Conservation Compliance Deadline Is Approaching Says SCS Office

The Conservation Compliance Provisions of the Food Security Act of 1985 and the Food, Agriculture, and Trade Act of 1990 require that farmers who are producing a commodity crop on highly erodible land, be "activity applying" their conservation plans in order to remain eligible for USDA program benefits. Furthermore, these regulations also require that the plans be fully implemented by Dec. 31,

In addition to vegetative practices, some plans developed under this legislation also require erosion control structures. These plans require construction and maintenance of terraces and terrace blocks, basins, and waterways to aid in erosion control. Fully implemented in these situations, will include completing construction and maintenance of all new and existing structures in accordance with SCS technical guides.

SCS personnel perform annual spot checks at random, to determine whether producers are "actively applying" their plan. As a result of the spot check, the status of the producer is must remember that in order to satisfy reported to the ASCS for appropriate the requirements of their conservation action, if required.

Mario Avila, SCS District Conported that the 1992 spot checks are 1 of the following year." currently being conducted. He stated checked, would be notified of their selection, just prior to SCS making their field visit."

points. "With the recent crop damage suffered in Yoakum County, many farmers will probably not replant cotton due to the late date. Many producers are considering planting black-eyed peas, soybeans, or grain sorghum, with the intent of having a cash crop while also satisfying the requirements of their conservation plan.

Avila stated, that "black-eyed peas and soybeans are not considered a high residue crop and would therefore, not satisfy the requirements of the conservation plan."

"While grain sorghum is considered a high residue crop, producers cap.

He also stated, that "producers that, "the producer selected to be spot should ensure that their high residue plantings are documented in their plans, at the SCS office." This will help establish an audit trail and save Avila also made the following time and confusion in the long run.

Finally, Avila pointed out, that while 1994 seems a long ways off, it actually isn't that far off. "Remember that there are only two crop years left between now and Dec. 31, 1994."

Recent Survey Shows Education Reforms Not Working, Says ATPE Bulletin

Many of the education reforms passed by the Texas Legislature in 1984 have not worked, according to a recent survey of public school educa-

The random survey of 1,638 members of the Association of Texas Professional Educators shows that 81 percent of those surveyed say state mandated teacher evaluations consume too much administrative time; and more than half say the suspension period under the no-pass, no-play rule should be reduced from six to three

"No-pass, no-play was designed to make students work harder and maintain passing grades, but instead, students are opting for less-demanding courses," said Beverly Sinkey, ATPE state president.

The mandated 22:1 teacher/pupil ratio for kindergarten through grade four received the most favorable response of all the 1984 reforms. Twice as many teachers said the ratio in their classroom had improved, compared to those who said conditions had worsened.

Three-fourths of those surveyed say school violence is on the increase in their district. "This is the most alarming response in the survey," said Sinkey. "Incidents of violence against students and teachers are becoming much too common. Learning cannot take place in an atmosphere of fear."

Sixty-four percent favor yearround schooling if they are compensated accordingly; and only 28 percent favor consolidation as a solution to the school finance issue.

The survey was conducted for the association by M. Lee Williams of Southwest Texas State University.

Scale Insects Attacking Area Live Oak Trees

A small insect, Lecanium scales, can pose a big threat to live oaks and other area trees, but timely inspection and pesticide application can help protect valuable trees, says Yoakum County Extension Agent, Terry J. Millican.

Lecanium scales are most prominent on twigs and small branches during the spring and early summer. A single infested twig may have more than 100 scales on it, although fewer scales are more commonly present.

These scales are hemispherical in shape and dark brown. They are about one-eighth to one-fourth inch in diam-

Lecanium scales damage trees by reducing vitality and causing dieback of infested branches. While they are most damaging to live oaks, they also occur on red oaks, maples, honey locust and crab apples, the county agent Daniel Romero, will be honored with a Scale insects are most susceptible to control soon after hatching, Millican said. Therefore, insecticide treatments to control Lecanium scales will be most effective if applied now. Heavily infested trees will require two applications two weeks apart.

Insecticides recommended for control include orthene, dursban, sevin, malathion and diazinon. Thorough coverage will improve the effectiveness of sprays. Always read and follow insecticide label instructions carefully, the county agent cautioned.

WATER PUMPS AND ELECTRIC BILLS

If the pump on your water system starts every time a faucet is opened and stops soon after it is closed, the pressure tank is probably too full of water. This is the result of what is called a waterlogged condition. And it can cause your electric bill to be higher than necessary.

To function correctly, a pressure tank must have a cushion of air above the water. As the water is pumped into the tank, the air is compressed. And as water is withdrawn, the air expands. The larger the air cushion, the more water the tank can deliver between any given extremes of pressure.

The size of the air cushion does not remain constant. Water absorbs the air, and eventually the air cushion becomes so small that even drawing a small amount of water causes the pump motor to start and stop.

Hanufacturers have devised various methods to solve the problem. One method calls for an air valve that is controlled by a float, either inside or outside the pressure tank. When the water level in the tank rises too high, the float opens an air valve and permits the pump to "sniff" the air which is carried into the tank with the water. Should the valve core begin leaking, it should be replaced with another valve core. It should never be replaced with an automobile tire core. The springs in a tire core are too strong to permit the pump to suck air through the water. A new pump valve core may be obtained at stores that handle pumps and pump supplies.

The frequent starting and stopping of a waterlogged pump causes undue wear on the pump motor and other pump parts. Allowing a pump to continue operating in a waterlogged condition means unnecessary trouble, inconvenience, maintenance expense - and a higher electric bill.

Two-Cylinder Club To Host EXPO III

Two-Cylinder Worldwide has announced that over 600 displays of John Deere tractors and implements, will be exhibited at EXPO III July 9-11 at the Waterloo, Iowa airport. Over 20 acres of exhibits, with adjacent parking, will be open to the general public Friday and Saturday, July 10 and 11 from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday, July 9 is reserved for Two-Cylinder members and the media. EXPO I and II were held in 1987 and 1990.
