TEXAS PRODUCES 57% TOTAL GOATS IN UNITED STATES

RUNNELS COUNTY LISTS 84,699 SHEEP AND LAMBS.

The importance of goats and the production of mohair and wool in Texas and its 254 counties was disclosed by a special report of the 1935 Federal Farm Census released today by director Williams L. Austin of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce.

The number of goats of all kinds and ages on farms and ranches in the state was 2,368,763 on January 1, 1935, a decrease of 773,558 or 24.6 percent, from the number on April 1, 1930. This decrease reflects in part the effects of the 1934 drought, which greatly decreased the carrying capacity of pastures and ranges. However, Texas remained the leading goat producing state, having more than 57 percent of the United States total.

The five counties of Edwards, Val Verde, Kimble, and Kerr had over one-fourth of all the goats in the state. A distribution of the number of goats by breed was not obtained in 1935.

The amount of mohair, the product of Angora goats, clipped in 1934 was 10,384,838 pounds, a decrease of 1,430,094 pounds from the clip of 1929. The Texas production of mohair in 1934 was equivalent to 80.7 per cent of the United States total.

The production of wool in the state amounted to 52,564,478 pounds or an increase of 36.4 per cent over that of 1929. The state's wool clip constituted 15.5 of the United States total. Runnels county listed 84,699 sheep and lambs and 1,756 goats and kids.

WESTERN COLOR FEATURES MANY CELEBRATIONS

Fort Worth, Texas, May 20.—Days of the old pioneer Wild West will be relived in the Texas cattle country this summer in many rodeo and pioneer round-up celebrations planned in conjunction with the Centennial year observance of the Lone Star State.

Plans are being made now to stage scores of thrilling western-type entertainments for Texans and their visitors from outside of the state. Some of the celebrations to be repeated this year, such as Midland's Western rodeo and Stamford's Cowboy reunion, are nationally famous.

Fort Worth, center of the widespread Southwestern cattle industry, will take the lead with the glamorous Texas Frontier Centennial from July 1 to December 1. Elaborate entertainment planned there will make the cattle city the play center of the nation during the five months of the Frontier show.

Among other colorful entertainments planned are events at Pampa and Midland in June; at Pecos, Stamford, Fairlurrias, Canadian, Eagle Pass, and Borger in July and Big Spring, San Angelo, Odessa, and Lubbock in September.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Stringer are spending a few days with relatives and friends in Hamilton.

Mr. Brown, in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue of The Enterprise, is offering some exceptional bargains in used cars in an effort to dispose of the entire stock immediately, to which we direct the readers' attention.

Deputy U. S. Marshal C. S. Brown took the three suspects to San Angelo from Ballinger yesterday after complaints had been filed with Couch by Warren T. Macy postal inspector, from Fort Worth.

The youths are alleged to have entered the W. T. Hill store in Benoit and to have stolen about $10 in postal funds. The Hill store serves as the Benoit post office. Mr. Hill, who discovered the burglary late last Saturday, also reported tobacco, cigars and chewing gum were missing.

Mrs. A. J. Pfeffer is reported to be doing nicely following an operation at the Sealy Hospital at Santa Anna last week. Mrs. W. E. Jones and Mrs. F. C. Ueckert were at her bedside for the operation.

More Attention Should Be Given Art of Cooking

"With more than thirty-five percent of the family income going out for what we eat, it is most important that we give every attention possible to this great and master of all arts—cooking—isn't it?" asked Miss Jessie Hogue, the noted Southern lecturer who will lead in what is probably one of the most splendidly harmonized centennialization of food parades that has been held in this section. Miss Hogue comes to this city to hold the Kitchen Chautauqua very soon now, under the auspices of this newspaper, and her coming has been heralded by her reputation for plain, logical, common-sense, understandable, manner of talking and explanatory demonstrativeness.

She takes a great pride in the many secret formulas she gives free to her thousands of listeners throughout the United States and she likewise feels a pride in the housewife who attends her lectures. She says: "A cook should be known by her knife, yes, but far more. Most certainly she should be in a position to 'commend her own pies.' Yes, too 'by her cleanliness, a cook must please the entire family.' Yes, I have heard of the man whom Emerson sent to the city, in one of his books... 'Considerations by the Way.' I believe it was, and the fellow was made to say, as I remember it, 'I have been sent here to procure an angel to do the cooking.' And I know that old one which says that 'As the house showeth the owner, the cooking showeth the cook,' too. I know many of them but I also know this—that there will be no disappointments and many happy experiences remembered after I have the opportunity to meet, lecture, demonstrate and talk freely, frankly and plainly, heart to heart with the housewives of your wonderful city and the communities around. What the ladies of this land are most interested in are the short-cuts, the quick, certain, positive, the shortest route to perfection in that highest and most important master art, cooking. I am happy that I have many solutions to meet all of their desires."

The public is cordially invited to attend all sessions of the Enterprise Cooking School to be held June 11, 12 and 13 in the Court Meeks building on Main street. No obligations of any kind.

QUESTIONS ON OLD AGE PENSIONS ARE BRIEFLY ANSWERED

Orville S. Carpenter, state pension director, answers frankly and to the point, questions regarding the Texas Old Age Pensions that the people of the state are asking.

Q. How many people are there in Texas past the age of 65 years?
A. Over 300,000.

Q. Definitely, if Texas gave each one of these $30 a month, would the Federal Government pay half of it?
A. No.

Q. If each of the 300,000 received assistance, where would the money come from to pay the bill?
A. It could come only from the taxpayers of Texas.

Q. Could we pay everyone past 65 years of age $30 a month if we desired and were willing to do so without the millions that the Federal Government will contribute?
A. No, we could not because the Old Age Assistance Amendment to the Texas Constitution provides for payments not to exceed $15 per month per person.

Q. Then $15 per month would be all that we could pay if we gave everyone past 65 years of age assistance without the help of the Federal Government?
A. Yes.

Mr. and Mrs. Press Edwards have returned to Winters to make their home, Mr. Edwards having accepted his old position in the service department of the Jones Chevrolet Co.

Are You a Good Cook?

"If nobody praises your cooking, just remember it is your own fault," says Miss Jessie Hogue, noted Southern lecturer who will be in this city soon for a season of the Kitchen Chautauqua, brought under the auspices of this newspaper.

"This important statement of facts is not condemnatory," quickly assures Miss Hogue. "I do not condemn a woman for not knowing the innermost secrets of the master art of the world—happy kitchen cooking. Some other important home duties may have crowded her time out of opportunities that have come along from time to time.

"Frankly, though, cooking-praise must be merited. There is not one bit of fooling about, nothing but genuine earnestness and wide-awake interest and attention in it will suffice.

"We need not fool ourselves about cooking. We can't fool others, and most especially members of our own family, for long.

"It is so easy, and it's such a happy experience, this getting on to the innermost secrets of the preparation of simple, wholesome dishes, salads, meats, menus, meal-planning and likewise right on into the dinner courses for any and every occasion. It is so simple, easy, interesting. It takes away many worry-chasing, time-saving, nerve-saving, energy-conserving elements, that the joyfulness, the optimism of it, the intense interest it commands and pleasant feelings it produces. There is no wonder that the years I have spent in preparation for my lectures seem to bring me so much happiness. I do enjoy it because I love my work. I appreciate very much the thousands of friends I have made throughout the United States among just the kind of housewives who live in your city and communities around, that I am sure in advance my cooking school will fill every need, will be equal to every demand, and that the service I will be able to render the housewives will be well worth my time and theirs, as we spend it together. My schools are always friendly. They are constructive, they deal with the small things as well as the more important ones."

"PROFESSIONAL SOLDIER," CURRENT ATTRACTION AT QUEEN, TEAMS TWO GREAT STARS IN STIRRING FEATURE FILM.

With a sweep of realistic power never approached by motion pictures, "The Prisoner of Shark Island" which is booked for showing at the Queen Sunday matinee and Monday, depicts the true story of the most tragic figure in America's history, Freddie Barthelomew and Victor McLaglen are teamed in the thrilling story of uproarious adventure in "Professional Soldier" showing today and Saturday. Robert Donat scores in dual role in the lively comedy "The Ghost Goes West" booked for Tuesday and Wednesday. Joan Bennett and Cary Grant are coming Thursday only in "Big Brown Eyes."

Showing Sunday Matinee

Dr. Samuel Alexander Mudd, long condemned as one of the Lincoln conspirators, and who now, in the light of facts revealed in the picture, appears as a man unjustly sentenced to a life-long death, a hero whose courage and self-sacrifice have found few equals in fact or fiction.

Warner Baxter is the leading player of this drama, which opens after the Civil War with the assassination of Lincoln. Jno. Wilkes Booth, whose leg was broken in the leap to the stage, flees into Maryland to receive aid from a simple country doctor.

When the fury of the nation over this crime is unleashed, Baxter is arrested, tried with Booth's accomplices and sent to an unknown fate on Shark Island, a fortress-prison, on a sun-baked reef in the Caribbean.

Passionately hated by the men who guard him, degraded, beaten, chained to his cell, Baxter attempts escape. When he is recaptured, Baxter is subjected to solitary imprisonment in a filthy cell, until the scourge of yellow fever hits the island. With the medical officer sick, the fever raging, the commander of the garrison, Harry Carey, turns to Baxter as his last desperate resort. How he copes with rebellious soldiers, forces fearful ship captains to bring him supplies, and finally wins the gratitude of the men of Shark Island and freedom for himself is revealed in the astounding, action-filled climax of the picture.

"Professional Soldier"

When he talked about his fights, he sounded like seven men in one, but when he got started on a scrap he looked as if he were telling only half the truth!

In his greatest role since "What Price Glory," Victor McLaglen is currently sharing starring honors with Freddie Barthelomew in 20th Century's "Professional Soldier," at the Queen Theatre today and Saturday.

Based on a story by Damon Runyon, "Professional Soldier" uses the racy, bantering Runyon dialogue in a story chock full of romance, comedy and slam-bang adventure.

Because he loves the sound of musketry and the smell of gunpowder, McLaglen in "Professional Soldier" permits himself to be inveigled into a revolution in a tiny European kingdom.

"The Ghost Goes West"

The hilarious adventures of a handsome and amorous ghost who accompanies a haunted Scottish castle to America, are depicted in amusing fashion in "The Ghost Goes West," Alexander Korda's gay romantic comedy which brings Robert Donat to the Queen Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, with Jean Parker and Eugene Pallette.

Donat, who made screen history last season as "The Count of Monte Cristo," plays a dual role in the film, which marks the first English-speaking production of Rene Clair, the famous French director. Robert E. Sherwood prepared the screen play from a story by Eric Keown which appeared in London Punch.

The star is cast as Donald Glourie, an impoverished Scotch nobleman who sells his haunted ancestral castle to an American millionaire, and also plays the jolly castle ghost.

The millionaire has the castle razed and transported to New York stone by stone and the ghost, being a very conscientious shade, packs up and trails along.

Complications develop when the ghost turns up aboard the transatlantic liner and is mistaken for Donald whom he very closely resembles.

Thursday Only

Joan Bennett and Cary Grant form the romantic combination in "Big Brown Eyes" which is showing Thursday only. Miss Bennett plays the part of a hotel manicurist whose quick thinking, shrewdness and knowledge of "all the answers" leads her first to a job as newspaper columnist and then to the capture of a ruthless gang of jewel thieves and murderers.

Cary Grant in the role of Joan's sweetheart is guaranteed to cause just as many feminine hearts to palpitate as ever and brings sincerity and warmth to his performance.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gardner returned home Saturday from a several weeks visit with their daughter and her family in Los Angeles, California.

Visitors to the Texas Centennial Exposition opening in Dallas June 6 will find a real oil well in operation on the grounds of the $25,000,000 World's Fair.

RACKETEERS IN SECURITIES ARE LEAVING TEXAS

Kilgore, May 20.—"Like rats leaving a sinking ship, the racketeers in securities are leaving Texas," Governor Alfred said here in an address before the North and East Texas Press Association Friday night. "This Exodus has been caused by the operation of the Texas Securities Act which went into effect approximately a year ago and has resulted in the saving of millions of dollars to Texas investors.

"Mail fraud violators have decreased by 50 per cent, we are reliably informed," the Governor continued, "and indictments are pending against many prominent swindlers. The Federal government has convicted several of these high-binders, who were ferreted out by the Securities Division. The Texas Securities Act has done all and more than we had anticipated. The widow, the small business man, the school teacher and thousands of other small investors have renewed confidence in the state to protect them from the depredations of the smooth tongued swindlers."

The Governor called attention to the fact that Texas has long been known as the "end of the crime corridor." The drive against the confidence man has not been as spectacular but equally as effective as against known gamblers and other notorious characters.

The legitimate dealers in securities and oil instruments are supporting the administration of the Securities Act 100 per cent, the Governor stated, as is evidenced by the increasing supply of letters in the files of the Securities Division. Texas now has one of the best Securities laws in the Nation.

PROMENADE DECK.

by Ishbel Ross

SYNOPSIS . . . A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining . . . and tragic . . . Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls . . . These characters are aboard the ship: Macduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife, and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship . . . and his soul. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

ELEVENTH INSTALLMENT

The girl had passed from frenzy to maudlin collapse. She was shivering as her protector dragged her firmly through the door. Down the companionway and along the corridors they staggered, the older woman moving with intent and decisive steps. At last they reached Joan's cabin and the girl flopped on her bed. Miss Mudge bent down and drew off her slippers and stockings. She made her sit up and while she pulled her flowered chiffon frock over her head. Blushing vaguely when she saw how little she wore, she gingerly drew off the scrap of lace that seemed to be all of her under-clothing. How lovely she was! Miss Mudge went into her wardrobe and found a nightdress—of silk so soft that she could crush it in one hand. It was fragrant and sweet as acacia blossom.

"Comfy now?" she asked. Joan's reply was an incoherent whisper.

Miss Mudge kissed her and tucked her up, dimly touched by her helpless state. Then she found her way to her own bed in the darkness, for she could not bear the light just then. Her numbness was slowly passing and she was coming out of a fog, aware at last that something terrible had happened to her in the captain's quarters. In a full blaze of consciousness, she buried her face in her hands and sobbed. Miss Foster, wild and drunk and beautiful, had told the truth and stripped her to shreds, right down to the awful foundation of her cotton nightgown and her crimped fringe.

Miss Mudge was seeing things as they were, and she felt alone and afraid in a vast hall that stretched to infinity, a hall lined with flashing mirrors that reflected over and over again the cheapness of all her belongings. A week ago she had felt so chic. And the kiss from Mr. Charlton—an act of pity! That had been cheap, too. Her face was drained of life. For hours she lay on her bed without moving. The cocktail party went on, with the guests making feverish efforts to cover up the disappearance of Miss Mudge and Joan. Only Dick went out, after coaching the eye of the captain. Angela shook herself clear of the horror she had gone thru.

Captain Baring took out his violin and settled it tenderly under his chin. He played for them, softly, Grieg and Bach. Angela sat entranced—not so much by the music as by the strange man who spent lonely night on the bridge and could wring such feeling from his violin. When he had finished, he was still remote, as if his playing was a form of self-indulgence that he did not care to share with others. He listened to their compliments absent-mindedly and left them without a word.

Miss Mudge left the Marenia at San Francisco. She was pale and wore her glasses. Her fringe was straight and she had given her Spanish shawl to her stewardess. All of her vanities had been laid aside, for her mind worked clearly now, with everything out in the open. After her tips had been paid, she had eight dollars left and her raft-way ticket to Ontario. That was that! She had traveled forty thousand miles but had failed to see the world. She had spent her life's savings and would have to begin all over again. Another twenty years with Agatha before it was time for them to retire on their pensions. Her dull life lay over her like a shade. Bravely she stepped down the gangplank, knowing that glances were only an empty word. She was sure at last that there was only one sphere in which she could move. Hereafter she would keep her wings clipped to her surroundings, and her thoughts close to the ground.

She had avoided Dick since the cocktail party. He had sent her a note, kind and detached, telling her that she must forget every word Miss Foster had said. It was now among her souvenirs—a red balloon, a swizzle-stick, a cheap little Tanagra from Athens, a small carved god, her Jordan water, some gala favors, her autographed menus, a snapshot of him at Kandy. That was all. It was good-bye.

The people with whom she had chatted on deck and at table, exchanging addresses and promising lifelong friendship, had been too busy with their own affairs to notice her undistinguished departure. There were two exceptions. Mrs. Wynant had been cordial, inviting her to visit her home in England, and Miss Arundel had kissed her warmly, promising to send her some wedding cake. Miss Mudge fluttered along the pier. She had to get through the customs, but pain was fogging her vision, and the dragging weight deep in her inside, was getting worse each minute. For twenty years she had looked forward to her trip around the world. Now it was over, and she had nothing. She stumbled against a trunk and wiped the tears from her eyes.

It was too late for her to see that Dick was watching her as she wandered with uncertain steps among the packing-cases on the wharf. His glance was kind, but he was thinking that it was far, far better for Miss Mudge to be stepping back into her lustreless frame at Ontario, Wisconsin. He had avoided Miss Mudge since the cocktail party, but only because she seemed to be keeping deliberately out of his way, and he had taken his cue from her. There was nothing he could say to her, nothing at all.

The orchestra was playing. Its languid notes came drifting up from the ballroom. Patty's hand stole through Johnny's arm. He squeezed it hard.

"Good kid!" he whispered, and kissed the tip of her ear. Patty sighed. "I love the swish of the sea in my ears. Life will seem so quiet, Johnny, when we have set foot on land again."

"Life is just opening up for you," said Angela, watching her affectionately.

"I hope there's something in Johnny for Patty is a fine girl," Macduff declared.

"I think there is, Macduff. You're a little hard on the young."

"Intolerable puppies, all cheek and ignorance!" Angela laughed. "I've got rath-er fond of those two. I shall always wonder about them. When you're thrown together on a trip like this, and share the sort of things that we have shared, you get more attached to people than you would in thirty years at home."

"I wonder what's happened to the Langford woman," said Macduff, irrelevantly.

"She's probably not with Rumford by now, but she did all the damage she could while she was on the boat. She comes from New York, doesn't she? You may run into her some time."

"Angela," Macduff bent over, "would you ever want to live in New York?"

"Never."

Dick Charlton took off his jacket and put on his dressing-gown, he lighted his pipe and sat down at his desk to read. A knock at the door. He opened it wide, and found Joan standing outside, the strap of her satin frock slipping down over her arm, and her wild green eyes ablaze with light. Dick grew pale but controlled himself. He couldn't forget what this devilish girl had done to Miss Mudge.

"What do you want?" he demanded.

"I want to speak to you, Dick. I want to tell you I'm sorry. I swear I didn't mean to hurt her—or you. I swear I didn't." "Joan I hope never to see you again as long as I live," said Dick, in a voice that stung like a lash.

"Oh, oh, Dick, you can't mean it! You can't have forgotten our night together."

"I've forgotten everything except your unkindness."

The door moved in her face. "No, no, Dick, don't do that!" She was looking at the closed door. He had meant it, then. It was all over with Dick, who had seemed for a brief space to find her desirable. She knocked at the door again. There was no response. She would go to the bar.

An hour later Joan was on her way to the top deck again, with the vague idea of having a plunge to cool herself off. That idiot Macduff was standing at the top, staring down at her. Now would be as good an occasion as any to tell him what she thought of him. There were times when Joan burned to express her true opinion of some of her fellow passengers and here was a good chance. "Looking for Mrs. Wynant?" she enquired, reeling up against him.

He pushed her off. "No," he said.

"That's funny." She laughed on a piercing note. Macduff regarded her with disgust.

"I don't like your looks," said Joan, "and I don't like the way you're staring at me now. Who do you think you are, anyway? You're scarcely human."

She prodded him in the ribs. Macduff did not move.

"But I like the way you can drink." She grew confidential. "Let's have a brandy together. Come to my room."

"No, thanks."

"All right, big boy. Joan's going to have a swim."

She made a gamine gesture and followed a twisting course to the pool. Macduff watched her, wondering if she weren't tipsy enough to drown. What an appalling girl! Even before she had reached the door she stooped down, caught her frock at the hem and began to pull it over her head. He could see her long, slim legs. The pool was dark, except for the green light in the far corner. Her dress came off and was flung to the floor; then she spread her arms for a dive. He caught a glimpse of her gleaming back in the second before she jumped. He waited for the splash, hoping that it would sober her up. It was his duty to see that she didn't drown.

But no splash came. Only a dull crash that sickened Macduff and hurried his footsteps thru the door that Joan had entered. God in Heaven, the tank was drained! For a moment he shut his eyes then leaned over the edge to look. The green light spread its sickly suffusion and there on the tiles, lay Joan. She was naked except for her beads, garters, stockings and sandals. One of her stockings was half-way down. Her arms were spread like wings. Her face he could not see. It was crushed on the tiles. Slowly he realized that the girl must be dead. Through a mist he saw her dress lying on the floor beside him, flame red, still warm from her body. There was no other trace of her, not a scrap of underwear. She had died as recklessly as she had lived.

The ship was heaving gently, rocking her white body. On every deck people were packing for landing. No one could know that he was standing here alone, guarding a lifeless form. He must do something about it. He must start the horrible chain of machinery moving. Two girls dead across his path! Jenny in the China Sea and the click of her heel on his wall, Joan with her brains dashed out before his eyes. He had sworn to avoid all human contact, yet fate had caught him twice in the orbit of death. Was it punishment for vowing that he would travel alone and apart? Were people not intended to avoid one another and the burden of mutual care? Had he been ducking life and had Angela touched his sensibilities at last? Was there something else that one must heed besides the inviolability of one's solitude and the warmth of a glass of whiskey? Macduff's strong Highland sense of superstition was aroused. Sweat stood on his brow. Thoughts flowed through his mind in molten masses. The numbness of forty years was wearing off, and each nerve was a red-hot needle, coming to life and pricking his flesh. But the moments were flying.

SEVENTY MILES OF TERRACES BUILT ON LAND NEAR ANGELO

San Angelo—Seventy miles of terraces on land where they are necessary as part of a complete water conservation and erosion control system, have been constructed to date on the land of farmers who have signed cooperative agreements with the Soil Conservation Service project at San Angelo, according to R. M. Milhollin, project manager.

Three types of terrace systems are being constructed, Mr. Milhollin said. On deep absorptive land, where no outside water comes into fields, terraces are constructed level with both ends closed. By using this system all water that falls is held on the field.

Where outside water drains onto land that is deep and absorptive, terraces are constructed on the level with alternate ends closed. Each terrace delivers the water to the one below in somewhat the same manner that syrup flows through the old-time syrup vat. These are consequently known as "syrup pan" terraces. This system gives the land benefit of outside water as well as that which actually falls on the field.

On land too shallow or compact to absorb the water that falls on it, level terraces with one end open are used. The open end is for the purpose of emptying excess water onto well-sodded pasture land or otherwise protected areas where there is no danger of erosion. In no case is excess water from terraces being emptied into public roads.

The cooperating land owner or operator carries out his part of the erosion control and water conservation program by closing the terrace ends making fills where terraces cross ditches, plowing around terraces to prevent the ground from becoming hard or baked, harrowing terraces to give them the correct slope, and also does all other team work necessary for completing the system.

CAMPAIGN IS NOW ON TO CURB LOSS FROM SCREW WORM

A state-wide campaign is on in Texas during the year 1936 for decreasing of the injury and dollar losses to the livestock industry in Texas which is annually estimated at from $4,000,000 to $10,000,000 each year due to the destructive pest "The Screw Worm." R. R. Reppert of the A. & M. Extension Service who is co-operating and working with the bureau of Entomology of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, was in Runnels county in a demonstration on preventions and control of the screw worm damage, stated that much of the damage could be prevented by following a few common-sense practices as follows:

1. Do not mark, brand, dehorn, or castrate animals from May 1 to November 15th. If done pine tar oil should be applied and animals kept under observation until all wounds heal.
2. Avoid all injuries.
3. Provide small pasture for screw worm cases and observe daily and treat when necessary.
4. Control ticks.
5. Burn all carcasses promptly, such as cattle, sheep, horses, poultry.
6. Keep a close watch on livestock and treat all cases promptly.
7. Dehorned cattle less likely to develop screw worm infestation.
8. Controlled breeding so that young will be dropped before screw worm season.

Mr. Reppert in a demonstration in treatment of a screw worm case used a commercial grade of Benzol (90 per cent) as a worm killer, and then lightly but thoroughly coated in and around the wound with a good grade of commercial pine-tar oil.

Mr. Reppert stated that the U. S. Department of Agriculture in their experimental work had found for all practical purposes from the standpoint of cheapness and safety that a commercial grade (90 per cent strength) of Benzol was the best killer for worms and a good grade of pine tar oil the best for keeping off flies and healing the wound.

Mr. Lee Seals of Winters and Mr. Hugh Campbell of Ballinger in a statement to County Agent Barton stated that they are finding the Benzol and pine tar a very effective as well as a cheap remedy for the control of screw worm cases.

Mr. Campbell stated that he had used this remedy for a number of years on both cattle, horses and sheep and that he found it slightly slower than chloroform but about three minutes was all the time needed to kill the worms. In giving his experience in killing with the Benzol Mr. Campbell stated that he first cleaned out the wound thoroughly then with a small amount of cotton saturated with Benzol covered the wound and that the gas from the Benzol did the killing in from two to three minutes after which a good smear of pine tar was applied.

Mr. Reppert in a slide lecture after the screw worm demonstration, stated that there is a primary fly that deposit their eggs only on fresh blood, which eggs hatch in from 10 to 12 hours and in 5 to 6 days maggots will be full grown, then they leave the wound or carcass and burrow into the ground and emerge into flies in from 3 to 14 days. There are from 4 to 6

Merri-Maids Honor Goal Diggers Club With Cabaret Dance

Winters Country Club was a scene of gaiety last Friday evening when the members of the Merri-Maids club honored the members of the Goal Diggers club and their escorts with a Cabaret Dance.

The reception room was softly lighted and the decoration carried out the motif of a night club.

Guests were announced at the door by Merle Coward, who was dressed as a "doorman" and they were greeted by the "floor hostess," Mary Lou Fields, who had them shown to their tables by waiters. The waiters, May Dean Collins, Nona Kathryn Inman, Norma West, Jimmie Earl Rogers, Geneva Carey, and Juanita Inman, were dressed in dark trousers and dinner jackets. The "bartenders" Leona Inman and Vivian Cryer, who were dressed in white, presided at a miniature bar. Novie Moreland, dressed in a silver costume acted as cigarette girl.

Estelle Baldwin, mistress of ceremonies, presented the "floor show" which consisted of a "Torch Singer," Frances Miller; tap dance, Dee Edward Pinkerton; song, Floyd Shackelford; solo tap, Norma Jean Hamilton; Spanish Dance, Virginia Logsdon and Norma Jean Hamilton. To conclude the program the Merri-Maids sang their club song.

Lemonade was served at the bar and gingerale and sandwiches were served at tables throughout the evening to Frances Lyle, Harry Dobbs Mandycree Smith, Doyle Pumphrey, Jean Barlow, Floyd Shackelford, Ruby Nell Mosley, Bo McMillan, Marguerite Duncan, Jack Harris, Holyce Weldon, Clois Mapes, Doris Reid, R. C. Bledsoe, Mamie Dell Mapes, Buddy Ramsel, Mozell Barnhill, R. S. Davis, Carl Lesta Davis, Bill Roundtree, Elbertine Robertson, Homer Hodges, Jo Davidson, Charles Gardner, June Marshall, Ewing Wheelless, Mary Maddox, Sedric Poe, Lohma Hoover, Jiggs Terry.

Sponsors were Miss Loyie Korncay, Mildred Spill, Mrs. Alex Sanders, Mrs. Raymond Lloyd and Mrs. Max Rogers.

Presbyterian W.M.S. Social is Held Monday

"Latin America and Spanish Speaking People" was the topic for the program which was given Monday afternoon at the regular social of the Presbyterian Woman's Missionary Society held in the basement of the church. Hostesses were Mesdames J. W. Perkins, Albert Sykes and L. F. Wilson.

Mrs. W. B. Oliver led the program and gave a talk in general on "Latin America;" Mrs. J. W. Joiner gave a map talk on "Spanish Work in the Southwest" and Mrs. Gipson gave a talk on "Gautamala."

The church basement was tastefully decorated in a Spanish theme with Cacti, Yucca plant and Mexican pottery.

At the tea hour the hostess served angel food cake and ice cream to those present.

Recipes And Menus

Denton.—Salads should always be fresh and crisp. At this time of the year a greater number of the vegetables seem more suitable for use in raw salads than at any other time, so let's use them in abundance.

Breakfast: Fresh strawberries, cream, scrambled eggs, hot biscuits, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Cold sliced ham, potato cakes, fresh spinach salad, rolls, apple sauce.

Dinner: Calf's heart with vegetables, steamed rice, cauliflower, salad, rolls, apricot tarts, coffee.

Breakfast: Stewed rhubarb, crisp bacon, toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Cream of spinach soup, crackers, steak sandwich, cucumber salad, tea or milk.

RECIPES

Spinach Salad: Select tender center leaves of spinach. Wash carefully and shred. Marinate 30 minutes in Fresh dressing to which has been added finely chopped onion.

Cauliflower Salad: Slice firm raw cauliflower in thin slices. Combine with finely chopped celery, green pepper, and carrots. Top with French dressing and a sprig of parsley.

Cucumbers in Oil Dressing: Peel and slice cucumbers in paper-thin slices. Soak several hours in cold salt water. Make a dressing of 1-2 tsp. salt, 1 sp. sugar, 1-4 cup vinegar, 1-2 cup salad oil, and 1 small onion chopped fine. Drain cucumbers and cover with dressing. Let stand two hours or more before serving.

Sour Cream Dressing: Mix 1 cup sour cream with 1 T. vinegar and salt and pepper to taste. Dip leaf lettuce or other salad green in salad oil. Remove and dress with the sour cream mixture.

Calf's Heart with Vegetables: 2 calf's hearts, 2 cups stewed tomatoes, 1 cup boiling water, 2 cups sliced carrots, 1 cup peas, 1-2 tsp. salt. Wash hearts thoroughly to remove all the blood, and cut out any arteries. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour and brown in a small amount of fat. Add tomatoes and boiling water. Bring to the boiling point. Cover, set aside and simmer until almost tender—about 1 1-2 hours. Add sliced carrots, peas, and salt and cook 30 minutes longer. Thicken the stock with a little flour mixed to a smooth paste with cold water. Season more if necessary.

Beef a la Shopleigh: Slice leftover roast beef and arrange on service platter. Cover with a combination of sliced celery hearts, diced carrots, chopped sweet pickles and olives.

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

The woman who has time and opportunity to shampoo her hair at home and dry it in the open air and sunshine has no reason to envy others who can spend several dollars a week on their hair. With a few standard preparations and a carefully planned routine the woman who always shampoos and cares for her hair at home can have as healthy a scalp as anyone who goes to a professional for treatments.

Of course the type of shampoo you use is important. It is never wise to rub a cake of soap directly on your hair. If you don't have a liquid soap, you can easily make a supply for yourself. Simply shave a cake of bland soap into a glass jar of lukewarm water and let it stand until the soap is dissolved. When you are ready to wash your hair put a little of the thick soap jelly into a cup and dilute it with warm water.

Warm olive oil rubbed into the scalp on the night before you shampoo your hair will help to keep it soft and in good condition. It is also an excellent practice to massage a stimulating tonic into the scalp while the hair is drying. There are many good tonics on the market. The tonic should be used just before and directly after your weekly shampoo. Part your hair in sections and apply the tonic around the roots, massaging it in well with the fingertips.

You may think it a bit early to be talking about bathing suits with summer week-ends so far ahead. But when there are bulges where there should be curves, an early warning may be helpful. Now is the time to take inventory of your figure. Try donning your bathing suit and see how your tummy stretches it amidstips. A little judicious and careful dieting, with plenty of out-of-doors exercise, and you'll be slim and shapely when summer comes.

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT

One person out of every ten of those employed in the United States draws his or her pay from some government unit, according to a recent report of the National Civil Service Reform League. More than 3,000,000 persons are on Federal, state and local payrolls, and 38 percent of all the tax revenue collected in the United States goes to pay their salaries. The total cost of $4,000,000,000 a year for the administration of public affairs is nearly 7 percent of our estimated national income at present. Seven cents out of every dollar earned by productive workers goes to pay the non-productive.

The number of these government employees is increasing instead of decreasing. One single new permanent agency of the Federal Government, the Social Security Board, has announced that it will employ 11,675 persons during the next year, and that is only a beginning.

Our whole political party system is based upon putting party workers on the public payrolls. All efforts to eliminate the number of tax-eaters fail in the face of the desire of politicians in power to strengthen their local, state or national party organizations. The politician who stands the best chance of being re-elected to any office is the one who can put the largest number of his followers on jobs at the taxpayers' expense. Competence counts for less and political usefulness for more under such conditions.

Doubtless we must have government, but beyond doubt we can pay too high a price for it.

OUR SOUTH AMERICAN FRONTIER

The dream of a great motor highway from the northern border of the United States to the southern tip of South America is rapidly on its way to realization. The road to Mexico City is nearly completed. Work has been begun by several nations south of Mexico. Our Federal government has offered to give $400,000 to the governments of Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama, to build bridges for this Pan-American highway.

To the United States, and particularly to our young men of ambition and enterprise, this new frontier is a wide door opening to new frontiers. The greatest opportunities for the pioneer spirit which made America what it is, lie to the south of us. Never before has there been such a feeling of friendliness between the nations of South America and our own country. The Pan-American Airways has done much to promote this feeling.

Americans are welcome as never before in the vast undeveloped regions of the Southern Hemisphere. Where once the people of the Spanish-American republics looked to Germany for the development of their natural resources, to Great Britain for their capital investments and to Italy for their new population, they are now turning their eyes to the United States. American motor cars, American electrical equipment, American shoes, American commodities generally, are gaining new footholds in the South American market, and Americans of spirit and energy are made to feel at home. There are still great unreal-

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, May 20. — It is easy to poke fun at the august representatives of the people of the United States sitting in Congress assembled on Capitol Hill, and it is quite reasonable at times, to ridicule the peculiar antics in which both the Senate and the House of Representatives frequently indulge, especially as election time approaches and the boys are talking for the voters in their home districts.

But once in a while the Senate of the United States justifies its proud boast of being "the greatest deliberative body in the world." It is showing signs now of qualities more statesmanlike than it has exhibited for a long time. The House, in effect, threw up its hands when it came to consideration of the new tax bill and tossed into the Senate's lap a document upon which both friends and foes of the Administration for once find themselves in agreement. They were unanimous in declaring the bill providing for taxing undistributed corporate surpluses to be a hastily thrown together mass of incomprehensible and unworkable clauses.

Senate Goes to Work

The Senate Finance Committee has gone at the job in a serious way. It has practically discarded everything that the House did. More than that, it has gone down to the bottom of the whole question, as to whether any kind of a tax upon corporate surpluses would yield an increase in government revenues over those obtainable under present tax laws, as well as whether such a law, of general application, would not work to the benefit of the big corporations and seriously injure smaller enterprises.

The Senate Committee has listened with great seriousness to analyses of the proposed measure, by friends and foes alike. One by one, Senators who had earlier declared themselves in favor of the plan have announced that they had been convinced by the array of facts and arguments against it, until now it seems reasonably certain that the Senate will produce a tax measure which will work, and which will not result in handicapping business enterprise.

While the suggestion of this new method of taxation was originally made by the President, it is understood that he has told the Senators of the Finance Committee that they can do as they think best, so long as they bring out a bill that will yield the $620,000,000 additional revenue the Government needs. Inside the Administration, as a matter of fact, the original plan had no friends except among a very small group of Treasury advisors. More or less openly the President's strongest supporters are expressing their opposition. The best judgment here is that the outcome will be a moderate increase in general corporation taxes and a very moderate step in the direction of taxing corporate surpluses, instead of relying upon the latter tax to raise all of the required additional revenue.

Rival Keynoters Discuss Political Conventions

WASHINGTON. — Above are the two men who will sound political keynotes which will get Republican and Democratic conventions under way during June. On the left is Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky who will be the 1936 Democratic keynoter at Philadelphia, June 23 and on the right is Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon, Republican keynoter at Cleveland, June 9.

of fact, the original plan had no friends except among a very small group of Treasury advisors. More or less openly the President's strongest supporters are expressing their opposition. The best judgment here is that the outcome will be a moderate increase in general corporation taxes and a very moderate step in the direction of taxing corporate surpluses, instead of relying upon the latter tax to raise all of the required additional revenue.

Convention Talk

The political pot boils with increasing vigor as convention time approaches. Discussion is shifting from the question as to who will be the Republican candidate toward his chances of election, whoever he may be. Gov. Landon's friends are claiming that the defeat of the Hearst-Merriam effort to elect Landon-instructed delegates in California has helped the Kansas Governor's chances. Opinions differ sharply on that. The view is held by some experienced observers that the result of the California primaries brings Mr. Hoover more strongly into the convention picture, not so much as a candidate as an influence, and Mr. Hoover's influence will be against Gov. Landon's nomination.

Whoever the Republicans may nominate, he will have to carry 15 doubtful states, if the political observers are right. The best of these give Mr. Roosevelt 248 electoral votes from the states which are regarded as certain to go Democratic. The Republicans are conceded only 72 sure electoral votes. It takes 266 electoral votes to carry the election. There are 211 electoral votes in the 15 states which are regarded as doubtful. In some of these states the shift of only a few thousand votes from the Democrats to the Republicans, compared with 1932, would suffice to carry them. They are: New York, Connecticut; New Jersey; Maryland; Ohio; Michigan;

Indiana; Illinois; Iowa; South Dakota; Nebraska; Kansas; Wyoming; Colorado and Idaho.

The GOP Problem

Republican politicians studying these figures are, naturally, more concerned about the agricultural West than about the industrial East. The Republicans, however, must carry New York to win, while Mr. Roosevelt could be elected without it if he could carry three or four of the larger Middle Western states in addition to those of which he seems to be assured.

The nominations for President and Vice-President and the framing of the Republican platform will be done with a constant eye on these figures. The Party's candidates must be men who have the best apparent chance of winning the support of voters in the agricultural states without being offensive to the voters of the Eastern industrial states, while the platform must be progressive enough to please the agrarian West without being radical enough to offend the conservative East.

The situation is complicated by the fact that all the recent and most accurate polls of political opinion indicate that the President's greatest strength is in the big cities and the western

WE OWN AMERICA

One day in a debate with Stephen A. Douglas, Abraham Lincoln said: "In this and like communities, public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed; consequently, he who molds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions. He makes statutes or decisions possible or impossible to be executed."

That paragraph ought to be printed and hung on the wall of every business man's office this year. It is a timely and powerful reminder that the United States is in fact a democracy, and that any man or institution which disregards that fundamental truth is headed for disaster.

Men gather around banquet tables or in directors' rooms and figure that their stockholders control so many million dollars worth of property and that they are, therefore, the owners of America.

They are not the owners of America. They are merely public servants whom the 130,000,000 owners of America, have employed to make some automobiles for them, or run some railroads, or manufacture some clothing, or print some newspapers.

Men gather in learned conferences at universities and tacitly assume that the population can be divided into a small group of "thinking people" (important people) and a large group of "unthinking people" (unimportant people.)

But there are no unimportant people. There are 130,000,000 people, and almost every adult in that 130,000,000 has a vote.

Chiding the people does no good; upbraiding them for this or that is only a waste of time; it is impertinent. The only thing that counts is to win them. They "make statutes or decisions possible or impossible to be executed." They make businesses or destroy them.

They own America and they do not intend to give it up.

MEET TWO SMART BROTHERS

I know two smart brothers, now in their early sixties, who are about as different as two human beings can be.

The older brother never liked business and stayed in it just long enough to acquire a competence, whereupon he established himself in the country to read books, consort with "liberal thinkers" and to do a little desultory writing. The younger merged his company into a bigger one, and today is a "captain of industry."

Each has expressed himself in puzzled fashion about the other. The retired brother says: "Joe

Rubinoff Holds World Record for Broadcasting

Rubinoff and his violin—and Chevrolet—are a combination that few, if any, radio listeners in the United States have not received in their homes via the air. The famous violinist and his Stradivarius, stars of the Chevrolet Musical Moments programs, have the distinction of going on the air from more broadcasting stations than any other program in the history of radio. Three hundred and seventy-eight stations broadcast Rubinoff three times a week, a total of 1134 fifteen-minute programs. That figures out at 283 hours, and if one week's programs were broadcast one after the other, day and night, it would require 11 days. The illustration shows Rubinoff, carrying his precious violin, posing with his car after a special appearance at Detroit.

CREWS (Delayed)

A Mothers' Day program was given at 10 o'clock Sunday morning at the Baptist church. Sunday school was omitted at both churches for the program. Elder H. B. Carraway preached to a large audience following the program. B. Y. P. U. and church were well attended Sunday night.

Our school closed a very successful term Friday. Some splendid programs were rendered. A general school program was given Thursday night. The graduating exercises were Friday night. Sessions and members of the senior class and seventh grade marched in and took their place on the stage. Rev. Carraway led the invocation. Misses Evelyn Payne and Lorena Bradley sang a duet, "High School Days Are Over."

Beatrice Foster then spoke for the seventh grade, Carlos Lollar, valedictorian of senior class, gave a splendid talk for the seniors.

Mr. Horace B. Sessions of Ballinger, then addressed the class, making a splendid talk.

Mr. Rucker, principal, then introduced the seventh grade pupils, Doris King, Louise Blackman, Beatrice Foster, Helen Elms, J. T. Carraway, Vernon and Howard Lollar, Bradley Pape, Henry Miles, J. C. Fuller, Junior Whitley, C. J. Poindexter, and Leo Shelton; and spoke a few encouraging words to them.

MODERN WOMEN

CHARL'ORMOND WILLIAMS
President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

We learn from Mary V. Dempsey, an authority on the occupational progress of women, that in 1930 there were 1,000 or more women engaged in 208 occupations, an increase of 43 occupations in twenty years. Miss Dempsey has written a pamphlet, "The Occupational Progress of Women," for the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor giving statistics from 1910 to 1930. The pamphlet is filled with interesting figures. One is that school teachers advanced from fourth place in 1910 to second place in 1930, and stenographers and typists, the third occupation, from a numerical standpoint in 1930, ranked eighth in 1910.

Dr. Eveline M. Burns, a lecturer in economics at Columbia University and widely known in women's organizations, has just been elected vice president of the American Association for Social Security. Her work on the program of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia last summer, when she directed and organized the round table on economic security, is well remembered by all who attended that gathering in which women for the first time had actual program leadership.

At the "Parade of the Years," an outdoor drama of transportation written by Edward Hungerford to celebrate Cleveland's centenary as a city, Marguerite Chaffee Kent will for the first time play the role of narrator. Photo-murals are becoming more and more in demand for wall decorations. Effects range from views of land and seashore to simple Japanese floral groups, enlarged to fill an entire wall space. Lizzi von Miklos, Viennese photographer, is one of the pioneers in this dramatic form of room treatment.

After hearing from one college authority that men change their minds oftener than women, it is not surprising to learn that they can ask more questions. We are indebted to Miss Harriet Root, Chief of the United States Bureau of Information, for this news. The bureau which she heads is staffed by 15 women and one man, a clerk, and answers about 4,500 questions a month. Miss Root says their best source of information is the "Statistical Abstract of the United States," though she keeps a file of all sorts of charts, pamphlets, lists and directories. Miss Root thinks that some of the questions men ask are inspired by their wives.

Old Runnels County Record, Printed

COPIES NOW AT THE WINTERS FREE LIBRARY

in the Early Eighties, Is on Display

Beginning Saturday, the 23rd of May, each Library day for a month, the old Runnels County Record, the oldest paper published in Runnels county will be on display at the Library for any one to read who is interested in the news, literary and growth of our county since April the 21st, 1882. Many poems, copied from other newspapers and probably no longer in print may be found in these old newspapers. In fact we have decided that the newspapers of a community give more actual information than any other source of literature. And newspapers certainly should be considered literature.

Copying from The Runnels County Record dated May 20, 1882, we find a paragraph that exactly states the facts not only of that time but of newspapers right in our county today.

The Newspaper
"The universal literature of our people—its becoming a library of knowledge and art. No man could read habitually only one of our chief newspapers without an immense opening of his horizon of thought, a great quickening of his intellect, and a substantial relation with the thought and feeling of the world. The difference between a man who can read well enough to enjoy his paper and one who cannot is hardly to be estimated. I suppose our newspaper education is the most influential of all in this country. But it depends for improvement on the preparation of its use in our common schools. It is a great mistake to speak lightly of newspapers. The press, I think, has a somewhat romantic and exaggerated idea of its supremacy in creating of public opinion, but in its general educational influence, its stimulus for thought, it has a certain tendency to create a taste for better reading than it can itself supply. I do not believe it is easy to overrate its national importance.—Rev. Dr. Bellows".

The spring of 1882 must have been much like this one fifty-four years later as another item from the news of the same date shows:

News From Buffalo Gap
"Times are quite dull in this section at present. Had a freeze the middle of April that killed nearly all the crops. Wheat was looking fine but is ruined and will make nothing. Corn has been planted over. Have been needing rain badly. A day or two since had a light rain. Stock is doing well. A good many selling cattle and buying sheep. Taylor county will soon have a full supply of sheep. There are quite a number of men hunting runaway horses."

Except for the last sentence that news from a village correspondent might have been written on May 20th, 1935 instead of fifty-four years ago.

And the fact that the Runnels County Record had a contributor of news from Buffalo Gap indicates that Buffalo Gap had not then reached the stage in its growth of having a newspaper. Does any old settler have evidence to the contrary? If so I would like to display such in the library.

Besides the many items of news that now have a historical value in this one issue from the file of oldest papers is a truly literary gem which space forbids my copying, but the heading to the poem is given exactly as the Record copied it from the Washington Republican.

"I Have Sinned and I Have Suffered." The first line in the following is the refrain of an unwritten poem recited to a friend by John Howard Payne, author of Home Sweet Home," just before his death in Algiers."

The poem as printed in the Record is an uplifting inspiration to any Christian besides the literary value that an unpublished poem by its famous author would give.

In fact the reading of these old newspapers has caused one library patron to express the intention of saving a file of current newspapers. Everyone interested in these old papers is cordially invited to come and read these files each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon for the next five weeks, and if notebook and pencil are brought may copy any interesting poems or desired information they contain.

—Mrs. R. H. MacFarland.

Rev. and Mrs. M. C. Bishop and daughter of Post, were here the first of the week visiting his brothers, Messrs. Emmett and R. A. Bishop.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bourn visited relatives and friends in Merkel the first of the week.

H. H. Low and family have moved to San Angelo where they will make their home. Mr. Low being employed in the Naylor Hotel barber shop.

On Texas Farms

Texas farmers and ranchmen are now engaged making out work sheets and planning their 1936 cropping under the new Soil Conservation program. Stretch your imagination as to what kind of conversations are going on around the farm home tables of Texas. Don't you think they are something like this?

"Papa," the mother of the family is saying, "don't forget when you make out that sheet on the cropping plan for 1936 that the Extension Service says we will need 20 bushels of corn per person to feed the chickens and pigs and other critters we use for food—I mean 20 bushels allowed for every person in this family that has to be fed. Now don't you forget that. You have to figure out how many acres it will take to give us that."

"And we need an acre of garden for the whole family, too. We never have had an acre of garden, but we could have. And you know we have never had enough potatoes, and peas and beans to last us all winter either. This year we can raise them and learn how to store them, and they will be a big help to us. Besides that, I want some herbs like my grandmother use to have. They have to have a place that doesn't get plowed up every year, and if we have an acre of garden we can have a place in there. And we can have an asparagus bed, too, that does not get plowed up. And we need 70 bushels of corn for every work critter we have."

"Ma," the head of the family may say, "You know we never have fed old Beck any 70 bushels of corn in a year. What is the use of putting it down now? Might get some money from the Government for that land if we don't plant it in corn."

"No you won't either," the lady of the house can reply. "You just as well plant it for old Beck because the county agricultural agent came before our home demonstration council and told us the Government was not going to pay any farmer for any land that he took out of corn if his work stock and his folks didn't have enough. And the Government don't think you've got enough unless you've got the 20 bushels for every person like I was talking about, and 70 bushels apiece for each head of work stock."

"I tell you what you can get money for though, Papa, and that is if you plant me a nice pretty grass lawn all around the house, you can get paid for that at the same rate you get paid for planting grass in the pasture.

"All my life I've been wanting a lawn. It looks so cool like. And it helps keep the house from being so dirty. And the children don't get their clothes near as dirty if they play on the grass as when they play in the dirt. It makes the washing easier."

"Besides that, everybody that passes the house would say, 'Look at that pretty lawn,' like they do when they pass Mrs. Jones' place. Now, her house isn't a bit better than ours, but it looks a lot better because she has that lawn around it that looks like a great, green, velvet carpet."

"Papa, when you sign up that cropping plan with the county agricultural agent, sign up for an acre of lawn around the house, won't you please?"

Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Toney and baby of Plainview spent the first of the week visiting Mrs. Toney's sister, Mrs. Floyd Smith in the A. L. Smith home.

FAIRS ideas

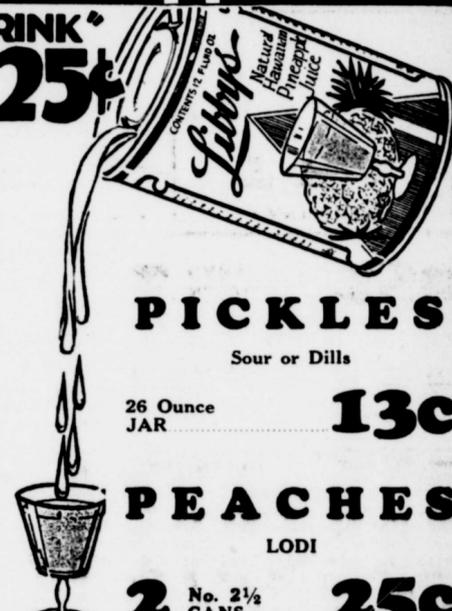

New York is all set now to hold the largest World's Fair ever staged, in 1939. It will be the first truly international exposition to be held in America since the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco in 1915.

The first World's Fair was the Crystal Palace Exposition in London in 1851. Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's husband, inspired it. He thought that British industrialists and businessmen were behind those of the Continent in many ways. Bringing industrial and commercial exhibits to London might stimulate British industry he thought.

The results proved that he was right. Britain's great industrial and artistic development really began with that World's Fair of 1851.

The real purpose of a genuine World's Fair is to stimulate the interchange among nations not only of goods but of ideas.

Wrecks Tugwell is asking for some more from Congress. His general idea seems to be to set up the dollar sign and any digit followed by a necklace string of zeros.
