Things are Looking Up in Plains

The Du Pont commercial, seen on the Orange Bowl game, carried nationally on NBC-TV, New Year's night was seen in many parts of the Nation as well as in the local area. There is evidence of a spark of pride as Plains folks discuss the world premiere of this commercial and tell of the phone calls and letters from friends and relatives from far and wide who had seen the 'show' and wished to convey their appreciation of it. As would be expected, it brought joy to all those who participated in the making of the commercial.

All of the scenes were taken in Plains in purely local settings and with out props. Only local talent was employed and all scenes were unhearsed. The scenes depicted some of the Plains residents as they go about their normal way of life and their appreciation of the good water now made possible by the use of the Du Pont "Permasep" permeators.

It was only a few years ago that the Du Pont Company discovered the "reverse osmosis" process of desalination and water softening. It was through their arduous and persistent research that the scientific breakthrough came about and they were able to make from synthetic materials a minute hair sized tube which is utilized for a membrane in the reverse osmosis method. Millions of feet of this hair-like tubing is used in each of the permeators.

About three years ago while casting about with a small mobile unit for a place to research their "permasep" permeators, the Du Pont Company personnel ran some samples of the Plains city water supply and found it compatible to their need. After a study of the situation, it became apparent that the size of the town and the water condition rendered Plains an ideal place for a larger research plant. Negotiations were made with the City of Plains, a plant to comply with the need was designed and installed with the result that the World's largest Reverse Osmosis process plant in use today resides in this small city, and all this is what the New Year's Day commercial was about.

There is much joking and joking of the 'actors' of the Plains show, but there is also the spirit of progress and accomplishment evident in the temperament of the residents. The truth of the last words of the commentator on the commercial can be felt, "Things are looking up in Plains."

Cowboys Lose to Coahoma

Colton Wright of Coahoma poured in 25 points to lead the Coahoma Bulldogs to a 67-47 win over the Plains Cowboys. Jackie Wolfe also helped by scoring 10 points, all in the second half.

The Cowboys got behind the first quarter scoring only 7 points to Coahoma's 15. The Cowboys were down by 6 points going into the half, with the score 23-29.

Tim Byrum was the Cowboys' leading scorer with 18 points, making all of his free throws. Jeff Isham, playing a great game, was next scoring 8, then Eddie Moore scoring 7. Shelly Simpson, a Sophomore, came in and scored 4 points for the Cowboys.

The B Team played a great game beating Coahoma 47-35. The Cowboys were ahead the whole game, out scoring Coahoma in each quarter.

Ronnie Rains helped by leading the Cowboys with 12 points and Andrew Ruiz and Richey Brantly were next with 8 points each.

Stone, for the Bulldogs, made 14 points with Kerby right behind him with 11. The final score was 47-35.

Telephone Pole Broken

A telephone pole was broken off at the ground about 8 miles west of Plains on Highway 82. Apparently it had been hit by an automobile. No accident has been reported to the sheriff's office. The only evidence was a pair of eye glasses and a few wrenches left at the scene. Any one missing these articles may recover them by calling at the sheriff's office in Plains and identifying them.

His message is simple: Help stomp out litter! The Litter Critter is riled up at the annual $2 million cost of cleaning up after careless motorists who strew trash and litter al-

"Young men are as apt to think themselves wise enough, as drunken men are to think themselves sober enough."

—Lord Chesterfield

Speaking of a voice singing with happiness, I wish everyone could have heard Mrs. George Cleveland's Voice last Sunday. She phoned to tell me of her flying to Houston to visit her daughter Fairline, now Mrs. Jack Fite. After telling of flying there and back and what a wonderful visit she had, she said: "And I wasn't sick one time while I was there."

Mrs. Vicie Hinkle has been receiving a number of interesting letters from her son, Don Hinkle and wife, Pat, who are stationed in Taiwan at this time. The last letter tells how beautiful the yards of all the homes look at Christmas time with poinsettia bushes in full bloom and many with hibiscus hedges in bloom of bright red flowers. The day Pat wrote the letter, she had been to a Tsai Djin (goodbye) party for Don's C. O. 's wife who is leaving for the states soon. Pat also plans to join the Maggies wives' club. This club makes interesting visits to different parts of the island, and she plans to write more on these subjects.

I have read a number of letters from Pat and in each one she tells of interesting places she has seen and of the customs of the people, and therefore, I plan to start a series of these articles as I think we all fall short in knowing the history and customs of other lands, the better relations we will have. It has always been an idea of mine that we try to push our ways and customs on other nations instead of accepting them as they really are. Why should we, as a nation, think that our ways of living, which are very new to the centuries and centuries behind most of other nations, is the only correct way?

Until each nation of this world can look upon the citizens of other nations and have a brotherly feeling toward each other, peace can never be accomplished. War is always caused by one nation trying to push its customs, etc., on the other. Instead of brotherly love, there is only greed, prejudice and haughtiness.

"But why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at nought thy brother?..."

Taiwan is the island that we formerly called Formosa.

She: "Don't you think, Henry, that sheep are the stupidest creatures living."

He (Absent-mindedly): "Yes, my lamb," who bumped his head on a short door.

"The height of the doorway was obvious. It was not a source of danger to a person exercising reasonable care."

Yet, some doors are not obvious at all. A number of recent cases have involved all-glass doors, which sometimes give what the law calls "an illusion of space." Courts have usually held that if a person bumps unwittingly against such a door, the management may be held responsible.

But this applies only if the door is truly deceptive in appearance. If markings or handles give fair warning that the door is there, then the store cannot be blamed by the person who walks into it.

Whatever type of door it is, the management does have an affirmative duty to keep it in good working order. Thus:

A woman was seriously injured in a revolving door when someone speeded it around with a push. Investigation revealed that the brake brushes, which were supposed to hold the speed down, were all worn out.

Accordingly, a court ruled that the management was liable for the woman's injury. Its negligent upkeep, said the court, had changed a safe exit into a place of danger.

WASHINGTON AND SMALL BUSINESS

Keep It Simple!

Tax reform may be one of Capitol Hill's biggest stories of 1969. But it will hardly be remembered as well as the Mets' World Series victory.

Tax reform is of great concern to millions. But, unfortunately, it's as dry as yesterday's toast. Even lowering taxes—as hammered out by the legislative process—loses most of its popular appeal by the time it's finally enacted. Once the lawmakers start complicating the issues, the average citizen shrugs his shoulders in bewilderment and asks simply: "Will I pay more or less?"

Public opinion forced this tax reform effort. The extra surtax bite every payday, the hardships of inflation, and disclosures that many wealthy escape taxation angered many taxpayers. Congress, fearing a taxpayers' rebellion, had to act.

The representatives have generated enough tax proposals, amendments and oratory in printed form to fill a Capitol Hill vestibule. But, except for the most avid Congress-watchers, it's just a long, complicated and still unfinished story.

The nation's independent business owners have plugged for three simple changes, each of which would achieve a worthy goal. First, an end to the surtax, which many businessmen think has not retarded inflation, but rather provided even more money for Congress to spend.

Second, they favor reducing the tax equitably through a simple increase in the personal and dependents' exemptions from $600 to $1,200, or more. This would provide tax relief where it's needed most, and update a "living allowance" which was passed in 1948.

A third change sought by businessmen would help small businesses expand in these difficult times. Called the "Plowback Allowance," it would permit a businessman to deduct 20 per cent of the year's profits which were reinvested. The profit pinch—resulting from high taxes and inflation—is leaving little if any profit for expansion.

Adoption of higher exemptions and the business plowback incentive would be meaningful reforms. Both are easily understood. Instead, the patchwork changes being considered by Congress, which promise lower taxes over the next few years, may prove less equitable.

In this first major revision of the income tax law since 1954, it was hoped that simplicity would be a goal. But the two Houses seem engaged in a contest to see how many new complications can be added to a law which runs some 400 pages and is "explained" by thousands more.

If the poor, burdened taxpayer could have his way, he'd implore Congress "Please, just make it simple."

Texas Industrial Commission

AUSTIN, Tex. ---Industrial development continued growth at a record breaking pace throughout 1969, with plant locations and expansions 20 per cent above the all-time high previous year.

"Texas closed out the sixties very impressively, with economic development spiraling through continued growth in industry in almost every possible sector," James Harwell, executive director of the Texas Industrial Commission said in a year-ending report.

Harwell said most of the record growth came in the first six months of the year, with 198 new plants locating in the state and 264 existing industries undertaking substantial expansions. This compared with 126 new plant locations and 251 expansions for the same period of 1968. The most activity came in the areas of chemical, metal and transportation industries.

However, despite the rising costs of construction and tight money, Texas continued to net a substantial amount of new industries in the last half of 1969. Although final figures are not yet available, officials estimate new plant locations for 1969 will number about 350, compared with 291 last year and expansions will reach the 465 mark, compared with 444 in 1968.

These totals are reflected in a Bureau of Business Research report on nonresidential construction from January-November 1968 to January-November 1969, showing a 22 per cent boost and accounting for the lion's share of all construction increases during the period.

Manufacturing employment also reflects the economic growth. The Texas industrial work force in 1968 totaled 727,600, and was reported at 728,900 for just the 11 months available in 1969.

But, Harwell believes 1969 and its records are not the pinnacle for industrial development in Texas.

The year was also one of honor for the state's industrial development program, with Texas becoming one of the only three states in the nation to receive the coveted "E" Award for export development from the U. S. Department of Commerce. Undersecretary of Commerce Robert McCellan presented the award to Gov. Smith and addressed a joint session of the 61st Legislature.

KILLERS PREFER SUNDAYS

NEW DELHI (AP) — Sunday is the favorite day for would-be killers, according to an official of the central bureau of investigation.

He said a study of murders in New Delhi also showed that January and February are for some reason preferred by murderers. The largest number of murders are committed between midnight and daybreak and the fewest in the forenoon, he said.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear John:

I saw the world premiere of your acting debut last night in Du Pont's commercial during the Orange Bowl. A splendid job, I must say. John, your talents will put you in Hollywood yet.

I recognized many of the residents of Plains we met during our short visit to your city. During a conversation with the producer of the commercial he told me of his script plans and desire to use residents, but he did not know at that time who it would be. I was sure you would be in there somewhere.

Please convey my regards to Roy and to the city employees who were so kind to send Christmas cards to Alex and me. My best to you and your gracious wife. And, again, congratulations on a sterling performance.

Sincerely,
J. C. Felder, Jr.

Dear Mr. McConnell:

I write you this letter offering my services to your community and county to assist or direct you to the proper State Offices and departments concerning Economic Opportunity, better known as OEO.

As you know, a recent ruling in California designated food surpluses to be distributed immediately to the needy. Only last week counties in West Texas were named for such needs.

Governor Preston Smith has asked the members of the Texas Legislature to join with him in our struggle to provide the opportunities which will enable the the poor to emerge from a life of want and misery. Surprisingly, 26.3% of the people in Texas live in poverty. In arriving at this poverty level, as defined by the OEO, this simply means that 26.3% of the families in Texas are presently receiving income below the poverty level.

We know of another state of poverty and that being the shocking financial condition of some of our rural counties, thus leaving rural Texas helpless to provide for its own. Certainly the authors of this program had in mind our metropolitan areas, but we are reminded daily of adult illiteracy, inadequate housing and lack of sufficient medical dental care. One-fourth of the population being classified in the below-level does and will not require local funds, I approve of the disbursement of these monies more than most. The mandatory Food Stamp and Surplus program is a burden deluxe on our rural counties. In some sparsely populated counties the cost to administer equals the cost of such counties' surplus. Whereas few federal funds are ever administered wholly by States without federal intervention, the distribution and administration of the OEO comes directly under Governor or Smith's newly created division of State-Local relations. If I can assist you in any way, please call upon me.

Yours very truly,
E. L. Short

Finished with her shopping, Mrs. Wilson headed for the automatic doors at the front of the market. But by mistake, she approached the IN side instead of the OUT side. Just then someone activated the IN door, which swung against Mrs. Wilson and knocked her down.

In due course, she filed a damage suit against the store. "It is true the doors were labeled 'IN' and 'OUT,'" she said in court. "But the words were placed above eye level, where they were not easy to see. No wonder I got mixed up."

However, the court denied her claim. The judge said the store was entitled to assume that a customer would pay closer attention to where she was going.

Generally speaking, the law expects the normal shopper to be able to navigate safely out of the normal exit. As another court said, in denying damages to a tall man

Texas Baptist News

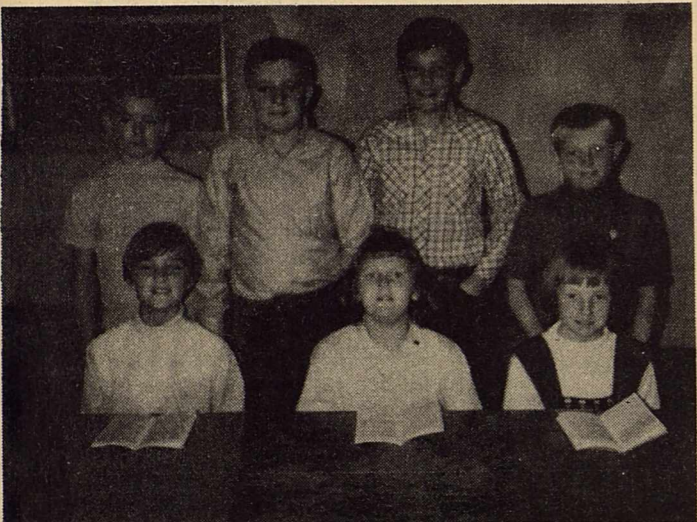

Dallas--The Baptist General Convention of Texas closed its books for 1969 with a surplus of $155,784.34 over its budget of $13.5 million. This favorable financial picture will make possible a variety of additional projects recently approved by the convention's executive board in anticipation of the surplus funds.

The BGCT budget for 1970 will be $14.5 million. With the addition of more than six million dollars in special offerings, the total mission giving figure for the 1.8 million member Baptist organization is $19,713,766.69. This does not include monies collected through Baptist institutional development or endowment programs.

One-third of the surplus money will be allocated to the Southern Baptist Convention for use world-wide. The remainder will go to Valley Baptist Hospital, Harlingen, and to a variety of State Missions Commission unmet needs, most involving youth, military or Latin-American evangelism.

Valley Baptist Hospital will receive $50,000, the largest single allotment. To fund all items on the executive board priority list would have required a surplus of $300,000.

"We are indeed grateful and thankful that Texas Baptists were able to achieve their 1969 budget goal, not because of any notions of prestige or pride, but because of the emotion, compassion and sacrifice that each dollar represents and what it can mean to the Kingdom of God," stated T. A. Patterson, BGCT executive secretary.

Thank you Yolanda Salas and Rosie Gonzales for reading to Ginger Nance, Rhonda Teaff, Becky Willis, Christie Barron, Russell and Doug Warren, Wanda and Latrice Pickett, Teddy Willis, Michael Houck, Curt Randall, Rene and Michael Davis. Yolanda Bacon gave a program on Parliamentary procedure. Leo White then gave a program on grooming and showing of livestock. Teresa Howell, Neil Bearden and Matt Lindsey served refreshments.

Storyhour Changes Time

Storyhour will be held each Thursday morning from 10:30 to 11:30 a. m. The time change is due to school schedule. Without the help of Junior High Classes reading to the little listeners, there would have to be a limit of listeners allowed to attend, or, more than one time scheduled each week, and the group would be broken up into age groups. The children enjoy the younger readers very much and the library is happy to work with these Junior High Readers. The class from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. have all had their turn at entertaining and the 10:30 to 11:30 a. m. class is anxious (we hope) to have their turn in telling stories and reading to the little pre-schoolers of Plains. Accent on Health

Are the so-called "childhood diseases" limited only to children and do adults have an immunity to them?

Not so, says the Texas State Department of Health.

The childhood diseases are a myth. The fact is that these diseases are so contagious among children that most people have had them by adulthood and thereby have developed immunity. But adults can and do catch them, and when they do they are sometimes much sicker than children.

Two of these so-called childhood diseases--mumps and German measles (rubella)--have special dangers for the adult patient. Mumps can be damaging to both adult men and women. And German measles, when occurring in the early part of pregnancy, can result in damage to the unborn child. A new vaccine may eventually lead to the eradication of German measles, but there is a danger until all women in the child-bearing years have been immunized against it.

So, if you are exposed to any "childhood" disease and believe you have never had it, ask your doctor what you can do to protect yourself.

It is extremely important that you and your children keep protection against smallpox up to date. True, the absence of smallpox in this country has led to a lack of public concern about this serious disease, and large segments of the adult population are unvaccinated or require boosters. In some parts of the world smallpox continues to be a serious problem. If just one single undetected smallpox case should be introduced into a U. S. Community, it could touch off a serious epidemic.

Is it true that a baby is protected by his "natural immunity" acquired from his mother? Some of a mother's natural or acquired immunities, if any, can be passed on to her unborn infant as her blood courses through the placenta that nourishes him, but this inherited immunity remains effective for only a short time.

In the case of whooping cough, a highly contagious disease that is especially dangerous and often fatal for small babies, there is evidence that immunity is only occasionally passed on.

Every parent, advises the State Health Department, should plan an immunization program beginning at six weeks of age against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, poliomyelitis and smallpox. Booster shots to maintain complete protection should follow at prescribed intervals throughout childhood and, in case of certain diseases, well into adult life.

group for their great job, they really try and do the best they can to keep the attention of the little one's. Anyone working with pre-school children will know it takes great effort to hold the attention of younger children.

subject to the recordkeeping requirements. Previously, the gun control act of 1968, required records for all ammunition sales.

Mr. White stressed, however, that no other aspect of the act, which is administered by the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the IRS, was changed by the legislation.

Persons engaged in selling ammunition still are required to be licensed under the act. Anyone under 21 years of age cannot purchase handgun ammunition. However, individuals at least 18 can buy rifle and shotgun ammunition. Dealers must still require purchasers to identify themselves if there is doubt about their age.

Felons, persons under indictment for a felony, fugitives from justice, unlawful users of drugs, mental incompetents, and persons under 18 continue to be prohibited from purchasing ammunition of any type.

"The change in the law affects only shotgun and rifle ammunition, and their component parts. Dealers still are required to keep records on the sale of other ammunition, specifying the type and quantity of ammunition and identifying the buyer," Mr. White said.

Gun Control Act Change

(Dallas, Texas) -- It no longer is necessary for dealers to keep records of certain ammunition sales, B. Frank White, Regional Commissioner for the Southwest Region, Internal Revenue Service, said today.

Newly enacted legislation eliminates the need for dealers to keep records on sales of shotgun ammunition suitable only for use in rifles, and component parts of these types of ammunition. Purchases of ammunition interchangeable between rifles and handguns, such as .22 caliber rifle ammunition, continue to be required.

Mr. White stressed, however, that no other aspect of the act, which is administered by the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the IRS, was changed by the legislation.

Persons engaged in selling ammunition still are required to be licensed under the act. Anyone under 21 years of age cannot purchase handgun ammunition. However, individuals at least 18 can buy rifle and shotgun ammunition. Dealers must still require purchasers to identify themselves if there is doubt about their age.

Felons, persons under indictment for a felony, fugitives from justice, unlawful users of drugs, mental incompetents, and persons under 18 continue to be prohibited from purchasing ammunition of any type.

"The change in the law affects only shotgun and rifle ammunition, and their component parts. Dealers still are required to keep records on the sale of other ammunition, specifying the type and quantity of ammunition and identifying the buyer," Mr. White said.

Has your field left and stacked up in your neighbors fence row? Are you spending money to get rid of good soil blown into a place where it is not wanted and cannot be used?

YOAKUM SWCD NEWS

By C. M. Thompson
There are many reasons why soil and water conservation is important to everyone, but the one most thought of is economics. Yes, the dollar has always been important in conservation, some times because of the cost but more often because of the returns, not only to land owners and operators but to the community, all the people as well. The health of all of us is becoming more and more important as we notice and learn more about how what we eat, wear, breath and use is materially effected by our environment. Food from eroded soil, air from polluted space, food and water from polluted streams and lakes and fiber from contaminated plants can and does effect our daily lives. Ever land user big or small farmer or rancher or other type land user has a good chance to do something about making our country a better place in which to live, or keeping it the good place it is now. Our conservation practices may not be as dramatic as some used elsewhere, but they are effective and are proven. We may not have terraces parallel or otherwise, tree farms, drainage, ponds, lakes, or any of the other more noticeable conservation practices but what we have sure looks good when the wind begins to blow. The only place the land naturally stays bare all year round is in the DESERT and we know we are not living in one, yet. Cropland and Ranchland and Wildlife or Recreation land needs to have a COVER during the time when damage from wind or water is most likely to occur. We can have this cover if only we plan ahead, use what we have, work with our natural plant residue and other type vegetation that grows on the land we use. Some good examples of soil protection by crop residue can be seen on the following farms, E. W. New, Darwin Hobbs, Bob Long, John Dale Curtis, Vestel Duncan, F. W. Graham, Robert Box and C. L. Gayle ----- How about you, have you plowed, shredded and destroyed the very cover your land needs?

1970 Grain Sorghum Program

USDA announced the 1970 feed grain program this week. According to the Grain Sorghum Producers Association, there are two changes for 1970 which will hurt the farmers in the High Plains area. They are:
(1) There will be no advance payments. Farmers have been able to get 50% of the diversion payment in advance by signing up in the feed grain program.
(2) The diversion payment will be cut from 45% of the total county price support payment, as in 1969, to 40% in 1970. This is about 10 cents per hundred times the farms projected yield of 5,000 pounds per acre, the cut is $5.00 per acre.

The loan and price support level will remain the same as in 1969.

All 1967-68 grain sorghum in the commercial resale program will be called in on June 30, however, the 1969 crop of grain sorghum placed under government loan may be placed under resale on June 30. The resale program is where farmers retain ownership past the normal take-over date by the government

GRAIN SORGHUM

The Grain Sorghum Producers Association asked President Nixon and the Budget Bureau this week to reconsider their stand on not making advance payments to farmers, who comply with the 1970 Feed Grain Program. It has been the practice in the past for farmers to receive one-half of their diversion payment at the time they signed up in the program.

In his letter to the President Harp said, "The discontinuance of these payments and the tight money situation will prevent many of our banks from financing farmers for this crop year. This will force many of our farmers out of business."

Harp asked the President and the Budget Bureau, "to reconsider this issue, that is so important to many of our grain farmers, and afterwards to continue the advance payments for the 1970 Feed Grain Program."

When you're not like yourself, Lydia Pinkham understands

All of a sudden you might feel you're changing—not a good feeling. You're tired, edgy, out of sorts and that's not you. Lydia Pinkham understands.

A long time ago, when ladies couldn't be as frank as we can today, Lydia Pinkham recognized the problem and set about finding a remedy. She knew it was not natural for women to have to suffer with what was obviously a natural process.

So she turned to nature for a remedy. She developed a marvelous compound of medicinal roots and herbs that turned the trick for the women she knew. Because it is a natural answer to your natural problems, it can turn the trick for you, too.

Try Lydia Pinkham's root and herb remedy to help you feel better, more like yourself.
