Car bomb explodes in U.S. Embassy compound

By The Associated Press

LISBON, Portugal — A car bomb exploded Tuesday night on the grounds of the U.S. Embassy, sparking a smoky fire in the garden and flames a story high. Embassy guards and other witnesses said there were no injuries.

An Associated Press reporter arrived seconds after the blast as passers-were running to the embassy gates to stare at the burning hulk of the car used to bring the bomb onto the grounds.

A Portuguese security guard employed by the embassy to check all vehicles entering the area said a man drove into the compound, jumped from the car and ran out the gates in a matter of seconds.

"I realized there was a bomb in the car, so I backed off," said the guard, who did not give his name. "No, no one was injured," he said, repeating: "Nobody was hurt at all, we kept back."

The vehicle used in the bombing attack, a twisted and burning wreck, was about 20 feet inside the compound gates.

There was no apparent damage to the embassy guardhouse, about 10 feet from the vehicle, or to other cars parked nearby.

The embassy building itself, a brick and concrete structure formally dedicated last year, was more than 100 yards away and apparently was untouched by the explosion.

The U.S. Embassy, which is headed by former U.S. Information Agency director Frank Shakespeare, is on the northern outskirts of Lisbon.

The embassy was under construction for more than four years. It replaced a downtown apartment building that officials considered a security risk.

The new structure was reported to have been built with such strict security standards that window panes were thick enough to prevent potential spies with telescopes in a nearby hotel from taking long-lens photographs of documents on embassy diplomats' desks.

It was the third time in two years the new embassy had been the target of an attack. In the first of the other two attempts, a bazooka shot was fired at the embassy walls. In the second, a passing car sprayed the walls of the heavily guarded compound with bullets.

The other two attempts were claimed by FP-25, the left-wing Popular Forces of the April 25 group, whose alleged members have been standing trial the past two months in Lisbon.

Soviet expert urges cultural exchanges

By CHERYLE LOCKE
University Daily News Reporter

Incorrect perceptions created by the powerful forces of both American and Soviet propaganda is the root of the problem facing the two superpowers, according to former Soviet KGB agent Vladimir Sakharov.

Sakharov spoke to a large crowd at the Allen Theater Tuesday night, stressing the need for cultural exchanges among the two countries.

"I saw Rocky IV, Rambo, Wendy's and MTV commercials. You probably believe all Russian women are really ugly. Soviets see TV programs depicting American spies, espionage and CIA and the wonderful KGB is there to stop it all," Sakharov said. "Most young Soviets are afraid of being robbed and of crime and so forth in the United States."

Although the Soviet-turned-CIA agent was quick to point out that the Soviet Union has numerous shortcomings, he said Americans should not see the Soviet Union as "10 feet tall." Perceiving the Soviets in terms of good or bad or black or white is an image Sakharov discourages.

Some of the Soviet Union's domestic problems Sakharov mentioned are alcoholism, inflation due to an active black market, a high divorce rate and low incentive to have children.

"It is so important to influence the Russian psyche," Sakharov said. "The only example I can give you is to imagine this: you are sitting at your window in Russia looking out your window as the rain, sleet and snow falls down on the dirty city. You think about getting up and going to work at 6 a.m. and having that same job for the rest of life and living in that same apartment for the rest of your life.

"You are sitting there thinking about your life and you turn on your radio to the Voice of America and here a voice say, 'Welcome to Jazz Hour,' and then you hear Count Basie play 'April in Paris' and the hair will stand up on your arms. I know because it happened to me."

Although he said he believes American culture is the United States' strongest selling point, he does not think it is presented properly to Soviet citizens.

"Jazz and other American music is the best thing we have to offer," he said.

Sakharov is teaching at the University of Arizona. When asked which nation would be the first to take steps toward a friendly cultural exchange, American students or Soviet students, he said although he had never thought about it, he was quite sure it would be American students.

"I feel quite positive American students are more willing," he said. "Americans have an ingrained curiosity. You can't afford to be too curious in the Soviet Union or you get in trouble. You know Marx and Lenin, and that's good enough. Soviets are lacking spontaneity, and they are restricted in their travel. Americans can just pick up and go."

Guerrillas threaten to kill Israeli captive

By The Associated Press

TYRE, Lebanon — Israeli troops and armor swarmed over south Lebanon Tuesday searching for two comrades captured by Moslem guerrillas, who threatened to kill one unless Israel withdraws.

A Moslem extremist group said it had killed a Lebanese Jew kidnapped a year ago as revenge for the raid.

Helicopter gunships strafed suspected guerrilla hideouts to support the hundreds of Israeli troops on the ground. Jet fighters crisscrossed the skies, breaking the sound barrier over Beirut, Tyre and Sidon.

Lightly armed guerrillas fought advancing Israelis in the olive groves and tobacco fields. Lebanese radio stations claimed the resistance was stiff, but security forces reported only scattered fighting and said the powerful raiding force overwhelmed pockets of resistance.

The captives were taken Monday in an ambush inside the "security zone" Israel maintains just north of its border with Lebanon.

The Organization of the Oppressed on Earth said in a statement delivered to the independent Beirut newspaper An-Nahar that the kidnapped Jew, Elie Hallak, 52, was slain in retaliation for "terrorist operations Israel is conducting against our oppressed people in south Lebanon."

The group, believed to be a Shiite faction that holds several other Jewish civilians, has killed three other Jewish hostages in the last two months. Hallak was kidnapped Feb. 21, 1985, in Moslem west Beirut.

Beirut radio, the government station, said three guerrillas were killed and nine wounded in firefights with Israeli troops landed by helicopter at a string of Shiite villages.

Israel's military command said a sailor, Cpl. Daniel Amar, 19, was killed when his patrol boat was hit by gunfire from Tyre, 12 miles north of the border.

Beirut radio said it was one of several that shelled the Qasmiyeh bridge on the Litani River north of Tyre, apparently to prevent militiamen in Beirut from moving south.

The National Resistance Front, a loose grouping of Syrian-backed leftist and Moslem factions, claimed its men shot down an Israeli gunship near Srafa, just south of the Litani and 17 miles from the Israeli border.

Filipino vote marked by fraud, prof says

By DAVID CORTES
University Daily News Reporter

Had the Philippine presidential election not been tainted by fraud, challenger Corazon Aquino would have won the election by popular vote, a Texas Tech professor said Tuesday.

"By all indications, including the observations of foreign groups, not only Americans but Europeans as well, she probably would have won a popular vote if there was no cheating or tampering with the ballots," said Alexis Tan, a professor in the mass communications department.

Tan, who was born in Los Banos, about 30 miles outside the capital of Manila, lived in the Philippines for 19 years and attended the University of the Philippines before continuing his education in the United States. He now is a U.S. citizen, but many members of his family continue to live in the Philippines.

Tan said there was a long delay between the time the elections were finished and the time the official count started. "That delay gives the government in power the opportunity to tamper with the returns," he said.

Allegations against the Philippine government for invalid vote tabulations, Tan said, were made not only by the Philippine Roman Catholic Church and opposition groups, but by the congressional delegation from the United States.

On Saturday, the National Assembly proclaimed Ferdinand E. Marcos president of the Philippines for another six years. He began his regime in 1965 when he was democratically elected president.

"He used to be a popular president," Tan said. "But he declared martial law about 15 years ago, and ever since then, he has run the government as a one-man show."

Marcos took control of the government because of the growing "communist threat."

"Personally, I think the threat was exaggerated," Tan said.

The Philippines, a former U.S. colony, has a long tradition of democratic government. When the Philippines was given its independence, the United States wanted the Philippines to serve as a democratic role model for developing countries, he said.

"When I was growing up, until Marcos took over, the country was a democracy," Tan said. "There was a free press. There was a lot of corruption in the government, and there was cheating in elections, but there was no one political party which had total control of the government as there is now."

The problem with developing countries such as the Philippines, he said, is a wide gap between the wealthy, which constitutes less than 10 percent of the population, and the remaining poor population.

"Unfortunately, the politics and government are run by the 10 percent of the people who are quite wealthy," Tan said. "There is a very small middle class, although these days there is a growing middle class made up mostly of college educated people."

The Philippines were colonized by Spaniards several hundred years ago, but rebellion weakened their hold on the islands, Tan said. Japan and the United States also made efforts to colonize the country.

"For the most part, U.S. colonization was accepted much better than Spanish colonization," Tan said.

Clark Air Force Base and the Subic Bay naval base are the military bases, where 18,000 Americans serve, and an additional 50,000 Americans live and work in the country. About a million Filipinos live in the United States.

Since the Marcos regime began, the country's primary cause for political deterioration has been its economy. Unemployment among the 21 million member work force is estimated at 40 percent, according to an article in Time magazine. The nation's foreign debt is more than $26 billion.

Tan also cited another reason for the Philippines' political troubles.

"I think whenever you find uneven distribution of wealth, people will start asking questions," he said. "This distribution has not been evident during the Marcos regime. The one-man rule caused people to start asking questions."

Before the election, Aquino said if she won, she would put Marcos on trial for the assassination of her husband in 1983. Tan said if Marcos had not won the election, under Aquino's accusations, he would have had to leave the country or face trial and possible imprisonment.

"Given that scenario, the options were not very good for the Philippines," he said. "Either Marcos won cleanly, which was not very probable, because the people were getting fed up with him, and which was not good for the country, in my opinion, because it would mean a confirmation of his totalitarian rule. If Aquino had won the election cleanly, Marcos would not have allowed that, because of the risk to him, his family and close friends."

Since Marcos has won the election, Aquino has called for a non-violent boycott against companies and banks.

"I think she's doing the right thing to show how strong the opposition is," Tan said. "I think she will be able to convince the outside world, the United States in particular, that this is not a popular government."

He said he anticipates Marcos' continuation of rule with enduring non-violent protests.

Students' names withheld

By DAVID CORTES
University Daily News Reporter

To gain a student's perspective on the presidential election in the Philippines, The University Daily attempted to contact Texas Tech Filipino students, but their names were withheld by the International Programs office for fear of endangering the lives of their family members.

"It is a university policy not to give out the names of students without their consent," said Jackie Behrens, director of International Programs.

Behrens also said she thought it was in the best interest of the students not to have their names released "at the expense of their families."

Alexis Tan, a professor in the mass communications department, said the Philippine government could order the arrest of a Philippine student for an unfavorable report to the news media.

Shuttle disaster causes explored

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The chairman of a presidential commission told Congress Tuesday the space shuttle Challenger's right solid fuel rocket booster "appears to be the area where the trouble started" that led to the nation's worst space disaster.

But William Rogers told the Senate space subcommittee "it would be a mistake" to focus all attention on the suspect rocket, and he said the shuttle's huge external tank may have been a contributor to the Jan. 28 accident.

Rogers, the leadoff witness at the first in what is expected to be a long series of congressional hearings, disclosed that the strut that attaches the booster rocket to the larger external fuel tank was broken sometime during the ill-fated flight, which ended after 73 seconds with the loss of the Challenger and the deaths of its seven-member crew.

In written testimony, acting NASA Administrator William Graham told the panel that no element of the shuttle system "has been excluded as a candidate prime cause" in the explosion. But he added that the shuttle "orbiter itself appeared to have functioned properly ..."

Meanwhile, sources who asked not to be identified by name said investigators for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are probing dozens of possible explanations for the accident, including an effort to see whether the main external tank might have had a small leak before launch.

Agency officials also are trying to determine whether the launch pad — in use for the first time on the Challenger flight — may have played a role. The shuttle and its rockets sway slightly during the few seconds between engine ignition and liftoff and then come back to its original, vertical position. Officials want to know whether the launch pad may have affected that occurrence in an unexpected manner.

Members of the subcommittee expressed admiration for the nation's manned space program. Even so, Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said, "At this particular juncture it looks like an avoidable accident rather than an unavoidable one."

Rogers and members of the Senate panel, chaired by Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., also got into some sharp exchanges over Rogers' unwillingness to allow congressional investigators to sit in on the commission's closed meetings.

"This is a presidential commission, and we think we have the right to hold executive sessions as we see fit," Rogers told Sen. Donald W. Riegle, D-Mich. He said his panel plans to conduct open hearings after gathering data in executive sessions.

Hollings questioned the thoroughness of the commission's investigation by saying the probe had been going on for 12 days and there still were no professional investigators on the staff.

Rogers resisted all attempts to make him state a possible cause for the explosion.

Philippine peso plunges, unrest escalates

By The Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — The Philippine peso took its biggest plunge in 15 years Tuesday, and there were indications an opposition boycott called by Corazon Aquino was hitting the nation's already troubled economy.

Some top businessmen quit as advisers to President Ferdinand E. Marcos, and stock prices of the country's biggest manufacturing company fell after Aquino urged the boycott to protest declaration that Marcos won the controversial Feb. 7 presidential election.

The peso's value fell by 10.3 percent Tuesday, from 19.98 to the dollar Monday to 22.04 in trading at the foreign exchange center.

"The most important factor was market nervousness because of the political uncertainty," a government bank source, who demanded anonymity, said of the Philippine currency's decline.

Elsewhere, state prosecutors filed multiple murder charges against Arturo Pacificador, a powerful Marcos ally in the National Assembly, and 5,000 protesters took to the streets to denounce election fraud and what they claim was U.S. support for Marcos.

Some demonstrators carried signs reading, "Americans, you will pay." At a nearby church, Jose Concepcion, chairman of the National Movement for Free Elections, a citizens vote-monitoring organization known as Namfrel, wept for a volunteer who was shot to death when he tried to stop gunmen from stealing ballot boxes during the election.

Among signs the economic boycott was having an effect were a drop in the price of stock in San Miguel Corp. and reports that several banks had unusual withdrawals. San Miguel stock traded Tuesday at 55 cents a share, down from Friday's 70 cents and the Monday close of 57.5 cents.

Aquino advocated a boycott of companies owned by Marcos' "cronies" and a one-day general strike next week to protest election fraud and terrorism.

San Miguel makes beer, soft drinks, ice cream and dairy products and is controlled by industrialist Eduardo Cojuangco, a cousin of Aquino.

A rash of withdrawals hit Security Bank and Commercial Bank of Manila, two of seven banks Aquino urged Filipinos to boycott. Bank officers said many customers were taking their money elsewhere in response to Aquino's call.

The boycott's impact was not immediately clear on three major pro-government Manila newspapers.

Leftist youths and workers denounced the "bogus Marcos victory" and what they called U.S. support for the "terrorist regime."

Tyler man's poisoning linked to cyanide

TYLER (AP) — A lab technician who almost died from cyanide poisoning said Tuesday he still does not know why he keeled over shortly after taking Tylenol capsules that tests show were not tainted.

Bill Case, 41, said he collapsed on Feb. 4 after taking two capsules he received from a pharmacy at East Texas Mental Health-Mental Retardation Regional Center.

Dr. Michael Welch, who treated Case at Medical Center Hospital, said the only link to Tylenol has been the man's statement that he took two capsules on the morning of Feb. 4 and two more about 3 p.m. that day.

Case, director of lab services at the MHMR facility, felt no ill effects from the first pair of Tylenol capsules.

He started "fading out" after taking the second two Tylenols later in the day, he told reporters Tuesday afternoon during a news conference.

Manufacturer says drug packaging safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's no point in doing away with medicine capsules in light of a poisoning linked to Tylenol capsules since "a dedicated tamperer" could poison other forms of medicine, too, a spokesman for drug manufacturers said Tuesday.

John T. Walden, senior vice president of the Proprietary Association, which represents non-prescription drug-makers, acknowledged that the poisoning death — and the discovery of cyanide in another bottle of capsules in the same Bronxville, N.Y., community — has caused a "very large" public relations problem for drug companies.

However, he also said, "I think the industry is very confident in the systems they now use" to prevent tampering.

White calls for more state agency cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — State agencies and universities were directed Tuesday to cut spending by 13 percent over the next 18 months as Gov. Mark White asked them to deal with "an unprecedented drop" in oil prices.

White said he believes $1.3 billion can be saved without laying off state workers.

He issued an executive order calling for a modified hiring freeze and other budget-trimming measures he said would make it unnecessary to call the Legislature into special session to slash spending.

"We will maintain top-priority programs but take a hard look at money spent on administration, consultants, travel, equipment and supplies, and utilities," White said.

Following the worldwide slump in oil prices, State Comptroller Bob Bullock last week said the state's projected revenue would fall $1.3 billion short of the $37.2 billion appropriated by the Legislature for the 1986 and 1987 budget years.

Allied Health

Tech curriculum prepares people for medically oriented careers

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the first in a three-part series on the Texas Tech School of Allied Health. Today's story deals with the medical technology curriculum. Thursday's story will examine the physician therapy curriculum, and Friday's will examine the occupational therapy curriculum.

By SCOTT FARIS
University Daily News Reporter

The medical technology (MT) curriculum at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center School of Allied Health gives scientifically inclined students medically oriented career opportunities.

"MT is a lab-oriented profession. It's a very progressive field," said Laurence Peake, dean of Allied Health.

Allied Health offers three programs: medical technology, physical therapy and occupational therapy. Each program is at the bachelor's degree level.

Students may enter MT in their freshman year or may transfer on a 2+2 plan, which means students complete two years of general study at a university such as Tech, then transfer to MT in the School of Allied Health.

Shirley McManigal, chairperson of MT, described medical technicians as clinical laboratory scientists. Lab work is mainly diagnostic, helping physicians locate medical problems in patients.

"We do the lab tests that help him (the physician) make a diagnosis," said McManigal. She said much of the diagnostic work deals with disease or organ malfunction.

Peake stressed the investigative side of MT. "It's like detective work, in a way," he said.

When a person seeks medical attention, the physician formulates two or three possible diagnoses after examination. The doctor then orders specific lab tests to see which is the correct diagnosis.

Medical technicians perform such tests. Tests vary with different organs and diseases.

"The medical technician does not have as much contact with the patient," said McManigal.

The clinical laboratory is divided into four sections, each dealing with a specific area tested when diagnosing an illness.

In hematology, the first division, technicians perform analyses on the characteristics of blood, such as the number of white and red blood cells. Technicians test to see if the different blood cells are performing their proper function.

Hematology also involves the coagulation factors in blood, which determine blood clotting.

Technicians prepare blood for transfusion in the blood bank, the second division. The preparation requires technicians to cross-match donor and recipient blood by mixing the two. Technicians also test blood compatibility.

Microbiology, the third division, deals with determining sources of infection. "Once we identify it (the infection), we test it against antibiotics," said McManigal. She said the antibiotic tests help show a physician what medications will help a patient.

Microbiology also helps detect fungal diseases, parasite infections and viral diseases.

The fourth division, clinical chemistry, deals with analysis of blood and body fluids. "That's where we apply chemistry to the human body," said McManigal.

Medical technicians use sophisticated equipment to analyze body fluids for chemical constituents such as carbon dioxide, sodium, cholesterol and vitamins.

McManigal said students are trained in each division. "A medical technician has to work in all of those areas," she said.

"They use a lot of computerized equipment to assist physicians in diagnosing," said Peake. He said equipment used by medical technicians changes rapidly as technology increases.

A knowledge of biology, microbiology, chemistry, physics and mathematics is useful for MT students, according to McManigal.

McManigal described the MT program as difficult. "It's pretty intense," she said. "This is for the serious student.

"We need a student that's a little above average. Students enrolled in MT are required to maintain a 2.5 GPA overall and must earn a 2.5 GPA in the sciences.

The senior year includes experience in actual laboratory departments. Students perform analyses on specimens of in-house patients under supervision of certified medical technologists.

McManigal said the job market for technicians is good, with an average starting salary between $18,000 and $28,000. Salary depends on geographic location, with the West Coast boasting the highest pay.

The average starting salary in Lubbock is around $19,000, according to McManigal.

Medical technicians work in many settings, including hospitals, clinics, physicians' offices and government agencies. McManigal estimated that 75 percent of all technicians work in hospitals.

She said career opportunities also exist in veterinary facilities, entailing laboratory work with animals.

After graduation, medical technicians must seek certification under national medical boards. "That credential is recognized all around the world," said McManigal.

Copperfield creates illusions for Hub City

By ERIC STEELE
University Daily Lifestyles Reporter

Lubbock's going to have to slow down a little if it hopes to maintain its image as a boring little West Texas town. It's almost gettin' down right exciting 'round here.

Take David Copperfield, for example. This guy has been amazing audiences and critics for years doing stuff like making a seven-ton jet led him to be named Entertainer of the Year by the American Guild of Variety Artists and Magician of the Year by the Academy of Magical Arts.

I'd be here for days writing about Copperfield's accomplishments, so I'll just close by saying that he'll perform Saturday at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium. Tickets cost $8 for students and available at the University Center ticket booth.

His performances begin at 4 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. Saturday. All tickets sold at the door, by the way, cost $12. Buy in advance, folks.

Noted blues/rock singer Delbert McClinton will be at Fat Dawg's Thursday. Scratch will open for McClinton and will play the Dawg solo on Friday and Saturday nights.

Cover Thursday night is $6. Friday and Saturday nights will run you $3.

Well, The Boys Are Back in Town. The Maines Brothers are back in the Hub City promoting their new album entitled The Boys Are Back in Town, (ain't that clever how I did that?). Anyway, the group is playing at

Dawg to host Lubbock-born rhythm and blues performer

Lubbock-born Delbert McClinton will perform his brand of rock 'n' country, rhythm & blues Thursday at Fat Dawg's Bar and Grill.

McClinton and his first band, the Straightjackets, have backed up such notables as Sonny Boy Williamson, Jimmy Reed, Buster Brown, Lightin' Hopkins and Big Joe Turner. Those musicians all have influenced McClinton's sound.

After the Straightjackets broke up, McClinton formed the Rondels. The group recorded McClinton's song, "If You Really Want Me To I'll Go," which reached the national charts. The song later was recorded by Waylon Jennings and Doug Sham.

Emmy Lou Harris had a number one hit with McClinton's "Two More Bottles of Wine," and John Belushi and Dan Aykroyd included his tune "B Movie" on their "Blues

Winter is over and spring is here, and all those indoor sports can come out of hibernation.

In its first outdoor match of the year, the Texas Tech men's tennis team will look to keep its slate clean when the Red Raiders host the Angelo State Rams at 1 p.m. today at the Tech varsity courts.

Tech opened the spring season Saturday with an easy 7-2 victory over West Texas State and should be favored against the Rams. The Raiders defeated ASU last year 8-1. "Angelo State always has a very good team," coach Ron Damron said. "Their top players are very consistent and very talented."

Simon Hurry will play at the top singles position, followed by Dick Bosse, Lamar May, Luis Segovia, Ted Invie and Alan Wienand. In doubles action, the teams will be Hurry and Bosse at the No. 1 spot, Steve Kordas and May at No. 2 and Segovia and Wienand in the No. 3 position.

—BRAD WALKER

Wrestling . . .

The Texas Tech wrestling team shined in its only home appearance of the season, posting three first-place finishes in the Tech Open Saturday at the Student Recreation Center.

Guy Metzger grabbed first place in the 158-pound division, while Bobby Cogburn won the 190-pound division and Scott Russell won the heavyweight class.

The grapplers also brought home two second-place awards. Mike Moore was the runner-up in the 118-pound class, while Travis Adams took second in the 190-pound bracket and Dustin Crimmons placed third in the 177-pound class.

Tech will take a week off before returning to action at the Texas State Collegiate Tournament Feb. 28-March 1 in San Marcos.

Tech women nip Aggies, 74-70

Raiders tighten grip on second place in SWC race with victory

By KENT BEST
University Daily Associate Sports Editor

COLLEGE STATION — Tricia Clay had 19 points and Julia Koncak added 15 as the Texas Tech women's basketball team held off a determined Texas A&M team 74-70 in a Southwest Conference game Tuesday night.

The Red Raiders improved their record to 18-6, while the Lady Aggies dropped to 14-11. Tech is 11-2 in SWC play — in second place behind No. 1 Texas — and A&M is 7-6.

Despite leading by as many as 11 points in the first half, Tech struggled late in the period and held a narrow one-point lead at intermission.

Clay led off the second half with a short turnaround jumper to put Tech up by three, but unfortunately for the Raiders, that was the largest lead they would have until late in the game.

Behind the perimeter shooting of Aggie All-America candidate Lisa Langston, A&M took its third lead of the game with 12 minutes left. The lead was brief, however, as Tech's Camille Franklin canned a 16-footer less than a minute later to put the Raiders back on top, 46-45.

Koncak converted a three-point play at the 7:35 mark to give the Raiders a 55-53 advantage, but forward Paula Crutcher countered with a fast break layin to knot the score again.

The teams traded buckets and with 4:17 left, and the game was tied at 61. Then with 3:34 remaining in the game, Koncak reappeared in the Tech offensive scheme.

Benefiting from consecutive assists from guard Sharon Cain, Koncak found an opening in the Aggies' back door and accounted for consecutive layups to push Tech ahead by four points.

Aggies forward Nette Garrett took a pass from Langston and laid it in to bring A&M within two points, but Tech's Lisa Logsdon nailed a 20-foot bomb with just over two minutes left to put the Raiders back in front by four. Tech coach Marsha Sharp said the six-point swing signaled a turnaround for the Raiders.

"That little period there when Koncak hit those two buckets and Logsdon scored from outside made the difference tonight," Sharp said. "It was the turning point we needed to win the game."

The Lady Aggies still had a chance, but with the game on the line, A&M hit only one of four free throws. The Raiders, meanwhile, hit the free throws when they counted down the stretch to seal the victory. Logsdon's two points from the charity stripe with 56 seconds left gave Tech a seven-point cushion that was out of reach for the Lady Aggies.

"I just tried to block out the crowd and tried not to think about the game being as close as it was," Logsdon said of the free shots. "It was important to us to get this win on the road. We're happy with the way it turned out." Langston led the Aggies with 19 points, and Crutcher and Garrett added 18 and 17 points. Tech's attack was more balanced as Franklin scored 12 points and Logsdon had nine to complement the prolific scoring of Clay and Koncak. Cain had another generous night, dishing out a game-high nine assists.

Things started well for Tech, as the Raiders ran off seven straight points to begin the game. But behind the inside play of Garrett, the Aggies charged back and tied the game 23-23 with 6:24 remaining in the half. Neither team could gain more than a one-point lead the rest of the way, however, as Tech managed a 32-31 halftime lead.

Bliss denies interest in OSU job

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Southern Methodist University Basketball Coach Dave Bliss says he has not considered the Ohio State head coaching position.

Bliss, a former assistant to Bob Knight at Indiana and Army, told The Columbus Dispatch Monday, "I'm coaching my own basketball team right now. I have no comment on another job."

Bliss, 42, is in his sixth season at SMU. He has a 96-77 record. The Mustangs are 16-7 this season and tied for third place in the Southwest Conference.

Asked if he would apply for the position, held currently by Eldon Miller but vacant at the conclusion of Ohio State's season, Bliss said, "I haven't thought about it. It hasn't crossed my mind. I'm Southern Methodist's basketball coach. But thanks for the interest."

USFL prepared to play

NEW YORK — Commissioner Harry Usher said Tuesday that the United States Football League is prepared to play next fall without the champion Baltimore Stars, whose owner suggested that the USFL consider scrapping the 1986 season.

"We've been drawing up a seven-team schedule if it comes to that," Usher said. "We're working on the assumption that we'll have an eight-team league but if we have to play without Baltimore we're prepared for that also."

The commissioner's comments came as the USFL, already down to eight teams from 14 last season, prepared for meetings here Wednesday to plan its first season in the fall following three in the spring.

Red Raiders hunt for antidote in return game against Aggies

By KENT BEST
University Daily Associate Sports Editor

COLLEGE STATION — The last time Texas Tech and Texas A&M got together on a basketball court, the Red Raiders and Aggies were tied for first place in the Southwest Conference with identical 4-0 records.

The game lived up to its pre-game hype featuring see-saw momentum shifts, including a spectacular comeback by Tech in the second half. But "Big Mo" finally moved to the Aggies' bench when Tech forward Dewayne Chism misfired on what appeared to be a game-clinching slam dunk with 11 seconds to play.

The Aggies, trailing by two, converted the miss into a three-point play by center Jimmy Gilbert and fled the Coliseum with a 58-57 win and sole possession of first place in the SWC.

When the Raiders and the Aggies meet at 7:30 tonight in G. Rollie White Coliseum in College Station, the situation will be a little different. Instead of the glorious first place environment of the teams' first clash, Tech, now 11-12 for the year and 6-6 in the league, still is knotted in a tie, but this time the Raiders are quagmired with the Houston Cougars in fifth place.

A&M, meanwhile, has fallen on similar hard times and is in a fourth-place sister-kiss with SMU at 8-4 in the conference.

Tech coach Gerald Myers said the Raiders have just recently begun to regroup from their first loss to the Aggies.

"I think it affected us for awhile," Myers said of the one-point loss. "It ruined our momentum — we were rolling pretty good at the time. The way it hurt us was that we would've still been in first place coming home against Texas.

"We were trying to get up there and finish first, but we can't do that now so I don't think it's bothering us anymore."

Myers was bothered enough, however, with Tech's post-A&M doldrums (Tech has won only twice in seven games since the A&M loss) to alter his lineup for the Raiders' second Aggie encounter.

TEXAS TECH

vs.

7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 19, in College Station

G-34 Tony Benford (6-4, Sr.)
G-13 Sean Gay (6-3, Fr.)
G-1 Wendell Owens (6-3, Jr.)
F-44 Dewayne Chism (6-7, Jr.)
C-32 Ray Irvin (6-8, Sr.)

G-3 Don Marbury (6-3, Sr.)
G-11 Todd Holloway (6-9, Jr.)
F-21 Winston Crite (6-7, Jr.)
F-25 Mike Clifford (6-6, Jr.)
C-30 Jimmie Gilbert (6-9, Sr.)

PROBABLE STARTERS

Instead of the usual two-guard, two-forward lineup, Tech will use a three-guard attack against the Aggies. The Raiders had success early in the year with a backcourt trio, and Myers believes the quicker lineup will benefit Tech's offensive output.

"It's gonna give us a pretty quick team," Myers said. "We're going to go that way the next few games and try to develop that lineup. The other teams may have a little trouble matching up with those three guys."

Those three guys — Tony Benford, Sean Gay and Wendell Owens — have emerged from hibernation recently to give Tech some valuable scoring punch.

In games last week against Arkansas and Baylor, those three guards and Mike Nelson off the bench combined to score 101 points and pull down 28 rebounds.

Owens, who will run the point for Tech tonight, has been the catalyst for the Raiders offense since the Arkansas game Feb. 12. Owens scored 19 points against the Hogs and 11 against Baylor as well as recording five steals, five assists and eight rebounds in the two games.

A key in tonight's game will be Tech's ability to defense Aggie guard

Don Marbury's potent scoring touch. Marbury, who's 22.5 point per game average leads the SWC, also is the Aggies' third leading rebounder with 4.7 boards a game.

Regardless of who draws the defensive assignment on Marbury, the Raiders still could have problems with A&M's front line of Winston Crite (12.3 ppg) and Jimmie Gilbert (11.9). Crite and Gilbert dominate inside, averaging 7.6 and 7.1 rebounds.

"We've got to go down and play with some poise and consistency against A&M. We can't go five to eight minutes without scoring," Myers said. "They're a physical rebounding team, and you've always got to do a good job of rebounding against them."

The contest will be the 1,500th basketball game in Tech's history. The Raiders have posted a record of 880-619 (.587) going into the game against the Aggies. In the overall series between Tech and A&M, the Raiders hold a slim 34-32 advantage. The last time Tech won in College Station was in 1984, when the Raiders posted a 62-53 win.

CAMP COUNSELORS WANTED

Each year the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center Department of Pediatrics, in conjunction with the West Texas Rotary Club, sponsors a camp for children with Insulin Dependent Diabetes Mellitus. This year it will be held June 7th through June 16th at Camp Bulman near Merkel, Texas.

We have positions for students to serve as counselors on our medical staff. Students who have participated in camping programs in the past have found it to be an enjoyable and rewarding experience.

Staff orientation sessions will be held in May. Any interested person is encouraged to contact us for further information as soon as possible at 743-2338.

IM BRIEFS

Outdoor Equipment Available

The Outdoor Shop in Room 206 of the Student Rec Center has the largest selection of outdoor equipment in Texas at the lowest prices in Texas.

March is a great month to get away. It doesn't matter whether you are going to the sunny beaches at Padre Island and Mexico or the mountains for some powder in the Rockies, the Outdoor has the latest in equipment to help you enjoy the experience and save money.

There are new stoves, refurbished tents, sleeping bags and new sleeping pads to help you enjoy that sunshine at the beach or new skis, poles and boots for that skiing excitement in New Mexico and Colorado.

So, before you have to think about exams, why not plan your spring fling and take advantage of the largest selection of outdoor equipment at the lowest prices in Texas.

You can come by the Outdoor Shop any afternoon and reserve your equipment up to two weeks in advance. By paying when reserving your equipment, you can be assured of equipment-reservations dates are February 28 for Spring Break and March 12 for Easter.

So come by or call 742-2949 and one of our friendly staff will be happy to assist you.

Camp Positions Open

Recreational Sports is now accepting applications for the sixth annual Summer Sports Camp.

This summer camp is designed to improve the sports skills of the participants with emphasis on fun. The camp is broken into three two week sessions: June 9-20 and June 23-July 4 for children 7-12 years of age and the third session, July 14-25 is for children 10-14.

Sporting activities offered are: tennis, softball, soccer, racquetball, swimming, volleyball, basketball, archery and outdoor camping skills.

Each session is from 8 a.m. until noon.

So, if you are interested in being a camp counselor, enthusiastic about working with children and have teaching skills in any of the sports listed above, drop by the Rec Sports Office in Room 202 and fill out an application.

This is an excellent opportunity to work part-time and still attend afternoon classes during the summer.

The current stipend is $3.75 an hour for instructors.

Applications must be returned no later than March 28.

For more information contact Denise Kopriva at 742-3351, or stop by the Rec Sports Office.

Enrollment begins April 1.

Brochures will be mailed out to faculty and staff the last week in March or they may pick one up in the Rec Sports Office during regular office hours.

Injury Clinic Continues

Dr. Robert Yost, orthopedic surgeon and leading authority in sports medicine, is offering his services free of charge to students, faculty and staff on Wednesdays at 7 p.m.

The purpose of this clinic is to educate students concerning athletic type injuries that could have occurred while participating in some form of recreational or athletic activity.

Dr. Yost will examine a limited number of people with these type of injuries each week.

All the injury clinics are free and open to anyone eligible to enter the Student Recreation Center.

Clinics will be held in the classroom located on the north end of the upper level.

For further information contact the SRC Office at 742-3351.

Softball Entries Due

Entries for the men's and women's fast pitch tournament are due by 5 p.m. Thursday in the Rec Sports Office.

A $25 refundable forfeit fee is due with each entry. Teams are guaranteed two games.

A fast pitch rules clinic will be conducted Thursday from 5-6 p.m. in the SRC classroom.

Slow pitch softball entries are due next week for men's, women's, co-rec and campus community leagues. Get your entries in early to assure your team of playing at prime times.

A slow pitch rules clinic including co-rec will be February 27 from 5-6 p.m. in the SRC classroom.

For those interested in umpiring, clinics will begin Monday from 6-8:30 p.m. in the SRC classroom.

First-year umpires receive $5.25 per game while veterans and ASA umpires will receive a slightly higher rate.

People interested in umpiring may drop by the Rec Sports Office to find out the entire clinic schedule or just show up for the first clinic.

For more information on softball entries or umpiring come by the Rec Sports Office or call Denise Kopriva at 742-3351.

Weight Seminar Set

Get some tips how to assist your partner in the weight room.

The differences in males and females affect a weight work-out. Learn the proper techniques.

The seminar is Thursday at 7 p.m. We will meet in the classroom and proceed to the weight area.

Please register by calling 742-3352.

Non-Credit Classes Begin

The second session of non-credit classes begins next week. They are free and open to anyone eligible to enter the Rec Center.

Please register by calling 742-3352.
