Senate group slates hearing on Cavazos

By MICHELLE BLEIBERG
Managing Editor

Texas Tech President Lauro Cavazos is scheduled to appear before the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources at 9 a.m. CDT today in Washington.

Cavazos may be questioned about his nomination as secretary of education, said Chino Chapa, press secretary for U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford.

Cavazos will go through the same type of questioning as Robert Bork, who was a candidate for the U.S. Supreme Court, Chapa said.

The committee, which is chaired by U.S. Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Massachusetts, will make a recommendation on Cavazos which will go to the Senate sometime next week for a full vote, Chapa said. Current Secretary of Education William Bennett is due to step down from the position Sept. 20.

He said Stenholm does not believe there will be any opposition to Cavazos' appointment.

"We're confident he will be confirmed," Chapa said.

Stenholm, a 1961 Tech graduate, will speak on behalf of Cavazos. Also speaking on behalf of Cavazos will be U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, and U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-College Station.

Stenholm is the only Tech graduate in Congress.

President Reagan's nomination of Cavazos has been criticized as a political move to help GOP presidential nominee George Bush's campaign, but Chapa said that during an election year, many appointments have political ramifications.

"You have them anytime, especially during an election year," he said.

Chapa said it is questionable whether Cavazos will remain a cabinet member after the presidential election.

"That's still a big question, but I say he has a very good chance regardless of who is elected," he said.

Chapa said there are "thorny issues" involved, however.

"He is a shoe-in if Bush is elected, and if Dukakis is elected, I don't think he will re-appoint someone," Chapa said.

In May, Cavazos announced he was resigning effective in July 1989 after eight years at the Tech helm.

Fires continue to burn in Yellowstone National Park

By The Associated Press

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. — Firefighters on Thursday for the first time closed all but a small piece of the oldest national park, devastated by fires that surrounded Old Faithful and charred more than 1 million acres.

"I've done this for 20 years and I've never seen anything as awesome as this," said Fred Roach, operations chief on the 221,800-acre North Fork fire, which destroyed 17 buildings in the park Wednesday.

Firefighters in Wyoming's Bridger-Teton National Forest used a helicopter and tracking dogs as they searched for a crewman missing from fire lines since Wednesday night.

While tourists fled Yellowstone, 150 residents evacuated Sunday from two small Montana towns on the edge of the park returned home. Firefighters saved the towns by setting backfires.

Fires also burned in Alaska, Idaho, California, Oregon, Washington and Utah, where four cabins were destroyed by flames.

Although federal officials have called this the worst fire season in 30 years, no fatalities have been directly attributed to the blazes, which have charred 3.65 million acres, an area larger than Connecticut.

However, one man was killed Aug. 19 when a private helicopter crashed in the Bighorn National Forest in Wyoming on Aug. 19. The helicopter was on its way to a wilderness area to replace batteries in fire communications equipment.

President Reagan is sending a Cabinet-level team to the West to see what additional federal help is needed in fighting fires, and the White House said the number of troops on the fire line is likely to be increased. So far, about 2,500 military personnel are fighting fires.

Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan met with Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng, Interior Secretary Donald Hodel and Deputy Defense Secretary William H. Taft IV. The three planned to leave for Yellowstone today.

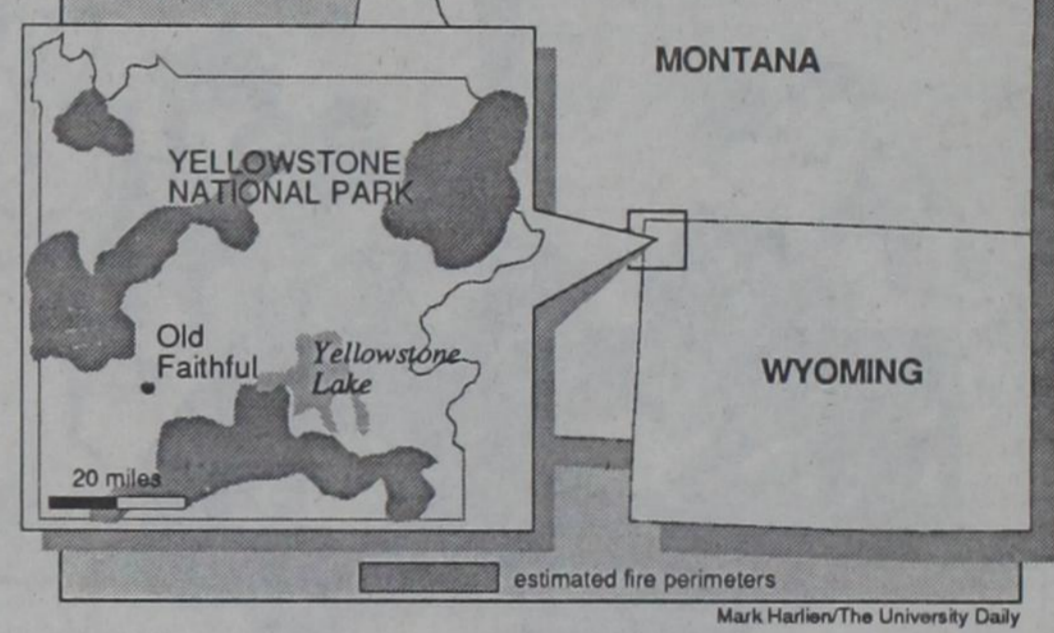

At Yellowstone, only one eight-mile section of road from the north entrance at Gardiner, Mont., to the Swan Lake flats was open, park spokeswoman Marsha Karle said.

Most of the 2.2 million-acre park, which includes about 250 miles of roadway, was closed to ensure an open path for fire trucks and to protect tourists from the roaring flames. Park officials said it is the first time such a large area in Yellowstone has been closed.

The only tourist attraction open was Mammoth Hot Springs, which includes a hotel and campground, a restaurant, visitors center, employees dormitory and a small grocery store.

The Yellowstone Tragedy

For the first time in 116 years, park officials ordered the evacuation Wednesday of the Old Faithful Geyser Complex. More than 550,000 acres in Yellowstone National Park have been affected by the fires that have occurred this summer.

McCathern speaks to campus group about Congress race, energy policy

By GARY HARPER
The University Daily

Democratic congressional contender Gerald McCathern advocated his energy policy at a meeting Thursday night of the Young Democrats.

McCathern, who is running for the U.S. representative seat from the 19th Congressional District, spoke to a group of about 30 supporters at the Lubbock Democratic headquarters.

McCathern said statistics indicate that the United States will import about 60 percent of all oil by the year 1990.

He said the oil situation will be a serious problem, explaining that the United States' hands would be tied if the Soviet Union blockaded oil imports to America.

"We don't have an energy policy," McCathern said. "Whatever OPEC decides is what it will be."

"My professional opinion is that we'll never, ever solve the problems in the oil industry unless we slow down the problems in OPEC."

McCathern, who will attempt to oust Republican incumbent Larry Combest in the November general election, advocates a policy that would place a $10 import tariff on products imported into the United States.

"Our domestic producers would not be at an unfair disadvantage then," he said.

"In the 19th Congressional District, six of the top 10 petroleum producing counties in the state are in our district."

McCathern, who earned an undergraduate degree in petroleum geology at Texas Tech, boasted of being an oil producer and of being aware of the needs and problems of the 19th Congressional District.

"I know what the problems are (in the district), and I have the credentials to back me up," he said. "Folks, something in the economic system is broken. It's going to take many years to work ourselves out of this (poor economic) situation, and the place to start is in the oil and gas industry."

"It's very important that we have somebody conservative enough and with enough knowledge in the industry that they will try to get the rest of the nation involved in establishing a worthwhile energy policy." McCathern charged Combest with not being accessible to constituents of the 19th District.

"I think that's one of his (Combest) major problems is that he has not been accessible, whether it's due to his staff or him," he said.

David Fisher, president of the Texas Tech Young Democrats, said the purpose of the student organization is to help Democratic candidates get elected to political offices.

"We support the principles of the Democratic Party," Fisher said.

U.S. eliminates weapons in accordance with treaty

By The Associated Press

KARNACK — With a deafening roar and towering clouds of white smoke, two rocket motors from Pershing nuclear missiles were burned Thursday, becoming the first of 867 U.S. missiles to be destroyed under the U.S.-Soviet intermediate-range arms treaty.

Vice President George Bush, watching through binoculars as the motors exploded like massive Roman candles, called the event a unique moment "in the career of man."

A 12-member Soviet inspection team watched the on-site burnings from a concrete bunker, 900 feet from rocket stands at Longhorn Army Ammunition Plant. Afterward, the Soviets said they were satisfied with the eliminations.

The team was among hundreds of observers, including Bush and ambassadors from NATO nations, who watched the eliminations. They were conducted under the terms of the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces treaty between the two superpowers.

Last week, American observers went to the U.S.S.R. to witness the destruction of intermediate-range missiles there. Thursday's rocket-motor burnings in the East Texas piney woods were the first by the U.S. in compliance with the INF treaty. "We too are sending our INF missiles to the junk yard," Bush said following the second rocket-motor firing. "The missile stages we destroyed today are just the beginning. And over the next three years, the United States will destroy over 800 more. The Soviets will destroy over 1,800, capable of delivering roughly four times as many warheads as ours."

"And at the end, the levels will be equal — zero on each side," he said. "We will have destroyed an entire class of nuclear missiles and we will have relegated the INF missiles to the history books. We're witnessing today one of those unique moments in the career of man, a moment when the tides of history turn and a new future dawns."

Bush also thanked the citizens of Marshall, near the Longhorn plant, and singled out the Marshall News Messenger for giving a "warm welcome to the Soviets ... totally in the spirit of peace, and I think that shows how the American people feel about what has taken place here today."

A Pershing II motor was ignited at 10 a.m. CDT and burned for 50 seconds, followed 15 minutes later by a 40-second burning of a lighter Pershing 1A.

"This is the day we begin to reverse the arms race. This was the day we began to destroy the weapons of destruction," Bush said.

20/20 Hindsight

Week runs gamut from new president to Soviets lost in space

Scott Brumley
Editor

The week just past was marked by interesting beginnings, anxious waiting and near-disastrous conclusions.

During the course of the last seven days, we have seen a woman take charge of Texas Tech, politics wrangle and lock horns about the Pledge of Allegiance and education, floods leave millions stranded in Bangladesh and a Soviet space shot end on a note substantially different from the original plan.

The fall semester certainly seems to be off to an interesting start. News is a commodity about as difficult to come by this week — apparently — as the stuffed Garfields with suction cup feet for affixing the full-figured feline to the inside of a car window.

The week following Labor Day weekend saw 30 people die on Texas roadways, five shy of the 35 highway fatalities predicted by the Texas Department of Public Safety in its somewhat ghoulish holiday forecast of how many would perish on the state's roads.

Emerging from a weekend which, no doubt, saw the supply of empty aluminum cans and glass beverage containers multiply geometrically in the company of several Tech students, the university came up with a new interim president.

In local affairs, Elizabeth "Bess" Haley, dean of the Tech College of Home Economics, was chosen to head the school and the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center after the much-hailed selection of soon-to-be former Tech President Lauro Cavazos as U.S. secretary of education.

Haley officially will take the reins of the university Sept. 21. The Tech Board of Regents' selection of Haley seems to be somewhat more practically oriented than President Reagan's yet-to-be-approved appointment of Cavazos as the nation's chief educator.

While analysts and observers point to the overt political motivation behind Cavazos' selection — an Hispanic on Reagan's cabinet certainly could do little if anything to harm Republican hopes for maintaining the GOP's hold on the White House — the Tech regents' choice seems geared more toward pragmatic concerns, at least on the university level.

Other applicants for the interim presidency, an office Haley will occupy until a new Tech president is chosen sometime next summer, should not be slighted. Haley's qualifications simply matched areas the university needed in a temporary leader — fund-raising and understanding of the new administrative structure currently under implementation at Tech.

As a fund-raiser, Haley can boast of haughty recommendations from several Tech administrators, leadership of the American Home Economics Association Foundation and quite successful fund-raising efforts for the College of Home Economics during her tenure there.

She also was a member of the committee that set the parameters for administrative restructuring at Tech, so she should have a good working knowledge of how such a system will work during and after implementation.

Haley has said she plans to return to her duties in home economics when a new president is chosen. Until that time, we shall have to wait and see how all goes for the university.

On the national front, George Bush and Michael Dukakis spent the past week — as the two have spent many previous weeks — taking published and broadcast potshots at each other.

Bush indirectly accused Dukakis of being unpatriotic while touting his own desire, if he is elected, to have children across the United States recite the Pledge of Allegiance in school. Such a policy might sit well with right-wingers, but would be sure to meet with some difficulty in overcoming U.S. Supreme Court rulings which have lent a less-than-favorable air to federal requirement of oath recitation in schools.

Dukakis, meanwhile, swiftly replied that Bush was "right there" while the Reagan administration cut federal higher education and student assistance programs.

The week's political battle seemed to have become one in which each of the candidates were bent on making themselves appear to be friends of education, making their foes appear as enemies of education and avoiding outlining any clear policy statements on how the problems in education quality and funding would be addressed under either potential administration.

Only time will tell what Bush or Dukakis hold in store for the average college student.

In world affairs, Bangladesh fought as a nation to keep from drowning under what that country's information minister described as a "havoc-creating, menacing flood."

While floods are nothing new to residents of the land bordering the Bay of Bengal, the past week's flooding was acutely intense, killing a government-estimated 333 people and leaving millions of stranded people.

Although there is little the United States could do to avert the disaster in Bangladesh, the incident points to the need for a more efficient worldwide system of preventing and/or minimizing future natural disasters.

The Soviets, meanwhile, were having difficulties with their space program during the past week — a scenario with which the United States is well acquainted.

Two cosmonauts, a Soviet and the first Afghan in space, experienced technical difficulties with their Soyuz TM-5 capsule after separating from the Mir space station and briefly were trapped in orbit with limited oxygen and food supplies.

The cosmonauts returned safely to Earth.

Perhaps the incident will demonstrate to the rightly-gunshy National Aeronautics and Space Administration that quirks in space programs are not confined to the good ol' U.S. of A. The Soviets' space misfortunes may even expedite the American return to space.

If so, something good will have come from the Kremlin's embarrassment besides smugness in Washington.

Observers of the past week witnessed university-shaking beginnings, inundating anxiety and heart-stopping space flight conclusions. Such weeks, as demonstrated above, make for journalistic verbosity, don't they?

Massachusetts ties to far-left coalition mark dovish Duke

William Safire

WASHINGTON — Does it bother you when a stranger calls up to make a telephone pitch for a product, charity or political campaign?

"Telemarketing" — the computer-dialing of your telephone in a new form of junk-mail solicitation — is the name for this new invasion of privacy.

Such telephone pollution does not trouble the state of Massachusetts.

In 1985, Michael Dukakis's hand-picked chairman of the Massachusetts Community Development Finance Corp., John Marston, approved a $50,000 state loan guarantee to Share Systems Inc., of Cambridge, which Marston proudly tells me "the company was able to use to induce a local bank to give them a $125,000 line of credit."

Success followed. Dukakis can point with pride to this example of government helping entrepreneurs create jobs — especially since this new telemarketing facility (100 operators pitching telephonic targets on a good day, according to company treasurer Gerald Jeffkin) counts among its clients the Dukakis political campaign.

The use of state credit to set up a large boiler-room telephone operation, which is then hired to advance the career of the state governor, may be standard procedure in Boston politics. A request for information about fee billing and amounts raised has been submitted to the Dukakis campaign and may turn up no more than mutual backscratching.

But what could be my Pecksniffian interest in a coziness in the financing of potentially helpful businesses has led to a clear look at "the old Dukakis" in defense and foreign affairs.

Another of Share Systems' clients is the "Jobs with Peace Campaign," which describes itself as a coalition of "low-income, Third World, labor, tenants, anti-intervention, disarmament and civil rights groups," proposing in its literature "to cut military spending by 25 percent and transfer those funds into the domestic economy."

Listed on the advisory board in a 1987 fund solicitation letter is the usual anti-defense crowd: Jesse Jackson, Reps. Ron Dellums and Pat Schroeder, George McGovern, labor leader William Winpisinger and a dozen other doves. And Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Big deal, you say, a politician regularly joins committees; it doesn't necessarily mean that he supports their goals. Let's see: On April 16, 1983, in Boston's Faneuil Hall, Dukakis was the lead witness in a mock hearing launching the "Jobs with Peace Week," hailing the organization's "common-sense national alternative to the Reagan administration's excessive arms buildup" and charging that President Reagan's policies "are leading us down the road to economic ruin and wider confrontation."

On Nov. 4, 1985 — not three years ago — Dukakis was asked by Carol Doherty, co-chair of Jobs with Peace, to serve on the advisory board. As every politician knows, that meant his name could be used on the letterhead for a solicitation. (Only the most modern pols know how such a letter can be coordinated with "telemarketing.")

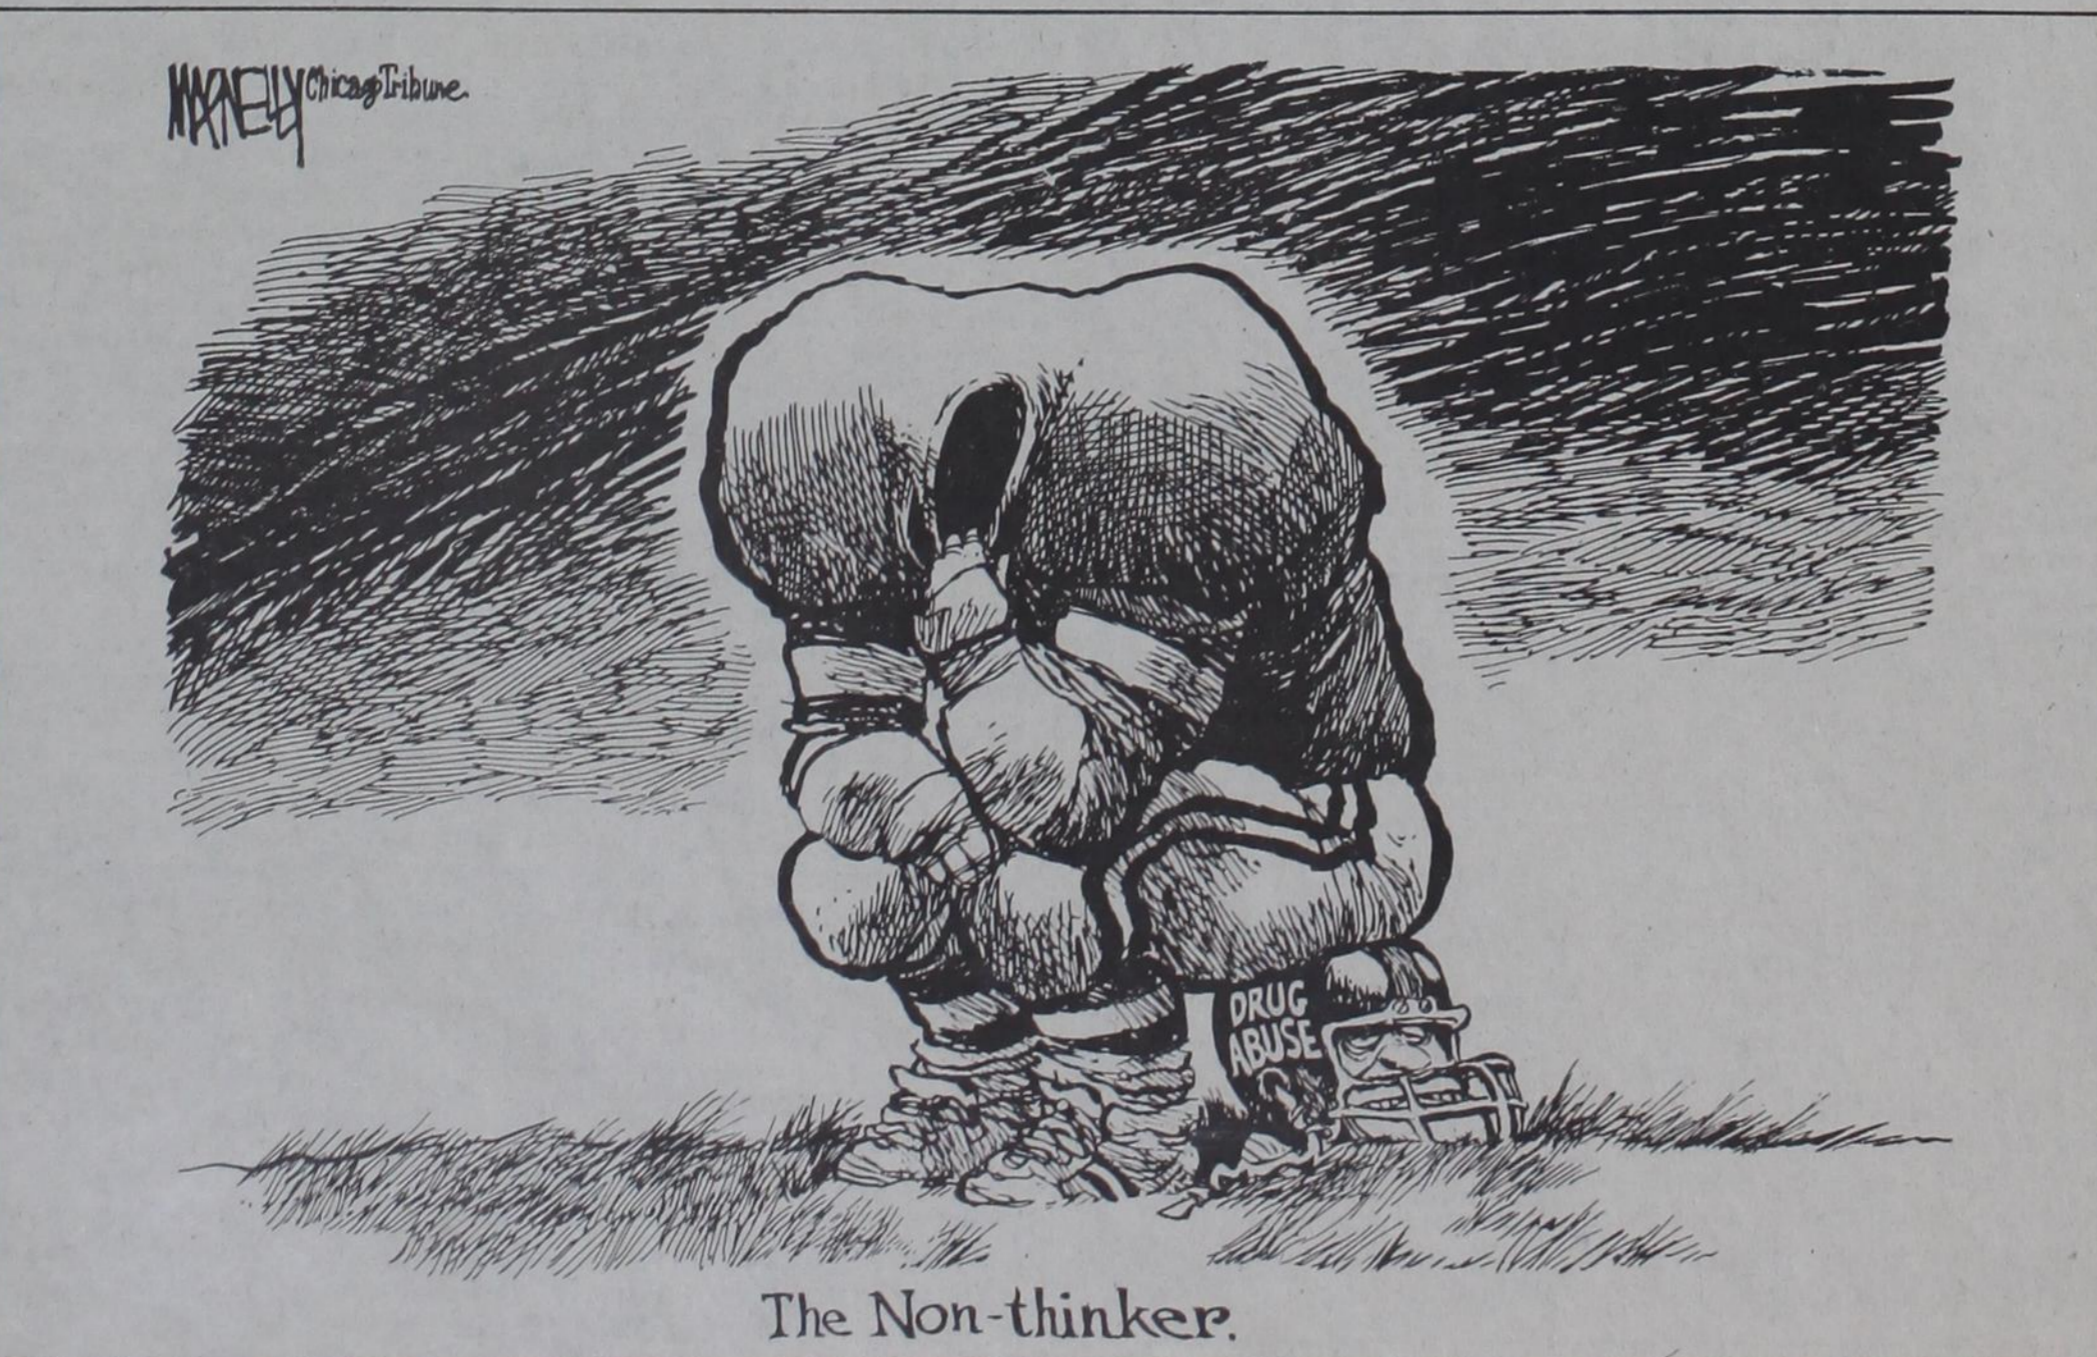

The person responsible for confirming his agreement to serve before putting the Dukakis name on the pitch letter is presently on the Island of Bali on her honeymoon — if I were her, I wouldn't return calls either.

We don't hear the New Dukakis speaking quite that way on the stump, or warning of "wider confrontation" today, especially in light of the success of Reagan policies in bringing about an arms treaty.

But Dukakis cannot cleanly disassociate himself from the dovish far left — the Jackson left — on defense and foreign policy because that is where he comes from. Those activists are his base, their far-out proposals his recent beliefs, their mindset his own. He can fudge his positions to suit prevailing polls, but he cannot honorably rip up his roots.

His far-left supporters know this moderate pose is only a sop to Cerberus, and smile at the campaign-time conversion. I think they know their fellow dove; in victory, the "old" Dukakis would reemerge, government and politically aided business would work hand in glove, and all our telephones would start ringing off the hook.

Tech professor chairs committee planning Harvard conference

By GUY LAWRENCE
The University Daily

What does Harvard University have in common with Texas Tech?

The link between the two universities is an interest in the not so well known, but influential, American philosopher Charles S. Peirce, a Texas Tech philosophy professor says.

Kenneth Ketner, a Peirce professor of philosophy and director of the Institute for Studies in Pragmatism, is chairman of the organizing committee that is planning an international congress at Harvard in September 1989.

"Peirce is regarded as one of the great, if not the greatest, American philosopher," Ketner said.

The conference, "Peirce and Contemporary Thought: The C.S. Peirce Sesquicentennial International Congress," focuses on connecting Peirce's ideas and work to contemporary thought. Twelve speakers and many papers related to Peirce's work will be presented during the conference, Ketner said.

Harvard and Tech received a $35,000 grant from the National Endowment of Humanities to organize the conference. Ketner said people from all over the world have demonstrated interest in the conference.

Peirce, the founder of a distinctly American philosophy, made advances in such fields as science, mathematics, logic, religion and metaphysics, Ketner said.

"Although Peirce is one of the most important American intellectuals, he is not widely recognized by the general public because his major works, many of which existed only in manuscript form, have not been published until very recently," Ketner said.

Peirce was born in Massachusetts in 1839, the son of a Harvard mathematics professor. Peirce graduated from Harvard in 1859 and undertook government research for the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, where he worked for 30 years. He resigned in 1891 and secluded himself on a small farm in Pennsylvania until he died of cancer in 1914, Ketner said.

Peirce, a distinguished scientist and world-class physicist, contributed to the development of modern computing with his advances in logic, Ketner said.

"Peirce had some interesting ideas and clues about how religion and science ought not be and need not be in conflict," Ketner said.

One basis of pragmatism is that one must understand the meaning of a concept to consider the consequences or the practical bearings.

Ketner said the institute, which was created in the summer of 1971, serves as a resource for students who are doing doctoral work or graduate studies with the works of Peirce.

"There may be a rising interest in philosophy on campus," Ketner said.

The center contains copies of unpublished personal manuscripts that were copied from the Houghton Library in Harvard, which preserves most known works of Peirce.

The conference will end Sept. 10, 1989, the 150th anniversary of Peirce's birth.

The next congress will attempt to bring Peirce specialists from all over the world together to share research and insights on the philosopher's life and works. Ketner said an objective of the congress is to spread Peirce's insight into contemporary research.

U.S., U.S.S.R. schedule talks on arms control for September

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union have scheduled high-level talks to survey prospects for improving superpower relations and promoting arms control measures during President Reagan's twilight months in office, sources said Thursday.

The talks will take place Sept. 22-23 in Washington between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze and will focus on arms control negotiations and the Red Army's withdrawal from Afghanistan, three U.S. officials told The Associated Press.

Negotiators in Geneva are meeting on proposals to sharply reduce long-range nuclear weapons and to limit weapons tests. They also are trying to set up East-West talks on cutbacks in conventional forces in Europe.

After their session, U.S. and Soviet experts will meet in Washington in a joint effort to slow the proliferation of ballistic missiles in the Middle East and other areas of the world.

On Afghanistan, the United States has expressed satisfaction with the pace of the withdrawal of Soviet troops but is concerned about the continuing conflict between the Afghan government and U.S.-backed rebels and its spillover in neighboring Pakistan.

Shultz and Shevardnadze last met in May in Geneva to iron out implementation of the U.S.-Soviet treaty banning intermediate-range nuclear weapons and then assisted President Reagan and General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev at the Moscow summit.

Their sessions over the years on arms control paved the way for the historic weapons-ban treaty and an overall improvement in U.S.-Soviet relations.

TTU Golden Key receives national recognition

By DAWNA COWAN

The Texas Tech chapter of the Golden Key National Honor Society won the Most Improved Chapter Award this summer at the national convention in Scottsdale, Ariz., the chapter president said.

"We weren't expecting it," said Golden Key President Cynthia Holloway. "It was really neat."

The award is given to the chapter with the most improved communication, activity and participation, said Mary Reeves, chapter adviser and assistant dean of students.

Annual balloon rally to take place this weekend

Up, up and away! The Lubbock skyline will fill with a rainbow of colors this weekend as more than 45 hot air balloons are launched in mass ascension at the fourth annual Lubbock Hot Air Balloon Rally.

Proceeds from the event, which is sponsored by the Lubbock Balloon Club, will benefit the Lubbock Ronald McDonald House.

Since opening March 10, more than 94 families of critically ill children staying in Lubbock hospitals have had a "home away from home" at the facility, which is located at Fourth Street and Indiana Avenue.

Previous rallies have raised more than $10,000 for the Ronald McDonald House.

The balloons will be launched at sunrise Saturday and Sunday, and each flight will include a Hare and Hound Balloon Race and a Water Event Balloon Race.

Admission into the lake for the rally is $1.50, and special programs will be available for $2.

Membership in the honor society is by invitation only, Reeves said.

The Tech chapter has more than 300 members. Students must be juniors or seniors with a 3.3 cumulative grade point average, she said. Part-time and full-time students from any major who are in the top 15 percent of their class are eligible for membership, Reeves said.

She said the Golden Key Honor Society is one of few groups to include part-time students.

The Tech chapter has been involved with the "Say No To Drugs" campaign, volunteer tutoring through the PASS center and the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program, Holloway said.

Home economics acting dean nominated

By AUDRA SPRAY
The University Daily

Steve Jorgensen, associate dean for research and graduate studies in the College of Home Economics, was nominated Thursday to serve as acting dean in the absence of Elizabeth Haley.

"I believe that he is a well-qualified nominee for acting dean," Haley said.

Haley, dean of the College of Home Economics, was selected at a special meeting of the Board of Regents Sept. 2 to serve as interim president of Texas Tech.

Haley's appointment is contingent upon Tech President Lauro Cavazos' confirmation as U.S. secretary of education today.

Jorgensen, who has served as an associate dean for six years, also is a professor of family studies and research methodology in the department of human development and family studies. In addition, he is editor of the Home Economics Research Journal.

Jorgensen received a doctorate in family studies from the University of Minnesota in 1976. He served as a professor of child development and family relations at the University of Arizona from 1976 to 1982.

Haley said she and Donald Haragan, vice president for academic affairs and research, reviewed a list of possible nominees and sought input from faculty members.

"The faculty indicated overwhelming support for Jorgensen," Haley said.

Haley said that after her appointment becomes official, she will recommend Jorgensen for the position of acting dean at the next regents meeting Sept. 22.

Tech Talks

Today's question:

How do you feel about the appointment by the Board of Regents of Elizabeth Haley as interim president of the university?

Reporter : Guy Lawrence

Photographer : Allen Rose

Ack Akram

It's a good idea because she's a woman and she's from home economics. It might focus attention on the home economics college rather than the business administration or (Texas Tech University) Health Sciences Center.

Rayleen Couch

I think she'll do a good job for Tech since she has done a good job for the College of Home Economics.

Larry Duenes

From what I heard, she's a pretty nice person, she knows a lot about what she's doing and she listens to the people.

Lesley Kennedy

She is qualified since she has done a lot for the College of Home Economics. The college is ranked third in the country.

Laura Staffa

This will help give a better name for the College of Home Economics. I think she'll do a good job.

New scoreboard to light up coliseum

By GABRIELLA MINOTTI
The University Daily

The Lubbock City Council passed a proposal Thursday to purchase a four-color scoreboard and two auxiliary scoreboards for Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

The main scoreboard will include computer animation, text messages, four-color graphics and a section for player statistics. The two auxiliary scoreboards will be posted at each end of the coliseum, with shot clocks posted on the basketball backboards.

Estimated cost for the scoreboards is between $400,000 and $425,000, said Gene Elsberry, vice president of The Winning Edge Inc., a scoreboard brokerage firm.

According to a statement made by Elsberry three weeks ago, the new scoreboard will be made by Fairplay Scoreboards. Selected firms contracted to advertise on the four-sided board for the next 10 years will finance the purchase, he said.

Discussion to buy new scoreboards was originated when a letter of intent was submitted by Civic Lubbock Inc. proposing the purchase in late August.

The process of financing the scoreboard will be handled by The Winning Edge Inc. The firm generally contacts two to four advertisers who finance a scoreboard and receive advertising on the scoreboards in return, Elsberry said.

Texan's torpedoes star in Tucker film

By The Associated Press

PORT LAVACA — In a cluttered Quonset garage outside this Gulf Coast town is a dull maroon car lying in pieces, waiting to be reassembled into what may be this year's most important car. But Curtis Foester is no hurry; cars are no fun if you hurry with them, no matter how much they're worth.

Foester will restore his prize — the last Tucker ever built, and one featured prominently in the big-budget film, "Tucker: The Man and His Dream," when he gets around to it.

And truth never should be confused with fiction. The film about Preston Tucker, a legitimate, tragic automotive visionary if there ever was one, is interesting, at times even exciting.

Tucker, played by Jeff Bridges in the film, was a brash, feverish young entrepreneur who, 40 years ago, dared to challenge the "Big Three" — General Motors, Chrysler and Ford.

Foester, a fifth-generation resident of the Port Lavaca area, owns two Tuckers.

Foester was a teen-ager in 1947, when he traveled with his father to Houston to see the Tucker display. "Tomorrow's Car Today," the ad campaign said, and it was true.

Years passed. Eventually, in 1969, Foester figured it was time to find a Tucker.

Foester ended up buying Tucker No. 5.

A few years ago, Foester bought another, even more historic Torpedo: No. 50, the last Tucker built. It is undergoing a painfully slow restoration in the garage on Foester's ranch.

Tucker to be inducted in 'Walk of Fame'

By GABRIELLA MINOTTI
The University Daily

The second annual Lubbock Music Festival brings recording artist Tanya Tucker to the city of Lubbock, where she will be honored today as the 1988 inductee into the West Texas Walk of Fame.

The Walk of Fame, surrounding a statue of Buddy Holly, is located west of Lubbock Memorial Civic Center at Sixth Street and Avenue Q. The induction ceremony is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. at the statue.

The memorial, which honors West Texans who have gone on to fame, was dedicated in 1980 by the city. Holly was the first inductee.

Holly's plaque reads, "Buddy Holly contributed to the music heritage of not only West Texas, but the entire world. As a musician and composer it is significant that the first plaque on the 'Walk of Fame' bear his name."

The Buddy Holly Foundation began the tradition of honoring celebrities from the West Texas area and was responsible for erecting the statue that stands within the Walk of Fame, said Vicki Key, deputy director of civic center services.

In 1983, the Jubilee Committee, which handled the induction process and was organized to celebrate Lubbock's 75th anniversary, asked Civic Lubbock Inc. to take over the activities of inducting celebrities. "Civic Lubbock was pleased to assume the responsibility of who would be inducted into the West Texas Walk of Fame," Key said.

The honor of being inducted is not restricted solely to singers; any entertainer with West Texas roots is eligible. The entertainers who are chosen for induction must have lived within a 150- to 200-mile radius of the greater Lubbock area, however, and must have wide recognition as an entertainer, she said. The entertainer also is required to be present at the ceremony unless the chosen celebrity is deceased.

"We do not necessarily have to induct someone every year," Key said.

Last year Civic Lubbock Inc. chose music artist Don Williams to be the 1987 inductee into the Walk of Fame, but he could not be present due to an illness. As a result, there was no inductee for 1987.

Previous inductees include Waylon Jennings, Mac Davis, the Crickets, Sonny Curtis, Jimmy Dean, G.W. Bailey and Barry Corbin.

Key said she is excited about the event and expects a large crowd from Lubbock and the surrounding area. Tucker, a native of Seminole, is expected to draw many fans from her hometown.

Tucker also will perform a concert 8 p.m. today in the civic center exhibition hall. She will perform songs from her most recent album and single, titled "Strong Enough to Bend." Dallas-based Canyon will warm the stage for Tucker. Tickets are priced at $12 for the concert. The induction ceremony is open to all.

City can't remember unforgettable Texan

have influenced the music of the Beatles.

Mac Davis, another Lubbock son, is virtually forgotten now. No one seems to care that he's made a name for himself both as a singer/songwriter and actor.

Well, no wonder Lubbock was sad, all the talent was leaving town.

But Lubbock did have a chance for some happiness. The city erected a "Walk of Fame" to honor those boys and others.

And Lubbock has another chance that they don't even know about. The Maines Brothers, Joe Ely, the Nelsons and numerous other garage bands come from the area, keeping the city full of music.

For Lubbock to have true happiness, the potential "Buddy Holly and the Crickets" bands that have agreed to tough it out in an entertainment wasteland need to be recognized, the clubs they play in need support from the city and the citizens themselves need to remember the gifted people of the past and thank the bands and entertainers of the future.

Memphis has Elvis and has made him into a god of sorts. Lubbock has Buddy and has made him into a faded memory.

Lubbock shouldn't be remembered only for the vision of the Virgin Mary in the clouds, but also for the music and the legacy of the "unforgettable Texan."

Once there was a little city way out past the hustle 'n' bustle of Dallas called Lubbock. Lubbock was not a happy place. Why, you ask? Because Lubbock was looked upon as a town that had no pride.

No pride? "Why, that's silly," the townspeople cried. "We are a city that's got..." But they couldn't think of a single thing to be proud of.

"Ha!" laughed the city slickers. "All you've got is a college that wins a few games, a university president that's gone to Washington (for awhile), cows and a few slightly entertaining night spots."

Little did the city slickers know that Lubbock was just a hot bed seething with talent and entertainment. The problem was that Lubbock was just too forgetful to let anyone know what it had.

The city kept its talent under wraps (a severe case of terminal amnesia) and didn't even acknowledge that Buddy Holly and the Crickets were just hometown boys who happened to

Texas Tech sports fans may have noticed a number of banners hanging in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum during Red Raider basketball games proudly displaying the conference champion teams of the past.

A closer look reveals that not all of those banners mention the Southwest Conference. There are a few dating back to the 1930s that tell you Tech was the proud owner of the Border Conference title.

So what happened to the Border Conference?

A very brief check of the old days will only tell you it disbanded. But dusting off the history books may be in order, because two of the league's powerhouses will revisit each other Saturday when the Tech football team meets the University of Arizona Wildcats at 8:30 p.m. CDT in Tucson's Arizona Stadium.

The series between the two former rivals began in 1932 and is in its 31st game. The Raiders owned the 'Cats over the years, posting a 25-3-2 record.

Arizona, which now is in the Pacific-10 Conference, comes into its first home game after edging Oregon State, 24-13, in the league opener for both squads Saturday. Tech is 0-1.

The Beavers, trailing 17-13, nearly pulled the upset until a fourth-and-one situation at midfield failed halfway through the fourth quarter. The Wildcats scored their last touchdown from there.

The Tech defense enters the contest with one advantage: experience — experience not in the number of years each player has played, but in the number of times they have seen Arizona's offense.

Second-year Wildcats coach Dick Tomey, who posted a 4-4-3 record in 1987, fashions a mixture of the wishbone and run-and-shoot formations offensively, much like Tech's previous opponent — North Texas. However, the Raiders were unable to stop UNT in the second half as they watched the Mean Green erase a 21-3 deficit to win the game 29-24.

"We didn't exactly shut those offenses down," Tech coach Spike Dykes said.

Raider linebacker James Mosley expressed concern about the Cactus Cats' offense after the loss to UNT.

"I'm not putting North Texas down or anything, but Arizona runs a run-and-shoot with more powerful people — bigger, stronger. Especially on their home turf," Mosley said.

Arizona's turf could give the Wildcats the typical "homefield advantage." Not only will they play in front of 55,000 'Cats fans for the first time this year, but they'll host the Raiders on natural grass.

All eight SWC teams play on artificial turf, and the Raiders have lost their last six games on grass since a 1979 14-14 tie with Arizona in the teams' last meeting.

Former SMU quarterback Bobby Watters will direct the Cats' attack after coming off the bench in the Oregon State contest. Watters completed four of seven passes for 39 yards and rushed for one TD, while former-starter, now-backup Ronald Veal threw for 28 yards on two completions in seven attempts. Veal also ran for a score.

With only 14 passing attempts in 46 plays against the Beavers, the wishbone took precedence over the run-and-shoot. Halfback Art Greathouse ran for one score, and fullback Alonzo Washington carried 12 times for 70 yards.

Wide receiver Derek Hill, who caught 45 passes for 798 yards in 1987, is Watters' primary target. Guard John Brandom anchors the offensive line.

Strong safety James DeBow has been listed on most preseason All-Pac-10 teams. At 5-9, 192 pounds, the senior DeBow can almost look Tech receivers Eddy Anderson, Tyrone Thurman and Wayne Walker in the eyes.

The Texas Tech volleyball team takes a 4-4 record to California today at the Cal State-Long Beach Tournament in Long Beach, Calif.

The Red Raiders will face the University of Wisconsin, the University of Southern California, the University of Montana and host school Cal State-Long Beach. The four teams posted a composite record of 87-46. USC, with a 2-1 record so far this year, is ranked 11th in the College Volleyball Coaches Association Tachikara Top 20 Poll this week.

Tech will open at 4 p.m. today with Wisconsin and will play USC at 10 p.m. today. On Saturday, the Raiders will wind up the tournament by playing Montana at 4 p.m. and Cal State-Long Beach at 10 p.m.

Freshman outside hitter Gracie Santana said the team is physically prepared, but she emphasized that the team needs to play more as a single unit.

Tech coach Donna Martin said she was pleased with last week's offensive play in the University of Utah Tournament but hopes the defense will continue to improve. Leading hitters in the tournament were middle blocker Lisa Clark with 80 kills and Santana with 79.

Tech golf team to start season

The Texas Tech women's golf team opens the season today at the New Mexico State University Roadrunner Invitational in Las Cruces, N.M.

Te-off is scheduled for 9 a.m. today for the two-day, 54-hole tournament. Tech finished 16th of 18 teams in last year's tourney. The Red Raider lineup includes junior Amy McDougall and sophomores Michelle Hapack, Laura Kleinmann, Leslie Light and Neisy Rodriguez.

Kleinmann is Tech's top returnee after placing 19th overall at the 1987 SWC championships. Each golfer returns from last year's squad, with Hapack and Light having seen limited action.

Arkansas' airborne offense passes test of Little Rock Hog-callers

Curtis Matthews
Sports Writer

Arkansas pummeled Pacific 63-14 Saturday. That's a fact, but ...

• Was that really Arkansas quarterback Quinn Grovey dropping back to fire an incomplete pass on the Hogs' first play of the game?

• Did the Hogs really roll up 263 yards passing or did someone accidentally add a third digit to their stats?

The answer to the inquiries above is a resounding "Yes," no matter how hard they might be to believe.

Granted, the War Pigs will remain a predominately ground-Hogging team this year, but Arkansas coach Ken Hatfield finally has added a few changes to his flexbone offense in order to add a few more passing plays per game.

Though Hatfield's version of increased passing plays probably won't be as many as Hog fans would like, it is a step in the right direction.

After all, the 1987 (Ground) Hogs finished last in the Southwest Conference in passing with only 78 yards a game — the only team under 100 per contest. Arkansas quarterbacks combined to throw only 10 passes a game.

On Saturday, three Hog quarterbacks joined to complete 14 of 22 passes. Grovey, the starter, threw for a touchdown strike. Playing in 11 games in '87, Grovey threw for only two touchdowns.

Four games into last season, Arkansas had gained only 250 yards passing. Against Tulsa, the second game of the season, Grovey was the only quarterback to attempt a pass, connecting on two of four endeavors for a whopping 34 yards.

Hatfield's Hogs always have been tough on defense. Arkansas defenders have led the conference in scoring average in all four seasons he has been in Fayetteville.

While his teams never have led the SWC in scoring, they always were near the top. Last season, despite rushing for almost 3,200 yards (No. 2 in the SWC), Arkansas tumbled down the offensive scoring charts.

Only Baylor (19.0) managed to score less than the Hogs (19.1) in conference games.

The increase in passing is expected to bolster the Hogs' scoring output and keep opposing linebackers from congregating at the line of scrimmage.

While Grovey & Co. primarily will throw from either the flexbone's one or two wingback formations, the Hogs have added a few dropback plays.

Although Grovey's season-opening pass fell incomplete, it was met with one thing: applause from the Little Rock crowd.

Baylor freshman kicker Jeff Ireland became the second freshman in SWC history to kick four field goals in one game. Playing in his first collegiate game, Ireland connected from 41, 37, 29 and 32 yards.

TCU's Scott Ankrom will spend about as much time changing pads this year as playing in games.

Several seasons ago, the senior had been the Frogs highly touted quarterback. After playing in only three games over the past two seasons, Ankrom has lost the starting quarterback role to David Rascoe.

This season, Ankrom's position is labeled as Quarterback-Swing Man. He is listed as second-string quarterback, fourth-string left halfback and third-string flanker. Ankrom will also return kickoffs. He has been fitted with three sets of shoulder pads and could have to rotate between two of those sets in each game.

Looking back a bit... In 1933, Tech held Arizona to minus 45 yards rushing en route to a 7-0 victory.

The third one proved to be a charm for Texas A&M Saturday — sort of.

Junior quarterback Chris Osgood came off the bench in the third quarter against Louisiana State and completed eight of 15 passes for 110 yards. He also rushed for 18 yards on six carries.

Though the Aggies still couldn't score with Osgood in the game, he proved to be more effective than starter Bucky Richardson and backup Lance Pavlas.

Pavlas had a more productive game than Richardson, completing four of seven for 28 yards and two interceptions.

Metcalf misses BYU's bashing of UT

By The Associated Press

PROVO, Utah — Sean Covey passed for 323 yards and two touchdowns as Brigham Young ran away from No. 19 Texas 47-6 Thursday night, handing the Longhorns their third straight season-opening loss.

Texas, playing without tailback Eric Metcalf, who sat out a one-game suspension mandated by the NCAA, was held to just two field goals.

Texas ran five plays inside the BYU 10-yard line late in the third quarter when the Longhorns trailed 20-6. But the ball went over to BYU after Scott Peterson knocked down a fourth-down pass in the end zone.

BYU, which lost to Wyoming 24-14 last week, got scoring passes of 80 and 52 yards from Covey.

The Cougars also got a 70-yard interception return for a touchdown by Rodney Rice in the third quarter, a 20-yard scoring run by Fred Whittingham, a 20-yard scoring pass from backup quarterback Ty Detmer, a 17-yard scoring run by Eric Mortensen in the fourth quarter and field goals of 31 and 51 yards by Earl Kauffman.

Covey, a junior, gave the Cougars a 7-0 lead on their first snap from scrimmage when he found freshman wide receiver Bryce Doman all alone at midfield. From there, Doman scampered unscathed into the end zone to cap the Cougars' 11-second possession.

Covey also connected with Chuck Cutler on a 52-yard scoring pass in the second quarter.

TCU, Owls face rough openers

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — Here is a look at this weekend's games involving Southwest Conference football teams:

BAYLOR (1-0) at KANSAS (0-0)
Noon, Raycom-TV

Baylor won its fourth straight season opener with a 27-3 verdict over Nevada-Las Vegas in Waco last week and is making the first of two straight trips to Big Eight sites. Coach Grant Teaff's squad can help the SWC even its 1988 series results with Big Eight foes after Nebraska edged Texas A M, 23-14, in the Kickoff Classic when the two conferences first met this year. Baylor is 0-1 in previous meetings with KU. Kansas is 13-24 against SWC opponents. Baylor's Teaff is 139-127-7 overall and 97-81-5 at BU. He's moving closer to becoming Baylor's first coach ever with 100 grid wins at the university. Baylor relies on the passing of QB Brad Goebel with 2,288 aerial yards in 12 career games. The Bears' defense held UNLV to a school-record two first downs last week.

TCU (0-0) at GEORGIA (1-0), Noon
No one can accuse the Horned Frogs of playing less-than-challenging season openers: last year it was at Boston College, and this season TCU has to tangle with traditional powerhouse Georgia on the road. TCU risks an all-time mark of 55-30-6 in previous opening games. UG leads the series 2-0. Georgia won a 1980 battle, 34-3. Georgia 10-11-1 in previous engagements with nine SWC football teams. TCU's Jim Wacker is 20-34-2 at TCU. The Frogs sport the SWC's most senior-dominated team with 31 players completing their eligibility in 1988. Georgia has the early SEC lead at 1-0 after downing Tennessee 28-17 in Athens.

TULSA (1-0) at ARKANSAS (1-0), 2 p.m.

In one of the Southwest area's oldest rivalries the Golden Hurricane and Razorbacks meet for the 65th time. UA leads the series 47-13-4, and it marks the 142nd time that Tulsa has faced an SWC team. Tulsa is 13-14 in a 27-game series with the Houston Cougars. Arkansas overcame the aerial fireworks of Tulsa QB Todd Rubley to take a 30-15 triumph in Fayetteville last year. The series has been continuous since 1957, and the last 31 games have been played either in Fayetteville or Little Rock. The balanced Razorbacks hope to derive offensive power from the passing of soph QB Quinn Grovey (9-of-14 for 174 yards in last week's 63-14 win over Pacific).

INDIANA (0-0) at RICE (0-0), 6 p.m.

Rice begins its 77th football season with a sound situation at quarterback where sophomore Donald Hollas is expected to start. 1985-87 alternating starting QB Quantis Roper, bothered last season and during the pre-1988 rigors with a shoulder injury, may see action at both RB and WR to showcase the Owls' improved speed at almost all positions this fall. Indiana, which finished 8-4 with a berth opposite Tennessee in the 1987 Peach Bowl, seeks to have a repeat performance of last year's 35-13 win over the Owls in Bloomington, Ind.

HOUSTON (0-0) at LOUISIANA TECH (0-1), 7 p.m.

The Cougars begin their second season under head coach Jack Pardee against the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs. Houston stands 21-19-2 in season openers and is meeting Tech for the second time in football history. UH downed the Bulldogs 40-33 in 1948, the Cougars' third season of intercollegiate football.
