

Faculty departures double in five years

By CHIP MAY
University Daily News Reporter

A survey recently conducted by a faculty senator shows the number of faculty departures from Texas Tech has almost doubled in five years.

Ernest Sullivan, a member of the senate's university progress and status committee, said he compiled the statistics by sending letters to all Tech department chairpersons.

Through the letters, Sullivan asked the number of faculty positions in each department and the last names of all faculty members who have left in the past five years.

In addition, Sullivan compared his survey findings to a university report and determined that about 130 faculty members left Tech between Sept. 1, 1984, and Aug. 31, 1985.

Sullivan said the survey is not an exact measure of Tech faculty departures in recent years, but its is a good indication of how many faculty members are leaving Tech.

Sullivan also said chairpersons from 16 departments failed to respond to the survey.

"When I sent a sheet to the department heads, I got the last name of each person there to teach class on the first day of school," Sullivan said.

"There is a clearly a smaller number of faculty. I know there are about 875 faculty members, so I don't have them all."

The survey is broken down into the number of full professors, associate professors and assistant professors.

Sullivan said an assistant professor usually has taught less than six years and does not have tenure. An associate professor normally has tenure and at least six years of university teaching.

A full professor has been promoted because of distinction in teaching, research and service to the university, he said.

According to the survey, the number of faculty members who have left Tech in 1985 are as follows:

- 25 of 260 full professors.
- 23 of 209 associate professors.
- 42 of 175 assistant professor.
- Overall, 90 of 644 professors have left Tech.

Sullivan said the number of professors leaving has increased dramatically from two years ago.

"In 1983, we had the smallest number of faculty to leave in a long time," Sullivan said. "There are a lot of explanations. It would be wrong to say tenure was the only thing to cause this."

According to the survey, the number of faculty leaving in 1985 were as follows:

- Seven of 259 full professors.
- 10 of 239 associate professors.
- 33 of 185 assistant professors.
- Overall, 49 of 683 professors left Tech.

The 16 departments that did not report their number of faculty positions and departures include architecture, biblical literature, management/business, finance/business, administration/education, secondary education, engineering physics, engineering technology, geosciences, health physical education and recreation, clothing and textiles, family management, home and family life, industrial engineering, physics, and speech communications.

In addition, the departments of art and economics had incomplete reports in the survey, Sullivan said.

Sullivan said he compared the names in his survey findings to the Tech Office of Academic Affairs list of faculty who have left during the 1984-85 school year.

By comparing the two lists Sullivan was able to ascertain that about 130 left Tech during the 1984-85 year.

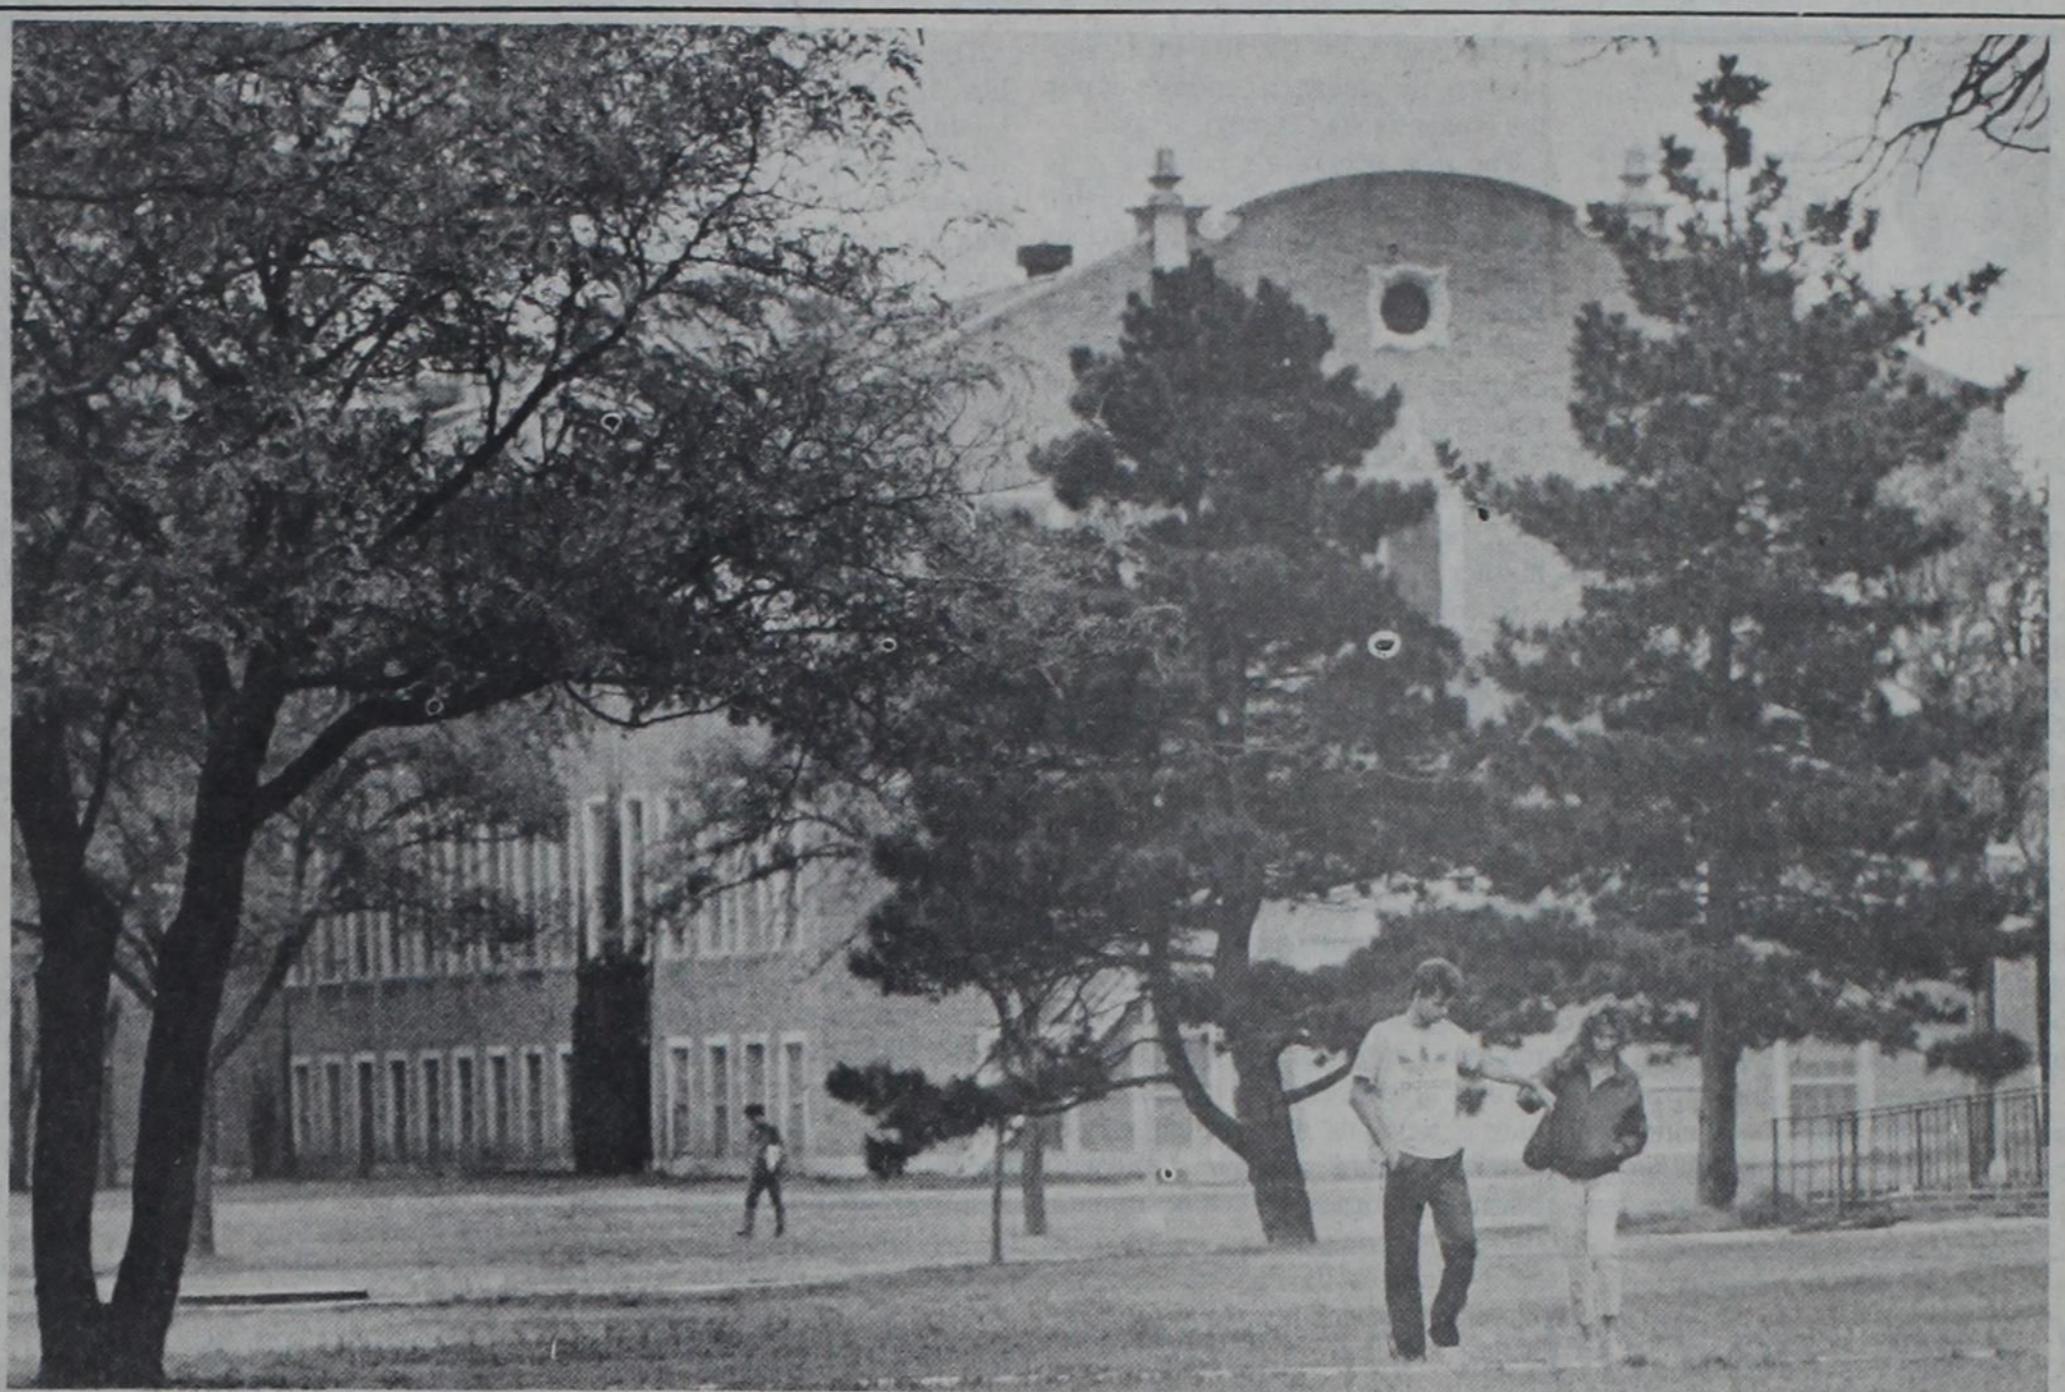

The breakdown of professors in the combined report follows:

- 33 full professors.
- 31 associate professors.
- 66 assistant professors.

"Some of these professors retired, but not all of them," Sullivan said. "The number of departures has dramatically gone up."

Sullivan said the reasons faculty leave Tech are varied. A decision to leave the university often depends on an individual's position, he said.

"It's hard to say why someone would leave. It would be harder for a full professor to leave because he is more likely to have a house and kids in school. With assistant professors, there is always a high turnover."

Suspect charged in cop shooting

By The Associated Press

AMARILLO — A Dallas man was charged Tuesday with capital murder in the shooting of an off-duty Amarillo police officer who was gunned down as he approached an auto accident.

Randall Wayne Hafdahl, 32, alias Jack Douglas Cone, was being held under heavy security in the Randall County jail in nearby Canyon in lieu of a $250,000 bond, Justice of the Peace Phil Woodall said.

Two others were held as material witnesses to the crime, Woodall said.

District Judge George Dowlen set two $150,000 attachment bonds for Shawn David Terry, 22, of Denver and Daniel Louis Helgran, 24, of Largo, Fla.

The men were captured late Monday after a manhunt that ranged from the Panhandle into New Mexico.

The search began after Amarillo Sgt. James Mitchell Jr., 43, was shot in the head and chest when he approached a car that sped off an expressway and rammed into a backyard fence of a home 100 yards from the freeway, officials said.

Mitchell had just gotten off duty at 3 p.m. and was still in uniform when he was shot, said police spokeswoman Helen Cruz.

Within 45 minutes, two helicopters were in the air and hundreds of area off-duty officers were activated for the manhunt, said Ralph Fletcher, another police spokesman.

Hafdahl and Terry were arrested about six blocks from the shooting, Woodall said. Helgran was arrested in Clovis, N.M., while trying to board a freight train, police said.

Helgran waived extradition, according to officials in Canyon and Clovis.

Police Chief Jerry Neal said Mitchell had approached the wrecked car, which he had observed driving erratically, with his gun drawn when he was shot.

Court papers filed in connection with the detachment of Helgran and Terry said the three said they had come to Amarillo to look for work.

Hafdahl had originally told the judge that he had no permanent residence for the past six years.

Trimble leaves Tech for position in New Orleans

By FRANK BASS
University Daily News Reporter

Charley Trimble, chief executive officer of Lubbock General Hospital, resigned Tuesday to accept a similar position at the prestigious Tulane University Hospital and Clinics.

Trimble, whose resignation becomes effective Dec. 31, will serve as vice president and CEO of the New Orleans-based hospital.

Trimble's resignation was revealed Tuesday afternoon in a surprise press conference called by the board of managers of the Lubbock County Hospital District.

"We are pleased for this opportunity for him to further his career, but regret the loss to Lubbock General and Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center," said Don McInturff.

McInturff, chairman of the board of managers, praised Trimble's financial management.

"As chief financial officer, Mr. Trimble's uppermost goal was to gain control of the hospital's complex financial system," McInturff said.

McInturff said Trimble was largely responsible for helping Lubbock General Hospital regain financial stability.

"The taxpayers of Lubbock County owe Charley a debt which cannot be paid," McInturff said.

"Charley Trimble came to Lubbock General Hospital in 1980 as part of an administrative team which brought a financially defunct hospital to prosperity.

"To put it in plain terms, we were broke when Jake (Henry Jr., former executive director of LGH) and Charley arrived," he added.

"Today, I think it's in one of the best shapes it could be in," McInturff said of LGH.

Trimble acknowledged that LGH had experienced difficulty before his arrival six years ago.

"It was in a difficult situation when Jake Henry and I came," Trimble said.

Trimble, who became CEO of LGH in 1983, said although he will miss Lubbock, he is looking forward to his new job.

Trimble said he has mixed feelings about leaving his position and West Texas.

"I've got mixed emotions about leaving because I consider Lubbock my home," Trimble said. "It was just an opportunity I couldn't pass up, though."

"I'll be taking the good memories with me," he added.

Trimble said LGH and the Tulane hospital are similar in size.

Physician practices at the Tulane hospital will increase the budget Trimble oversees by about $20 million, however.

"My duties there should be a little broader," he said.

AIDS scare decreases number of blood donors

By JAN DILLEY
University Daily News Reporter

Publicity surrounding the current epidemic of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is making it increasingly difficult for blood service centers around the nation to attract donors, and United Blood Services in Lubbock is no exception.

"The AIDS scare definitely has affected our business," said Bobbi Murphy, a UBS donor resources specialist. "People who have never donated before often hear only part of the story. They hear 'blood' and they hear 'AIDS,' and they think 'Oh, no.'"

"They think if they donate blood, they can get sick. That's not true. You can't contract any disease by giving blood."

Murphy said even regular donors have to be re-educated about the safety in giving blood. "We try to assure people that the blood on our shelf is as safe as the blood in their loved ones."

Giving blood takes less than half an hour, and people may donate once every eight weeks. The first stage of the donation involves a verbal screening during which potential donors are asked basic health questions concerning the presence of hepatitis, malaria, AIDS and other communicable diseases.

Donors must weigh a minimum of 110 pounds, and must pass a mini-physical and tests for blood pressure, temperature and pulse. A hematocrit also is given to check the iron content of donors' blood and to make sure people have enough red blood cells to donate safely.

Preliminary testing takes between five and eight minutes. "If they pass all that, they get on the chair and donate," Murphy said.

Donations amount to one pint per person, and usually take anywhere from 5 to 15 minutes to give. "Some people just bleed faster than others," Murphy said. "Some people's veins are bigger than others."

Aside from the needle inserted to withdraw the blood from the donor's vein, the only other potentially painful phase of a donation occurs during the preliminary testing. "We stick the person's finger to get a sample," Murphy said. "But, that's less painful than a paper cut. People get paper cuts all the time — no biggie."

After each 20-minute donation session, UBS takes segments of each unit which is given back to the center for testing. Analysts check the units for blood type, R.H. factor, syphilis and hepatitis. They also perform an HTLV-III screen test.

"The HTLV-III tests for the antibody to the virus in AIDS patients," Murphy said. "It is not an AIDS test. It is not a diagnostic test. It's just a test to see if a person has been exposed to the virus."

If any of the tests proves positive, the sample is destroyed. "Even if the results are borderline, we won't use the blood," Murphy said. "We would rather destroy a questionable unit than transfuse it into someone."

While the level of general blood donations has been reduced due to donors' fears concerning AIDS, the center's business in specific recipient work has increased. More people are designating only family members and friends to receive their donations.

Others plan ahead for surgery by donating for their own future use. A non-profit organization, UBS provides services to 33 hospitals in 22 counties. It is the only center in Lubbock that offers medical facilities and a full range of blood and blood products.

There are basically five uses for each unit of blood UBS collects. While red blood cells are needed for surgery patients; whole blood is intended primarily for people undergoing heart surgery. Chemotherapy patients require platelets, and plasma is used to aid burn victims. A fifth element in blood provides the anti-hemophilic Factor 8.

"The blood we take is used for everything the hospitals need it for," Murphy said.

A majority of the center's donors are repeat business; however, some drives attract as much as 50 percent in first-time donations. "Most of the donors we see are repeaters. We count on these people. Some have given 17 gallons at our center — there are eight donations in each gallon. That's a lot of blood."

At least once a week, UBS tries to coordinate an on-campus blood drive with a Texas Tech organization. Hulien-Clement residence halls and the electrical engineering department already have hosted drives earlier this week. The Naval ROTC will sponsor a blood drive from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Nov. 14 in the BA rotunda.

A team of two technicians is sent to each drive. Between the two of them, the UBS workers can draw blood from up to 10 people per hour. So far this school year, Murphy said the success rate at Tech drives has been mixed.

"It's been up and down. Some organizations have had real good drives. Others haven't been so good," she said. "We consider a good drive to be one in which we set up for x-amount of people, and we get that amount."

"If we don't get the number we're prepared for, it costs more to send our people and equipment than we are able to recoup. As a non-profit organization, the only way we can exist is by not going in the hole."

Murphy invites organizations who wish to sponsor a blood drive to call UBS at 763-0428.

Campus program provides incentives

University Daily Editor
Kirsten Kling

Creating jobs for Texas Tech students off-campus and thus decreasing the need for financial aid is not only a good idea, but a progressive idea way past due. Tech's financial aid and student loan office has developed a program that required extracting $25,000 from the campus federal work study program and reinserting the funds into a newly created Job Location and Development Program.

At a time when the state no longer can help students with education costs, the program is primed to take a large burden off the backs of students. Tripled tuition paired with budget cuts has left higher education to fend for itself.

The program's benefits are numerous. Students no longer will have to rely on campus-generated jobs. Those jobs usually are temporary and allow the student to supplement the student's expenses or pay the student's way through school.

The new program's purpose is to promote college students as viable specialized employees in various business settings. It makes sense. If a student is studying to become an accountant, on-the-job training at an accounting office would, of course, enhance the learning experience.

Why should a student work in a cafeteria or snack shop when he/she can work in a job better suited to his/her future occupation?

Of course, the bottom line is money. A student will do almost anything to increase his income, but this program gives him a better chance of combining valuable experience with economic survival.

Such programs have worked at other schools. More than $5 million was generated for student referrals at a model program at the University of Texas at Arlington.

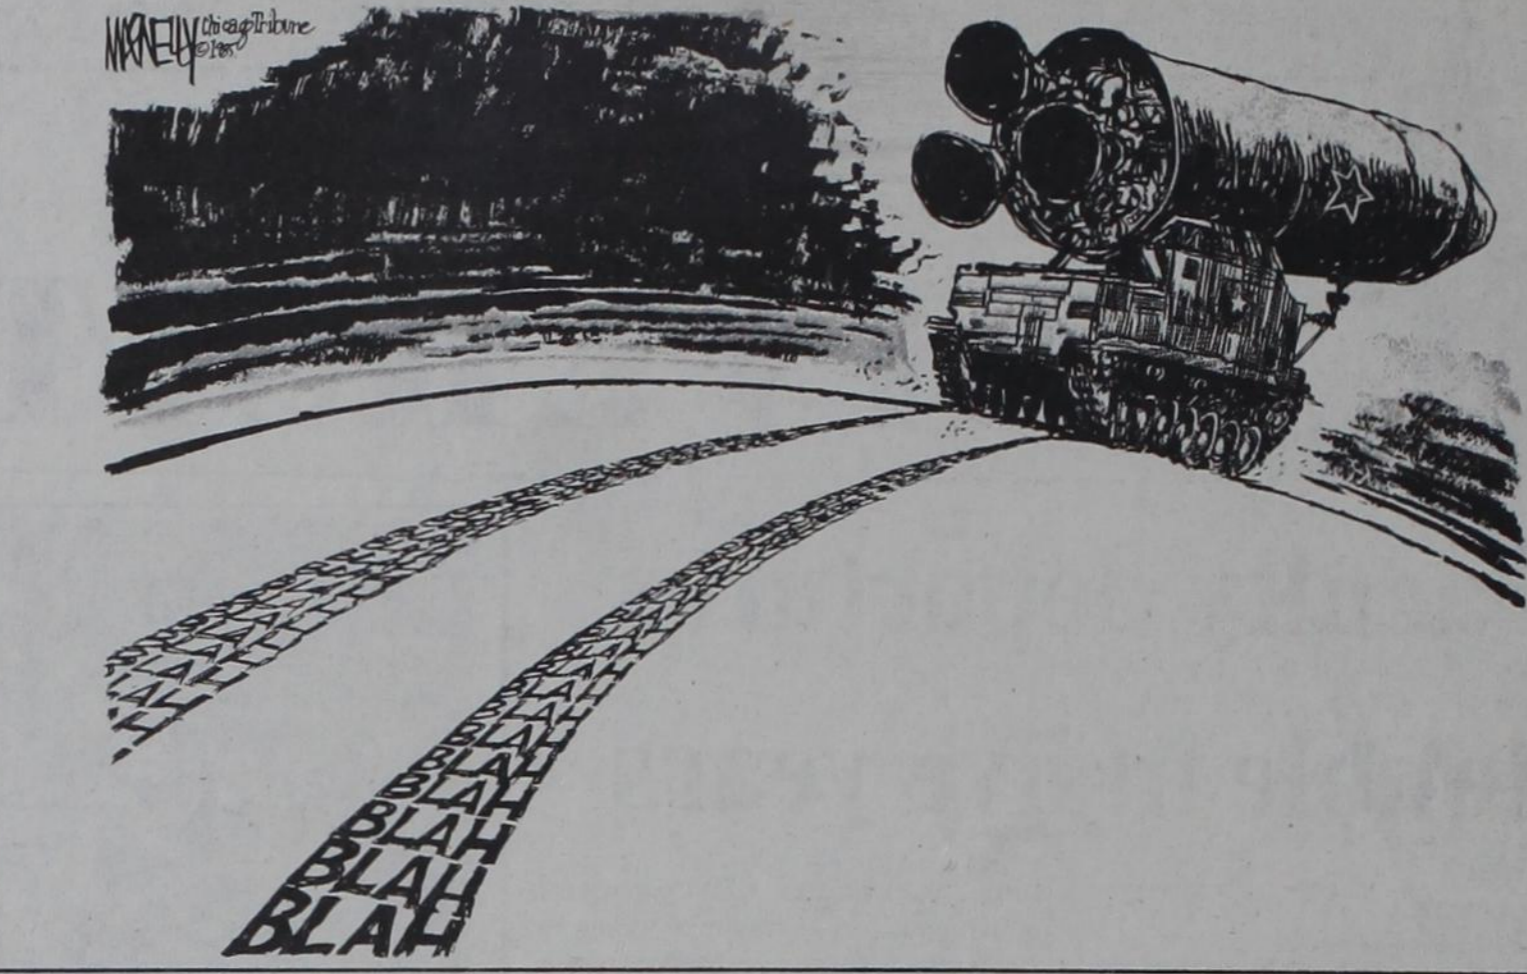

So what's the catch? Does it sound too good to be true? The barriers thrown in front of Tech's path to provide a valuable student job service possibly could include Lubbock's business community lack of support.

The success of the program greatly lies in the laps of the Lubbock business community; its receptiveness is a must. Considering the amount of money Texas Tech pumps into the city, one would think the request for cooperation is anything but unreasonable.

The program will enable students to be more self-reliant. According to Financial Aid Director Ronny Barnes, the $25,000 could directly fund about 20 students' salaries. However, investing the money in a job development program easily could prove to provide hundreds of jobs if successful.

Another purpose of the program is to communicate a need for higher wages for college students. The wages of college students and high school students should not be synonymous.

For the program to be the success we all hope it to be, it needs time and nurturing. The incentives offered by the program are substantial. Such "self-help" programs can, and will, improve the quality of our education.

Rebuttal: SLM reasserts rape stand

Guest Columnist
Virginia Ettel

The editorial that appeared in The University Daily Nov. 12 requires that someone finally give the other side.

Articles and columns about Mr. Spurling and the SLM (Student Liberation Movement) often seem to have been edited inappropriately. He has chosen to make himself a target because he believes in what he is doing. Unfortunately, such actions do not sit well with those who desire to ignore a situation or those who have a vested interest in the status quo.

The University Daily is a university publication which is received by many ex-students and enthusiastic parents. They dislike any negative publicity about this university.

Many people do not understand the concept of rape. All too many people still believe that a female is raped because "she asked for it." The SLM has heard this statement many times from young men who decline to sign the petition; and thus they don't like someone suggesting that their little darling is a potential victim.

In regard to the "assault incident," I was in front of the University Center with Mr. Spurling that afternoon. The incident was reported to us by several young ladies who represented themselves as friends and dorm mates of the young lady involved. They made it quite clear that she had not been sexually assaulted. Their phraseology implied that she was not a hysterical person and that only her quick action had prevented an assault.

We told people walking by that an attempted assault had occurred. We very specifically stated that the young lady involved had not been raped or assaulted, because she was able to remove herself from the situation. At no time did we state that a rape had occurred at Stangel-Murdough. Another young lady and I spoke with a representative of The UD, who took notes on our statements as well our names and addresses. We received the UD's story from her and thereafter amended our statements to the corrected facts.

Another young lady from the Doak-Weeks complex and I happened to have been out late Wednesday night taking pictures of some of the security problems on this campus. We took the van from Doak-Weeks to Clement Hall about 11:37 p.m. to pick up a male escort for our tour. We were harassed and harassed by the driver and his four male companions, who seemed quite put out that we were interfering with their television viewing.

We have several Polaroid shots of rape phones that have non-working lights (south side of library and south of the Ex-Students building at the end of D-2 parking). We have fairly adequate lighting on this campus; the problem is that much of it seems to be either unused or unusable.

We found at least one place where security was compromised by unlocked doors on a building that supposedly was locked several hours before (the portico doors to the science building). Thursday, we talked to a member of the campus police, Mr. Rick Loper, a dispatcher, who was quite upset to hear that we had been able to access this building at about 1:30 a.m.

Saturday night, several of us were out again from about 1 a.m. to 5 a.m. We again found several buildings open, including the electrical engineering building. We were out shouting at the top of our lungs in the Science Quad at 3:30 a.m. for about a half hour and were not investigated by a single unit.

We saw only one campus police officer in the entire time that we were out. According to the officer, the campus police were running understaffed that night with three vehicle units and three beat units.

The University Daily's own archives will bear out that there have been sexual assaults on this campus since the date of Jan. 13, 1985. At least one incident occurred in March. As for the Stangel Hall incident, no one except the young man in the lot will ever know if she panicked for no reason, or if she saved her life. Personally, I am glad we didn't find out the hard way.

The SLM is not saying this campus is unsafe because the university is incompetent or willfully negligent. We are saying that we, the student body of the campus, need to help the university improve itself. Officer Brenda Arkell's rape seminars are great, but poorly attended, often due to inadequate publicity.

We have, as I stated, good lighting. But it does no one any good if it is not functioning. The escort services are a good concept, but we need for these individual efforts to combine into a campuswide service with young men who will be reliable and who have a decent knowledge of the campus. We also can use reporters on The UD who will not let their emotions interfere with their integrity.

Give me coffee or give me death!

University Daily Staff Writer
Frank Bass

This time they've gone too far. I could live with the fact that smoking probably causes lung cancer. Eggs, milk and meat being linked to heart disease was a discovery I had a harder time swallowing. But coffee being linked to heart disease?

I can deal with a lot of things that allegedly cause cancer, heart disease, hypertension, high blood pressure, scurvy, mononucleosis, beri-beri and the bubonic plague in lab rats.

I can't deal with the following information, though:

- A study released Monday revealed that more than 1,000 doctors who drank at least five cups of coffee daily have a 2.8 times greater risk of having heart problems.
- The study traced 1,130 white male doctors who graduated from the Johns Hopkins Medical School in Baltimore between 1964 and 1984.

- When other factors, such as smoking, high blood pressure, age and cholesterol intake were considered, the risk level still was found to be 2.5 times greater.

Enough in the way of background; I have some questions about this study.

First, the study only talked to doctors. Maybe doctors are more susceptible to heart disease than the rest of us, OK? Secondly, why when other factors are taken into account, does coffee still increase the risk level by 2.5 times? Does this mean I can smoke, age and eat all the cholesterol I want and only have a .3 times greater risk level if I quit coffee?

The study also indicates that the 2.8 times increased risk is for a person who drinks five cups of coffee per day.

Does this mean if I drink 10 cups of coffee per day, there's an increased risk of 5.6 times? How big can the cups be, anyway? Does the risk factor increase proportionately for each cup of coffee I drink? I hope not.

Not that I'm about to quit coffee. Coffee is something our forefathers fought and died for. Our ancestors dumped tea off a wharf in Boston more than 200 years ago just so they wouldn't have to drink the vile stuff. "Give us coffee or give us death!" they cried.

A fairly recent example of this country's love for the brew was expressed by the popularity of Joe "Mr. Coffee" DiMaggio. Sure, DiMaggio was good, but when did he get into Cooperstown?

I'm sure it wasn't until after hoards of screaming coffee addicts demanded that the pitchman for "Mr. Coffee" be enshrined somewhere, somehow, that he was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

A spokesman for the National Coffee Association (which I endow with the sales taxes from my coffee purchases) said 10 of 12 major studies have shown no relationship between coffee and heart disease.

The spokesman, Bill Brooks, said one of two studies which found a link between coffee and heart disease later was reversed.

So I was concerned for a minute. I mean, after all, what self-respecting member of "The Coffee Generation" wants to give up caffeine so they can have a heart that works?

EDITOR'S NOTE: According to reports collected from the University Daily, there have been no sexual assaults on the Tech campus since the January incident, in which a nursing kidnaped in the Lubbock General Hospital parking lot and raped outside of the city limits.

According to the Rape Crisis Center, two years ago was the last time someone was raped on the Tech campus. There have been two cases of aggravated kidnapping from campus in which the victim later was sexually assaulted.

LETTERS

Handicap grievance

To the editor:
This letter is in regard to Texas Tech University's love for money and their flagrant disregard for the law in cases involving the aforementioned item, money.

It is our belief that laws which are passed by the Texas Legislature should be upheld by a state institution such as Texas Tech. We believe that a law of the state should be enforced against the alumni just as quickly as it is enforced against a student.

The law which we are referring to is handicapped parking. When we returned home to Murdough Hall at 10:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 9, all of the handicapped parking places were filled. The odd fact was that although the handicapped spaces are well-marked with a sign which reads "Handicapped Only: $50-$200 fine," none of the cars which occupied these spaces had any stickers which verified the occupants to be handicapped.

Besides the violations in handicapped parking, we also noticed the fact that D-6 (Stangel) parking did not have any open spaces, but they did have many cars parked there without D-6 parking stickers.

We realize that these parking lot stickers are not enforced on weekends, but we have a suggestion. We would suggest, for the safety of the female population at Tech, that the stickers be enforced on weekends in the women's dormitory parking lots during the dark night hours.

Now, returning to the topic of non-handicapped cars parked in the handicapped spaces, we decided to call our friendly and ever helpful campus police. After discussing the situation with the corporal, who answered the phone, we were blatantly told that there would be no ticketing or towing performed on this "special" homecoming weekend.

Seeing this as an injustice, we promptly asked to speak to someone of higher authority. We next conferred with the sergeant who was in charge that night. To our dismay, he repeated the fact that they were to disregard these violations of the law, and told us that this was a direct order from the chief of the University Police Department.

It is our belief that we as students contribute as much to this university as the parents and alumni; they should not receive special privileges over and above the laws of the State of Texas.

For that matter, we do not believe that the university should be able to take a state law and change this law to keep from offending those persons which they believe contribute the most to this university. Furthermore, we believe that enforcing the women's dorm stickers would be a simple way for the university to increase the safety of the campus women.

24 hour vigil thanks

To the editor:
Sunday night I attended a candlelight ceremony for the 24-hour vigil honoring all veterans, POWs and MIAs. I attended the ceremony with my husband, who is the president of South Plains Vietnam Veterans.

We wanted to compliment Angel Flight and members of the AFROTC for a job well done. The cadets said they were pleased we had attended, but our men were doubly pleased we had attended. We also wanted to thank them for caring enough to stay up in that terribly cold weather to honor our men.

We know that of the more than 2,000 MIAs and POWs many are known dead, but are unaccounted for because they went down over water, in Cambodia, or in Laos. Most of these will never be found, but what about the 700 plus known POWs? We thank God that the generation behind us cares about these men. Our own generation seems to have forgotten them. It is the young people who tell my husband "thanks for a job well done." It is our "friends" who say "I'd rather not think about it. It is over."

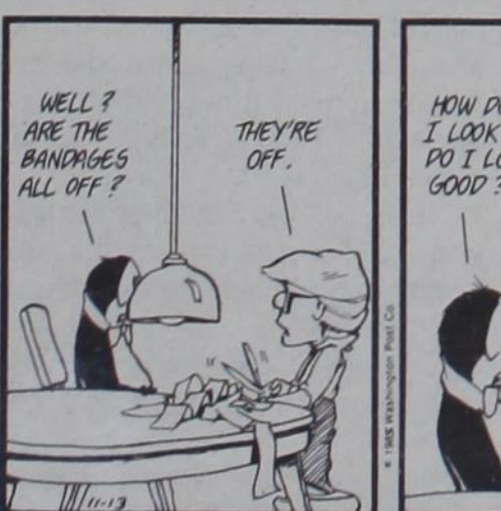

Positive recognition such as the vigil on Veteran's Day means so much to our men. Any show of appreciation lightens the load of guilt and anger they carry.

Convicted spy receives life sentence

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Arthur J. Walker, a retired Navy officer convicted of supplying secrets to a Soviet spy ring run by his brother, was sentenced to life in prison Tuesday by a judge who refused to "treat this as a slap-on-the-wrist case."

Walker, a 51-year-old retired Navy lieutenant commander, told U.S. District Judge J. Calvitt Clarke Jr. that he wished to "apologize to all the citizens of this country for what I did."

Clarke sentenced Walker, of Virginia Beach, to the maximum of three life terms and four 10-year terms on seven counts of espionage, with the sentences to run concurrently.

Dallas woman receives probation, fine

DALLAS (AP) — Betty Minyard Stein, the flamboyant eccentric convicted of aggravated assault in the shooting of a high school student she claimed had tormented her, was sentenced to 10 years probation and fined $5,000 Tuesday.

The Dallas County jury pondered her fate for more than six hours Monday and almost three hours Tuesday before reaching a verdict on her sentence.

Earlier, the panel deliberated only about an hour before convicting her of the charge stemming from a July 24 incident in which she said she was trying to shoot out the tires of the car driven by Ward Huey III.

Senate OKs keeping drinking age at 21

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday adopted an amendment designed to keep the Texas drinking age at 21 after 1988, when it would expire under current state law.

According to Texas law, the drinking age would go down to 19 on Sept. 30, 1988, when a federal law penalizing states with drinking ages under 21 expires.

In addition, the Texas law says the drinking age would revert to 19 if the federal law is repealed or overturned in court.

Mont Belvieu council to sue refinery

MONT BELVIEU (AP) — After years of explosions, gas leaks, fires and evacuations, city officials are considering a $125 million damage suit against companies that store gas in the salt dome under this small community.

The Mont Belvieu City Council on Monday night authorized attorneys to sue and take whatever other action is "necessary to protect the public interests of its citizens."

The council action came almost a week after a series of blasts at a Warren Petroleum Co. underground gas storage area left two workers dead

Suicide bomber strikes Lebanese monastery

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A suicide bomber crashed a pickup truck loaded with explosives into a monastery where six senior Christian politicians were meeting Tuesday. The bomber, two army guards and a woman were killed and 26 other people were injured, police said.

They said a 2½-foot-thick stone wall shielded the politicians from the main force of the blast, which gouged out a 20-foot-wide crater.

Three bombs exploded overnight in various parts of Moslem west Beirut, killing four civilians and wounding eight, police reported earlier in the day.

The meeting in the Christian suburb of Aukar in east Beirut was to discuss opposition to a draft Syrian-sponsored armistice agreement reached last month by Lebanon's three strongest militias in an effort to end the 10-year-old civil war.

The six politicians gathered at the monastery belong to the Lebanese Front, a Christian political coalition which was excluded from the negotiations.

An anonymous caller claiming to speak for the previously unknown "Vanguard of Arab Christians" told a Western news agency in Beirut: "We have staged this bombing and we shall carry out more sacrifices."

Speaking in Lebanese-accented Arabic, the caller accused Christian leaders of seeking to align Lebanon's Christian community with Israel and said "This (the bombing) is the end of everyone who is in Israel's lap."

All six senior members of the Lebanese Front were injured, but only one, former Defense Minister George Skaff, 55, was hurt seriously, police said.

They said those slightly hurt included former President Camille Chamoun, 85, and his son, Dany, 51, leader of the National Liberal Party.

Others wounded included bodyguards, passersby and four soldiers, police said.

In the attack on the Christian leaders, the driver of the red and blue Dodge pickup was blown to pieces in the explosion. Police said all they could find was a toe. Officers said the pickup truck carried 660 pounds of explosives.

The bombing occurred at 10:10 a.m. moments after the Chamouns entered the sandstone, brick-roofed St. Georges Monastery. Camille Chamoun, who survived two bomb assassination attempts in 1980, suffered minor facial cuts and his son was wounded in the hand, police said. Neither man was hospitalized.

A corporal and a sergeant jumped into a jeep and raced behind the truck, shooting at the driver in an effort to stop the vehicle. But the driver crashed the truck into the southeast wall of the one-story monastery. The monks left the monastery nine years ago, and the Lebanese Front took it over as its headquarters.

Soviet officials refuse Reagan's exchange proposal

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has proposed an "open laboratory" arrangement for the United States and the Soviet Union to exchange scientists and double-check each other's "Star Wars" research, a senior administration official said Tuesday.

But the Soviet Union, so far, has refused to go along with any agreement that permits research into Star Wars technology, the official said, even though the United States believes such research is clearly permissible under the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty.

The official, who briefed reporters at the White House on the understanding he not be identified, indicated the open laboratory proposal would be part of an understanding on Star Wars that could clear the way for a comprehensive new arms control agreement that also would include sharp reductions in strategic offensive nuclear weapons.

The official said he is still hopeful that arms control guidelines can be worked out for the Nov. 19-20 summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva. Reagan leaves for the summit on Saturday.

The official said the proposed guidelines are being discussed through the American ambassador in Moscow, Arthur Hartman, and the Soviet ambassador in Washington, Anatoly Dobrynin.

Another official said Tuesday that it is a Soviet refusal to agree that the United States can engage in research into missile defense technology that is blocking a potential compromise that could lead to guidelines at the summit.

"I think there is some real potential to cut a deal if they say they can live with laboratory research," said the official, who specializes in arms control issues and who insisted on not being identified.

"I think it is clearly an 'anything goes' summit," he said. "Anything can happen at the summit with regard to arms control. Publicly we are not going to say it because an

'anything goes' situation means it could go badly, too."

He said that when Secretary of State George P. Shultz and other U.S. officials went to Moscow last week, they found the Soviets unwilling to follow up on previous indications they would agree to the research.

The senior official said in a briefing at the White House that the Soviet Union is calling "for a complete ban on everything having to do with space based systems as they define them, including a ban on research."

An agreement to curb component testing is regarded as the key to the understanding. This would ban testing of major components of a missile defense system outside the laboratory.

Parking complaints

Violators appeal 80-100 citations each month, Sulligan says

By DAVID CORTES
University Daily News Reporter

The appeal process involved with objecting to a campus parking citation does not go through the police or a judge, but through an appeals committee consisting of three faculty members, three staff members and three students.

When a student decides to appeal a citation, he has the option of paying the fine or appealing the ticket through the Traffic and Parking Office, according to Traffic and Parking Coordinator Bob Sulligan, who makes a judgment on appeals.

According to the rules and regulations manual, which is distributed to everyone who purchases a parking permit, a person is afforded an opportunity to appeal a citation. In order to submit an appeal, it must be written within 10 days of the citation, Sulligan said.

"I try to be as honest and as unbiased as I can giving representation to the individual," he said. "I try to use integrity and look at everything inclusive on the citation; then I make a decision."

If Sulligan feels uncomfortable about a decision on an appeal, he submits the citation to a higher authority, the appeals committee. The committee reviews the citation and the appeal, which is voted on by each member individually.

Some committee members said their decisions are based on whether the citation is valid. Two said they would accept certain excuses.

"I think exceptions can be made beyond the rules and regulations, but usually only in emergency cases," said Claudia Cory, an appeals committee member from the museum education department.

Cyndi Smith, a student appeals committee member, said, "I look for reasons why, such as a really important test, but most of the reasons students give are not that valid."

Jim Bob Jones, interim director of student services and the registrar, said he looks only at extenuating circumstances that otherwise would prevent someone from complying with the rules and regulations.

"One unforgivable sin in my book which I will virtually not uphold is someone parking in a handicapped zone," Jones said.

If someone disagrees with Sulligan's appeal, they have the authority to talk to him. He said he is not allowed to alter his decision but could send the decision to the appeals committee at the student's request.

"It must take a two-thirds majority for the committee to approve a citation," Sulligan said. "If two vote for or against an appeal, their decision is binding. I cannot change anything they do. That is the highest authority we have."

"We try to be fair. To be honest, I go through every appeal, and I do spend time on each one," Sulligan said. "I don't pencil whip it as probably some of the students may think."

Although more parking citations are given during the beginning of each semester, Sulligan said Traffic and Parking receives about 40,000 violations a year.

He said he receives about 80 to 100 appeals each month. About 30 of those appeals are submitted to an appeals committee each month, Sulligan added.

He said if a person does not receive a ticket on the car, due to possible inclement weather, a notice is sent in the mail.

"If a student has registered the car and has a parking permit, we'll send them a final notice to let them know they did get a citation," he said.

Failure to pay the fine, the notice states, will result in the withdrawal of privileges open to students registered to the university. Among other things, a student may not be able to register, Sulligan said.

He said he tries to be lenient and tolerant concerning each excuse.

"If a student is a legal resident and has paid for the permit in advance, we would excuse those on the first day of classes," Sulligan said.

Most students get tickets, Sulligan said, because they don't leave for class in time. He said they arrive on campus a few minutes before class, and knowing they are late, accept a parking citation.

"It's the time factor," Sulligan said. "The person who uses good judgment won't have to accept a citation."

He said the rules and regulations manual, which is updated at the beginning of each semester, states that it is the student's responsibility to read and understand the rules.

"If everybody read these rules and regulations and gave themselves a little time, there would be a lot of tickets that wouldn't have to be written," Sulligan said.

In some cases, students lend their cars to other people and those people get tickets, he said. They may not tell the person they borrowed the car from until that person tries to register and cannot, he said.

"I don't think there are that many responsibilities. I think it's neglect and irresponsibility," Sulligan said.

He said Tech must have rules and regulations for traffic flow.

"If the rules and regulations were not enforced, we would have nothing but total chaos," he said.

My classes in finance taught me all the advantages of home ownership and that it's never too early to start. Even while you're still in college. That's why I'm buying a Savoy Condominium. And because it's right across the street from Jones Stadium, I couldn't be closer to my classes, friends and favorite spots.

I've also learned that it's important to buy now, rather than waiting for possible tax law changes. It seems that acting now will protect my investment no matter what the changes may be.

My new home will have a microwave, washer/dryer, fireplace, vaulted ceilings, off-street covered parking, satellite dish system, even ceiling fans. I'll enjoy the privacy a home provides and I like knowing that I can take a study break just a few steps away with a plunge in the swimming pool or refreshing spa. Visit Savoy Condominiums soon. Main Street Saloon loses lease; Sunday marks last day for club

By ERIC STEELE
University Daily Lifestyles Reporter

The Main Street Saloon has lost its lease and will close its doors after Sunday night, bringing to an end more than a decade of the establishment's commitment to live music.

Of course, that is a story in itself and will be addressed with more appropriate coverage later.

In the meantime, the news comes as a shock to all fans of live music. The Main Street Saloon always has provided excellent live entertainment and will be sorely missed.

On Sunday, Main Street will feature the jazz jam in addition to a huge closing party. The $7 cover charge gets you in the door. That's not too steep considering that beer and well drinks will be "on the house" all night.

If you can make it, get out there and support the Main Street Saloon one last time. They've earned it.

Drew Scott and friends host the Main Street jam tonight. No Kops will play rock 'n' roll Thursday night for $3. It's a hometown weekend at the Saloon with the Virgils on Friday for $2 and Asparagus Nightmares

Saturday for $3.

Rob Hanna's salute to Rod Stewart happens at Fat Dawg's tonight. If you've never seen one of these deals before, this guy, who bears a striking resemblance to Stewart, will get on stage and start romping around like he's Rod himself. You know, one of those next-best-thing type of deals. Anyway, he's supposed to be good, so check it out. Cover is $4.

The Harry Leeds Band plays Friday and Saturday at the Dawg for a $3 cover. This local band has been around for ages. The group, featuring three female vocalists, performs both covers and originals.

Let's not forget that the always-popular Joe Ely Band is coming to town next week. Pretty exciting, huh? A cover of $9 will get you in the door Monday.

Cowboy's has MCA recording artist Razy Bailey Thursday night. Cover is $6. Southern Reign performs Friday and Saturday nights at 9 p.m. for $3.

"Ghostbusters" will be showing this weekend at the Allen Theater. Showtimes are 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. in addition to a midnight showing on Friday.

'Mark Twain on Tour' opens at Allen

"Mark Twain on Tour," starring Ken Richters, will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the Allen Theater.

Richters, a veteran of film and television, researched Twain's life for three years before performing the one-man show. He has been touring with the show for eight years.

Richters' credits include appearances in various films and television programs. He has portrayed Mark Twain before members of Congress in Washington, D.C.

Samuel Langhorne Clemens, alias Mark Twain, died in 1910. He was most famous for two of his books, The Adventures of Tom Sawyer and The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn.

Twain worked as a reporter, editor, publisher, lecturer and steamboat pilot in addition to writing several books.

Tickets for the show cost $2 for Texas Tech students and $4 for the general public. All seats cost $4 the night of the show. Tickets are available at the University Center ticket booth.

The show is presented by UC Programs.

Kneupper and the Kursweil 250

Candy Mathers/The University Daily

Local studio buys synthesizer that produces limitless sounds

By JONI JOHNSON
University Daily Lifestyles Reporter

The computer craze has taken over the Top 40 music charts, and synthesizer bands such as the Eurythmics, Duran Duran and Depeche Mode have taken over the radio waves with their new techno-pop sound.

Synthesizers are the innovation of the '80s, and Lubbock's Broadway Studios has chosen to take part in this craze by purchasing what Rolling Stone magazine coined as one of the "Seven Deadly Synths" — a Kursweil 250.

The highly sophisticated 24-track invention comes with 75 factory sounds arranged in a 135 keyboard setup. The sounds only get the musician going, for the Kursweil's memory is infinite, according to David Kneupper, resident composer, arranger and Kursweil programmer at Broadway Studios.

"The Kursweil is a highly personalized instrument. Anyone can develop the Kursweil to their own needs. If someone wanted the sound of a motorcycle they would take a digital recording of the sound and could then process the hell out of it," he said.

The Kursweil makes a digital recording by using its artificial intelligence and assigning the recorded sound to each note on the keyboard. When this process is completed, the possibilities are limitless.

Kneupper said the Kursweil's main advantage is that it sounds closer to a live performance than any other synthesizer. The synthesizer also has the advantage of splitting up sounds on the keyboard.

"If you wanted one side of the keyboard to play guitar and the other side to play drums it could be done on the Kursweil," Kneupper said.

The synthesizer also can layer notes. "This means that one note can activate up to six different sounds at once," he said.

"For instance, a guitar, a trumpet, a saxophone and three other instruments can be played off just one note."

Although other synthesizers of much higher costs can manage similar functions of the Kursweil, higher priced synthesizers can't compare to the sound the Kursweil puts out, Kneupper said.

Broadway Studios first purchased the Kursweil about four months ago, and owner Craig Alderson said business since has skyrocketed. He said he believes his studio is superior to the other two 24-track recording studios in Lubbock, primarily because of the Kursweil.

The studio has recorded albums for such Lubbock-based bands as the Nelson's, Ace Liquidators and Ransom.

The current charge for use of the 24-track studio is $60 an hour, which pays for the studio and an engineer. The 4-track studio fee is $30 an hour. Depending on the type work done on the Kursweil, its fee is $60 an hour.

Play to open Thursday

"Monday After the Miracle," the love interest; Pete, portrayed written by William Gibson, opens Thursday at the Texas Tech University Theater. The play extends the Helen Keller story beyond "The Miracle Worker," which dealt with her early progressions in dealing with her multiple handicaps.

The production is directed by George Sorensen and will star Lea Barron as Anne Sullivan and Laurie Whitten as Helen Keller.

Barron was recently seen in the Actor's Trading Post production of "Extremities." Whitten has been seen in such University Theatre roles as Peter Pan in "Peter Pan" and Gypsy Rose Lee in "Gypsy."

The other roles include John Macy, played by Carl Condra, as the love interest; Pete, portrayed by Graham Brown; and Ed, played by Arch Hooks.

Some of the actors in the play have worked with special education major Betti Jo Tapp. She has familiarized the actors with Keller's handicaps and taught Barron and Whitten the skills of fingerspelling.

"Monday After the Miracle" is based on a letter between Sullivan and Macy. Sullivan destroyed a diary that might have provided more information concerning her relationship with Keller.

The play runs through Monday. Tickets can be reserved by calling 742-3601.

Man claiming to be Hudson's lover sues

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A man who says he was Rock Hudson's lover in the last years of the actor's life filed a $14 million lawsuit Tuesday, claiming Hudson repeatedly had sex with him while concealing the fact he had AIDS.

"He asked Rock, and Rock denied he had it," attorney Marvin Mitchelson told a news conference as 31-year-old plaintiff Marc Christian sat by silently.

The suit alleges bodily injury, mental suffering and damages for fraud and deceit against executor Wallace Sheft, secretary Mark Miller and an unspecified number of doctors. It seeks $10 million from the estate plus $1 million each from Sheft, Miller and two of the doctors, saying they all conspired to hide the actor's affliction from Christian.

A woman who identified herself as a secretary in Sheft's New York City office said he was gone for the day Tuesday. Dale Olson, who had been Hudson's spokesman before the actor died Oct. 2, said he would relay a request for comment to Miller about the Superior Court lawsuit.

Mitchelson said Christian lived with Hudson for 2½ years and was flown to Paris for AIDS testing last summer while the dying 59-year-old actor was hospitalized there.

But Mitchelson's suit says: "It is probable that claimant has contracted AIDS from Hudson."

Mitchelson, who said Christian has love letters from Hudson that would be brought to court as evidence of their relationship, said the actor insisted to Christian that he was suffering from anorexia and purposely was trying to lose weight but was not suffering from Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

"This is the most unpleasant lawsuit I've ever been involved in," said the celebrity attorney. "There's nothing glamorous about it. It's a tragedy."

Hudson died at home Oct. 2 of complications from AIDS.

The attorney called the suit the first in the nation to deal with the subject of AIDS. The key issue, he said, is whether Hudson's doctors had a duty to tell Christian he was being exposed to the disease by engaging in sex.

"Certainly, they have a duty not to hide it," said Mitchelson.

He didn't name the doctors accused in the lawsuit, saying he would identify them once he knows how much they knew.

The lawsuit said Hudson learned of his affliction in June 1984, but Mitchelson said the actor continued to have sex with Christian through February 1985. He said Christian didn't learn of the illness until it was announced on the radio in July 1985.

In the suit and in a separate $10 million claim, Christian contends he lives in "extreme fear that at any moment he will receive a death sentence" of AIDS.

Tolliver AP player of week after record outing

Candy Mathers/The University Daily

Player of week

Texas Tech quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver fires a pass at a teammate Saturday in his record-setting performance during the Raiders' 63-7 smashing of TCU. Tolliver tied or set four school and four conference records in the game, his first collegiate start. His efforts earned him The Associated Press SWC Player of the Week honors.

By BRAD WALKER
University Daily Sports Reporter

Billy Joe Tolliver has quarterbacked the Texas Tech football team for only 1½ weeks, and already his popularity with the Raider faithful has grown large enough for the freshman redshirt to run for governor.

The only the thing this 19-year-old from Boyd did was break or tie four school and four conference records, end the longest current Southwest Conference losing streak and basically revive a near-dead Tech offense. Those are only the records.

Tolliver's overwhelming performance in the 63-7 wrecking of TCU Saturday earned him The Associated Press' SWC Offensive Player of the Week award.

Arkansas' safety Greg Lasker was The AP's Defensive Player of the Week. In a 20-14 victory over Baylor, Lasker intercepted a pass, broke up two others and had 10 tackles, three of them solo.

Tolliver, in his first collegiate start, completed 26 of 43 passes for a SWC record 422 yards and five touchdowns. Tech gained 699 total yards, a conference record for an SWC game.

“Coming from Boyd, this is pretty darn exciting,” said the 6-2, 205-pound Tolliver.

Tech has averaged eight yards a play for the 99 snaps Tolliver has taken. In less than six quarters, he has completed 33 of 59 passes for 587 yards, six TDs and no interceptions.

“I was impressed by the way he moved the ball around,” said Tech offensive coordinator Tom Wilson. “He sees the whole field, and that forces the defense to cover the whole field.”

With the surge of Tolliver onto the scene, many people have wondered where this wonderboy has been all season. Coach Jerry Moore explained it this way:

“His shoulder was hurt during two-a-days and like a lot of young guys, he just didn’t tell anybody. He didn’t look very good and he wasn’t ready to play.”

Tolliver said he didn’t think the injury was going to hold him back, so he neglected to notify the trainers or coaches of his problem.

“At the time it happened, I thought I could work my way through it,” Tolliver said. “I figured I would lose ground and get behind if I missed my two-a-day work.”

“I felt I was ready to play against Arkansas, but the way I see it, when the coaches decide to put me in, then I’m ready to play,” he said. “They’re experienced and they know when to put a player in.”

Tolliver’s concentration now has turned to SMU, the Raiders’ opponent Saturday. Obviously, duplicating against the Mustangs the day he had against TCU will be a bit rough.

“They’ve got some great athletes in their secondary; they’re a tough, physical team,” Tolliver said. “What helps their defensive backs the most is their linebackers and their pass rush.”

All-SWC noseguard Jerry Ball leads the SMU rush. “Jerry Ball is a force to be reckoned with, but we don’t want to do anything just to stay around him because there are 10 other players out there. I think our personnel will handle him,” Tolliver said.

Moore has said his squad will “pass a little bit” against the Ponies, but another 40 attempts may be impossible against the stout SMU pass defense.

Epidemic of QB injuries frustrates Brown

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Rice Owls started the 1985 football season with high expectations for sophomore quarterback Mark Comalander, and he did not disappoint Coach Watson Brown.

Comalander ignited a mid-season surge that had the Owls playing at their best in recent years.

Comalander ranked among the national leaders in total offense and passing efficiency and the Owls had a 2-3 record.

But in the sixth game, Comalander was lost for the season on the third play of the game against Texas Tech.

It started a quarterback injury epidemic that has forced Brown to use five different signal callers and drastically reduce his offensive game plans.

Freshman Quentis Roper, who started the season as the Owls’ kick returner, switched to quarterback and led the Owls to a 29-27 victory over the Red Raiders for a 3-3 record.

Roper later was sidelined with a shoulder injury and was replaced alternately by backup quarterback Kerry Overton, running back Eddie Burgoyne and defensive back Travis Williams.

But the Owls have lost three in a row and started practice for Saturday’s game against the Baylor Bears in Waco wondering who will be able to take the snaps.

Overton suffered an ankle injury against Texas and has been used only as an emergency reserve.

Burgoyne was forced into the Arkansas game when Overton and Roper could no longer continue. He threw a touchdown pass on the final play of the game and hurt his shoulder on the play.

Williams, an all-conference quarterback for Blinn Junior College last year, started last week’s game against Southern Methodist but was replaced in the second half.

“It looks like Quentis is our best chance to play,” Brown said. “Eddie is still very sore and Kerry isn’t any better. Quentis is a whole lot better, but if we had to play today he couldn’t play.”

Brown said he hopes Roper, a freshman from Dallas Pinkston, will be healed enough to start against the Bears with Williams in reserve.

“I don’t know how I have any patience left at all,” Brown said. “I’ve never been through anything that even comes close to this. This is a freak thing to have all these injuries at that position.”

“I’m concerned that we are losing our confidence and composure,” Brown said. “It’s eating at us. I saw an uneasiness in the players Saturday and I haven’t seen that all year.”

LSO
Lubbock Symphony Orchestra

TO STUDENTS AT TEXAS TECH:
A MESSAGE FROM PATRICK FLYNN, MUSIC DIRECTOR OF THE LUBBOCK SYMPHONY.

We'd love you to come to our concerts. Maybe. Now what kind of attitude is that for an orchestra?

The truth is, we don't just want a large audience. We want a special kind of audience...let me explain.

If you are among those who think a Symphony Concert is something you have done to you like a haircut or a tanning session, we'd rather you stayed away. Or if you come to a performance just to be seen virtuously ingesting your monthly dose of “Culture”—forget it. No one will be interested. You may even feel out of place.

You see, L.S.O. concerts are not for everyone. That is not to say we are exclusively for the rich, anymore than we are just for the poor. But our concerts are for those who are turned on by great music and who are not afraid to admit it. We deliver for those who know how to fantasize, who bring their own energy to a performance and who know what it means to get those chills down the spine.

Frankly, that's the audience we want.

So if you are among them, we'd love you to come to our concerts. Definitely!

Sincerely,
Patrick Flynn

Nittany Lions No. 1; Hogs back in Top 10

By The Associated Press

State trounced Northwestern 35-17 and went from fourth to third with two first-place votes and 1,021 points.

Air Force, the nation's only 10-0 team, rose from fifth to fourth with two first-place votes and 941 points by routing Army 45-7 and Iowa went from sixth to fifth with 905 points after walloping Illinois 59-0.

Miami of Florida, a 29-22 winner over Maryland, vaulted from eighth place to sixth with 891 points. The remaining two first-place votes went to Oklahoma, which held seventh place with 883 points following a 51-6 romp over Missouri.

Michigan moved up from ninth to eighth with 744 points by drubbing Purdue 47-0. Arkansas leaped from 12th to ninth with 662 points by downing No. 11 Baylor 20-14, and Oklahoma State, which beat Kansas State 35-3, remained in 10th place with 646 points.

The 20 teams in this week's poll are the same as last week, with some shuffling.

The Second Ten consists of Florida, Georgia, UCLA, Auburn, Florida State, Brigham Young, Baylor, Tennessee, LSU and Alabama.

Last week, it was Baylor, Arkansas, Auburn, UCLA, LSU, Florida State, Georgia, BYU, Tennessee and Alabama.

Penn State has become the fifth team to reach the top of The Associated Press college football poll this season, ending Florida's one-week reign. The Nittany Lions, second a week ago, boosted their record to 9-0 by defeating Cincinnati 31-10 Saturday and took advantage of Florida's 24-3 loss to Georgia, which dropped the Gators to 11th place. Penn State received 44 of 59 first-place votes and 1,143 of a possible 1,180 points Monday from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The rise to the top capped a season-long climb for Penn State, which was 19th in the first regular-season poll and has since been 11th, 10th, ninth, eighth, sixth, third and second. Oklahoma, Auburn, Iowa and Florida had previously been ranked No. 1 this season. The No. 1 ranking wasn't expected to excite Penn State Coach Joe Paterno. Following Saturday's game, he said: "As I've always said, nobody's anything until the season's over. That's exactly the way I feel about it."

Nebraska, which crushed Iowa State 49-0 Saturday, moved up from third place to second with nine first-place votes and 1,083 points. Ohio

Georgia Tech No. 1 in AP basketball poll

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Georgia Tech's No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press preseason college basketball poll is a double-edged sword because "a tremendous amount of pressure" comes with the recognition, Yellow Jackets Coach Bobby Cremins said Tuesday.

Georgia Tech got 28 first-place votes and 1,192 points from the nationwide panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters to edge North Carolina for the top spot. Georgia Tech beat the Tar Heels 57-54 in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament championship game last season.

"To be honest, right now I don't know if we can live up to it. It puts a tremendous amount of pressure on us. My expectations are usually very Georgia Tech and North Carolina were among five ACC teams placed in the Top Twenty. In third place was Michigan, one of two Big Ten teams in the Top Ten.

The Tar Heels got 13 first-place votes and 1,148 points. Michigan had 13 first-place votes and 1,141 points.

The No. 4 team was Syracuse, one of two Big East teams in the Top Ten, with 936 points. No. 5 was Kansas, with four first-place votes and 921 points.

The ACC's Duke got two first-place votes and 911 points for the sixth-place ranking, and Illinois of the Big Ten got one first-place vote and 847 points for seventh place.

Georgetown of the Big East, last year's national runner-up, got one first-place vote and 824 points for eighth; No. 9 Louisville of the Metro Conference had 687; and Auburn of the Southeastern Conference rounded out the Top Ten with 670.

Last year's national champion, Villanova, was not ranked, nor was St. John's, a fellow Big East school and Final Four participant. Both teams lost several key players to graduation.

Georgetown has been in the NCAA championship game three of the last four years but now faces life without star center Patrick Ewing. The Hoyas were the top team in last year's preseason poll and held that spot for all but five weeks of the season.

The SEC is the only other conference to have more than two teams in the Top Twenty, with Kentucky ranked 11th and Louisiana State 14th. Kentucky will begin the season with a new coach, Eddie Sutton.

BASKETBALL SPOTLIGHT

Tech men show improvement

Only eight days remain until the Texas Tech men's basketball team begins the 1985-86 season with an exhibition game against Leverkusen, West Germany, and coach Gerald Myers says the Raiders have been improving steadily since practice began in mid-October.

"Practices have been going pretty well and the players are getting better," Myers said. "The younger players' improvement is obvious. They started at zero at our first practice and have progressed to where they are now."

Myers said the freshmen players have adjusted well to his style of basketball but need to become more consistent.

"They now know what they are supposed to do on the court. All they need to do is refine everything," Myers said. "They are building on what they have learned. They're probably not at the point where they want to be, but they have shown improvement and have given a good effort." Myers said improvement by underclassmen has been enhanced by the play of the veterans.

"The older guys work so hard in practice that the new guys have to work harder just to keep up," Myers said. "All six of our older players, such as Tony (Benford), (Ray) Irvin, (Tobin) Doda, (Greg) Crowe, (Mike) Nelson and Kent (Wojciechowski), really work hard in practice."

Myers said he has been emphasizing the offense in practice more than other aspects of the game.

"We've been working with the offense more than the defense because it takes longer to teach offense, but after awhile we will even out the time we spend on both," Myers said.

The Raiders will have intrasquad scrimmages Thursday in Amarillo and Sunday in Midland. Tech officially opens the season Nov. 25 against Montana in Lubbock.

Landry: Ditka's success in Chicago no surprise

By The Associated Press

IRVING — "Professor" Tom Landry said Tuesday that "pupil" Mike Ditka learned his lessons well in nine years as a Dallas Cowboys' assistant before becoming head coach of the Chicago Bears.

"Mike's success has not surprised me," said Landry. "Mike came to us late in his career but worked hard in our weight program and even caught a touchdown pass in the first Super Bowl we won."

"He worked hard as an assistant. You could see a transition in Mike. Now he's getting more mature."

Landry, in his 26th year as the Cowboys' head coach, said Ditka has had to work hard to learn to control his temper.

"He didn't have the poise necessary to be a head coach when he was first on my staff," said Landry. "But he wanted to coach the Bears so badly he has learned to control himself."

The unbeaten Bears clash with the Cowboys in Texas Stadium Sunday with a chance to clinch the National Conference Central Division title and extend their winning streak to 11 games. Chicago hasn't beaten the Cowboys since 1971, losing six consecutive times, including a 23-19 loss last year which Ditka took hard.

"I think Mike might have tried too hard to beat me last year," said Landry. "He has great respect for the organization and wanted to prove he was good."

Landry said the Bears should be favored over the 7-3 Cowboys because "they are ahead of us right now. If you win 10 straight games in this league you are really doing something. For us, every game is a battle and a struggle."

Chicago lost to Dallas 15-13 in the preseason in a fight-marred game in which 10 players on both teams were fined by the National Football League office.

Odds makers rated the soldout noon game a tossup.

Raider women ready to start

Trying to improve on last year's 24-8 record might not be the easiest thing to do, but with four of five starters returning and a group of promising newcomers waiting in the wings, the Texas Tech women's basketball team may be headed for another banner season.

"We have the potential to have a great ball club," coach Marsha Sharp said Tuesday night before the team's third intrasquad scrimmage.

"Our continuity is getting better all the time, and I'm pleased with the way the players have come around so quickly," Sharp said.

Two of the reasons Sharp is smiling so much these days is 6-2 freshman post Lynn Killough and 5-8 freshman guard Janice Davis.

"Our two freshmen have really been the biggest surprise so far this year," Sharp said. "Killough is getting better every day and Janice Davis is going to give us some quality depth at the guard position."

Killough, a product of Weatherford High School, said the transition from prep basketball to the college variety has been a pleasant one.

"I'm starting to feel more comfortable here," Killough said. "The level of play is a lot tougher, but that only makes me try harder."

Davis, who missed much of her high school senior season with an ankle injury, said making a position adjustment had been the toughest part of her preseason preparations.

"I played forward in high school, and now I'm playing guard for the first time," Davis said. "Timing is so much more important at the guard position and you have to know what everybody's doing. But I'm getting better."
