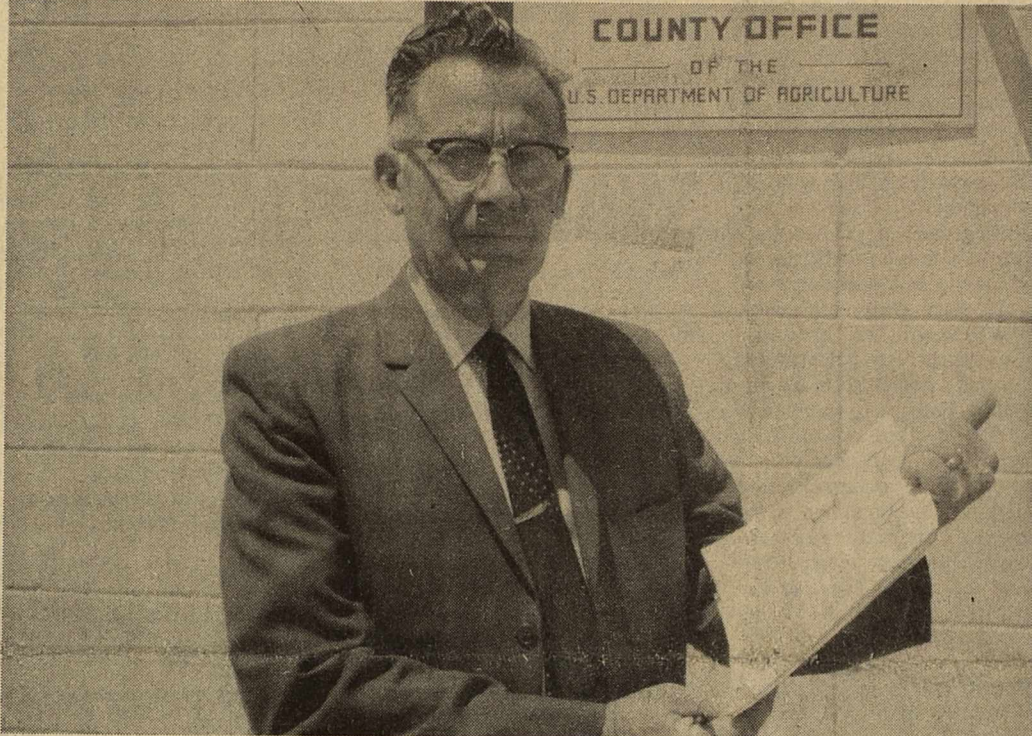

In 1944 and 1945 he served as officemanager at Memphis in Hall County. From 1945 to 1949, Bill took a leave from the system, then known as the Production Marketing Association.

Sept. 6 of this year will mark Bill's 19th year with the local office presently known as Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation System. Bill stated that when he came to Plains he had no intentions of staying except long enough to help set up cotton allotments for the county.

The courtesies of friendly people in the small town changed his mind and three months later he had his family here with him.

Bill and Mrs. Overton are both quite active in civic affairs. The couple are parents of two children, James, now deceased, and Mrs. Joan Mann of Hobbs, N. Mex. Bill also proudly stated that he is a grandfather of four.

We at the Record wish to express our congratulations to Bill for his outstanding service and add "We're mighty glad you stayed."

In a report Tuesday from the Yoakum County Sheriff's Office it was shown that 18 or 35 July arrests involved local youngsters being charged with consuming and possessing alcoholic beverages.

Law officials stated they intended to enforce laws more heavily concerning these offenses. Officials also stated that some youngsters have assumed the attitude that nothing will come of the fact if they are caught in these illegal actions.

Officials state that although ignorance of the law is no excuse, many teenagers become involved in these actions by just being in the same car or group where illegal beverages are consumed or possessed. The Texas law requires a person to be 21 years of age before it is legal for them to drink or possess alcoholic beverages.

A teenager can still be charged with possession unless their parents or legal guardian are with them. They still can't legally consume unless it is in the privacy of their home with their parents or guardian's presence.

If another person, other than parents or guardian, are caught with illegal beverages in a group of minors they can be heavily fined for contributing to delinquency of minors, plus the youngsters facing charges of possessing alcoholic beverages.

Many people are unaware that it is unlawful for a can of beer to be opened in a car past midnight.

It is not the desire of local officials to become enemies or to be hard on youngsters but it is their intention to educate the youngsters and the public about these laws. Necessary steps will be taken if need be, for it is the duty of officials to carry out enforcement.

A booklet entitled "Laws Teenagers Should Know" is available to youngsters and parents and can be picked up at the sheriff's office or at the Plains Record.

In addition to the Texas Liquor Control Act, the booklet interprets laws concerning motor vehicles, destruction of property, obscene literature, unlawfully carrying arms, and several areas of burglary.

Youngsters, along with parents, are urged to obtain a copy of this booklet and become educated on laws concerning minors.

It has also been suspected that bootleggers supply the youngsters with the booze. For several years Sheriff Heath has attempted to put an end to the "gravel pit porters" of the High School students.

Sen. Tower Reports From Washington D.C.

This is the last of my regular reports for this congressional session. As you know, it has been my practice in past years to suspend this nonpartisan report during the convention and campaign periods of election years. That time is once again upon us.

In this last report of 1968 I'd like to talk with you about jobs.

A good deal of our nation's attention has been centered in recent months on the need to improve employment opportunities for all our citizens. For several years Congress has been trying to assist by developing programs of job-training supported at least in part by federal funds. We also have proposed the providing of tax incentives to private industries that devote resources and efforts to job-training programs.

Recently a further idea has been put forward that may go a long way toward helping us meet our national goal of increased job opportunities. It has been called the "National Job Bank," and I'd like to bring it to your attention.

Today, many of our people are enveloped in a vicious cycle of poverty. Because they do not have a good education, they cannot get a good job and they cannot afford decent housing. Because they live in slum housing, they find it difficult to establish a sound and stable home for their children.

This dependency cycle must be broken at every point—jobs, education, and housing. In the long run, of course, quality education is the most important factor. But, even if we were to transform our educational system overnight, the result of the miracle would not be felt for years—for education, by its very nature, is a time-consuming process that proceeds and builds in logical steps. Moreover, for two-thirds of today's poor, the days of basic education have passed.

Decent housing is vital; and as the ranking minority member of the Senate's Housing subcommittee I have sought for years to establish federal programs which would assist low-income families to acquire their own homes. Just this spring Congress has approved the first of these low-income homeownership programs. I think it will work, and I'm hopeful it can later be expanded to provide assistance to even more low-income families.

But, housing alone can never resolve the basic conditions of ignorance, joblessness and despair. Decent housing—and furniture—on Page 2

Texas Voters Faced With 14 Proposed Amendments

Campaigns will be shaping up soon on 14 more amendments to the state constitution. All 14 of the proposed changes in the state's basic laws will be voted on at the general election November 5. Some are far-reaching, others routine.

Here are the amendments in the order in which they will appear on the November 5 ballot:

2. Raising the state's welfare spending ceiling from $60 million to $75 million.

3. Permitting investment of the Permanent University Fund by UT regents in certain

4. Allowing Dallas City to issue road bonds on vote of property taxpayers.

5. Authorizing a raise in state legislators' salary from $4,800 to $8,400 a year and extending the per diem expense allowance of legislators ($12 a day) to 140 days of a regular lawmaking session. (Present limit is 120 days.)

6. Allowing the legislature to exempt from property taxes equipment installed by industrialists to arol air or water pollution.

ture and clothing and food and entertainment—are the products of a good education and good jobs, not the reverse. What is needed now, I believe, and what can be provided now, is the dignity and satisfaction of working for a living and earning the money that will give a person the economic power to buy the things that make a decent home and a good life.

What can we do to make it possible for more people to hold productive jobs?
Well, we know there are three requirements for a man to be productively employed. First, he must be qualified for the job; second, the job must be available; but third, he must know about the job. Thus far, we have concentrated on the first two conditions, which is certainly not wrong, but we have failed to place adequate emphasis upon the third.

It is in this area, I believe, that rapid progress can be made, and it is in this area that the National Job Bank proposal addresses itself. In our concern to create job opportunities and to train people, we have largely ignored the problem of communication about jobs. Today, tens of thousands of jobs are going begging because people qualified for those jobs are not aware of them.

A National Job Bank would use existing computer technology to match the qualification of a job-seeker anywhere in the country with a job.

opening anywhere in the country.
Such computer job-matching systems have been used for years in industry to match professional workers to professional job opportunities. There seems to me to be no real barrier to using computers to match those seeking entry-level jobs to the jobs available.

One approach would be to establish a major computer center in this country with scores of branches in the depressed sections of our cities. A person could walk in off the street and give all the essential facts to a computer operator—what kind of training he had, what kind of educational background he had, in what area he wanted to work, the income he needed, how many hours he could work. This information would then be fed into the computer which would have been previously stocked with the job opportunities in private industry and business in non-profit organizations and in government.

The computer could then provide the applicant with a report of the opportunities available in the community, the city, the state and even the nation. This would expand his range of job options, to expand his freedom of choice. I believe the time has come to put computer technology to work resolving apart of our complex job crisis.

Baptist Revival

Rev. James A. Bozman, pastor of the Plains First Baptist Church, announced plans for a "Summer for the Savior" revival to begin Sunday, August 4 and continue through August 11.

Brother Mickey Warlick, a young evangelist of Midland, will bring the sermons while Lynn Garrett, minister of music, Education and Youth at the Seminole First Baptist Church, directs the music.

Rev. Bozman stated Evangelist Warlick began preaching as a teenager and is still involved in reaching young people for the Savior. He has led conferences on witnessing, is a Youth Congress leader and recently served as camp pastor for boys camp.

Mr. Garrett has done a wonderful job with the music and youth at Seminole, continued Rev. Bozeman. His choir has been rated very high in music festivals. The youth choir, under his direction, has presented the Christian folk musical "Good News" several times in various places.

The people of the Plains First Baptist invite all and especially the young people, to hear the challenging messages in sermon and song during this meeting.

Services will be held each evening at 10:00 a.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Sudie Thompson CHDA Says:

Several years ago a college boy coming south ate his first bowl of gumbo. After tasting it he remarked, "It's worth a trip to the South to get a bowl of gumbo. Just think, I've missed this delicious dish all my life!"

"Gumbo", as okra is sometimes called, actually is its place in American history. Originating in Africa, it spread throughout the warmer regions of the world. It finally reached America through the French colonists of Louisiana in the early 1700's. It gained outstanding popularity in French cooking in Louisiana, although it was slow to receive any degree of popularity elsewhere in this country.

By 1748 it was being grown as far north as Philadelphia; Jefferson said it was known in Virginia before 1781 and from about 1800 onward numerous garden writers had something to say about it.

For many years okra has held an important place among the garden vegetables of the southern states. Some of the South's (in particular, Louisiana's) well-known dishes contain okra.

Here are a few of the many ways to prepare okra:

Chicken Gumbo
1 quart young okra
1 chicken, 3 to 4 pounds
1 slice ham, about 1 pound
4 tablespoons butter or other fat
1 quart fresh skinned chopped or cooked tomatoes large onion, chopped
sprig parsley
squats boiling water
1/2 little cayenne
Wash and stem the okra
cut in 1/2-inch slices,
press and cut up the chicken.
Fry the okra in 2 tablespoons of the fat in a large skillet until lightly browned.
Remove from the kettle. Methe remaining fat in the skillet, add the chicken and onion, cover closely, and cook for about 10 minutes, turning when necessary. Add tomatoes, onion, parsley,
water and browned okra.
Simmer for an hour to two until the chicken and ham are tender. Add salt to taste and a little cayenne. Serve with flaky cooked rice.

Always remember that okra should be cooked in agate, porcelain, aluminum, or earthenware utensils. Copper, brass, or iron cooking utensils should not be used in preparing okra, as the pods become discolored.

Fried Okra
2 quarts young okra
4 tablespoons fat
Salt to taste
Wash the okra, dry thoroughly, and cut crosswise in pieces about one-half inch thick. Heat the fat in a frying pan, add the okra, cover and cook 10 minutes. Stir frequently to prevent scorching. Remove the cover, continue to cook until the okra is tender, and brown lightly. Serve at once.

If preferred, the okra may be rolled in seasoned corn meal before being fried. Also the whole pods may be parboiled and drained, then dipped in corn meal, and fried.

How Big is the Cotton Industry

While an estimate of the total investment in enterprises growing and processing cotton, and seed and manufacturing lint into textiles is subject to a wide margin of error, about $22 billion will be a very conservative figure. Agriculture and the enterprises it supports comprise the nation's largest industry. Cotton is the most important cash crop, grown on some 850,000 farms from the southern tip of Virginia to the valleys of California. In round figures, the industry includes 6,300 gins, 1,500 raw cotton merchandising firms, 1,250 cotton warehouses and compresses, 280 cotton oil mills and 1,000 cotton textile mills. An estimated 12 million people depend on cotton for their livelihood.

The role of the cooperatives on the South Plains can not be overplayed. From a fifteen-member group in 1936, the cooperative family has grown to more than one hundred associations. During this time these cooperatives have returned many millions of dollars to their patrons. Included in these patronage dividends are the margins of their regional organizations which represent savings well in excess of sixty million dollars to date. These returns reflect the stabilizing effect the cooperatives have had on cotton and cottonseed markets. It has been estimated that every area cotton producer has realized an average of more than $10 per ton for cottonseed over what they would have received had Plains Cooperative Oil Mill never existed. Directly, or indirectly, the cooperatives are of economic significance to all South Plains farmers and their city cousins.

We All Depend on the Cotton Industry!

KING COTTON .... What a royal plant it is! The world waits on its growth; the rain that falls on its leaves is heard around the world; the sun that shines on it is tempered by the prayers of all the people. The frost that chills it and the dew that descends from heavens to awaken it are noted; and the little worm on its green leaf is more than the advance of a hostile army from distant shores. Yes, we point with pride to Cotton ... from the boll to the bolt of fabric.

It has been a pleasure to serve the folks of this area in the past and it is our goal to serve you EVEN BETTER THIS SEASON!
