Cavazos declines post with U.S. cabinet to pursue goals at Tech

By KIRSTEN KLING
University Daily Staff Writer

Texas Tech President Lauro Cavazos has refused for the second time an appointment as U.S. Secretary of Education in order to "get the job done at Tech."

About three weeks ago, Secretary of Education T.H. Bell resigned from his position and Cavazos was contacted by a transition committee. The committee wrote several letters to Cavazos asking him to fill the position. Cavazos said that because of commitments to Tech and the Health Sciences Center, however, he declined the appointment.

"I am flattered and honored to have been considered for the position," Cavazos said. "When Secretary of Education Bell resigned recently, I mulled it over and my answer was no. I have a certain commitment to get the job done."

Cavazos also was approached about the education secretary position in 1980 before Bell took office. At that time, Cavazos had been at Tech only six or seven months. He said he thought if he had taken the position then, it would have hurt the school.

"I want to build up an endowment fund, offer more scholarships and obtain major instrumentation for the Health Sciences Center for the kind of health care and research we need," he said. "When I walk out of here I want to have seen these things accomplished."

Cavazos said if there are people who think he should have accepted the offer because of bad feelings about him on campus, his reply is that he would not leave his office because of important commitments to the university.

"Why would I get out? If a person is committed to an institution and set a course, to step away because people are unhappy with my performance is not right," he said.

Although Cavazos turned down the position, he said he believes the secretary of education is the starting point for solving today's various problems.

"The problems we face today can be solved by education," he said. "Hatred, medical and nuclear problems all can be solved by education. The government should invest more in education — it's a great opportunity."

Cavazos emphasized that Tech is on its way up academically. "Tech has been seen and recognized in Washington, and we are always interacting with people who work in science and industry," he said. "Our projects are starting to accelerate. It's an exciting time, and I'm looking forward to the coming year."

Tribunal to hear Nicaraguan complaints about U.S.

By The Associated Press

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — Rejecting a Reagan administration move to keep its Central American policy out of the World Court, the international tribunal agreed Monday to hear Nicaragua's complaint that the United States is sponsoring aggression against the Sandinista government.

By its 15-1 vote to hear the case, the court decided against Washington's contention that Nicaragua was not eligible to come before the court, and also rejected a U.S. bid to exempt itself from the court's authority.

The court kept in force its emergency ruling of last May ordering the United States to cease any military actions against the Sandinistas, pending final legal resolution of the case.

The 258-page ruling Monday opened the way to full hearings before the World Court panel on Nicaragua's complaints of U.S. aggression.

But the court limited its jurisdiction in the case to violations of the 1956 U.S.-Nicaragua Treaty of Friendship, Free Commerce and Navigation, which specifies that any disputes arising from the treaty should be resolved at the World Court.

The World Court is the judicial arm of the United Nations. It has no enforcement powers and depends on voluntary adherence to its rulings.

The U.S. government is backing Nicaraguan anti-government rebels based in Honduras and Costa Rica, and the Sandinista leaders of Nicaragua have claimed the United States is planning an "imminent invasion" of their nation.

Nicaragua termed the court's assumption of jurisdiction Monday a "moral victory," and called on the United States to abide by the court's rulings.

But Davis R. Robinson, representing the U.S. State Department, said in a statement later that "we continue to believe that the court is not the appropriate forum for helping to achieve a durable, region-wide solution" to the Central American conflict.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Sam Wonder declined immediate comment on whether the United States would continue to take part in the proceedings, and whether it would abide by any eventual ruling.

The court said Monday the United States must adhere to a 1946 declaration in which it pledged to recognize unequivocally the court's authority, unless it specified six months in advance that it would not.

Last April 6, the Reagan administration declared it would not recognize World Court jurisdiction over any Central American conflicts for a period of two years. But that was only three days + not the required six months + before Nicaragua filed its complaint that the United States was "killing, wounding and kidnapping" Nicaraguans.

The only negative vote on that jurisdictional question was cast by Judge Stephen Schwebel, the only American on the panel, who said he found the majority ruling "in error on the principal questions of jurisdiction involved."

In an interview with The Associated Press after the ruling, Nicaraguan representative Carlos Arguello said the Americans would become "political delinquents" if they refused to abide by the ruling of the court. He called the court's assumption of jurisdiction "a moral victory for Nicaragua and for international law."

Doctors insert second tube into chest of man with artificial heart

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — A second tube was inserted into the left side of the chest of William Schroeder on Monday afternoon to remove fluid that was accumulating during his second day of life with a mechanical heart, doctors said Monday.

The fluid in the lungs consisted of blood that remained from Schroeder's excessive bleeding Sunday night and fluid that had accumulated in the chest from the surrounding tissue, said Dr. Allan Lansing, chairman of Humana Heart Institute International and assistant to Dr. William DeVries, who implanted the artificial heart.

Lansing said the tube was inserted in the left side of the chest when "haziness" in Schroeder's X-rays indicated that fluid was accumulating there. Later, Schroeder's chest appeared "infinitely clearer," indicating that the fluid had been removed, Lansing said.

Following his excessive bleeding Sunday night, Schroeder had a single tube inserted into the left side of his chest to remove the blood.

His wife Margaret said, meanwhile, that the decision to have the artificial heart implanted "was kind of left to Bill to make up his own mind" and that he had told her, "I have no other thoughts but to go all the way."

Lansing said Schroeder was not bleeding and "there appear to be no major complications."

"He is warm, pink and dry, indicating excellent circulation," Lansing said at a press briefing.

Schroeder underwent emergency surgery to stop excessive bleeding less than six hours after he became the second person in history to receive a permanent artificial heart.

The excessive bleeding was stopped, but not before Schroeder had lost half of his blood through a hole where the artificial heart was stitched to his aorta, the artery that carries blood to the rest of the body.

Schroeder lost less than two pints of blood overnight, which Lansing said was normal for a patient recovering from open heart surgery.

Schroeder, a 52-year-old quality assurance specialist from Jasper, Ind., who was forced to retire because of ill health, was under sedation and breathing with the help of a respirator, Lansing said.

Schroeder remained in critical but stable condition, Lansing said. His kidneys and liver were behaving slightly abnormally.

Reagan studies proposed tax plan; spokesman predicts no action yet

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan got his first look Monday at the tax simplification plan he ordered, but a spokesman said Reagan was not expected to make any quick decisions on what could be the most drastic overhaul of the federal income tax system in its 71-year history.

Reagan and his top economic advisers were briefed by Treasury Secretary Donald Regan on the 10-month tax study. The treasury secretary is to review various options and recommendations for his fellow Cabinet members today before he makes them public.

Regan has said he favors a modified "flat tax" system to replace the current tax code, which the president has called "unfair, inequitable, counterproductive and all but incomprehensible."

A modified flat tax system generally would put individual taxpayers into lower tax brackets but would remove some popular deductions and credits. This means taxpayers would end up owing the government about the same, or paying higher taxes in some cases.

One of the president's principal goals is to make the annual chore of filing tax returns easier for taxpayers. Another goal is to eliminate some inequities and make it possible for the government to collect revenues from people who pay little or no tax on an estimated $100 billion that circulates in what is called the "underground economy."

Reagan insisted throughout his reelection campaign this fall that the rewrite of the tax laws would not be used to raise peoples' taxes.

Treasury Department officials said the Regan study, which the president ordered last January, was completed over the weekend. The president is expected to outline his final plan in the State of the Union address early next year.

While the administration has refused to disclose specifics of the plan, which the White House stresses is tentative, Treasury Department officials have discussed the tax issues with various interest groups. Interviews with lobbyists, who spoke only on condition that they not be identified, have provided some details on the elements likely to be included.

The modified flat tax approach reportedly would trim the existing 16 separate tax brackets for individuals to three or four, reducing the present top bracket from 50 percent to between 30 percent and 35 percent for the wealthiest taxpayers.

The top corporate rate would be lowered from 46 percent to about 40 percent.

United States resumes diplomatic relations with Iraq

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States, seeking to widen its influence in the Arab world, resumed diplomatic relations with Iraq on Monday after a 17-year lapse.

The move was announced immediately after President Reagan met for 35 minutes with Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, the highest ranking Iraqi to visit here since the 1967 break.

The administration said it was not endorsing Iraqi policies, intended to arm the Baghdad government or meant any harm to Israel.

Until 21/2 years ago, Iraq was listed by the United States as a country that supports terrorism. It broke relations to protest American support for Israel in the 1967 Six-Day war.

"The step recognizes the importance of our holding productive discussions with an important state in the Middle East, where the interests of the United States and the Free World are significant," said a senior official, who insisted on anonymity.

He said it did not detract from U.S. neutrality in the war between Iran and Iraq. In fact, the official said, the United States would be willing to consider resuming relations with Tehran if Iran "ceased its support for international terrorism" and sought a negotiated settlement of the war.

The White House announcement said ambassadors would be appointed "as promptly as possible." Actually, the two governments have operated quasi-embassies, or so-called "interest sections" in each others' capitals since 1972. The new ties take effect immediately, the announcement said. Aziz met first with Secretary of State

George P. Shultz, had lunch with him after seeing Reagan and scheduled a call on Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger. However, the senior U.S. official said it was simply a "courtesy" meeting and did not mean the United States was preparing to arm Iraq.

He did not rule out the purchase of civilian helicopters, for instance, which Iraq has been discussing with Bell Helicopter Textron Inc., of Fort Worth and said the United States would not interrupt sale of commercial equipment to Iran under the 1981 agreement which freed American hostages.

Iraq has sent troops into all the wars Israel has fought with Arab countries. In 1981, fearing the Iraqis were building an "Islamic Bomb" with a reactor provided by France, the Israelis leveled the Osirak facility in an air strike.

Last summer, President Saddam Hussein's government sought U.S. assurances that Israel would not attack a proposed new billion-dollar oil pipeline through Jordan.

The senior U.S. official who briefed reporters said most work on the pipeline had stopped because of Iraqi concerns.

However, he said Hussein's government no longer considered itself a "front-line" state in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

"That's a change from the 1970s," he said.

The United States is trying to expand its influence in the Middle East and the Persian Gulf. Apart from Israel, its closest ally, U.S. support is strong for Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia.

Iraq has explained the renewal of ties with the United States as balancing its relations with the Soviet Union.

World terrorism

Could the pope have been protected?

WILLIAM SAFIRE

© 1984 N.Y. Times News Service
 WASHINGTON — Margaret Thatcher escaped and Indira Gandhi was cut down; Ronald Reagan lived and Anwar Sadat died; the pope survived and a pro-Solidarity Polish priest was secretly murdered. Every world leader is the target of some madman, or nationalist group, or religious fanatic or other world leader willing to employ terrorists.

That last category most worries our strategists. If it turns out that a few journalists were right about the involvement of the KGB-controlled Bulgarian secret police in the shooting of the pope, then the trust that detentions put in agreements with the Soviet Union is misplaced.

As detailed here two years ago, the CIA vice-chief of station in Rome scoffed at Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni's description of the conspiracy to kill the pope.

"You have no proof," insisted our man on the scene, in the presence of an astounded Senate committee staff member. This derogation paralleled a Soviet campaign to disassociate the KGB from any connection with the assassination.

"I think it is absolutely scandalous," charged Zbigniew Brzezinski after more evidence appeared recently, "that some officials in the State Department and some senior officials in the CIA were unwitting — or in some cases, perhaps even witting — tools of that campaign."

When a former national security adviser grumbles about his dovish former adversaries in the State Department, that's not news; but when a man of experience in the use of intelligence information suggests the possibility of a "witting tool" — or mole — in the CIA, that is worthy of note.

Brzezinski has more than a passing interest in this case. As he recounts in his memoir, during the first week of December 1980, the CIA warned of the imminence of a Soviet army move into Poland. The lame-duck president authorized his national security adviser to put in a call to the pope to brief him on our information. Speaking in Polish, Brzezinski and the pope had a conversation that was, in Zbig's words, "historically unique."

The Russians must have known of this call, as well as of other activities of Pope John Paul II in his native Poland, where Solidarity was catching fire. Yuri Andropov, then head of the KGB, logically could have come to the conclusion that only the elimination of the leading symbol of Polish nationalism would end the incipient revolt. Six months later, the attack on the pope took place.

Since that time, Brzezinski and an associate, who was formerly the CIA station chief in Ankara, have been among the few to encourage reporters to follow this story. This was in the face of repeated CIA evaluations given to the Senate Intelligence Committee, and presumably to the president, that the "tradecraft was too clumsy" for the assassination attempt to have involved the Russians.

The conspiracy theorists seem now to have been right and the official pooh-poohers wrong. In any well-run intelligence agency, an error of this magnitude would result in a laborious operation called "retracing the analysis." The purpose would be to discover who made what wrong assessments.

In that way, the CIA would learn who misinformed our policy-makers and why. If it was just sloppy work, the offenders would learn from their mistakes. If Brzezinski's carefully raised suspicion is correct, and some tools of Russian disinformation were "witting" — surely a long shot, but never to be overlooked — then the retracing would prove not only good management, but good security.

Now it is up to the newly formed Senate Intelligence Committee, with Sens. Durenberger and Leshy replacing Sens. Goldwater and Moynihan, to make certain the agency does the retracing.

The purpose is not to embarrass, but to correct. If assassination is a weapon the Russians have been using, in what Pope John Paul called "the chain of atrocity that is straining the world with blood," we cannot afford to have naive CIA operatives in the field.

'Back-stabbing' is in style

To the Editor:
 When one writes a letter of opinion to the editor, one would expect those in disagreement to civilly respond by writing their own comments to the editor. This usually is the case when people write to The University Daily.

However, there exists at this institution that cowardly element that must resort to the minus zero level tactic of making threatening phone calls. There are two conditions that dictate such behavior:

(1) The person has a criminal mind and/or (2) the perpetrator has not the mentality to accomplish the task of putting words together on paper (obviously, he is in college by sheer accident and must have the paper read to him before beddy-bye).

If he suffers the former condition, he is not to be trusted by anyone around him, because, under the guise of friendship, he is actually back-stabbing them and ripping them off. If it is the latter, one wonders that he succeeded in figuring out what numbers are so he could dial (Oh, what am I saying — one of his accomplices must have a $5 calculator to figure it out!).

Should such mentally stricken individuals continue the phone harassment business, they should certainly be aware of the legal consequences upon their apprehension.
 Name withheld

To the Editor:
 This is in response to the letter from Don Schlichte, also known as God's Little Helper. I've read many infuriating letters, but it took Mr. Schlichte's to prove to me that even we tolerant people have our limits.

Let me qualify my opinions by stating that I am the most horrid type of creature found on this campus. Not only am I a bleeding heart liberal, I am also of the belief that the existence of God is questionable, at best. (I hope that doesn't get me a brick through the window from any of you good Christians out there.)

I am not writing to debate the existence of God. I would not want to rob anyone of his belief in God, because whether or not he exists, I know many people whose faith in him has pulled them through some pretty bad times.

But when a person goes condemning others on the basis of his own religious beliefs, a line must be drawn. There are gay Christians, you know. Just as I am a straight atheist. The two are not mutually exclusive. If there is a God, why do you think he is a cruel one?

I was raised as a Christian, and I was taught that God was benevolent, merciful and loving of all his children. Is the fire and brimstone approach to religion the only "right" approach? Are all of those who believe that God is love sinners in your eyes, too, Brother Schlichte? I have a hard time believing that any deity worth believing in would appoint you to "stand up and declare what is right" for the masses.

Finally, I would like to point out something which I thought was common knowledge, but apparently is not. None of us, straight or gay, choose our paths directly. Sexual inclinations are a product of the environment in which we are raised. Most of us are taught to be heterosexual. Some are not. I did not choose to be heterosexual; I was not born heterosexual; I simply became heterosexual.

The same goes for you, Brother Schlichte. Under different circumstances, you could have been one of those dreadful sodomites.

People don't choose their sins, Brother Schlichte. Many gays are unhappy with their homosexuality. That is why such support groups are needed. The same is true of many of your dreaded "indulged sins."

The "drunkards," for example, (I'll assume you mean alcoholics) do not choose to be the way they are. Incidentally, there is a "drunkards' group." It is called Alcoholics Anonymous, and it has saved many lives. Shouldn't we support any group that provides understanding of people's differences?

Under your definition of "liberty," none of us are free.
 Kristin Judd

Peculiar pronouncements

Dear Editor:

I'm sic a tired of all these letters to the editor. I don't want no queers on campus. Shoot 'em. I don't want no Christians neither. Shoot 'em too. I also don't want no yankees, but don't shoot them — hang 'em. In fact, I don't want no group I don't belong to allowed in my country. An I don't belong to no group. I'm right. Your all rong. God and presidant Reagan are on my side. Case closed. Don't talk to me.

I also think the drinking age should be raised every yeer on my birthday. I'm thankful in america, people are free so long as they think like I don't.
 Bruce Meyer

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the Nov. 14 column by Pete Wilkins.

Mr. Wilkins, I have been cut to the heart by your sarcasm, and I now realize how utterly selfish it was of me to vote for Ronald Reagan for president.

My former idea that people can do something about their economic condition I now see was totally erroneous. If only Robin Hood, I mean Walter Mondale, had been elected he could have taken my father's income and given it to someone else, and we could have all been poor together.

I now understand the total ridiculousness of the idea of "Peace through Strength," and I agree with your philosophy of "Peace through Absolute Submission." Let's not only stop all the military spending we have now, let's get rid of all our weapons, including the conventional ones. After all, we don't want anyone to think we could merit his respect, oh, I mean fear. While we're at it let's give Alaska back to the Soviet Union as a gesture of good faith, seeing as we bought it from the Soviets in the first place.

Mr. Wilkins, your column conditioned me to the fact, I mean thoroughly convinced me, that it does not matter that the only treaty the Soviets have honored since 1917 has been with Nazi Germany in the invasion of Poland.

I know this is heresy, but I actually sometimes find myself (dare I say it?), actually comparing the massive military buildup of the Soviets to the buildup of Nazi Germany in the 1930s, which was ignored by the French and English and led to the debacle known as World War II. However, I am sure that after the total brainwashing by, I'm sorry, I mean total examination of the Liberal Philosophy I can put aside worry over trivia proven by historical fact.

Abortion? Well, I never really liked any of my nephews or nieces anyway — before or after they were born. Hey! How about legalizing abortion for the first three months after the gestation period, too. After all, it's only between a woman and her doctor.

I no longer have the malicious desire to be economically well off myself, either (this is so fun!). Never again will I be so selfish as to hope to have one penny more than Walter Mondale or Geraldine Ferraro has.

It is also such a pleasure to know that our president is such a devoted sexist. By the way, who appointed Sandra Day O'Connor to the Supreme Court, anyway?

Mr. Wilkins, in closing, I want to thank you for your fountain of reality which has lifted me from the depths of reasonability, oh, I mean conservatism. My only regret is that you did not write your column in time to convert the 60 percent of the American public who think they are better off now than they were four years ago. Those poor fools are under the illusion that just because inflation is down, unemployment is down, and interest rates are down, that things are better than four years ago.

Last of all, Mr. Wilkins, I really enjoyed reading your column. I laughed almost as much as I did during the Carter administration.

Parking for handicapped limited

By LISA MORRIS
University Daily Staff Writer

Because of a limited number of parking spaces, students who suffer from temporary injuries probably are not eligible to receive a handicapped parking space, said Trudy Putteet assistant to the Dean of Students and director of the disabled student service.

Unless the students are suffering from a severe physical disability, they will not be approved to receive a parking permit, Putteet said. Some disabilities considered to be severe enough to gain approval are physical deformities and weakness in bones and joints.

More than 500 handicapped students attend Texas Tech, and only 180 of that number have been approved to use the 22 designated on-campus handicap parking spaces. Putteet said students using those spaces must pay a $48 annual use fee.

She said the 24-hour handicapped parking spaces are approved to students based on the severity of their physical handicap. She said students must prove they have a permanent or life-threatening disability.

Some students suffer from hidden disabilities such as dialysis and cardiovascular treatments, she said.

"Many students come in my office with broken toes and sprains," she said. "Others must deal with a permanent disability on a daily basis."

She said there are not enough handicapped spaces to accommodate all disabled students.

If students believe they have a severe enough injury, they should schedule an appointment with Putteet for "handicap-area parking approval."

"I want to cut out the 'Tech shuffle,'" she said. "Students should know what to expect if they're thinking about applying for handicapped spaces." less severe will be accommodated with available parking in proximity to their need."

Students applying for handicapped parking spaces must provide "sufficient medical documentation" from a licensed physician, which includes a diagnosis, treatment summary, functional limitations and a prognosis.

Students who gain approval should return the signed approval card to the Traffic and Parking Office, where the permits are issued.

According to Traffic and Parking regulations, students "with disabilities identified as Putteet said students can obtain "drive-on only" passes where they can have a friend drive them on campus, eliminating the parking space hassle.

Students who illegally park in handicapped spaces or multi-striped areas are subject to having their vehicles towed and receiving a $200 fine.

Putteet encourages injured students to use the campus bus system. Six buses operate on three campus routes beginning at 7 a.m. Monday through Friday.

Chicago State in 1984-85 season opener

By COLIN KILLIAN
University Daily Sports Editor

Call it fatigue. Call it poor preparation. Whatever it was, Texas Tech's narrow 70-67 win Saturday against surprising Chicago State in the 1984-85 season opener was anything but pretty.

Tech coach Gerald Myers said after the game that the upstart Cougars, playing as an NCAA Division I team for the first time (CSU finished third in the NAIA national tournament last year), not only surprised the Raiders, but outplayed them as well.

"They really played well," Myers said. They outplayed us and were better prepared. You've got to give their coach a lot of credit. They did surprise us. We didn't expect a zone, but that's really no excuse.

"We've played against the zone throughout the preseason," he continued. "We didn't play well; we didn't play smart at all."

CSU led the Raiders 55-49 with 9:39 left in the game, but senior Quentin Anderson sparked an 11-point Tech scoring blitz that eventually proved to be the difference. Anderson finished with 16 points and 11 rebounds.

The Cougars battled back from that 60-55 deficit, charging to within one point four times. Tech led 68-67 after CSU's final basket, but senior Vince Taylor couldn't find a teammate on the inbounds pass, turning the ball over to CSU with 30 seconds left.

But senior Phil Wallace stole the inbounds pass from the Cougars' Charles Perry, who finished with a game-high 22 points. Moments later, Anderson was fouled and calmly sank two free throws to ice the contest.

The first-game inconsistencies displayed by both squads were apparent throughout the game. Three players fouled out as the teams combined to commit 55 fouls. The Raiders had 18 turnovers and CSU had 17. Tech shot only 41 percent from the field to the Cougars' 39 percent.

It was clear it wasn't going to be the Tech's night as the Raiders missed their first six field goal attempts. Still, Tech managed to take an 8-3 lead four minutes into the game.

CSU exploded for eight unanswered points to take an 11-8 lead and very nearly took control of the game.

"We got ahead, then threw it away bang, bang, bang," Myers said. "They needed a spark to show they could play with us. They played with a lot of confidence and determination the rest of the game. I think that was a big turning point."

Tech's Bubba Jennings fouled out midway through the second half, but he finished with 14 points and four steals. Taylor snagged 13 rebounds and had eight points. Senior Dwight Phillips, relying mainly on his patented, eight-foot baseline jumper, led Tech's scoring with 17 points on a seven-for-nine shooting performance.

"I really think we underestimated Chicago State," Myers reflected at his Monday press conference. "I think we thought we could do what we wanted to against them. They are a lot better team than we thought."

It is doubtful the Raiders will be caught offguard again, especially with a tough schedule ahead. Tech hosts Utah Thursday in the Lubbock Coliseum, then meets UT-San Antonio in Lubbock Saturday night. The Raiders close out the homestand Monday against highly regarded Washington.

"This is early in the year, and our team has not developed any type of personality," Myers said. "The schedule we have coming up, all the teams will be better than Chicago State. They'll really be challenging games, no question."

Women awe opponents, charge to sparkling 4-0 record

By REAGAN WHITE
University Daily Staff Writer

Texas Tech women's basketball coach Marsha Sharp brought a few doubting Thomases out of the woodwork with her optimistic assessment of the Raiders' chances of repeating last year's success.

All-Southwest Conference post Carolyn Thompson was lost to graduation, along with the sure-handed talents of Kellye Richardson and Janet Mears.

But someone with a serious vision problem or a poor memory might think Thompson was playing again for the Raiders after watching the performance of newcomer Tricia Clay this year.

Clay, along with another transfer, Sharon Cain, have led Tech to a 4-0 record in convincing fashion, bringing wrinkled brows to the doubters around Tech.

Tech won the Queens Classic in Plainview last weekend, defeating Wayland Baptist 81-58 in the title game. The win was Tech's first ever against Wayland in Plainview.

Wayland landed in the title game against Tech by defeating 11th-ranked Missouri. Missouri finished third with a 103-68 pasting of 20th-ranked Oregon State.

Clay and Camille Franklin were named to the all-tournament team, while Cain landed Most Valuable Player honors.

What this all means is that Tech is back, and back in such depth that the Raiders potentially could become a better team than the Tech squad that last year landed an NCAA tournament berth.

Gone is the post-oriented offense that fed Thompson the ball last year.

This year's souped-up squad features a full-court press and a run-and-gun offense that tries to run the other team off the court.

Tech can run because of team depth. With a bench full of players who can play as well the starters, Tech has a balanced attack that could see a different player take control of each game.

The team depth also should enable Tech to turn each game into a track meet, replacing quality tired players with quality fresh players, hoping the other team can't return the favor.

Flying Queens' head coach Dave Kitterman, who never had lost to Tech at the Classic before, gave Tech's steady full-court defensive pressure credit for the win.

Kitterman said his club ran out of steam and the fatigue caused his team to turn the ball over.

Indeed, the Flying Queens handed the bouncing ball over to Tech a grand total of 22 times, which is exactly the sort of statistic the Raiders hope to generate more of in order to continue their winning ways.

Cain and Clay, who both transferred to Tech from Odessa College this year after leading that team to 13 consecutive weeks in the number one ranking last year, already have shown what they can contribute.

The outside shooting of Lisa Logsdon also can control the tempo of a game. Logsdon controlled Tech's second game of the season against Florida A&M, while sophomore Lisa Wood demonstrated her ability by pouring in 17 points against the Queens in the Classic championship game.

Franklin's accurate jumper and slick inside moves accounted for 13 points in the title game, and 6-6 post Julia Koncak pulled down three rebounds and made three buckets when Tech's racehorse posts became tired.

Every player but one scored in the game, which showed that Tech may have a year ahead that will erase memories of last season.

Coogs nudge Tech, pick Cotton

By BRENDA KAY RICE
University Daily Staff Writer

The only thing that turned out as expected in the "Lubbock Bowl" football game Saturday at Jones Stadium was the final score.

Houston coach Bill Yeoman went into the game against Tech thinking the Cougars had almost no chance of a bowl bid. He dubbed the match the "Lubbock Bowl." But Yeoman came out of the game with a 24-17 victory and the inside track to the Cotton Bowl.

The "Lubbock Bowl" was not an average bowl game. More than 27,000 tickets were sold to the game, but because of the chilly rainfall fewer than 3,000 showed. In fact, one probably would have to count the players, coaches and everyone in the press box to get close to the 3,000 estimate.

How could Houston go from no bowl to the Cotton Bowl in a matter of hours? With a little help from Texas A&M, Southern Methodist and Baylor.

The three teams beat Texas, Texas Christian and Arkansas, throwing the Southwest Conference title chase into a massive tie. But Houston still had an advantage. It defeated Texas and SMU earlier this season, which puts the Cougars on top.

The only matter that stands between Houston and the Cotton Bowl is this Saturday's game against the last-place Rice Owls in Houston.

Proof that the Southwest Conference has been tough all year is reflected in the fact that five teams in the conference already have been guaranteed bowl bids. In addition, this is the first time an SWC team with two losses will go to the Cotton Bowl.

Houston's SWC record is 5-2 with one game remaining, while Tech finished its sixth consecutive losing season at 4-7 overall and 2-6 in the conference.

"We were probably a touchdown away in four or five ball games from getting into a bowl game," Tech coach Jerry Moore said after the game Saturday. "It's been like this all year; one touchdown away."

Tech took the lead early, scoring on its first possession. Quarterback Aaron Keese took the ball into the end zone from the 2-yard line to top off an 80-yard drive.

"I was out there doing my best every week," Keese said. "I don't know what the problem was, but sometimes our defense played hard enough to win a game but we didn't win."

Houston tied the game late in the first quarter on a 10-yard run by Raymond Tate, who riddled the Tech defense with 116 yards rushing. Houston pulled into the lead on a 46-yard field goal by Mike Clendenen to make it 10-7.

Tech's Ricky Gann countered with a 55-yard field goal just before the half. It was the longest field goal of Gann's career and tied him for the second longest in Tech history. The kick was the senior's 17th this season, tying Blade Adams' school record for most in a season.

Tech scored only once in the second half, an electrifying 100-yard kickoff return by freshman Keith Henderson, giving the Raiders a 17-13 lead. The return helped Henderson lead the nation in kickoff returns for the year with a 28-yard average.

In the third quarter, freshman Merv Scurllark broke up and almost intercepted a Houston pass in the end zone, forcing the Cougars to settle for a field goal.

"I really thought I had it," Scurllark said. "We'd been practicing that play in practice, so I was kind of expecting it. I feel like this season should have been a different season. Four or five games that I can think of could have gone either way."

Houston quarterback Gerald Landry's 9-yard pass to Tate in the fourth quarter put the Cougars up for good, 24-17.

Tech senior Freddie Wells ran for 113 yards on 14 carries to lead the Raiders.

Loose Pigskin

Tech defensive end Larry Mathis watches Houston's Mat Peirson fumble, but Peirson managed to recover before Mathis could get his hands on it. The Cougars fumbled five times but lost none as they edged Tech 24-17 Saturday.

Moore: Just one or two plays a game...

By LYN MCKINLEY
University Daily Staff Writer

Jerry Moore's Texas Tech Red Raiders began their first drive of the last game of Moore's fourth year like they have so many times before. They drove the length of the field, running right, running left, looking more and more like Nebraska with each five-yard gain.

Oh, but then they had to play the rest of the football game.

In fact, the Raiders played this last game against the Houston Cougars like they'd played so many games this season. Tech played three quarters of good football and came up short in the end. Again.

The Raiders lost to the Cougars 24-17 on the rain-soaked turf of Jones Stadium.

Tech led 17-13 after a 100-yard kickoff return by Keith Henderson. Houston came to within one after a 40-yard Mike Clendennen field goal in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter.

Moore should have stopped looking after Clendennen's kick crossed the uprights. The Raiders looked good for several minutes; then the mental errors returned. Tech drove to the Houston 29, where Timmy Smith took a handoff from Aaron Keese and fumbled. The Coogs moved 71 yards in 11 plays to score. Hello, 1985.

"You can't have a better opening drive than what we had," Moore said at his final weekly press conference of the season. "We go ahead 7-0 and feel pretty confident, but they came back to tie it.

"As far as effort, the effort from our people has been good," he continued. "We've got 33 of our 44 players returning. We've got a good nucleus to have a very, very good football team next year. All we can do now is point to an outstanding recruiting year. We start spring practice the Monday after Spring Break."

It seems the next chapter of Moore looks to next year has started. Tech finished the '84 season 4-7 overall, 2-6 in Southwest Conference play. Moore is 12-30-2 since taking over four years ago. The questions already abound about 1985.

"I've not talked to anybody and nobody has talked to me," Moore said. "I feel good about our staff and about our players. I can't help but feel good about that — that's just my nature. The only thing I know to do is work hard and do the best I can.

"This was definitely our most frustrating year," the coach continued. "I honestly felt we would be in a bowl game this year. Just one or two plays per ball game — that's how close we are."

The Raiders are improved from the 3-7-1 season in 1983. If Moore needs to defend his team's performance, he can point to several areas.

□ Tech's secondary finished first in the nation in pass defense, allowing only 114.8 yards a game. Starters Carl Carter, Roland Mitchell, Leonard Jones and Merv Scurlock return for the '85 season.

□ Freshman Keith Henderson led the nation in kickoff return yardage, averaging 28.9 yards a return, including the 100-yarder against the Coogs.

□ The Raider defense ranked third in the Southwest Conference and 20th in the nation, allowing 297.5 yards a game. Tech was fourth in the SWC in scoring defense, permitting 19.3 points a game.

□ Senior placekicker Ricky Gann finished tied for 17th in the nation in field goals per game with 1.55. Gann's 55-yard kick against Houston was his career best effort.

Yet the Raiders' most coveted yardstick of success was not reached. The Tech squad wanted a bowl game. Cotton was the best, but even the Cherry Bowl would have sufficed. No one but the players and coaches and a few fans will remember the '84 team's character.

"There were lots of disappointments," Moore said. "Sometimes the way we'd lose close games, like we did in the last quarter, is more disappointing than in my first year here (a 1-9-1 season)."

"It just didn't happen, and there's no need to dwell on it," Moore said. "I feel optimistic. I'm eager to work on our recruiting. I wish the off-season started tomorrow. The only way I know to get better is to work hard and work harder. I've never tried to make a bunch of excuses."

Brigham Young held onto its No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press college football poll Monday, but runner-up Oklahoma closed the gap appreciably.

BYU, which became No. 1 last week for the first time ever, completed a 12-0 regular season by defeating Utah State 38-13. The Cougars, who will face Michigan in the Holiday Bowl, received 34½ first-place votes and 1,133½ of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Meanwhile, Oklahoma downed third-ranked Oklahoma State 24-14 to earn a share of the Big Eight crown with Nebraska and a trip to the Orange Bowl. The Sooners, 9-1-1, received 18½ first-place votes and 1,128½ points.

Last week, BYU led Oklahoma 40-7 in first-place ballots and 1,124-1,053 in points.

While Oklahoma State slipped to ninth place, Florida moved up from fourth to third with five first-place votes and 1,048 points.

SAVOR

Savor the quality and comfort of Savoy.

Savoy Condominiums—one of campus life's finer pleasures. A community with a great deal of taste, across the street from Jones Stadium, and close to the fraternity and sorority houses and campus shops. A Savoy Condominium is your very own and gives you and your family all the tax-saving and investment opportunities of home ownership.

Think about living in a spacious home with all these: enduring tile entry, spacious living area, spectacular vaulted ceilings, oversized closets for abundant storage space, a charming woodburning fireplace, and a balcony with an exciting campus-area view. Your kitchen will be fully equipped with every convenience: a microwave oven, full-size refrigerator with icemaker, continuous cleaning oven, trash compactor, full-size washer and dryer package, waste disposer, and pantry.

Outside are lush landscaped courtyards with cool fountains surrounding a glistening pool soothing spa, and inviting tanning area. Enjoy yourself and your friends with barbecue grills, water volleyball, and our satellite television dish system which allows access to first run movies in each individual home.

Each home is prewired for its own security system and is close to covered carports and plenty of guest parking spaces.

Your investment still pays off after you graduate. A younger brother or sister can live in your Savoy condominium, you can rent it, or you can keep enjoying it yourself.

Visit our information center today, and learn more about Savoy Condominiums. See how private and how fun living near campus can be.

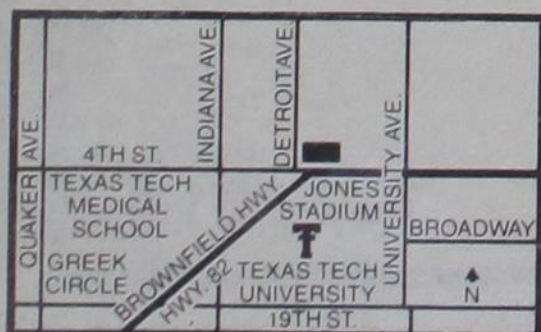

Now available for immediate move-in.

ENGINEERING OPPORTUNITIES YOU WON'T GET IN PRIVATE INDUSTRY

If you're sophomore, junior, or senior and thinking about a technical position after graduation, think about this. How many companies will pay you to finish your studies? If you qualify, the Navy will. You can earn $1,000 a month for up to 24 months while you complete your degree. After graduation receive...one year of graduate level training in nuclear engineering...$6,000 cash bonus...a starting salary of $27,800 and up to $41,000 in four years...30 days paid vacation...summers to travel all over the world on government aircraft...free medical benefits.

If you're majoring in engineering, the physical sciences, or math, find out if you qualify for this Navy scholarship. Navy officers are more marketable in private industry after serving as a Navy Nuclear Propulsion Officer. Call 1-800-354-9627 for information.

BYU offers no apologies

By The Associated Press

Brigham Young University suffers from an identity crisis that has the naysayers crying: "B.Y. Who?"

Brigham Young ended a 12-0 season with a 38-13 victory Saturday over Utah State. On Dec. 21, the Cougars will play unranked Michigan, 6-5, in the Holiday Bowl at San Diego.

Conference is a cream-puff conference, they say, that includes teams like Colorado State, Wyoming, New Mexico, Utah and Texas-El Paso.

The Holiday Bowl pays $470,000 compared with the $5.6 million offered by the Rose Bowl, one of the more revered New Year's Day bowls that normally produce the national champion.

And that's the road to a national championship?

"We realize there's a certain smugness in the high-population areas about us," Tuckett said Sunday. "But we understand all that, and we've got no real ax to grind.

"We're not in another world out here. We can play with these folks. We just don't have quite the respect we ought to have yet, but we're not impatient. We'll take it as it comes."

Tuckett points out that BYU did schedule Pittsburgh, Baylor and Tulsa among its nonconference opponents. His team was ranked No. 3 when it lost 20-14 to BYU in its first game of the season.

And, Tuckett says, the WAC doesn't have any monopoly on weak teams.

"The teams in the WAC are a lot better than people think," Tuckett said. "Does Kansas or Kansas State (of the Big Eight) scare anybody to death? No one forfeits to Rice (in the Southwestern Conference), or to Northwestern (in the Big Ten) or Kansas State or Iowa State, this year.

Tex-Mex musician regards zaniness as top priority

By PETE WILKINS
University Daily Staff Writer

According to the king of Tex-Mex music, Joe "King" Carrasco, "Rock 'n' roll's supposed to be wild; it's supposed to be about going nuts and crazy."

That eloquently phrased statement was made by Carrasco following a powerful performance at Fat Dawg's this month.

Joe King Carrasco & The Crowns proved that rock 'n' roll indeed is wild, nuts and crazy as the group jammed for an enthusiastic crowd that desperately was trying to stay on its feet while dancing.

In an interview after the show, Carrasco talked about a variety of topics, including band tours, MTV, politics and inebriated crowds. Most of the audience for the performance had partaken of a few drinks. Carrasco himself did not indulge.

"Alcohol just wipes me right out," Carrasco said. "How could I do what I do up there, and do it every night, and drink? Hey, it's a balancing act all the time, except tonight I fell right into the drums."

Carrasco laughed as he recalled his collision with the drum set. "That was like The Who; that was wild," he said.

Carrasco was not the only person running into things at the performance. "That's the rowdiest crowd I've seen in a long time," Carrasco said. "I got into it. If you try to subdue a rowdy crowd, you're defeating your purpose. You want people to be crazy."

Despite his appreciation of a lively crowd, Carrasco does not like to see things get too wild.

"I don't think anybody should hurt the next person, you know?" Carrasco said. "I believe you're there to dance and have fun. To me, I don't want to hurt the person next to me at a concert. That's a drag. Sometimes it gets out of hand. I hate seeing girls get crushed a lot. It bothers me; I see that a lot. I break a lot of hearts." Carrasco laughed, adding hastily, "I'm just kidding. That's a joke."

As far as touring is concerned, Carrasco readily admits that The Crowns' schedule is a bit haphazard. "We're sporadically going out," he said. "We started off in Austin two nights ago (Nov. 13). We play constantly."

"This tour will go all the way up to (Nov.) the 21st. We'll go through Europe. Our last show is somewhere in Texas."

One might think Carrasco's hectic pace eventually would become tiresome, but the "King" disagrees.

"I don't get tired," he said. "The touring never bothers me, plus, God, how could I ever get tired of going to Europe? Playing in Europe is so exotic, it's a lot of fun. Everybody in Europe wants to hear Tex-Mex music."

Carrasco said he prefers Spanish music to the majority of contemporary sounds heard on popular radio stations. "For me, rock 'n' roll has gotten so out-of-hand from what I want it to be," he said. "It's supposed to be simple and fun. All the other stuff you see on MTV, it's all garbage. For me, it is." Carrasco stopped to consider what he had just said.

"Not garbage; there's a lot of good stuff. I think you have to pick out the good stuff from the bad stuff. I shouldn't say it's all garbage."

Carrasco admits that the band's latest videos contain strong political messages.

"We did 'Current Events (Are Making Me Tense),' an anti-nuke video, and then we did another one called, 'Who Buy The Guns (That Kill The Nuns).' It's about American presence in Central America."

"I've always been a real political person," the bandleader said. "People don't realize our music's Tex-Mex. I don't think most people realize I write music down in Central America, and all of a sudden I see a bunch of soldiers coming down there from the United States, messing everything up. It bothers me."
