Tech officials request funds for 1988 fiscal budget

By JOHNNA BROWN News Staff Writer

Top Texas Tech officials are in Austin today requesting more than $124 million in appropriated funds for fiscal year 1988 from the Legislative Budget Board.

Eugene Payne, vice president for finance and administration, said last week he would be in attendance at the meeting along with President Lauro research; Don Richards, a Lubbock Cavazos; Donald Haragan, vice attorney; and John Birdwell, chairpresident for academic affairs and man of the Tech Board of Regents.

Payne said the group is lobbying for appropriated funds for Tech and the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC) for fiscal years 1988 and 1989 at the board represent the real needs for instrucmeeting.

The Legislative Budget Board was established to grant budget requests from state agencies to the Legislature for approval or denial.

According to Payne, Cavazos is million to $111 million after asking for five major considerations for Tech and eight major considerations for the TTUHSC.

The five considerations for the main campus include improvement of faculty and staff salaries; retaining the formula funding system (used to tion); reimbursement for 1987 tuition income shortfalls; a 50 percent retainment of indirect costs in research and grants; and special item support.

Tech's fiscal budget for 1987 was trimmed by the Legislature from $115 lawmakers had to make statewide cuts in programs to help balance a $3.2 billion state deficit.

Tech administration needs to accept gift

Mass communications students at Texas Tech are making a concerted effort this week to gain university support for a cause which could net the department more than $1.2 million in gifts and boost the standing of the department to a distinguished school of journalism and mass communications.

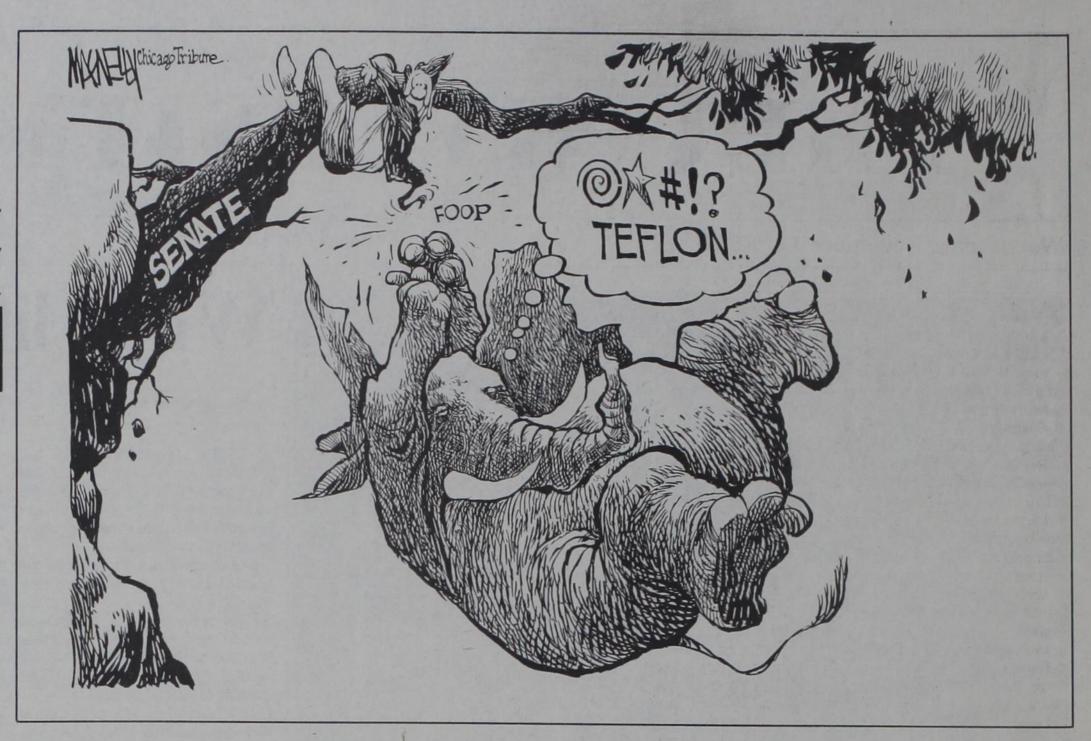

Efforts of the students are to be commended as they are fighting for an improvement in the educational programs currently offered by the department.

Many pros and cons have been expressed regarding the move to establish the department as a school, but no action has been taken by Tech President Lauro Cavazos or the Tech Board of Regents to either accept or reject the donations. It seems, for their own reasons, that Tech officials are putting a price tag on the acceptance of gracious gifts from generous donors.

Cavazos and the board have voiced their concerns that the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, would not accept the mass communications school proposal in light of the current economic crisis.

Supporters of the proposal claim the department is caught in a futile Catch-22 because it cannot hope to become a recognized journalistic entity in West Texas with an academically superior faculty unless it can establish a stable endowment, and it cannot hope to achieve a stable endowment unless it becomes a school.

But the bottom line of the argument for accepting the donation is: The university is in no position financially to be rejecting philanthropy. Times are hard, for both Texas and Tech, and one of the suggestions for weathering the tough times has been to encourage endowments and contributions from the private sector. Donation rejections, overbearing stipulations placed on donations and administrative tug-o-war can do nothing but discourage private donors. Severe cuts also have been made in federal funding with legislators hoping that private industry will make up for the loss. Tech should be seeking benevolent donors, not slamming the door in their face. Some opponents said the Select Committee on Higher Education has voiced a concern over duplication of programs in Texas, which would only be intensified with Tech's request. The committee's preliminary sentiments about the university systems in Texas is that every program need not be offered at every university. If Tech's mass communications department could be upgraded to the status of a school, as the university committed in 1970 to accomplish within five years, then the "school" would be in a better position to solicit endowments, donations and gifts from prospective donors. Students' degrees would hold more prestige and the educational programs could be expanded. With the establishment of a school of journalism and mass communications, the university undoubtedly would attract talented and serious students from the West Texas area who are interested in pursuing a career in the communications industry but are not able to attend universities in other regions of the state which offer specialized programs. As the department at Tech stands now, it is a popular alternative for students to transfer to from the College of Business Administration when they are not able to meet requirements set by that college.

One concern of the proposal is that when/if the department is established as a school of journalism and mass communications, students enrolling in the school would be signing away the opportunity to a liberal arts education. At other schools of journalism in Texas, students are very limited in their ability to take courses in liberal arts. Currently, the Tech mass communications department requirements allow a well-rounded mix of courses university-wide. If the department attains school status, the curriculum should continue to require several courses outside the mass communications field.

The University Daily stands behind the department of mass communications and its students in the staunch effort to bring attention to the issue and to demand action from the Tech administration and the Board of Regents. Denying grants of more than $1.2 million by lack of action is a poor way to run a university, especially during difficult economic times.

Clarifying myself

To the editor: In response to Scott Kelly's letter:

1) The focus of my letter was not to "bitch" about the editor's article. It was her rude comment on a letter that I was "bitching" about.

2)It was not her "best of abilities" that was the issue here, but rather, the editor's use of insults and rude comments.

3)No "Greek" questioned whether or not the girls were "guilty," but forts to correct their mistake. She did so to downgrade "Greeks."

Scott, anyone teaching others (i.e., publishing in a newspaper) has a great responsibility to those they teach. One cannot run a publication the way Alexis Colby runs her newspaper: In a distortion of truth saying only what she believes. If the UD editor prints something, she must take on the responsibility for the reactions of the people who read it. And you, too.

Child abuse case may hurt volunteers

EL PASO (AP) - A multimillion dollar lawsuit against the El Paso YMCA's board of directors is making people think twice before volunteering their services to community groups, board members say.

"I was just trying to serve the community," said Barron Fletcher, vice president of a local stock brokerage and investment firm and a defendant in the suit. "I didn't think about being sued when I agreed to serve."

The suit was filed last week in state district court by the parents of six children allegedly molested at a day care center run by the East Valley Branch of the YMCA.

Two former day care center workers, Michelle Noble and Gayle Dove, are serving life prison sentences on sexual abuse convictions and also have been named as defendants in the suit.

The outcome of the suit will affect people's willingness to serve on boards and committees of organizations such as the YMCA, Fletcher said.

Although no specific dollar amounts are named in the suit, it is estimated the figure could reach at least $24 million. The suit, which names 54 directors and others associated with the YMCA, also threatens to seek double or triple damages if the YMCA does not agree on a settlement.

Bishops elect moderates to lead group

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's Roman Catholic bishops, beating back a challenge by conservative prelates, elected two Midwestern moderates Tuesday to lead their national organization for the next three years.

The group's new president, Archbishop John L. May of St. Louis, spoke almost immediately of "a great need for healing" among Catholics who are chafing under church rules that some see as too rigid in the 20th century.

However, May's comments made it clear that he and others in the National Conference of Catholic Bishops weren't about to push for any revolt against Vatican authority.

"We are members of the universal Catholic Church," he said at a brief news conference. "We are pledged as bishops to work in unity with the visible symbol of unity who is the Holy Father, the pope.

"And we will do it, our healing, in that way. There's no other way we can," he said.

Still, election of May and of Cincinnati Archbishop Daniel Pilarczyk as vice president suggested a continuation of the activist bent of the bishops conference — a stance that has been unpopular with some high Vatican officials who see all church authority as emanating from Rome.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A schoolhouse built in 1872 for the children of freed slaves finally found its place in history Monday, dedicated as a monument to equal opportunity in American public education.

The 114-year-old structure, which was central to the development of educational opportunities for blacks in the nation's capital in the 19th century, was dedicated as a public education museum in a ceremony marked by the sounding of bells and much oration.

"This is a glorious day. I never saw such beauty ... " said District of Columbia council member Hilda Mason as she took note of the polished wood floors and plush carpeting.

Former Tech professor publishes book

A former Texas Tech professor has combined dozens of his essays to form a book concerning the nature of scientific logic and method, "Peirce, Semeiotic, and Pragmatism."

The book, written by Max Fisch, focuses on the ideas of Charles S. Peirce, one of America's greatest intellects. The book, a complete bibliography of Fisch's work, includes his most important articles on Peirce. Dozens of essays by Fisch examine Pierce's doctrines on pragmatism or pragmaticism.

The book was edited by Kenneth Ketner, a Charles S. Peirce professor of philosophy and and director of the Institute for Studies in Pragmaticism at Tech, and former Tech professor Christian Kloesel. Kloesel is director of the Peirce Edition Project at Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis.

Meeting to focus on internal medicine

A two-day conference, "Medicine 1986," will be Friday and Saturday at the Holiday Inn Civic Center for discussion of developments in internal medicine. ## Collins' 'Monte Carlo' bombs in week's ratings

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Joan Collins' singing debut sounded a costly sour note for CBS as her miniseries "Monte Carlo" opened far down in the ratings last week.

With former "Charlie's Angels" glamourpuss Jaclyn Smith also low on the list, the real pin-up in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings was that massive hunk of beefcake. Raymond Burr, who hit the top 10 with a Perry Mason movie on NBC.

and ABC was third at 10.9.

That reflected the order of finish in the prime-time ratings, with NBC averaging 18.2 for the week. CBS, which scrubbed its prime-time schedule on Tuesday for three hours of elections coverage, was a distant second at 15.0 and ABC ran third at 13.9.

For the seven weeks of this season, NBC's average is 19.1, CBS' 15.9 and ABC's 14.4.

"Shooting Star," in which Barbara Hale returned as Della Street, had a rating of 23.6, compared to 14.6 for Collins, who stars as the witchy Alexis Carrington on ABC's "Dynasty."

phey's show and Mayor Andrew Young's speech — this week may seem empty, but there still is so much to discuss.

Without a doubt, "Streetwise" was one of the most gripping and moving documentaries of 1985, if not the decade. Martin Bell's recording of the lives of Seattle street kids will play in the Allen Theater at 8 p.m. today. At 8 p.m. Sunday, the University Center Foreign Films series will present the German film drama, "The Lost Honor of Katrina Blum." Tickets for both of these films cost $1.50 for Texas Tech atudents with an ID and $2.50 for the general public.

One more word about Tech films. The 1987 Cinematech (formerly Cinematheque) has announced its new selection of movies for spring. Included are "How to Marry a Company will perform on the Allen Theater stage at 8:15 p.m. Friday. The approach of the group is, to say the least, quite unusual and striking. Tickets are available at the UC ticket booth. Prices are $5 for students and $8 for others and $8 for everyone at the door the night of the performance.

Three of the biggest names in contemporary Christian music today, Petra and DeGarmo & Key, will appear at Lubbock Municipal Coliseum Nov. 19. Without a doubt, this will be a major concert of the year for some people. Reserve seat tickets are available for $10.50 at Logos Bookstore, Good News Bookstore and Cornerstone video, and they will cost $12.50 at the door. The show, which also features Geoff Moore, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Cowboys, still fresh in the comedy industry in Lubbock, still is offering top-notch country entertainment. Stallion returns and plays with the Girls Next Door at 9:30 p.m. Friday. Eddie Beethoven and his roots-rock Sons of Fun will play at 9:30 p.m. today.

Still no word on how the Comedy Club, which is located inside

MTV Basement Tape winning band 4 Reasons Unknown will come back to 14th Street Bar and Restaurant Nov. 19. The band's last appearance in the Hub City was hailed as a dynamite show by many who saw it, and there is no reason why this show should be different. I doubt they will be back through anytime soon, so catch them if you can.

Danny Raines and the Liquidators take the stage again at the Texas Cafe and Bar Friday and Saturday. Cover is $3 and the show begins at 9:30 p.m.

The Actors Trading Post will begin another play this weekend with "A Novel Approach," a comedy by Brian Robertson making its premiere at the ATP. Starting at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, it will play through Saturday and again Nov. 20-22. For ticket information, call 796-2729. The ATP theater is located at 2201 Ave. H.

'Shooting Star" on NBC, was in seventh place while Collins, portraying a Russian chanteuse and secret agent. finished 48th.

"Monte Carlo," which reportedly cost $9 million, not only lost to Mason, but to ABC's movie "Splash," which ranked 29th in the list released Tuesday. "Rage of Angels," starring Smith, ranked 34th.

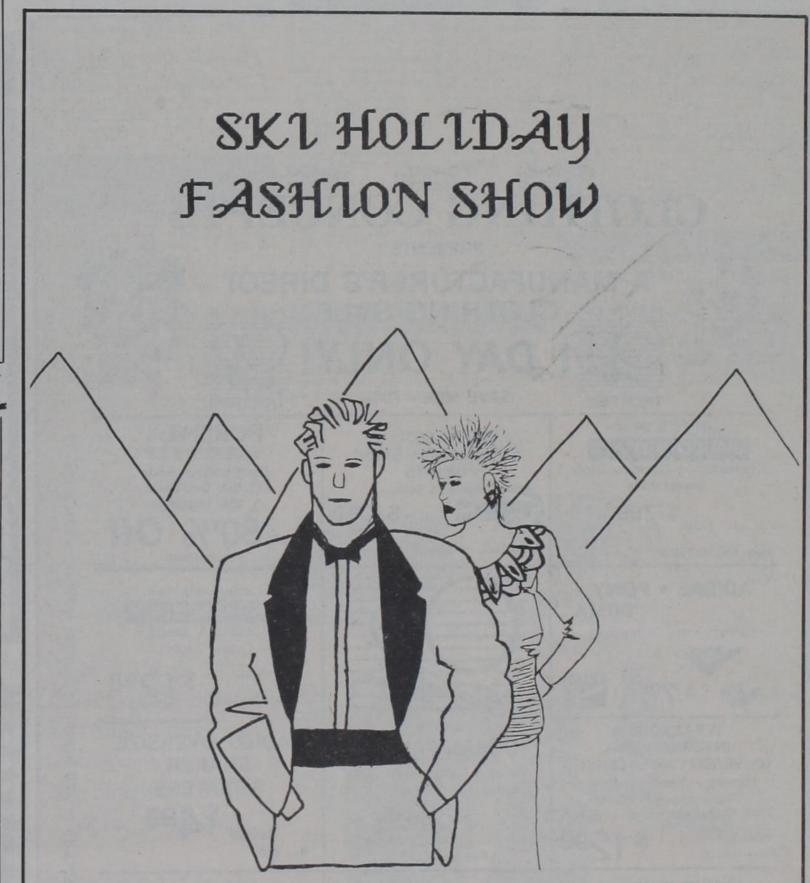

NBC ran its weekly winning streak to seven and led the nightly news ratings by its biggest margin since 1975, when John Chancellor was the anchor.

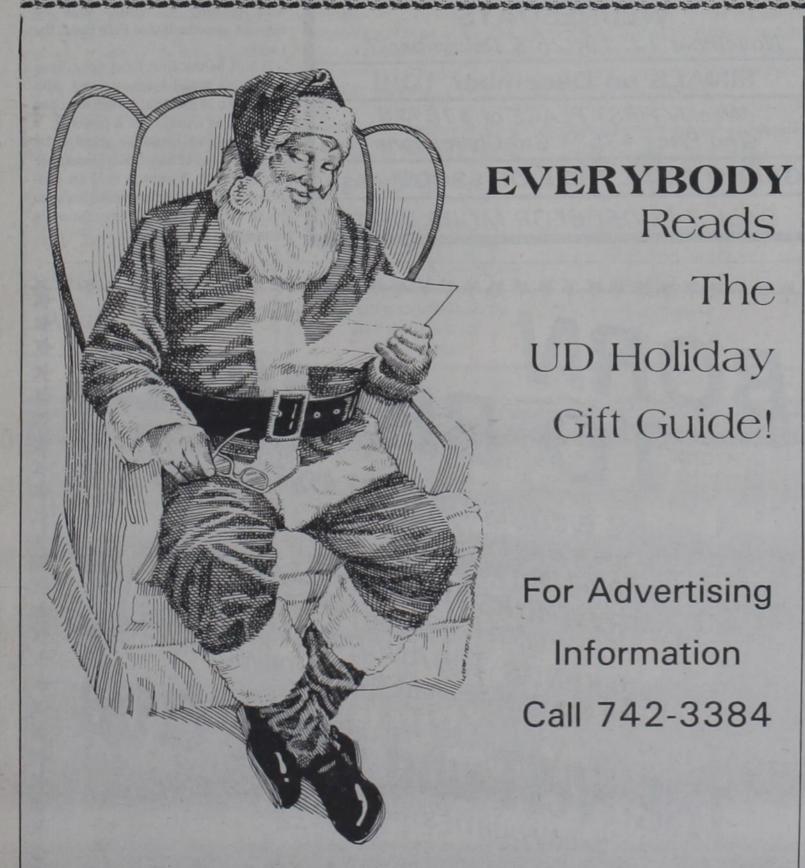

"NBC Nightly News" with Tom Brokaw had an average rating of 12.7 last week. CBS was second at 11.9

One further insult to "Dynasty" was its second-place finish behind CBS' "Magnum, P.I." on Wednesday night, the first time the soap opera had been beaten by a regular series, CBS said.

"Rage of Angels," with a so-so 16.5 rating, added to the suspicion that romantic fantasy isn't selling this year.

NBC had the top five programs, led as usual by "The Cosby Show," which tied its best rating this season at 36.8 and a 53 percent share of the audience, and "Family Ties," which had its best rating ever at 35.2 with a 50 share.

He scored seven points in a 14-2 run that put the White in front 48-34 five minutes into the second half, and the Red squad could never mount a serious comeback.

The intrasquad scrimmage -Tech's third in three weeks - was the Raiders' final tuneup before they meet the Poland National Team, Nov. 20 in Lubbock. The Raiders officially open the season Nov. 28 at home against Cal State-Fullerton.

Henderson contributed 15 points and six rebounds to the White attack, and sophomore guard Sean Gay scored a team-high 20.

The two squads battled through a seesaw first half, with neither team holding more than a five-point lead.

However, short buckets in the lane by White and Wes Lowe gave the White a 38-32 advantage early in the second period. After Nelson cut the deficit back to four points with an 18footer, White scored from the baseline off a Scott Whillock assist and converted a three-point play after drawing a foul from Kenny Keller.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Right-hander Mike Scott of the Houston Astros, who went from mediocrity to brilliance once he learned how to throw the split-fingered fastball, was named the National League's Cy Young Award winner Tuesday.

NL's Cy Young winner

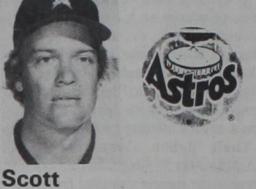

Scott, whose no-hitter on Sept. 25 clinched Houston's first NL West Division title since 1980, had six more first-place votes than runnerup Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

In voting conducted by the Baseball Writers Association of America, Scott received 98 points, 10 more than Valenzuela, who won the award as a rookie in 1981. Scott had 15 first-place votes from the panel of 24 writers while Valenzuela picked up the other nine. Balloting was completed before the postseason games.

Scott, 31, was 18-10 with a major league-leading 306 strikeouts and 2.22 earned run average in becoming the first Houston player to win the Cy Young award, which goes to the league's best pitcher. Valenzuela was 21-11 with a big-league leading 20 complete games.

Scott, who returned from an exhibition tour of Japan only last Saturday, looked weary as he met with reporters at a hotel near Los Angeles International Airport. But his joy came through.

"It's something I'm going to cherish," Scott said of the award. "It's nice to be on the list with some of the pitchers who are on there. "Right now, it kind of means the end of the season. After a couple of weeks it will probably mean more." Scott, who grew up in the Los dine University in nearby Malibu, was the second pick of the New York Mets in the June, 1976 free agent draft.

for outfielder Danny Heep. Scott first appeared in the major leagues with the Mets in 1979, but he did not play his first full season until 1981 when he went 5-10.

He was 7-13 with a 5.14 ERA for the Mets in 1982 before he was traded. His record with New York was 14-27.

Scott was 10-6 with a 3.72 ERA for the Astros in 1983, but slipped to 5-11 with a 4.68 ERA in 1984.

It was following the 1984 season that Scott learned his split-fingered pitch from Roger Craig, now the manager of the San Francisco Giants but then a scout for the Detroit Tigers.

Along with the new pitch came charges that he made a practice of scuffing the ball, charges he has denied. And along with the new pitch came a different pitcher.

Scott was 18-8 with a 3.29 ERA in 1985 with two shutouts and four complete games in 35 starts. That was a sign of what was to come.

"I had tried everything, every way to throw a slider, every way to throw a curveball." he said. "Things just turned around when I started throwing the split-fingered

Rose gives up spot on winter roster

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI - Cincinnati Reds player-manager Pete Rose agreed to give up his spot on the team's 40-man winter roster to allow the Reds to protect a younger player, the club announced Tuesday.

The 45-year-old Rose, the most prolific hitter in baseball history, was put on waivers, which means he cannot play before May 15. He has a year left on his contract as a player.

"We have not categorized this in any way as a retirement, and it's not. It's just him stepping off the roster," Reds General Manager Bill Bergesch said Tuesday. "I would hope we haven't seen the last of Pete Rose, the player."

It will be the first time since Rose began his major-league career with
