Former governor says tuition legislation justified

By LORRAINE BRADY University Daily News Reporter

Lowering increased tuition rates implemented this fall by the Texas Legislature is an unreasonable expectation, said former Gov. Bill Clements Tuesday.

Clements addressed at a news conference the issue of increased tuition under the current administration of Gov. Mark White. Collegians for Clements hosted the conference as part of Clements' 25-city campaign swing in his bid for the Republican nomination for governor.

Failed quorum stalls vote count in Philippines

By The Associated Press

MANILA - The National Assembly on Tuesday began the long-awaited official canvass of votes in the presidential election but called it off for lack of a quorum before a single vote could be tabulated.

The unofficial count by the government's Commission on Elections showed President Ferdinand E. Marcos ahead with 5,899,873 votes or 52 percent and his rival, Corazon Aquino, with 5,384,368 or 48 percent, with 53 percent of the precincts counted following Friday's presidential elections.

However, the count by the independent poll-monitoring group the National Movement for Free Elections, or Namfrel, had Aguino ahead with 6,933,989 or 52 percent against Marcos' 6,281,510 or 48 percent, with votes in 64 percent of the precincts counted. The country has 26 million registered

The National Assembly's count is the only one that is legally binding.

Aquino appealed to "my friends abroad" to help protect the victory she claims to have won. She said it would be a mistake to support a "failing dictator."

Marcos, 68, who has governed the Philippines for 20 years, accused Aquino Tuesday of making a "childish display of petulance."

Election-related violence has killed more than 90 people since the campaign began in early December.

The latest victim was former Gov. Evelio Javier, chairman of Aquino's campaign in the central Philippine province of Antique, who was shot dead by unidentified men Tuesday outside the Antique provincial capitol building.

In the assembly Tuesday, the number of legislators dwindled to below that required for a quorum as opposition assemblymen slipped out to meet with Aquino to discuss "the legitimacy of Marcos' holding on to Snow on campus presents a variety of hazards for students, staff and faculty. Not only is it difficult to transport oneself from home to school, but it is dangerous to merely walk to and from classes on icy paths.

One would think with so many obvious obstacles created by freezing temperatures and a large amount of direction of friends is one thing; precipitation, some Texas Tech students would conduct themselves with a little more discretion.

Weapon questions

To the editor:

Some concerned residents of the seventh floor and others of Murdough Hall wish to point to many factual errors contained in the Feb. 4 article by Linda Burke entitled "Tech police find weapons cache in dorm."

It is of the utmost importance to bring into the light two very important facts which the article failed to mention. First, only three of the confiscated items mentioned in the article are considered illegal. These items include one switchblade knife, three cherry bombs and a .223 caliber mini-14 Ruger.

Secondly, many of the confiscated items found in the room are not owned by the accused. These include the blow tube and darts, two knives, and the glove which is said to resemble that in the movie "Nighmare on Elm Street."

The following list will illustrate the inaccuracy of many of the facts contained in the article:

· Whereas the article stated that there were 23 knives discovered, only 21 were confiscated; only one switchblade was confiscated.

• The .22-caliber pistol mentioned in the article was a blank "starter" gun which is not capable of firing live ammunition.

• The police report lists only one can of Pyrodex, not two as the arti-

• The homemade blow-gun was, in fact, a blow-tube, not a gun.

• The pellet gun mentioned is a broken BB gun, often referred to as an "air gun."

 The 20 feet of fuse cord mentioned was a 15-foot roll when originally purchased.

 The article failed to mention that the Gatorade bottle of gasoline was used as a cleaning solvent for a 10-speed bicycle.

• The "weapons cache" consisted of only the three illegal weapons listed above.

The actual facts are that at 7:15 p.m. Feb. 1, 1986, a cherry bomb went off in Murdough Hall. No one was injured, and the only damage was a burned spot in the carpet. The police investigated the incident and found the three illegal weapons mentioned above.

-Paul Sharp and 15 other Murdough residents

To the editor:

This is in response to the Feb. 4 article about a weapons cache found in a dorm room. What is the UD's problem?

You have this kid tried and convicted before anything has been said and done. Sure, the kid had a Mini-14 in his room and some ammunition, and he should be charged for that. But is it really necessary to try him in the paper?

Also, you stated he had switchblades, when, in fact, he only had one. Heck, people, 20 feet of fuse cord is nothing. That leather glove you have been raising so much cane about was not his but his roommate's. You make it sound as if this guy had an arsenal and was going to take over the government.

The two cans of Pyrodex are a farce. Only one of the cans was full. The other was empty. Yes, that's right, empty.

If you must say falsehoods to get your paper printed, then I say why have a paper if it is nothing but lies? -Robert Ratliff

Snowball fights

To the editor:

Due to Monday's snow and class cancellations, several students on campus had snowball fights. I happened to be one of the approximately 200-plus students who participated at the Wiggins Complex snowball fight.

Not long after the "fights" ensued, campus police decided to show up and disperse the crowds. Needless to say, it didn't work. They then proceeded to drive their cars over the curb in pursuit of alleged "troublemakers."

Two students were arrested. One for actually throwing a snowball at the police car and the other for being "accused" by a girl whose car had been hit.

Not long after the police left another officer showed up and proceeded to drive up the curb. His acceleration caused him to slide, and he ended up crashing into the curb.

The crowd went into hysterics at the officer's loss of control. In return he singled out two students. One being myself and the other I didn't know. The officer proceeded to forcibly remove the young man's sunglasses and question him.

He didn't have much to say. The officer then turned to me and said, "How about you, cowboy? Do you want to act tough?" I told him to tell me why I was being taken and to read me my rights. He laughed and proceeded to shove me into the car. While he was getting into the car, I jumped out of the other side as everyone cheered and pelted the officer with snowballs.

Later, after everyone had gone inside, I found out that my friend had been arrested for fitting the description of "dark hair and a blue coat" (something new and unique). I understand that snowball fights can cause some minor damage and injuries and that some had actually occurred near Holden Hall.

Now I have just heard that the making or throwing of snowballs can get you arrested by the Tech

What kind of justice is that? In hindsight, I wished I had stayed and taken that cop's name and number. Then I would have showed you some justice.

and who would be getting the "Big Brother" treatment. The NCAA recently announced that schools should randomly conduct drug tests on athletes involved in championship events and bowl games. In defense of the NCAA's plan, it might be argued that because athletes represent the university and many of them are on full scholarship, the coaches have a right to keep tabs on them.

On the other hand, what if some higher-up committee came stampeding across the Tech campus and said that members of the Student Association, Interfraternity Council and even writers of The University Daily had to be tested for alien substances in their bodies. Some may feel it's OK for athletes to be checked out, but if it were you, wouldn't you feel different?

College is a time when "old" kids learn to become young adults. College students need a chance to make their own choices, even if those choices turn out to be mistakes. College athletes are students and individuals just like the rest of us. They should have freedom to experiment with their lives, too.

This is not a pro-drug comment, but rather a pro-freedom of choice wish. Drug abuse obviously is not good. Yet there are many students out there who occasionally go overboard on the weekends. Whether students indulge within the realm of alcohol, pot, coke or speed, almost everyone does it at least once. What if after that one little spree, you were randomly chosen for the infamous drug test?

Why are athletes getting the burn wrap? There are lots of students on college campuses across the nation who put chemicals into their bodies, and it is their own business. Athletes should not be treated as purchased, over-the-counter, pieces of meat.

It would be different on the level of professional athletics because the Michael Ray Richardsons and John Lucases of the professional ranks are paid abundant salaries. What would their parents say if the NCAA called them and informed them about it?

It seems coaches should think a little more seriously before jumping on the NCAA's purity bandwagon. Allow the student-athletes to be studenthuman beings, not just livestock who are unable to make decisions of their

"How are you?" Peres asked. "Everything is okay," Shcharansky said. They spoke in Hebrew.

Shcharansky clasped his hands above his head in victory, then held hands with Avital as she introduced him to Cabinet members, helping him with his Hebrew. For more than a decade she has lived in Israel and campaigned for his freedom.

It is Carney's job, as president of the Federal Farm Banks Funding Corp., to raise the $70 billion that the system lends to American farmers. The system is the farmers' biggest default on their loans, it is likely to lose $3 billion this year, according to some estimates.

If such losses continue, and most analysts expect that they will, Carney could be saddled with the huge problem of not being able to repay investors, among them pension funds and money market mutual funds. At the least, the Farm Credit System should be having trouble raising new money. After all, it is privately owned and does not have an explicit government guarantee.

Despite such woes, Carney is calm. 'The government would never let us default," he said flatly. The Farm Credit System was created by Congress, piece by piece beginning in 1917, with the mandate that it make loans to the nation's farmers. Today the system consists of 37 farmer-owned financial institutions, each operating fairly independently of each other although they all raise funds through Carney's Federal Land Banks Funding Corp. The overall regulator is the Farm Credit Administration, which has relatively little power.

Still, last week's good news of legislative action was bad news for some potential investors. By reinforcing investor confidence, the action in Washington drove down the yields on farm credit securities, which are mostly bonds and notes. On Wednesday, for example, five-year farm credit bonds were yielding 9.65 percent, or 68 basis points hundredths of a percentage point above comparable Treasury bonds. Criticism often seems inappropriate, unfair

University Daily Lifestyles Editor

Kristi Froehlich

As members of the Lifestyles staff, Eric, Joni and I often are working on reviews of movies, concerts, albums, restaurants, whatever may come about. I hear the same question over and over again about what gives us the right to criticize others.

Well, as critics, the staff and I try to do our best to attend an event, watch or listen to it as objectively as possible and then write a fair review of it.

We use our past experiences, general knowledge and skills to give the best report possible. I can hear it already, those of you saying, "Bull!" We often receive complaints from people who say we're lousy and we don't know what we're talking about. Well, let me try to explain it to those of you who believe our reviews to be crap.

As a student newspaper, we make our best attempt to cover those things we feel would most interest the Texas Tech student/faculty population. Yes, we leave out a lot of things, but it is not in an attempt to slide someone or something. Often we are restricted by space limitations or lack of knowledge on a subject. An example of the latter would be country music.

What we try to do is publicize the event, say if a country singer comes to town, and then review the concert. But because of our limited knowledge in the area of country music, we can only give the review our best stab, and we might not always hit the nail on head.

I think what is most important to remember is that regardless of whether you feel we are doing a good job in our criticism or not, you try to place yourself in our shoes. Could you review rock 'n' roll, country, classical, ballet, opera and new wave events with the same degree of knowledge?

If you can, give us a call and we'll put you in touch with The New York Times, because they probably can use someone with so much knowledge. Even they have specialized reporters who cover only specific areas where their knowledge is greatest.

Try to remember that we, too, are students and that working for The University Daily is a learning experience. We DON'T know everything, and we don't claim too. If we knew everything we wouldn't be working for The UD. So ease up and give us a break, will ya?

'Sickly' Hogs put health on line tonight in SWC grudge match

By KENT BEST University Daily Associate Sports Editor

The Arkansas Razorbacks were sick of Texas Tech the last time the two teams got together. And who could blame them? The Hogs had held a 12-point lead with under 10 minutes to go in the game but lost to the Red Raiders, 48-46, when Tony Benford scored with eight seconds left. The win was Tech's fourth straight over the Pigs, and it was Tech coach Gerald Myers' second straight win at Barnhill Arena.

Tech chases football signees today

By COLIN KILLIAN University Daily Sports Editor

Sometime today, David McWilliams will be able to sit back in his rocking chair and ponder the future of the Red Raider football program, based on the outcome of his first recruiting effort as Texas Tech's football coach.

That future depends largely on the quantity and quality of the high school players signed to national letters-of-intent by McWilliams' staff on this, National Signing Day.

Tech had received 15 verbal commitments through Monday, 10 of which were from offensive and defensive linemen. Unlike past recruiting seasons, the Raiders seem to have landed players with as 225 pounds. much bulk as desire. The commit- McWilliams and his staff worked at a disadvantage throughout much of the season after getting a late start. McWilliams was hired Dec. 2, taking over for Jerry Moore, who was fired Nov. 19.

The Raiders could sign several West Texas players, most notably Odessa Permian defensive end Troy Baker (6-3, 230), Plainview linebacker Brent Barton (6-4, 230) and Electra running back Charles Lott (6-3, 210).

As has been the case in recent years, the Raiders have not received commitments from any Blue Chip prospects — players ranked among the top 15 recruits in the state.

Entries for the men's and women's Fast Pitch Tournament are due February 18-20 with tournament play slated for March 2. All teams are guaranteed two

There will be a fast pitch rules clinic on February 20 from 5-6 p.m. in the SRC classroom.

Slow pitch softball entries are due February 25-27 for men's, women's, co-rec and campus community leagues with league play beginning March 9. Instant scheduling will be used for slow pitch, so get your entries in early to assure your team of playing at those prime times.

A slow pitch rules clinic to include co-rec rules will be held February 27 from 5-6 p.m. in the SRC classroom.

All teams are encouraged to attend their respective clinic.

Recreatonal Sports is also looking for men and women empires. The first clinic is February 24 from 6-8:30 p.m. in the SRC classroom.

First year umpires receive a $5.25 per game while veterans and ASA umpires will receive a slightly higher rate.

People interested in umpiring may drop by the Rec Sports Office to find out the entire clinic schedule or just show up for the first clinic on February 24.

For additional information on softball entries or umpiring, come by the Rec Sports Office or call Denise Kopriva at 742-3351.

Don't let intramural softball pass you by.

Winter Workshop Planned

Camping is not always a warm weather sport according to Wayne Taylor, coordinator of the Tech Outdoor Program.

Taylor, who has been on the Tech campus since September, will be conducting a winter camping seminar on Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in Room 205 of the Student Recreation Center. Those participating will learn how to travel, camp, pack and stay warm while enjoying the out of doors during the cold weather months. Interested people need to come by the Outdoor Shop, Room 206 of the SRC, or show up at the workshop. For further information call 742-2949.

Valentine Fun Run Set

Win a dinner for two at Orlando's Restaurant by participating in the Valentine's Day Co-Rec Predicted Time Fun Run this Friday at 5:15 p.m. The winning couple with the fastest time in the race will win a dinner for

The course is 2 miles and begins at the north entrance of the Stuent

Recreation Center. All women runners will receive a carnation.

Entries will be taken until race time. There are no fees.

Injury Clinic Continues

Dr. Robert Yost, orthopedic surgeon and leading authority in sports medicine, is offering his services free of charge to students, faculty and staff on Wednesdays at 7 p.m.

The purpose of this clinic is to educate students concerning athletic type injuries that could have occurred while participating in some form of recreational or athletic activity.

Dr. Yost will examine a limited number of people with these type of injuries each week.

All the injury clinics are free an open to anyone eligible to enter the Student Recreation Center.

Clinics will be held in the classroom located on the north end of the upper

For further information contact the SRC Office at 742-3351.

Co-Rec Winners Announced

In the Saturday Morning Live Tournament, Joel Hilbun and Christy Bollman won the co-rec racquetball championship in two straight games 15-12, 15-5, over Steve Lambert and Julie Owen.
