Panel advises mainframe split

By FRANK BASS

University Daily News Reporter

Members of an ad hoc committee studying Texas Tech's computer system submitted a proposal to Tech President Lauro Cavazos

Wednesday that will separate the academic and administrative computer systems from each

The proposal recommends that the current mainframe, an IBM 3033, be changed over into administrative use and that academic computer services use a Control Data Corp. (CDC) and two VAX 8600s.

The proposal calls for the engineering academic workload to be served by the CDC, while the colleges of business administration, home economics and arts and sciences will work on a VAX.

Cavazos said the total cost of the computer program will be "in the general ballpark of $4 million."

Donald Haragan, interim vice president for academic affairs and research, said Wednesday the phasing out of the IBM for academic use and installation of the new equipment will take time.

"It will not be an overnight process," said Haragan. "When the new computers come on board, we anticipate phasing out academic will be used more in administration."

Despite fears by some faculty and students the change in systems will place Tech graduates at a disadvantage when they enter the job market, Haragan said the system will be IBM-compatible.

"IBM PCs can access VAX equipment," he said, "On the super minicomputer level, VAXs are the dominant factor, also."

Haragan said the system change will necessitate some retraining.

"We'll need to be retraining some of the people," he said. Haragan said the committee has not discussed the academic need for certain administrative data, such as student records. "Exactly how that will be handled will be addressed by the new committee," he said.

Haragan praised the CDC and VAX systems.

"The CDC is ideal for many of the calculations needed in scientific and engineering applications," he said. "The VAX will be used in arts and sciences, business and home economics."

"Analysis shows the VAX and CDC are the best equipment for our needs," Haragan said. "There are also security advantages to separating academic and ad-use of the IBM 3033 which, in turn, ministrative computer usage."

Although the current system has been estimated to be valued at $3.5 million, Haragan said the true value of the hardware in the system is difficult to estimate.

"The problem with assessing computer hardware is that it becomes obsolete so fast," he said. Haragan also said the new system will be completely networked. "If anyone needs to, they'll be able to access any computer they need," he said.

While Haragan said Tech's computer system is not the nation's most advanced system, he said he was confident that the committee's recommendations will help persons using the system for both academic and administrative purposes.

"Certainly, there are places that have much more computer power per student than or per faculty member than Tech," he said. "These plans will bring us to where we need to be."

Haragan said the new computer system will be upgraded on a steady basis.

"We'll continue to upgrade the system year-by-year," he said. "Since the system will be networked, it's going to be easy to upgrade."

Gott cited the names of three professors who left Tech during the censure because they believed the college lacked sufficient academic freedom for them to operate. One professor who left was accepted to the faculty of Harvard, she said.

Abernethy said although Tech was much worse after the board's decision, the AAUP censure helped the school in the long-run because the board was forced to adopt an adequate tenure policy.

Newcomb said the censure also helped Tech in booking excellent speakers to come to the college. The AAUP censure was an indication that Tech was extremely isolated intellectually, and excellent speakers would agree to come to Tech because they believed they were "on missions of rangements with friends of the Col- mercy bringing light to a dark cam-

Starvation blamed for rest home death

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A nursing home placed an elderly patient on a starvation diet before she died at the facility, a nursing consultant testified in state district court Wednesday.

Dolores Alford, a gerontological nursing consultant from Dallas, said Autumn Hills nursing home records showed Elnora Breed was being fed only 600 calories a day.

"Anything under 700 calories would be starvation," Alford said. "It means they were starving the patient."

The testimony came in the murder trial of Autumn Hills Convalescent Center Inc. and five of its current and former employees.

They are accused of murder by neglect in the Nov. 20, 1978, death of Breed. The 87-year-old woman died after living at an Autumn Hills facility in Texas City for 47 days.

Alford testified that a doctor gave a written order that Breed receive 600 cubic centimeters of liquid nourishment each day. But there was no designation of what kind of food she was to receive.

Convict expects second execution date

HUNTSVILLE (AP) - Convicted killer John Michael Lamb said Wednesday he was not surprised that he won a court order blocking his scheduled death early next week but expects he will get another execution date soon.

"It's obviously a very temporary stay," said Lamb, who faced death early Monday for the November 1982 shooting death of a Virginia businessman, Jerry Chafin, in a Greenville motel room.

"I expect I'll have another date in a couple of months. I can't see that a district judge is going to rule in my favor," he said.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals postponed the execution because Lamb's attorneys have not been able to get in touch with the sentencing judge, E. Paul Banner of Greenville.

Banner is out of town and was not expected to return until the day of the execution - too late to rule on a motion filed on behalf of Lamb, according to attorney Carolyn Garcia of Houston.

AIDS victim refuses sexual abstinence

HOUSTON (AP) — Undercover police officers Wednesday were trailing a victim of acquired immune deficiency syndrome who ignored the city health director's order to abstain from having sexual relations.

Fabian Bridges, 30, has boasted he will continue having sex with strangers even though he knows he carries the fatal disease, said Capt. Jack Fulbright of the Houston police vice division.

"We've got a man who's definitely a threat to society," Fulbright said. Four undercover officers have been assigned to follow Bridges, but prosecutors said officers cannot arrest Bridges unless he solicits sexual favors from them or they actually see him having sex.

'Without eyewitness proof, what law has he violated? I have come up with nothing at this juncture," said Ted Busch, assistant to Harris County District Attorney John B. Holmes.

The Cure's new album sacrifices individuality

By ERIC STEELE

The Cure - Head on Door

The Cure has been one of the most critically acclaimed post-punk bands in England. Though the band's main audience comes from England, The Cure has managed to assemble a moderate, but loyal following in the United States. Its success came in the form of three American releases, Boys Don't Cry in 1980, followed by Happily Ever After in 1981 and Pornography in 1983.

challenging on the keyboards, and Robert Smith's vocals aren't much to speak of.

But somehow, Head on Door manages to survive its drawbacks. "In Between Days" is the album's single, and its video is in MTV's rotation. It's shallow, but instantly appealing. "Six Different Ways" is worthy as a light-hearted, amusing song about deceit and confusion.

The Cure becomes irritating only when the band attempts to take itself too seriously. Holmes has been bothered the last couple of years by such hurts as a chipped bone in a knuckle on the right hand and a pinched nerve Holmes said he has talked with "If I do fight him it would be for HBO, which televised the first fight, and with Butch Lewis, the promoter, who guides Spinks' career, about a rematch.

> Lewis thinks a rematch would be worth more than the first fight for which Holmes got $3 million plus $500,000 for expenses and Spinks got $900,000 plus $100,000 in expense money.

"People don't believe what they saw in the first match," Lewis

But the promoter also said there were other directions for Spinks to go for his first defense of the IBF

Before Holmes' loss, NBC had offered $3.5 million for him to fight Nov. 22 in prime time for what at time was expected to be a bid to break the record set by Marciano, But while Holmes admits that the late heavyweight champion who retired unbeaten.

My classes in finance taught me all the advantages of home ownership and that it's never too early to start. Even while you're still in college. That's why I'm buying a Savoy Condominium. And because it's right across the street from Jones Stadium, I couldn't be closer to my classes, friends and favorite spots.

I've also learned that it's important to buy now, rather than waiting for possible tax law changes. It seems that acting now will protect my investment no matter what the changes

My new home will have a microwave, washer/ dryer, fireplace, vaulted ceilings, off-street covered parking, satellite dish system, even ceiling fans. I'll enjoy the privacy a home provides and I like knowing that I can take a study break just a few steps away with a plunge in the swimming pool or refreshing spa. Visit Savoy Condominiums soon. Red Raiders prepare for balanced Aggies

By MICHAEL CORBETT University Daily Sports Reporter

The Texas Tech defense has a tough assignment Saturday. How do you stop the fourth best offense in the NCAA in total offense with an average of 513 yards a game. The Aggies moved up in the rankings after played for a pro team in baseball and gaining 702 yards in an easy 45-10 win over Tulsa.

"A&M is a good football team. They contain him," Dykes said. are a big and strong team with lots of talent. It won't be easy stopping them," Tech defensive coordinator receivers that are really quick cat-Spike Dykes said.

Dykes said Tulsa, which played back-to-back, might have been worn out by the time they played A&M, but he is not using that as an excuse for the Aggies' explosiveness on offense.

"Tulsa is beat up, but they're not that beat up. It's still hard for anyone to get over 700 yards in a game."

the Aggies balanced attack. Against Tulsa, Texas A&M recorded 346 yards rushing and 356 yards through the air.

"A&M has proved they are tough running or passing. Their balanced attack can keep us off-balanced. When a team is able to do both (passing and running) well, they can keep you guessing," Dykes said.

Dykes said that in order for the Tech would have to perform better on third down situations.

Dykes said A&M's runningbacks Raiders to stop the Aggies' offense, could present a problem for Tech. "A&M has super backs. (Anthony) Toney is great and (Roger) Vick is "Last week against Baylor we did a good too. If we want to stop A&M,

Women golfers compete at McGuire Invitational

The Texas Tech women's golf team will begin play in its third tournament of the season today at the 54-hole Dick McGuire Invitational, hosted by the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, N.M.

The 16-team tournament will include defending tournament and NCAA Division I champion Florida. Other teams entered are Brigham Young, Stanford, Weber State, San Diego State, TCU, SMU, Wyoming, New Mexico State, Arizona, Lamar and Oklahoma State. New Mexico will enter two teams.

Tech coach Jay McClure said the Raiders, which finished 15th out of 16 teams last year, were looking forward to competing against tougher competition.

"There will be some tough competition, but our players are excited about that and are ready to play. Our scoring has been better balanced this year, but we do need to improve on phasizing that phase in practice," McClure said.
