Young Farmer Of The Year Award Presented To Tracy Welch

The Yoakum County Farm Tour held Sept. 22 proved to be the largest in a number of years with 120 Yoakum County citizens attending.

The tour began at 8:30 a.m. in Stanford Park with Gary Walker, Sandy Land Underground Water Conservation District manager, providing information on water quality and pump efficiency. Mario Avila explained the State of the Art Surveying Equipment, the Soil Conservation Service uses and the SCS viewpoint on conservation compliance. Tracy Welch offered information on Row Till practices in cotton, while Don Parrish explained other cotton production practices. Bruce Lester explained the positive and negative aspects of growing Hybrid Forage Sorghum and contract requirements.

Growing cotton organically was the final topic the tour addressed. Jett Wilmeth explained the positive and negative aspects of growing organic crops. Marketing, certification, fertilizers, yields, costs and contract prices were topics of discussion.

The tour concluded at 11:20 and those attending the tour visited AG related booths that were set up in the park for public information. Several types of farm equipment were also available for viewing.

As in the past, one highlight of the farm tour was the presentation of the Farmer and Young Farmer of the Year Awards. Yoakum County Judge, Dallas Brewer presented Jerry Everitt of Denver City with the Farmer of the Year Award. The award is fairly new and goes to a Yoakum County farmer who has excelled in all areas of agriculture production. Tracy Welch was awarded the Yoakum County Young Farmer Award by Brad Crump, Young Farmer president. The Young Farmer Award is presented to a member of the Young Farmers organization who has excelled in agriculture production and community involvement.

The day's activities ended with a Jackpot Trap Shoot sponsored by Yoakum County Young Farmers.

"The Texas Agriculture Extension Service and Soil and Water Conservation Districts of Yoakum County would like to recognize everyone who assisted with the Farm Tour," stated Terry Millican, Yoakum County Extension Agent - AG. "Those offering assistance were Yoakum County Young Farmers, Yoakum County ASCS, Plains State Bank, Brownfield State Bank, Plains I.S.D., Yoakum County State Bank, Sandy Land Underground Water Conservation District, Gary Walker, Mike Cobb, Rex Swann, Dallas Brewer, Bruce Lester, Tracy Welch, Don Parrish, Jett Wilmeth and Gary Six. You made it a huge success."

National Center For Policy Analysis Says 'Clinton Plan Not Feasible'

The economic plan proposed by Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton would slow an already sputtering national economy, cause the loss of 747,000 jobs over the next four years and increase the federal deficit by $113 billion, according to a study by the National Center for Policy Analysis.

The Dallas-based "think tank", the only private organization that forecasts the economic impact of every major tax bill, has frequently criticized Bush administration economic policies. But the study said the tax package proposed by the president last spring was "considerably better for the economy than the Clinton proposal because the Clinton plan would discourage private sector investment."

"The Clinton plan bears an eerie resemblance to the 1990 budget package - the one in which President Bush broke his promises not to raise taxes," said Aldona Robbins, a former U.S. Treasury economist who co-authored the study. "Like the 1990 budget deal, the Clinton plan promises more government spending, higher taxes on the rich and deficit reduction that will probably never take place," she said.

The federal government's current economic policies are the result of an agreement between Bush and the Democratic leadership in Congress - an agreement that Bush now says was a mistake. Many, including Robbins, argue that the budget agreement has slowed economic growth and prolonged the current recession. Although Clinton has criticized the Bush administration, he has been careful not to criticize congressional Democrats who were part of the agreement.

"The most surprising thing about Clinton's economic plan is that it is almost a carbon copy of the policies he has been criticizing," said Robbins. "Clinton is criticizing the status quo but promising more of the same."

According to the study, the Clinton plan promises a net increase of $132.5 billion in taxes, including higher tax rates for upper-income families. Higher tax revenues combined with reductions in defense spending are supposed to fund almost $200 billion in new spending on "infrastructure" and other domestic spending programs.

Although the Clinton plan contains some private sector incentives, including a lower capital gains tax rate, Robbins says that "these incentives are more than offset by the higher tax rates Clinton would impose on investment income."

According to the NCPA forecast, Clinton's economic plan would produce the following results: 1) Private sector investment in the U.S. economy would be $413 billion lower than under present policies, leading to 747,000 fewer jobs by 1996 and more than one million fewer by the year 2000; 2) The nation's output of goods and services would be $173 billion lower than it otherwise would have been by 1996 and $584 billion lower by the end of the decade; and 3) The economy would generate less tax revenue, increasing the federal deficit by $113 billion over the next four years.

The NCPA also compared the Clinton plan to a "pro-growth" plan proposed in the spring by Bush and modified by the Republicans in the House of Representatives. According to the study: 1) The Bush plan would lead to the creation of 369,000 new jobs by 1996 and 604,000 by the end of the decade; 2) The additional employment and investment under the Bush plan would increase domestic output by $226 billion through 1996 and by $871 billion by the end of the decade; and 3) The difference in the Bush plan and the Clinton plan between now and the year 2000 is worth about $5,820 to every man, woman and child in the country.

The NCPA forecast did not include the negative effects of Clinton's proposals to require employers to provide health insurance or to mandate employee training because not enough details were available. "Including these proposals could double the expected number of lost jobs," said Robbins.

The National Center for Policy Analysis is a non-profit, non-partisan public policy research institute.

COMPUTER SEMINAR
NOVEMBER 7, 1992

IN THE
PLAINS SCHOOL CAFETERIA
11 A.M. TO 2 P.M.

"Being from Plains I know that there are not a lot of resources when it comes to computers. I have received calls from the Yoakum County area and have been asked if we could offer a seminar in the smaller towns. A lot of people are intimidated by the computer, when in actuality they are much easier to use than pencil and paper. If you have children in school, you are well aware that computers are a must in all levels of schools, (elementary, intermediate, high school and college) as well as a mandatory requirement in most of today's work forces.

Computer Systems Distributors, Inc. (CSDI) is happy to announce that we will be holding seminars in Plains, TX. Offering:

DOS	11:00 A.M. TO 12:00 P.M.
ENTRY LEVEL COMPUTER	12:00 P.M. TO 1:00 P.M.
BASIC HARDWARE NEEDS	1:00 P.M. TO 2:00 P.M.

"We will have various computer sizes, speeds, and portables for you to work on. This free seminar will be on the 7th of November at the Plains School Cafeteria from 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. and if the response is great enough we can arrange to come back.

"If you are interested please call us at 1-806-793-2447 and ask for Terri (Dunn) Arthur for more information.

"CSDI offers competitive pricing on computer systems ranging from $795.00 and up. CSDI custom builds and designs each system to the customers' specifications. We offer software that can help the agribusinessman and retail businesses keep up with the daily accounting and or word processing. Students will have knowledge at their finger tips with the educational programs that we have on CD - ROM.

"We look forward to hearing from you. You need to register for the seminar by November 2, 1992 so that we can know how many computers to bring. The number again is 1-806-793-2447."

PRESIDENT

Have you ever met the President in real life? Well if you haven't, you don't know what you're missing!!

It was Wednesday, Sept. 2, 1992, and I had just dressed and eaten breakfast. Then I got my books and left the house. I got to school and went to my class and started on my math test. Then Mrs. Smith came and told us that Elementary, Junior High, and High School Gifted and Talented Classes were going to see the President at 9:00 a.m. I looked at the clock and it was 8:59. I looked at the clock again and it was 9:00.

Dustin, Lesli, and I went to the office to Mrs. Smith. Then we went to get in the van and we left to go to Shallowater.

When we arrived at the cotton gin, an officer had to look in the van to make sure that we didn't have any weapons to hurt the President. After we ate a lunch of sandwiches, we waited for an hour to see the President's jet plane come through Shallowater. We waited and waited and waited.

Finally, the plane arrived at REESE AIR FORCE BASE. Then President Bush started to speak. He talked for twenty minutes. Then we went to the van to start up the air conditioner and let it blow out the hot air. Then we left to go home. That was what happened seeing the President.

SEEING THE PRESIDENT

On September 2, 1992, the Gifted and Talented Class went to Shallowater, Texas to see the President. It took a long time for him to get there. While we waited for him they played music. When the President arrived, he gave a speech. There were at least 1,000 people there. After his speech, we left and went back to Plains. Our parents picked us up.

TRIP TO SEE BUSH

On Sept. 2, 1992, I went to see the President. At Shallowater, Texas with my Gifted and Talented Class and Mrs. Smith. We went in a white van with a blue circle on the side of both doors. When we were near Shallowater, we stopped at a store and went to the restroom. Then we went to the van and we opened the door and went inside the van. Elizabeth and I were sitting in the very back.

When we got to Shallowater, we got out of the van and went to the Junior High van and got one sandwich and a bag of chips with a coke. We went to the dumpsters and threw our food away. Then we walked through a big board. Then we found a place to sit. They played music so we could listen to it. Then we waited for the President to arrive. When the President arrived everybody was screaming.

Next he gave a speech about the land fills. Then he left on a jet. Then we left to go back to Plains.

AN EXCITING FIELD TRIP

On Wednesday, Sept. 2, 1992 all of the Gifted and Talented classes in Plains School District went to Shallowater, Texas to see President George Bush give his speech. Hearing him talk was a once in a life time chance. Very few children, or adults for that matter, get to go hear a speech from someone who is going to be in the history books from now until the world is over. I am especially glad that I got to go because I had only seen George Bush on television before. I thought it was very nice of Mr. Simmons to let us take such a great field trip. Seeing President Bush made me really hyper. I am the only one in my family that has ever seen him live. When I watched the news that night I felt special just because I was there that day. I remember feeling a little bit overjoyed when I finally saw him. He is nice and has things organized and in good control. I was just so happy to be there.

OUR TRIP TO SHALLOWATER BY KELTON MASON

When the Gifted and Talented Class went to see the President, it was hot, but cool in the van. We left at 9 a.m. and got there at 11:30 a.m. After we got there we had to go through a metal detector. After a two-hour wait in the hot sun at the Co-op Gin in Shallowater, the President arrived. Everybody yelled as hard as they could. As his speech matured, something excited the crowd. What excited the crowd was when the President said that he was going to cut the taxes across the board.

He also excited the crowd by saying, "I plan to give 75,000 dollars to farmers."

A few more things excited the crowd. After his one hour speech, he shook a few hands, including Marcey House of 6th grade, and Kristen Gray of 5th grade.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

From Anne

When our Gifted and Talented class went to see the President at Shallowater Gin, 9:00 A.M. The drive up there was two hours, with one stop on the way. We arrived at the gin at 11:30 a.m. Then we had to wait three hours until the President arrived. The he spoke for twenty minutes.

He said, "My opponent, Bill Clinton, said he was going to raise taxes 1 billion dollars, but I want to cut the taxes across the board. I know I made the mistake once, but, I'm not going to make it again!"

After he was through speaking, he left, and so did everyone else. We arrived back to Plains at 4:45 p.m. That experience will always be remembered by each one that went.

'92 Christmas Seals Campaign Underway

A lot has changed about Christmas since 1904. Christmas trees are as apt to come from a factory as a forest; nutcrackers have given way to Nintendo games in children's stockings. One thing that hasn't changed is Christmas Seals.

The colorful seals can still be found on millions of cards and packages each year. And they're still the country's leading source of funds for fighting lung disease.

The American Lung Association has just mailed the 1992 Christmas Seals to some 35 million homes in the U.S., including 600,000 homes here in Texas.

If you don't receive your Christmas Seals in the mail by the end of October, call the ALA of Texas at 1-800-252-LUNG.

Filmtime

Charles Diamond and Brenda Wauson of Plains Volunteer Fire Department entertained Filmtime youngsters Wednesday at the Plains Library. Showing off the firetruck and giving tips on fire safety, the two found an interested audience.

Jordan Chambliss and Blake Parrish's fifth birthdays were celebrated. Film of the day was "The Remarkable, Riderless, Runaway Tricycle".

Sharing birthday cookies and punch were Alisha Wauson, Lucas Brink, Chris Loya, Jacob Brink, Matthew Jimenez, Allison and Amber Friesen, Justin Perry, Todd Williams, Callie Howell, Holden Welch, Michael and Ryan Crump, Seth Cypert, Britnie Duran, Lauren Davis and Kimberly Jackson.

Children Need Good Eating Habits

Children learn which foods to eat, how much, and when to eat as they interact with people. Therefore, family members have a great influence on the development of eating habits.

According to Joan Chandler, Yoakum County Extension Agent-HE, researchers have found that parents and children often have similar tastes. The simplest explanation is that the same foods are available for all family members to eat. Parents serve as models, teachers, mediators, providers, stage managers and directors.

Children may copy what they see their parents eating. Parents, therefore are models. A mother who drinks diet soft drinks all day is sending an unspoken message to her child. A father who says "I don't like vegetables - don't give me any," is likewise a model. Siblings who misbehave at the table also give messages about suitable mealtime behavior.

Television also plays an important role in children's food habits. Ninety-eight percent of American homes have at least one television set. On the average, pre-school children watch more than 25 hours of television a week. This limits chances for physical activity and interaction with others. Also TV watching can affect the food choices a child makes.

Parents have the primary responsibility for teaching their young children about a good diet. Talking with children about the kinds of food needed for good health can help them make better food choices. Parents can have these discussions while grocery shopping, watching television or at the dinner table. Also, help children to develop an interest by allowing them to assist when preparing food.

Parents can also lessen the impact of advertising by helping children to understand what they see. They should point out the difference between commercials and TV shows, explain that advertising sells foods by making them sound appealing, and talk about the nutritional merits of advertised foods.

Making mealtime pleasant can also help to set the stage for developing good food habits in children. This will influence what foods children accept and how much they enjoy eating. Make meals a time for relaxed family interaction. Limit distractions to let your child focus on eating. Include your child in mealtime conversation and praise good behavior at the table. Remember, your child learns by watching how you eat and behave at the table.

Parents also are responsible for directing the child-feeding activity. Children's eating habits are best when parents recognize and respond in suitable ways to their needs. You'll need to be aware of feeding cues coming from your child. Children shouldn't be forced to clean their plates if they're full. Neither should a hungry child be forced to wait until mealtime to eat. A light snack such as a cracker or an apple slice can carry them over until mealtime without ruining their appetite.

As children try new behaviors or make mistakes, give positive feedback. Be consistent - not rigid one time and indifferent the next. Mixed messages can be confusing to a child. Be sensitive to your child's development readiness and set some mealtime standards that will help your child develop lifelong positive eating habits.
