Reagan wins election with 49-state sweep

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan swept to runaway re-election over Walter Mondale Tuesday night, but Republicans struggled to translate his landslide into significant gains in Congress.

Mondale conceded defeat, telephoned his congratulations to Reagan and told cheering supporters in St. Paul, Minn., "He has won. We are all Americans; he is our president and we honor him tonight."

The GOP renewed its control of the Senate, even if by a reduced margin, and were gaining in the House. But Democrats successfully battled against the Reagan tide in district after district to protect their large majority.

The president's victory was convincing; he and Vice President George Bush came close to the 50-state sweep they sought. Mondale won the District of Columbia and claimed victory in his home state of Minnesota.

Reagan won 37 states with 381 electoral votes, led in 7 more with 89. In The Associated Press count, the electoral votes of South Dakota pushed his total past the 270 majority mark.

Mondale's running mate, Geraldine Ferraro, hailed Mondale in a concession from New York City, saying he won another battle — "That battle for equal opportunity ... he opened a door that will never be closed again" by naming her first woman on a national ticket.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, Reagan's campaign chairman, said, "We've got at least a reasonable chance to have the most historic landslide in all American history."

No matter what the margin, Mondale told his supporters, "I'm at peace with the knowledge that I gave it everything I've got."

"This fight didn't end tonight. It begins tonight," he said.

Mondale praised Ferraro and said, "We didn't win, but we made history and that fight has just begun."

The president got news of his victory in Los Angeles, where he and his wife watched the returns in a Century Plaza Hotel suite equipped with four television sets.

He told reporters he hoped to participate in a summit with the Soviet Union during a second term in office.

The president insisted all day he was superstitiously avoiding predictions but felt confident enough to outline his goals for a second term in an interview with The Washington Post. He said he would push again for congressional approval of a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution and the right to veto individual sections of spending bills, two measures he wants to help reduce federal spending.

The University Daily/Marla Erwin

He also renewed his call for a defense system in space designed to shoot down missiles.

With votes counted in 48 percent of the precincts, Reagan was polling 58 percent to 41 for Mondale.

Mondale entertained his campaign staff at a dinner in Minnesota, delivering what one aide called a "dignified but emotional" farewell speech. The aide, who declined to be identified by name, said Mondale made no direct reference to the likelihood of defeat, but told his guests, "I know that most of you did this because you believe in a better America."

Democrats counted one Senate gain, in Tennessee, where Rep. Albert Gore captured the seat vacated by retiring Republican leader Howard Baker.

But Reagan's coattails were evident in Kentucky, where Republican Mitch McConnell upset two-term incumbent Democratic Sen. Walter Huddleston.

GOP Sen. Jesse Helms led in a bitter race in North Carolina, another state where Reagan held a lopsided margin. ABC said Helms had won.

Reagan and Bush campaigned all fall as solid favorites.

ABC interviews showed Reagan was the favorite among Protestant and Catholic voters, while Mondale was favored by Jews. The Democrat also was ahead among unemployed voters and those earning less than $10,000 a year. The president was running ahead among voters of all other income brackets.

Mondale's running mate, Geraldine Ferraro, ended her historic candidacy, calling it "a credible campaign showing that women can run for national office."

"There is absolutely nothing not to be proud of," she said as the returns were counted. "No one should shed any tears."

Election officials across the country reported a heavy voter turnout in the first hours after polls opened Tuesday morning, with long lines at many balloting sites attributed to the presidential race, close local contests and fair weather throughout much of the nation. The presidential contest was the featured race in elections to choose the nation's 99th Congress, 13 governors, many state legislatures and countless local governments and referenda.

In the Senate, Democrats sought to narrow a 55-45 GOP majority, but Republicans were hoping for a Reagan landslide strong enough to prevent any inroads.

Republican incumbents Roger Jepsen in Iowa and Charles Percy of Illinois found themselves in close contests. Republicans bid to upset incumbents Max Baucus of Montana and James Exon of Nebraska. Gov. Jay Rockefeller sought to keep a West Virginia Senate seat safe for the Democrats, but Republicans eyed a surprise by millionaire John Raese.

In the House, where Democrats held a 266-167 edge, with two vacancies, it was the Republicans who were looking to gain ground. Party leaders conceded the GOP would not gain numerical control but looked for gains of 25 seats or so.

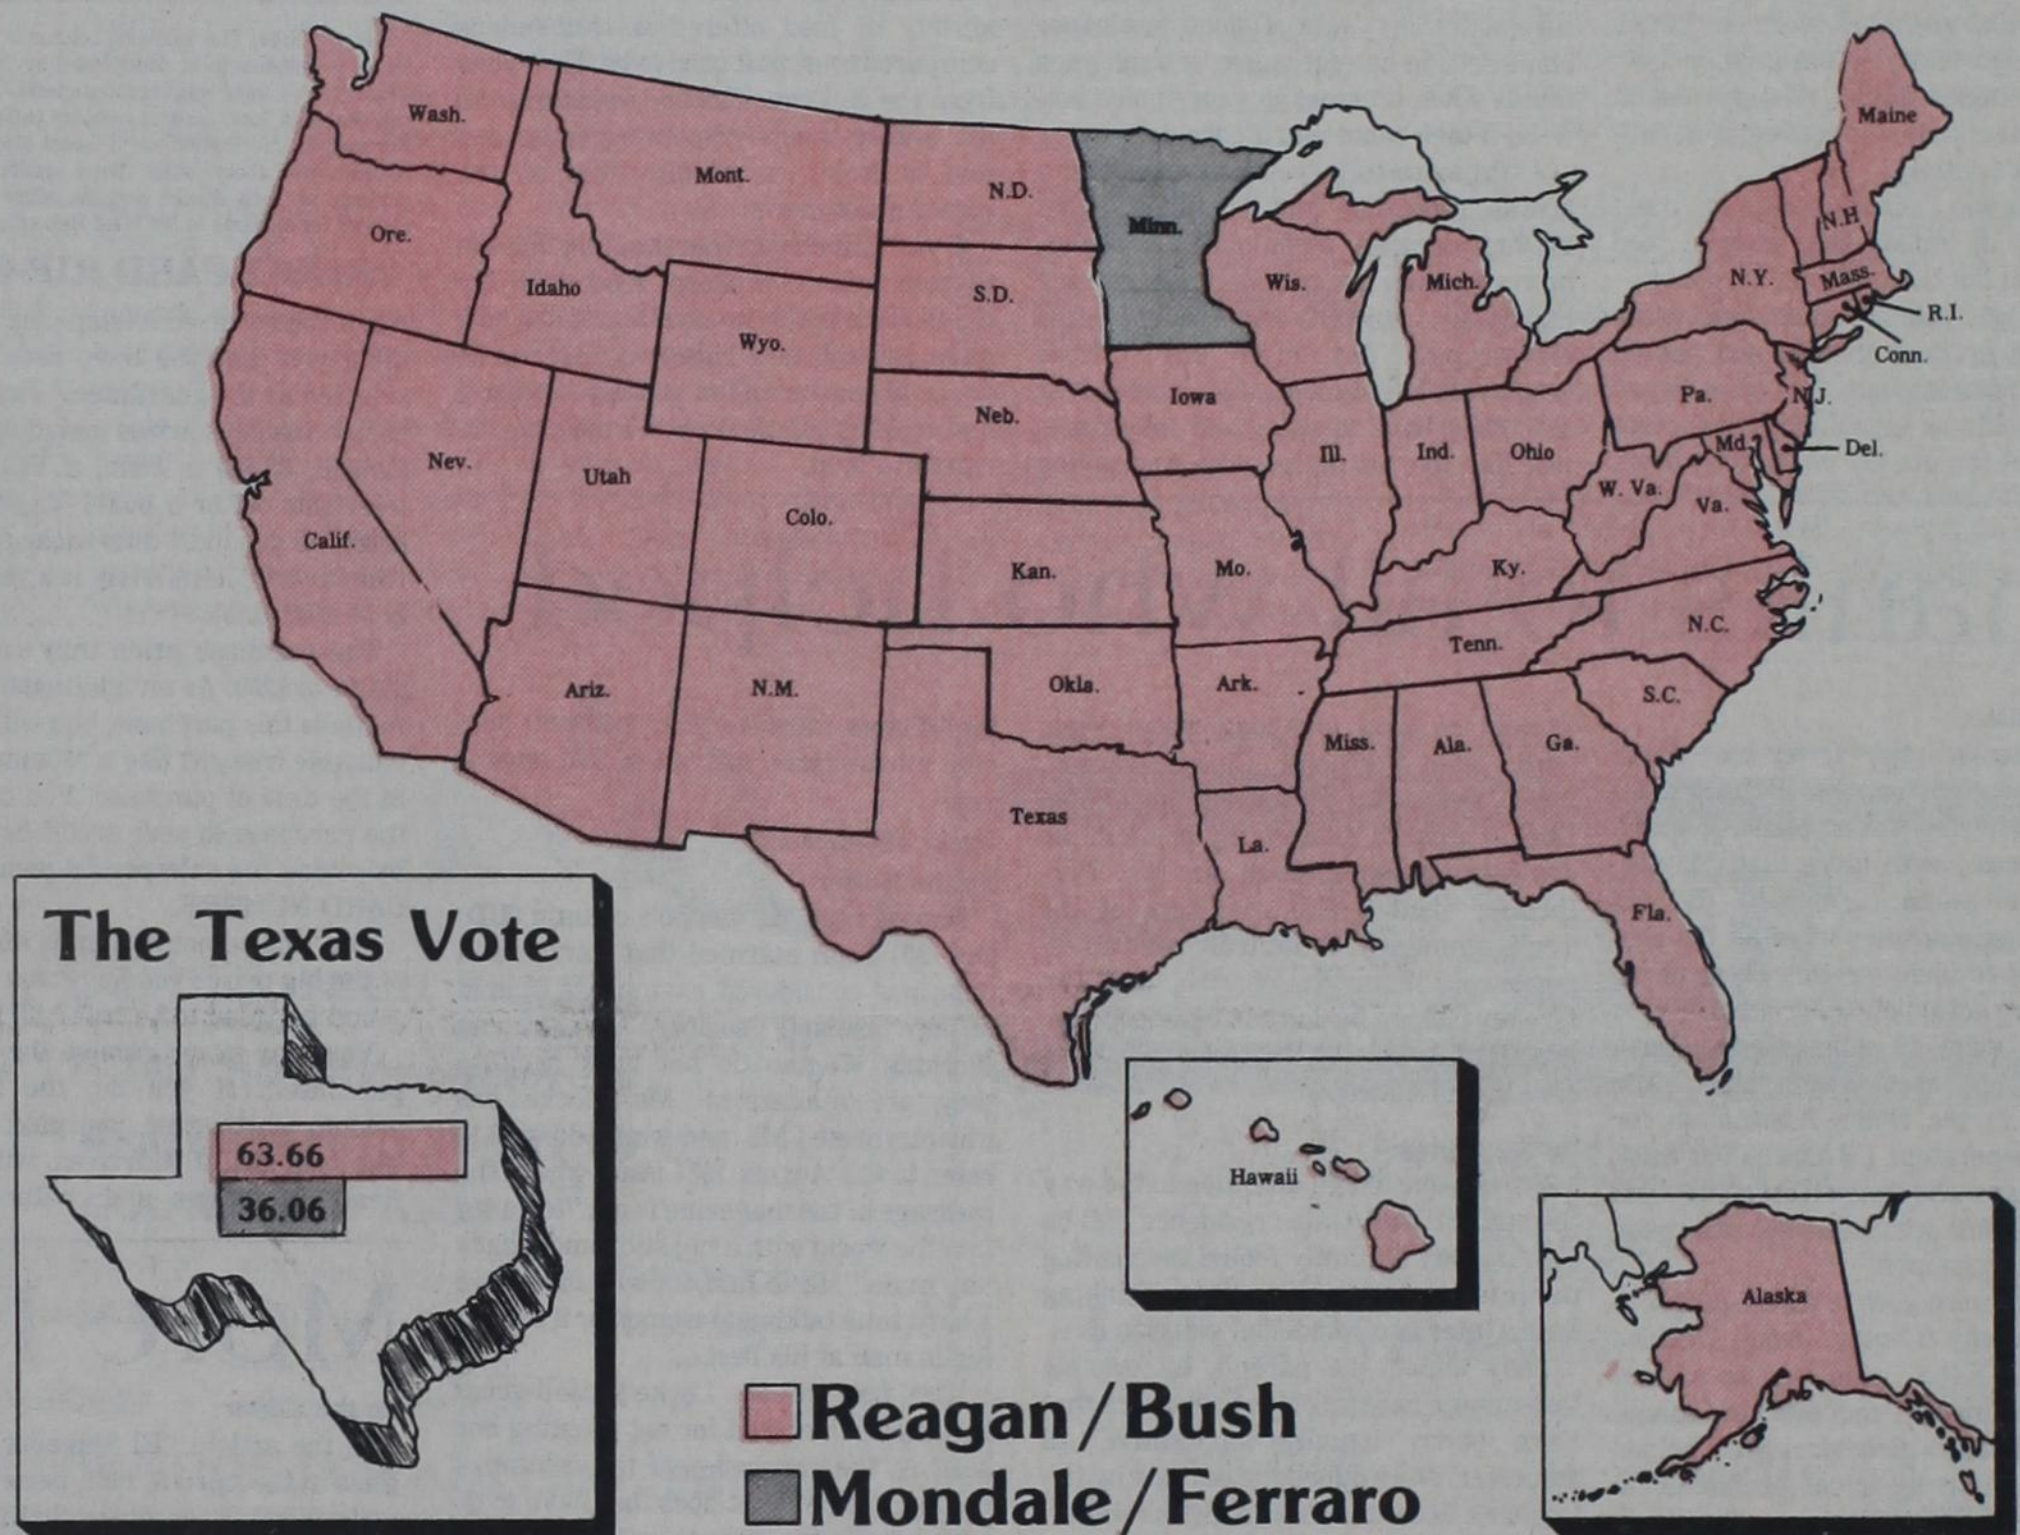

Combined with the support of conservative Democrats, that kind of GOP advance could give the president a "working majority" for his second-term legislation. Fifty-four House Democrats and 14

Republicans had no opposition. About 174 million American were eligible to vote. Many didn't, but experts predicted registration efforts by both parties could lead to an increased turnout for the first time in 20 years. If 55 percent of the nation's adults cast their ballots, it would mean 96 million votes.

The president and Nancy Reagan voted in tiny Solvang, Calif., near their mountain ranch.

Mondale was joined at his North Oaks voting place by his wife, Joan, and son, Theodore. Politics were not mentioned.

How the states voted for president

Combest defeats Richards Winner is first Republican ever elected to House from 19th Congressional District

By GREG VAUGHN
University Daily Staff Writer

Larry Combest took a larger than anticipated bite out of the rural county vote Tuesday to become the first Republican ever to be elected to the 19th District of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Although expected to fare well in the urban centers of the district, Combest was able to garner the majority of ballots in five of the 13 rural counties to defeat Democrat Don Richards for the House seat being vacated by former U.S. Senate candidate Kent Hance.

"People anticipated Richards would carry the rural vote, and that's not true," Combest said.

"I never believed that; I'm the one with the farm background, and I understand farming."

In addition to Ector and Lubbock counties, Combest won the vote in rural counties — Andrews, Hale, Hockley, Yoakum and Gaines. Richards captured Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb, Cochran, Terry and Dawson counties.

The former aide to outgoing U.S. Sen. John Tower overwhelmingly outdistanced Richards in Lubbock and Ector counties, with 41,408 or 60.2 percent of the votes inside the county, and Combest outdistanced his opponent by a 2-1 margin in Odessa. Richards received 27,348 or 39.7 percent of the Lubbock County vote.

"We knew we were going to lose Lubbock and Odessa, but not by this much," said Richards' campaign manager Connie Langston.

"We thought we would get more votes

The University Daily/Ron Robertson

in the rural districts, but I guess Larry's prediction turned out to be true," she said.

Combest had estimated Friday that he would capture at least 55 percent of the vote, partially assisted by some minor upsets in the less populated counties.

The total tally in the 15-county district gave about 57 percent of the votes to Combest compared to 43 percent for Richards.

Combest attributed his victory to hard work and the conservative mood of the country. He said he is "much more conservative" than Richards and described himself as someone who can go to Washington, D.C., and not knuckle under to the House majority leader, Democrat Tip O'Neill.

Richards said the rural vote made the big difference in the race, but the former legislative aide to Hance made no excuses for his defeat.

"The rural vote was really strong for us in the last two races, but it just did not provide a strong enough margin this time," Richards said. "Larry really was able to cut into the rural vote quite a bit, and it made a big difference."

"You can't complain though, when you have as many voters turn out as they did today."

"I have always advocated a strong voter turnout as much as anybody, and I guess the voters have spoken."

Combest also swept the vote on the Texas Tech campus. He captured 90.6 percent of the vote in Precinct 49 and more than 80 percent in Precinct 50.

"I campaigned heavily on the Tech campus," Combest said. "The students voted for me because they are very conservative; it is a very, very wonderful feeling to see the air of conservatism on the college campuses."

Combest also credited his successful campaign to Ronald Reagan's popularity and the conservative attitude among the fraternities and sororities on campus.

"This is it; we've won it," he said.

"Starting tomorrow, I will represent this district in 1985."

Due to absentee balloting, the final vote count will not be released until sometime today.

Gramm tops Doggett for U.S. Senate seat

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — Rep. Phil Gramm rode a wave of Republican votes to victory Tuesday in his bitter, expensive U.S. Senate race against Democrat Lloyd Doggett and said the tally showed he had "an overwhelming mandate."

With 79 percent of the state's precincts reporting, unofficial returns showed the conservative Gramm with 2,298,247 votes, or 59 percent, to the liberal Doggett's 1,612,890, or 41 percent.

"This is not a victory of an individual. This is not a victory of a party. It's a triumph of philosophy," Gramm told about 500 supporters in his hometown, College Station.

"To those who have worked in my campaign and to the 3 million who voted for me, I appreciate it and am honored by your confidence," the Democrat-turned-Republican said.

Doggett conceded to Gramm shortly after 10 p.m., saying "We can swim upstream, but it's a little hard taking on a tidal wave."

Just five minutes after the polls closed at 7 p.m., ABC projected Gramm as the winner in the race to replace Republican U.S. Sen. John Tower, who is retiring after 23 years. NBC and CBS also gave the nod to Gramm.

Gramm credited his support of President Reagan — a big winner in Texas — for helping his campaign and said that during the Reagan administration "things went well for the people of Texas."

"Our economy boomed ... and I think the overall feeling of the people of Texas was that the Reagan program was working," Gramm said. "Obviously I'm happy tonight that they decided to send me to the Senate."

And he offered an olive branch to Doggett after the often nasty campaign.

"To my opponent and those who voted for him, I am going to be their senator. (It is) time to put the long, hard, bitter campaign behind us. On Jan. 3, I will be Lloyd Doggett's senator and I intend to represent him," he said.

Gramm's supporters presented the jubilant candidate with a large snow shovel, symbolic of one of his favorite campaign pitches in which he asked voters for a "larger shovel" because of "all the digging I did in the House with a smaller shovel."

"I've been talking with Sen. Tower and the vice president in order to assure that Texas is effectively represented from the first day that I go to the U.S. Senate," Gramm said.

Gramm thanked the 72,000 people who contributed to his well-financed campaign and the 100,000 who he said had worked phone banks for their "confidence and support."

Republicans hoped to retain their only statewide elected office in Texas, and Democrats hoped to narrow the 10-seat advantage Republicans hold in the Senate.

Gramm, a former Texas A&M University economics professor from College Station, resigned his U.S. House seat as a Democrat last year. He ran on his record of supporting President Reagan's economic program as a congressman.

Doggett, a state senator from Austin, conceded that Gramm led in all pre-election polls. But he noted that in most polls he was running better than Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale and hoped for an upset by capitalizing on a large minority turnout and the state's long history as a Democratic stronghold.

The race was seen by experts as a litmus test for where Texas stands politically — if it retains some of its liberal Democratic heritage or has become a conservative Republican stronghold.

The experts also wanted to see whether the political weight lies in the northern half of the state, which helped elect Reagan in 1980, or the southern half, which carried Democrats back to the governor's office in 1982.

Together, Doggett and Gramm spent an estimated $13 million this year on the race for the seat first held by Sam Houston and later by Lyndon Johnson. Gramm outspent his Democratic opponent about 2 to 1.

It was Doggett's first statewide campaign; Gramm made an unsuccessful run at the U.S. Senate in the 1976 Democratic primary.

Doggett, 38, built a reputation as a consumer advocate and effective legislator in 11 years in the Texas Senate.

He entered the race 19 months ago with little name recognition but sneaked into a runoff election with Rep. Kent Hance, (D-Lubbock), by edging out the front-runner, former Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels.

'the ole cafeteria'

Dorm slop really isn't very bad

By KIRSTEN KLING University Daily Staff Writer

It's not so bad—really. For all you dorm dwellers, it's time you realized how good you really have it. I am, of course, referring to the infamous reputation of dorm vittles.

Year after year, semester after semester, day after day, countless numbers of residents moan and groan as they proceed through the food lines to choose their meals. It is but an hourly occurrence for cafeteria personnel to hear declarations of food dislike. Think about it. Is there a mealtime that goes by that you or someone else doesn't make some rank comment about the food? It's not too likely.

Well, the purpose of this column is to inform you dormies that you are, in fact, lucky to be eating the same food you complain about each day. It also seems important to point out some of your un-called-for behavior.

Millions of dollars are spent each year to ensure that each and every one of you has the opportunity to eat quality food. You eat Rainbo bread, Skippy peanut butter, real cheese and real eggs, in case you haven't noticed.

Your menu representatives meet regularly to make the proper food changes on the basis of your feedback.

Hundreds of your fellow students serve you, clean up your messes and put up with your lamentations. And what do you do? You continue to make flying accusations about the quality of the food when you really know absolutely nothing about the food selection process, the hard-laboring hours of dietitians, managers, supervisors and student assistants

Yes, this column is well overdue. Although there are many students who behave appropriately in cafeterias, it is way past the time for some of you to grow up and behave like adults instead of high school freshmen.

But what do you do to display your many grievances about eating dorm food and possibly living in the dorm altogether? Many of you walk through the serving line and emit such niceties as "this stuff is so gross," "too much butter," "it's fattening," "there's not enough to eat," "there's no selection," "ugh—leftovers," "we had this last week."

Many of you make a point of leaving a mess in the dining area—stuffing napkins in glasses, overturning glasses while they still are full, sabotaging salt and pepper shakers, smashing food on the table surfaces; all are evidence of your college maturity level. And for gosh sakes, isn't 18 years at least the age to quit mixing different foods together for a disgustingly colorful result?

Many of you harass student employees and treat them like low-life or scum of the earth. Sorry, but student employees can't decode hateful stares or read your minds when it comes to your choice between a taco salad and a corn dog.

At the same time, you may encounter a hostile employee and complain about his/her serving techniques. However, how would you like to stand there serving hundreds of students and hear the same ole crapola day after day? Those employees are students, too, believe it or not. They have to study and take finals just like the rest of us. Also, try saying

"please" and "thank you" to the person serving you. You would be amazed how much better you would be treated.

So why does every dorm resident complain about dorm food? I suppose it's the "in thing" to do. Dorm food certainly has not won any popularity contests and has a widespread reputation for being lousy, greasy, starchy and bland and old. But is it, really?

Sure, we all get sick of eating in the same place every day, eating at the same time every day and eating food cooked and served by the same people every day, but we would get just as tired of eating at our favorite restaurant seven days a week.

Remember those steak nights fondly, because your fellow students are suffering from smoke inhalation while cooking them. Remember eating those fish sticks, french fries, chicken fried steak and the like, because someone behind the scenes is collecting grease burns.

Remember those special pies, cakes, cobblers and brownies, because cooks spend all day making them.

Actually there are many advantages to eating in a dorm. Eating in the dorm is quite an effortless and enjoyable experience. All the meals are prepared for you and your dishes are washed. The variety of food offered is tremendous compared to what it used to be. Everyone from the diet conscious and vegetarian to the hearty meat-and-potato person can find at least one likable item on the menu, if not more.

If you still don't understand the advantageous aspects of dorm food, then try living off campus for awhile and see how often you eat, how balanced your meals are, and how much fun grocery shopping and cooking can be. Yep—I miss the ole cafeteria food.

Students need to beware credit-card rip-off artists

CREDIT-CARD RIP-OFF

Have you received a telephone call informing you that you have been specially selected as the guaranteed winner of one of five fabulous prizes including a trip to Hawaii, $2,500 in cash, a VCR, a color television set or a boat? To obtain your prize, all you must do is make a purchase (the favorite item lately is a year's supply of vitamins).

The purchase price may range from $39.50 to $250. As an additional incentive to make this purchase, you will be sent a valuable free gift like a "35mm camera" at the time of purchase. You can charge the purchase to your credit card merely by giving the salesperson your CREDIT CARD NUMBER.

You will be notified later about which of the big prizes you have won. Does this sound too good to be true? IT IS!

You may never receive the items you purchased. If you do, the items are seldom worth what you paid for them. The free gift, if it arrives, will be practically worthless and, naturally, your guaranteed big prize doesn't exist. You WILL have a charge on your bank card, and the bank-card company WILL NOT remove it.

Not only have you been ripped off for several hundred dollars, but that company now has the number of your credit card. Most credit card companies WILL NOT allow you to stop charges by individual companies. Your only recourse is to cancel that credit card and get a new card and number.

If you have been ripped off by a California-based company, file a complaint with:

Regional Chief Inspector U.S. Postal Service San Bruno, Calif. 94098-0100 ATTN: MOSC

Also, contact your credit card company to cancel your current card number, and ask for a new number, AT ONCE.

Rule to avoid rip-offs: NEVER GIVE YOUR CREDIT CARD NUMBER TO ANYONE OVER THE TELEPHONE.

Rule to avoid rip-offs in general: ANYTHING THAT SOUNDS TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE USUALLY IS.

New Texas Child Safety Laws

Effective Oct. 2, 1984, it is a crime to leave children under 7 years of age in a motor vehicle, unless a person at least 14 years of age or older remains in the car with the children. PUNISHMENT: Maximum fine of $200.

Effective Oct. 31, 1984, it is a crime to allow a child under the age of 4 years to ride unrestrained in a car or light truck.

If the child is under the age of 2, the child must be secured in a "child passenger safety seat." This "child passenger safety seat" is a child's car seat which is attached to the regular car seat. It can be purchased at many stores, including children's stores, catalog, discount and department stores.

If the child is 2 years old or older, but under the age of 4, the child must be restrained in either a "child passenger safety seat" or a regular car seatbelt. PUNISHMENT: A fine of $25 to $50.

SPECIAL NOTE: This statute has two special provisions:

(1) No one may be punished for violation of this law until after Jan. 1, 1985.

(2) After that date, if the violation is NO child passenger safety seat, the charge will be dismissed, if the person proves to the court that he or she has obtained a child passenger safety seat within 10 days of the violation.

Thanks to all who helped

To the Editor:

I'm writing this letter to thank everyone who participated in the first annual Family Day Talent Show. It was a great success, with more than 500 persons in attendance. Without the encouragement and support of all the people I want to mention, this event never would have gotten off the ground.

First I want to acknowledge Dean Allen for all his visionary ideas, and everyone in the Dad's Association for his/her cooperation. I'd also like to thank all the judges who donated their time and all the entrants who came out and made the program happen.

A special word goes to all the people in the University Center, from Darlene Whipple in S.O.S., who was so patient with my numerous requests, to Claudia Beach, theater director, who helped solve all those technical problems, to Food Service, to Gloria in the main office.

From the Student Association, Jim Noble and Peggy Sandlin always helped with the odd jobs. Spencer Hayes came forward to do a super job as master of ceremonies. Teresa Morris of W.S.O. was another person who was a godsend, as well as all of the Saddle Tramps.

From the UD, Lisa Morris endured my nervous energy and Nancy Wallis at KTKT channeled that energy into radio spots. Sports information staffers also helped with publicity, and although they mistakenly got left off the programs, the Texans were a backbone group that volunteered its time to the entire weekend.

The people on the committee who worked so hard and long were: Vicki Cook, Brad Northcutt, Cindy Swanson, Sonya Berg, Carlo Rosales and Nolan Dees. I want to express my pride in the students, parents (such as Mr. Northcutt), visitors and members of the Tech community. It has truly been an experience I'll always cherish, and I'm already looking forward to the second annual Family Day Talent Show.

Rosemarie Astwood

To the Editor:

I would like to call attention to the way the staff of Wall/Gates residence hall on Family Day blatantly fooled the visiting parents and families into thinking Wall/Gates is a wonderful place to live. They duped the parents by making last-minute repairs on the elevators that have been virtually inoperative all semester. They duped the parents by fixing holes in the plaster, giving the walls a nice coat of lemon oil and rolling out a cute little red carpet for mom and dad to wipe their feet on.

They duped the parents by having a meal that actually contained real meat and fresh fruit in the cafeteria.

These are just a few examples of the last-minute cosmetics the staff had done on Wall/Gates. Now, I'm not one to complain about having elevators that work, or an abnormally spic and span lobby. I think it is great, regardless of reason. But doesn't it seem strange that the only time the staff of the residence hall goes out of its way to get necessary repairs done is for the benefit of the people who foot the bills—dad and mom? Wouldn't it be nice if the residents of Wall/Gates received this optimum service all the time, instead of just once a year.

To the Editor:

Having read Ms. Locke's column (UD, Oct. 30) I am alarmed that Tarzan and Jane are considered exemplary figures to our "asexual" society. Also, Ms. and Working Woman do not bark because they are magazines. Ms. Locke has misinterpreted Ms. and would do well to refer to the August 1984 issue where the message of the magazine is not "to go out into the world with a big stick and whack any male" but to find out why men have a hard time talking to women or if fathering is man at his best.

Also, how can Ms. Locke second-guess the intention of God for not creating one sex? At the conclusion of the column, I did ask, "Now what does that have to do with boys in the girls room?"

Indian opposition seeks Sikh protection

By The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, India — A week after Indira Gandhi's assassination, opposition political and religious leaders told the new government the situation was "still serious" throughout much of India and urged firm action to protect Sikhs from marauding Hindus.

A Sikh leader said thousands of Sikhs had been killed.

Indian army troops kept peace in New Delhi and other major cities, where Hindu mobs had ransacked Sikh shops and homes in a four-day frenzy of killing and destruction. The violence broke out after Gandhi's assassination Wednesday by two men identified as Sikh members of her security staff.

The United News of India said two of the senior police officers responsible for Gandhi's security — G.R. Gupta, deputy commissioner of police, and D.C. Gulia, the assistant commissioner — had been suspended pending completion of an investigation into her killing.

Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, the 40-year-old elder son who succeeded his mother hours after her death, last Saturday dismissed Lt. Gov. P.G. Gavai, New Delhi's top administrative officer, who was criticized for allegedly lax police efforts to stop the bloodbath.

Gandhi issued a statement saying his mother's assassination was the act of "two misguided individuals" and not an action of the entire Sikh community.

He appealed to "all Parties and groups" to mark Thursday's anniversary of the birth of Guru Nanak, who founded the Sikh faith in the 16th century.

Gandhi on Tuesday told a delegation of 10 opposition party leaders the government was working to recover property looted during the riots and would make restitution to those who had suffered injury or loss.

Gandhi also said the government was considering a request to permit resettlement of people afraid to return to their old neighborhoods.

The United News of India, a private news agency, said the opposition delegation handed Gandhi a three-page memorandum urging him "to be firm in dealing with the situation which was still serious in many parts of the country, the capital and its environs in particular."

The opposition leaders accused members of Gandhi's Congress Party of joining in the riots and accused police of "total indifference" in controlling the violence.

They also complained of unsatisfactory conditions in relief camps established to house Sikhs who fled the carnage.

In Amritsar, the Sikh holy city in northern Punjab state, the chief priest of the Golden Temple said Sikhs had been slaughtered in the thousands and said the mobs were forcing Sikhs to choose between their country and their religion.

"We cannot sacrifice religion for our country," Sahib Singh told The Associated Press.

Reports in Indian news media say more than 1,000 people were killed in the rioting. Some Sikhs claim the figure is far greater.

NEWS BRIEFS

Secret police charged in murder

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish officials on Tuesday said three officers of the secret police had been charged with killing a pro-Solidarity priest. The government said the priest probably died of strangulation and that the accused men said he showed no sign of life when he was thrown into a reservoir.

State-run television carried a report that the three had confessed.

A well-informed source said he was told that the abducted Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko had been battered, gagged and tied but was apparently still alive when he was tossed into the water in northern Poland.

Col. Zbigniew Pudysz, director of the Interior Ministry's investigation office, said Popieluszko probably died of strangulation, the official news agency PAP reported. State television said Pudysz said the three secret-police officers had confessed to killing the 37-year-old priest after his abduction.

The Interior Ministry controls Poland's uniformed and secret police forces. The three secret-police officers charged with murdering Popieluszko all worked for the Interior Ministry. One colonel in the ministry also has been charged with assisting in the Roman Catholic priest's abduction and slaying, a second colonel faces possible internal disciplinary measures, and a general has been suspended.

Shuttle set for satellite rescue

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — As its five astronauts received last-minute flight updates, crews prepared space shuttle Discovery for a Wednesday morning liftoff on a mission to chase and capture two satellites that are whirling around Earth in worthless orbits.

Discovery was set to roar away from the Kennedy Space Center at 8:22 a.m. EST and predictions were for scattered clouds, "no chance of fog," and gentle winds.

During their eight days aloft, the astronauts will deliver two commercial satellites to space, then make daring space walks to snag the two errant satellites and lock them into the shuttle cargo bay for return to Earth.

It will be the first time that satellites have brought back for repair. The technique for tracking them down was developed last April when another crew swapped parts on the Solar Max satellite and released it back into orbit.

Six killed in South African riots; Transvaal boycotting apartheid

By The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — At least six blacks were killed Tuesday in clashes with police, raising to 16 the death toll in two days of protests that stemmed from a general strike in black townships near the capital.

Rioters set fires and threw stones, and police responded with tear gas, rubber bullets and blasts of birdshot, and sent hundreds of officers on armored car patrols in Tembisa, east of Johannesburg. Seven people have perished in Tembisa during the two-day strike.

Hundreds of thousands of black workers and students stayed home Monday in Transvaal province, South Africa's industrial center, in what organizers said was an unexpectedly successful demonstration of black discontent with the white government and its policies of racial separation. Employers said the boycott eased only slightly on Tuesday.

Police spokesman Lt. Thomas Jefferson said that in addition to the dead, at least 14 people were injured Tuesday and more than 40 arrested in the townships.

He said a black woman was killed in a stoning incident in Kwazakele, near Port Elizabeth, 450 miles south of Johannesburg; another was killed in Daveyton, east of Johannesburg; two black men were killed during crowd attacks on Tembisa, and two other black men were killed when police fired shotgun blasts at a crowd throwing stones at Katlehong, near Tembisa.

Jefferson could not confirm a South African Press Association report, quoting hospital sources, that a 17-year-old youth died of bullet wounds and nine people were wounded by gunfire in Atteridgeville, near Pretoria.

Elections watchers watched

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — A Democratic state senator, who said he suspected that Republicans planned to intimidate voters, posted "big, black and burly" men in mostly black neighborhoods to monitor GOP poll watchers Tuesday.

State Sen. Craig Washington said he recruited the men, including nine professional athletes and 300 former prison inmates, in case poll watchers attempted to intimidate voters.

George Strake, chairman of Texas' Republican Party, said using ex-convicts at the polls was "inviting violence and terrorist acts." He called Washington's plan a "felons for Mondale" drive.

But Strake said Tuesday he had heard of no violence at any polling places. He said some of his party's poll watchers dropped out because they were afraid they might not be safe.

"But we also had a reverse reaction, which was, 'They can't intimidate my right to vote,'" he said.

Washington claimed Republican poll watchers "intimidated" a number of black voters during the 1982 election by demanding forms of identification in addition to voter registration cards, such as drivers licenses.

"We just want to make sure they (the Republicans) behave themselves," Washington said.

He said he was "very gratified" by the number of football players, ex-felons and "big men who work on the waterfront" who called to watch over the polls.

Russ Mather, chairman of the Republican Party in Harris County, said Washington's charge of intimidation was "ridiculous."

"A poll watcher isn't even allowed to talk to the voters," he said. "You can't be intimidated by someone who can't talk to you."

Preston Goodwin, a spokesman for the Harris County Republicans, said between 10 and 15 of his party's poll watchers called Monday to say they were afraid of being hurt during the election.

Sheriff Keesee wins re-election in Lubbock County

Sonny Keesee

Compiled from Staff Reports

Republicans and Democrats split the ticket evenly Tuesday in the six contested races in Lubbock County. The elections featured heavy local voter turnout with 70,114 ballots cast in Lubbock County, excluding absentee votes.

In the sheriff's race, Republican incumbent D.L. "Sonny" Keesee won a surprisingly easy victory over opponent C.H. "Choc" Blanchard, receiving 44,147 votes or 64.7 percent to Blanchard's 24,044.

Prior to the election, Keesee's own polls had predicted a tough competition, forecasting a neck-and-neck race that never materialized.

Blanchard, who was sheriff prior to Keesee's election in 1980, conceded defeat when reporting precincts indicated a comfortable margin of victory for Keesee.

"It was a good race," Blanchard said. "We lost."

In acknowledging his victory, Keesee pledged to continue to fight for improved county law enforcement.

"We told the public what we wanted to accomplish the next four years. It will take more equipment and more personnel, but the people have shown us that they want us to continue the kind of law enforcement we are giving them," he said.

Keesee, who was cautious with victory predictions throughout the election, attributed the win to his record of his four years in office and the efforts of his campaign staffers.

"We ran a positive, strong campaign and just left the rest in the hands of the voters," he said.

While Keesee kept the sheriff's department in Republican hands, the county clerk's office remains firmly in the Democratic camp. Ann Davidson, the Democratic candidate for county clerk, defeated opponent Ray West by receiving 54 percent of the vote.

Davidson received 34,815 votes to West's 29,614, exclusive of absentee ballots. Davidson was the incumbent in the race, having served the remainder of the unexpired term of the late Frank Guess. The two county commissioner positions on the ballot were split evenly between the GOP and the Democrats.

In the race for county commissioner, Precinct 3, Democrat Eliseo Refugio Solis scored an upset in a close race with incumbent Franklin Dunn. Excluding absentee ballots, which were not tabulated at press time, Solis received 5,843 votes, or 53.5 percent.

In the remaining commissioner's race, for Precinct 3, Republican Boyd Roberts won decisively over opponent Edgar Chance. Roberts received over 60 percent of the vote, with a 4,000-vote margin of victory over Chance.

Roberts said he was extremely pleased with the support he received throughout the election.

"I'm tickled to death that the people support me as much as they showed they do tonight," he said. "We've worked real hard to improve the county roads and take care of the complaints we've had in the last year and I'm pleased with the confidence shown us tonight."

Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, Place 1, was a hotly contested race. Democratic incumbent L.J. Blalack was re-elected with 13,986 votes to Turner's 13,409, exclusive of absentee ballots, giving him a slim majority of 51 percent.

The only other contested county race was between Jose Ganeres and Gary Newburn for constable, Precinct 6. Newburn swept his opponent with 18,101 votes or 67.5 percent, exclusive of absentee ballots.

There were four uncontested county races. Democrat Frank Stuart ran unopposed for county tax assessor-collector, and Democrats Cleo Rogers and Tommy Brunson ran unopposed in the races for constable, Precinct 1 and constable, Precinct 2.

Republican Carey Long ran unopposed for the office of public weigher.

Tech adds to GOP victory

By LAURA TETREULT
University Daily Staff Writer

Texas Tech on-campus students followed the national trend in Tuesday's election by voting for President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush in their landslide victory over Democratic challengers Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro.

In voting precincts 49 and 50, which are comprised solely of Tech students living on campus, the Reagan-Bush ticket received 93.6 percent of the vote in Precinct 49 and 85.7 percent of the ballots in Precinct 50. More than 6 percent of Precinct 49 voters and 14 percent of Precinct 50 voters supported the Democratic nominees for president and vice president.

Tech students also followed the state trend in the race between Republican Phil Gramm and Democrat Lloyd Doggett, in which Gramm won the Texas seat for the U.S. Senate. Gramm received 89.6 percent of the votes in Precinct 49 and 81.1 percent of the votes in Precinct 50.

Republican Larry Combest also received student support in his defeat of Democrat Don Richards for the U.S. representative seat in District 19. More than 90 percent of the students in Precinct 49 and more than 80 percent in Precinct 50 cast their support for Combest.

In the race for District 28 of the state Senate, students deviated from the local trend by supporting Republican Sol Thomas, who was defeated by Democrat John Montford. Although Montford received 66 percent of the Lubbock vote, he only had 18 percent of the vote in Precinct 49 and 27 percent of the vote in Precinct 50.

In the local election, Republican incumbent D.L. "Sonny" Keesee received student support in his defeat of Democratic challenger C.H. "Choc" Blanchard in the race for Lubbock County sheriff. More than 88 percent of the students in Precinct 49 and more than 85 percent in Precinct 50 supported Keesee.

Student Association President Jim Noble said the voter turnout in the University Center, where students in Precincts 49 and 50 voted, was "tremendous."

"I wouldn't be surprised at all if this year isn't a record in student turnout," Noble said. "In fact, I would be surprised if this year's turnout is not a student record."

Reagan promises a new beginning

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — An ebullient President Reagan, predicting that "America's best days lie ahead," told his party faithful late Tuesday night that "our work is not finished; there is much to be done."

Appearing to cheers of "four more years" after his landslide victory over Democratic challenger Walter Mondale had been assured, Reagan told the GOP crowd: "You know, good habits are hard to break."

Reagan said he had received a concession telephone call from Mondale, and quoted him as saying, "We're all Americans. We'll go forward together."

"Tonight is the end of nothing," Reagan said. "It is the beginning of everything."

The president said his administration in the past four years successfully brought inflation and interest rates down, created new jobs, cut government spending, strengthened military defense and began to "restore traditional values in our society."

Recycling a favorite line from his campaign, Reagan pledged, "You ain't seen nothing yet."

He thanked Vice President George Bush "for campaigning so magnificently all across this country," and he thanked Republican Party leaders.

Reagan several times referred to the "prairie fire of hope" he said was lit in California 20 years ago and continues to burn. In conceding defeat, Mondale told cheering supporters in St. Paul, "He has won. We are all Americans; he is our president and we honor him tonight."

Democratic running mate Geraldine Ferraro phoned Vice President George Bush, who praised his Democratic opponent — drawing some jeers from his Houston supporters.

"She campaigned hard. She was a strong opponent," Bush said.

In her concession speech, Geraldine Ferraro told her supporters that even in defeat, her historic candidacy for the vice presidency made an important difference.

"My candidacy has said the days of discrimination are numbered," the New York congresswoman said as she conceded defeat. "American women will never be second-class citizens again."

Ferraro said that in selecting her as his running mate, Mondale "opened a door which will never be closed again — that is a victory."

She said all her supporters should be proud of the Democratic ticket's campaign.

"We fought hard, we gave it our best, and we made a difference," she said.

"We have fought for people who need our help," she declared.

"America is a great nation," she said, "but if there's one thing our candidacy stood for is that our country can be even greater."

Montford easily retains state Senate seat

By LISA MORRIS and CHIP MAY
University Daily Staff Writers

While final votes were being counted late Tuesday night, Republican Sol Thomas admitted defeat in the 28th District Texas Senatorial race against Democratic incumbent John T. Montford.

Excluding absentee ballots, Montford captured 66 percent of the vote to Thomas' 34 percent.

Montford, however, did not appear confident of his victory until votes from eight of the 15 counties revealed a 66 percent lead. "I feel like celebrating," he said.

A crowd of about 100 Montford supporters remained optimistic about his re-election throughout the evening, continually asking, "How bad are we beating him?"

Montford credited his successful performance in the polls to his campaign organization.

"We didn't take anything for granted," Montford said. "We have 2,400 volunteers, and that's what it takes. We have an organization with practically a person on every block.

"First of all, it was the water problem," Montford said. "The bill passed in the Senate but failed in the House. At least it stirred enough interest."

The Reagan coattail effect was difficult to overcome, he said.

Montford said he thinks he was victorious because of his record. "It's been a tough year for Democrats," he said. "We perceived the problem a year ago, so we didn't take anything for granted."

Although the final votes showed a wide margin of victory, the approximately 25 supporters who gathered at the Thomas headquarters on 19th Street did not mention loss, defeat or concession until all votes were counted. Finally, Thomas said, "It looks like we got slaughtered."

Thomas blamed his defeat on a lack of financial support. He said, "Montford out-raised me nine to one and had tremendous name identification."

"A lot of people we thought would vote for us just took the 'you don't have a chance attitude,'" Thomas' wife Sandra said.

Thomas said that during the four-month campaign he was "very long on friends and short on money."

"That's just part of it," Sandra Thomas said, "You have to have a winner and you have to have a loser."

Montford credited his successful showing to his performance in the Senate.

Givens defeats incumbent Salinas in 83rd District race

By KIRSTEN KLING and LAURA TETREULT
University Daily Staff Writers

In a major upset in Tuesday's local elections, 32-year-old Republican challenger Ron Givens won the District 83 Texas representative race by defeating eight-year Democratic incumbent Froy Salinas.

Attributing his victory to hard work, Givens said, "The people are ready for a change, and we're bringing in fresh, new leadership."

Givens said when he takes office his first priority will be organizing townhouse meetings throughout his district.

"That way we can try to find out the people's main concerns," he said.

Givens, who is black, said townhouse meetings will allow him to break down barriers he says exist between whites, blacks and Hispanics in his district.

Givens said he supports improvements in the state education system and water legislation that will help Lubbock industry. He said he also supports an enterprise zone in the 83rd District in which tax incentives would be offered to businesses showing interest in the area.

An enterprise zone would allow business growth in the district, Givens said.

Conceding defeat by Givens, Salinas said he has no plans for the immediate future except to spend time with his family. He said he plans to stay in Lubbock.

"I love Lubbock; it's my home," Salinas said. Givens said he did not believe Salinas' failure to file a financial statement of his campaign contributions and expenditures with the Texas Office of Secretary of State had an impact on the race, because the irregularity was disclosed so late in the race.

Salinas recently has been fined $100 for failing to file his financial statement by the July 16 deadline. He also has not met the Oct. 9 and Oct. 30 financial statement deadlines.

Givens has the option of filing a civil suit against Salinas for failing to file the financial statement. However, Givens said he had not decided whether he would take legal action against Salinas. Should Givens file suit and win, he would be awarded twice the amount of money Salinas failed to report.

Salinas said he does not believe the failure to file a financial statement, which has been publicized in several articles of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, should have been an area of controversy in the race. He said he believes the issue did not cost him any votes.

Salinas also said the publicity, although adverse, helped him in the campaign because "people do not have a high opinion of the Avalanche-Journal."

District 83 includes Lubbock east of University Avenue, Slaton, Carlisle, New Deal and Wolfthor.

Proposition passage will benefit Tech

By KIRSTEN KLING
University Daily Staff Writer

The substantial support of Proposition 2 reflected in the vote Tuesday will put Texas Tech on the road to financial security, according to university officials.

The amendment will enable Tech to receive additional financial support through the restructuring of the Permanent University Fund and the establishment of a special higher education fund.

Statewide support for the amendment resulted in a sigh of relief for many community members, Tech officials and students.

"I am, of course, delighted and pleased for Tech. It will greatly facilitate the renovation and maintenance of our fine facilities for the teaching and equipment needs we have," said John Darling, vice president for academic affairs and research.

"For many years, we have not been included in the PUF and we were greatly disadvantaged to maintain a comparable university."

Proposition 2 will go into effect Sept. 1 of the 1986 fiscal year. The amendment will grant Tech a portion of the $100 million Education Assistance Fund (EAF).

"We anticipated a clear-cut victory for the amendment, and it made our work (promoting awareness of the amendment) worthwhile," said Jim Noble, president of the Student Association.

Noble said he believes those who opposed the amendment feared a tax hike or were traditional PUF supporters.

"I think opponents to the amendment could have been traditional supporters of the University of Texas and Texas A&M," he said. "They don't want to see other universities get more financial support. More funding means more competition."

The EAF, formally referred to as the Capital Higher Education Fund (CHEF), will allocate money to non-PUF universities.

Museum sets Taos artist exhibit

The Museum of Texas Tech will showcase its collection of more than 75 of the works of Taos artist Gene Kloss, on exhibit through Jan. 6.

Kloss is considered among the most accomplished masters of aquatint among 20th century American printmakers. The museum has the largest public collection of Kloss' prints, including works from the 1920s through the 1980s. The exhibit shows use of aquatint, etching, drypoint and mixed media, according to Steve Bradley, art curator for the museum.

The main subjects for Kloss' works are Taos and New Mexico Indians and Southwest scenery and imagery, Bradley said. Many of her scenes include native structures, tribal rituals, churches and religious customs.

Library showcases Dalhousies

The First and Second Dalhousie Manuscripts, which offer insights into the work of 17th century English metaphysical poet John Donne, will be displayed during a symposium on "The Donne Dalhousie Discovery" today and Thursday in the Texas Tech Library.

The manuscripts were obtained from the Dalhousie family in Scotland through the efforts of Texas Tech English professor Ernest Sullivan. The manuscripts, plus items from the university's Joseph Conrad Collection, will be on display through 5 p.m. Thursday on the third floor of the Tech Library.

Faculty award nominees sought

Texas Tech students have an opportunity to recognize outstanding faculty members as part of an annual event co-sponsored by Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa.

James Brink, associate professor of history and sponsor of Mortar Board, said students can nominate as many faculty members as they want. He said five faculty members representing each college will be selected.

He said the five faculty members selected will be recognized by Tech President Lauro Cavazos during halftime at the Tech-SMU football game Nov. 15.

He said nomination forms can be picked up in West Hall 250. A separate form must be completed for each nominee. The deadline for nomination forms is 5 p.m. Friday.

For more information contact Mortar Board president Mark Heinrich.

Sociologists given Chinese posts

Professors H. Paul Chalfant and Yung-mei Tsai of the Texas Tech department of sociology have been named adjunct professors of the Heilongjiang College of Medicine Administration in China.

Chalfant, chairperson of the department, is a co-author of the textbook, "The Sociology of Medicine and Illness," and Tsai has edited, translated and written textbooks on sociology that are used widely in China.

Both faculty members last summer attended the first National Medical Sociology Symposium of the People's Republic of China in Beidaihe, where 27 participants discussed ways in which sociology can provide insights into medical care.

Profs portray past presidents debating current issues

By CHERYLE LOCKE
University Daily Staff Writer

Texas Tech history professors, portraying six famous American politicians, ranted and raved about the current political structure at a debate in Holden Hall last week.

The debate, "American Expectations: Are We Following the Original Path?" was sponsored by Phi Alpha Theta, the history honorary. Professors participating in the debate portrayed Alexander Hamilton, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Harry Truman, Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon.

The professors dressed the part of their characters, and some attempted to imitate the dialects of the famous politicians.

Before Joe King, who portrayed Alexander Hamilton, could finish his first sentence, rowdy hecklers from the audience began booing him and shouting criticisms. Hamilton mentioned Nixon and his disappointment in his hunger for power and ambition.

Audience members Tracy Bunker and Katrina Brogden, covered in Reagan/Bush paraphernalia, stood up and shouted "four more years." The women, referred to as the Nixonettes, were booed by the majority of the audience for their defense of former president Nixon.

Speaking to a hostile audience, James Harper portrayed Richard Nixon, saying, "First I would like to thank Lubbock for supporting me hands down in my last election. I would like to thank the students at Tech who did not listen to their pinko professors in '72 and voted for me anyway."

"Thank you Avalanche Journal for standing up for me even when The New York Times, The Washington Post and ABC News would not. Last of all, I would like to thank Ronald Reagan for standing with me even when all of the others told him what I had done."

Obviously not a fan of Nixon, Harper portrayed him as an insensitive, power-hungry dictator. He addressed the moderator of the debate saying, "I understand you were trying to get John Kennedy to come speak tonight but he said he said he wouldn't come back to Texas."

The crowd was appalled at the remark but seemed to see the humor in Harper's interpretation of Nixon.

"No, really, Kennedy was a good man," he said. "He gave up time from his family for public service. He should've stayed home and taught his brother how to drive a car."

He ended his statement by saying, "I want to talk about the American Dream. I am the American Dream. I played football, served in the war, served as a congressman and got more votes than any other president. Let me tell you why I am the American Dream; if I can do it, anyone can."

Jeff Hoyt, who played the character of John Adams, received a less than warm response from audience members, attacking the newfound liberty among women and journalists. One member of the audience stood up holding a sign that read, "John Adams, Fascist. Destroyer of Free Speech."

He replied to the sign by saying, "The philosophy of liberalism has stood Republicanism on its head. The people are here to serve the government."

Thomas Jefferson, portrayed by Ben Newcomb, criticized the relationship of church and state, accusing Americans of breaching the right almost to the point of destruction.

Harry Truman, portrayed by professor Ron Rainger, praised the U.S. government and its citizens for recognizing women and minorities and giving all American citizens the freedom to vote. He accused Adams and Hamilton of excluding those who were not a part of the upper class society and who did not subscribe to their political views and convictions.

Speaking in a slow Texas drawl, LBJ, portrayed by Rowland Smith, told the audience he was a man of action, not just words. "I told Lady Bird that I had been asked if we had strayed away from the original plan of the American constitution, and she said, 'Lyndon, just tell them the truth but don't swear on it.'"

Johnson went on to take credit for creating the "Great Society" and said if it were not for the Republicans, the United States would have had a great society. With that comment, the seemingly entirely Democratic audience went wild with applause.

Film paints dark picture of army through flashbacks of routine

By JAN DILLEY
University Daily Staff Writer

During World War II, when army officers in the deep south wanted their "O' Club" painted, they knew where to turn: enlisted men who were segregated by one factor — skin color.

the sergeant's men and superior officers.

Both Rollins and Adolph Caesar (as the bitter, intolerant sergeant) are to be commended for their performances as two men who never met, but whose lives are changed by the same circumstances.

"A Soldier's Story" is not a war movie; it is a comment on racial tensions that is formed by probing the roots and causes of both internal and external prejudices. The film uncovers a topic few movies have considered before — black self-hate within the ranks.

Powerful doses of realism, subtle touches of humor and the soulful musical contributions of Herbie Hancock and Patti Labelle make "A Soldier's Story" a movie worthy of the viewer's attention and reflections.

Columbia Pictures' "A Soldier's Story" is an insightful narrative of the way army life was for black soldiers stationed near the small town of Tynin, La., in 1944. Flashbacks show the daily military routine to be broken up by activities that ranged from baseball games to heated lynchings to guitar strumming in the local nightclub.

An adaptation of Charles Fuller's 1982 Pulitzer prize-winning "A Soldier's Play," the movie reviews the events before and after the shooting of a black drill sergeant. Much of the action takes place on base and in the company's barracks where the soldiers recall their true impressions of the man who commanded them.

In his first feature film since receiving an Oscar nomination for "Ragtime" in 1981, Howard E. Rollins Jr. plays the black captain sent from Washington to investigate the murder. Armed with a law degree and the desire to uncover the truth about the slaying, the captain weeds out facts from fables told him by

'The Bicycle Thief'

An impoverished laborer, his son, and an essential mode of transportation thicken the plot of "The Bicycle Thief." The 1948 film, directed by Vittorio De Sica, will be shown today at 8 p.m. in the University Center Theater.

Charges reinstated against 'Twilight' 5

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A judge on Monday reinstated all charges against the five defendants in the "Twilight Zone" movie helicopter accident, including two counts of involuntary manslaughter based on child endangering against award-winning director John Landis.

The charges stemmed from the July 1982 deaths of actor Vic Morrow and two children during the shooting of a helicopter crash scene in the film, "Twilight Zone — The Movie."

Superior Court Judge Gordon Ringer also reinstated two counts of involuntary manslaughter based on child endangering against associate producer George Folsey and unit production manager Dan Allingham.

Along with the reinstatements, Ringer also decided to uphold three charges each of involuntary manslaughter based on recklessness against Landis, special effects coordinator Paul Stewart and helicopter pilot Dorcsey Wingo.

"This isn't nickelodeon time anymore," Ringer said. "But I would have thought that after 75 years somebody might have thought it inappropriate to put Lillian Gish on an ice flow and send her into the middle of Niagara Falls to make a movie."

Earlier, Ringer listened as Deputy District Attorney Gary Kesselman attacked Crahan's decision last spring to drop charges for child endangerment against Landis, Folsey and Allingham.

At the time, Crahan ordered Landis, Stewart, and Wingo to stand trial on three counts each of involuntary manslaughter based on recklessness, while dismissing the counts against Allingham and Folsey.

You could be among the first on campus to live in your own condominium home at Savoy. You'll be across the street from Jones Stadium and close to the fraternity and sorority houses and campus shops. And you and your family will get all the tax-saving and investment opportunities of home ownership.

Think about living in a spacious home with all these: enduring tile entry, spacious living area, spectacular vaulted ceilings, oversized closets for abundant storage space, a charming woodburning fireplace, and a balcony with an exciting campus-area view. Your kitchen will be fully equipped with every convenience: a microwave oven, full-size refrigerator with icemaker, continuous cleaning oven, trash compactor, full-size washer and dryer package, waste disposer, and pantry.

Outside are lushly landscaped courtyards with cool fountains surrounding a glistening pool, soothing spa, and inviting tanning area. Enjoy yourself and your friends with shuffleboard, barbecue grills, water volleyball, and our satellite television dish system which allows access to first-run movies in each individual home.

Each home is prewired for its own security system and is close to covered carports and plenty of guest parking spaces. Your investment still pays off after you graduate. A younger brother or sister can live in your Savoy condominium, you can rent it, or keep enjoying it yourself.

Visit the Savoy information center to learn more about this great opportunity. See how you can make a big splash by being a homeowner at Savoy.

Now available for purchase at pre-construction prices.

Defense highlights football action

Defense was the name of the game in Jones Stadium for the men's and women's All-University Flag Football Championship games Sunday.

In the men's division, the Silver Bullets dominated the first half as the Pike A team managed only one first down to the Silver Bullets' three first downs. The Silver Bullets also managed a penetration the first half by moving the ball to the Pike 3-yard line. Unable to break into the end zone, the Bullets settled for a 23-yard field goal by Tom Ward to take a 1-0 halftime lead (flag football rules stipulate that if the ball is snapped from inside the 20-yard line on a field goal attempt, the kick is worth one point). The Pikes came back the second half and picked up four first downs to the Bullets' single first down. With two seconds remaining, Kevin Parr booted a 43-yard field goal to pull the Pikes past the Bullets and win 3-1.

In women's action, neither Alpha Phi nor Breakin managed to put the ball in the end zone and both teams tallied one penetration. Breakin was declared the winner by their 4-3 lead in first downs.

In co-rec play, the Associates managed two second quarter touchdowns to gain a 12-0 halftime lead and then held off a fourth quarter surge to top the Loungers 12-6.

Winners of the Men's All-University Championship are the Pikes. Front row: Cole Mitchell, Lonnie Hanft, Mike Shaw, Mark Mansfield, Brad Crowson and David Fogg. Back row: Kevin Parr,

IM BRIEFS

Seminar offered

The Women 'n Weights seminar is offered at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Rec Center. The discussion will begin in the classroom and continue downstairs in the weight area.

Winners announced

The Fall Intramural Tennis season concluded with the All-University Playoffs in Men's A and B and Women's A and B divisions.

Winning the Men's A trophy was Richard Castillo, who defeated Chad Velvin, 6-2, 6-2 in the finals. Capping the Men's B crown was Richie Havenhill who out lasted Tariq Malik 6-2, 6-3. Laura Sheehy downed Victoria Shaheen 6-0, 7-5 to win the Women's A crown. Taking the Women's B top spot was Sarah Huskey who was pushed to three games by Janine Romines before winning 4-6, 7-5, 6-3.

The playoffs culminated five weeks of league play for over 80 participants. The top two finishers of each league advanced to the championships.

Floor Hockey slated

The Saturday Morning 'Live' Program is offering a floor hockey tournament on Saturday in the Rec Center Mat Room to all students, faculty and staff.

Entries are due by 5 p.m. Thursday in the Rec Sports Office.

Weekend trip scheduled

Today is the last day to sign-up for the trip to Guadalupe Peak from Nov. 9-11.

Participants will hike on Saturday and explore McKittrick Canyon on Sunday.

The cost for the weekend is $20 which covers transportation, camping equipment and qualified leadership. Interested students, faculty and staff should register in the Outdoor Shop, 206 of the Rec Center. Previous experience is not required. For further information, call 742-2949.

Clinic continues

Dr. Yost is continuing his injury clinics at 7 p.m. every Wednesday in the Rec Center Classroom.

Super Sweat continues

The Super Sweat Workout is at 4:15 p.m. on Fridays on Court 5 at the Rec Center.

Super Sweat is a calisthenic and jogging workout set to music which takes 25-30 minutes. It is self-paced, and participants choose how many of each exercise they will do based on their fitness level. Super Sweat will help with strength, flexibility and cardiovascular fitness. No registration is necessary.

Workshop scheduled

A workshop on the basic instruction of underwater photography will be held at 7 p.m. today in room 205 of the Rec Center.

The workshop will include introduction to equipment and techniques used to produce the best pictures. Participants can sign up for all workshops by calling the Outdoor Shop at 742-2949 or the Aquatic Center at 742-3896. All workshops are free.

Longhorn winners announced

Over 300 runners competed in the fourth annual "Stamped the Longhorns" fun run Saturday.

Leading the way in the 4-mile event was Robin Powell in the men's division and Cheryl Benoit in the women's. The times were 22:24 and 29:33 respectively. Karl Wolf led the pack over the 2-mile course with a time of 12:01. Cindy Brawley was the first woman to finish the 2-mile run.

Other top finishers in the men's 4-mile event were Barry Hughes, 22:49, and Erik Packard, 23:20. In the women's 4-mile Sue Suterland finished in 30:09 and Jerri Howell came in at 30:45. In the men's 2-mile run, Joe Esposito crossed the line at 12:26 and Murali Chandran finished in 12:30. In the women's 2-mile, Beth Nickels came in at 15:27 and Joyce Simeoth was next at 15:38.

The next scheduled run is the team and individual 2-mile cross country Turkey Trot on Nov. 17. Interested runners may sign up in the Rec Sports Office.

Longhorns lapse to No. 3

By The Associated Press

Jeff Ward's two late field goals Saturday kept the University of Texas unbeaten — but didn't keep the Longhorns from being kicked out of second place in The Associated Press college football poll.

Texas, which slipped past Texas Tech 13-10, improving its record to 6-0-1, slipped to third in this week's rankings, receiving one first-place vote and 1,032 points, 30 fewer than runner-up Nebraska, in the balloting announced Tuesday. The Cornhuskers, 8-1 following a 44-0 rout of Iowa State, received four first-place votes.

Washington, which meets the University of Southern California Saturday with a berth in the Rose Bowl at stake, remained No. 1 — the first team this season to do so for four weeks in a row. The Huskies, 9-0 after a 44-14 battering of California, received 50 of 58 first-place votes and 1,147 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Brigham Young, receiving the remaining three first-place votes and 1,008 points, retained its fourth-place position. South Carolina, Miami (Fla.), Oklahoma State and Georgia likewise were unchanged, in the fourth-through-eighth berths. South Carolina received 921 points, Miami 832, Oklahoma State 781 and Georgia 719.

Oklahoma, bouncing back from its first loss of the year with a 49-7 pounding of Missouri, moved up one notch to ninth with 686 points. Boston College, ninth a week ago, tumbled to 16th after a 37-30 loss to Penn State. Florida, 13th last week, rounded out the Top Ten this week with 665 points.

AP TOP 20

1. Washington (50)	9-0
2. Nebraska (4)	8-1
3. Texas (1)	6-0-1
4. Brigham Young	9-0
5. South Carolina	8-0
6. Miami, Fla.	8-2
7. Oklahoma State	7-1
8. Georgia	7-1
9. Oklahoma	6-1
10. Florida	6-1
11. Florida State	6-1
12. LSU	6-1
13. Ohio State	7-2
14. Southern Cal	7-1
15. TCU	7-1
16. Boston College	5-2
17. SMU	5-2
18. Iowa	6-2
19. West Virginia	7-2
20. Auburn	6-3

The Second Ten consisted of Florida State, LSU, Ohio State, Southern Cal, Texas Christian, Boston College, Southern Methodist, Iowa, West Virginia and Auburn, which was No. 1 in the preseason poll.

Last week, it was Auburn, West Virginia, Florida, Florida State, LSU, Ohio State, Iowa, Southern Cal, SMU and TCU. There are no new teams in this week's Top Twenty.

An apology to Morren

In the Tuesday issue of The University Daily, Texas Tech quarterback Perry Morren erroneously was listed among the nominees for the Davey O'Brien National Quarterback Award. Morren's name was inserted into the Associated Press wire story by someone tampering with the sports department's computer files. The UD apologizes to Perry Morren for any inconvenience that may have resulted.

Moore dismisses player

Texas Tech football coach Jerry Moore Tuesday said junior fullback Gerald Bean has been dismissed from the team for "a violation of team rules."

Bean was the driver of the car in which senior linebacker Kerry Bruno was killed early Sunday in a two-car accident in Lubbock. Sophomore cornerback Roland Mitchell also was a passenger in the car.

Bean, 22, a Houston Yates graduate, had been activated to the varsity roster after being redshirted earlier this season. Further details were not available at press time.

ENGINEERING OPPORTUNITIES YOU WON'T GET IN PRIVATE INDUSTRY
 If you're sophomore, junior, or senior and thinking about a technical position after graduation, think about this. How many companies will pay you to finish your studies? If you qualify, the Navy will. You can earn $1,000 a month for up to 24 months while you complete your degree. After graduation receive...one year of graduate level training in nuclear engineering...$6,000 cash bonus...a starting salary of $27,800 and up to $41,000 in four years...30 days paid vacation...summers to travel all over the world on government aircraft...free medical benefits.
 If you're majoring in engineering, the physical sciences, or math, find out if you qualify for this Navy scholarship. Navy officers are more marketable in private industry after serving as a Navy Nuclear Propulsion Officer.

Used to being first

From athlete to coach, Tech's Jarvis Scott has led diverse life

By BRENDA KAY RICE
University Daily Staff Writer

Jarvis Scott has an unusual habit of being first.

First born. First place. And the first American woman to qualify for the Olympics in two events.

Scott has been coach of the Texas Tech women's cross country and track teams since 1979.

Athletic ability seems to be inherent in Scott's family. She is the only girl, but her five younger brothers were high school state basketball champions.

Scott began participating in athletics when she was 18 years old. She was "discovered" during a Kennedy Standard Fitness Test in high school, when her teacher decided she had athletic ability. At that time, high schools had no organized women's sports, so Scott's teacher encouraged her to join a club that needed athletes.

Coach Fred Jones took over from there. He trained Scott, decided she had Olympic potential, and entered her in various local meets.

But that was only the start. In 1966-67 Scott competed in several national competitions, winning numerous titles.

"I then became a national, and eventually international, competitor," Scott said recently. "That was the start of my becoming a world class athlete."

Perhaps the single victory that remains indelibly imprinted in Scott's mind came in the National Amateur Athletic Union Championships in 1968. Scott's time of 52.9 in the 400 meters not only gave her first place, but gave her the fastest time of any woman in the world that year.

The honors didn't stop there. In 1968, Jones entered Scott in the Olympic Trials. He decided she should compete in the quarter-mile and half-mile races. She qualified in both, and won the 400-meter event and was third in the 800 meters. It was on to Mexico City.

"That's when I had the prestige of being the first American woman to qualify in two events," Scott said.

Scott chose not to compete in the 800-meter race at the Olympics, allowing another woman to compete. She concentrated on the 400 meters and finished sixth.

In the Munich Olympics of 1972, Scott was named an alternate to the American team.

Scott's college education came late in her life. She received an annscholarship immediately after high school but attended for only one semester. She withdrew, deciding to dedicate all her time and effort to track and field.

"After I felt like I attained my goals, I then went back to college," Scott said.

Jarvis Scott

At the age of 27, Scott graduated from California State-Los Angeles with a bachelors degree in criminal justice. She soon became assistant track and cross country coach at CSLA, assisting teams to numerous meet titles, including sixth in the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women championships.

Scott is one of 10 nominees for coach of the 1985 American International team. Coaching a team on an international tour always has been one of her goals. If she is not selected this year, she said she thinks she always will have another chance in the future.

“There are a lot of downs, but ... once you get past that bad seed, you get into the good stuff - like winning.”

"It's a great honor," Scott said of the nomination. "I've set for myself a goal to someday be a national, international or Olympic coach."

"I do want to coach as long as I enjoy it," Scott said. "I might get into something else that will assimilate what I'm doing."

Scott has many philosophies of life. She shares them with her athletes and various other groups around the country. In the past, Scott has lectured alongside Olympic immortal Jesse Owens. They spoke primarily with children, something she hopes to be doing more of in the future.

"I try to instill in them the same kind of attitude I acquired as an athlete," Scott said. "My primary goal is to give what I received and hope they use it in everyday life."

"There are a lot of downs but they have to keep that attitude positive," Scott said.

"Once you get past that bad seed, you get into the good stuff - like winning."

Scott's husband, Steven Jones, also was an athlete. He played college football at Oklahoma State, where he also was hurdler on the Cowboys track squad. The couple hopes their athletic abilities will rub off on their 11-month-old son, Shaun Christopher.

"Hopefully our genes will take hold and he'll be an athlete," Scott said. "He can utilize all that we tell him."

Scott enjoys her work and hopes to stay healthy long enough to accomplish all that she wants.

"I've enjoyed the traveling and meeting of people," Scott said. "It has developed me both mentally and physically. I don't think I could have gained all that otherwise."

Tech's Hastings runner-up

TCU's 'unbelievable' Thomas nabs SWC honors

By The Associated Press

Texas Christian cornerback Sean Thomas thought defensive backfield Coach Jim Dawson was just trying to loosen him up for the Houston game with a joke.

Dawson told Thomas: "You're going to be covering Larry Shepherd one-on-one."

Because Shepherd was the leading receiver in the Southwest Conference, Thomas thought that was pretty funny.

Until game day. Indeed, Thomas had to cover Shepherd by himself.

Thomas intercepted three passes and got the game ball in a 21-14 victory that kept alive TCU's Cinderella dream of the Cotton Bowl. It also earned Thomas The Associated Press SWC Defensive Player of the Week award.

Texas' Jeff Ward, an ice cool placekicker, saved the Longhorns with two fourth period field goals to earn The AP's Offensive Player of the Week laurels.

TCU's Kenneth Davis, who had another banner 100-yard plus day, was a close runnerup.

Thomas was joined on the honor roll by Texas Tech's Brad Hastings who had 16 tackles in the 13-10 loss to the Longhorns.

Thomas' interception in the final minute at the Horned Frogs 13-yard line sealed the game for TCU. It was the first time TCU ever had beaten Houston.

"It was a great, great feeling," Thomas said. "I just had to do what I could. I was lucky to be there."

"There's three games left and we just have to remember to take 'em one play at a time. I think our defense will be better the rest of the way. You can feel it."

Houston had never thrown an interception against TCU in its history and Thomas got three in one game.

Thomas had two interceptions in the last 3:51. Shepherd caught only one pass for 10 yards.

"I thought Coach Jim Dawson was kidding at first," Thomas said. "But that was our game plan."

Thomas is now leading the league in interceptions with seven and is second in the nation.

TCU Coach Jim Wacker said, "Sean simply had a fantastic day. What a great young man and a great leader."

Wacker even had Thomas, a senior from Sacramento, Calif., on his weekly television show to narrate the steals.

"It was unbelievable," said Wacker, using his favorite word. "Just unbelievable."
