SENIOR CLASS PLAY WILL BE GIVEN AT HIGH SCHOOL TUES.

MISS EDGAR PARTEN IS DIRECTING THE PLAY.

A plot to unveil the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the famous Marlenburg necklace, expose the guilty person and return the necklace to its rightful owner are combined together in "The Marlenburg Necklace" which will be presented by the Senior Class of Winters high school, under the direction of Miss Edgar Parten, next Tuesday evening, April 21st, at 8 o'clock at the high school auditorium.

Marguerite Duncan and Harry Dobbs play the featured roles and C. S. Jackson and Frances Hodge who recently appeared in the high school opera "An Old Spanish Custom," are suitably cast in the comedy roles.

Marilyn Drake (Marguerite Duncan) niece of Mrs. Marlenburg (Doris Reid) is visiting her aunt when the famous necklace disappears. At the same time, however, several other persons are present including the aunt's stepdaughter (Mozelle Barnhill); the butler (Bill Roundtree); the maid, (Mandylee Smith); Miss Madison, Mrs. Marlenburg's sister, (Carolee Henslee); and Ronald McAdoo (Erskine Davis).

The finger of guilt however, points to the niece, Detective O'Flannigan, (C. S. Jackson); a reporter (Frances Hodge) and Bob Waring, a young lawyer and the suitor of the accused niece (Harry Dobbs) successfully solve the mystery.

Between acts the grammar school choral club who won first place in the county during the Interscholastic League meet, under the direction of Miss Marie Hill, will sing, "Our Own School" by Udall; "Have You Ever Been to Texas in the Spring" by Mary Lake and "Slumber Slumber" by Targett and also a clever advertising skit will be given.

FARMERS MUST MAKE SUBSIDY APPLICATION BY THE FIRST OF MAY

Thomas B. Hill, county assistant in cotton adjustment, has informed the Enterprise that the closing date on signing subsidy applications is May 1st. This ruling applies to those farmers who have sold all their cotton. Farmers that have not sold all cotton have until July 31st to sell such cotton and get sales certificates and until Aug. 15th to make application. Mr. Hill states that only one application is to be made for subsidy. A number of the subsidy applications have already been sent to College Station while 350 have not yet applied for subsidies.

Mr. Hill urges farmers who want information regarding the new farm program to go to their community committeeman or vocational teacher.

AN INCH OF RAIN FALLS HERE WEDNESDAY EVENING

From one-half to an inch of rain fell over the Winters country Wednesday evening, coming just in time to be of great value to small grain and feed crops. The weather gauge here showed precipitation of one inch, while reports from surrounding communities were from one-half on up to an inch rainfall.

Farmers all agree that the precipitation was sufficient to be of great benefit to wheat, oats, and corn, and that the season is sufficient for cotton planting, however, many say that it is too early to plant cotton.

Wednesday evening's rain was accompanied by a heavy wind, which unroofed about fifty feet of the Winters Warehouse company's cotton platform here. No other damage has been reported.

TEXAS PRESS TOUR TO ADVERTISE THE TEXAS CENTENNIAL

Dallas, April 15.—A delegation of 125 Texans, accompanied by a band of 32 pieces, will leave Dallas at midnight of April 26 for a tour of the more densely populated sections of the Nation. The tour is in behalf of the more than 200 Centennial celebrations to be staged in various parts of Texas during 1936.

Headed by Governor James V. Allred and Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodul the delegation will include leaders in statecraft, business, economics and all lines of trade.

The rate lowers or increases in proportion to the Pullman accommodation required. The train departs from Dallas, but assembly points are also arranged for Houston, San Antonio and Fort Worth.

Sam P. Harben, chairman of transportation and hotels, announces that the list of reservations rapidly is absorbing the capacity of the train. For that reason he urges prompt action upon the part of any person desiring to go. Reservations may be made with him by wire or letter at the Allen Building in Dallas.

Oren Mathis places his announcement in The Enterprise this week as a candidate for Commissioner of Precinct No. 2, subject to the action of the Democratic primary to be held in July. Relative to his candidacy, Mr. Mathis said:

"I have been solicited by some of my friends to announce for Commissioner of Precinct No. 2, and in yielding to this solicitation I feel myself qualified to fill this office to the satisfaction of the taxpayers and people of the precinct.

I will serve Runnels county and especially precinct 2 with my full time to the job.

"I have lived in the county off and on since a small boy, coming here in 1905. When mustered out of the service I came back here in 1919, and have lived here practically all of the time since that date.

Warner Baxter and Alice Faye Top Star Cast of Brilliant New Musical Drama 'King of Burlesque' at Queen

"THE RETURN OF JIMMY VALENTINE" FEATURING ROGER PRYOR AND CHARLOTTE HENRY IS FEATURE FILM NOW SHOWING.

In the colorful, glittering atmosphere of the burlesque theatre, with its soubrettes, songs, clowns, and comies, the action of the new Fox picture, "King of Burlesque," which comes Sunday to the Queen Theatre takes place. A plot to revenge a fancied double-cross, and an idea to get back lost advertising lineage for a newspaper are combined to bring to the screen of the Queen today and tomorrow a tense, punch-packed motion picture in "The Return of Jimmy Valentine." One of the smartest comedy romances of the year, "The Bride Comes Home" with Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray will be the featured attraction Tuesday and Wednesday "Seven Keys to Baldpate," a high-speed romance carried on in a spooky atmosphere will be shown Thursday only. Ken Maynard in "Come on Tarzan" will be shown at the Lyric Theatre Saturday only.

"King of Burlesque" Warner Baxter heads the gala cast of this picture and with his two trusted aides, Alice Faye and Jack Oakie, Baxter has climbed from side street honky-tonks to Broadway's glittering palaces. Then when he falls in love with a lovely society woman who represents everything he had hoped to attain, he deserts his erstwhile friends. Things go from bad to worse with Baxter until his wife, Mona Barrie, deserts him. When things look blackest Baxter's old friends return to help him on the most spectacular adventure of his life.

"The Return of Jimmy Valentine" Roger Pryor and Charlotte Henry play featured roles in this story, of the contest that was to again bring to light the man known as Jimmy Valentine—a man who had managed to keep his identity hidden for twenty years. Tony Scapelli was very interested in the outcome of the contest, for it was his purpose to meet the elusive Jimmy Valentine and take revenge for the death of his father. In the cast in addition to Pryor and Charlotte Henry are Robert Warwick, Lois Wilson, J. Carrol Naish and Jeannie Roberts.

"The Bride Comes Home" Claudette Colbert is superb as the society girl whose father has lost all his money and who decides to go to work, while Fred

Government Holding of Cotton is Causing Price to Stay at Low Point

Austin, April 15.—Cotton is now beset with two major uncertainties, Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said in his latest survey of the cotton industry.

"The most immediate and pressing one if the indecision of the Government relative to disposing of the 4,500,000 bales it controls through the 12-cent loan and the few hundred thousand bales in the Producers' Pool," he said. "The second uncertainty pertains to probable acreage and production of the new crop, and that is dependent on the liberality of terms under the new farm program which has not yet been announced.

"The unfortunate thing about the first of the uncertainties is there is a very tight spot cotton situation because of the very small supply of American cotton outside Government hands. In fact there was less than 3,500,000 bales outside of mill and government stocks on March 1 to cover consumption and exports for at least five months.

The result is, merchants are forced to turn down sales; and, I am told, there are some cancellations of sales previously made. For over two months now the Government has been negotiating as to the best way to sell, and may continue these tactics until the foreign buyers are driven to take foreign cotton and the opportunity to sell is gone. The cotton will be left hanging over the market to beat down the farmers' price next fall. Why does not the scarcity of available American cotton raise its price? There are two fundamental reasons, available foreign cotton at present prices and potential production.

"The new cotton program under soil conservation will be radically different in purpose if carried out according to purposes stated in the law from the dead Agricultural Adjustment Administration because of an amendment added in the House to make parity income the goal of farm relief instead of parity price as the administration had interpreted the AAA. A determined attempt to reach parity income with 1909-1914 will certainly demonstrate the fallacies of the old AAA scarcity program to get parity price. Essentially, parity income can be nothing short of parity price times parity production."

Want-ads get results! MacMurray is grand as the hard-boiled newspaper man who turns magazine editor and finds Miss Colbert working as his assistant. Though they battle from the moment of their meeting, the magnetic force of love conspires to bring them to the threshold of marriage — with the jilted playboy millionaire, Robert Young left sulking in the corner. Then Miss Colbert is informed that Fred snores! She learns that he goes stark mad if anybody as much as touches his toothbrush, even the handle. The denouement when Miss Colbert and Young clope to a Gretna Green outside Chicago, with MacMurray in close pursuit astride a speeding motorcycle, furnishes one of the most hilarious episodes the films have offered in months.

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" Gene Raymond makes a bet that he can accomplish the one-day feat of writing a novel in twenty-four hours, and goes to a deserted mountain resort in the dead of winter to write. But the arrival, one after another of a diversified group of characters interested in the recovery of valuable jewels interrupts his program and furnishes the plot of an unusually thrilling and hilarious screen offering. Margaret Callahan has the lead with the blonde Raymond, and Erin O'Brien-Moore, Eric Blore, Moroni Olsen, Grant Mitchell and Ray Mayer and other noted players are in the cast.

FIFTY BOOKS FROM STATE LIBRARY ARE IN FREE LIBRARY

The Winters Free Library has received fifty books as a loan from the State Historical and Library commission. Besides the books of fiction are books on gardening, psychology, biography and aeronautics. Every person who wishes to use spare time for reading should be able to find a book that interests him.

At present the books that have been kept out over time are being checked-up and an effort will be made to get the books back in the library before vacation time when the demand for books by our young readers is so hard to supply from the limited number of books for children that are on our shelves.

Every reader is cordially invited to make a selection for reading each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon.—Mrs. R. H. MacFarland.

Rev. J. W. Sharbutt closed the meeting at Wingate last Sunday, where he had been helping Bro. W. B. Gilleland conduct their Pre-Easter Revival.

Keep a Good Laxative always in your home

Among the necessities of home is a good, reliable laxative. Don't be without one! Do your best to prevent constipation. Don't neglect it when you feel any of its disagreeable symptoms coming on. "We have used Theford's Black-Draught for 21 years and have found it a very useful medicine that every family ought to have in their home," writes Mrs. Perry Hicks, of Belton, Texas. "I take Black-Draught for biliousness, constipation and other ills where a good laxative or purgative is needed. I have always found Black-Draught gives good results."

PROMENADE DECK

by Isabel Ross

SYNOPSIS . . . A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marena" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining . . . and tragic . . . Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls . . . These characters are aboard the ship: MacDuff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife, and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship . . . and his soul—NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

SIXTH INSTALLMENT

"Well, I'm doing it. I'm painting a little, because I like to pass the time that way."

MacDuff was charmed with Angela's way of tossing off her words. Here with a woman who might be worth her salt. She chatted about the Ganges, and gave him a lively picture of her own impressions that morning. Yes, she was an artist. He could tell that from her choice of words.

When MacDuff was writing, he bothered little with externals, going in for sombre, philosophical stuff that some people seemed to like. It surprised him to see India through the sapient eyes of an intelligent woman. Soon he was talking himself, and marvelling at his own fluency. For half an hour his companion sat back, entranced and amused, while he unburdened. She lit a cigarette and watched him from under the brim of her hat. It must be the cocktails. He was off like an orator. There was nothing to do but listen, now that the floodgates were open. But would he ever come to the end of his soliloquy? Was he talking sense or nonsense? Angela realized that the man was simply unused to voicing his thoughts, although verbose, no doubt, on paper.

She had heard vaguely of his books, but had never read anything that he had written. After this, she would try to get hold of them and see what they were like.

The other people in the room who knew them were watching their table with surprise.

"Ye gods!" said Johnny to Clare. "Watch MacDuff talking to Mrs. Wynant."

"It's a miracle. I'd like to know what he's saying. It would be Mrs. Wynant who would get him to talk."

"Won't you come with me to the river, Mr. MacDuff?" Angela was saying at the first break in their conversation. "I can't keep away. It's the most animated canvas I've ever seen in my life and I'm rather keen about masses of people."

"That's just where you're different from me," said MacDuff, weighing his decision on whether to go with Angela or stay for a liquor. "No, I won't. There's nothing I dislike so much as human beings, and I find it depressing to look at such thousands mucking about together."

They went out to the veranda and he ordered liquors. Angela watched him, wondering if perfect frankness were not the cue in handling MacDuff. She leaned towards him. "You're rather a myth on the boat," she laughed, "the man who must not be spoken to."

A deep roll of laughter shot surprisingly from his throat. "It's not on the boat alone—it's the way I live. I find that human contacts interfere with one's work and one's life."

"Then I can't understand why you travel around the world on a cruising boat. To escape from people on the Marena is like trying to dodge bees in a hive."

"I came on a cruising boat because it takes me to out-of-the-way ports I'd never have been able to get to by any other means. Moreover, I've found all the isolation that I would get at home—at the least possible expense," MacDuff finished, can-nily.

Angela sighed and swung her parasol. "Sometimes I think one would be happier alone, in a world of one's own. The constant give and take of social relations wear one down."

MacDuff's face was loosening in amiable lines and she thought she detected a twinkle through his rimless spectacles. Or was it just the sun on the lens?

"I'm thinking that you're not very happy," he told her, surprisingly.

"Happy enough, Mr. MacDuff, but wandering in my thoughts. To tell you the truth, they're in England with my husband and my home."

"Tell me about your home."

"I've never been able to conjure it up for anyone else, although it's so vivid in my own mind. It's a rambling house with gables, frightfully ancient, with bits that have been added on from time to time. The ceilings are low and beamed, and the dormer windows are tucked in odd places under the eaves. It's filled with pictures, ancient and modern, and my dog, Jock, patters all over it like a presiding Turk."

Angela stopped abruptly, thinking that she had been lacking in tact and reserve.

"Do you live in New York, Mr. MacDuff?"

"Yes. Have you ever been there?"

"Five years ago I visited it for a few weeks. I love it, the excitement, the tearing hurry, the air—such air! But to live in it—how does one manage that?"

"My life is as quiet and slow as if I lived on the tip end of Cornwall."

"I don't see how you can dwell among such glorious skyscrapers and feel that life is quiet and slow. Life can't be slow in a soaring city. I think I should live on wings if New York were my home."

"It's all tosh, the things people think of New York. It's the best possible city for work, because it's one of the few places in the world where you are left alone if you want to be. I can work better there than anywhere under the sun."

"Perhaps that's why American women accomplish so much. I admire them greatly."

"Do you?"

"Yes. Don't you?" Her voice expressed surprise.

"No. They're scatterbrains—fockless creatures. They're also shockingly vain—spending, spending, everything for clothes and appearances."

"But how stunning they look!"

"Like so many dolls in a window. The same eyes, the same life to their chins, the same way of wearing their clothes, and the same ankles."

"But I can't imagine a race of women with better ankles! American women always surprise me afresh with the buoyancy of their spirit. They have such grace—perhaps because they're free and have economic independence. They're the only women who walk with hope and assurance."

"I don't approve of them at all."

"Oh dear! What a pity! If I were a man and lived in America, I should admire them very much and fall in love with any number of them. They're intelligent, too. But I see it's a hopeless argument."

MacDuff had lost the thread of the conversation, and seemed to be stumbling towards an important conclusion of his own. He was standing, looking down at her with an air of gloom. Angela gazed at him softly and she shifted his weight. The sun was in his eyes, the garden was fragrant with blooms, the Union Jacks were still pleasantly warm in his stomach. He rubbed the back of his head meditatively and couldn't imagine why his feet were moving towards the river. What was the sense of going to the Ganges with a chance travelling acquaintance?

"How delightful of you to come with me to the river, Mr. MacDuff." Angela's voice was gay with pleasure as she saw him falling into step.

Her companion grunted and pulled on his pipe.

"We'll ride to Tiger Hill together to see the dawn over Mount Everest when we reach Darjeeling," he announced, amazed at his own desire to establish a deeper contact with the woman at his side.

"That will be splendid," she told him.

The afternoon sun fell in slanting rays over the Indian Ocean, shedding a flutter of gold on water that heaved in a darkening swell. The aquatic sports were about to begin in the swimming pool. Patty, brimful of energy, was diving repeatedly from the highest spring-board.

"She was born to live in a swimming-suit," Jenny said, admiringly.

"A genuine water-nymph!" Peter remarked, always appreciative of the manifestations of physical perfection.

Jenny saw that Clare and Patty were both in the race. It would be interesting to watch the two of them together, for they were evenly matched, in spite of the difference in their ages.

Clare was a gifted swimmer, and her speed and form were equal to the best that girls half her age could do. No woman on the boat could compete with her except Patty. Joan Foster was good, but she slept all day and took most of her swims late at night.

Clare was in tangerine, a brilliant flash in the clear water of the tank. It suited her dusky skin. Patty was in a striking green suit.

The whistle blew and the contests were off, with orange and green in the lead. Clare tore through the water like a goldfish, using the long Australian crawl. Patty made better time with the American crawl.

Johnny was perched in a corner close to Angela. His face was set in anxious frowns, for he felt that the race had something to do with him. Patty won the first heat, Clare the second; they seemed to be marvellously paired. Angela sat silent, thinking of Johnny and wondering whom he wanted to win.

Clare was leading now, but Patty was creeping up. Every stroke brought her nearer to the fleet orange figure. Patty was breathing easily and turning in the water with each long stroke.

Johnny heart was pounding. Clare was losing. Did he want her to lose? He did not know. Patty was magnificent. He liked the clean sweep of her strokes. He remembered his college days, and his heart went out to Patty. He knew that she would root for him, but Clare bewitched him.

But this was Patty's race. She must win! Johnny's throat was soapy, as it used to be when he tackled at football.

Patty won, and, as she touched the end of the swimming-pool, he bit his lips on a shout of jubilation. Angela felt his suppressed excitement and was suddenly sure of something that had puzzled her for weeks.

But it was Clare he went over to speak to. Clare he helped out of the water. "Good stuff, Patty!" whispered Johnny as she passed him on her way to the dressing-room. "You and I'll have a race pretty soon."

Patty laughed in her throat, tossed her cap and strode on. She felt robust and happy, as if a dark shadow that had been creeping up on her for weeks had taken to its heels.

Clare was also in gay spirits, a step from Peter's side. She had not cared whether she won or lost; stress did nothing but give one crow's feet.

"Well, that's over," she said. "Patty's like the wind. I admire her form in the water."

"You were quite worth watching, too." Peter's voice was warm, and his glance passed over her like a searching flame.

"Why didn't you compete, Mrs. Rumford?"

"Oh, I'm a drone," laughed Jenny.

"She's a lorelei who looks for rocks to sit on in the sun while she combs her hair," said Peter.

Was Jenny dreaming, or did she catch a look of understanding, the sudden raising of a curtain, between those two? Her heart missed a beat. No, that was absurd. Day-dreams! Clare and Peter had scarcely spoken to each other since they'd come on the boat, except for their chat in the lounge at Bombay. They all moved out to the deck to dry themselves.

"Isn't the sea strange today?" Jenny murmured, after a long silence. "This is the first time since we left the Mediterranean that I've seen the water crumpled, or foam breaking on the waves."

No one was paying any attention to what she said.

"This is no place to dry," said Clare, shivering with cold. "It's too late. The sun's gone down."

Jenny was lost in her thoughts watching the dying sun in a semitrance. She would not go below while the sunset lasted. The others had already gone; she had not noticed them leaving her. She went down to B deck and along the corridor. Her glance swept by chance towards an alleyway and her hand went up to her mouth to stop the exclamation that sprang to her lips.

Ford - FOR ECONOMY

"The Ford V-8 uses less fuel and oil for the power it gives than any other car we have ever made

AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better. For, the fact is, it's way down the list.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile. Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car:

More value for every dollar you pay.
Lower cost for repairs and service.
Long life. Slow depreciation.
Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1645 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

$25 A MONTH WITH USUAL LOW DOWN-PAYMENT, BUYS ANY NEW FORD V-8 CAR ON NEW U.C.C. 1/4% PER MONTH FINANCE PLANS.

CENTENNIAL YEAR EVENTS STIMULATE TRAVEL IN TEXAS

Dallas, April 8.—Centennial year travel in Texas is underway in rapidly increasing volume, according to reports received from all parts of the state by the department of information for Texas Centennial celebrations.

More out of state motor cars are reported on Texas highways today than at any time in the past. All travel agencies report greatly increased demands for service. In addition Texans are traveling in increased numbers, stimulated to do so by the many Centennial celebrations being held each month.

Record breaking crowds have attended all Centennial celebrations held to date. As the vacation season arrives thousands of Texas families are expected to take to the highways to "travel Texas" this summer. These travelers, augmented in number by thousands of out-of-state visitors, will make 1936 the greatest travel year in the Lone Star State's history.

APRIL 12-21—HOUSTON—San Jacinto Association Celebrations. (Ten-day festival will include brilliant parades, banquets, concerts, and patriotic events. A public ball will be held the night of April 20 on Main Street at site of old capitol of Texas.)

APRIL 15-21—EL PASO—Schools' Centennial. (Historical pageantry and panoramic exhibition devised to stimulate interest of school children in Texas history.)

APRIL 17—TEMPLE—Bell County Music Festival. (Miss Central Texas and her court of honor to be acclaimed in splendid presentation.)

KINGSVILLE—Historical Celebration. (South Texas city in heart of world's greatest cattle domain, the King Ranch, turns back the pages of history.)

RAYMONDVILLE—Texas Onion Fiesta. (Harvest festival will acquaint Texas visitors with another of State's great products.)

SMART AFTERNOON FROCK
Pattern 8735: If it's a daytime dress of simple and becoming lines you are looking for you might do well to consider this model.

No. 8735 has a way of becoming the mature figure. The clever cut of the lines from the simple neck line to flared skirt ends promote grace and charm. A well designed jabot adds variation as does the decorative clip attached at neck line and matching buckle at belt. The two styles of sleeves are interesting. You may like the fitted wrist type with added cuff or the shirred, caught-up style, omitting the cuff. Most attractive made up in silk crepe or washable chiffon or perhaps in figured voile.

One Hundred Years Ago

It was in 1836, April 21st, that Sam Houston's troops conquered those of Santa Anna at San Jacinto and freed Texas from Mexican rule. Thus began the independent history of our great State which was destined eventually to become the largest State of the greatest country in the world.

We join with all other Texans in paying tribute to the memory of the heroes of San Jacinto.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Nothing noteworthy has occurred in business of late—industry is operating on an even keel, and the recovery movement continues slowly. And nothing noteworthy has occurred in government—Congress is pursuing its routine, and no legislative excitement, aside from the Townsend Plan and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. investigations, is apt to occur in the near future. Finally, nothing noteworthy has occurred in the tense European situation—the great powers continue to play their diplomatic chess game.

It might also be said that nothing noteworthy has occurred in the political situation, so far as major developments are involved. But there is great activity beneath the surface, and the political picture for 1936 is gradually taking form.

Main political interest naturally focuses on the Republican party—everyone knows that, barring the grim reaper or a grade A miracle, the Democratic candidates for the highest elective positions in the country will be Franklin Delano Roosevelt of New York, and John Nance Garner of Texas. And, within the Republican party, the battle lines are firmly fixed. One strong wing of the party, led by Herbert Hoover, wants a highly conservative candidate, such as, for example, Colonel Knox, publisher of the Chicago News. Another strong wing, led by Senator Borah, and generally believed to have the support of such potent figures as Senate Minority Leader McNary of Oregon, wants a liberal candidate. Still another strong wing wants a middle-of-the-road candidate, such as Governor Landon of Kansas. At this writing, the best bet for the nomination would be Governor Landon, and most public polls show that he is more popular with the people than other leading Republicans. But it must not be forgotten that prominent commentators seem to believe that neither Senator Borah nor Ex-President Hoover are in favor of Landon—and those two men, standing poles apart in their viewpoints, having little in common save sincerity, can sway a great number of delegates at the convention. Such commentators are tending toward the belief that the big figures in the party may offset each other with their opposed strength—may indirectly bring about the nomination of a dark horse.

That remains to be seen. But this can be said with certainty—no matter who is nominated, he will campaign on certain planks. Constitutionalism will be one of those planks—the Republicans will hold that it is the President's plan to get around the Constitution in one way or another, establish what amounts to a dictatorship of the Federal bureaucracy. Taxes will be another—the Republicans will say inflation impends, and that the country goes toward bankruptcy. Relief will be another—the Republicans will claim that Administration relief plans have been wasteful and socially and economically menacing, that more distress could have been alleviated with less spending, that the spoils system prevails. Public policy toward industry will be another—the Republicans will claim that Administration tax and regulatory policies have barred the way of greater industrial recovery. And so it will go. The accent laid on these various points will vary with the candidate. If, for instance, Senator Borah were nominated, he would probably lay greatest stress on the Constitution, while Governor Landon would be expected to talk most about taxation and fiscal policies. But all the planks will be used.

The Democratic campaign must—of course—be based on the President's record. It will be held that he was responsible for the recovery we have achieved—that his mistakes were inevitable in an emergency where speed was essential, that he has no idea of tampering with the Constitution or the Supreme Court, that his program, by and large, has succeeded and earned him the right to go back and finish the job.

It is widely believed that the President will stress economy in the campaign—declare that his vast expenditures were unavoidable and saved us from ruin, that wherever possible he cut expense. In line with this, he recently appointed a committee of three experts in public administration to survey the government and prepare a plan for reorganization and consolidation of bureaus in the interest of economy and efficiency. In his letter to the members he intimated that some of the new agencies he created were justified by emergency, will be dropped with recovery, that others will be curtailed in their operations.

So the political war is getting underway, even though, theoretically, the opening gun will not be fired until after the conventions. Get your radio in shape—the verbal shrapnel will fly thick and fast.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'do-less.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

TEXANS TO POCKET $446,225,700 TOURIST CASH DURING SUMMER

Surpassing even the optimistic estimates of native Texans, a practical national statistician of tourist trends today predicted that 11,565,000 persons will visit Texas this year, spending $446,225,700 to share in the Lone Star State's celebration of its first hundred years of history, growth and development. The figures are those of Joe H. Thompson, who as national director of the Conoco Travel Bureau, Denver, has achieved recognition for conservative accuracy in many years of plotting the itineraries and spending plans of the American Motorist.

The amount to be spent represents approximately $7,500 for each man, woman and child in Texas. Thompson points out it will find its way into the channels of established business in the state as follows: $89,245,000 will go for lodging and a like amount for gasoline, oil, garaging and automotive repairs; $93,707,000 will be spent for assorted retail purchases; $111,556,000 will be spent for food, $26,897,000 for amusements, and $25,773,000 for miscellaneous refreshments, smokes and confections.

The Centennial Exposition is the principal lure, according to Thompson, but letters which have reached the travel bureau in such volume as to point to an all-time record year tell also of plans to "discover the whole Texas empire" before leaving the state.

"There can be no doubt," Thompson declared, "that the determination of residents of all the other states to see Texas this year is the most significant development on this year's travel calendar. It is just one of those things, the proportions of which even we, who are closest to the hopes and aspirations of the nation's motorists, find hard to grasp."

Retail Sales For February Show a Dollar Increase

Retail sales of 639 independent stores in Texas reporting to the Department of Commerce in cooperation with the Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas, showed an increase of 19 percent in dollar volume for February 1936 as compared with the same month for 1935, according to preliminary estimates of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. When adjusted for the extra day in February this year, the increase would have been 14 per cent.

This report, which covers the larger independent stores with the exception of department stores, represents 20 kinds of business 9 of which, due to an insufficient number of reports,
are contained in miscellaneous
or in group totals.

When adjusted for the number of working days, February 1936
sales showed an increase of 14 percent from January 1936.
There were two more working days in January than in February. Without adjustment either for the number of working days
or for seasonal influences, February sales were 5 percent higher than in January.

All of the kinds of business represented showed increases for February of this year over February of a year ago. The greatest gains were 31 percent shown by Lumber and Building Materials Dealers; 28 percent by Family Clothing Stores and 25 percent by Motor Vehicle Dealers.

Between January and February of this year decreases were shown by Lumber and Building Materials Dealers and Men's and Boys' Clothing Stores, who recorded declines of 9 percent and 4½ percent respectively. All of the other lines showed moderate gains with Women's Specialty Shops showing the largest gain
which was almost 11 percent.

Of the firms reporting for February, 454 (71 per cent)
reported increases over February 1935; 173 (27.1 per cent) showed declines; and 12 (1.9 per cent) registered a change of less than 1 per cent.

"Horse Sense" is Advice Offered
Texas Motorists

Good old horse sense goes a long way in the proper care of an automobile motor and in obtaining maximum mileage at a minimum cost, say the laboratory
scientists of Gulf Oil Corp.-Gulf Refining Co. Stressing the need for a proper grade motor oil and a gasoline especially refined for the Spring season, Gulf urges motorists to heed these simple facts:

To begin with, it has been necessary to use a very light oil in the crankcase during the extreme winter weather just past.
Even if this winter-grade oil were in prime condition, it might not lubricate properly in warm weather. Moreover, frequent use of the choke, when practically pure gasoline has entered the cylinders, has tended to thin out
the already light lubricant.

During cold weather when the motor has been running, the crankcase has contained warm, moist air which has condensed
when the motor has cooled off.
In extreme cases this has formed
on the bottom of the crankcase,
or frozen in the oil pump.
In ordinary cases sludge has formed from the mixture of water, dirt and oil. Sludge is nothing more nor less than a thick gooey mass which tends to block the screen on the oil pump and clog oil lines.

The need for changing motor oil with the changing seasons
has been pretty well impressed upon the motoring public, but few car owners are aware that the Gulf refineries in various parts of the country, keeping an eye on the calendar and weather conditions, automatically change the properties of gasoline to insure the best and most economical performance according to the season. The properties of Gulf gasoline are changed several times a year. Hence the term, "Kept in Step With the Calendar," used in Gulf advertisements currently appearing in The Winters Enterprise.

Now is the time to have your

THIS WEEK
IN WASHINGTON

Washington, April 8.—Whenever political wisecracks begin to talk about Presidential "dark horses" somebody is sure to bring up the name of John R.
McCarl, Comptroller General of the United States. That suggestion is generally met by a practically unanimous chorus of "He would make a good President, if he could be elected, and he would make a fine candidate, if he could be nominated. But has he a chance?"

What brings Mr. McCarl into the limelight just at this time is the fact that his 15-year term of office expires on the 30th day of June this year. This raises, among other questions, the question of whom President Roosevelt will appoint in his place; because the outgoing Comptroller General is not eligible for reappointment.

If Congress were in session on June 30, the President would have to make a permanent appointment to be confirmed by the Senate. But Congress will not be in session, and that leaves
the President free to make an interim appointment of anybody
whom he chooses to name, regardless of Senatorial wishes.
The interim appointee will hold office until the next Congress
meets, when the next President, either Mr. Roosevelt or his successor, must submit the name of somebody to fill the job for another 15 years.

Introducing John McCarl

There are wheel-horses in the present Democratic administration, as there were wheel-horses
in previous Republican administrations who would prefer to see a man in the Comptroller-General job that would take a more lenient view in the spending of the taxpayers' money. But that is just what John McCarl has always refused to do. He hasn't played ball at all the way the politicians who were responsible for having him put in the office
expected him to play.

The idea of having a Comptroller-General, to see that all money spent by the Federal Government was used in precisely the way Congress prescribed, that no discretion should be allowed to any Federal officer or bureau and that he should be responsible only to Congress, was originated by the Republican majority in Congress during 1919-20.

It came as a result of the more or less unregulated spending of the Wilson Administration in war time. President Wilson vetoed the first bill creating the office of Comptroller-General, because it prohibited the President from removing the incumbent from office and gave the executive no control or supervision of his activities. Senator Warren G. Harding was one of the leading advocates of the idea of an independent accounting officer.

Promptly after Mr. Harding became President, in 1921, the office was created by act of Congress and Mr. Harding picked John McCarl to fill it, because McCarl had always been a staunch Republican wheelhorse. He had been a lawyer in Nebraska, where he still maintains a voting residence at McCook; he had been secretary of the Republican Congressional Executive Committee through one or two campaigns, and at the time of his appointment, he was private secretary to Senator George W.
Norris, of Nebraska.

The McCarl Shock
McCarl took office July 1, 1921. He had not been in office more than a few minutes before his political friends found that the expense accounts of Republican office-holders were just as much objects of suspicion as if they had been presented by Democrats.

by or in behalf of the Federal Government has had to be okay-ed by the Comptroller-General.
He has nothing to do with preparing the budget, but after the items of the budget have been enacted into law, he has everything to do with seeing to it that no department bureau or individual spends more than has been specifically authorized by law or spends money appropriated for one purpose for some other purpose. There is no appeal from his decisions.

It follows that nobody knows as much about the handling of the Government's cash as does John R. McCarl. He knows every trick ever invented to wan-gle money out of the Treasury
without authority.

One reason why the public has not heard more of the Comptroller-General is that his conception of his duty has compelled him to lead almost a cloistered life, officially at least. He is the hardest man in Washington to interview. In his 15 years of service he has never once been quoted for publication to the extent of a single sentence. And not only newspaper men, but politicians of all grades and varieties, find it practically impossible to pry their way into his office.

Guarded His Position

McCarl has always taken pains never to expose himself to any kind of political pressure or contacts which might, in the case of a weaker man, warp the fine line between what is right and what is politically permissible. He adheres rigidly to the letter of the law and insists that every other public servant do the same.
If they don't like it, let them
get the law changed.

Mr. McCarl is only 56 years old now. He may not be the Republican nominee; indeed, it is quite improbable that he will be;
if for no other reason than that politicians of his own party have discovered that he will not play politics in public office.
In the event that a Republican President should be elected next Fall, Washington feels pretty certain that John McCarl will be high in the councils of the new Administration; perhaps Secretary of the Treasury or the Director of the Budget.

Amarillo, April 15.—West Tex. as Chamber of Commerce offi-

May 11-13, will be the largest in the history of the organization.

"There is no reason why it shouldn't be," declared Ray Nichdent of the organization which has 195 affiliated towns. Nichols, accompanied by D. A. Ban-deen of Stamford, general manager, was here recently to discuss preparations for the convention with the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

"We want to build up the convention program on the opportunities the Centennial offers to West Texas," explained Mr.
Nichols.

In addition to the major theme of the convention there will be many features, both educational and entertaining. Gene Howe,
