Settlement Proposed in Long-Running Lawsuit

AGREEMENT OUTLINE

Constitutional Amendment
No standard of equity, adequacy or efficiency (the equity standard established in three Edgewood lawsuits prevails)

Limited recapture: 2.75%

No change in the manner of setting local tax rates, including rollback elections

No change in ASF use, but per capita distribution goes to school districts rather than counties

Keep facilities bonds as in SJR 1 or at an increased amount (desirable, but not a prerequisite for settlement)

Authorize legislature to set a minimum level of school support (to preclude claims that the LFA is a state tax)

Public Education's Share of the State Budget

Public education next biennium gets the greater of $13.965 billion or the same percent of state general revenue-related funds that public education is getting in 1992-93.

Funding Elements and Distri-

Re-enact Chapter 16, with the following exceptions:

Keep SB 1 (Fair Share Plan) changes eliminating CEDs, distributing CED funds and delinquent taxes, and restoring CED taxing authority to school districts, and modify SB 1 language at "(a)" of Sec. 16.257—Excessive Administrative Costs as follows: "The commissioner of education, with the assistance of the comptroller of public accounts, shall adopt guidelines for reasonable costs for the administration of foundation school programs by school districts."

Provide temporary funding elements and adjustments for two years, at 1992-93 levels, to expire September 1, 1995. (The revenue limit, Sec. 16.009, would continue to be calculated on current 1994-95 funding elements.)

Beginning September 1, 1995, current law funding elements (e.g., the $2,800 basic allotment, the $28 guaranteed yield and the $1.00 local fund assignment, etc.) would be in effect.

All funds set aside under this agreement for distribution by the state to public school districts in each of the school years 1993-94 and 1994-95 shall be distributed so that a district can generate, at the same tax effort that would have been required under law in effect for school year 1992-1993, the combined amount of state and local tax revenue required for the payment of interest and principal on debt, and so that each district other than a recapture district can generate, with the same additional tax effort, the same combined amount of state and local tax revenue per weighted student that the district received in school year 1992-1993 in excess of the amount required for the payment of interest and principal on debt, and so that below average wealth school districts receive guar, anteed yield funds for the additional tax effort under (2), above, on a sliding scale where the poorest district gets guaranteed yield funds for up to five cents and districts at or above state average wealth get no guaranteed yield funds for additional tax effort.

Subject only to the constitutional limit on recapture, in each of the school years 1993-94 and 1994-95 the effective recapture rate shall be equal to the sum of the 82-cent local fund assignment and the average additional tax effort required in non-recapture districts to generate the same combined amount of state and local tax revenue per weighted student that the district received in school year 1992-93 in excess of the amount required for the payment of interest and principal on debt.

Tax effort required for the payment of interest and principal on new debt is not included in the $1.50 tax rate limit.

Eliminate proration, without sacrificing current law equity, by providing for wealth-equalized distribution of whatever amounts of state aid and recaptured funds are available, with the maximum amount of each district's state aid fixed before the district's budget is adopted, subject to adjustments for overor under-payment in the following year. This provision would supersede any other statutory provisions which determine the amount and distribution of state aid allotments.

Waivers, Exemptions and Cost Containment (Effective for the 1993-94 and 1994-95 School Years Only)

Since state aid per student for the next two years will be less than in the current year, permit school districts to apply for relief from state-imposed mandates whenever compliance with such mandates would require a local ad valorem tax increase. Give the Commissioner the authority to veto any such waiver when the cost savings to the district exceed the anticipated tax increase.

Waivers shall not be granted under this exemption for provisions of law or regulation in the special program areas of compensatory education, bilingual education, special education, vocational education, and education of the gifted. The cumulative effect of the waiver provisions shall not be used as a mechanism to reduce taxes.

Settlement and Enforcement Agreements

Settlement agreement will incorporate proposed statutory and constitutional language.

Settlement of the Edgewood lawsuit is conditioned on sign-off by Edgewood ISD Plaintiffs, Alvarado ISD Plaintiff-Intervenors, and Equity Center. Any changes made in the regular session that are not agreed to by these parties will nullify the settlement.

Other technical elements of the settlement agreement will be worked out by attorneys for the parties in Edgewood, including the state.

Learn From Food Labels

As Americans become more and more health conscious, we have become more interested in reading the product labels on the foods we eat.

"The U.S. Food and Drug Administration regulates the laws related to food labels," says Joan Chandler, Yoakum County Extension Agent-HomeEconomics. All food labels must list ingredients in descending order of content. Thus, the first ingredient listed is the ingredient which is contained in the product in the greatest quantity.

The FDA requires that food making any nutrition claim must have certain nutrition information on the label. Many manufacturers provide this information voluntarily on other prod-

Become alert to the fat, sugar and sodium content of the products you

It is important to avoid foods high in saturated fats. This includes butter, hydrogenated shortening, sour cream, sweet cream, whole milk and whole milk cheese, as well as meat and poultry products. The only highly saturated vegetable products are the tropical oils such as palm, palm kernel and coconut Sugars appear on labels in many forms. Watch for the word sugar, but also be on the lookout for words such as honey, molasses, syrup, dextrin, dextrose, fructose, galactose, glucose, lactose, maltose and sucrose.

There are other ingredients than salt that contain high amounts of sodium. Some of these are baking soda, baking powder, self-rising flours and seasoned salt flavorings. Also look for words containing the word sodium such as disodium, mono-sodium or trisodium.

By being a label reader, you can make healthy choices for you and your family. For more information on nutrition for all family members call the Yoakum County Extension Office at

What's In A Serving?

One of the most effective ways of controlling how much we eat is to control serving sizes according to Joan Chandler, Yoakum County Extension Agent-Home Economics. Many children in America have been encouraged to eat large amounts of food or to "clean their plates".

Parents can help children develop skills that will allow them to verify correct portions. To do this, use actual foods and measuring devices to demonstrate portion sizes.

Try this activity using a variety of ready-to-eat cereals. Look at the nutritional information to determine the serving size for each type of cereal; then have your child measure a serving of each type into separate bowls. It becomes obvious that servings of different types of cereals are not equal.

A serving of unsweetened crispy rice cereal is one cup while a serving of granola is usually one-third cup.

For a better understanding of what counts as a serving, use these guide-

Vegetables - 1 cup raw leafy vegetables; 1/2 cup other kinds of vegeta-

Fruits - 1 medium piece of fruit; 1/2 cup fruit, fresh, cooked, canned; 3/4 cup fruit juice.

1/2 bun or bagel; 1 ounce dry cereal; 1/2 cup cooked cereal, rice or pasta.

Milk, Yogurt and Cheese - 1 cup milk (8 ounces); 8 ounces yogurt; 1 1/2 ounces natural cheese; 2 ounces process cheese.

Meats - 2-3 ounces of cooked lean meat, fish or poultry; 2 eggs, 1 c cooked dry beans and peas; 4 tablespoons of peanut butter.

Most children and teenage girls 456-2263.

Bread and Cereals - 1 slice bread; should eat nine servings from the bread group, 4 servings of vegetables, 3 fruit servings, 2-3 milk group servings and 2 meat servings - or a total of 6 ounces from the meat group. Teenage boys need two additional servings of bread, and one additional serving from the vegetable, fruit and meat groups each
