Two lose lives in car accident

By DAVID CORTES

Two Texas Tech students died during the weekend after sustaining injuries in a high-speed, onevehicle accident early Friday morning on 19th Street between University and Boston avenues.

Steve Charles Pepitone, 18, of Sweetwater was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Bill Ross. The driver of the car, Sean Edward Dennany, 18, of Brownsville died at 12:27 a.m. Saturday at Lubbock General

According to police reports, the accident occurred about 2 a.m. Friday while Dennany and Pepitone were returning to Coleman Hall from a nightclub. Dennany apparently lost control of the vehicle and slammed head-on into what grounds maintenance personnel call the largest tree on

The direct cause of the accident still was under investigation Sunday, but police had not ruled out the possibility that alcohol or wet streets could have been factors in the wreck. Police said no evidence of alcohol was detected in the car.

Witnesses told police the car was traveling west on 19th Street when the car struck the center median and did a series of spins before hitting the tree.

The Lubbock Fire Department's Jaws of Life unit was used to remove the victims from the car. Police said neither student was wearing a seat belt.

Tax increase may be necessary to help raise revenue for Texas

Tuition increases may level off

By FRANK BASS

Students attending Texas public universities should have a five-year reprieve from tuition increases after 1986, according to Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield.

Rudd, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said state legislators will begin looking at other alternatives to solve the state's revenue shortage.

"For the next five years, I don't think you'll see the Legislature mess with tuition at all," Rudd said Friday.

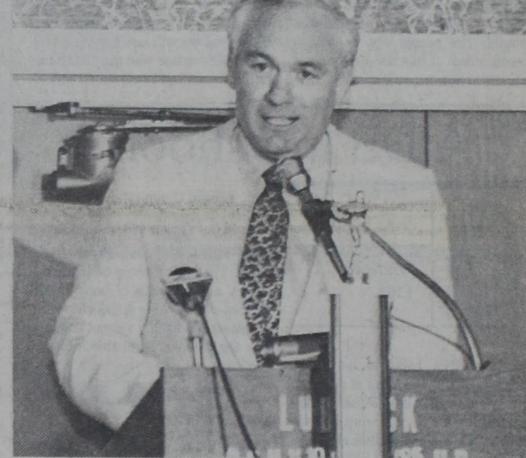

He said the impact of the recent tuition increase will not be fully known until all enrollments from state universities and colleges have been Chris Heunis, who as minister of constitutional tabulated.

"The enrollment figures given so tional changes, said Sunday the moves were not an at- far indicate that the tuition increase has not affected enrollment at all, or "It was not directed at reaction internationally," he in some cases, very little," Rudd said. Rudd said figures to date have been inconclusive, however.

"On the other side of the coin, if enrollment drops off, there's no doubt discriminatory laws covering housing, education and that the tuition increase will have had a detrimental effect," he said.

Rudd also said many legislators feel tuition should comprise between bringing it to a standstill as they tried to steal gasoline, a 20 percent and 25 percent of the cost of a college education.

"There's a great deal of talk about letting tuition cover between 20 and 25 percent of that cost," Rudd said.

"Right now, tuition makes up between 12 and 25 percent of a college education."

Rudd, a graduate of the Texas Tech School of Law, said the tuition increase should decrease law school enrollment.

"I think you're going to see enrollment level out," he said.

UNP's office mistaken as Dunn contact

By LINDA BURKE University Daily News Reporter

Carelessness in Texas Tech's University News and Publications (UNP) office last week sparked suspicion that the office was being used as a contact for a state representative candidate.

Sally Logue Post, a press agent for candidate Charlie Dunn and an employee in the UNP office, mistakenly included the office's phone number on a press release sent to the media announcing the Lubbock attorney's quest for the Texas House of Representatives.

University policy states that employees may work on political campaigns in their spare time, but it does not allow them to handle a candidate's work during business hours.

Faculty turnover raises questions

University Daily

Kirsten Kling

According to officials in the Office of Academic Affairs, the Texas Tech faculty has decreased by 12.4 percent. Len Ainsworth, associate vice president for academic affairs, told The University Daily there were 107 openings for regular faculty members and that 81 of those positions have been filled.

According to the Faculty Senate and many other faculty members, those figures are inaccurate. Several frustrated and angry faculty members called to tell us that we have been misinformed.

It is, of course, exasperating to discover misinformation may have been communicated to the public. It is even more exasperating to receive phone calls from concerned faculty members who tell us our figures are incorrect but that they are unable to supply us with differing figures.

The phrase: "something is amiss, but I'm not sure what it is," does not hold much water. Everything is in order, as we hear it from some administrators. Everything is in disarray, as we hear it from the faculty.

In the first Faculty Senate meeting Wednesday, there was much discussion concerning the number of faculty members who for some reason left Tech. The reason for the probing discussion was twofold. The people who work and attend school at this university want to know 1) how many teacher vacancies there are at Tech and the reasons behind those vacancies; and 2) why the records in the Office of Academic Affairs have so many discrepancies compared to faculty knowledge.

To find the answers to those pertinent questions, the Faculty Senate assigned Ernest Sullivan, senator and English professor, to investigate the administration's records and record-keeping procedures.

As head of the status and progress committee, Sullivan and other faculty members hope to find exactly how many teachers have left Tech.

The senate believes the administration doesn't know who (teachers) is on campus, who is on leave and who has retired.

As is the case sometimes, maybe we assumed too much. That is, that the Academic Affairs Office maintains accurate records and can keep track of its faculty.

On the other hand, maybe once again we are feeling the effects of a large communication gap — one that broadens the distance between the low levels and the highest hierarchal levels within this university.

If that is true, there is only one solution. The University Daily will attempt to close the gap.

At the time of this writing, we have started again to investigate the number of faculty vacancies. We will be calling each department head, and we will ask for statistics. We invite anyone who may have factual information to contact The UD.

AIDS in schools

University Daily News Reporter

Marlene Ellis

Lately, I've been seeing news spots about the picketing of children with Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) who want to go to elementary school. Although AIDS has been reported in Lubbock, we have not had to think about how we would feel if a victim of AIDS wanted to attend Texas Tech.

If I knew I had a fatal disease, I would want to live the rest of my life in pursuit of pleasure and introspection. I would prefer not to attend class, or spend my time studying and writing papers. I know I cannot speak for everyone, so let us suppose someone with this fatal, contagious disease wanted to come among us and be educated.

Would you want this person to be barred from the campus or only certain activities? Would you want this person barred from the Rec Center? Would you want to lie down on a bench wet with sweat or pick up weights used by this person?

How about the cafeteria? Would students start wiping their forks before eating? Or would we just ban that person from the University Center all together?

Doctors report that there have been no cases of casual transfer of AIDS. They say it must be transmitted by an exchange of body fluids. Nurses who care for AIDS victims in hospitals reportedly are not contracting the disease. Still, this information does not allay the fears of people. More than any other fatal disease, we fear the socially stigmatizing AIDS.

What if the victim is a teacher? How many students would this teacher contact in one week?

I was told in political science classes that the United States has laws to protect the rights of the individual. There are dangers in a group of people deciding whose rights we choose to abuse. Stone me if you like or call me un-American, but I would like to bar any AIDS victims from Tech.

Would I kick a person who already is down? I would if that person had the potential to hurt others. If a cure were found soon enough to benefit our imaginary victim, he could finish his degree later. Having AIDS is no less serious than the car accidents and monetary setbacks that cause delays in the lives of people.

Victims of AIDS should be isolated from the mainstream of people until a cure is found.

Federal defense spending remains constant the federal deficit stems from

American News Service

Though few people seem to be aware of it, the federal government is looking down the barrel of its first $1 trillion budget.

If past trends hold up, that is the amount of money Uncle Sam will spend next year, in fiscal 1986. Which means that federal spending will have almost doubled since Ronald Reagan first was elected ($576 billion in 1980). The net result is a far cry from the image of frugality and stringent cutback on domestic spending conveyed in most discussions of this topic.

The somewhat astonishing fact of the matter is that the federal budget has continued growing just as rapidly under conservative Republican budget in our history. Reagan as it did under liberal Democrat Jimmy Carter. Moreover, ding constitutes three-quarters of the the distribution of this spending between defense and non-defense functions continues essentially as before

- with some three-quarters of national outlays going for matters other than defense.

The nature of this process may be seen by comparing the original spending targets the Reagan administration set forward when it came to office, the pre-existing trend line based on policies in place before Reagan was elected and the actual spending

On the average, total federal spending under Reagan has increased by $70 billion annually and has come in each year about $35 billion higher than his specific budget proposals. Prison head blames court order for unrest

HOUSTON — When a federal court abolished the building tender system in Texas prisons, it left a power void that gang members are killing one another to fill, a state prison administrator says.

The escalating warfare has resulted in seven killings since Labor Day and has led prison officials to order 17,000 inmates kept in their cells in a widespread lockdown.

James E. Riley, deputy director of operations for the Texas Department of Corrections, says gang activities are posing a "critical problem" that must be dealt with.

Colleges set disinvesting trend in Africa

NEW YORK (AP) - A spring of campus protests and a summer of South African violence have swelled the ranks of colleges that are selling all or part of their investments in companies with dealings in South Africa.

Since April, when scores of U.S. campuses erupted in anti-apartheid protests, about 20 colleges and universities from Maine to Arizona have adopted policies of total or partial divestiture of South Africa-related Sixty-one schools have sold almost $300 million in such portfolio holdings since tiny Hampshire College in Amherst, Mass., became the nation's first college in 1977 to adopt a South Africa-free investment policy, according to the American Committee on Africa, a New York-based antiapartheid lobbying group.

Derailment dumps acid in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A freight train derailed on a trestle, rupturing 26 of its tankers and spilling up to 300,000 gallons of sulfuric acid into a river, killing fish and forcing the evacuation of about 300 people, officials said Sunday.

There were no serious injuries and no danger to water supplies in the Saturday night accident, authorities said.

Several people who complained of skin irritation from the acid's fumes were treated by emergency medical workers, said Bexar County sheriff's Sgt. Ray Gerlach.

The evacuations were ordered within one mile of the accident on the Medina River south of San Antonio, said Carl Mixon, Bexar County fire marshal.

A message from Covergirls, Inc.

It was 18 months ago that I started working on a photography business to give models the freedom of choice on what kind of photographs they chose to pose for. To my surprise many women asked me about the possibilities of being a model in such National magazines as Playboy and Penthouse. In September of 1984 we ran an ad in the U.D. and hundreds of women were interviewed, screened, and tested for the magazines. Since then several Tech coeds have glamorized the covers and pages of various publications and became some of the most successful models on the east coast. A year ago no one could have convinced me that I would become one of the most controversial figures in West Texas history, simply for offering people the Freedom

I and the photography I offer have been the subject of a story published in the UD (June 19, 1985) and most recently we have been featured on KAMC TV 28.

Right now a few so called "Decency" groups are trying to dictate censorship to the American people as a whole. The "Decency" experts want to take away your freedom to watch certain TV programs, look at and read certain magazines and the type of music you like to listen to.

If we start making exceptions to the freedoms guaranteed us under the First Amendment anything can happen. Ten years ago the city of Miami banned "Mother Goose." As an American you have the right to say no to censorship. Say it today. Tomorrow may be too late. Freedom is everyone's business.

1984-85 has been a very good year for Covergirls. With your help we expect even a better year for 1985-86. We look forward to serving you. Who knows you could be the next success story.

Susan Akin wins crown

By The Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. - Miss Mississippi Susan Akin was crowned Miss America 1986 on Saturday, fulfilling a computer prediction that she would win the title.

Wearing a lace gown accented with rhinestones and crystal drops and topped with white fox, the 21-year-old Miss Akin, from Meridian, cried and blew kisses to the crowd after her name was announced before a national television audience and a crowd of 21,300 at Convention Hall.

Miss Akin was crowned by Miss America Sharlene Wells, 21, of Salt Lake City. She took her victory stroll down the runway as host Gary Collins sang "There She Is," a pageant hallmark missing for the past three years because of a dispute with its composer over money.

"If you knew the feeling to hear your name as Miss America ... you just want to turn around and say, 'Thank God!'" said Miss Akin.

The veteran of more than 100 pageants since she was 6 years old, Miss Akin said her first thought when she heard her name announced was: "I did it. I finally did it!"

The first runner-up was Miss South Carolina, Sherry Annette Thrift, 23, of Westminster. The second runner-up was Miss Texas Jonna Fitzgerald, 21, of Greenville. The third runner-up was Miss Washington, Honey Castro, 19, of Moses Lake. The fourth runnerup was Miss Alabama, Angela Tower, 25, of Birmingham.

George Miller, a retired business professor now living in Bellevue, Wash., said earlier this month that based on his computer analysis, Miss Akin had the best chance of becoming Miss America. She is the fourth Miss Mississippi to become Miss America.

Miller assigned odds to all 51 contestants by feeding into his computer their personal statistics and then comparing them to a composite of the winners from the past 20 years. Miss Akin, a senior at the University of Mississippi, has said that word of Miller's selection thrilled her because she has wanted to be Miss America since childhood. But one of the judges said she told them in her interview that she thought the 7-1 odds assigned her by Miller also put her at a disadvantage. "I wanted the judges, the audience, the media to see me as Susan Akin," she said after the pageant. "Instead of saying, 'There is the computer pick,' I wanted them to say, 'There's Susan Aiken. There's Miss Mississippi."

The winner, who has had voice training for 10 years, sang an Italian love song, "You're My World," in the talent competition. She wore a lilac one-shouldered gown with a flowing skirt that was covered with glitter.

She said she used to perform magic tricks in talent competition for local and state pageants, but decided the small portion of time allotted contestants did not permit her to wow the audience or the judges.

She said she did perform a trick during her interview, however, making three ropes of different lengths turn into three of the same length.

The new Miss America said the hardest part of her reign will be leaving her relatives. "We have a very close-knit family," she said. "But I think it is worth it to be Miss America."

In the swimsuit competition, the 5-foot-9, 114-pound Miss Akin wore a white outfit. Earlier in the week, she captured a preliminary swimsuit competition.

Miss Akin, whose family has kept lions and a monkey for pets, said she eventually wants to work in public relations.

Hot blues sizzles crowd

By PETE WILKINS

University Daily Lifestyles Reporter

The Fabulous Thunderbirds delivered good music and a good time to an appreciative crowd at the Lindsey Theater Thursday night. After patiently waiting through a humdrum set by the Ace Liquidators, the T-Birds' solid rocking sounded especial-

The band came out and took control of the situation immediately. Lead singer Kim Wilson sized up the eager crowd and the T-Birds launched into "Tear It Up." Instantly the space in front of the stage was filled with dancing couples.

After a rousing ovation from the crowd, the T-Birds wasted no time in cranking out "Why Get Up," another hard-driving number that rocked the ceiling. Wilson's soulful voice and thick, dirty harmonica playing provided a focal point for the songs, while Jimmie Vaughan's bluesy guitar playing earned him a standing ovation at one point.

Whether pounding out a crunching rocker or slow blues, the Thunderbirds played tightly and with considerable style that is the mark of a band that knows what it's doing. Brimming with confidence, the band delivered one crowd-pleaser after another.

Bassist Preston Hubbard, the newest member of the band and an alumni of the Roomful of Blues, much preferred his upright bass to his electric. Although proficient on both, Hubbard's upright playing dominated the evening as he cooly smacked his gum and provided the band's solid bass.

Springsteen continues to woo Dallas fans again and again

By ERIC STEELE

University Daily Lifestyles Reporter

It's difficult to walk away from a Bruce Springsteen concert with a feeling short of elation. Few performers make the transition from studio to stage better than Springsteen. He is always involving and often inspiring.

That would explain why some fans paid as much as $750 for premium front row seats for the weekend concerts at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. Other fans, however, preyed on the glut of scalpers. Minutes before showtime, tickets were being sold

Either way, the more than 60,000 fans who jammed the Cotton Bowl Friday night were treated to classic Springsteen. The sound system, which normally suffers in outdoor events, consisted of stateof-the-art equipment and provided outstanding sound throughout the Springsteen's raspy voice belted out "Born in the USA" to launch what would become a traditional four-hour marathon concert. The show was well-balanced, mixing old with new, familiar with obscure. Springsteen enticed the crowd with a number a stories dealing with his childhood and the hard times that accompanies unemployment, the suffering economy and seeking the American Dream.

Springsteen has been called the champion of the blue collar, and his music and attitude reflect the struggles of the people. Although it wouldn't be fair to call his image contrived, it is meticulously delivered. Between songs he often reminisced about his childhood. He talked about coming home late and finding his mother wearing pink curlers and flowered slippers. She would be asleep on the couch in front of the TV, he said.

He spoke of conflicts with his father, of tucking his hair in his collar so his disapproving father wouldn't notice the length. He spoke of his father's desperate attempt to provide for the family on his meager salary. He addressed broken relationships and broken dreams. The show was strictly American.

But Springsteen's storytelling comes across as intense and sincere. The crowd was silent and still while he spoke. He appeals to the masses. Fans don't find him as distant as many other rock performers who seem trapped in the untouchable world of Hollywood.

Musically, it's hard to find a tighter band than Springsteen and his E Street Band. Springsteen always is the center attraction, but it never would come together without the refined talent of the E Street Band. They provided a near flawless performance and did so with enthusiasm and drive.

Huge video screens on either side of the stage gave everyone at the Cotton Bowl a good look at the action on stage. Several cameras were used to give a number of perspectives.

All the songs performed from the "Born in the USA" album were lively and engaging. Springteen donned a baseball cap and involved the crowd for "Glory Days." The crowd went wild over Springsteen's gesture during "Dancing in the Dark." Mirroring the video for the same song, Springsteen cocked his hand behind his head and offered his hand to a young girl on the first row. He brought her on stage, where they danced with each other as the crowd cheered them on. As the song closed, she ran to embrace Springsteen, who picked her up in his arms and returned her to her seat.

Other songs that seemed particularly noteworthy were "Hungry Heart," "Cover Me," "Thunder Road" and an roused performance of "Trapped." After two lengthy sets, the band returned for two encores.

Springsteen did an inspired version of "This Land is Your Land" and finished the first encore with "Born to Run." The second encore had a decidedly '50s flair, beginning with a 15-minute rendition of "Twist and Shout" and ending with "Travelin' Man."

Spirited Lions handle Cowboys

By The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. - Darryl Rogers, fresh out of the collegiate coaching ranks, has instilled a new spirit in the Detroit Lions that has carried them to victories in his first two National Football League games.

Redskins flag down Oilers' upset bid, 16-13

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The same penalty flags that allowed the Houston Oilers to soar last week were their undoing Sunday as they fell to the Washington Redskins 16-13 under a sea of yellow flags.

Last week, the Oilers were aided by a pass interference call in the end zone to come from behind in the a 51-yard pass play that would have fourth quarter to beat Miami.

The Texas Tech men's golf team opens its season today at the 54-hole Fall Southwest Conference Commissioner's Cup Championships at Crown Colony Country Club in Lufkin. Houston is the defending champion, but Tech coach Tommy Wilson said he feels Arkansas will challenge the Cougars for the 1985 title. Wilson said he expects Tech to improve on last year's eighth place finish. "We look to do much better. I expect our team to finish around fourth or fifth," Wilson said. Wilson chose a team of six from 51 players that tried out. He said a final roster decision will not be made until Sept. 27.

Wilson chose Dale Ray Akridge, Roque "Rocky" Baeker, Terry Jackson, Randal Strickland, Mike Voigt and Chris Hudson to participate in the tournament.
