Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary is Observed Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hall, Pioneer Citizens Here

THIRTY-TWO WERE PRESENT FOR THE DINNER HELD AT HOTEL WINTERS WITH EIGHT CHILDREN OF COUPLE PRESENT.

Observing the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hall, residents of Runnels county since 1900, were hosts Tuesday to all of their children except one, Gaines E. Hall of Oklahoma City, who was unable to attend. Thirty-two members of the family were present for the day, and a few close friends and neighbors called during the day.

Reserving the entire dining room at Hotel Winters, the family gathered around the festive board which was appropriately decorated with golden hued flowers and lighted tapers of a golden shade. A son, Rev. Ralph J. Hall of Albuquerque, New Mexico, was master of ceremonies for the informal program which consisted of impromptu speeches, songs and a reading "Your Name" by a granddaughter, Lila Black of Barstow. The wedding cake was made and decorated by Mrs. George B. Hall of Abilene. The children presented Mrs. Hall with a gold wrist watch and their father a new chain for his watch. Mr. Hall, in a few well chosen words, placed a wedding band on the finger of his wife. The couple received many other nice gifts.

Mrs. P. A. Black, a daughter, presented members of the family a copy of the family tree which dated back to 1703 when the Halls came to America from Ireland. It contained a poem "Fifty Years Together" which was dedicated to the honored couple.

W. W. Hall was born in Titus County near Mt. Pleasant, July 21, 1866, and Miss Sarah Fort was born in Arkansas, November 4, 1866. With their parents they later made their home at Turnersville, in Coryell county.

Sally Rand to Introduce New Dance in Texas

Fort Worth, May 27. — The World's largest square dance will be the finale for the Last Frontier, one of the major attractions at the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial which opens July 1. Approximately 500 cowboys and cowgirls will dance in this spectacle.

Cowboy boots and ten-gallon hats will also contrast as dancing garb with the feathery, metallic and sheer costumes to be worn by other dancers and the electric flames which will be substituted for her fans by Sally Rand in the dance she will present for the first time at the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial which opens July 1.

A special audition was conducted for square dancers at the Hotel Texas here Tuesday night by Billy Rose who has made several trips to the square dances conducted around Fort Worth in search of talent for the Last Frontier one of the major attractions at the Centennial playground he is creating in Fort Worth.

With the square dances in the Last Frontier, acrobatic dancing in Jumbo ballet, tap and other forms of stage dancing in the Casa Manana along with Sally Rand's new creation, the evolution of dancing will be shown at the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial.

1,300 FARMERS IN COUNTY SIGN FARM PROGRAM

FARMERS FIND THAT PEAS WILL GROW IN COUNTY.

County Agent Barton said yesterday that there had been 1,300 farmers in Runnels county to sign for the new farm program, as compared with 2,200 working under the Bankhead law last year.

Time for signing up for the new program has been extended to June 10, however, those still desiring to sign up must come to the county agent's office in the court house at Ballinger. Mr. Barton and assistants have spent seventeen days in the field over the county in the sign-up campaign for the convenience of farmers.

The state board is urging all farmers to make out a work-sheet. It makes out a work-sheet, he will have all summer to comply and is under no obligation in signing the sheet. But if work sheet is not signed, he will be unable to obtain a grant later on, Mr. Barton stated.

Farmers are finding that peas will grow in this section, Mr. Barton said, and he was urging that more peas be planted.

J. D. Smith bought 400 or 500 hundred pounds of seed, planted them and the seeds are up and doing well. Others are having the same experience, said Mr. Barton.

The county agent's office, community and county committees are interested in having all farmers who have signed a work sheet to at least plant a few acres of peas to see if they will grow. Another feature, farmers may plant blackeyed, white cream and brown Crowder peas, varieties which are excellent for canning, eating fresh and drying for winter use. Rules permit farmers to pick peas for home use, drying or canning, or pick and sell them if they desire.

Mae West and Victor McLaglen Score In "Klondike Annie," Lusty Tale of Gold-Rush Days, at Queen Theatre

CHARLES STARRETT, NEWEST OF SCREEN'S WILD WEST HEROES, IS STARRED IN "GALLANT DEFENDER," SHOWING FRI.-SAT.

Paramount's gift to humanity, blonde Mae West, moves into the Queen Theatre Saturday at the midnight preview, Sunday and Monday, in her newest contribution to the reconstruction of the glamorous '90's—"Klondike Annie." "Gallant Defender," Peter B. Kyne's popular adventure classic, will be on view at the Queen today in the picture-version of this famous novel with Charles Starrett in the title role. Otto Kruger and Martha Sleeper will be featured together in "Two Sinners" showing Tuesday and Wednesday. A refreshingly new treatment of the conflict between marriage and career is given in "I Dream Too Much," debut picture of Lily Pons will be the featured attraction Thursday.

"Klondike Annie"

The story begins on San Francisco's famed Barbary Coast in its lustiest days, and winds up in Alaska during the fabulous Gold Rush. Mae West entertains 'em in Frisco and in the Yukon with equal ease. In Frisco she is held virtually a captive by a jealous lover, and when she escapes, he tries to stop her by force. In the struggle he is killed. Mae flees to a steamer awaiting her in the harbor. The vessel is commanded by Victor McLaglen, a tough old salt who is immediately entranced by his fair passenger. He sets out under full steam for Alaska, stopping at one port to pick up additional passengers. Among them a girl missionary bound for Nome to bring the Word of God to that turbulent city. She and Mae become friends and Mae is much grieved when the girl dies at sea. When officers come aboard the vessel to capture Mae she dresses in the missionary's clothes and escapes but when she reaches the Yukon she is forced to carry out the posse.

"Gallant Defender"

The film is an exciting drama of the bitter feud that existed on the American range between the cattlemen who wanted the land for grazing and the homesteaders who wanted farm land. Joan Perry plays opposite Charles Starrett, with Harry Woods, Ed Le Saint, George Billings, and a large cast in support. Pal, the magnificent white horse which Charles Starrett rides is a pure-blooded Arabian valued at fifteen hundred dollars. His silver mounted trappings of hand engraved cowhide cost more than five thousand dollars and were more than three months in the making.

"Two Sinners"

The background is post-war England and France. In this setting Otto Kruger, Martha Sleeper, Cora Sue Collins and Ferdinand Munier tell the story of a man and a woman who after suffering unjustly from the world's criticism, finally attain happiness because of their true love for each other and their mutual self-sacrifice. The cast names are well known and the direction of Arthur Lubin keeps the action moving continuously. The photoplay and production values are first rate.

"I Dream Too Much"

Lily Pons portrays a little French girl whose glorious voice sweeps her to unwanted fame which her young American husband cannot share. The manner in which she escapes the fetters of fame to attain her ambition of being just a wife and mother is said to be as novel and amusing as it is charged with poignant heart appeal. Youthful Henry Fonda, Hollywood's "man of the hour" is seen as the husband. Osgood Perkins and Eric Blone have other principal roles. Miss Pons sings not only operatic arias, but four popular songs composed especially for the picture by Jerome Kern and Dorothy Fields.

State Soil Conservation Committee Releases Some Recently New Rulings

College Station—Three supplementary recommendations of the Texas State Committee of the Soil Conservation program have been approved by the Secretary of Agriculture, it was announced today by A. L. Smith, executive secretary of the State Committee, and Jack Shelton, vice director and state agent of the Texas Extension Service.

The first of the recommendations approved is that the term "soil-conserving crops" has been ruled to mean any crop on crop land upon which an approved soil-building practice is carried out in 1936, and from which no soil-depleting crop is harvested in 1936.

The second recommendation that was approved for the State of Texas states that sorghum or millet when seeded on crop land between January 1, 1936 and July 31, 1936, if all the crop is left on the land or plowed under, will be regarded as a soil-conserving crop.

The third approved recommendation is in regard to a soil-building practice which states that any sorghum, sudan grass or millet will receive a soil-

The frock is simply cut with waist and brief sleeves in one piece. A cute Peter Pan collar gives the tailored effect and for a touch of feminine charm a flower may be worn with it in place of the usual tie. Lines through waist and hips are slender and youthful. PROMENADE DECK

by Isabel Ross

SYNOPSIS . . . A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining . . . and tragic . . . Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls . . . These characters are aboard the ship: Macduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife, and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship . . . and his soul . . . NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

FINAL INSTALLMENT

Joan was dead, but things did not end there. He must rouse Dick Charlton, who was obviously the person to handle this. A knock on his door brought Dick out, his book still in his hand. "Come quick," Charlton, said Macduff, "Joan Foster is dead. She jumped into the pool. It was drained, for landing tomorrow." For once in his life, words tumbled from Macduff's lips without deliberation. His eyes were bloodshot behind the impersonal glare of his spectacles. Dick went white and caught at his arm. Without a word he followed Macduff across the corridor and passed from brilliant light into the darkness of the pool. Briefly he hung over the edge, then covered his face with his hand. Macduff stretched out an arm and gripped him round the shoulders.

"It's all right, old man," he said, realizing that the girl had meant something in Charlton's life. "It would have been hell for her, had she lived."

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Theford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Theford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

"She came to my room to-night. I shut the door in her face." The words were squeezed through Dick's closed teeth. He pulled himself together. He was the chief officer. "I must report at once to Captain Baring," he said, automatically.

Once more Dick looked at Joan, whose pale body was moving softly with the rise and fall of the boat. Her rhinestones shone like cat's eyes through the green gloom. A dark trickle spread over the tiles.

Macduff went down to his cabin, which was as austere as when he had sailed. He had spurned the spears of Borneo, the leopard skins of Darjeeling, the mandarin robes of China, and was landing empty-handed. He turned on all the lights, to shake off the feeling that he had been staring for hours into darkened cave. The sea rolled smoothly under the portholes, but the night was black and moonless. With an effort he forced the dead girl out of his thoughts. In a few hours now he would be back in Gramercy Park. Angela would be on her way to England as he was reaching home. Would her heart stand the strain of her meeting with Wynant? Would the cad consider her health in his anxiety to shake her off, now that he had met a seventeen-year-old whom he wanted to marry? Strange, strange, thought Macduff for the hundredth time, that a woman like Angela should love a man like Wynant! And Jenny wild about Rumford, wild enough to have squeezed herself out through the porthole for love of him. Macduff got up and examined the brass ring. How in hell had she managed to do it? That was something he never would be able to understand. He'd see how far he could push himself through, and what the water was like from a porthole at night. Catching the rim, he pulled himself up by his arms. His head went out, and he saw the water below, smooth as black marble, but he could get no farther. His shoulders balked him at once. "Thin as she was," he thought. "I still don't see how she did it. She must have had nerve, and the strength of desperation."

With a sharp recoil he thought of Joan again, and wondered if her body were still being rocked on the tiles. He began to undress, hanging his tie on the rack, folding his trousers carefully, putting his coat on a hanger. Every move took time. At last he donned his striped pajamas and pulled down the covers of his brass bed. Climbing between the sheets, he lay on his side, smoking and thinking. Tomorrow they would land. A damned nuisance, customs and all that bother! Angela wouldn't be there, but on her way to England. How strangely Joan's beads had flashed in the green light! The only thing about her that had seemed alive. Macduff reached out for his bottle and poured himself a wee doch-and-dorrach. He downed it straight and put out the lights, but his pipe still glowed in the dark. Angela was an exceptional woman. She made him feel at times that life was superb, and that he could write much better if she were always near him. Without any talk, she inspired a man to effort. The glow of his pipe grew feebler. At last he banged it out on the washstand, sighed and settled himself for sleep. He could hear a grinding below, that crunching sound of the anchor chain he had heard so often lately, an always for new ports, new scenes, new faces. The engines were in reverse the boat was swinging around. They must be at Quarantine! That meant home. They would lie there for the rest of the night. Macduff rolled over to the wall. The throbbing ceased at last, and stillness descended on the ship, broken by the laughter and cries of the last night revellers. Their voices, drowned before the pounding sound of the boat in motion, were strangely strident now. The flying steps of excited girls could be heard along the corridors. Everything seemed extraordinarily clear, now that the ship had anchored. Macduff felt as if he had emerged from the Cave of the Winds. At last he fell asleep.

Angela's name was on his lips when he wakened five hours later, looking as hard as a rock, sober and fresh. His first thought was, "I'll soon be saying good-bye." Then he remembered Joan, with a catch of his breath. Ghastly! He was sorry for Charlton. When his steward came with his coffee, he cursed him because it was cold. Dressing himself with care, he selected the dark green tie that Angela had helped him to buy in Manila. He walked along the corridor and out on the deck, to find that they were moving slowly up the bay in the haze of the early morning. The shore and the water seemed deadly dull after the sharp contrasts of the tropics. There was nothing in the neutral landscape to excite the eye until the skyscrapers came into view. The passengers did not look like themselves this morning, for they were all togged out in their city clothes. The celebrants of the night before were slowly coming to life, feeling sick and depressed. Couples who would soon be parted hung together at the rail, watching the encroaching shore line with dismay. One youth was fumbling trying to say good-bye to a girl whom he now adored. Soon he would be meeting his bride of a year, and their baby, born a month ago. His hand plucked nervously at his companion's coat. Their glances were telling their story, but nobody cared. Angela was there—cool, composed, in a small black hat, with a fur around her shoulders. Her face was drained of color. As usual, she had dreamed through the night of Jenny's face and her thin, pale hands clutching at the water. It dawned on Macduff that none of them knew about Joan, not even Angela. He moved over towards her.

"Good-morning, Angela."

"Macduff, I'm glad to see you. I was afraid you were sleeping in. I wanted you to watch the skyline with me. It's thrilling."

"I'm sorry to see it," said Macduff, gloomily.

"Not really?"

"Yes, really."

They stood close together and watched the buildings swimming into view—tall grey spires, glittering through the morning haze, like a gigantic fresco flung against the sky. Angela could imagine thousands of people going to work, typewriters clicking behind the myriad panes of glass and captains of industry starting out on their daily tasks.

"An exciting city!" she exclaimed.

"Yes, if you get what you want in it," Macduff conceded. "I shall feel quite dull when I get back to my tulips and roses, knowing that, all over the world, Japanese and Chinese and Filipinos and Hindu are doing these strange things we have seen them at, with everyone grasping for a little bit of happiness near at hand. And in America the great panacea is work, isn't it?"

"One simply has to work in New York or perish of boredom and disapproval," Macduff observed.

Angela's thoughts were centered on Macduff, who was looking profoundly miserable. She hated to leave him. Such a good friend, such a good companion! Her black-gloved hand touched his sleeve.

"Macduff, I think we must say good-bye."

"Not good-bye, Angela." His lips were stiff with cold.

"Yes, my dear, at once! Now leave me before I burst into tears. I shall see you some time in England."

Macduff caught and held her hand. He raised it slowly to his chest and his eyes burned into hers.

"Angela," he said, "I—well,

Macduff caught and held her hand. He raised it slowly to his chest and his eyes burned into hers.

"Angela," he said, "I—well, goodbye!" he snapped and turned his back on her.

The gangplank was down. He walked across it in time to see Johnny embraced by his father, and to hear him say: "Dad, this is Patty, your future daughter-in-law." He saw Johnny's father catch her hands, and Patty's piquant face turned up to him, sweet and eager.

"Good-bye, Mr. Macduff," Johnny shouted. "We're going to send you an invitation to our wedding."

"Good-bye and good luck," Macduff responded, cursing as he made his way to the letter M in the customs shed. Halfway down the wharf he noticed Dick talking ardently to a girl in powder blue. She was handing him a card with an address, while she devoured him with her eyes. He remembered now that it had been like this at every port, always a girl waiting for Dick—except at Bombay, where he had devoted himself so disastrously to Miss Mudge.

Angela would be across the docks and on her other boat now, finding her way to a new stateroom. He felt like driving back to see her again to tell her some of the things that were welling up within him. Better not to see her again, better to see her sometime later in England, wait for her life to straighten out. He wished that he could help her over the difficult bit that was coming. She looked so calm when he left her on the boat, and the only woman he had ever known who was clever enough to accept a crushing blow without showing her distress.

He did not like being at home. He had nowhere to sit, and even his bookshelves looked unfriendly. He glanced over the titles and came to rest on one of his own books. That made him think of his typewriter, which was still in its dusty corner among his papers, safe from Susannah's cleaning. She did not dare to touch his papers. He opened it up and started to type, but his fingers were stiff from lack of practice. There was nothing to write. His mind was a blank. The bloody flatness of everything! His thoughts went round in circles—the boat, Angela, cherry blossoms, the mists of Darjeeling, the elephants at Kandy, Johnny and Patty, Jenny squeezing her way into the China Sea, Joan crushed at the bottom of the tank, Angela, Angela! He covered his face with his hands to ward off the spectres that haunted him now. Macduff was stung at last to suffering; alive as he had never been alive before. This, then, was the way that Angela had felt about Lovat, and Jenny about Rumford, and Joan about Dick. It was easier to understand things now.

In desperation he went to the window and looked out at Gramercy Park, a sight that had often soothed him in years gone by. A long, deep whistle stopped his brooding. That would be Angela's ship sailing at noon. He moved to the door. Too late now! She would be gone. He sank wearily on his ruined chair, and in a blinding flash Macduff knew that there could be no life for him now without Angela.

The Washington Whirlpool

BY FRASER EDWARDS

Washington, D. C., May 27—In search of a set-up for President Roosevelt "Sunny Jim" Farley very naturally concedes the Republican nomination to Gov. Alf M. Landon, but the "best minds" in the GOP still believe it would be nothing short of political suicide to select the synthetic statesman from Kansas as the party standard bearer.

The Landonites, as might be expected, flew into a fury over the lefthanded compliments paid to the "nonentity" from a typical prairie state by the Democratic National Chairman, but in contrast with the bitter things said about Alf by his own party cohorts, Farley's faint praise sounded terms of endearment.

Although most unbiased observers now agree that the Hearst publicity campaign for Landon has given him such a psychological advantage, if not actual delegate strength in the convention, that nothing can stop him, the practical Republican practitioners insist the Kansan will be nominated only over their prostrate forms.

Not only the independent Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, whose opposition to Landon is based upon his "big business" connections, but a flock of Republicans who pride themselves upon their party regularity, are prepared to parade the Kansan's political pedigree before the Cleveland convention in a last ditch fight to prevent his nomination.

"The Lion of Idaho" may shake the Landon boom considerably when he goes on the air for a final pre-convention blast, but the most damaging blows to the Kansan are expected to come from Carl G. Bachman, of West Virginia, chairman of the Borah-for-President Committee. He has assembled enough anti-Landon material, which when put into one package constitutes nothing less than T. N. T.

Whether the "regular" Republicans will come out in the open and rip into Landon remains to be seen. They have been working under cover spreading poison about the Kansan. For fear Landon might be nominated anyhow, and their propaganda against the candidate would destroy the admittedly slim GOP chances, they would prefer to submarine him than blow him out of the water with a broadside.

This type of anti-Landon propaganda is confined chiefly to revealing the Kansan's weakness in his own balliwick. They point out that opposition candidates for governor in 1932 received nearly twice as many votes as Alf and Herbert Hoover "the worst defeated presidential candidate either party ever had nominated" ran 70,000 votes ahead of Landon in Kansas.

The loss of confidence on the part of Republican leaders and their present defeatist psychology and the contrasting cockiness of the New Dealers, is attributed by the "regulars" to the lead Landon has taken in the Republican sweepstakes. When the Republicans put up their weakest man, they say the Democrats have every reason to rejoice.

Another disturbing factor to the "regulars" is Hearst's espousal of Landon's candidacy. Without Hearst's publicity "build-up" for Landon, which has no parallel in American political history, the Kansas governor, they say, still would be a "nonentity" from "a typical prairie state" instead of a synthetic statesman leading the field for the Republican nomination.

They also have raised the question of how far Hearst should be admitted into the inner Republican councils if Landon is nominated, and they are worried for fear the whimsical publisher might turn on the party with even greater vigor than his attack on the New Deal, if his political puppet is rejected by the convention.

In any event, this bitter anti-Landon sentiment seems to be water on Roosevelt's wheel. For the Landon managers assert with confidence that they will nominate their man on the second ballot. And every unkind word said about the Republican candidate by his party colleagues will be fired right back by the Democratic National Committee.

And in view of this situation, some Republican Old Guardsmen believe it might be wise for the GOP to take over the two-thirds rule which the Democratic convention at Philadelphia appears to be ready to chuck overboard.

Some of the more astute members of the GOP high command suspect a deep-laid plot in the announcement of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, that Meeting of the Victory home demonstration club was in the home of Mrs. Ben Featherston May 19. Twelve members and the county home demonstration agent, Miss Tankersley, were present.

Delegates elected to attend the Short Course at A. & M. in July were Mrs. Earl Rodgers, Mrs. L. B. Sawyer and the president, Mrs. Clyde Gardner. Plans were made to sell cake and cream at the closing of the Victory school.

Miss Tankersley gave instructions on economy in buying bed materials.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Virgil Frieron, June 2.

Don't tear your shirt in condemning what others wear.

he will not be a candidate for re-election. They fear that he will yield to the "draft Lehman" movement and emerge stronger than ever. It is quite probable that Gov. Lehman would make the race if President Roosevelt insisted it was necessary to aid the national ticket. And inasmuch as the governor unquestionably consulted the President before making his announcement, the move is generally accepted as a sign of Democratic strength in New York State.

Although there are a number of able Democrats available for the New York gubernatorial nomination, Jim Farley's friends hope he may see his way clear to make the race. For "Sunny Jim" not only would make a strong candidate, but his success in handling the affairs of the Post Office Department indicate that he would make a splendid governor.

Everybody in the country but Herbert Hoover has known for three years that Herbert Hoover was not a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, but his announcement that he does not choose to run was hailed with glee by the other Republican aspirants. Just how it clarified the GOP atmosphere is not quite clear, however.

Despite the progress of Gov. Landon, a lot of inspired articles boosting Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan have appeared recently. The senator himself seems to be taking the situation seriously, despite his protestations that he is not a candidate. Van has been taking a course in radio speaking in order to develop a pleasing radio personality.

There is Fashion in Foods, Too, Says Miss Jessie Hogue

A reporter, whose newspaper is bringing Miss Jessie Hogue to this city under its auspices, to start the cooking school dealing with subjects of cooking, home economics, food fashions and parade of foods, has just received a letter from the lecturer in answer to a question asked her recently: "Is there really fashion in foods?"

Miss Hogue starts her letter with an emphatic statement: "Sure, and most surely indeed, there is fashion in foods. Fashion the same as there is in dresses, hats, shoes and other wearing apparel. The Daniel Webster meaning, my dear fellow, of the word 'fashion' is: 'to make according to rule, to form, give outward appearance, shape, pattern, to lend a prevailing mode, custom, usage, common practice, style, manner, mode, sort, well bred, polished. Anything capable of being shaped, etc.'"

"And the self same book of common reference gives the definition for 'pie' as follows: 'An article of food, consisting of suitably prepared meat; fruit, or seasoned and sweetened composition; baked with an undercrust, as a pumpkin pie; with an uppercrust, as a meat pie, or with two crusts, as an apple pie.'"

"And there being no state statutes or United States rules against it, could not an apple pie be fashioned, with a little alteration of the original and timeworn Webster meaning given it, as given or suggested above, of the original meaning of the word 'fashion'? Is a little hide and seek game at artistry in cooking an unlawful offense, most particular if the change in its dress would make it more palatable, or more tempting to the appetite, or suit the whim and fancy of some member of the family circle? A major part of our information comes to us through the eyes, my dear fellow editor. Why not appease the sight of mankind and woman-kind, and mayhap that of child-life, with a few new changes in the old regime of doing just for happy-kitchen and happier home-life, and friendly relations sake? That is no crime, is it?"

Goal Diggers Had Last "Wind-up" of Club Year May 18

June Marshall was hostess for the last "wind-up" of the Goal Diggers club on May 18, and activities were suspended for the summer months.

"What the Club Has Meant to Me" was the roll call response and Frances Lyle discussed the "Origin and Purpose of the Goal Diggers." Mozelle Barnhill told of the progress made during the club year of 1936; "The Treasurer Speaks" was the topic given by the treasurer, Carolee Henslee; review of the highlights of the club year was given by Mandylee Smith.

Officers elected for the new year were president, Frances Lyle; vice-president, Mary Evelyn Perkins; secretary, Carl Leta Davis; reporter, Mamie Dell Mapes. The scandal sheet was a review of each girl's activities during the year.

The meeting was closed with the parting thought: "And though we have no gold to give, And love alone must make amend, Our only prayer is while we live, God make us worthy of our friends."

Carlock, Jr., and Martha Lee Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Franklin Smith and a niece of the bridegroom-elect, will be flower girls. Mr. Roy Franklin Smith will be his brother's best man.

"Both young people are prominent and popular members of the social set. Miss Escavaille is a member of the Junior League and the Barnaby Club and a former debutante of the Assembly. She attended Our Lady of Victory Academy, Paschal High School and Briarcliff Manor in New York.

"Mr. Smith is a member of the Fort Worth Boat Club and of the Steeple Chase. He attended Texas Christian University. The young couple will make their home here after a wedding trip."

Recipes And Menus

Denton, Texas.—Buffet suppers are always fun whether they be for a special party, for a family reunion, or for the family Sunday night supper.

There are all kinds too; some are very formal while others are less so. These latter may sometimes be more enjoyable, especially if the foods are served in such a way that the guests may serve themselves according to individual appetites.

A few easy rules should be observed. Keep the food fairly simple. Make the food easy to handle. All food should be attractive.

Silverware and napkins may be arranged on the buffet or at small tables where the guests may sit to eat.

The following menus are suggested for mixed crowds.

Creamed chipped beef, scrambled eggs, tiny pickled beets, radish roses, toast, butter, marmalade cup cakes, coffee.

Boston Baked beans, stuffed celery with cheese, brown bread, butter, combination fruit salad, nut and fruit drops, hot chocolate.

Cold meat platter, potato salad, buttered rolls, pickle relish, lemon tarts, coffee, tea.

Marmalade Cup Cakes: 2-3 c. sugar, 1-4 c. shortening, 1-4 t. salt, 1 t. vanilla, 1 egg, 1 1-2 c. pastry flour, 1-2 c. milk, 2 t. baking powder, marmalade or jam, Cream shortening and sugar. Add unbeaten egg and flavoring. Beat thoroughly until light and fluffy. Sift flour with salt and baking powder. Add alternately with milk to creamed shortening and sugar. Bake in muffin tins in moderate oven (375 degrees F) until they pull from sides. When cold carefully remove a portion of the center and fill with a favorite marmalade or preserves. If desired top with whipped cream.

Nut and Fruit Drops: 1-2 c. shortening, 1 c. brown sugar, 2 egg yolks, 1-4 t. vanilla, 1-4 t. almond flavoring, 2 c. pastry flour, 1 c. chopped nuts, raisins, dates, etc. Cream shortening and

Rev. J. W. Sharbutt wife and daughter, Miss Volva Mae, were visitors in Fort Worth last week. They left here Monday afternoon and spent the night in Fort Worth. Tuesday morning Rev. and Mrs. Sharbutt attended a Mission Conference in Cleburne Tuesday and Wednesday, returning to Fort Worth Wednesday evening. Thursday morning they visited the Fort Worth Methodist District Conference, which was a great feast and joy to them as they met many of their old friends. They also visited friends in Weatherford. Rev. Sharbutt said: "It was a glorious trip, but it is good to be back in the west again."

Mrs. I. N. Wilkinson submitted to a major operation Saturday at the Scott & White Sanitarium in Temple. Word received here Tuesday from Mr. Wilkinson stated that her condition was serious but that she was getting along as well as could be expected.

MEMORIAL DAY And It's Message

Years have thinned the ranks which first paid tribute at the graves of fallen comrades on this day of ideals and memories.

New armies which fought for Liberty now are taking over the task of honor. There are newer graves to tend.

FOR THE LIVING

BANK NIGHT WRIT IS CONTINUED IN BALLINGER CASE

Ballinger, May 27.—Judge O. L. Parish of the 119th district court late this afternoon continued his restraining order prohibiting conducting of Bank Nights at the Palace theatre of Ballinger for one week from today pending further consideration of a hearing today in which H. Ford Taylor, owner of the Ritz theatre, a competitive establishment, sought to make permanent the injunction. The original temporary order, involving both Bank Nights and similar drawings, was granted May 15.

Judge Parish openly intimated to attorneys of both sides he had established an opinion relative to claims of the plaintiff that the Bank Nights constituted a lottery, but did not discuss his views. He said he thought his further consideration and investigation of the case would be confined to "property rights" of the plaintiff.

PARISH INTIMATES HE HAS AN OPINION ON CASE.

W. H. Rodgers, who had been on the sick list for ten days, was able to be up and down town the first of the week.

Mrs. Dee Black of Big Spring is spending a few days here visiting in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Davis.

SIDELIGHTS ON UNEMPLOYMENT

Technically, of course, everybody who isn't working is unemployed. But whether he is unemployed because he does not want to work, because he is unable to work, because he never did work and does not intend to begin now, or whether he is actually a victim of the depression, having once been a habitual worker and now unable to find employment, are questions which need to be answered before any intelligent understanding of the "unemployment situation" can be arrived at.

In the absence of any such count and classification, it is the easiest thing in the world for political demagogues to assert that there are ten or twelve million persons who once had jobs but are now unemployed. A little thought will demonstrate that this cannot possibly be true.

Industry at its peak, using the word in its strict sense of manufacturing, never employed as many as ten million workers, and the National Industrial Conference Board reports that industry as a whole is now employing more than 80 per cent of its former high. Those figures are borne out by a survey which one newspaper, the New York Sun, has been making among all the large manufacturers and business houses of the United States. An amazing high percentage of them report that they are now employing more workers than they were in 1929.

Who, then, actually constitute the army of the unemployed? Well, there are the farm workers who have lost their jobs because of droughts and reduction of crop acreage. Their number is estimated variously up to two million. Then there are the younger potential workers who have been unable to land jobs since they reached working age. No reasonably approximate figures of their number is available, but it may run to a couple of million. A high percentage of these, however, is being absorbed rapidly in retail trade, which is running ten percent higher in volume and in number of employees than in 1929, on the national average.

All in all, the Sun comes to the conclusion that there are only a few more than three million employables in trade and industry who are actually unemployed.

MORE POWER TO THE G-MEN

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, otherwise known as the "G-Men," remarked the other day that America's "Public Enemy No. 1" is not any particular criminal, but is politics. Nothing can be more certain than that. Nobody knows better than Mr. Hoover the powerful influence of politics and politicians in the protection of criminals and the encouragement of crime.

It is to be hoped that he can arouse public sentiment to back up his demand that law enforcement in the United States be taken out of politics. Anyone who has been around much can point to many communities in which criminals have established relations with the political groups in power and are all but immune from punishment. In such communities even the law-

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'do-less.' My mother decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me."... If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, May 28.—In its decision declaring the Guffey Bituminous Control Law unconstitutional, the Supreme Court of the United States followed in the main the same line of reasoning which led to the death of NRA. The grounds for throwing out both of these acts, NRA and the Guffey Coal Act, are that the production of coal, like the slaughtering of chickens, is not inter-state commerce and therefore Congress has no power to regulate it. On this point the Supreme Court divided, six to three, exactly the same line-up as in the NRA decision, with Justices Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo in the minority. The majority opinion held that the regulation of wages, hours and conditions of labor in the soft coal industry is a local matter to be settled locally. It also held that the law delegated legislative authority unconstitutional.

The Court also ruled against another major feature of the Guffey Act, the taxation provision. The law provided for an excise tax of 15 per cent of the total value of coal mined, to be paid by the mine operators; but operators who signed the soft coal code were to receive a rebate of 90 percent of this tax. This, the Supreme Court held, was an improper and unconstitutional use of the taxing power to impose a penalty upon operators who refused to be coerced into signing up.

Annulment Expected
The annulment of the Guffey Act by the Supreme Court was not unexpected. It was commonly referred to in Washington as "The Little NRA." In principle it differed in no way from the National Recovery Act, and serious doubts as to its Constitutionality were held by leaders of both parties in Congress at the time of its enactment. It was pending at the time of the NRA decision last summer, and the tendency then was to drop it because it so clearly seemed to be exactly parallel to NRA. It was at that critical moment that the President wrote to Representative Hill, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, expressing the hope that the Committee would not let any doubts of the constitutionality of the abiding live under a reign of terror, knowing that the courts, the police authorities and even the grand juries are under political obligations which prevent justice being done.

The work of the G-Men in the field of their particular authority has aroused nation-wide admiration, and their chief has won the respect of every law-abiding citizen. Neither he nor his corps can, or should be expected to, clean up the Augean stables, but he has certainly turned the thoughts of the decent people of America to a condition which they have it in their power to correct.

Memorial Day Resolve — by A. B. Chapin

I DEDICATE MYSELF ANEW TO THE HIGH PURPOSE OF OPPOSING WAR, WITH ALL MY ENERGY, THUS MAKING IT LESS INEVITABLE THAT MY SON SHOULD MAKE THE SUPREME SACRIFICE, WHICH THIS DAY SO FITTINGLY COMMEMORATES IN HONOR OF THOSE WHO HAVE —

THE MOTHERS OF TODAY —

Guffey Bill prevent its being reported to the House for action.

The real reason behind the bill's passage was the threat of the United Mine Workers of a general coal strike on September 15, last year, unless Congress passed some law that would compel the mine owners and operators to accede to the demand of the union for shorter hours and higher pay. There was no doubt that the miners were desperate and that they meant business. There was talk of riots extensive enough to be called rebellion among the Pennsylvania miners unless something was done and done quickly.

Excise Tax Refund?

Many large mine owners who refused to sign the code paid the excise tax under protest, at the same time starting legal proceedings to have the law declared unconstitutional. About $700,000 of these taxes collected or deposited in court may have to be refunded.

Chief Justice Hughes, while concurring in the majority opinion of the Court, wrote an individual opinion in which he held that some features of the Guffey Law might be constitutional if they could be separated from the unconstitutional phases of it.

Resettlement Decision

On the same day that the Guffey Act decision was handed down, the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, handed down a decision that the Rural Resettlement Administration, created by the President under the Works Progress Administration, with Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell at its head, was an unconstitutional delegation of power under the WPA act. While this decision is not final, and will be carried to the Supreme Court, it is notable as the first judicial reversal of any of the applications of the $4,800,000,000 Works Relief fund which Congress gave to the President early last year, to use in his own discretion.

Naturally, the question which everybody in Washington is asking is as to the political effects of these new anti-Administration Court decisions. Coming as they did, almost on the eve of the party conventions, it is to be expected that every possible effort to utilize them for party ends will be made by the Republicans.

G. O. P. Harmony

Republican leaders are talking more confidently than they were a few weeks ago. There has been a decided stiffening of Republican morale in the past fortnight.

How much Bruce Barton's selections as the party's publicity adviser has had to do with this is debatable, but most observers believe that his influence has been considerable.

Less is being heard now of the possibility of Senator Borah's throwing a monkey wrench into the party machinery. There appears to be a more general acceptance among party leaders of Gov. Landon, who is now regarded as almost certain to be nominated on the third or fourth ballot at Cleveland, with the good will of all of the important factors in the party behind him.

Former President Hoover's public statement that he is not and will not be a candidate for the nomination, cleared the political air, while his declaration that he is not opposed to any candidate is taken to mean that he will put no obstacles in the way of Gov. Landon's nomination.

Senator Vandenberg is now practically the only possible compromise choice in case Landon does not gain the nomination, but political strategists are suggesting that it would strengthen the ticket to nominate him for vice-president, with an eye to 1940 in case of a Republican defeat this year.

On Texas Farms

San Angelo—When rains fall on the D. T. and Zack Jones farm in the Grape Creek community, flood water will be conserved through a system of dykes and "weep" holes designed to spread the water over 250 acres and to eliminate damage that has occurred in the past to field terraces, according to R. M. Milhollin, manager of the Soil Conservation Service project at San Angelo.

"Terracing on a number of places in Tom Green county has been thought impractical because of damage that might result from water coming off of adjacent lands," Mr. Milhollin states. "The system used varies with the slope of the land type of soil, number of acres from which outside water comes and number of acres on which water can be spread.

"Water from the hills four miles from the Jones place, when rains of flood type occur, cross the Jones farm through a broad valley that parallels Grape Creek. Cooperating landowners, through control of outside water and water on their own farms, have reduced the number of acres from which runoff may be expected to 1000 acres. This flood water is picked up on a large graded dyke and spilled onto an adjacent pasture, where through five 'weep' holes in the large dyke, the water is let into five terrace intervals of a cultivated field. Any water not needed on the field can be bypassed and used in a 'syrup pan' terracing system on another field.

"Taking advantage of flood water for increased vegetative growth, erosion control and for flood control," Mr. Milhollin states, "lends special significance to this type of work being done by land owners cooperating with the Soil Conservation Service."

Stinnett—Because he was so pleased with the results of last year's terracing, D. B. Kirk of the Holt community in Hutchinson county has terraced an additional 110 acres this spring and has sown it to barley and spring wheat, according to Clyde L. Carruth, county agricultural agent. He plans to terrace more land as soon as the wheat is harvested this summer.

Kirk terraced 100 acres in the spring of 1935 and planted it to cane, running the rows parallel to the terraces. On this land his feed grew to a height of six feet, while on some of his unterraced land he was unable to cut it with a mower.

Soil erosion in Texas is serious, and soil conservation an urgent necessity, M. R. Bentley, Extension agricultural engineer, insists.

"Several thousands of acres of land were practically ruined for cropping purposes by erosion and many thousands more seriously depleted before soil conservation work was really started in Texas," Bentley says.

Conservation work by means of terracing started in Texas on the eastern side but in a very limited way, some 50 years ago. It was about 1914 before any considerable acreage was terraced. During 1916 about 56,000 acres were terraced. And during the last 10 years, from a half to three-fourths of a million acres have been protected with terraces each year.

From this it will be seen that there is a considerable momentum in Texas for soil conservation work to be undertaken under the new agricultural program.

As soil conservation work spread into West Texas it was found that the running of the lister furrows and the subsequent crop rows on the contour gave good results as a soil conservation measure, at least temporarily. Now, in West Texas thousands of acres of row crops are planted on contour lines in order to conserve the rainfall and soil.

Some terracing has been done in 220 of the 254 counties of the State, according to Bentley. The total for the last 20 years runs to about nine million acres. Checking out possible duplications due to the need of re-terracing considerable acreage, Bentley estimates conservatively that some seven million acres are either terraced or contoured or both, at this time.

BRUCE BARTON Says:

EVERYBODY HAS SOME VICE

Everyone has some secret vice, and mine, is buying newspapers. I take three in the morning and three at night, and if you ask how this leaves me time to do any work I will reveal my formula. I do not spend a great deal of time with the long articles at the top of the pages. These deal with the European situation, political speeches and evanescent scandals, to all of which I have developed a certain old-age immunity.

But I read with unflagging joy all the little items. Here one can observe the eternal pageant of human ingenuity, folly, frivolity, and unexpectedness. I note, for instance, that a scientist has grafted the hind legs of a salamander onto the front part of his body and put its front legs where its hind legs were before. Another professor has succeeded in causing a rooster to develop the characteristics of a hen, which he thinks is something to crow about; a third savant finds that he can compel tadpoles to become frogs much more rapidly than when they are left to their own inclinations.

Here, also, I make the acquaintance of a poet who is fined one cent for calling a county commissioner a sacred bull, the jury supplying the penny. At one fell swoop 17,000 Kentucky Colonels, myself included, are shorn of their gaudy titles; a judge who fined his wife two dollars for violating parking regulations wakes up the next morning to find himself two dollars shy; and a poor citizen shoots himself because he is tired of trying to escape from an installment-purchase salesman.

The late Mr. Talleyrand said that when he should come to the end of life he wanted to die with a newspaper in his hand. I echo his wish.

EXAMPLES ARE BEST SERMONS

Two acquaintances were talking about a man who used to be both rich and opinionated. One said: "Jim is nicer; it must be the depression. He didn't go busted, of course, but he got a good thorough cleaning. I think it has made him more human."

To which the other replied: "There's another factor. In the past five years his children have married and set up their own homes. Back in the years of his prosperity they were beginning to assert themselves, and he was forever fighting and fuming, trying to run their lives, making himself miserable whenever he discovered he could not. Now, at last, he has surrendered. Somewhat to his astonishment, they have all turned out to be pretty successful."

A third man said: "That story hits the spot with me. I recently made the discovery that I was in danger of alienating my children because I wanted so much to have them just right. What woke me up was a remark by my nine year old daughter as we were riding to town. After we had travelled about a mile she looked up at me in surprise, and said, 'Well, Daddy, where's the sermon?'"

The temptation to try to lead our children's lives for them is almost inescapable. We are so conscious of the miseries brought on us by our own shortcomings, so anxious to save them from the same penalties. Yet most of our talk is useless. Example is about the only power that really counts.

Trails Over Which Civilization Came to Southwest to be Reproduced for Visitors to Ford Exposition

The original Yuma Road, which with eight other famous trails of the Southwest, will be reproduced for visitors to the Ford Exposition opening in Dallas, June 6, stretches across the desert between El Centro, California, and Yuma, Arizona. It is part of the old Spanish Trail from Florida to California. About 20 years ago planks were laid on the shifting sands of the desert, to wind their way like a writhing snake across the dunes.

Boots, hoofs and wheels. Soldiers, cattle and horses. Caissons, wagons and automobiles. Pioneers, traders and businessmen. Everything that man needs to sustain life or support civilization has moved over the "Roads of the Southwest."

Henry Ford, caught in the spell of the romance of historic and modern roads, is building the "Roads of the Southwest" as a part of his huge Ford Exposition at the Texas Centennial which opens at Dallas on June 6. This part of the Ford exhibit will include reproductions of nine short sections of important historic and modern trails, roads and highways which have been instrumental in the development of the Southwest.

Each unit of the "Roads of the Southwest" will be paved with an exact reproduction of the surfacing material used on the original road. Visitors to the Ford Exposition at the Centennial will be driven over these roads in Ford V-8s.

The "Roads of the Southwest" will wind around the lagoon on one side of the Ford Exposition Building. Included in the group will be reconstructed sections of such prominent highways as: San Antonio Road, Fort Worth Pike, Chisholm Cattle Trail, Butterfield Stage Road, Santa Fe Trail, Pan American Highway, Magazine Street in New Orleans, Main Street in Dallas, and Yuma Road.

San Antonio Road is known as El Camino Real (The King's Highway) of Texas. At one time early Texas settlers paid a tax to travel over this trail.

Fort Worth Pike

Another famous Texas highway included in the "Roads of the Southwest" is the Fort Worth Pike. This road ran from Dallas to Fort Worth. It started as an Indian trail and was improved by settlers as a stage coach line and later as a commercial highway.

The era when Texas was crisscrossed with cattle trails, about 1867, is represented in the "Roads of the Southwest" by the so-called "Chisholm Trail." These trails followed, as far as possible, the natural water courses and connected producing and consuming areas.

Probably the most famous of the numerous mail routes through Texas was the Butterfield Trail which is reproduced in the "Roads of the Southwest." The original Butterfield Trail crossed the Red River at Colbert's Ferry and cut across the northern part of the state on its way to El Paso, Fort Yuma and on to San Francisco, California. Traces of the old trail may still be seen from the highway running from El Paso to Carlsbad Caverns.

Santa Fe Trail.

The original Santa Fe Trail, which is reproduced in the "Roads of the Southwest," extended from Independence, Mo., to Santa Fe, New Mexico. Early in the nineteenth century, when Texas was a part of Mexico, Captain Zebulon Pike started a trade route over the Santa Fe Trail. Later, the Santa Fe Trail was extended from Santa Fe, New Mexico, to Los Angeles, California.

When New Orleans was established in 1718, the site selected was practically an island. The result of this location was that almost all transportation to and from the city was by water. However, the main highway leading out of New Orleans and connecting with other roads which eventually took the traveler into Texas, was over a route, part of which is now known as Magazine Street. A section of Magazine Street is reproduced in the "Roads of the Southwest."

Yuma Road Shown.

The Pan American Highway, which runs from Laredo on the Texas-Mexico border, to Mexico City, is shown in the "Roads of the Southwest," as a modern road paved with light colored macadam.

Yuma Road, the Colorado desert section of the "Old Spanish Trail" which is known in Texas as State Highway No. 3, is the next section of the "Roads of the Southwest." The original Yuma Road stretched across the sandy wastes of the desert between Yuma, Arizona, and El Centro, California. It was first built as two parallel rows of planks. In 1919 this roadway was improved by rebuilding it as a solid plank road.

The last unit of the "Roads of the Southwest" is a reproduction of Main Street in Dallas. This street is paved with wooden blocks, known as bois d'arc, an extremely hard wood.

It is estimated that hundreds of thousands of visitors to the Texas Centennial will be driven over the roads of the Southwest during the summer months. As they ride over the roads, many of them rough and rugged as in the days when roads were little more than stump-strewn trails, they will hear from the drivers the historical background of each unit in the group.

NO FISHING IS ALLOWED IN CITY LAKE, SAYS MAYOR

Mayor J. W. Copeland said yesterday that he was being asked by numerous citizens for permission to fish in the city lake, however, he was having to refuse them all as the council had decided to keep the lake closed to fishermen until next year.

"Owing to the fact that the lake was just stocked last year and fish in it now could not have grown to legal size, the council has decided to keep it closed all during this year in order that there might be some good fishing in it next year," said Mayor Copeland. The mayor stated that many patrons of the city's water department who had become delinquent on their water bills had paid up during the past few weeks, however, there were many more who should take care of their past due bills and that if this was not done between now and the 10th of June many would have to be disconnected from the city's mains.

CUT-OFF DATE FOR EMERGENCY CROP LOANS IS MAY 31

May 31 has been set as the final date for receiving emergency crop loan applications in most of the southern and southwestern states, and June 15 in all other states, according to an announcement today (May 19) from the Farm Credit Administration.

Loans from the 1936 emergency crop loan funds are being made only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from other sources. Applications are being received by the local emergency crop and feed loan committees operating in most counties, and disbursements made through the regional emergency crop and feed loan offices located at Springfield, (Mass.), Baltimore, Columbia, (S.C.), Memphis, St. Louis, Dallas, Wichita, St. Paul, Salt Lake City, and Spokane.

Although requests for emergency crop loans are less numerous than last year, especially in areas showing a marked improvement in farm income, more than 150,000 emergency crop loans had been made at the close of business May 15.

The May 31 deadline for receiving applications applies to the states served by the regional offices at Columbia (S.C.), Memphis, Wichita, and Dallas. These offices serve the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, and New Mexico. June 15 is the final date for receiving applications in all other states, except Kentucky, which, although included in the territory of the St. Louis office, has the May 31 cut-off date as the other southern states.

The veteran cowhands are among the most enthusiastic spectators at the cowboy rodeo and their participation is not confined altogether to the grandstand. One of the rodeo events each year is the oldtime calf-ropers contest, which is limited
