New arms proposal approved by Reagan

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has approved a package of proposals for sharp reductions in U.S. and Soviet strategic nuclear weapons and the withdrawal of intermediate-range nuclear missiles from Europe, administration officials said Tuesday.

The package puts on the negotiating table in Geneva the key proposals Reagan made to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev at their summit in Iceland earlier this month. It includes a ban on all U.S. and Soviet ballistic missiles by 1996, said the officials, who were willing to discuss the subject only on the condition they not be named publicly.

So far, Soviet negotiators have resisted taking up seriously the proposals Reagan discussed with the Soviet Communist Party General Secretary on Oct. 11-12, said Kenneth Adelman, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

"It seems they have been under instructions to be unhelpful since the Reykjavik meeting," Adelman said in an interview. "We want to build on Reykjavik. They want to dispute."

Adelman said separate talks would be held with the Soviets next week in Geneva on improving the verification of underground nuclear tests. Reagan told Gorbachev that better monitoring procedures could lead to a treaty outlawing all blasts.

A more modest U.S. arms control package was sent to chief U.S. negotiator Max Kampelman last week. Several key items were held back, including the proposed ban on U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

The U.S. military wants to consider first the impact that a missile ban would have on defending Western Europe from Soviet attack.

NATO ground forces are outmaneuvered by Warsaw Pact troops.

The discussion was held at the White House Monday with Reagan presiding. The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. William Crowe, participated and endorsed the package, the sources said.

The new instructions were transmitted to Kampelman Monday night.

Spokesman Larry Speakes, accompanying Reagan on a political campaign trip to the South Tuesday, confirmed the meeting.

Reagan's proposal on strategic weapons calls for a 50 percent reduction in U.S. and Soviet long-range bombers, intercontinental ballistic missiles and submarines within five years.

A ceiling of 1,600 would be imposed on all U.S. and Soviet strategic nuclear delivery vehicles. Intercontinental ballistic missiles and submarine-launched missiles would be held to a total of 600. Strategic bombers would be limited to 350 on each side.

The Soviets also have proposed a 50 percent cutback, but their formula and the kind of nuclear weapons to be covered by the reductions differ from the U.S. approach.

Reagan's call for a ban on ballistic missiles by 1996 carries out the position U.S. officials said he took in talking with Gorbachev. The Soviets contend, however, that Reagan went further and supported a ban on all strategic nuclear forces.

A U.S. official, who said records of the conversations between Reagan and Gorbachev were still incomplete, acknowledged that Reagan "may have said that at one point."

But he and another U.S. official stressed that the president informed Gorbachev on several occasions during their talks that he sought a ban only on ballistic missiles.

Hospital introduces helicopter ambulance

By SCOTT BRUMLEY
News Staff Writer

A helicopter ambulance service will be activated by a Lubbock hospital to provide faster emergency service to outlying areas at the end of this year.

Jake Henry, president and chief executive officer of St. Mary of the Plains Hospital, said the helicopter service will be "the final brick" in making Lubbock a more complete medical center. He said Lubbock has gained a reputation as being the medical center of the South Plains.

Henry said the helicopter ambulance will serve a 40-county region within a 100-mile radius of Lubbock. The unnamed program will begin service Jan. 1, 1987, he said.

The project will cost the hospital about $850,000 a year, Henry said. The aircraft will be leased from a medical helicopter service company, and the pilot and mechanics who are employed by the company are part of the lease package, he said.

Henry said if the helicopter makes 10 flights a month, the hospital will lose about $100,000 a year. He added that if the service makes 15 flights a month, the hospital will break even, and at 30 flights a month, the hospital would add a second helicopter, Henry said.

The helicopter will land on a pad on the northeast roof of the hospital. Henry said one of three pilots will be on call in the hospital 24 hours a day.

Henry said having a nurse on board the helicopter during runs will give the service the advantage of more comprehensive emergency medical care. He said nurses can administer medication and care that emergency medical technicians are not allowed to by law.

Dr. Jim Burrell, chief of staff at St. Mary's, said doctors will fly on emergency runs if the circumstances demand it.

Henry, formerly of Lubbock General Hospital, said that during his tenure at LGH he pushed for establishment of a helicopter ambulance service. He said LGH decided to implement a service using a fixed-wing aircraft because it was less expensive.

A helicopter will be much more time efficient in transporting severely injured people because it can cover a wide area at the same speed as a standard airplane but can land on the roof of the hospital, Henry said. Those capabilities will save time wasted transporting victims from the airport to the hospital.

He said Emergency Medical Services Bureau studies have indicated the need for a helicopter in Lubbock.

He said the service will transport people to whatever hospital they wish to go to, provided the hospital has facilities for the helicopter to land. If the helicopter cannot land at the specified hospital, Henry said, the patient will be transferred to that hospital by ambulance upon landing.

Bass claims district needs a visible leader

By JAY MILLER
News Staff Writer

Roy "Byrnie" Bass Jr., Democratic candidate for the state House of Representatives, said that during these tough economic times Lubbock needs more visible representation in Austin.

The 39-year old Bass is in a heated campaign with incumbent Republican representative Nolan "Buzz" Robnett for the 82nd District House seat. Bass claims Robnett's low profile during his eight years in the Legislature has been detrimental to the district.

"He (Robnett) is laid back and unaggressive," Bass said in a recent interview. "When you have to compete out here in West Texas with the metroplexes along I-35, you can't afford to have a caretaker of the seat down there in Austin."

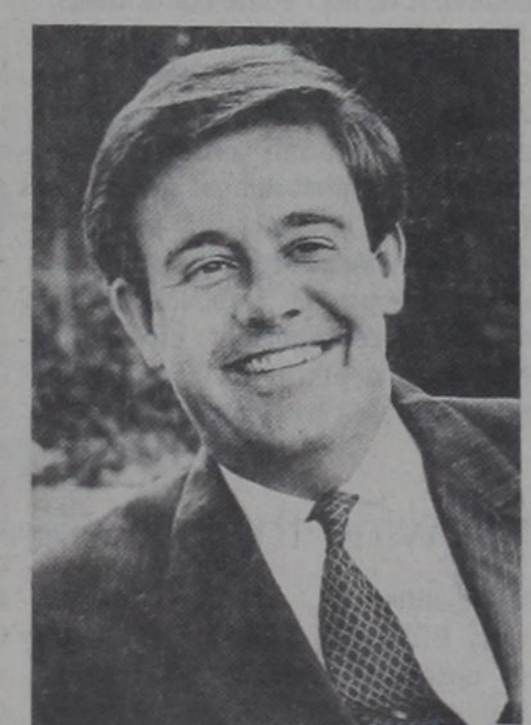

When asked if Robnett's chairmanship of the House Local and Consent Calendar Committee is not a visible position, Bass said, "He'll say that his chairmanship of the committee is a big plus, but the truth is that ain't that big of a plus. Most of the high-octane legislation doesn't even go through his committee."

Bass said that when the Legislature reconvenes in January it is going to face some tough decisions — whether to pursue a path of excellence in regard to the implementation of state programs and services or pursue a path of mediocrity.

To pursue a path of excellence, the Lubbock lawyer said, legislators must begin looking into ways through which Texas can raise more revenues after state spending has been closely scrutinized. Bass said, however, he does not believe Texas can solve its recent economic woes through budget cuts alone.

"You can't solve the budget deficit totally through cuts on the spending side," Bass said. "We're going to have to restructure the sales tax base, and by including services such as attorneys' fees and architects' fees, we can actually drop the overall sales tax rate."

Bass said the sales tax restructuring plan is one that has been devised by State Comptroller Bob Bullock. Bass said Bullock plans to propose the plan to the Legislature when it reconvenes in January.

Bass said he would not vote for further cuts in higher education and added that previous cuts to the Texas Tech budget have been detrimental to both the institution and to the local economy.

"When you cut the budgets of the University of Texas and Texas A&M the same it doesn't actually have the same impact on all of the institutions," Bass said. "Those institutions don't underpin their local economy as much as Tech does Lubbock's."

Another issue Bass said he feels the Legislature is going to be forced to address in the upcoming session is the problem of overcrowding in Texas prisons. Bass said that, if elected, he would look into the possibility of selling prison system land in order to finance the construction of additional detention facilities. He said another possible solution to the problem may be to have private firms operate state prisons.

Robnett says experience key to re-election

By JAY MILLER
News Staff Writer

Nolan "Buzz" Robnett, incumbent GOP candidate for the 82nd District House seat, said Monday that his seniority in Austin makes him the best person for the job of state representative.

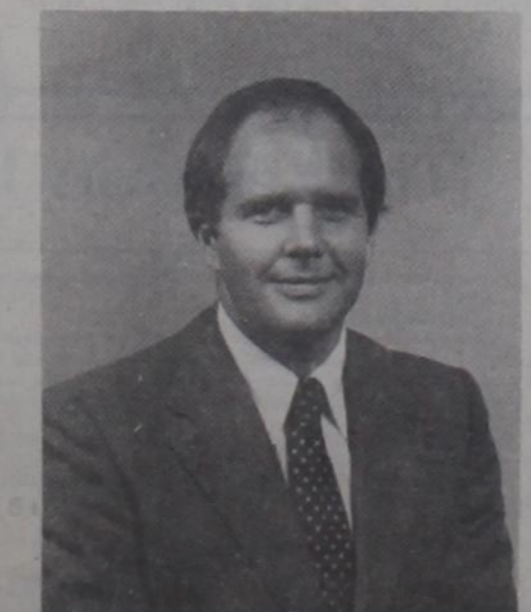

Robnett, the incumbent in the race against Democratic challenger Roy Byrn "Byrnie" Bass, was elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1978. At the time, he was the first Republican legislator elected from Lubbock in this century.

During his eight years in the Texas House, Robnett said he has gained respect from his colleagues in Austin through his position as chairman of the Local and Consent Calendar Committee and record of conservative fiscal responsibility.

Robnett said experience is an important asset for a legislator. He said a freshman representative would spend four to six years before reaching a position of power in the 150-member legislative body. Robnett added that only 20 percent of the House members are named, as he has been, to a committee chairmanship.

Robnett maintained that the state's economic problems are directly related to excessive state spending. He said the state is spending $6 billion more in the current biennium than it did during the previous two-year period. Robnett said more cuts can and will be made, but he added that higher education is not the place in which to implement these cuts.

As a graduate of Texas Tech, Robnett said he will work to see that the institution does not suffer through more budget cuts during the upcoming legislative session. Robnett said Tech is well-represented in the Legislature, with 12 graduates holding seats in the Texas House.

"The money that comes into Texas Tech from the state is not only beneficial to the school but is essential to the West Texas economy as well," Robnett said. "I voted against the first round of cuts proposed by the House during the special session because of what they would have done to Texas Tech."

Robnett added that he will seek to return some of the funding Tech lost during the recent special sessions and will work to see that finances for the state's higher education system are not cut further during the upcoming session.

Robnett said he is opposed to plans to broaden the sales tax base to meet the state's cash flow problem. He said he would tolerate a gasoline tax increase only if the sales tax failed to raise enough money.

Most Texas universities report higher enrollment

By JOHNNA BROWN
News Staff Writer

Enrollments for all Texas colleges and universities are up by 2.28 percent this fall, and the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center reported the largest increase among health-related schools, according to preliminary figures released this month by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Eighteen public senior colleges and universities are reporting increases of almost 4,000 students while 19 are reporting decreases of about 5,600 for an overall decrease of .48 percent in the public four-year university category.

Texas Tech reported a decrease of 116 students from fall 1985 to the fall 1986 semester. Actual enrollment is down from 23,456 to 23,340, a .46 percent decrease. TTUHSC reported a total increase of 12.37 percent, the largest among Texas health-related schools.

Increases at TTUHSC were predominately in the School of Nursing and the School of Allied Health because they are relatively new programs at the university, said Vonda Somerville, TTUHSC registrar. Somerville said those schools are heavily recruiting students.

The University of Texas at Austin reported a 3.81 percent decrease in enrollment while Texas A&M reported a 2.6 percent increase.

All but two public junior college districts reported enrollment increases for the fall 1986 semester. The net increase is about 18,000, or 6.1 percent, compared to a decrease of about 11,000 for the 1985 fall semester.

Private senior institutions report an increase of about 580 students, or .74 percent. The three private junior colleges in Texas report an increase of 41, or 3.6 percent.

The four campuses of the Texas State Technical Institute report an increase of 323, 3.7 percent more than in 1985.

Enrollments in Texas medical schools also increased .77 percent, while enrollment in the dental schools decreased 6.3 percent. A 205-person increase in enrollments in the health-related academic programs represented a 4-percent increase over the previous fall semester.

Independent medical, dental and health-related units show a 1.3 percent decrease in medical student enrollments, a 9.3 percent decrease in dental student enrollments and a 5.7 increase in students enrolled in academic programs.

Administration seeks token merit pay pool

Awarding merit pay to faculty members who exhibit outstanding performance at Texas Tech is a commendable practice utilized by university officials to encourage continued academic excellence. Administrators have rewarded faculty members in the past for their achievements with state allocations, but in the wake of tighter budgets and the possibility of even deeper cuts in sight, the merit pay system has been discontinued as of this fall.

In the past, almost every faculty member has received at least a 1 percent merit raise each month, according to Len Ainsworth, associate vice president for academic affairs and research. Professors have traditionally received about a 3 percent raise and any member can receive as much as a 6 percent increase, depending on their departmental evaluations. Rewarding all faculty members with a meager raise is insulting since a 1 percent raise seems more like a token than a credible appraisal of one's academic achievements.

Tech President Lauro Cavazos told members of the Tech Faculty Senate Oct. 8 that the Board of Regents had urged him to pool funds from other sources and reinstate the merit pay system. With this action, the regents and Cavazos are doing nothing more than paying lip service to faculty members because the university already has been squeezed of extra funds to maintain as many programs as possible. No extra funds exist for a merit pay fund. Where do Tech trustees and Cavazos believe funding for the merit pay system will come from?

Finding funds from other academic sources to give token pay increases is not the correct use of finances which already are limited. A substantial bonus should be given to those few professors who truly deserve it, instead of meager bonuses being distributed to all professors — good or bad.

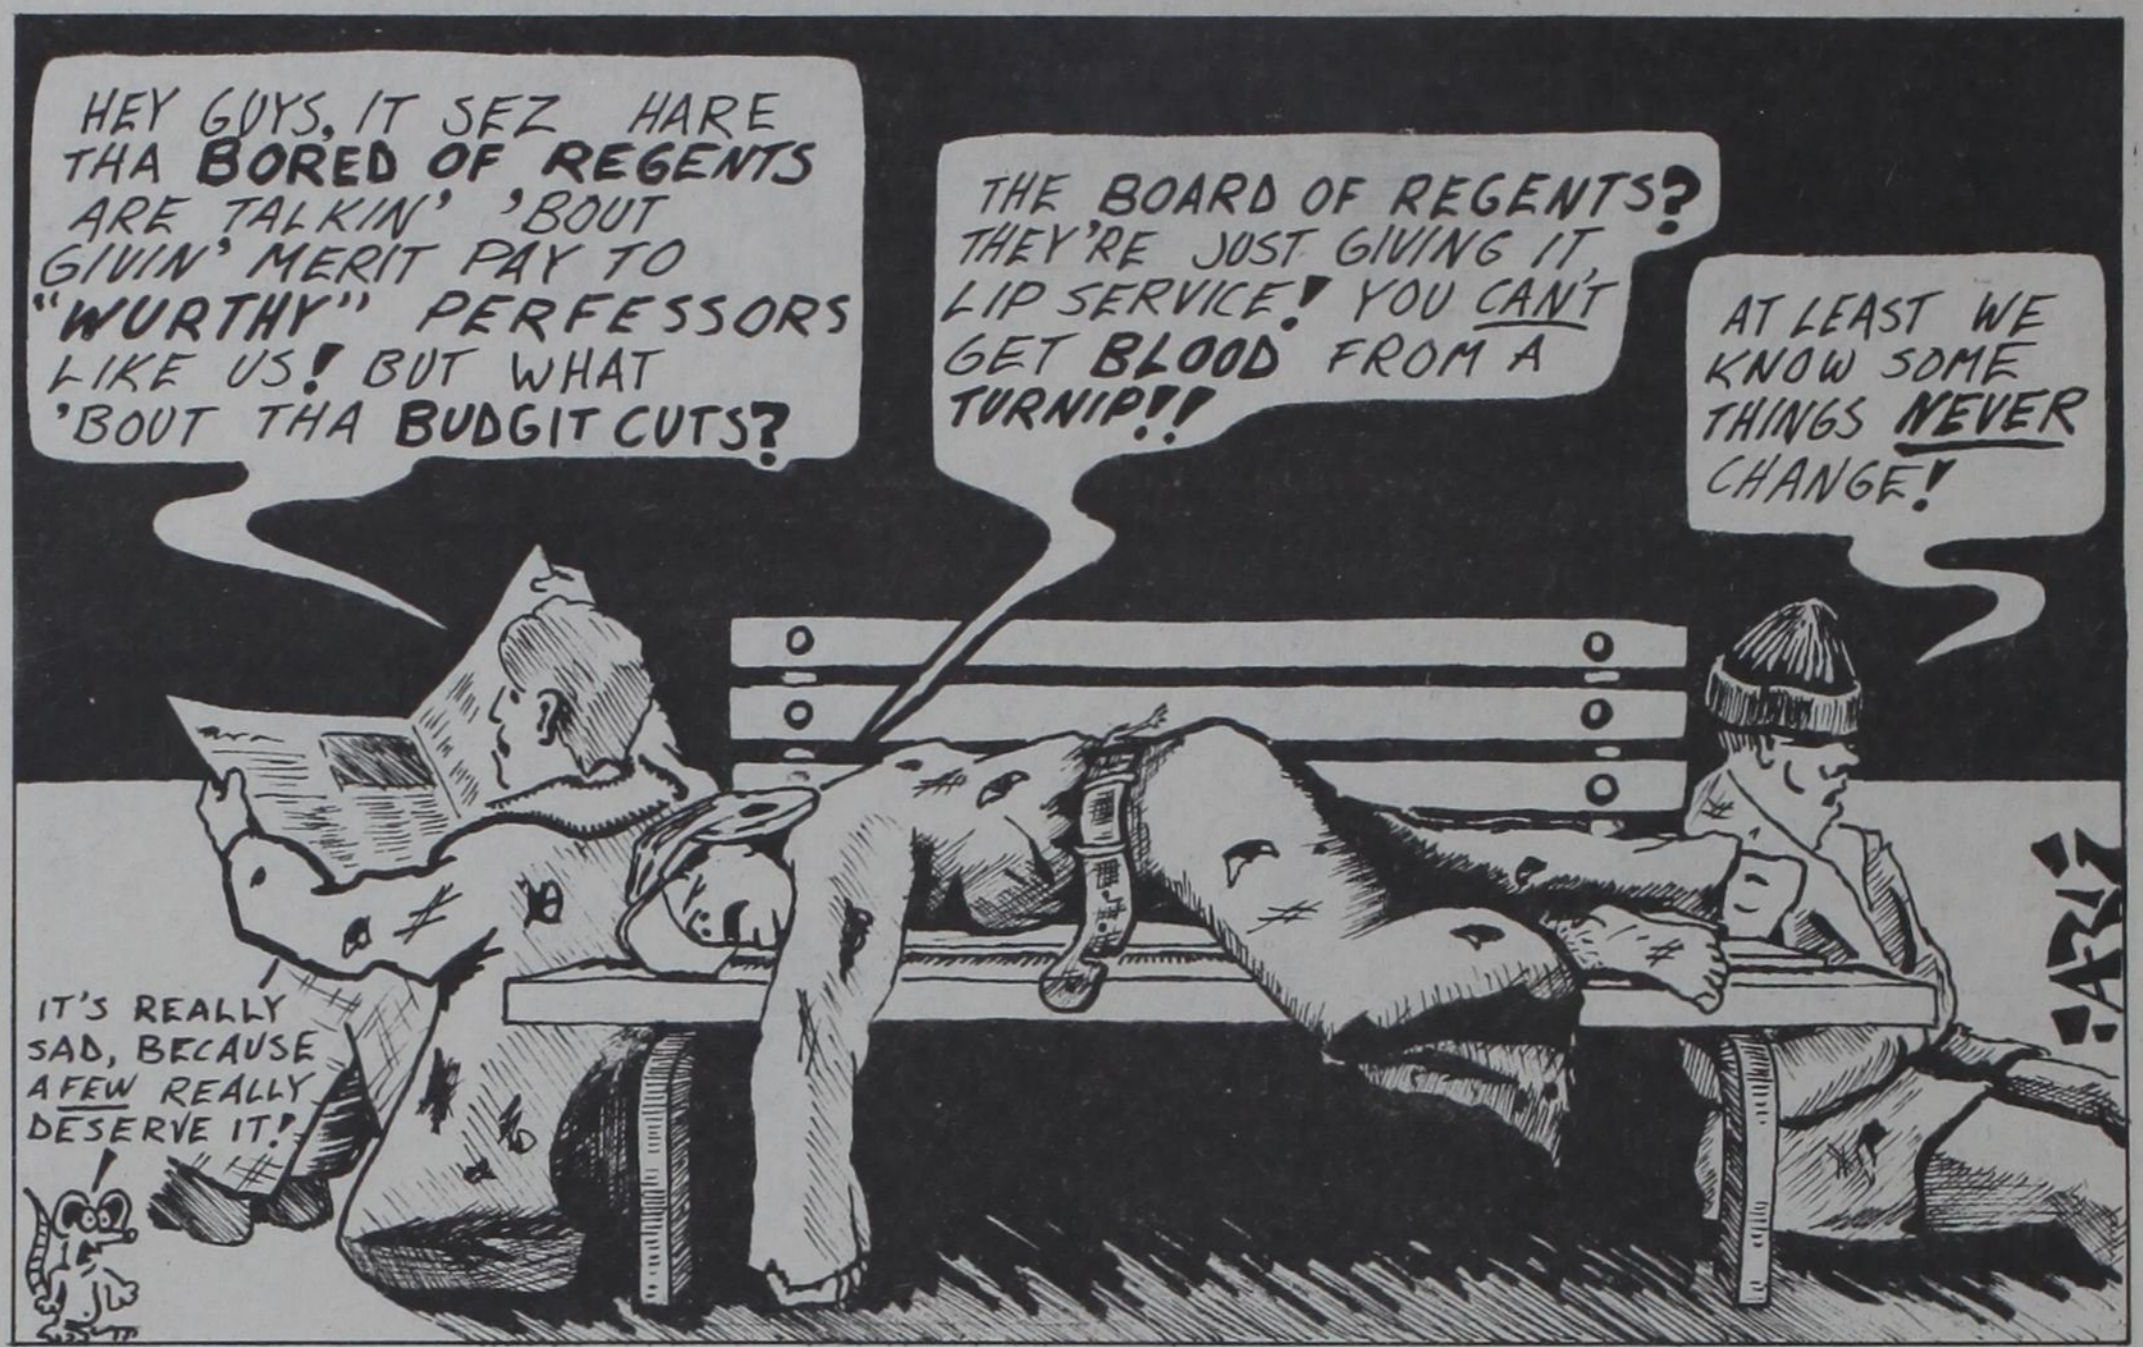

Suggesting that Tech administrators try to find funding to continue the program is nothing more than a weak attempt by regents to patronize faculty members in hopes that those truly deserving of rewards for their pursuit of academic excellence will not be recruited away to more prestigious universities.

It is painfully clear that the Board of Regents is the driving force behind Tech's reputation for apathy, which has trickled down through faculty, staff and students. Regents have passed the buck to Cavazos for finding ways to reward faculty members who, for the most part, do not deserve even the meager amount of extra money a month that probably amounts to as little as $1 a day. It is sad that professors who are consistently late and show little or no interest in their classes have received merit pay raises and would be considered for additional merit pay.

If administrators are serious about keeping talented faculty members who intellectually stimulate and challenge students and also make advances in their field of study, they should consider rewarding only those professors who truly deserve it. Regents should consider instigating a campaign to solicit donations from private contributors to fund the merit pay program for exceptional instructors rather than leaving the fund-gathering up to Cavazos.

In theory, the merit pay system for outstanding professors is a good idea. However, the bonuses must be substantial and given to only those professors who deserve it. Unfortunately, Tech currently does not offer substantial bonuses. Furthermore, only a small handful of professors are worthy of such a program. If merit pay is to be effective, it must be properly implemented.

Schools usurp parents' authority on morals

Cindy Pandolfo
News Staff Writer

Parents have taken a lot of criticism the past few years from teachers and administrators. The charge — parents are pushing parental duties off on the schools.

Teachers and administrators claim they don't want the job. Yet schools continually assume more and more parental responsibilities.

The most recent invasion of parental responsibilities by public schools comes in the form of teaching morals. How can the schools teach morals? More important, what qualifies the school system or teachers to teach children morals?

Defining morals is difficult. After all, what is moral? That is a question that philosophers and scholars have been trying to answer for centuries.

A primitive tribe in South Africa practices infanticide as a means of birth control. Female children who do not benefit the tribe (society) are killed. In that African society, murder is moral.

In homes on the East Coast, heavy metal rock music is a part of everyday life, but in a Mormon community in Utah the same rock music is considered immoral.

Whose attitudes will the school adopt in a moral crusade — the beliefs and attitudes of the parent? The church? If the church serves as the basis for moral conscience in America, battle is imminent. Every demonization in America will compete for control.

The old saying, "One man's cup of tea is another man's poison," can be applied to the issue of morals. What is moral for one is immoral for another.

What are the prevailing moral attitudes about premarital sex, capital punishment and discrimination?

What factors differentiate slang from profanity? What is pornography? Is pornography immoral?

Allowing public schools to teach morals demands the creation of a universal code of morals. Since it's impossible to define morality for all, it's equally impossible to create a universal code of morals.

It also seems ironic that schools grant themselves more and more responsibility normally assumed by the parents.

Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the National Education Association, told The New York Times, "People are afraid that the moral fiber of the country is falling apart. They turn to the schools to do something about it."

Futrell doesn't say where she derives her information, but I have some strong reservations about an assumption that schools are "qualified" to teach morals OR that parents are ready to relinquish that responsibility to teachers who are virtual strangers.

For years, opposing church denominations have fought for the right and authority to determine acceptable morals for society. Attempts to legislate morality also have failed.

I am not objecting to sex or drug education in the public school system. Children need to understand the consequences of participating in sexual relationships. They also need to know the dangers of drugs. Children need to be educated.

The issue is not education, but rather morality. Americans cling tenaciously to a belief in freedom. I believe parents also should have the freedom and right to teach their children morals.

Advocates of school-taught morality should proceed with extreme caution. Many of those advocates may some day be parents. Will they be ready to relinquish their parental right to determine the morals of their children to the schools?

Math building time

To the editor:

The math building sounds like a building that should contain people that are interested in preciseness and complete accuracy. This building contains not only the math department, but also the Southwest Collection library, statistics and Army ROTC. This building should really be glistening with spit and polish. Normally, one is not disappointed.

Did you see the time? For some reason class starts almost an hour early, but by now one is used to it. The teachers try to go by the clocks on the wall, but they are not exactly an hour off. By now, no one notices, except for visitors. Maybe no one cares. Maybe attention to detail is a bad habit, and Tech is trying to help us kick the habit. Just think of that when you see ROTC marching or you get back your math paper.

Petty Greek column

To the editor:

Which sorority were you cut from? Now, come on guys, sororities and fraternities do have their faults. However, many good things do (believe it or not) come out of them.

Take for instance, ohhhh, let's ponder on the Sigma Chi matter. Everybody got in a huge fuss over a little shoe polish on windows. Granted, the spirit did get a little out of hand, but it is not like anything destructive happened. Why don't you let the people of Lubbock decide which is more important: cleaned-up shoe polish, or one of the largest blood drives Lubbock has ever had?

Knowing the Bible

To the editor:

Mr. Bill Baer, maybe you should get upset about Bible fanatics, at least enough to look into the Bible yourself. Before laughing at and/or criticizing these people, and especially encouraging others to do so, why not, at least, search the Bible and see for yourself what is true?

I do not consider myself a "Bible fanatic" but I do assert that the Bible is the divinely inspired word of God. In an effort to reveal Himself to man, God directed many human authors to compose the books of the Bible.

Abraham Lincoln said, "I believe the Bible is the best gift God has ever given to man. All the good from the Savior of the world is communicated through this book."

Having said all this may not convince you or anyone else that it is true, but I would challenge you to look into it for yourself; you may very well be amazed to find that although the Bible was compiled by many different authors over such a wide span of time, there is still a Unity of Thought which indicates that One Mind inspired the writing and compilation of the whole series of books.

Mr. Baer, in no way whatsoever am I condemning you or judging you; I hope I haven't come across that way to you. I am concerned, however, that maybe you do not know what I know about God. What I know about Him is what I know from reading the Bible as well as from personal experience.

The Bible states that God loves you and me so much that He sent His son Jesus, into the world to die on the cross. This had to be done because God demands that blood be shed before He can forgive sins. Romans 3:23, 5:8, and 6:23 state it like this, respectively: "for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God"; "But God demonstrates His own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us"; "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Jesus Christ was the ultimate sacrifice that paid the price for our sins. John 3:17-18 says this: "for God did not send His son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through Him. Whoever believes in Him is not condemned, but whoever does not believe stands condemned already because he has not believed in the name of God's one and only Son."

I'm telling you this because it's real to me; Christis real to me. You see, three days after Christ died on that cross, he came back to life. He is still alive today. I'm not better than any student on this campus, but when I prayed to God and asked Jesus to come into my heart and to forgive me of my sins, he did it. That's all I had to do! Since that time, he has showed me what peace and joy are all about, given me direction and guidance, and most of all given me His love and an assurance for eternal life with Him. "I'm not perfect — I'm forgiven."

The greatest thing about all this is that Christianity is not just for "religious fanatics", but anyone; anyone who will believe in Christ as Savior and accept Him into their own heart. That's all it takes to have everlasting life that the word of God speaks about.

If you do nothing else, please, at least, think about what Christ has done for you; read the book of John, specifically chapter 3 of John; think about what Christ can do for you. He changed my life — He can change yours too. If you would like to know more about this, please feel free to call me anytime and I will be more than happy to visit with you.

Soviets to visit U.S., check Earth tremors

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Soviet seismologists will visit the United States in November to select locations in California and Nevada for equipment to monitor the Earth tremors from U.S. nuclear weapons tests, a scientist said Tuesday.

The visit is the latest step in an agreement negotiated privately between U.S. and Soviet scientists that has allowed Americans for the first time to begin such monitoring inside the Soviet Union, said Thomas Cochran, senior staff scientist of the Natural Resources Defense Council.

However, the government won't permit the Soviet scientists to visit the actual sites for the equipment because they don't represent the Soviet government, he said.

Cochran, who initiated the discussions with the Soviet Academy of Sciences that led to the agreement, said at a news conference that both parties also have agreed to establish a computer link between the American and Soviet monitoring stations.

The agreement is intended to promote the signing of arms-control agreements by making it possible for Americans to verify that the Soviet Union is observing any such agreements, Cochran said.

The three American monitoring stations now operating near the Soviet Union's principal nuclear test site near the city of Semipalatinsk, about 1,800 miles southeast of Moscow, are adequate to detect any violations of the current Soviet moratorium on nuclear weapons tests, Cochran said.

"Our stations in effect cover their test site," he said. "We can monitor explosions down to a few tons."

The stations also serve as prototypes for the estimated 25 stations that would be needed inside the Soviet Union to monitor compliance with a comprehensive test-ban treaty, if one were negotiated, he said.

And they give American scientists and government officials the ability for the first time to "map" the geology of the Soviet test site, thus allowing more accurate determination of the magnitude of any Soviet nuclear tests, Cochran said.

The Soviet seismologists, led by Igor Neresov of the Institute of Physics of the Earth in Moscow, are scheduled to arrive in the United States on Nov. 9.

Reagan campaigns for Republican 'cleanup crew'

By The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — President Reagan, saying the nation's economy is headed for its second boom since his election, urged voters Tuesday to re-elect the "cleanup crew" of Republican senators who were swept into office with him in 1980.

Reagan said the alternative on Nov. 4 is to elect Democrats "who in 1980 weakened our nation and nearly brought our economy to its knees."

Reagan toured three Southern states in a whirlwind one-day effort to help Republican Sens. Mack Mattingly of Georgia, Jeremiah Denton of Alabama and James Broyhill of North Carolina, all three of them in tough races.

Reagan ended the campaign day with a sunset appearance in a hangar at the Charlotte-Douglas International Airport at Charlotte.

The walls of the hangar were hung with campaign posters and hand-lettered signs with such messages as "This Is Reagan Country" and "Don't Turn Back. Stay On The Right Track."

The sun was nearing the horizon as Air Force One set down and the sky was beginning to darken by the time the crowd ended the rally by singing, to the music of five high school bands, "Nothing Could Be Finer Than To Be In Carolina In The Morning."

The president's speeches in the three states were virtually identical, changing only the names of the candidates.

Asked whether his efforts would keep the Senate in Republican hands, Reagan said, "I'm too superstitious to talk about that."

Reagan ended his Georgia speech by telling the audience that by voting for Mattingly, "You'll be winning one for yourselves, for Georgia and for America."

NEWS BRIEFS

Sikh terrorists continue Hindu attacks

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Sikh terrorists sprayed machine gunfire at praying Hindus early Tuesday, killing three people and seriously wounding five, Punjab state police said.

A Sikh politician was killed in another terrorist attack.

The gunmen opened fire on an outdoor congregation offering prayers prior to Divali, India's major Hindu festival, police said. The attack took place in village Dharmkot Bagga in north Punjab and the killers escaped on foot.

Sikh extremists also assassinated an elderly Sikh leader of Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's governing Congress Party on Tuesday.

The slain leader, Sewa Singh Bhinder, was gunned down by two assailants on bicycles as he came out of his home to take a morning walk, District Police Superintendent J.P. Birdi said.

Knowledge may reduce cancer deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute said Tuesday that the aggressive use of existing knowledge could cut the annual cancer death rate in half by the year 2000.

The institute released a plan, combining cancer prevention, screening, early detection and treatment, that it said could produce dramatic results by the turn of the century if it were adopted as a national goal.

"Knowledge gained over the years can be used to control a significant portion of the disease which was responsible for an estimated 462,000 deaths in 1985," said Dr. Vincent DeVita, director of the institute.

Detailed in a new report entitled "Cancer Control Objectives for the Nation: 1985-2000," the plan calls for stepped-up efforts against cigarette smoking and poor diet and earlier use of the latest diagnostic and treatment techniques.

Tech biology Horn prof researches natural history of mammals

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is one of a continuing series of stories featuring Texas Tech's Horn professors. The nationally recognized title has been given to 34 Tech faculty members, 18 of whom currently are in residence. Today's story looks at biological sciences professor J. Knox Jones.

By HOLLY HATCH
News Staff Writer

J. Knox Jones, Texas Tech biology Horn professor, is both a prolific researcher and writer. He has discovered and named 30 new species and sub-species of mammals and has authored or edited more than 285 publications.

The thousands of specimens Jones has collected are at the Natural Science Research Lab, a part of the Texas Tech Museum. Jones said he designed the lab himself while he was in residence at the University of Kansas.

Jones concentrates his research in the areas of systematics (the study of speciation), evolution and the natural history of mammals.

"I'm trying to add to the store of human knowledge," he said.

Jones has traveled extensively through four continents to study wildlife. "I'm lucky because I enjoy my work so much," he said.

Jones said he has known he wanted to be a mammalogist since he was young and published his first paper on mammology when he was in high school.

"I used to play football in the afternoons and walk down to the museum at the University of Nebraska and work until nine," he said.

Jones spent 13 years on the faculty at the University of Kansas before coming to Tech in 1971. He served as dean of the Tech graduate school and associate vice president for research before becoming curator of the Tech Museum in 1984. He said Tech has an international reputation as a leader in mammalogical sciences.

Jones served as president of the American Society of Mammalogists from 1972 to 1974 and received the C. Hart Merriam Award from the organization in 1977. He also received the H.H.T. Jackson Award from the society in 1983.

Both awards indicate outstanding contributions to the field, he said. Jones said he is the only person who has received both awards.

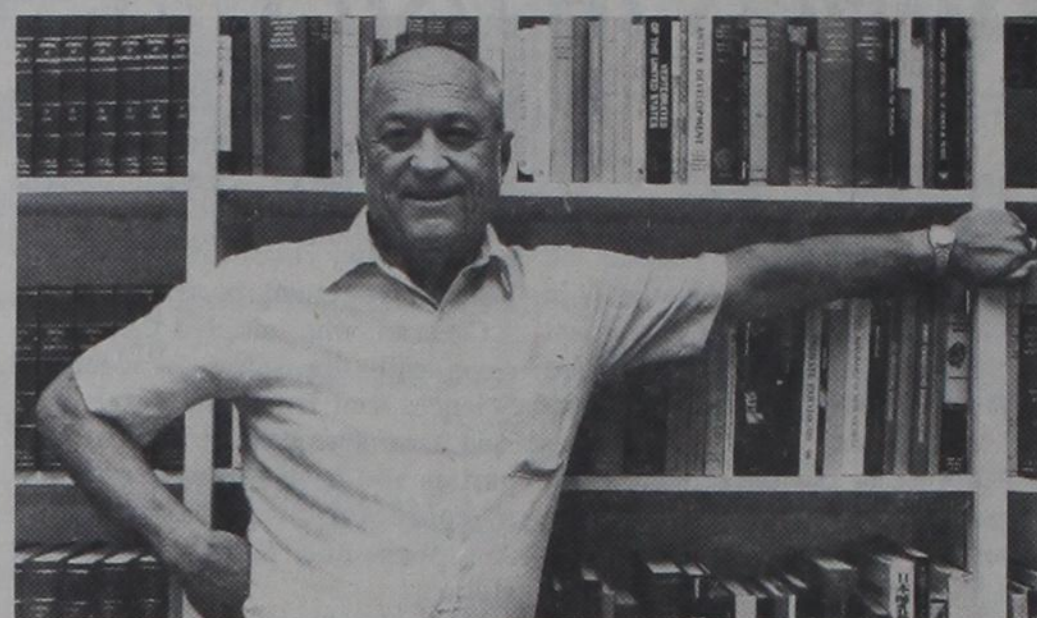

Although Jones has worked with graduate students a great deal, he is teaching a freshman level biology class this year for the first time since 1970.

"I find teaching on that level both exciting and frightening," he said, adding that the classes have 270 students and that he spends an enormous amount of time preparing for the lectures.

"I'm trying to get across a basic appreciation for biology as a science," he said. "When it comes time for those students to vote on environmental issues, I hope they are informed enough to make a good decision."

Jones said he will continue to research and study indefinitely.

"They'll have to bury me with my boots on, so to speak."

Loeffler, Hance to speak at GOP campaign rally

By JAY MILLER
News Staff Writer

Former U.S. Congressmen Tom Loeffler and Kent Hance will speak at a campaign rally for Republican gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements at 7:15 p.m. today in the University Center ballroom.

Hance and Loeffler, both former candidates for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, were defeated by Clements in last May's primary. Since the defeat, they have thrown their support behind Clements in an effort to return the former governor to office in Austin.

Hance, a Texas Tech graduate, served as the Lubbock representative for the 19th Congressional District from 1978 to 1984. Hance lost his 1984 bid to gain the Democratic nomination for a U.S. Senate seat to Lloyd Doggett in the May 1984 primary. After the loss to Doggett in the May primary, Hance switched to the Republican Party, citing differences in political philosophies with the Democratic Party.

Hance's gubernatorial bid this year attracted 20 percent of the state's Republican vote, but the former Lubbock congressman finished third behind Loeffler and Clements.

Rep. Loeffler of Hunt, the third-ranking Republican in the U.S. House, attracted 21 percent of the state's GOP gubernatorial primary vote in May. The gubernatorial race was Loeffler's first attempt to gain a state office.

Tim Seeliger, president of the Tech College Republicans, said the rally is free and open to the public.

'Color of money' proves to be big waste of money

By MISSY COSTELLO
Lifestyles Staff Writer

Run, don't walk from Martin Scorsese's "The Color of Money." Oh sure, it sounds like a sure hit — Scorsese as producer and director, Paul Newman and Tom "Top Gun" Cruise as the movie's stars — but actually it's a cinematographic nightmare.

For starters, one of the most irritating features of the film is Vince Lauria's (Cruise) hair.

Vince is supposed to be a good natured, pool playing, hoodlum from the wrong side of the tracks. Cruise's Vince uses hair mousse. Who is he trying to fool? How many guys do you see in pool halls that use HAIR MOUSSE?

In fact, the only enjoyable part of Cruise's performance in the movie is when Vince dances around a pool table with his cue singing, "... and his hair was perfect ..." Since this scene is shown on the television advertisement for "The Color of Money," there's really no need for anyone to waste $5 to watch Tom and his hair mousse for two too long hours.

In addition to his distracting hair, Cruise's portrayal of Vince is far from his best dramatic effort. It ranks somewhere between "All the Right Moves" (a heinous waste of film) and "Top Gun."

One wonders if Cruise will ever do a worthwhile movie that does not rely on boring sports footage.

The other irritating aspect of "The Color of Money" is the abundance of supposedly "artful" camera angles. The movie is almost gaudy with the excessive number of these "dramatic" shots.

At one point, the camera pans on Newman as he turns in front of a crowd for so long that it threatens to nauseate the audience.

Immediately following, Newman's reflection is shown on an eight ball. Ooooooh. Neat.

Perhaps this is simply Scorsese's style, but the minutes in the movie that were composed totally of billiard balls colliding on screen were boring and came dangerously close to giving viewers motion sickness.

The only saving grace of this movie is Newman's performance. He returns to the screen as Eddie Felsen 21 years after "The Hustler."

Newman is incredible as the pool shark Felsen. This powerful performance could definitely win him an Oscar.

Actually, Newman's role almost makes up for the visible faults in "The Color of Money." Well, almost.

Plays, parties planned on Halloweekend

By MICHAEL STEPHENS
Lifestyles Staff Writer

Before moving on with all of the exciting, major events of this Halloween weekend, two side notes about concerts that were to take place Monday night.

First, Starship obviously decided not to show up at the coliseum. Attributing their cancellation to "illness," Mick, Slick and the gang became the second band to cancel at the last minute in the past two months. When contacted a week ago, Dottie Townsend of the coliseum and Skip Coleman of Mainline Promotions said that advance sales were not fantastic.

Second, anyone who missed Christopher Parkening Monday really lost a chance to see a true master in action. Parkening had the Allen Theater packed. He offered a concert that will not soon be forgotten and will be hard to top this year.

And that's saying a great deal.

Science fiction classic "The Day the Earth Stood Still" will be presented by the University Center Film Series today. Patricia Neal and Jerry Mathers are the stars of a film with a cosmic message. The show starts at 8 p.m.

On Friday and Saturday, Paul Mazursky's recent hit "Down and Out in Beverly Hills" can be seen at 3 p.m., 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

On Sunday, UC foreign films will present Godard's "Breathless" original. Tickets for all shows cost $1.50 for students with an ID and $2.50 for the general public, except for the matinee, which is $1.

The Fast and Cool Club is sponsoring what they call the "Bag Your Face Ball." The Nelsons will be one of the many bands kicking off Halloween festivities in the Hub City. This still up-and-coming band from Lubbock will take the stage at 10:15 p.m. Thursday, and cover for the bash is $5.

The band Showdown (which has been billed as "embarrassing their meister's classic "The King and I" Thursday through Monday and Nov. 6 through Nov. 9. The shows begin at 8:15 p.m., and there are 2 p.m. matinees on Sundays. Tickets for students cost $2, $6 for others and $5 for non-students attending matinees.

Cowboys will present country band Mesa today through Saturday. The band goes on at 9:30 p.m. Cover is free for ladies today and $3 after 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Jug Little's is sponsoring a costume party Friday that will net someone $200 for the best costume. Maverick returns to Lubbock to play at Jug's Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. There is no cover. Junk Iron Band will play at noon Friday as well.

The Yahoos will play at Main Street Saloon Friday and Saturday. For a $3 door charge audiences can see this roots-rock band at 9 p.m.

HUB CITY HAPPENINGS

Alpha Psi Omega, the theater honorary and the Actor's Trading Post will present "Terrifying Theater" Thursday and Friday at the Trading Post at 2201 Ave H. It lasts from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. and admission is $3. Look for a real "professional job" of a Haunted House.

Backcourt takes front seat in Myers' game plan

By BRAD WALKER
Sports Staff Writer

Most basketball teams figure guards are for getting things started. Texas Tech basketball Coach Gerald Myers views things a little differently. In Myers' system, the guard position is where the buck stops.

It all seems fitting. Myers himself is in the Red Raider record book as a guard, and he since has coached Geoff Huston, Jeff Taylor and Bubba Jennings — all backcourt leaders on relatively small teams.

Even on the Southwest Conference tournament champion team of a year ago, there was Tony Benford scoring, assisting and leading the Raiders to the title.

Myers' 1986-87 squad promises at least one thing: a continued tradition of exciting guards.

Myers contends that the guard position is his strongest this year, a point that is hard to disprove. Wendell Owens, Sean Gay and Mike Nelson provide a talented and fast-paced backcourt. Add to that freshman blue-chipper Jerry Mason, and Tech fans' eyes begin to light up.

When last seen, Owens, a senior from Queens, N.Y., came off the bench against Georgetown in the first round of the NCAA tournament to wheel and deal his way to 22 points and three steals. That performance provided just a glimpse of the talent that Owens showed in grabbing both high school and junior college All-America accolades.

Owens, who is in his third year at Tech, said he feels comfortable with the deliberate game of Myers but would not mind the chance to run more.

I think I have to be a kind of a leader. I just hope I can come out and play a key role on this team.

—Mike Nelson

“I learned a lot last year and I'll probably learn a lot more this year,” he said. “Where I come from, we ran every time we had the ball.” Gay started 23 games as a true freshman, averaged 10.2 points a the SWC All-Newcomer team. But will there be a sophomore jinx? Gay said the thought has occurred to him but that the answer is no.

“There's a little pressure,” he said. “My mother pressures me a little, and my friends, they expect me to do better. The real pressure is from my mother; she's my best and worst critic. I like it when the fans get behind me. It makes me push myself more.”

As for breaking into the Myers program, Gay said, “You just need one year to find out about him.”

Gay is excited about the likelihood of a lineup quicker than any Tech has had in recent memory.

“Wendell is very quick, and Greg (Crowe) and Dwayne (Chism) are pretty fast, so our running game is going to pick up more. All we have to do is capitalize on the situation,” he said.

While Owens and Gay are intent on taking the ball inside and forcing things to happen, Mike Nelson is waiting patiently on the perimeter.

Possibly the best shooter on the team, Nelson, a senior from Pampa, may be the one to take advantage of the new three-point goal instituted into college basketball.

“I think I have to be a kind of a leader,” Nelson said. “I just hope I can come out and play a key role on this team.”

Owens, Gay and Nelson should all battle for the two guard spots, but do not be surprised if Myers decides to go with all three at some point in the season. Myers used a three-guard lineup both successfully and unsuccessfully last year, and the situation may arise again.

“That (three-guard lineup) is a lot of quickness,” Gay said. “We're most likely to press then. If that occurred, we would be looking to run.”

Standing next to Nelson on the outside is the freshman Mason. Touted as another Sean Gay, locals believe the three-point line was made specifically for the Lamesa product.

Myers sums up Mason's position the same way he did Gay's last year.

“Jerry is coming in behind three good guards, so it will take him some time to learn his role with those guards, but the opportunity is there if he is good enough. He is a good outside shooter and has great jumping ability.”

Sherrard paying 'Pokes quick dividends

By The Associated Press

IRVING — Tex Schramm raised his fist in triumph when the Dallas Cowboys traded up to take wide receiver Mike Sherrard in the first round of the NFL draft.

"It's about time we finally did something right," said Schramm, who had been unhappy with the Cowboys' first-round mistakes the previous five years.

The Cowboys haven't been sorry a second since they took the speedy Sherrard, a rookie from UCLA who specializes in sensational catches. "He gives something to our offense we've never had before," said quarterback Danny White. "He's so fast it's hard to lead him enough. And he has great hands. He makes the routine catches and he makes the great catches. It's impossible to over-throw him, and believe me I've tried."

Sherrard missed the first five weeks of training camp in a contract dispute, but the Cowboys knew what he could do because of his extensive work at Valley Ranch in the off-season.

"He'll open up our offense," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "He'll take some of the double coverage off Tony Hill."

Sherrard still isn't being double-teamed by most clubs, although he has caught touchdown passes of 22, 27, 36 and 39 yards.

"Teams don't give me a lot of respect deep, and it's kind of funny because that's all I do is go deep," Sherrard said. "They kind of dare me to go deep."

"Mike can go deep, and it helps loosen up the defense if we can throw to him four or five times during a game," said Dallas offensive coordinator Paul Hackett. "And he has great hands besides great speed."

Hill said Sherrard and running back Herschel Walker are the big reasons the Cowboys are improved this year. "We are so diversified that teams can't key on one thing," Hill said.

St. Louis defensive back Dennis Thurman, who played with the Cowboys before he was released, said, "They have a deep threat now, and they are sending him deep. They haven't had that since Tony Hill was a lot younger."

Hogs' Washington, Baylor's Carlson best of week

By The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK — A couple of days before the Houston game, Arkansas cornerback Charles Washington was passing by the office of defensive coordinator Fred Goldsmith.

"We've got a big game coming up against Houston," Goldsmith told Washington. "You need to get an interception to keep up with the one from last year."

Washington, a fifth-year senior, reminded Goldsmith that he had made an interception in each of his three appearances against the Cougars. On Saturday night, in the Astrodome, he picked off two more passes.

Washington's first interception came with 35 seconds left in the half.

In the fourth quarter, he picked off a pass to set up the final touchdown in a 30-13 victory.

For his performance, Washington was named The Associated Press' Defensive Player of the Week in the Southwest Conference.

Baylor quarterback Cody Carlson is The AP's Offensive Player of the Week in the SWC. He threw for 312 yards and three touchdowns, including bombs of 72 and 86 yards in the fourth quarter, in a 28-17 victory over Texas Christian.

Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield said Washington made a terrific play on his first interception.

"The receiver is right on him," Hatfield said. "Somehow he keeps his balance and doesn't get knocked down. He pulls out of that and next thing you know, I think he's going to score."

"We were anticipating that they would try to get a big play," Washington said. "I was watching the quarterback. Once he threw, I just played the ball."

Victor Jenkins of the S.E.T. Brawlers runs upfield during an intramural football playoff game against The Rangers Sunday. The Brawlers won 6-5.

Intramural Football Playoffs Wind Down

Flag football playoffs are beginning to wrap up as the top teams move forward.

Divisional titles will be determined Sunday in Jones Stadium. Check with the Rec Sports Office for times.

Tonight, the Greek semi-finals will see the Phi Delt 'A'-Sigma Chi 'A' winner against the Sigma Chi 'B'-Pike 'A' winner while the Sig Ep 'A'-Phi Delt 'B' winner will oppose the KA 'A'-SAE 'A' winner.

Open action continues with favorites No Names and Homeboys on line for a collision in Jones Stadium.

Women's action continues with the Has Beens challenging Penthouse

Sweet and the Silver Bullets playing ZTA in the top of the bracket. The Horn Hornets will take on Kappa Alpha Theta and the Hustling Gang will tackle We Can't Say It in the bottom half.

Before last night, eight teams were still vying for the residence hall title. The list included the Intimidators, Express, Th Chase, Venom, Bozos, Gordon All Stars, Dorrn Rats and Gaston Gamblers.

Tuesday in the club semi-finals, the Saddle Tramp-Dicher & Dicher winner took on the IEIEE II-Brawlers winner with the Zoomba Warriors-Phi Theta Kappa winner opposing the Liv... Word-Delta Sigma Pi winner.

Odds & Ends

Soccer

In order to clarify intramural soccer rules, Dr. Charles Kellogg of the South Plains Officials Association will present a short meeting today at 5 p.m. in the Rec Center classroom. All teams are encouraged to have a representative present.

Bowling

The Texas Intercollegiate Bowling Tournament was in Amarillo on Oct. 18. The results were as follows: West Texas State University—first place; Texas Tech—second place; New Mexico State—third place; and North Texas State—fourth place. Chris Viney of Tech won the men's singles event with a 699 3 game series.

Kayaking

Beginners can learn kayaking Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Aquatic Center. Participants should wear a swimsuit. To register or for more information, call 742-2949.

IM BRIEFS

Longhorn Fun Run Scheduled

The fourth annual Stampede the Longhorns Race, which includes a two and four mile run, is set for 9 a.m. Saturday at the north end of the Student Recreation Center.

Both runs will begin at the same time. The registration fee is $5 with a red long-sleeved T-shirt given to all registered runners. To insure a t-shirt, runners are encouraged to register by 5 p.m. Friday in Room 202 of the Student Recreation Center.

The run is open to all students, faculty, staff and guests. For further information contact the Rec Sports Office at 742-3351.

Rappelling for Women Slated

Women interested in learning to rappel should call the Outdoor Shop to register for a hands-on workshop today from 4:30-7:30 p.m. in the north stairwell of the SRC.

The event is not as difficult as it looks so give rappelling a try. Remember no experience is necessary. To register, call 742-2949.

Injury Clinic Continues

Dr. Robert Yost will conduct the weekly injury clinic at 7 p.m. today in Room 202 of the Student Recreation Center.

He will examine students and staff with athletic-type injuries free. Yost is an orthopaedic surgeon and director of the sports medicine program at the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center. For additional information, call 742-3351.

Spots for Ski Trip Remain

Ten spots are open on the second bus for the Steamboat Springs ski trip in Colorado Jan 8-14.

For only $299, a person can ski four days in powder and enjoy five nights in a luxury condominium with round-trip transportation included.

Come by the Outdoor Shop in the Rec Center any afternoon to sign up.

Aquatic Center Activities Set

The following events are scheduled for the Aquatic Center: A lifeguard training class is slated for Nov. 3-18 on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7-10 p.m. Cost is $22.40 which includes course fee, certification fee and book. In order to attend, a person must currently be certified in advanced lifesaving, C.P.R. and first aid.

The twilight hour is held on Friday nights from 7:30-8:45 p.m. Come enjoy the low lights and relaxing music.

A water safety instructor class to certify people to teach American Red Cross swim lessons will meet Nov. 3-20 from 7-10 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays. Cost is $15 plus books and materials (about $14). Participants should currently be certified in advanced lifesaving.

Indoor Soccer Results In

The Wall outplayed 21 other soccer teams to claim the Saturday Morning Live indoor soccer crown.

During the championship game, The Wall defeated Rosebud I 3-1 for their fourth win of the day.

In the semi-finals, The Wall overtook the Delts 'D' 4-1. Before reaching the final playoff, Rosebud I participated in two sets of penalty kicks during over-time before disposing of the Strikers.

Members of The Wall include Jim Ivy, Rex Beene, Andy Beene, Eric Sorenson, George Dehaven, Ji Lee and Kevin McRea.
