Administration drags in hiring police chief

Someone should file a missing persons report in the campus police department. For about four months now, the Texas Tech University Police Department has been without a leader, and officials aren't sweating to find a successor for Chief B.G. Daniels, who left in December. The department possesses a great responsibility on behalf of Tech to provide adequate protection, legal representation and safety, but without an authoritarian figure to oversee the department's daily activities, is the Tech community getting all it deserves?

This is not to undermine the abilities of acting chief J.D. Fortner, but with as big a concern as Tech claims to have about campus safety, one would think finding a department head would be higher on the agenda than it is. Officials tentatively have delayed a search committee decision until January 1988.

On one hand, Tech officials have put up a facade of concern about campus safety and the need for a strong police department through statements by the Campus Safety Task Force Committee. On the other hand, by putting off hiring a police chief, the Tech administration is displaying an apathetic attitude regarding the importance of leadership in a campus entity as integral as the police department.

If Fred Wehmeyer, associate vice president for physical plant and support services, who is the overseeing administrator of the police department, doesn't think hiring a police chief needs to be done in less than a year, then do we really need a police chief at all? Probably not.

Wehmeyer originally told The University Daily the search committee was "in no great hurry ... to find the best qualified person." He also said the police chief would be named in mid-February or March. It is anything but reassuring to know that a member of the Tech administration has delayed the appointment of an employee crucial to the university's well-being.

The lack of strong leadership in the department can only lead to a dismantling of work that has taken years to accumulate. The chain of command already is askew, with no staff organizational chart to speak of.

As with any large department or agency, a leader is needed to provide a sense of direction. An interim director at best can only maintain the status quo and keep the department's head above water. New programs cannot be pursued until stable leadership is formed. In the end, the entire institution with which the department is associated suffers as a result of the inactivity on the part of the Tech administration in finding a leader for the department with the fervor it should have.

Wehmeyer had 29 applications in January and told The UD Monday that he plans to reopen applications in May. The expanded search for a chief obviously is one for quality, but it's moving at a snail's pace. Under the university president, the police chief is the next official who is viewed as keeping the institution operating on a daily basis. Lauro Cavazos is responsible for the academic setting, and the police chief is responsible for the societal setting. Without leadership for the entity that serves to avoid chaos and unlawful conduct, the university is open to criticism for its lackadaisical attitude toward the importance of filling the position.

Get on the ball and show you REALLY care about safety on campus: Find us a police chief.

U.S. legal system lacks justice for victims

Cindy Pandolfo
News Staff Writer

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice..."

Although those words are familiar to most Americans, the first experience with the judicial system creates a sense of disillusionment for most people.

Until recently, testifying in a trial could have been a hazardous experience because victims had no legal protection against attack or threats of harm resulting from cooperation with efforts to prosecute criminals.

Only recently have victims won the right to be present at all public court proceedings related to the offense or the right to information about procedures in the criminal investigation.

On May 4, 1987, We the People, an organization committed to revising the criminal justice system in Texas, will ask the Texas Legislature to balance the scales of justice with an earnest attempt to revise the Texas criminal justice system.

Before you turn the page and decide that the inequities of criminal justice aren't your concern, ask yourself how you will feel when someone breaks in to your home and steals the possessions you have worked hard for the right to own.

The arrest of a burglar is little consolation to the victim who losses a stereo, television set or even worse, special possessions that are valuable only for the memories.

If you have never been the victim of a crime, you have missed a unique educational experience that will open your eyes to the harsh realities of life. The law allows only for the arrest and prosecution of criminals. Even when a criminal is convicted, the victim receives little or no restitution.

While victims return to their jobs to work even harder to replace stolen possessions, the criminal is provided with room and board at the expense of the taxpayer. Victims consequently carry a double burden: They must suffer from being victimized and then must support criminals.

Taxpayers are forced to provide prison inmates with room and board as well as luxuries such as television sets. Federal judges force society, including the victims, to pay more and more taxes to provide luxury recreational facilities for prison inmates.

Is this justice? Where did America go wrong? I don't think our forefathers envisioned a judicial system that would make the innocent responsible for the needs of the guilty. Until the tables are turned and criminals are made to care for themselves and to compensate victims for their losses, the legal system cannot be called just.

The American criminal justice system probably is the best legal system in existence today, but it is far from perfect. When the first priority of the system is the protection of its people, both the guilty and the innocent, then it can be called a just system.

Ode to Gorbachev

To the editor:

This poem is dedicated to Dawna Jarvis and her hero, Mikhail Gorbachev, in response to Ms. Jarvis' editorial of March 31. I believe this response treats the piece with the dignity it deserves.

Just gimme Mik, gimme Mik
He's so chic
Cardin suit, Italian shoes
Words so slick
Tell me what I want to hear
I'll be a Commie by next year
I really dig you wife's fur hat
Russian women aren't all fat
Mik honey, Mik honey
You ain't dorky
Keep those malcontents
Locked in Gorky
It's not you that's really hurtin'

We're the culprits that deny
Folks a bigger piece of pie
Mik daddy, Mik daddy
We wanna deal

Missiles, bombers, submarines
It's a steal!
We'll get rid of SDI
So nobody will have to die
And sign a treaty for world peace
So all your naughtiness will cease

You're OK
Who's this Reagan chump, anyway?
He's old and mean and not too swift
Gives your new veneer short shrift

Just a few less refugees

University Enquirer

To the editor:

We are writing in reference to The University Enquirer's reporting policies.

Throughout the school year, several incidents have occurred, resulting in charges being brought against several students. In each case, the students' full names, ages, major and addresses were printed on the front page. According to the editor, this was done because students are adults and should be responsible for their "criminal activities. The editor may not be aware of an obscure ideal of the American justice system which states "innocent until proven guilty." The editor, in her infinite wisdom, has passed judgment on these students and not only found them guilty, but deserving of the embarrassing, adverse publicity they received.

However, the editor does sometimes hand down acquittals. Last semester when a Tech athlete was being investigated by the NCAA, The UD refused to print his name, not wanting to invade his privacy.

Two weeks ago when four Tech athletes were suspended, their names were printed, but the incident in which they were involved was not revealed. The editor handed down a "no investigation necessary" verdict in these cases. We must assume that incidents not involving police reports are beyond the scope of The UD "investigative" reporters.

Perhaps The UD should concentrate more on good, accurate investigation reporting and less on the embellished short stories now being printed. The UD staff is supposed to be aspiring for a career in journalism. An education in journalistic ethics would also be appropriate and should be expected.

We eagerly await each Monday morning edition of The University Enquirer, especially the "crime" feature on the front page. Perhaps if a Tech student or employee is not involved in an alleged "criminal" activity, maybe someone wearing a Tech T-shirt or cap will be involved in an incident to fill the weekly feature space.

Names withheld upon request

EDITOR'S NOTE: The university, not the editor, refused to release the name of the current Tech student involved in the NCAA investigation, in compliance with the federal laws regarding students' rights to privacy. The UD requested that the NCAA disclose the student's name under the provisions of the Texas Open Records Act. The NCAA refused, saying it is not subject to the act. The incident that prompted the suspension of some members of the Tech baseball team was not reported by the police. As such, there was no official public record alleging criminal misconduct of the students.

Non-binding treaties

To the editor:

Tom Wicker really ought to consult his lawyers before making such columns as the one you ran on Friday, 27 Feb. Some of the things he claims as examples of lawlessness aren't called such by law.

First of all, no treaty can be legally binding on the U.S. unless it is ratified by the Senate. SALT II was never ratified; Reagan violated no law when he exceeded its limits. I fear the day when one branch of government can enforce treaties in violation of the Constitution.

Secondly, in international law, if one party to a bilateral treaty violates it, it is a dead letter as far as the other party is concerned. The Soviet government has so blatantly violated

Reagan says embassy trashable if not spyproof

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan promised quick action Tuesday to prevent "further damage to our national security" from a sex-and-spy scandal in Moscow and suggested that the unfinished, $191 million U.S. Embassy there will be torn down if it cannot be protected from eavesdropping.

He declared that the Soviets will not be allowed to move into their new embassy on a Washington hilltop until Americans occupy a new embassy in Moscow.

The new U.S. facility under construction in Moscow is due for completion in 1989, but there are reports that it already is riddled with bugging devices.

"The United States will not occupy our new embassy building in Moscow unless and until I can be assured that it is safe to move into a secure embassy environment," Reagan said in a brief appearance in the White House press briefing room.

Two Marines who served as guards at the existing embassy have been charged with espionage. They allegedly became sexually involved with Soviet women and allowed KGB agents into the embassy's communications center and other sensitive areas.

"I'm deeply concerned over the breach of security in our Moscow embassy," Reagan said, "and while all the facts are not known, it is clear that the security implications are widespread and that additional quick action is required to prevent further damage to our national security."

Reagan said he had directed

Secretary of State George Shultz and the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board to "evaluate the condition of our new building and ascertain whether it will ever be secure or whether it may be necessary to destroy and rebuild it."

He said he wanted a report within 90 days.

Reagan acknowledged that the advisory board as far back as 1985 had raised alarms about the use of Soviet personnel at the U.S. Embassy.

"We immediately started and did accomplish a reduction in personnel, in stages, that were there," he said.

"And I must say we did run into some embassy problems and opposition because it isn't exactly a place where you can just go out and hire Americans to go and take jobs like that in the Soviet Union."

The president said he would not permit the rehiring of Soviet workers at the embassy, even if the Kremlin revokes an order banning their employment there.

Reagan rejected a suggestion by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that Shultz abandon plans to hold talks in Moscow next week with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, meeting instead in Helsinki.

"I just don't think it's good for us to be run out of town," he said.

Frank Carlucci, the president's national security adviser, said Shultz will have a secure room in the embassy from which to work.

Reagan, asked how he could continue to hold arms talks with the Soviets in view of the spying, replied:

"I think the whole business of espionage worldwide is something that we have to recognize takes place, and counterespionage is employed by everyone, but at the same time, you don't stop doing business."

As for whether the incident had changed his view of the Soviets, Reagan said, "I think I've been rather realistic about the Soviet Union for quite some time and, believe me, it doesn't surprise me a bit."

Before his announcement, Reagan reviewed the embassy problem in a meeting with Shultz, Carlucci and other Cabinet members and advisers.

Shultz leaves Washington on Saturday for talks in Moscow next week with Shevardnadze. Because of the alleged spying scandal, fears have been raised that the secretary will not have a secure base of operations at the embassy.

Shultz told Reagan he will have "adequate security — it won't be optimal conditions, but it will be adequate to do his job both in terms of secure rooms and in terms of secure communications," Carlucci said.

Governor backs proposed tax referendum

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday he would agree if the Legislature chooses to allow voters to decide this summer whether they want to pay more taxes to build more prisons.

The governor said opinion polls repeatedly have shown Texans willing to pay higher taxes if it would mean expanding the currently overcrowded prison system.

"Putting it to the people and letting them decide on this particular (prison) issue is a form of referendum which I heartily endorse," Clements said.

Clements also said he wouldn't object to shifting the statewide horse racing referendum from November to this summer — if a special election is going to be held at that time on the prison tax and a state lottery.

"I don't see anything wrong with it," Clements told his weekly news conference.

Struggling with Clements' refusal to approve more than $2.9 billion in new taxes for the 1988-89 budget period, some legislators have suggested placing before voters a proposed constitutional amendment that would dedicate some additional tax money to fund prison construction.

Although he says such a plan probably would be acceptable, Clements also said lawmakers who want to spend more money than he will approve "are not facing up to reality with the budget."

"They keep talking about going to increased programs. I'm not going to agree to those increased programs. I've tried to make that very clear to everyone," he said.

The Legislature last year placed on this November's ballot the question of legalizing pari-mutuel wagering on horse and dog races. Lawmakers currently are considering a proposal to create a state lottery if voters approve.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said one possible solution being discussed is a proposal to put all three questions before this summer. But he said it is only an idea right now.

"They're strictly in the embryo stage of just talking about it. We haven't made any conclusions on anything," Lewis said.

The speaker said that if voters rejected a tax increase for prisons, they should be prepared for the consequences.

Federal reserve

Chairman says weak dollar could create recession

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker said Tuesday the United States faces "substantial risks," including a recession, from reliance on a weaker dollar alone to correct the country's huge trade deficit.

Volcker told a congressional panel that both the U.S. and worldwide economic recovery could be jeopardized if the dollar, which has already declined substantially from its 1985 highs, were to drop further.

Volcker's comments, his bluntest statements ever on the dangers of a falling dollar, were issued as the United States met in Washington with its key trading partners for high-level discussions aimed in part at trying to calm jitters on world currency markets.

The dollar plunged to a post-war low against the Japanese yen last week, a decline fueled in part by fears that recent Reagan administration actions would spur a trade war between the two nations that would add to recession threats.

For the last two years, the administration has been embarked on a strategy of trying to solve the huge U.S. trade deficit by driving the value of the dollar lower, thus restricting imports to this country while making American goods more competitive on overseas markets.

Testifying to a Senate Banking subcommittee, Volcker said financial markets were already flashing warnings signals that the dollar could fall too far too fast.

While he did not spell out those signals, world financial markets were thrown into a turmoil last week by the plunging dollar and concerns about higher inflation in the United States. Inflation fears caused by the weaker dollar were cited for recent rises in interest rates, including a move by several large U.S. banks last week to boost their prime lending rate for the first time in almost three years.

Love encourages students to apply for SA committee positions

By PATRICIA REYES
News Staff Writer

The Student Association standing councils and university committees offer Texas Tech students the opportunity to influence the decision-making process on the Tech campus by allowing the student body voice to be heard, said Amy Love, SA president-elect.

Applications for the various councils and committees are due by 5 p.m. April 22 in the SA office.

"Student involvement on campus committees is vital to Texas Tech and we, as students, are fortunate to have input into so many aspects of our university," Love said. Openings on standing councils and committees are as follows:

- One Tech student is needed to serve on the Athletic Council. The council advises the Board of Regents and the Tech President in the development and supervision of intercollegiate athletic programs.
- The Honors and Awards Council recommends methods for recognition of distinguished personnel and, if asked, reviews nominations and recommends award recipients. One student may serve on the council.
- The admissions and retention committee studies and recommends general university-wide policies for academic admission and retention of undergraduate students. Six student members are needed to serve on the committee.

- Duties of the artists and speakers committee include recommending policy guidelines concerning artists and speakers brought to Tech. A total of seven students, four undergraduate and three graduate students, are needed for the committee.
- Three Tech students will serve on the bookstore advisory committee. The committee is responsible for studying the operations of the university bookstore with reference to the manner in which it is meeting the needs of students and faculty.
- The Code of Student Affairs committee offers three students, two undergraduate and one graduate, the opportunity to oversee the Code of Student Affairs. The committee makes recommendations regarding the code and reviews guidelines for the operating procedures of student organizations under the code.
- The convocations committee is responsible for planning the all-university commencement exercises. One undergraduate and one graduate student are needed for the committee.
- One student, an on-campus resident, is needed to serve on the energy conservation committee. The committee studies and analyzes all types of energy conservation statistics, equipment and procedures to reduce utility consumption on campus.
- Five students, one undergraduate, are needed for the international educational committee. The committee develops and recommends policies regarding Tech's participation in international education.

- Duties of the library committee include advising the vice president for academic affairs on matters pertaining to the general policies affecting Tech's libraries. Two undergraduate and two graduate students are needed to serve on the committee.
- Three undergraduate and two graduate students are needed to serve on the minority affairs committee. The duties include making recommendations to improve minority recruitment and retention.
- The parking violation appeals committee reviews decisions made by the parking and traffic counselor concerning disputes over facts and major extenuating circumstances. One student is needed to serve on the committee.
- Two students are needed to serve on the student financial aid and scholarship committee. Duties for the committee include recommending policies concerning financial assistance to students.
- The student publications committee advises the vice president for student affairs on matters relating to student publications. Five student seats are available on the committee.
- Two undergraduate and one undergraduate alternate students are needed to serve on the university discipline committee. The committee conducts hearings on student disciplinary cases.

- The university appeals committee reviews discipline cases presented to it by an individual organization or investigator making an appeal in accordance with provisions in the Code of Student Affairs. One undergraduate and one undergraduate alternate student may serve on the committee.
- The Student Service Fee Advisory Board was formed by the vice president for student affairs to develop greater student input for various student service fee proposals. Six undergraduate students and one medical school graduate student may serve on the board.
- The Masked Rider committee works in conjunction with the Student Organization Services office for the supervision of the Masked Rider program. One undergraduate student is needed to serve on the committee.

Love said the SA also encourages students to apply for various committees that are set up directly under the SA president. The President's Cabinet advises the SA president. Cabinet positions include special assistant to the president, executive director for academic affairs, executive director for state affairs, special adviser on minority affairs, special adviser on Southwest Conference affairs and special assistant for public relations.

Teleconference on computers to air at Tech

By EDWARD GATELY
News Staff Writer

Experts will discuss current applications and opportunities in the field of artificial intelligence via satellite in a Texas Instruments-sponsored teleconference to be aired today at Texas Tech.

The symposium, "An AI Productivity Roundtable," will be broadcast from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. today in the Academic Computing Services center, located in the Advanced Technology Learning Center in the west basement of the library, said Melinda Steele, computer short course coordinator.

"Because of the installation of a satellite dish atop the Texas Tech Library, students and faculty will have the opportunity to view part three in this series dealing with artificial intelligence," she said.

The speakers scheduled to appear are actively involved in the pursuit of artificial intelligence, the possibility that a computer can be made to behave in ways in which humans recognize as intelligent, Steele said. The speakers making up the roundtable discussion include Edward Feigenbaum of Stanford University, George Heilmeier and Harry Tennant of Texas Instruments, Alan Kay of Apple Computers, Douglas Lenat of Microelectronics and Technology Corp., Roger Schank of Yale and Herbert Schorr of IBM.

During the first four hours, speakers will give case histories and discuss the latest development in knowledge-based systems, natural language processing, rapid prototyping and the integration of artificial intelligence into conventional systems, Steele said. At 1 p.m., a condensed version of the second part of the symposium, titled "Knowledge-Based Systems: A Step-by-Step Guide To Getting Started," will be aired.

"Teleconferencing is the newest capability which ACS brings to the Tech community," Steele said.

Explosion ruins Tech students' home

By MICHELLE BLEIBERG
News Staff Writer

Two Texas Tech students escaped serious injury late Monday night after their residence at 3203 19th St. went up in flames in what the assistant Lubbock fire marshal attributed to a natural gas explosion.

"This was a tremendous explosion; they are lucky to be alive," Harold Eckles, assistant fire marshal, said about Tech students Ty Howard and Gordon Nelson.

He said the two students told fire department officials they smelled gas in their home, checked a floor furnace and discovered a large fire under the furnace. Howard and Nelson started to run out of the house, but before they were able to get out, it exploded. The students were able to exit the house without serious injuries, but Eckles said the explosion caused an estimated $40,000 to $50,000 in damage. The explosion and flames caused extensive damage to the northwest bedroom and the living room.

The assistant fire marshal is ruling the explosion accidental.

"The house is a total loss," Eckles said.

The walls and the floor blew out, and the contents of the house caught on fire, he said. A fire department investigation revealed that the explosion was caused by a gas leak from the piping under the house.

Eckles said there was a tremendous amount of natural gas trapped under the floor and that it is possible another source in the house, possibly a water heater, could have triggered the explosion. He said that because of the age of the house and the stucco double walls, the natural gas was able to spread under the house.

The explosion occurred about 10 p.m. Monday, and the blaze was brought under control by 10:30 p.m., he said. The Energas company is scheduled to do a leak test this week, but Eckles said it is the homeowners' responsibility to keep their house in good condition.

He said the fire department will not investigate the explosion further.

Dance troupe to make world premiere in England

By MISSY COSTELLO
Lifestyles Staff Writer

Although Lubbock is not exactly renowned as a cultural mecca, that classification may soon be changing thanks to Texas Tech dance professor Peggy Willis and her ballet company.

The Willis Ballet will be representing the United States at the All American Mardi Gras festival in South Tyneside, England, this summer. They will be the sole and official ballet company for the celebration.

Lubbock is playing host to representatives from the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) this week who will be here to interview Willis and film her work with the company. The footage will be used in Britain to promote the June festival.

The British broadcasters will be honored tonight at a reception and dinner at the home of Dr. Ted and Denise Scott.

"The dinner is to highlight the BBC while they're here," Willis said. The BBC representatives will be introduced to several of the local news media, Tech President Lauro Cavazos and vice presidents of Tech as well as Lubbock Mayor Peck McMinn and to other local dignitaries.

According to Willis, local businesses have been supportive of the BBC trip and have contributed their services. The broadcasters will be staying at the Lubbock Inn, and a limousine has been furnished for their stay by Elegance Royale Limousine Service.

Willis said the honor of being chosen to perform at the event was somewhat a matter of being in the right place at the right time.

"I was in London last fall at the British American Arts Association," Willis said. "I knew I wanted to bring my company to England."

It was there that she met Peter Gillanders, press and promotions officer for the Mardi Gras.

"He wanted to bring over American entertainment," she said. "I sent him a video tape of my company and he liked what he saw."

Their meeting has resulted in an invitation to the event, which since has grown to include an entire entourage from Lubbock.

Peggy Willis

"For the festival we're taking a police detective, a gourmet cook specializing in West Texas cooking and we hope to take a football player from Texas Tech," Willis said.

"Also, Patsie Ross, who is our folk dance and aerobics specialist, will be going and Duward Campbell, an artist who is known worldwide."

Other members of the group will include Dorothy Power of University News and Publications, Frank White, a news anchor at KCBD-TV, Channel 11, and a disc jockey from KFYO-AM radio. The entire group will number about 30.

"It's going to be really exciting; we're taking lots of different kinds of cultures with us," Willis said.

The Willis Ballet, in addition to performing at the Mardi Gras festival, has been invited to perform at the Great St. John Party in England on June 20, a party celebrating the 100th anniversary of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

The celebration will be attended by about 100,000 disadvantaged children and 40,000 members of the brigade. Also in attendance will be Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, the Duke of Edinburgh and other members of the Royal Family. The party will be broadcast live on British television for two hours.

The English performances are all the more exciting for the group because they mark the world premiere of the Willis Ballet.

The Ballet's trip also may include a two-week tour of northern England. Once the group arrives in Britain, all its expenses will be paid for. But the group still is looking for a sponsor for airfare.

"We'd be more than happy to be helped," said Willis, laughing.

The Willis Ballet includes several Tech students and graduates. Among the principal dancers are Tech graduates Jerry Woods and Lacey Moore and students Denise Matsumura, Kim Traeger and Angelique Cox. The other company member is 14-year-old Kerry Maki. Apprentices to the troupe include Tech students Leslie Burk, Tracy McCartor, Alice Borman, Laura Henderson and Kenneth Mechler.

Willis, who serves as Tech's dance coordinator, has a long history in the dance. She began her ballet training in Naples, Italy, at the age of 8. She graduated from Texas Christian University in 1972 with a master of fine arts degree in theater and ballet. She has served as a guest choreographer at TCU and since her graduation has choreographed more than 50 ballets.

Willis' first full-length original ballet, "Dracula," was featured on PBS stations in 1983. It was the first original full-length ballet originating from an area other than New York, Washington or San Francisco to be shown across the United States on public television. Her second ballet, "Robin Hood," may have its premiere while the group is performing in England. In addition to her achievements in the dance, Willis' biography has been featured in the eighth edition of "The World Who's Who of Women" and the ninth edition of "The International Register of Profiles."

Willis said she is excited about her group's upcoming trip and particularly about her ballet company's world premiere.

"We've been working toward professionalism, and we're now very close," she said.

Indoor entertainment makes nasty weather bearable

By JILL JOHNSON
Lifestyles Staff Writer

Movies, live theater, musical gigs and comedy acts all are part of the upcoming weekend so if the weather continues to be dismal, take heart, for there is plenty of fun to be found indoors.

And now, a look at the entertainment scene...

The University Center presents the silent film "Nosferatu" at 8 p.m. today in the Allen Theater. The show is the first film version of the story of "Dracula," and tickets cost $2.50, or $1.50 with a Texas Tech ID.

The Actors Trading Post will give a live performance of the comedy play "A Couple of White Chicks Sitting Around Talking" at 8:15 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and again April 16-18. Tickets cost $5. Tech students get in for $3 with an ID on Thursdays.

Cowboy's Comedy Club has lined up some top-notch comedians to perform over the weekend. Fred Wolfe and Chris Raine will tickle the audience's funny bone at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, and 8:30 p.m. and 10:45 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Admission is $5.

Main Street Saloon has scheduled

the Bel Aires to perform this weekend. The show will start between 9 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Friday and again on Saturday, and cover is $2.

The UC, in conjunction with the Tech music department, will present a dinner theater Friday and Saturday. The sit-down dinner will begin at 7 p.m. each night in the UC ballroom, followed by the theater production.

"The Diary of Adam and Eve" and Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury" will be performed after dinner, beginning at 8:30 p.m. in the Allen Theater. Tickets cost $11, or $6 without dinner, and can be purchased at the UC ticket booth.

Lubbock's Eddie Beethoven and the Sons of Fun will take the Town Draw stage at 10 p.m. Friday. Cover to see the band is $2.

The Liquidators, a favorite group among locals, will perform at 9:30 p.m. Saturday at the Texas Cafe and Bar. Cover to join in the fun is $3.

The Lizzard Lounge, better known as La Lizzard, will host a "new pogressive band on campus" Saturday night, or rather Sunday morning. Grey Mattr is scheduled to play at 1 a.m., and it could be a band worth staying awake for. To check out the action, be prepared to pay a $3 cover.

The painting exhibit "Girl Talk" still is on display at the Lubbock Fine Arts Center. The display is said to be an interesting exhibit and has been at the arts center for several weeks now.

Looking down the road, Paul Bullock will present an evening of new acoustic music April 15 with Windham Hill recording artist the Montreux Band. The group is composed of Michael Manring, Mike Marshall, Darol Anger and Barbara Higbie. The show will begin at 8 p.m. in the Lubbock Civic Center Theater, and tickets cost $9 in advance and $11 at the door. Tickets can be purchased at U.V. Blake, Video Expo and Ralph's Records and Tapes. The concert could be a way to provide some mental relaxation from income tax worries.

The Tech theater department is putting the final touches on the upcoming performance of the play "Foreigner." Opening night is scheduled for April 16.

Quiet Indian actor waiting in Houston for new heart, lungs

HOUSTON (AP) — Will Sampson, the 6-foot-7 actor who played the quiet Indian in the film "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," is in a Houston hospital awaiting a lung and heart transplant, his doctor said.

"He has a very good attitude, very optimistic he will find a donor in time and return to work," said Dr. E. Clinton Lawrence, Sampson's physician at Methodist Hospital.

Sampson, 53, suffers from scleroderma, an unusual disease that has scarred Sampson's heart and lungs. The overall long-term survival rate of those undergoing the heart-lung surgery is about 50 percent, Lawrence said.

Sampson was transferred to Methodist Hospital last month from a Los Angeles hospital.

Hoopsters, Stop & Pop Win The Championships In Tournament

The annual Bookstore Tournament came to an end last week. Stop and Pop took the title in the men's division while the Hoopsters took the title in the women's division for the second consecutive year.

In semifinal play, Zamboni, with Wendell Owens as their varsity player, barely nabbed a win over the efforts of Mike Nelson and the Clinic to advance to the finals 60-59. Nelson finished up with the game with 29 points while Owens scored 33 of Zamboni's points. Stop and Pop advanced to the finals by defeating the Cleavers 64-56. Ray Erwin lead the Cleavers' scoring attack with 20 points against Bubba Jenning's 24 points Stop and Pop.

In women's semifinal matches, The Ball Players, led by Tricia Clay, paired against No Chance. At the beginning of the game, No Chance stayed fairly equal to the Ball Players. But as the time closed in, The Ball Players pulled away to win 58-41. In another semifinal game, last year's intramural champions, the Thetas, took on the Hoopsters. The Hoopsters won 69-41 to take the intramural women's title.

The Thetas played No Chance and won 42-32 in the third game of the women's division. People who scored heavily were Beth Howard with 19 points and Keva Richardson with 10 points for the Thetas while Paula Brigancee scored nine points for No Chance. In the men's third place game, The Clinic only had five players throughout the entire game which made scoring fairly easy for The Cleavers to stay on top with a 69-63 win.

In the women's finals, Tricia Clay and the Ball Players squared off against the Hoopsters with Sharon Cain in an extremely close ball game. With the score tied at 51, the Ball Players tried to stall for a last-second shot, however, the strategy failed in which caused the game to go into overtime. The Hoopsters pulled out in front to take the game 59-55. Tricia Clay obtained 33 points and Erin Hillery scored with 10 points for the Ball Players. For the Hoopsters, Sharon Cain scored 25 points, Chana Akin, 14 points and Danelle Schmucker, 12 points.

In the men's finals, Zamboni stayed with Stop and Pop for the majority of the game, but Bubba Jennings with his free throws were to much for Zamboni and Stop and Pop went on to win 65-51. Wendell Owens scored 25 point for Zamboni while Bubba Jennings scored 37 points for Stop and Pop, 17 points of which were free throws. Doug Okruch scored 12 points.

Limited space is available so call the Outdoor Shop at 742-2949 or come by Room 206 in the Student Recreation Center.

Also, the Outdoor Shop has a special for those people who want to take advantage of all the last minute snow. They will provide skis, poles and boots for $8 day.

All injury clinics are free and open to anyone eligible to enter the SRC. For further information, contact the Rec Sports Office at 742-3351.

Tennis Teams Win Tourney

It was a toss up of which was the greater opponent at the intramural Tennis Doubles Tournament - the wind or the people on either side of the net.

In the women's division, Vicki Collins and Erin Goodrich went to the finals and their opponents never showed so they were declared the winners.

In the men's B division, Rich Dinsdale and Bill May defeated Chris Hamilton and Mike Gottschalk for the championship 6-2, 0-6, 6-2. For the men's A title, Rich Castillo and Mike Bezemek wore down Trent Ward and Steve Stoggs 7-5, 6-3. Power hitting was the name of the game for both teams but Castillo and Bezemek forced their opponents into many errors. Stoggs and Ward had played three other tennis matches and two make-up softball games prior to the finals.

Raof Takes Squash Title

The intramural squash championship was won by Syed Raof as he defeated A.N. Kosskela 9-6, 9-1, for the title.

Seven other players competed in the tournament.

The team won third place overall and took bronze medals in two out of three events. The medals were in the free pistol and air pistol events. Shawn McCash took individual honors in all three events. He won second place in free pistol, second place in standard, and third place in the air pistol event. McCash was named to the 1986-1987 All-American Team in all three pistol areas. Chris Foote received honorable mention on the 1986-1987 All-American Team.

The championships consisted of the top 10 teams and the top 30 individuals in the nation. McCash qualified for all three events and Foote qualified for two events.

Hays not happy

Sul Ross Lobos trip Tech twice

By DON WILLIAMS
Associate Sports Editor

One good thing about Texas Tech's midweek schedule: The Raiders have been able to use it to rebound from weekend losses in Southwest Conference play and reconcile their overall record at or around .500.

The College of the Southwest Mustangs are handy for that. But there are no more dates with the COSTangs.

The Raiders took a significant step up in midweek competition Tuesday when they hosted the Sul Ross State Lobos, who came in with a 26-9 record, a 12-game winning streak and the No. 23 NAIA ranking.

After Sul Ross thumped Bill Schutt and Mike Beiras and handcuffed the Raider lineup in a 9-4, 10-2 doubleheader sweep, Tech Coach Larry Hays figured his team may as well have been playing 13th-ranked Arkansas, against whom the Raiders made a better showing in three losses Friday and Saturday.

Despite the reinstatements of regular middle infielders Dave Geck and Kevin Lowery, Tech slipped to 16-20 and a disgruntled Hays chastised his team for a rare lack of effort.

"It appeared we were going through the motions out there. The way things have been going lately, you would think we would have a bunch of guys who wanted to play," Hays said. "If we can't get ready to play, that's rough. We'll be right back where we were 10 days ago."

Sul Ross pitchers Jeff Price and Mike Gonzales certainly could be held accountable for any lack of effort at the plate. Price raised his record to 9-2 by scattering six hits and holding the Raiders to three runs in five innings in the opener.

By the time Price gave way to Dennis Taylor, the Lobos had built a comfortable 9-3 lead. Designated hitter Freddy Alvarado's three-run homer — his eighth of the year — capped a four-run first inning off Schutt, and Alvarado singled home two more runs in a three-run second that put Sul Ross in front 7-0.

Tech rallied for three runs in the second on Lowery's RBI single and a two-run double from Billy Lance.

But Schutt, who lost a 2-0, complete game outing Friday against Arkansas, was shelved for seven runs on eight hits before leaving with two outs in the third. His record dipped to 2-3.

"That's been the problem with our pitching all year ... up and down," Hays said.

Gonzales overpowered the Raiders in the nightcap, going the full seven innings and allowing only two runs on five hits. The righthander raised his record to 7-1, while Tech's Mike Beiras fell to 5-3.

Gonzales and Beiras were locked in a 1-1 duel through four, but the Lobos paraded 11 hitters to the plate in a five-run fifth and sent Beiras to the showers after 4 2/3 innings. With one out in the inning, Jimmy Morris singled and Alvarado doubled him home to snap the tie. The RBI was Alvarado's sixth of the day and 27th in the last eight games.

Beiras then walked Judd Ryan, induced Santos Alvarado to hit into a force play and hit Darrell Holmes with a pitch to load the bases. First baseman Jeff Pannell followed with a two-run single and catcher Scott Sulser broke the game open to 6-1 with a two-run double.

Beiras, who was lifted after walking the next batter, Terry Parsons, surrendered six earned runs on 10 hits and five walks. He struck out three.

Gonzales doled out only two hits to the Tech lineup over the last five innings.

Brian Christiansen's run-scoring infield out in the second inning and an RBI single by Lowery in the fifth accounted for the Raiders' only runs.

NBA suspends Motta for allegations

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Dick Motta, coach of the Dallas Mavericks, was fined $5,000 and suspended for one game by the NBA Tuesday for suggesting that Houston Rockets Coach Bill Fitch was "messing around" games in order to set up a favorable playoff schedule.

The Dallas management was also fined $5,000.

Rod Thorn, the NBA vice president for operations, said an investigation into Motta's charges had found no basis for concluding that Fitch had done anything wrong as Motta had suggested in an interview last week.

Motta said it seemed that the Rockets wanted to get out of the same playoff bracket with the Los Angeles Lakers in the Western Conference.

If the Rockets were to finish fourth or fifth, they would meet the Lakers as early as the second round; if they finish sixth or seventh, however, they would not have to face the Lakers until the Western Conference championship.

The Lakers already have clinched first place and the homecourt advantage throughout the playoffs.

Motta made the observation after watching a game between the Rockets and the Phoenix Suns.

Motta Fitch

Houston got within two points in the fourth quarter but had their best players on the bench.

"Houston looks like they're messing around," Motta said. "They look like they're manipulating."

Motta first complained to Thorn and then made his views known in an interview published Friday in the The Dallas Morning News.

Fitch called Motta's charges "irresponsible" and added: "when Motta made those statements, he must have been thinking about when he was a ninth-grade coach in Idaho because he brought some ninth-grade thinking with those statements."

The league said the suspension would take place today for a game against Utah. It said the fine against the team was levied because it is responsible for comments by executive employees.

Guard prizes keep Tech on hold

By DON WILLIAMS
Associate Sports Editor

Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers may not sign a player to a letter-of-intent as the national signing period opens today, but two prize guards apparently have narrowed their choices to the Red Raiders and one other school.

Tech women's Coach Marsha Sharp, with six scholarships available, said she hopes to ink at least two players today.

The Raider women are expected to sign two posts from schools that met in the New Mexico Class 4A state championship game. They are Albuquerque El Dorado's 5-11 Rona Thompson, who led her team to a 26-0 record, and 6-2 Hazel Tull, a standout from 19-6 Albuquerque Cibola.

Myers' list of would-be signees is topped by Darrell Mickens, a 6-4 guard from Paris, and Todd Duncan, a 6-1 three-point shooting specialist from Midland College.

Myers has three scholarships to give.

Possibilities

Todd Duncan, 6-1 G, Midland JC
Maurice Artis, 7-0 C, Killeen
Darrell Mickens, 6-4 G, Paris
Charles McCovery, 6-1 G, LaPorte

Considering

Tech, Colo. St., Fullerton St.,
Ark., Nevada-Reno, UTA
Tech, Temple, Seton Hall
Houston, Tech
Houston, A&M, Tech

Paris Coach Mike Long said late Tuesday that Mickens still was mulling over his choice between Tech and Houston. Long said he did not know whether Mickens, the 10th-best recruit in the state according to The Dallas Morning News, would sign today.

"He's been thinking back and forth to Tech and Houston," Long said. "He's said all along that he wanted to sign early to get it over with, but I don't know if he will or not."

A Midland source said late Tuesday that Duncan would choose between Tech and Colorado State but would not announce his decision until Monday.

Duncan, who led Midland to the NJCAA national championship game, apparently is leaning toward Tech. He also has been considering Arkansas, Nevada-Reno and UT-Arlington, where former Midland Coach Jerry Stone was hired last week as head coach.

The 155-pound Lubbock Coronado product visited Cal-State Fullerton Tuesday and will take his official trip to Tech this weekend. Duncan also will play in the second annual NJCAA All-Star Basketball Classic on Saturday in Midland.

Another top guard prospect, 6-1 Charles McCovery of LaPorte, probably is several days away from signing. LaPorte Coach Tom Holland said. McCovery has Tech, Houston and Texas A&M — in no particular order — as his top choices but might opt for a junior college.

McCovery is The News' No. 9 prospect in the state.

Texas' top three recruits all signed during the NCAA's early signing period in November. Dallas Skyline forward Larry Johnson inked with SMU, while Bay City guard LaBradford Smith chose Louisville. Rosenberg Terry's 7-1 Johnny Pittman picked Kentucky over Tech.

The Raiders' still could offset Pittman's loss by signing 7-0 Killeen center Maurice Artis, The News' No. 14 prospect. Artis, a high school teammate of Raider football signees Anthony McDowell and Marcus Washington, will choose between Tech, Temple and Seton Hall.

Artis, a Philadelphia native, visited Temple Tuesday.

Myers already has one junior college product in the fold. Nebraska Western College's J.D. Sanders, a 6-9 forward from Buffalo, N.Y., signed with Tech in November.

Linebackers filling void in Hastings-less defense

By CURTIS MATTHEWS
Sports Staff Writer

Despite the loss of two of the top five tacklers from last year's squad, the Texas Tech football team slowly is filling in the holes as spring training winds down.

Tech's search will culminate in Saturday's annual Red-Black game at 2 p.m. in Jones Stadium.

Earlier this week as he looked toward Saturday's scrimmage between the first and third units against the second and fourth squads, head coach Spike Dykes said he will be looking for "continuity and consistency ... The sooner our players get used to playing with the same people, the better it will be in the fall."

With the loss of Brad Hastings, Tech's leading tackler a year ago, at middle linebacker, the Raider coaching staff has been searching for someone to fill the void. After two weeks of spring drills, Dykes and defensive coordinator Carlos Mainord have given the nod to junior Tony Durden at the middle linebacker spot.

Though he saw only limited playing time last fall, Durden did spot Hastings throughout the '86 season and has turned in an impressive spring, according to Dykes.

Mainord, who also handles much of the linebacker coaching in addition to his other responsibilities, said seniors Michael Johnson and Gary Warren are listed as the starters for the two outside spots. Johnson returns after turning in a solid fall performance that saw him grab second-team All-Southwest Conference honors as well as finish second on the team in tackles with 149.

Gary Warren is the stongside linebacker and like Durden, Warren saw limited action last fall, finishing the year with 42 stops.

With his three current starters and backups Mike Derryberry, Brian Rollins, Dal Watson, Monty Melcher and newcomer Darnell Pratt, Mainord said he is pleased with the progress of his linebackers this spring.

"They're progressing along, and we hope over these last nine days that we will really begin to polish things up," Mainord said.

"Our front people, our ends and our tacklers, are ahead of our linebackers and secondary, but that's natural because they have more returners coming back.

"Our offense is getting better every day, and that's really making us better skilled. It gives us a lot of good things to work against."

Tech football signees make All-Star squad

From staff and wire reports

AUSTIN — Darren Lewis of Dallas Carter, generally regarded as the state's No. 2 high school running back recruit, Tuesday declined an invitation to play for the Texas High School Coaches Association's North All-Star team.

The coaches and rosters for the North and South all-star teams in football and basketball were announced Tuesday.

Temple Athletic Director Bob McQueen, president-elect of the coaches' association, said Lewis called and "had to cancel out."

Lewis, 5-10 and 195 pounds and a Texas A&M recruit, did not give any reason for withdrawing from the 34-member squad, said Eddie Joseph, assistant executive vice president of the THSCA. His replacement will be chosen later, Joseph said.

McQueen noted that Texas' No. 1 blue-chip running back, Randy Simmons of McKinney, will play for the North. Anthony Ray of Wharton, a Baylor recruit and the No. 3 running back prospect, is a member of the South all-star squad.

Three Texas Tech recruits, quarterback Jason Rattan of Eastland, running back Anthony Lynn of Celina and lineman Tim Escue of Levelland, will play for the North.

Gary Malesky of San Antonio Holmes will coach the South football all-stars, including Holmes quarterback Wilbur Odom, a Michigan recruit.

Gary Childress of North Mesquite will coach the North football all-stars. Allen Simpson of Amarillo will coach the North basketball all-stars, including his son, Sammie, and highly touted Larry Johnson of Dallas Skyline, a Southern Methodist recruit.

James Gamble of Port Arthur Lincoln will coach the South basketball all-stars, including blue-chip LaBradford Smith of Bay City, recruited by Louisville.
