Cavazos sworn in as education chief

Tech leader first Hispanic in cabinet

By GARY HARPER
The University Daily

Former Texas Tech President Lauro Cavazos was sworn in Tuesday as the new U.S. secretary of education.

The Senate unanimously agreed to confirm Cavazos after several senators praised him for his experience and leadership in the field of education.

"Dr. Cavazos knows a great deal about America's education. He's an inspiration to America," said Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass. "He'll be an outstanding secretary of education, and I look forward to working with him."

Senators confirmed Cavazos about 10 a.m. CDT Tuesday with a 94-0 vote.

Sen. Orin Hatch, R-Utah, praised the new secretary of education for past accomplishments and said he had confidence that Cavazos would fulfill the position. Cavazos, he said, is living proof of the American dream.

Hatch commended Cavazos for ensuring the availability of educational opportunities to all Americans, particularly those most in need of extra assistance. The federal government can give to special groups and individuals who otherwise would not have the opportunity, he said.

"I'm proud to support this nomination, and I urge my colleagues to do so as well — to confirm Dr. Lauro Cavazos as secretary of education immediately," Hatch said.

Cavazos, 61, was present at the Senate hearing along with his wife Peggy and his 10 children.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-College Station, urged other senators to confirm Cavazos because of the Tech president's experience in education.

"This is a time of great pride. It proves that the American system is alive and well," Gramm said. "He's committed to quality education. I believe Lauro Cavazos should be approved by a unanimous vote of the Senate."

Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vermont, also praised Cavazos' nomination as head of the Department of Education, adding that Cavazos is a role model to American Hispanics.

"Dr. Cavazos is uniquely qualified to assume this position. The Hispanic community has taken particular pride in his achievements and his nomination by President Reagan," Stafford said. "I'm pleased to have this opportunity to join my colleagues in the Senate and the Cavazos family members who are here today to offer my congratulations and support."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kansas, said he strongly supports the nomination of Cavazos.

Cavazos was sworn in by Vice President George Bush Tuesday afternoon in the East Room of the White House.

Cavazos took the oath as his wife held the family Bible and his children stood nearby.

52-week tail

The deadline for enrolling in the student insurance plan is next week. The plan provides $15,000 in maximum benefits for illnesses or accidents. The plan covers 52 weeks of expenses which may be incurred because of medical treatment.

Mike Higgins, a local agent, said students are insured year-round by the plan and that payments can be made in two installments.

Students who are enrolled for six or more credit hours are eligible for coverage under the plan.

Call to life

"Peepshow," the new album by Siouxsie Sioux, brings back the group's vocals, drums, percussion and harmonica, bass, cello, keyboards and accordion talent.

Chuk Gill, University Daily librarian, says the album starts off with the frantic and energetic "Peek-a-Boo." He says the song is a dance track that will make it hard for anyone to keep still.

Gill also says he believes lead singer Siouxsie is one of the top three female singers of all time.

Crowd trouble

Current troubles in attracting large crowds for Texas Tech home football games are not due to lack of student spectators, said T. Jones, Tech athletic director.

While Jones called for more support from all of West Texas, he said Tuesday he was pleased with the student faction.

Professor, student survey hurricane-damaged areas

By MICHELLE STRICKER
The University Daily

In the wake of Hurricane Gilbert, many coastal residents fled their homes, but a Tech professor and student did exactly the opposite.

H. Scott Norville, an associate civil engineering professor, and Paul Bove, a senior civil engineering student, traveled Thursday to San Antonio, where they hoped to collect data on structural damage caused by the hurricane.

Although early reports had estimated Gilbert would touch down somewhere near Brownsville, the tropical storm hit the Mexican coast about 180 miles south of Brownsville.

When the pair reached San Antonio, Norville said, they obtained a current report on the status of Gilbert from the Tech civil engineering department, rented a car and drove to Brownsville.

"When we got to Brownsville, the winds were 30 to 40 miles per hour," Norville said. "We just decided to familiarize ourselves with the area since it was dark, and by midnight it had started raining."

On Friday, Norville and Bove drove to Port Isabel. Police were blocking many roads, Norville said, and they were refused access to the high wind areas where they hoped to conduct key studies.

"From there, we headed back to Brownsville, and around 4 p.m. we heard that it had hit about 180 miles south," Norville said.

Norville said a tornado was reported in the Brownsville area Friday, but he and Bove did not arrive at the scene in time to see any activity. They were able to collect data on broken glass from an apartment building near the reported sighting. A convenience store canopy also had been detached by the winds.

Winds increased Friday night, Norville said, but darkness hampered any possibilities of taking photographs.

Norville and Bove traveled to South Padre Island and Corpus Christi on Saturday to survey damage.

"From a professional standpoint, I wish we could have had the opportunity to collect more data."

Lack of scholarships obstructs minority recruitment

By DAWNA COWAN
The University Daily

Minority recruitment at Texas Tech is not lacking, said Keith Whitfield, assistant director of new student relations and coordinator of minority recruitment.

Whitfield said it is incorrect for anyone to say that minority recruitment is lacking. He said, however, that minority scholarships are lacking.

Whitfield defined recruitment as going out and encouraging students to come to Tech. Part of the effort is providing scholarships.

The problem, he said, is that Tech does not have much money to fund scholarships.

In the 1986-87 academic school year, Texas A&M had $2.25 million designated for minority scholarships, and the University of Texas at Austin had $4 million. Tech had $28,000 for minority scholarships.

Yet, Whitfield said, Tech's percentage of black and Hispanic student enrollment is not much different from the percentages at those schools.

Whitfield said Hispanic and black enrollment totaled 8.6 percent of the Tech student population for the 1987-88 academic year.

Texas A&M also had an 8.6 percent minority enrollment last year, and UT had 12.8 percent. Whitfield said Tech is competitive when recruiting minorities compared to other schools.

"We're six times as efficient with the money we have," he said.

Tech now has $53,000 for minority scholarships because of the establishment of the Texas Tech Excellence scholarships, said Marlene Hernandez, associate director of new student relations.

Last April the Office of New Student Relations awarded 25 Texas Tech Excellence scholarships to minority students from Lubbock high schools, she said.

The money for the Texas Tech Excellence scholarships is earmarked for minority students, Hernandez said, and is housed in the general university fund.

"The money was given specifically for minority scholarships."

Hernandez said 25 more Texas Tech Excellence scholarships will be given this spring. She said the 25 scholarships, which provide full tuition and fees for four years, will be given during the next four years so that Tech will have 100 minority students on

Flight attendant testifies U.S. sailor endured savage beatings

By The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, West Germany — A U.S. Navy diver "never made a sound" as he bravely endured savage beatings by the hijackers of a TWA jetliner, flight attendant Uli Derickson testified Tuesday.

Derickson said Mohammed Ali Hamadi, on trial for air piracy and the murder of Navy diver Robert Stethem, also threatened to blow up the airplane.

The German-born woman, now a naturalized U.S. citizen and the subject of a U.S. television movie earlier this year, said Hamadi held a gun to her head shortly after the Athens to Rome flight took off on June 14, 1985.

But in the most emotional testimony of the trial, the 44-year-old Derickson described the suffering endured by Stethem.

The hijackers "took him up to the cockpit and started to brutally beat him. They beat on him as long as he stood," Derickson told the court.

"When Mr. Stethem collapsed, one of the hijackers took the armrest of a seat — it still had the screws sticking out of it — and beat on him," she said in German. Derickson said that after the beating Hamadi turned to her and said: "Look at him now, he thinks he's so strong."

Fighting back sobs, Derickson said: "Mr. Stethem was a very courageous man. He never made a sound."

Derickson, who is credited with shielding passengers whose names sounded Jewish by hiding their passports, also said Hamadi asked her to translate while the hijackers questioned Stethem.

"Mr. Stethem was taken to the last row of first class. He was asked where he was from and what he did. He said he was a Navy diver. I tried to translate the word Navy for Hamadi," Derickson said.

She said Hamadi was confused because the German word for navy is "marine." Other witnesses have testified the hijackers shouted "marine," as they beat Stethem. "I tried to convince him that Stethem was not a U.S. Marine, that his job was underwater welding," she said.

Hamadi, a Lebanese Shiite Moslem who lived in West Germany from 1982 to 1984, speaks German but very little English.

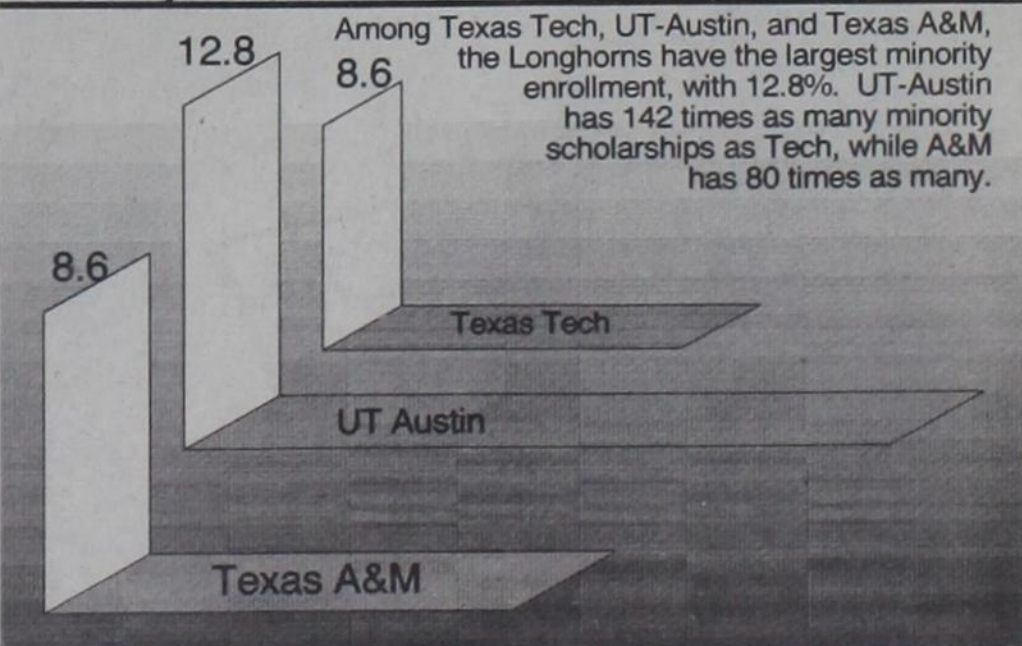

Derickson told the court that shortly after Stethem was slain at Beirut airport, Hamadi had a pistol in his hand and began beating another U.S. Navy diver, Clinton Suggs.

"I pushed Suggs down between the seats in first class and told him to stay there. Then I told the hijackers to stop — they had done enough," she said.

Derickson also recalled the harrowing moments just after the airliner was seized after takeoff from Athens airport.

She said the hijackers threatened to blow up the airplane if they were not allowed into the cockpit.

Minority Enrollment

Mark Harrier/The University Daily

students has not reached acceptable levels.

"We never want to become satisfied," she said. "We're going to keep doing what we're doing, because we've found what we're doing works."

Hernandez said recruiters give personal attention and show students that people at Tech care about them.

In addition to showing concern for students, Whitfield said, recruiters simply represent Tech and its excellent programs.

"We let them know we have the best and we want them to come here," Hernandez said.

The Office of New Student Relations works with all minorities, but Hernandez said the office concentrates heavily on Hispanic and black students in Texas.

The office focuses on recruiting academically superior students, junior college transfers and minority recruits.

Techsans' political voice to carry clout if expressed in vote

Nov. 8 will be recorded in the history books as the most important day of 1988. But only about half the American population that is registered to vote will be part of that history — part of what will shape their future.

Nov. 8 is election day. It isn't just any election day, but an election day that brings an end to an era. For eight years, Ronald Reagan has guided the United States and brought about many changes — some good, some bad — that have affected many aspects of American life. Now it is time to say goodbye.

And it is time to say hello to a new man, a new leader and a new aspect of American life. Every American citizen 18 years and older has the opportunity — the right — to select this one person who could drastically change his or her way of life. But the sad truth is that about 47 percent of eligible voters are the only ones who exercise that right.

Something that America's forefathers fought so hard for is being taken advantage of and taken for granted by their ancestors. Many Americans lost their lives and many others in a number of struggling nations are losing their lives for the right to cast the ballot.

Excuses that neither of the presidential candidates are worthy of a vote or that it takes too much time to vote are cop-outs. Perhaps Michael Dukakis and George Bush are not worthy of votes, but the democratic system has produced these two men, and one of them — like it or not — is going to be the next president of the United States.

As well as the presidential election, many cities and states will use the Nov. 8 event to conduct local and state elections. Many Texas Tech students who are registered or eligible to vote do not vote in Lubbock.

Students live four or more years in Lubbock County. It is obvious that the people who win this year's election will affect Tech students in the years to come.

Important positions such as state senator, state representative and U.S. representative will be decided in the upcoming general election. The people who win those offices represent not only Lubbock but Tech.

Students pay a large amount of money to obtain a higher education, so it is only logical that students would want to vote for the candidate who will best represent Tech in Austin and in Washington.

These political figures directly relate to Tech and affect every person in the Tech community.

The University Daily strongly urges every Tech student who has not yet registered to vote to do so in Lubbock County and exercise his or her right.

If a student is registered to vote in another county, then he or she needs to contact the county clerk in the county of permanent residence and vote absentee.

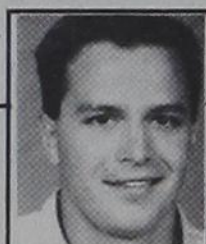

There are only a few days left to register to be eligible to vote in the Nov. 8 general election. So take advantage of the democratic system; register to vote and then do it.

Parking rules perplex students

Channels needed for solution

Tim Weinheimer
On The Scene
Writer

We all have experienced the procedures concerning the Office of Traffic and Parking at one time or another.

Letter after letter have made their way to The University Daily's Viewpoint page complaining of lines, costs, ticketing and just simple organizational (what organization?) problems.

Of course, now that we have progressed well into the semester, such issues have been placed on the back burner and most of the lines have disappeared.

This issue does not need to be shoved aside.

Communication lines between students and the traffic and parking office as well as the Texas Tech Department of Police Services should not and do not have to entail such a bitter and hard-fought relationship.

Just what are standard procedures? Do they feature long lines and towing cars parked in 30-minute parking?

Of course, the Traffic and Parking Handbook puts it in black and white for students, but — you know — there sometimes are exceptions. Students aren't perfect.

Out of several dilemmas, I would like to bring to attention the major problem concerning commuters who park in residence hall parking by somehow having an official blue dorm parking permit on their vehicles.

So, you say, how can this be if they do not live in the residence hall?

It's easy. Traffic and parking does not run a check on addresses from the spring semester to the fall semester — especially regarding who has moved off campus — so those who moved off campus during the interim just go to T/P and pick up their $35 pre-paid residence hall parking permit from the spring.

Now isn't that handy.

As a result, T/P claims they've run out of permits, leaving actual on-campus residents' cars parked in the distances of the commuter lots.

Some people also might consider having their carless friend who lives in a residence hall let you park in their dorm parking space through a simple vehicle registration process accomplished in the traffic and parking office — once again leaving room- and board-paying students short on parking slots accessible to their particular residence halls.

Will students living in residence halls continue to be towed just because some commuter has the permit they actually should have, because their car won't start, or any number of otherwise unpreventable incidents?

This will prove to be another long year of complaints and expensive tickets for everyone (especially students) if communication channels aren't opened and cleared up between students, Tech police and the Office of Traffic and Parking.

Many Americans show gross negligence in failing to cast ballots

Patricia Reyes
Copy Editor

An old friend once told me that Americans have the fault of being preoccupied with themselves and their immediate surroundings. I jumped to our defense, saying that the United States would not have achieved its current status if all Americans were guilty of this accusation.

However, a closer look at several current issues have made me come to the conclusion that many — though not all — Americans are guilty of plain and simple negligence!

One of the most obvious examples of this negligence is the fact that only a small percentage of American citizens register to vote and even a smaller percentage actually take the time to go out and vote.

I'll confess that when I turned 18, I did not rush out to my local voter registrar's office and register to vote. Nevertheless, two years later and a great deal wiser, I can assure you I will exercise the privilege.

There are a number of excuses for failing to vote; I've heard quite a few and even used one or two of them myself. They range from "I don't have the time" to "one vote isn't going to make a difference" to, and this one's my favorite, "No, I don't do that (vote), that's not for me."

Well if it's not for you — U.S. citizen — then who is it for? It may surprise some, but I've heard this last excuse quite often. I've heard it expressed in many different forms by many different people.

A low-income, government-dependent head of a family once expressed it by arguing that he and his family were not being properly "taken care of" by the U.S. government; yet he never bothered to vote.

A busy career woman once expressed it by saying she was "too busy to even think about the elections."

And last but not least, a college student once expressed it by saying, "Hey, I'm so caught up in school, I don't even know who's running."

Well, folks, this is obvious negligence!

The world doesn't end with the family and work units. As human beings and as U.S. citizens, we all have responsibilities which go beyond those that affect our immediate home, work and school life — responsibilities that cannot be ignored.

The other day, I was involved in a routine discussion. There was a minor problem that needed to be addressed. Someone used the phrase "in the ideal situation" and followed it by an explanation of how things would work smoothly if everyone did exactly what they were supposed to and in the manner that it should be done.

I thought it was absolutely absurd that this was offered as a response to the dilemma of how to solve the problem.

Idealistically, there would be no famine or crime in the world. Idealistically, individuals would take action when they see a crime being committed instead of simply being sympathetic, walking away and later feeling guilty. Idealistically, everyone in the United States would exercise their right to vote.

Student insurance offers health coverage

Medical plan grants year-round benefits

By GUY LAWRENCE
The University Daily

The deadline for enrolling in the student insurance plan provided by the Student Association is next week, said a local agent who administers the plan.

Mike Higgins, who has worked as an insurance agent for 16 years, said Sept. 29 will be the last day to sign up for the plan.

Students enrolled for six or more credit hours are eligible for coverage under the student plan.

Coverage provides $15,000 in maximum benefits for each illness or accident. The plan also covers 52 weeks of expenses that may be incurred because of medical treatment.

He said students are insured year-round, including time spent in foreign countries while students pursue academic credits.

The plan offers maternity coverage for students who are covered by the insurance. There also is maternity coverage for spouses under other options, he said.

The plan offers a "52-week tail" on the coverage, he said. The coverage extends for 52 weeks after an injury or sickness even after the policy has expired.

Hospital stays cost up to $225 per day and may cost up to $2,000 in expenses if X-rays, laboratory tests, anesthesia medicines and other medical services are needed. Those services are covered in the plan, Higgins said.

Payments for the insurance plan can be made in installments; the second payment can be made in January, he said.

Higgins said three or four different companies have backed the insurance plan.

"This is the first time we had such an A-plus company back up the plan," Higgins said. "There should be no problems with the company or any danger of bankruptcy."

Higgins said most claims are routine. The plan covers athletic injuries inflicted during intramural sports, but the insurance plan does not cover intercollegiate sports.

The master plan is available for full examination during business hours at the Student Association office. Claim forms are available at the SA office, the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center Student Affairs Office, the Dean of Students Office and Student Health Services.

The Equitable group is a multi-billion dollar company that also grants the staff and faculty insurance plan, Higgins said.

The plan provides coverage of up to 80 percent. There is a $100 deductible within a $5,000 limit and a $10,000 limit within a 52-week period.

Siouxsie and the Banshees cut pushes past post-punk sounds

By CHUK GILL
The University Daily

The cry of the Banshee usually is a call to death, but when that Banshee's name is Siouxsie Sioux, the cry becomes the exact opposite.

With their new release, "Peepshow," on Geffen Records, Siouxsie and the Banshees show the talents they have obtained over the past 10 years of music-making. This album brings back Siouxsie, vocals; Budgie, drums, percussion and harmonica; Steven Severin, bass; Martin McCarrick, cello, keyboards and accordion; and Jon Klein, guitar, to the music scene.

Siouxsie began in the ruin of the late '70s punk movement and formulated a post-punk sound that was unique to her. Now, in the ruin of most of those other bands that came out at the same time she did, she is showing that she still is a force to be reckoned with. A few years ago it looked as though the Banshees had lost it all with the release of the slightly less than good "Tenderbox," but they are back on track now and making much better music.

"Peepshow" starts off with the frantic and energetic "Peek-a-Boo." This song, like many others they have done, is a dance track that will make it hard for anyone to keep still. It should be known that this is no "Happy House" or "Christine," but rather it is a weird combination of horns, synths and that great voice possessed by Siouxsie.

Speaking of her voice, I would put her among the top three female singers of all time (the other two are Gitane Dimone of Christian Death and Sinead O'Connor).

As for the songs, they cover themes from childhood memories as in "Carousel" to the deep feelings of love that reside in songwriters Sioux-sie and Severin as in "Last Beat of My Heart," which is an exceptional love song. Other songs, such as "Rawhead and Bloodybones," done in such a way that it sounds as though it is a children's nursery rhyme, and "Ornaments of Gold," a song about showering a loved one in gold material goods, also are very good. Some of my other favorite picks off the album are "Turn to Stone," "Scarecrow," "Burn-up" and "Rhapsody."

"Peepshow" has come a long way since albums like "Kaleidoscope" and "Juju." Although Siouxsie's last works were rooted in the sounds of the early '80s post-punk era, this album is a more modern step for the Banshees. It must be true that even the best of them have to change with the times, but thank the great spirits that this is a step in the right direction and not the wrong, if you know what I mean.

This album was donated for review by University Records and Tapes at 711 University Ave.

Consultant says Tyson is out for ads

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing champ Mike Tyson's image has taken some lumps outside the ring in the past few weeks, and it may wallop his wallet. Some consultants say Tyson's problems may make advertisers leery of signing him up. "Nobody wants to lose the customers they already have, and all the negative stuff with him is a way to lose customers," said Lloyd Kolmer, who heads a firm that advises advertisers on signing celebrities for commercials.

Burton seeks apology from drug agents

GILROY, Calif. (AP) — LeVar Burton, who plays a crew member in "Star Trek: The Next Generation," is seeking an apology from state narcotics agents who detained him briefly. The agents stopped him for a few minutes in this town near San Jose as part of a check of people that matched a police "profile" of drug couriers from Southern California.

Burton, who was en route to Ventana with his girlfriend and had gotten out of his car to add oil when agents approached, said he asked what was happening but an agent told him, "It's none of your business."

Style show to benefit Panhellenic fund

High fashion will bring Texas Tech students to the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center theater Thursday as local stores promote a "total look" fashion show. The show, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, will feature hairstyles from Hair By Daniel and Hair By Diane as well as clothing styles. Tickets for the show cost $3. The money collected will benefit a Tech Panhellenic Association scholarship fund.

UT's Metcalf honored for performance

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas tailback Eric Metcalf gained 285 yards running, catching passes and returning kicks in a first-game performance this season that Longhorn football coach David McWilliams called a bit "rusty."

"I thought that early in the game he ... was still having a problem getting that feel under him as to where the sideline was and making those cuts," McWilliams said.

"Then, as we got on into the game and gave him the ball more, I think he gained a lot more confidence."

Metcalf, a 5-9, 179-pound senior, was a clear choice as The Associated Press' Southwest Conference offensive player of the week after scoring three touchdowns in Texas' 47-0 thrashing of New Mexico.

Arkansas tackle Wayne Martin, who had four quarterback sacks among his eight unassisted tackles in the Razorbacks' 21-13 victory over Mississippi, was named SWC defensive player of the week.

McWilliams said although Metcalf missed Texas' opener against Brigham Young because of a one-game NCAA suspension, he was not preoccupied with making up lost ground in his bid for the Heisman Trophy.

"I didn't realize what his stats were at the time when I pulled him out," McWilliams said. "I was kind of shocked when they said he had 285 yards, because it didn't look like that many."

Marching in ceremonies a medal for Scott

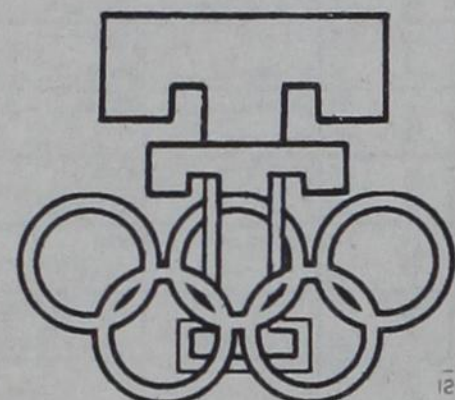

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the third in a week-long series on Texas Tech's connection with the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea. Today's story looks at Tech women's track coach Jarvis Scott, who competed in the 1968 Games.

By CURTIS MATTHEWS
The University Daily

Jarvis Scott may not have "brought home the gold" in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, but she did return to the United States with something that probably is even more valuable.

"Walking into the Olympic Village for the first time was a real treat," Scott said.

"But the really great thing was walking into the opening day ceremonies," Scott said. "That's a medal by itself. That tells you right there that you are an Olympian, and no one can ever take that feeling away from you."

Scott is in her 10th season as coach of the Tech women's cross country and track programs.

She placed sixth in the Olympics' 400-meter dash after qualifying for the 400- and 800-meter runs in the Olympic Trials. Scott was the first U.S. woman to qualify for the Olympics in both of those events, although she opted not to compete in the 800.

Before the trials, Scott had competed in the National Amateur Athletic Union championships, running the 400 meters in a 52.9 clip — the fastest time in the world in 1968.

"I guess with that time, a lot of people deemed me as the darkhorse," she said. "I had the fastest time in the world, and no one had ever run against me. That didn't mean they didn't know who I was exactly, because the Russians had a thick book on everyone who was there. It just meant that nobody had ever seen me run before."

After three heats, Scott qualified for the 400-meter finals — the first U.S. woman to do so.

Scott said she started the race hard and that by the halfway mark, she was in first place before she started to slow.

Recalling the race, Scott said she ran the first 200 meters in 22.8 seconds, which put her on a pace for a 45.6 finish — a world record even today by more than two seconds.

"At about the 300-meter mark, they started shooting past me," she said. "They were 'Pac-Man-ing' me up."

Scott blamed her fading finish on a lack of experience.

"It was really my first international competition," she said. "I'd run against a few of them before, but they always came over to America to race."

"That was my first experience in the big time ... I kind of just got my feet wet. I still believe what I told my coach right after the race, and that was that if I could get right back out there and run it again, I would have won.

"I was just a dummy. But at the same time, that was my style of racing. I always wanted to lead and have everybody else play catch-up."

"I still remember vaguely hearing the crowd cheering during my race," she said. "It was an honor to hear 80,000 people chanting, 'U-S-A, U-S-A.'"

Soviets lead medal count with 11 gold

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A wounded hero, a worried warrior and a squad of long-range bombers: That's what it took to get the United States going at the Seoul Olympics, where the Soviets were running away with medals.

Greg Louganis, five stitches still in his head from a rare blown dive the day before, won the springboard event Tuesday, launching himself toward an unprecedented double-double.

With the platform event coming up next week, Louganis now is pointing toward a second straight sweep, something no diver ever has done in an Olympics.

The U.S. basketball team completed what was a relatively strong day for America at the Olympics. Going to a weapon not known to be heavily stocked in its arsenal, the 3-point goal, the U.S. team beat Canada 76-70 for its second straight victory.

The Soviets won five medals Tuesday, four gold, to run their leading total to 11, including six gold. China has seven medals, one gold, and Bulgaria has six, three gold. The United States was fourth with five medals, two gold.

The Soviets got their final gold of the day when their men gymnasts won the team title, led by the three perfect scores of world champion Dmitri Bilozerchev. East Germany won the silver, Japan the bronze, and the United States finished 11th out of 12 teams.

Crowd loss not students' fault

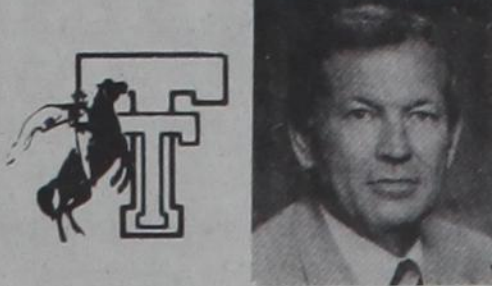

By BRAD WALKER
The University Daily

Current problems of attracting large crowds for Texas Tech home football games are not due to a lack of student spectators, according to Tech Athletic Director T. Jones.

While Jones expected a homecoming crowd of 35,000 for Saturday's game against Baylor, he called an impromptu meeting Monday afternoon to discuss attendance problems for the Red Raiders' home games.

While Jones called for more support from all of West Texas, he said Tuesday he was pleased with the student faction at Tech's home opener against the University of North Texas.

"The North Texas game was the best student representation that we've had in a long, long time," Jones said. "They came early, were vocal and stayed until the finish. That was something that hasn't happened in the past."

Jones

Jones and Tech Student Association President Shayne Woodard credited the new student ticket package that allows students to simply show their coupon at the gate for admission. The student seating now is first-come, first-served except for a few sections where block seating is available.

The Tech Athletic Ticket Office reported that there are no tickets remaining in the student sections for Saturday's game.

Jones is looking for ways to get more people to come to Jones Stadium on Saturdays, but he is quick to point out what the student sections do once the fans arrive. "They affect the whole stadium," Jones said. "They get the people on the other (west) side going. That's what's important. The athletes know they're there."

Jones said he first called Lubbock Mayor B.C. "Peck" McMinn Monday to announce the meeting and that the two then called several local business and civic leaders. Jones also invited student leaders of the Tech community.

Woodard said representatives only from the Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Society, Saddle Tramps and Tech cheerleaders were present.

"It's hard to figure out," Jones said. "I talk to other athletic directors around the country, and they're not all undefeated or in the Top 10. But their attendance is holding in there and their people are supporting them."

On Tuesday, McMinn officially proclaimed this week "Skin the Bears Week" in Lubbock.

 Activities should move back into the Aquatic Center by the first week of Dec.

Ski workshop in progress

Downhill ski maintenance workshops have begun, so don't miss out on a chance to get those skis tuned up for the season. All ski maintenance workshops are Wed. and Thurs., lasting from 2 p.m. - 5 p.m. (Upcoming dates: Sept. 28-29, Oct. 12-13, Nov. 2-3, Dec. 7-8)

The Outdoor Program staff will be more than happy to answer any questions. Just call or come by Room 206 in the SRC, 742-2949.

Injury clinic begins next week

Dr. Robert Yost, Orthopedic Surgeon and leading authority in sports medicine, will begin his free injury clinic Sept. 28 at 7 p.m. in room 201 of the Student Recreation Center. The clinic is conducted every Wed. evening throughout the semester and there is no charge.

The purpose of this clinic is to educate students concerning athletic type injuries. Dr. Yost will examine students with these injuries and make recommendations on rehabilitation. Further information will be provided in next weeks paper or you can call Rec Sports at 742-3351.

Dual and Individual sports report

Rec Sports began taking individual entries for Frisbee Golf yesterday and will continue taking them until the close of the business day Sept. 22. The Frisbee Golf tourney is slated for Sept. 28 at 5:15 p.m. Check in is behind the Student Rec Center at the dumpster. The course outline is available at the Rec Sports office.

The Chess tournament is a joint venture with the University Center. It will be held Sept. 29 at the UC game room.

Men's and Women's tennis singles leagues got underway yesterday and will crown champions in 3-4 weeks.

Team entries for dominoes team tennis have been taken in the Rec Sports Office since Sept. 20 and will also continue until the close of business Sept. 22. A list of available leagues can be picked up at the Rec Sports Office.

Rain turns Triathlon to Biathlon

The slick streets caused by Sunday's rain changed the Triathlon for Everyone to a Biathlon for Everyone as the cycling section was excluded from competition. Tim Key successfully defended his title in the Men's 18-29 age group followed by Alan Romagnolo, the perennial second place finisher. Otto Spitz retained his 30+ crown as did Mike Greer in the 40+ division. George Jury took the Men's 50 and over category and Richard Peterson took the under 18 division. For the women, Sue Houle bested her opponents to take the Women's 18-29 and finished sixth in the overall standings while April Stein captured the crown of the 30+ division. The team entries had at least one cheerleader as their cyclists did not compete. The Men's winning team was composed of Jim Serpan, Mitchel Pearce and Erin Griffin. The Co-Rec winners were DeeDee Ninemire, Mike McAda and Milt Brownfield and the Women's team of Liz Toombs, Karla Wendland and Rose Felderhoff took their division. Forty-four of the 58 registered competed despite the weather conditions.

Golf champion declared in playoff

The top three finishers in Saturday's rain drenched All-University Individual Golf tourney were Steve Finley, Jeff Lutke and Britt Patton all coming in with a one-over par 73. The champion Steve Finley, was determined by a play-off system using the scores of each player beginning on Hole 1. Jeff Lutke and Britt Patton both began the day with a bogey 5 and Steve Finley began with a par 4 clenching the individual title. All three top finishers missed a number of short par and birdie putts, but Jeff Lutke missed a 2-foot par putt on the 18th green that would have clenched the title for him.

Road race applications available

Applications for the seventh annual Red Raider Road Race are now available at the Student Rec Center or by contacting the Ex-Students Association Office: 742-3641. The 5k (3.1 miles) and 10k (6.2 miles) runs will be held on Sept. 24 starting at 9 a.m. as a part of Tech's Homecoming activities. Trophies will be awarded to top finishers in several age categories and each registrant will receive a long sleeve race t-shirt. All finishers will receive a certificate of completion.

For more information, contact the Ex-Studets Association or the SRC.

Walking seminars scheduled

Walking can be a great form of aerobic exercise because it does not put a lot of stress on the joints, it can be very social, you do not have to invest a lot of money and you already know the basics. Three identical seminars are scheduled in the SRC Classroom to help you get on a walking program. They will take place Sept. 27 from noon - 1 p.m. and 5:30-6:30 p.m. and Sept. 29 from 5:30 - 6:30 p.m. Some of the basics of a walking program will be discussed and we will be used to set up your own walking program. Come dressed to participate. Please register by calling 742-3352.

Taekwondo class will start

A non-credit Taekwondo class will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5:30 - 6:30 p.m. in the Lower Level Multipurpose Room beginning Sept. 21. This class is on a drop-in basis and beginners as well as advanced participants are encouraged to attend. There is no registration—just come dressed to workout.

Cholesterol screening to be held

The Student Rec Center will hold Cholesterol Screening on Oct. 11 and 12 from 6:30 a.m. - 9 a.m. in the Classroom, 201. The test results will include total cholesterol level, HDL cholesterol, triglycerides and a calculated LDL level. The testing will be performed by the Lubbock General Hospital lab personnel. There will be an $8 charge. You need to call and reserve a spot—742-3352 by Oct. 9. A 12-hour fast is recommended for accurate results. Seminars will be held on Oct. 25 to discuss the meaning of the results. Results can be picked up at these seminars or any time after Oct. 25 in the Rec Sports Office. Please call 742-3352 to register.
