Cavazos, regents outline financial cuts

By KIRSTEN KLING
University Daily Staff Writer

Members of the Texas Tech Board of Regents pledged Friday to "meet and work with the leadership of the state" to solve the funding crisis facing Tech and other institutions of higher education. Tech President Lauro Cavazos announced to board members immediate plans to cope with the proposed legislative budget cuts.

In a statement to the regents, Cavazos explained the damage a 26 to 27 percent budget decrease would have on Tech. Virtually all areas of higher education would be affected severely.

The state Legislative Budget Board (LBB) — the committee responsible for reviewing and recommending budget appropriations for state universities and colleges — proposed Dec. 5 to reduce funding to Tech and other state colleges and universities. If the recommendation is approved during the 1985 session of the Texas Legislature, funding for Tech will be reduced by more than $27.7 million in 1986.

"We are faced today with the first major funding cuts for higher education in Texas since the Great Depression," Cavazos said. "It took years to build our current momentum toward quality, but in less than one biennium this thrust toward excellence can be severely damaged." Cavazos said he hopes the budget problems will be solved, but he said Tech nevertheless must start preparing for the sharp budget reduction.

Cavazos instructed administrators both at the main Tech campus and at the Health Sciences Center to discontinue hiring and replacing faculty and staff until the exact financial situation for the 1986-87 fiscal year is determined.

Other immediate actions specified by the president include:

- a 5 percent reduction of general non-salary budgets for the current fiscal year;

- a delay until August 1985 of all major renovation and construction projects not already contracted;

- a 5 percent reduction in purchasing library books and materials;

- a 10 percent reduction of physical plant expenditures for renovation, repairs and purchase of equipment; and

- a 5 percent reduction of planned summer school programs.

Cavazos told the board he regretted taking the actions, but he said the reductions are minor compared to the actions that could be implemented if the major funding cuts are approved by the Legislature.

"I have approved the 1986-87 budget guidelines for Tech and the Health Sciences Center and anticipated cuts despite the unclear situation in Austin," he said.

Cavazos also predicted consequences of proposed budget cuts — more than 20 percent for the university and 8 percent for the Health Sciences Center. He said further budget cuts would include:

- the termination of 10 percent of full-time professional faculty; the release of all visiting faculty; the encouragement of early retirement; and the substantial reduction in the numbers of part-time instructors and teaching assistants;

- an overall 5 percent reduction in salaries and wages paid faculty, professional, administrative, classified and hourly and part-time personnel;

- the reduction by one-fourth of summer school programs;

- a 60 percent reduction of travel;
- the elimination of vocational teacher training programs;

- a 30 percent reduction of library acquisitions;

- reduction of student counseling and assistance such as career placement and advising;

- the closing on nights and weekends of academic classrooms, offices and laboratories;

- an increase in class sizes;

- reduction or elimination of some academic programs;

- degradation of campus safety and security;

- deterioration of buildings, grounds, structures and equipment;

- freezing programs in the School of Allied Health; and

- elimination of 40 resident physician positions unless outside support is secured.

"With all that has been invested in education in Texas, it does not seem reasonable to cripple higher education, which is the last and vital step in the formal education process. ... This is an issue where all of us must stand up and be counted," Cavazos said.

"Higher education in Texas and the future of our economy must be saved."

Regents Chairperson John Birdwell spoke on behalf of the board and said the board will do everything possible to prevent the large fund reductions.

"We would hope ... friends of Tech would join together and help in working to reduce these cuts," Birdwell said.

Board approves university system request

By KIRSTEN KLING
University Daily Staff Writer

The members of the Texas Tech Board of Regents approved Friday a request to establish a university system, which could entail the employment of two presidents — one for the Tech Health Sciences Center and another for the university.

Currently, Tech has an unofficial system organization with one chief executive officer serving as president of each of two institutions. The Tech Health Sciences Center also has regional academic health centers in Amarillo, El Paso and Odessa.

In August, an ad hoc committee was organized to make recommendations on the current university system. Regent Rex Fuller of Lubbock said the central staff is stretched too thin.

Fuller said Tech may benefit if an organizational structure with a president of each of the two institutions and a chancellor of the overall system is employed.

Legislative approval must be attained to begin university reorganization.

In other business, Regent Chairperson John Birdwell appointed a committee to study the implications of the separation of the Division of Architecture from the College of Engineering.

Birdwell said there seems to be a favorable situation for the separation but said he will not know for sure until the committee examines the matter.

If the ad hoc committee recommends action for the separation, the item may be on the board agenda in March, Birdwell said.

The board also authorized planning for the sale of $1.4 million in athletic use fee revenue bonds to construct a $4.2 million multi-purpose athletic facility.

The 300-foot-diameter facility will be located south of Jones Stadium. The two-level building will be large enough to accommodate six to eight tennis or volleyball courts, a portable basketball floor, an artificial, 60-yard-long football field surface, a 235-foot diameter track and a gymnasium and weight area.

The upper level of the complex will house a 1/7-mile track with eight lanes. The facility will be funded through the reserves and bonds from men's athletic funds, student service fees and building use fees.

Construction contracts also were awarded for the completion of the second and third floors of Pod C of the HSC for the schools of Allied Health and Nursing. The expansion of the department of internal medicine in the HSC also was approved.

Regents approved the schematic design to construct the physical plant loop road and approved renovation of electrical service to residence halls, the Civil-Mechanical Engineering Building and Chemistry Building.

Montford speaks to group against violent crime

By RHONDA NORMAN
University Daily Staff Writer

"If we want to win, we have all got to band together to fight violent crime," State Sen. John Montford told the more than 150 persons who attended the first meeting of the newly formed local chapter of People Against Violent Crime (PAVC).

Montford was the guest speaker at the PAVC organizational meeting Thursday night at St. Christopher's Episcopal Church. The local chapter of PAVC was formed by Mary Helen Snow Lair, whose 21-year-old daughter, Lauren McCarty, was raped, beaten and stabbed to death last month in Austin.

During the meeting, Montford explained how a group such as PAVC can be a deciding factor in the fight against violent crime.

"Criminal law enforcement is an attitude," Montford said. "It starts on your block with people like you."

Montford informed the group members how they can be the eyes and ears of the community through organizations like PAVC. "Nothing gets done until people get involved and do something," said Montford, former Lubbock County criminal district attorney.

One of the primary purposes of PAVC is to inform the public of legislation dealing with violent crime, and Montford talked about current proposals that should be followed by the PAVC members.

"We have several strong proposals being considered in the legislature right now," Montford said. "We need help in getting more bills to the floor this year so as to get them through."

One important proposal being considered by the Legislature is the Victim's Bill of Rights. The proposal, Montford said, gives the victim some input in the criminal justice system. If passed, the bill would allow the witnesses or victims in a crime to be protected by law enforcement officers.

The legislation also would deal with finding financial assistance programs for the victims and their families. Montford said the bill would include many important ideas designed to aid victims of violent crimes.

Other bills to be considered this session by the Legislature include Senate Bill 99, which deals with crimes involving persons under the age of 14 and older than 64, and Senate Bill 151, which deals with abandoning and endangering young children.

Montford explained to the PAVC members how the participation of the community can be important in the success of the bills.

"We are going to have a good session for law and order," Montford said. "But we need all of you to get involved locally and nationally and all work together."

Concerning the fight against violent crime on the local level, Lubbock Police Chief Tom Nichols told the group the basic problem for local law enforcement agents is the overload of cases.

"The system does basically work," Nichols said. "But the criminal justice system cannot absorb all the cases."

Nichols said during the past two years 62 people have been murdered in Lubbock and 225 rapes have been reported. Nichols said the actual number of rapes, including those not reported, probably is double that number.

"Crime victims cannot speak up for their rights," Nichols said, "because they are dead. We need people like you in PAVC to do it."

Lubbock Criminal District Attorney Jim Bob Darnell, who also attended the meeting, said many people are becoming tired of the verdicts returned in violent crime cases.

"We have had two capital murder trials in Lubbock recently in which the death penalty and life imprisonment were returned as the sentences. This shows that people are tired of this sort of thing happening and want to see these people pay for what they've done," Darnell said.

Darnell also informed the group of legislation being considered this session that would eliminate the one-third sentence idea in which criminals are allowed to be released on parole after serving only a portion of their sentence.

"These type of individuals should be left in the pen without being released at all," Darnell said.

Nichols said that according to a 1984 study, life in prison means serving only seven years.

Bob Stearns, chairperson of the Austin PAVC chapter, said the problems mentioned by Darnell and Nichols are just a few of the many barriers that the local PAVC members can concentrate on overcoming.

"We (PAVC) are trying to improve the criminal justice system to better protect the people," Stearns said. "The system is basically sound and healthy, but we need to address problems such as releasing violent criminals and just work closely with the Legislature on as many issues as possible."

Stearns said PAVC also is structured to aid the victims and family members who have been involved in a violent crime through counseling, in addition to the group's function of monitoring issues being considered by the Legislature.

"We are very pleased to see a new chapter in Lubbock, and we hope to see everyone in the community get involved in our struggle against violent crime," Stearns said.

Fewer students enroll at Tech; registration total falls by 2,153

By RICK LEE
University Daily Staff Writer

Fewer students are choosing to enroll at Texas Tech, according to preliminary spring registration figures. While the decline in enrollment is slight, the decrease continues a pattern dating to 1983.

Although final registration figures will not be available until after the 12th class day, the unofficial tabulation stands at 21,280 students, a decrease of 2,153 from the fall semester.

Gene Medley, director of admissions and records, said the normal attrition rate between the fall and spring semesters is generally in the area of 2,000 students.

"We always have lower registration figures in the spring than in the fall," Medley said. "But compared to last spring's figures, we are about in the same place."

Medley declined to speculate on the possible reasons for the loss of so many students between the fall and spring semesters. However, figures from the Office of Statistics and Records indicate that although fall registration figures continue to decline each year, the numbers approach offsetting the loss of students in the spring enrollment.

The fall enrollment in 1984 was only 217 less than the previous fall figures after a drop of 2,010 in the spring semester.

Tech is ranked fourth in enrollment for Texas public senior colleges and universities, according to reports from the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System. But that ranking is expected to be displaced this year by the University of Texas at Arlington.

So far, all Tech colleges have shown a drop in declared majors. According to the Office of Statistics and Records, the College of Business Administration is down 582 students, the College of Engineering is down 534 students and the College of Arts and Sciences is down 462 students.

The remaining colleges also suffered by the enrollment drop. The Graduate School enrollment has decreased by 245 students, the College of Education enrollment has declined by 135 students and the College of Agricultural Sciences has decreased enrollment by 118 students. The College of Home Economics is down 69 students; the School of Law enrollment has dropped by 63 students; the School of Nursing is down 21 students; and the School of Allied Health enrollment has declined by 15 students.

Blaze damages Chitwood/Weymouth; residents saved despite late alarms

By KEVIN SMITH
University Daily Staff Writer

An early evening fire Sunday forced the evacuation of Chitwood and Weymouth Hall residents and caused extensive fire and smoke damage to the building but no injuries to dorm residents.

Tech Fire Chief Tom Foster said the blaze began in a room on the northwest end of the third floor of Chitwood Hall. Fire officials had not determined the cause of the fire by late Sunday.

Foster said the fire completely gutted one room and damaged several other rooms on the third floor of the women's dorm. Smoke damage crept as high as seven floors above the origin of the fire, he said.

A burst waterline between the third and fourth floors added to the damage before firefighters and a Tech maintenance team could seal off the waterline.

Several Chitwood residents said the fire alarms were late in going off. One resident who lives on the eighth floor of Chitwood said the alarms did not sound until many residents already had begun to be evacuated.

Residents of Weymouth also said their alarms were late in sounding.

The University Police were notified of the fire at 6:57 p.m., and the Fire Department was notified about the same time. Foster said fire units were at the scene before 7:30 p.m. and that the fire was brought under control quickly.

Men can offer security to women fearing rape

By CHERYLE LOCKE
University Daily Staff Writer

Men probably don't understand much about it. They probably don't care much, either. Women are the ones who think about it, dread it and have nightmares about it. Of all the diverse types of crime, rape is the one whose victims are almost exclusively women.

Rape receives a lot of press, and the movie industry has almost made it a genre of its own. The American public is not starving for facts about rape, but at the same time there seems to be a lack of communication between women and men.

Last week a Texas Tech student was raped. Old news by now, right? Old news as far as the media are concerned — old news to those who just skimmed the article in the newspaper, but it probably is not old news to many female students at Tech who still are having trouble believing that it really happened.

The university has not flippantly shrugged its responsibility to try to prevent rape. The university should get a pat on the back for making "rape" vans and emergency on-campus telephones available.

Although students are made well aware of the convenience of the vans to cart them around campus at night, most students believe it's dumb to call a van just to run out to the car to find a notebook.

Even as the incidence of rape continues to become more common, many girls still comfort themselves with the idea that it will never happen to them. As soon as it seems it will never happen, it does.

It's difficult to try to make a man understand or feel the things a woman feels when she allows herself to briefly imagine being violently stripped of her own sexuality.

How can a man understand the results of rape? A man cannot imagine being forced into rendering his most private self at the risk of losing his life, because men are born with physical strength and power. Men are more likely to be able to overpower their attacker. Women are not always so fortunate.

Perhaps it is not really a man's fault that he does not try to imagine the crippling effects of rape, but maybe it's time he began. He may not be aware of it, but rape can brutally mangle him just as much as it can a woman.

Rape obviously is an irreversible act. Once it happens it can't be changed, and the paranoia will leave its scars for a long time. A man will feel oddly betrayed and perhaps vengeful if his girlfriend, wife or close friend is sexually assaulted.

The perverse crime eats away at both the woman and the man. Both are victims and both have had their most personal right violated.

So even if men cannot fully understand the fear that women experience, men should attempt to help women. The focus should not be on helping women after the rape has occurred, but instead, helping women prevent rape from ever becoming a reality.

Men should let women know they always can feel free to call on them. If a girl needs to run to the grocery store late at night she should not feel hesitant to call up a male friend to go along with her. If she needs to go over to the Business Administration Building to take a late-night stats test, she should not feel as if she would be imposing if she called on a friend to walk over there with her.

We are living in a time of independence, and many female students don't want to feel they have to rely on a guy for help. Times have changed, and women have become more self-sufficient, but the fact remains that men still are, in most cases, stronger and bigger than women.

Women should not see it as a weakness if they call up male friends to walk somewhere with them at night. It is not a sign of frailty or cowardice. It's just common sense. Women and men always will need each other for different reasons until the end of time. It is not a downfall, but a reminder of friendship and humanity. Even now, chivalry is not dead.

Rebutting the rebuttal

To the Editor:

It wasn't surprising at all to read the frustrated so-called counterpoint written by Mr. Safraz Khan (The UD, Dec. 14). Actually, his letter simply exposes the crocodile's tears shown by Mr. Ahmad at the assassination of Mrs. Gandhi (The UD, Nov. 9). We have never expected to borrow President Reagan's well-known remark, but after going through your letter, Mr. Khan, we couldn't resist saying, "There you go again."

To say the least, we never thought to be in any contest with Mr. Khan to become spokesman of Indian students on the campus, and it might be wise for him to leave the matter of expressing the opinion of Indian students to them.

We would have liked to read some U.N.-documented argument about the three wars between India and Pakistan, rather than the circumstantial and the so-called earthly logic of Mr. Khan.

Even with his standard and logic, probably, he would not have liked to know that half of the Indian Army faces the 4.5 million member Red Army of Communist China, which has already attacked and grabbed some Indian territory in 1962.

Not only that, they are still engaged in subversive activities against India by training Communist rebels in Mizoram (which Mr. Khan seems to be supporting). Tripura and Nagaland (which he could not remember).

The reasons for Pakistan's attacks on India were, simply, unpopular martial law regimes trying to get some popularity by attacking India, as was done by the military junta of Argentina in the Falklands war.

Sorry, Mr. Khan. It is not possible to buy your argument.

It is a fact, Mr. Khan, that India three times offered a No War Pact to Pakistan before the Simla Pact of 1972 and Pakistan refused to sign it. In 1972, it was Indian diplomacy which prevailed over an elected prime minister, Mr. Bhutto, of Pakistan and got the agreement on not using arms to resolve their disputes. If you really believe in the Simla Pact, Mr. Khan, we would like to know the reason for the "No War Pact" now advertised Pakistan.

As for India's non-alignment principle, a few facts for you to ponder, Mr. Khan. India is the current chairman of the Non-Aligned Movement (with a membership of 101 countries out of 146 countries in the world), and you might know that Pakistan is a simple and faithful member of this movement. India wants to have good and friendly relations with all the countries in the world.

India buys its arms according to its needs and terms of deals. We can, of course, understand your intention of not mentioning the Indians' purchase of Jaguars from Britain, Mirage-2000 from France, submarines from West Germany and machine guns from the United States. You had better not classify these countries too as allies of the Soviet Union in an effort to portray Pakistan as the only country against the Soviet Union.

For your information, Mr. Khan, India has an active cooperation with the United States in its nuclear program. We might as well remind readers about the arrest of a Pakistani agent in Houston last year, who was trying to smuggle some parts to be used in atomic bombs.

Your reference of 1974 nuclear test by India as an atomic bomb does not show the intelligence you might be expecting of yourself. Even "Webster's Dictionary" would have helped. Actually, you have authorized yourself to state so many other balonies (which are too mean to be mentioned) that we would not let you plead even insanity for those balonies, because we firmly believe that that is the mental status you have.

Finally, a few words about demons' teaching of the scriptures, as you have tried to explain democracy. First of all, we can feel only pity on you for going to "Webster's Dictionary" to understand the meaning of democracy, even after staying in the world's oldest democracy (the United States).

Now, about Indian democracy, we quote your own statement: "...United States of India where scores of languages are spoken, where a person from Kashmir and one from (the) state of Madras have common history, religion, culture, race, language or customs."

Just to show the limitation of your dictionary knowledge, there is nothing like United States of India; actually, it is Union of India and Madras is a city, not a state.

Mr. Khan, those are the values of a democracy (we wish you had a chance to enjoy its practice) where different races, religions, languages, et cetera, are free to develop. It would be interesting to know your opinion about the multi-cultural, multi-ethnic, multireligious and more-than-one-language system of the United States.

Believe us, Mr. Khan, it has worked here for more than 260 years. It would work in any country where the wishes of people, not generals, prevail. It takes more often than not to go beyond "Webster's Dictionary," dear, to understand the complex nature of this world. Otherwise, the Texas Tech Library would prefer to buy only Webster dictionaries instead of spending millions of dollars on other books.

A few last words about your uneasiness over the elections of Nehru and Ghandis: We must confess that we, too, were not the supporters of Indira Gandhi's party and were actively against her in every election she contested, but, unfortunately, for you, Mr. Khan, we could not succeed more than once, because the people of India voted for her overwhelmingly.

We might mention to the readers the Pakistani elections which are to be held next month. "No political party would be allowed to contest, and every candidate would have to be approved Military rulers."

We are not kidding; it was (an) Associated Press report in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Do you really believe, Mr. Khan, this election to be any different from those in the Soviet Union, where the Central Committee selects the candidates instead of the military junta in Pakistan?

Improved mousetrap!

To the Editor:

For the last several days of my Tech student life, I saw the same old picture I saw last year. A large number of students formed the line waiting to get inside West Hall. Getting inside was not enough; there has been a long line curling like a snake.

I had this experience once last year, when I first enrolled at Tech. It took more than three hours to get to the terminal. Thanks to the pre-registration process, I don't have to wait so long again. We all know that the problem is the insufficiency of computer terminals, so add no more!

I think the real problem is keeping people waiting too long. Can you imagine, say, 200 students, each of them waiting for three hours? Those are 600 obviously unproductive hours of Tech students!

I got an idea from my old school, which, at least, can relieve this problem for a while. The idea is nothing but to have a piece of paper which has a number on it. Of course, 1, 2, 3 and so forth. Let me call it "the Queue card."

When you go to West Hall to register, add, drop or only change a section you have to pick up this queue card. By the number on your card, you can find the period of time for you to do whatever you want at the terminal. For example, the registrar's office has to know the approximate number of students it can handle in a period of time.

If the office has 10 terminals available at a certain time, the terminal time for each student being about five minutes, each terminal could take care of 12 students in an hour. That means 120 students in total. Also, the office may divide the time to a short period of time such as 10 minutes.

The office can make the schedule for students according to the period of time. Therefore, whoever gets the queue card number 1 to 20 can have access to terminals at 8-8:10 a.m. Numbers 21 to 40 could have access to terminals at 8:10-8:20 a.m.

By this example, the office can handle 20 students in a 10-minute period.

So no matter how late you go to West Hall, you don't have to wait anymore. Just take your time, do whatever you want and come back by the time which corresponds to the number on your card.

The only thing we have to do is measure the terminal time of each student by sampling, which is not difficult or tedious, because we want only the estimating time, and we can adjust the figure very easily.

This would be also on the basis of first-come, first-served, but, remember, no more waiting in line, no more unproductive hours, no need of more terminals and absolutely no more complaints!

Every time I turn on the TV, I have a compulsion of turning it off. And every time I read The University Daily, I want to throw it away before I can turn to the third page. Well, I'm always enjoying the cartoon on the second page.

Last semester, a professor reminded me that there were many people starving in the world during the final examinations.

Oh, God, I am depressed. It is not that I don't care about the world. I am always keeping up with the internal and external situations. Well, maybe, we (all people) need to be reminded sometimes.

My conservative friends would like to stop the communism expansion with the big sticks. Well, it's reminded me of a game that I played at a fair, where the object of the game was to hit with a hammer as many furry animals sticking their heads out of the holes.

My liberal friends told me that we (Americans) should stop building weapons, and start feeding the world. Well, I didn't think that alone would solve the problems.

My dedicated Christian friends always remind me how I can go to heaven by being born again. Well, thank you. I know that, too. No matter, I would like to wish everyone the best. And for me, I solved my problems with my magic pen.

Beauty in you
Softly, you embraced me,
And touched me gently
And when I looked at you closely
I saw your endless beauty
Only I can sense

Suddenly, a magical beauty between

Us turn into a moment of grace
That glides freely in the night sky.

Oath precedes pageantry today

By The Associated Press

Super Bowl with 100 million other Americans.

It was 9 degrees outside when Reagan took his oath in the red-carpeted elegance of the executive mansion's State Floor. Forecasters were warning parade-goers that today could be the coldest public inaugural in history.

Presidential spokesperson Larry Speakes said today's inaugural speech — to be delivered from the West Front of the Capitol — will look forward to "an American renewal, continuing America's proud and revolutionary tradition."

Vice President George Bush was sworn in a minute before Reagan, with his friend, retired Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart, returning from New Hampshire to administer the oath.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger administered the oath to Reagan, who said: "I, Ronald Reagan, do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, so help me God."

When Reagan finished, Burger said, "Congratulations, sir." The President kissed first lady Nancy Reagan.

It isn't the oath that made Reagan the president; the Constitution dictates that the president's term ends at noon on Jan. 20, when his successor's begins. Thus, Reagan's second term would have begun Sunday even if he had postponed his oath to await the public ceremony today.

The guests listened to the U.S. Army chorus sing the hymn "America" before adjourning to a reception. Reagan and Bush stepped outside, where the wind-chill factor was minus-22 degrees Fahrenheit, to pose for pictures — without overcoats — and answer a few questions from reporters before joining their guests a few moments later.

Asked what he hopes for in a second term, Reagan said, "Well, I hope it's a little warmer."

NEWS BRIEFS

Needs spur officials' request for help

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas prison officials candidly admit to filth, poor medical care and unsafe conditions in the state's prisons in documents filed for another federal court bout over prison reform.

Drafted by the state in preparation for an appearance next month before U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, the paperwork reflects a new strategy by the state to avert a costly and controversial hearing, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

By confessing past deficiencies in "uncontested statements of fact" filed last week, the state is hoping to prove it is making progress in cleaning up the prison system.

The documents filed by the state cite examples of raw sewage leaking on food in a prison kitchen; hundreds of inmates referred by doctors for hospital treatment but no appointments made; waiting lists for vocational training; crowded conditions forcing inmates to sleep in halls; and other deficiencies.

Gay rights opponents condemn mayor

HOUSTON (AP) — Opponents who worked to overwhelmingly defeat two anti-discrimination ordinances that would have recognized homosexual lifestyles said Sunday that city leaders who endorsed the controversial measures must be replaced.

"There's one way we can avoid doing this again, and that's by electing godly, righteous people to office," said Steven Hotze, head of the opposition group Campaign for Houston.

The two anti-discrimination proposals, together dubbed the "gay rights ordinance," were defeated in a referendum Saturday by more than 4-1 margins.

Opponents, including some of Houston's most influential business leaders, argued that approval would grant legal status to homosexuals in the nation's fourth-largest city. Backers argued that the proposals would merely extend anti-discrimination protection. Mayor Kathy Whitmire, who received strong gay support in her two successful elections, was the most prominent backer of the proposals.

Israeli withdrawal negotiations resume

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Prime Minister Rashid Karami said Saturday that Lebanese and Israeli negotiators will resume this week their suspended talks on "the program and timetable for an Israeli withdrawal" from southern Lebanon.

Karami made the announcement of the new session, scheduled for Tuesday, came after he and President Amin Gemayel met with U.N. Undersecretary General Brian Urquhart in Beirut. Urquhart has shuttled to Israel, Syria and Lebanon in the past week to get the U.N.-sponsored negotiations started again.

Discovery in place, first secret mission set today

By The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL — The five astronauts who will fly America's first military man-in-space mission arrived here Sunday, and though the countdown was set to start at 4 a.m. today, the exact shuttle launch time remained a military secret.

The astronauts, all military officers, skipped the usual arrival statements to reporters after flying here from their training base in at Johnson Space Center in Houston. They were greeted by relatives and drove quickly to crew quarters.

Officials have said only that liftoff will occur between 1:15 and 4:15 p.m. EST Wednesday. They contend that keeping the precise time classified will make it more difficult for Soviet spy satellites and trawlers sitting offshore to monitor the flight.

NASA reported Saturday that the Defense Department is considering opening up the countdown to reporters when it reaches nine minutes before the intended liftoff, and a decision was expected today. The news media will be permitted to watch the launch from the press site.

Launch time cannot be precisely calculated just by knowing when the countdown starts, because the count includes "hold" periods of unannounced length during which the clock is stopped.

Space shuttle Discovery will be carrying a sophisticated new spy satellite into orbit, sources have reported.

Abortion protests

Pickers march; bomb charges filed

By The Associated Press

Abortion rights supporters picketed a Roman Catholic archbishop's house and kept vigil at clinics for a third day Sunday, while opponents conducted rallies and car caravans in activities building up to the 12th anniversary of the Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion.

Meanwhile, three men were arrested Saturday in connection with eight anti-abortion bombings in the Washington, D.C., area in the past year.

At least 24 such attacks have occurred since January 1984, and the National Organization for Women sponsored round-the-clock vigils that continued Sunday at 25 family planning centers and abortion clinics in 18 states to protest the violence. Participants generally reported a quiet weekend without incidents.

In Boston, about 40 pro-choice protesters marched outside the home of Catholic Archbishop Bernard Law, who last week offered the support of the Boston Archdiocese — including medical and financial aid — to any woman of any faith who chose to keep her child rather than have an abortion.

Braving 18-degree temperatures, the demonstrators chanted "Safe, legal, on demand — abortion rights across the land" and carried signs that read "Motherhood by choice, not chance."

Law was not available for comment Sunday because he was on his way to Cuba with a delegation of U.S. bishops, said his secretary, the Rev. Joseph Scorzello.

Daredevil dies from injuries suffered in fall

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Daredevil Karel Soucek died after he dropped 180 feet from the top of the Astrodome in a barrel and missed a tank of water in which he was supposed to land, authorities said Sunday.

Soucek, 37, of Ontario, Canada, died at 12:05 a.m. Sunday in Ben Taub Hospital, a speaker from the Harris County medical examiner's office said. He had suffered a crushed chest and abdomen and a skull fracture, according to the examiner's report.

MIA

Norris flick targeted for captive audience

By PETE WILKINS
University Daily Staff Writer

To the list of poignant, gripping films starring that commanding performer Chuck "Chuckles" Norris may be added yet another stirring story. This one is titled "Missing In Action."

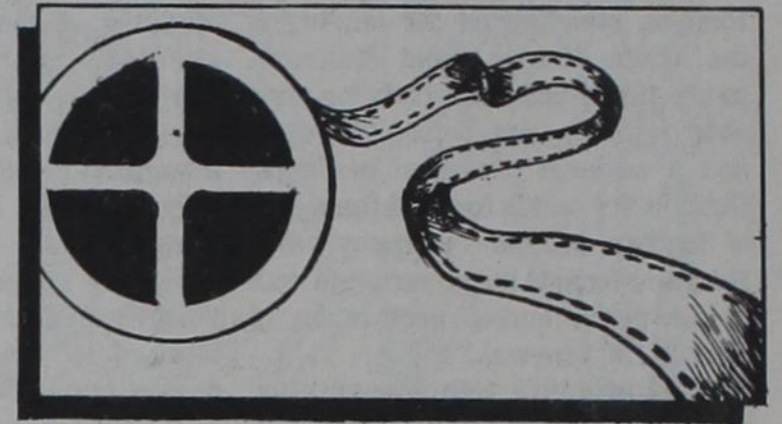

"Missing In Action" is the story of Col. Willard (Norris), a macho-but-sensitive Vietnam veteran who returns to "Nam" in the present as part of an official United States delegation bent on discovering if American prisoners of war (POWs) still are held captive there. Why Willard was invited as part of the American entourage is not clear, and why anybody would want him to come along is anybody's guess.

As the movie starts out, Willard is reluctant to return to "Nam." But following a scene where he sits at home alone, drinking a beer and listening to a television news commentator talking about the delegation (while Willard sweats and sweats), he finally kicks his television over and decides to go. The television blows up, of course.

The scene is slightly reminiscent of the opening scene of "Apocalypse Now." However, whereas "Apocalypse" was quietly effective, "Missing" is loudly trite. Unfortunately, the movie gets little better from there. Upon landing in Saigon, Willard comes face to face with the very man who tortured him during his stay as a prisoner of war. What a coincidence! Only now, the antagonist/communist is a "high-up" in the government.

But wait! The plot gets worse. Eventually Willard causes a ruckus at the negotiations and stalks out. Not content to just make a scene, Willard sneaks out of his hotel room that night and, through all kinds of cunning tricks, finds his way to the heavily guarded home of the chief Vietnamese negotiator.

After threatening the Vietnamese negotiator with a knife, Willard learns the location of the secret POW camp. However, upon taking his leave, he is forced to kill the Vietnamese honcho with a knife. Too bad! The end of the story (like the beginning) is quite predictable. Willard looks up an old American army buddy who happens to live in nearby Thailand while he manages to foil all kinds of attempts on his life by those nasty communists. Naturally, throughout the whole flick, anyone who isn't an American is a horrible shot with a machine gun. The Yankees, on the other hand, happen to be crack shots.

Eventually, Willard manages (almost) to rescue single-handedly about six American soldiers still held captive. In the process he also wastes his old adversary, the guy who tortured him in the war.

The whole movie is your typical hokey, pro-American, anti-commie plot that can be seen in "stunners" such as "Red Dawn."

"Missing In Action" is not entirely different from "Uncommon Valor," which came out about a year ago. Unfortunately, "Missing In Action" is no better than last year's example, I'm afraid. It's worse.

"Missing In Action" (or perhaps, "Missing In Substance") is quite possibly the worst movie I've seen in a couple of years. If you like lots of dazzling explosions and patriotism-on-parade, this movie is for you. If you like credible, sensitive filmmaking, you would be better off watching your favorite commercials on television.

English craze sweeps reformed China

By The Associated Press

PEKING — Chinese are buying tickets to talk to each other — in English.

English Corner, a bleak roof space atop a bookstore on Peking's busy Wangfujing Street, is attracting hundreds of mostly young Chinese anxious to improve their English. They pay .15 yuan (6 U.S. cents) admission and gab, usually with each other.

It's the latest twist in an English-language craze that began in the late 1970s. A freewheeling English Corner also exists in Shanghai, China's largest and most cosmopolitan city.

Many schools teach English, thousands of workers attend spare-time classes and many listen to the BBC and Voice of America, which has special slow-speed programs for learners.

But opportunities to practice speaking are few.

"We talk about everything, but mostly how to study English," said technician Li Xiaoling, 29. "We discuss Peking traffic jams, economic reforms, supermarkets, Syrian-Israeli jet battles in the sky."

The state-run Foreign Languages Bookstore recently started the corner in roof space and a small, adjoining room. The business opens weekends and several times during the week.

Red-hot Raiders pound last-place Baylor, 92-71

Tech avoids post-Hogs letdown behind Anderson's hot hand

By DANNY DAVIS
University Daily Staff Writer

WACO — The letdown many skeptics feared never happened. What happened instead was Texas Tech's purposeful and methodical pounding of the Baylor Bears, 92-71, Saturday at Heart 'O Texas Coliseum.

After the Raiders' 64-48 win against Arkansas Wednesday, Tech seemed ripe for a letdown. But in a coliseum that appears better suited for cattle than basketball, Tech raced out to a 24-7 advantage before the Bears knew what hit them.

Quentin Anderson primarily was responsible for the first-half scoring barrage as the senior forward accounted for 18 first-half points — fourteen of them in a row — to lead the Raiders. On this night, Anderson scored almost at will. Every time Tech got the ball inside, he put it in the hole.

Tech super-guard Bubba Jennings continued his high-scoring ways with a 10-of-14 effort from the field and a perfect 6 of 6 from the free throw line. Jennings and Anderson matched number of minutes played with points (24 points, 24 minutes for Anderson; 26 points, 26 minutes for Jennings).

The Raiders continued to play solid defense as they held the Bears to only 71 points — 16 points below Baylor's season average. The defense allowed Baylor to connect on only 42.3 percent of its field goals, and the Bears could hit only a meager 55.2 from the charity stripe.

The second half began in much the same manner as the first half. Anderson and Dwight Phillips combined to outscore Baylor 6-1 to open the period. "I was real pleased that we had no let down," Tech coach Gerald Myers said. "I think our seniors kind of set the pattern. Baylor's got a young team, but they played hard. We had that big lead at the first, but they played us pretty even in the second half."

Senior forward Vince Taylor played only 24 minutes, but he collected nine rebounds, scored five points and had two assists.

Bears coach Jim Haller said he had no problem seeing why Tech, now 4-1 in Southwest Conference play and tied for second place with Houston, was able to beat Arkansas by 16 points.

"I was tremendously impressed with Tech," Haller said. "We tried every kind of defense we know how to run, and nothing worked. We out-rebounded SMU and Texas A&M and almost Texas, but tonight we didn't do a good job on the boards."

With the starting five being so effective early, Myers had a chance to give his reserve players playing time. Tobin Doda and Kent "Wojo" Wojciechowski played 17 and 12 minutes.

"Getting to play more than just a few minutes helps me to build confidence," Doda said. "Coach Myers tells us to just go out and play relaxed like in practice." "Wojo," who has seen limited action this season because of a shin splint injury, said his game time should continue to increase as the season progresses.

"Because of my injury, I'm just now getting rid of those pre-season jitters," he said. "I figure that by the next few games I'll be ready to go."

Tech edges past Baylor

By DANNY DAVIS
University Daily Staff Writer

WACO — The 16th-ranked Texas Tech women's basketball team survived a scare by the Baylor Bears Saturday at the Heart 'O Texas Coliseum, pulling out a hard-fought 68-66 Southwest Conference victory.

Tech forward Tricia Clay led all scorers with 25 points but made only 35 percent of her shots from the floor. Clay was shooting more than 65 percent for the season coming into the game.

Tech led 37-36 at intermission but immediately jumped out to a 10-point lead to start the second half. The Raiders' pressing trap defense forced the Bears into numerous turnovers that Tech converted into easy points.

Midway through the second half, the Bears' fortunes began to turn. Tech suddenly went ice cold from both the floor and the free throw line. After shooting 87.5 percent from the line in the first half, Tech could manage only 41.7 in the second half (5-12). Baylor's own pressing defense caused several Tech turnovers, but fortunately for the Raiders, Baylor also went cold from the floor, missing many close-range shots.

"We just got out of the offense," Tech guard Camille Franklin said. "We got a little bit sloppy, and they took advantage of it."

Perhaps not coincidentally, Tech's lead began to dwindle when Franklin went to the bench with her fourth personal foul with more than six minutes left in the game.

"Camille is positively our best press breaker," Tech coach Marsha Sharp said. "She will always be good. She handles pressure extremely well."

"In the end, it came down to who wanted it the most," Franklin said. "We definitely had more to lose than they did — and we definitely wanted it more."

With less than a minute to play, Tech had the ball with the game tied 66-66. But as she has so many times this season, Tech's Sharon Cain came through in the clutch. With 35 seconds left, she drove around the top of the key to the right wing and attempted a 12-footer. The shot was long, but the rebound came back to her, and she followed with the game winner with :28 remaining.

"I thought the difference in the game tonight was the difference in the Arkansas game — when Cain took control," Sharp said.

Cain has proven her maturity in pressure situations, and when the game is on the line, the Raiders know they have a "Cain" to lean on.

Women capture Canyon meet

The Texas Tech women's track team Saturday captured the West Texas Indoor Invitational in Canyon behind the performance of senior distance runner Maria Medina, who won two events.

Tech compiled 62 total points to outdistance Wayland Baptist, which finished with 39. West Texas State was third with 14.

Medina set a meet record in the mile run with a time of 5:04.73. She also won the 880-yard run in 2:26.50. Veronica Cavazos took the 2-mile run in 11:34.60.

Thorna Scott set a meet and school standard in the 300-yard dash with a 36.56 clocking. Gay Gandee was first in the high jump with a leap of 5-2.

Men thinclads 2nd at WTSU

The Texas Tech men's track team finished second Saturday in the West Texas Indoor Invitational at Canyon, 23 points behind Wayland Baptist.

Tech's Roland Mitchell set a meet record in the high jump with a leap of 7-0. Other Tech individual winners were Eric Everett in the 60-yard intermediate hurdles (7.41), Scott Lister in the two-mile run (9:53.42) and Carl Chancellor in the shotput (53-7). Former Tech All-America James Mays, running unattached, set a meet record in the 880-yard dash with a 1:54.78 clocking.

Wayland finished with 121 points to Tech's 98. Meet host West Texas State was third with 71, followed by Lubbock Christian with 61, South Plains College with 53, New Mexico Junior College with 43, Howard Payne with 12, Eastern New Mexico with 6, Panhandle State with 5 and New Mexico Military Institute with 2.

SMU rolls on; Arkansas loses second straight

By The Associated Press

The high-flying Southern Methodist Mustangs likely will have to adjust to a higher altitude this week. The third-ranked Mustangs, who outlasted stubborn Texas Christian 74-70 Saturday, could pass Duke in The Associated Press poll. The Blue Devils lost two games last week and the Mustangs are in good shape to settle into the No. 2 spot behind unbeaten Georgetown. No SMU basketball team ever has been ranked that high. "Whether we deserve to be ranked that high is up to the writers and broadcasters, but I believe we've earned it," said SMU center Jon Konkak. "We've done all we've been asked to do so far," said Mustangs guard Butch Moore. Konkak scored 29 points and gathered 13 rebounds against TCU. He also hit four free throws in the final 20 seconds to seal the victory in Moody Coliseum. SMU now is 15-1 and off to the best start in the school's history. The Mustangs are the only unbeaten team in Southwest Conference play with a 5-0 ledger. In other SWC games, Houston and Texas Tech kept pace for second place while Texas A&M moved into sole possession of third. The Cougars bounced Arkansas 78-73 at Hofheinz Pavilion and Texas Tech routed Baylor 92-71 at Heart O' Texas Coliseum in Waco. A&M edged Texas 66-61 Sunday at Erwin Special Events Center. The speedy Mustangs will get two severe road tests this week. SMU will be at Texas Wednesday and will travel to Lubbock Saturday to meet the always salty Red Raiders of coach Gerald Myers. SMU coach Dave Bliss will have to get some matters settled with star guard Carl Wright before the Texas game. Bliss pulled Wright late in the TCU game for not running the coach's plays. Wright left the bench area and departed to the dressing room with the game still in progress. "No. 44 (Wright) didn't run things the way I wanted it run," said Bliss. "All he had to do was keep the ball outside and he wouldn't do it." "The clock was our only enemy. I'll have to have a talk with him. He's probably the most impatient competitor I've ever known." Wright, who had 15 points and 10 assists before his disappearing act, said he left the bench because "my leg was bothering me." The Horned Frogs, who got a season-high 28 points from guard Dennis Nutt, dropped to 9-8 and 1-5. Houston and Tech are 4-1 and A&M is 3-2. Houston hosts Baylor Thursday and is at A&M Sunday. Tech is at A&M Wednesday before hosting the Mustangs. Arkansas dropped to 3-3 with the loss to Houston, and Texas fell to 3-3 with the loss to the Aggies.

49ers dominate Dolphins, 38-16, for NFL title

By The Associated Press

STANFORD, Calif. — Joe Montana, making a shambles of the quarterback showdown with Dan Marino, shattered the Miami Dolphins' defense with his passing and scrambling and led the San Francisco 49ers to a 38-16 victory in Super Bowl XIX Sunday.

Montana passed for three touchdowns, ran for another and set Super Bowl records with 331 yards passing and 59 on scrambles. He kept the 49ers totally in control, leading them to scores on five straight possessions in the second and third quarters to make the Dolphins, who had the National Football League's second-best record at 16-2, look like overmatched losers.

It was the second Super Bowl victory in four years for the 49ers, who finished with an NFL-record 18 victories against one loss.

Montana was voted the game's most valuable player, matching the award he won in San Francisco's 26-20 victory over Cincinnati in Super Bowl XVI.

He had exemplary help from Coach

Montana triumphs in QB duel with record-breaking effort

Bill Walsh's bag-of-tricks offense, from fullback Roger Craig, who caught two TD tosses and ran for a record third score, and from a defense whose pressure on Marino exceeded anything a Dolphins opponent had been able to do in this record-breaking season.

Marino was intercepted twice and sacked four times. In two NFL seasons, Marino had not been sacked more than three times in a game; he had been dumped only 13 times in 18 games this season and not at all in two playoff games.

The game was portrayed as a dream contest between the NFL's two best teams, but the 49ers clearly were better.

And for this day at least, so was Walsh in his "genius" match with Miami's Don Shula.

In fact, the game was competitive only in the first period.

Miami took a 3-0 lead on the first of three field goals by Uwe von Schamann, lost it on a 33-yard TD pass from Montana to reserve running back Carl Monroe, then got it back again on a brilliantly executed six-play, 70-yard drive engineered by Marino.

But that 10-7 first quarter lead lasted only until Montana got the ball back. By halftime it was 28-16, by midway through the third period 38-16. That was fine with most of the 84,059 fans in Stanford Stadium, just 30 miles south of the 49ers' home base at Candlestick Park.

But there were other heroes besides Montana.

His offensive line allowed him to be sacked only once and more often than not, he could have been in a rocking chair, looking around for receivers. When there were no receivers open, he simply took off.

The 49ers defense, meanwhile, did what few teams did this season against Marino in a season in which he shattered NFL records with 48 touchdown passes and 5,084 yards.

With few exceptions — once on that first-quarter drive in which the Dolphins operated twice without a huddle to keep San Francisco from running its multiple defenses — Marino was forced to dump off rather than throw his customary deep patterns to the Marks Brothers, Clayton and Duper.

Much of the credit went to a secondary that forced Marino out of his quick-release rhythm and forced him to hold the ball a second longer as Fred Dean, Dwaine Board and the rest of the defense poured in on him.

For the 49ers, it also was a victory for balanced offense.

San Francisco picked up 211 yards on the ground, with Wendell Tyler leading the way with 65 yards in 13 carries and Craig adding 58 on 15 runs. The Dolphins, meanwhile, could pick up only 25 against a 49er defense that gave up only one touchdown in three playoff games.

Montana's 59 yards on five rushes broke the record of 37 set in Super Bowl XIII by Dallas' Roger Staubach, and Montana's 331 yards, on 24-of-35 passing, broke the record of 318 set by Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw in Super Bowl XIV.

Marino finished with 318 yards on 29 of 50.

Tewell's disaster hands Peete Phoenix crown

By The Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Calvin Peete, given breathing room by the triple-bogey disaster that struck down Doug Tewell, scrambled home with a 3-under-par 68 and scored the ninth victory of his PGA Tour career Sunday in the Phoenix Open.

Peete, 41 years old, the most successful black player the game has produced, won the tournament by two strokes with a 270 total, 14 shots under par on the 6,726 yard Phoenix Country Club course.

The victory was worth $81,000 from the total purse of $450,000 and gave Peete the fastest start of his career.
