FINAL PLANS ARE COMPLETED FOR COWBOY REUNION

GOVERNOR JAMES V. ALLRED TO ATTEND JULY 4.

Stamford, Texas, June 25.—Final preparation are being completed by officials of the Texas Cowboy Reunion for the opening of its seventh annual rodeo and round-up here July 2, 3, and 4. All buildings, grandstands and corrals fences have received a new coat of paint. The ground of the arena has received a sani-soil treatment, a preparation to prevent dust, which is calculated to be one of the most appreciated improvements that has been made this year.

Ornamental trees and native mesquites on the grounds have made good growth in the past twelve months and will furnish some shade to comfort and cool the weary cowboy or other visitors who seek shelter from the sun. A high wire fence has been built on three sides of the 42 acre Reunion tract and a steel woven wire fence with four ornamental gates adorn the main entrance. Additional comfort for spectators has been provided by placing foot rests on all seats in the grandstands, and by adding awning-like extensions to the roofs to keep out the sun.

Aside from purely rodeo events there will be many other things to interest and entertain the visitors, a round of parties and dances will compliment visiting sponsors and other guests. There will be a square dance nightly at the bunkhouse especially for the oldtimers, but the younger cowboys are not barred, and they always join in the merriment. Band concerts will provide downtown entertainment the first day, the grand parade is to be chief street attraction the second day, and the Old Fiddlers' contest at the City Auditorium will entertain hundreds on the third day.

Numerous ranches have indicated that they will send their chuck wagons again this year. These wagons will be assembled in a fenced area where wood, water and beef are furnished, and where other needed commodities may be had from the chuck wagon commissary. A new feature added to simplify provisioning the chuck boxes. Chuck wagons are fascinating to visitors of all ages it seems, and this year in order that all may have the opportunity of eating at one of them, tickets for a noon day meal may be purchased for a small fee.

The Reunion draws a list of notables each year. Last year the late Will Rogers characteristically dropped in unannounced to see the show. Governor James V. Allred has attended nearly every year, and the governor has given positive assurance that he will be back this year. Arriving in Stamford at noon on July 4, he will head the afternoon parade and pilot it to the rodeo grounds where he will be a guest at the afternoon performance.

Miss Mozelle Lewis returned Saturday to her home in Sweetwater after a few days' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Lewis. She was accompanied by Miss Mozelle Barnhill who has secured employment in Sweetwater.

SHERIFF GETS 20 CASES BEER HERE ON LAST FRIDAY

THREE CHARGED WITH SALE ARE OUT ON BOND.

Sheriff W. A. Holt, armed with warrants for arrest, raided two places in Winters last Friday, confiscated 20 cases of beer and landed three in the county jail.

Boss Green's home was raided, where 18 cases of beer were taken and Green arrested, charged with possession of beer for the purpose of sale. Also the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vaughn was visited, two cases of beer taken and both were arrested, charged with possession of beer for the purpose of sale. All three were later released from jail after making $500 bond, said Mr. Holt.

Winters Recreation Club, being operated on North Main St., was also ordered closed by the sheriff. No charges were filed, nor would there be any, said the sheriff, if the pool hall remained closed.

The sheriff also reported that Wayne Boatwright, 15-year-old Ballinger lad, who was already under suspended sentence, was convicted of rape last week in the county court, and given 5 years in the State Juvenile Training School near Gatesville.

A '35 model Chevrolet Standard coach was stolen from Jesse Jones at his home in Ballinger early Sunday morning.

WINTERS HARVESTING THE BEST WHEAT CROP IN HISTORY

APPROXIMATE 125 CARS HAVE BEEN SHIPPED OUT.

Winters territory is harvesting what is termed by local grain dealers, as one of the best wheat crops in the history of this section. Several years ago, small patches have yielded more grain per acre than the average yield this season, but the average for the section and the high test of the grain this season has never been equalled before, say grain men who have been in the business here for 25 years.

Among some of the best wheat yields and tests reported was the old Crews place, south of town, with a yield of 31½ bushels per acre testing 66. Lee Seals reports harvesting a good crop of wheat which tested 65 7-8. O. T. Jennings harvested 30 bushels to the acre; R. S. Davis reports harvesting 29 2-3 bushels to the acre; J. D. Smith, Jr., 30 bushels to the acre, and many others have had just as good yields and tests whose names we failed to learn.

There have been 125 cars of wheat shipped from here up to this date, while there is much more which has not been sold.

HEAVY WIND HERE TUESDAY AFT'NOON DOES SOME DAMAGE

LIGHT SHOWERS FALL OVER SECTION IN SPOTS.

A heavy wind, described by some as a small cyclone, accompanied scattered showers over the Winters country last Tuesday afternoon.

Plate glass windows and transom glass were blown out of the front of the building occupied by the Reid Drug Store and slight damage to their stock was reported. An art glass window was also blown out of the First Baptist Church building.

Slight injury was suffered by Mrs. H. O. Jones when she attempted to close a window in her home. The wind caught up the rug on the floor, wrapped it around Mrs. Jones and she was thrown to the floor.

Some hail was reported east of town, however, it is said the damage caused from it will be negligible.

Rain over this territory amounted to a slight sprinkle on up to one inch.

At Hatchel A. B. Davis, farmer, was struck by lightning, paralyzing his left side, but was reported yesterday as recovering. His injury is not considered critical. Davis had just stepped on the porch with a 50-pound chunk of ice in his hands when the bolt struck a radio aerial traced down a gutter and leaped to him, rendering him unconscious and paralyzing his left side. He had recovered only slight use of his arm yesterday.

"Modern Times," Charlie Chaplin's Greatest Comedy, Coming to the Queen Theatre at Saturday Preview

GEORGE RAFT AND ROSALIND RUSSELL CO-STAR IN LOVE DRAMA, "IT HAD TO HAPPEN," TO BE SHOWN TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

Charlie Chaplin in "Modern Times", the comedian's long-awaited new comedy comes to the Queen Theatre Saturday at 11:30, at the midnight preview, also Sunday and Monday. "The Air Adventures of Jimmie Allen," radio serial starring Jimmie Allen, featured in "The Sky Parade," showing today and tomorrow, is heard nightly by more than two-and-a-half million listeners from coast to coast. With George Raft as a satin-smooth lover and Rosalind Russell as the glamorous girl who thought herself too ritzy for romance, "It Had to Happen" will be the featured attraction Tuesday and Wednesday. "Too Many Parents" will be shown Thursday night only.

"Modern Times"
The comedy, which introduces the familiar little figure in the big shoes and baggy trousers into the relatively complex environment of a big industrial city, casts Charlie Chaplin as a factory worker with a talent for getting out of jobs and into jail, and who subsequently finds employment in such widely divergent capacities as shipyard worker, night watchman and singing waiter. The story, which was written by Chaplin and marks the first time he has ever worked from a prepared script, is said to involve him in the most hilarious situations of his entire career. The girl, a gamine of the waterfront, to whom Charlie plays knight errant, is played by Chaplin's lovely leading lady, Paulette Goddard, who has been pronounced a genuine screen find.

"Sky Parade"
Built around the role which Jimmie Allen has made famous "The Sky Parade" tells in a swift succession of thrilling incidents, the inspiring story of man's true conquest of the air; not merely learning to fly, but the more important angle of bringing such safety and sureness to flying that it could be transformed from a stunt used by daredevils into the dependable, useful force which we know it today. Woven into the story is the tender romance between William Gargan, hard-boiled flyer and Katherine DeMille, which is made possible by Jimmie's bravery and courage.

"It Had to Happen"
In this dynamic story of a man who had risen to the pinnacle because he was drawn on and on by an unattainable beauty—and what happened when he met that beauty—Leo Carrillo is cast as George Raft's friend and ally. From immigrant lads in a big city, they fight their way up together, until Raft is the top man of the heap. Then, when this masterful lover gets himself entangled with the glamorous and willful Rosalind Russell, Carrillo becomes the amused on-looker, who wonders why his hard-headed friend makes so much fuss over a pretty face. There are plenty of romantic complications before Raft wins the hand of this hard-to-get lady and through it all Carrillo carries on in his vastly amusing and disparaging style.

"Too Many Parents"
It is the tale of orphan boys—some actual orphans, others with parents who cannot or do not want to keep them—boys who have been shunted off to Coleman Military Academy, a military school where they will not "bother" unfeeling guardians. Frances Farmer, niece of the headmaster, is a pal and a mother of the boys and is especially fond of George Ernest, who has never seen his father, a globe-trotting engineer. When George is detected in the lie of having written himself long, loving, affectionate letters purporting to have come from his dad, and is publicly reduced in rank from student lieutenant to the ranks, Frances Farmer indignantly summons his father, and denounces him as not worthy of a son as fine and adoring as George.

A contest will be held on the Queen Theatre stage Friday evening, (tonight) in order to select a Winters girl to represent the town at Ballinger on their celebration of their 50th anniversary. The participants are representatives of various local firms and business houses.

Refreshing Relief

When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

"It is easy for a woman to develop her chest and fill out hollows in her neck," says a prominent health specialist who has taught hundreds of women to gain as well as to reduce. According to him, a few simple exercises, practiced regularly, will do the work.

Here is one experience that is particularly recommended: Stand erect with feet together. Clench your fists, making the muscles in your arms quite tense and stretch them at shoulder level out in front of you. Now, keeping the muscles in hands and arms stiff and uncomfortable slowly force your hands up over your head and down toward the back as far as they will go. Then try to force them down and back a few more inches.

Feel the muscles in your neck and shoulders stretch and pull. Keep your head up and chest expanded. Inhale as you force your arms from front to back. Exhale as you bring them forward again. Repeat twenty times. The breast stroke you used when you learned to swim is excellent for a flat chest and hollows in the neck. Hold arms at shoulder level in front of you—palms facing each other. Then slowly bring them backward as far as you can. Keep on forcing them back until your shoulders actually hurt a little.

A movie actress noted for her lovely hands, reveals how she keeps them smooth as satin and white as snow. She says she never fails to rinse them in very cold water after each washing and that, after a careful drying during which she pushes back the cuticle around her nails, she always applies hand lotion. "In addition," the star added, "once a week I go to bed wearing rubber gloves into which I have put damp bran or moist corn meal. Either of these tends to remove cigarette and other stains from my fingers."

To help mold the chin into a slimmer line, here's a good night routine: After washing your face and neck with warm soapsuds, rinse in warm water and dry your skin.

Apply cold cream, and then pick up the soft flesh under your chin, kneading and rolling it firmly between your forefinger and thumb. This will help to chase away the fat cells.

Remove the cold cream, splash on cold water and dry your skin.

Then apply your favorite astringent lotion or skin freshening tonic to your neck and chin. In the morning bathe your face and neck again with cold water.

If you like something with a little more body than taffeta to trim your coat, grosgrain is a good choice. It's especially good for stand-up collars and to border the pockets and front of a coat. One of the shops has such a coat in black, which is swagger cut, with patch pockets, and it's the new seven-eighths length.

Third Installment

Synopsis: Amos Ethridge is found murdered in a country lane with a crude cross of twigs on his breast and a scented sheet on note paper in his pocket. He was the richest man in the state with power and influence enough to make himself candidate for Governor. With his death came hints of an unsavory private life, of scandal that might come to light if the murder is investigated too closely. . . . Mary Homes a former opera singer whose career was wrecked when she lost her voice at the birth of her son, lives in squalor nearest the scene of the crime. . . . Gerald Holmes, her son, is both loved and hated by his mother, who tries to forget the past by drowning her sorrow in drink. . . . Gerald is engaged to lovely Hazel Woods, actress and protegee of the murdered Ethridge.

"Oh, dozens, I dare say! But I guess they haven't made much actual progress. My belief is they don't want to discover who did the shooting."

"You mean on account of the—?"

"Secret order nothing!" Mrs. Holmes exclaimed. They didn't kill Amos Ethridge."

"Who did?"

"A woman."

"What makes you so positive?"

"Why, the circumstances; the evidence; the things I saw on the spot." The speaker seated herself and began to rock vigorously. As she bent her mind upon the task of visualizing the scene of the tragedy, her gaze became preoccupied, her face changed. Her features were puffed and coarsened by drink, to be sure, but upon them now was stamped an expression indicative of more than ordinary mental power; it was as if a lamp had been lighted behind a dirty, cobwebbed windowpane. "To began with, the number and the location of the bullet holes told a story. There were seven of them—he was shot to pieces. She shot him twice, so close that there were powder burns on his shirt; then she stood over him and emptied her automatic into his body. It must have been an automatic, from the number of shots. For that matter, we picked up the empty shells where they had been ejected. Another thing, she must have known this back road well, and that lane; she must have known he'd have to get out and open the gate. That proves she had often been to his house with him, doesn't it?"

"But why would he travel this road at all when the macadam leads right up to his gates? The papers ask that?"

"Politics! He was in the race for the Governorship and he had enemies. Probably he knew they were watching him. No candidate for the highest political office in the state could afford to have it known that his private life was corrupt."

"Hm-m! Even yet I can't see what makes you so positive it was a woman."

"You're as stupid as the police! If there had been one bullet hole, or even two, it would have indicated a man's hand. But those other five shots were fired by somebody in a frenzy—somebody who was hysterical—completely out of his head. Or hers! It was the act of an insanely jealous woman—or—or a man like you."

"Mother!" Gerald protested, sharply. "Don't talk like that, even in fun. The mere fact that a fellow can draw, has an eye for color, is no sign that he's effeminate."

"Oh, don't worry! This is just my own theory—" "Pretty weak, I'm afraid."

"—and I don't intend to tell it to the detectives. There are a lot of people in Westland who would rather see Amos Ethridge where he is today than in the Governor's chair. And I'm one of them. Look at that cross over his heart and that letter in his pocket. D'you think a man would have stopped to make a cross out of twigs and lay it on his breast? No! More power to the woman, I say. The hand of God directed those bullets and the hand of God will protect her. If we had more women like her we'd have less unhappiness, fewer ruined lives and—blasted careers. He had the money and the looks to do anything. He was a whited sepulcher!"

"He had the money to send me to art school, too," Gerald countered, with some feeling. "And to pay my way for four years. Just because he saw one of my drawings on a paper bag—full of eggs! You never thanked him. You hated him for it, but—"

"Thank him? For making an artist out of you? An artist?" Mary Holmes uttered a scornful sound. "You were enough like your father without that."

Gerald sighed and shook his head in discouragement. His mother was indeed difficult—a queer woman. "Let's not talk about him or about father," said he. "What I came to see you about is the case itself. I—I wish to Heaven I'd been here, so I could have prevented those wretched newspapers—I'm afraid you'll be called as a witness next."

"Well, what if I am called?" "Why—think! You must have been hurt by what they said. If you go on the stand they'll want to know all about us, past history, everything. The lawyers will dig it out and the newspapers will make the most of it."

"Humph! Maybe they'll treat me differently when they know who I am."

Gerald stared at the shapeless figure in the rocking chair for a moment, then reluctantly he made up his mind to speak as gently as possible, but as plainly as necessary. "Mother, dear, you don't understand what it would mean, for you can't see how you—well, how you have changed! It hurts me to say it, but I'm afraid the papers wouldn't treat you as sympathetically as you imagine, or as you deserve. It is so much easier to ridicule than to sympathize or to condone."

"Oh, I see! Meanwhile, you're speaking more for yourself than for me."

"I'm speaking for both of us! Can't you understand that I'm having a hard battle to make something out of myself? Why handicap me more? Westland isn't a large city—"

"And of course you couldn't be known as the son of the 'goose woman.' Your friends would sneer at you!"

Gerald defended himself hotly: "I'm not a cad. I'm not ashamed of our poverty. But I do have some pride, some decency, and I associate with the best people I can. It shocks me, it breaks my heart to see you steadily deteriorate. I've done what I could to stop it—"

"What have you ever done except preach?" Mrs. Holmes broke out, angrily.

"I never preached! Please, please don't let's quarrel, or at any rate let me say what I have to say first. You resent my profession because my talent—what little I have—came from my father. You actually hate me at times, because when I was born your voice went. As if that were my fault! I can understand that, after a fashion, but other things I can't understand. For instance, why have you always tried to strangle whatever there was in me? Oh, you have! When I used to sing or play, it threw you into a rage and you whipped me. Why, just think, I might have inherited your musical talent! When I tried to draw pictures you slapped my hands. Thank God, Mr. Ethridge saw something in my drawings and encouraged me to defy you and—and make something of myself! You yielded finally because you felt sure I'd fail. When I made good you refused to let me come home; threw me out;

said you never wanted to see me again."

"When you're like this I certainly do hate you," Mrs. Holmes admitted in a voice totally without feeling. "You are your father all over again."

"I know! And you blame all this—with a comprehensive gesture Gerald indicated the ugly, squalid, disorderly kitchen—"on him. But I don't. He isn't to blame. It's the liquor, mother. And the terrible part of it all is that—you're getting worse. Nothing I say seems to have any effect and of course you don't care what I think. But it makes you mad when the newspapers say it. Well, they'll say it again, and a lot more, if you become a witness in this Ethridge case. Your story will be published from one end of the country to the other. That would end me—my career. I mean."

"Your career! What do you know about a career?"

"Not—not as much as you know, of course. But, mother, you must have some pride left in that career of yours, in your name. Surely drink hasn't entirely killed your self-respect. Even though my feelings and my future are matters of indifference to you, do you want the whole world to know that you were deserted by your husband and became a—well a drunkard and a woman of ill repute, as the papers had it? Do you want them to know that the notorious 'goose woman' in the Ethridge case is really the once glorious Maria di Nardi?"

The object of this appeal rose and tramped about the room. In spite of the fact that she was not very sure of her movements, in spite of her untidy appearance, heightened by the drab, stringy hair that drooped carelessly upon her neck and forehead and the slipshod manner in which she wore her garments, there was nevertheless an air of importance about her and a dignity to her carriage.

"So! I'm a drunkard, a common woman, a low character—all those rotten scandal sheets said! And my own son agrees—tells me so with his own lips!" The speaker's voice was hoarse with passion, vibrant with dislike. "You dare to say such things to my face! . . . You want to know what ails me, what has become of my pride, what has driven me down into the mud and keeps me there. Well, it isn't the liquor. It's—it's you!"

"Mother!"

"Oh, I mean it! D'you think I drink because I like the stuff? I drink to kill what's in me here!" Mrs. Holmes clutched fiercely at her bosom. "It stupefies me so I can't think, so I can't remember. I'd have died, otherwise. You took my voice—"

Again Gerald uttered a cry of protest, but the speaker ran on. "You robbed me of my one great talent, my glory. Yes, I was glorious! Everybody said so. Kings and queens were at my feet, the world worshipped me. 'Career' I had a career—but you were born you changed me from a nightingale into a frog. Where would I live if not in the mud? D'you wonder I detest you when I think of what you did? . . . You're beginning to understand what a career means and it frightens you to think of losing it. You're beginning to understand that it means more than money, more than friends, more than love, more than anything in this whole world. That it's bigger than all of them. Well, it ought to make you feel like an assassin, for when you killed my voice you did more than ruin Mary Holmes, your mother; you murdered Maria di Nardi, the opera singer, the artist, the greatest contralto in Europe. In Heaven's name haven't you done enough taken enough, without robbing me of what little comfort is left? A chicken farmer. Me! A—'goose woman'!" Mrs. Holmes threw back her head and laughed wildly. "What a joke!" She sank heavily into her rocker and swayed her body from side to side. "Oh, my God! What a joke!"

Gerald rose and laid a hand upon her drab, uncombed hair. He could remember dimly, as if in some childhood dream, when that head had been shiny and fragrant and almost golden in color and when it had been proudly worn. That memory left him low in mind and sick in body. "Is it altogether fair to hold me responsible for the loss of your voice?" he inquired.

Mrs. Holmes shook off his hand, crying: "Don't paw me! 'Fair'? Is anything fair? Has life been fair to me?"

"Perhaps I shouldn't have spoken as I did. But don't misunderstand me. I've lived long enough to learn that there are forces outside of our lives that are too big, too resistless, to be overcome, so I don't blame you for the way you feel, mother."

Poultry Losses From "Rose-Chafer" Poisoning Reported in This Section

Rose Chafers or rose beetles are causing considerable loss to young poults and chickens and few mature birds, writes J. M. Williams, vocational agriculture instructor at Winters. This small brownish colored beetle which is about 1-4 inch in length is extremely poisonous to young birds only a few being necessary to cause death. Rose bushes, grapevines, and flowers and shrubs are favorite hideouts for the young beetle.

Signs of the poisoning may begin to appear in less than an hour after feeding on Chafers and death may follow in an hour after the appearance of symptoms or more slowly, due to a smaller amount of poison being absorbed. An affected bird will become drowsy, exhibit weakness in the legs, sit or fall over on its side, and lose the ability to control the muscles of the neck. Sharp cries are sometimes emitted and convulsions are common. The only evidence of the disease is the presence of beetles in the crop.

Treatment in the case of birds showing symptoms is usually futile. When the nature of the disease is realized, other birds in the flock should be given Epsom salts at the rate of one pound to 10 quarts of water. Other drinking water should be withheld for two days. Preventative measures consist of keeping young chickens in inclosed runs or at points where they will not have access to rosebushes, grapevines, shrubs, etc. Destruction of beetles should be practiced by spraying infested plants with one-half pound of lead arsenate to 10 gallons of water. Williams reports that losses from Botulism, commonly called limber neck are quite frequent at this time. Spoiled food or putrid meats offer a poison which causes a paralysis of the neck muscles. Extreme care should be taken to remove all sources of such infection. Dead rabbits, snakes, rats, etc., should be removed from poultry runs and spoiled foods should never be put where birds may have access to them. This is extremely important as the death of 100 birds in an individual flock from poisoning.

The best treatment for affected fowls is to give 1-2 teaspoon of Epsom salts to each mature bird or 3 to 4 teaspoonfuls of castor oil. Treatment must be very prompt or there is little hope for saving the affected ones.

IN MEMORY OF OUR FRIEND, MRS. S. C. COWARD

You have left us, dearest friend For a home beyond the skies; You are resting, sweetly resting In the land of paradise.

There, on flowery hills of pleasure,

In the fields of endless rest. Love, joy and peace shall ever Reign in triumph in your breast. You have reached the shining portals.

You have laid your armour down You have crossed the shining river.

Now you wear a golden crown. While our sorrows are so heavy, Our loss has been your gain.

How we miss your gentle footsteps,

How we miss your tender care. All our worries seemed to vanish When we knew you were there.

Always willing, always ready. Anxious to obey each call.

And you never seemed to worry. You were a friend to us all. Your life has been most beautiful,

One we might well imitate; I would that I were like you, But my nothingness is so great.

Dearest friend thou hast left us, And our loss we deeply feel.

But 'tis God that has bereft us. He can all our sorrows heal.

Yes, again we hope to meet you. When the day of life has fled; Then in Heaven with joy to greet you

Where no farewell tears are shed.

OAK CREEK HOME DEMO CLUB MET TU.

The Oak Creek Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. A. D. Dudley Tuesday. Mrs. Dudley is the bedroom demonstrator and certainly has a beautiful room that represents plenty of work.

She put six windows in the room, made the frames and put the glass in herself. She did the old floor over to look almost like new, papered the walls, built a modern clothes closet with lavatory in one end, and plenty of space to store linens, and quilts in the other end, with rack to hang clothes, between. Mrs. Dudley built an easy arm chair, a dressing table, and reading table and magazine rack combined.

She did over an old bed and desk, crocheted some rugs, hung new shades and draperies and made runners, for the tables of burlap. Mrs. Dudley did all the work with a surprisingly small amount of money.

Discussions were made on the Short Course and Mrs. Dudley, the club president, was elected as a delegate from Oak Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Pike of Vicksburg, Mississippi, left Tuesday for their home after spending several days visiting in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Pike, near Bradshaw.

Marriage Vows Are Taken at Sunrise Ceremony in Pretty Garden Setting at Home of Bride's Parents Wednesday

MISS RUTH JONES AND MR. WILLIAM EDWARD LITTLE OF CORPUS CHRISTI ARE MARRIED; WALLACE JONES OFFICIATED.

At sunrise in the garden at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Jones, the marriage of Miss Ruth Jones and Mr. William Edward Little of Corpus Christi, was performed Wednesday, June 24, Wallace Jones, pastor of the First Christian church of Ballinger, a cousin of the bride, officiated, reading the single ring ceremony, in the presence of members of the family and a few invited guests.

Masses of fern and baskets of summer flowers enhanced the natural beauty of the garden setting where an improvised altar was formed near the garden pool beneath the trees where the vows were taken. A pathway of white extended across the length of lawn from the front entrance of the home for the bridal party.

Nuptial musts were given by Mrs. Chas. Chapman who played the accompaniment for Mrs. C. S. Jackson to sing "Because." For the professional she played Mendelssohn's Wedding March and during the ceremony softly played Liszt's "Dream of Love."

With the first strains of the Wedding March the minister with the groom and bestman, C. S. Boone of Woodboro, took their places at the altar. Miss Alleene Jones, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, came down the pathway to the garden. She wore a blue organdie creation over pink with large pink hat and carried an arm bouquet of pink fervefew.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white lace gown with finger tip veil of bridal illusion and orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli. Her going-away costume was navy blue trimmed in red with matching accessories.

The bride was reared in Winters and is a member of one of the most prominent families here. After completing her high school education from the local school she attended Texas University and holds her degree from that institution. She taught for several years in the Winters high school and has taught at Kenedy and the past year was a member of the faculty of the Corpus Christi schools.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Little of Corpus Christi. He received his college training from Texas University and Rice Institute where he was an honor graduate. He has been a talented member of the Corpus Christi Little Theatre organization for several years and is employed at the post office in that city.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Little will be at home in Corpus Christi.

Breakfast is Served
After the ceremony the guests were invited into the home for breakfast. Mrs. C. S. Boone of Woodboro, sister of the bride, greeted the guests and was assisted in receiving by Mrs. John Q. McAdams, Mrs. W. C. Kauffman of Kenedy, Mrs. Roy C. Maddox, Mrs. A. J. McDaniel, Mrs. Wallace Jones of Ballinger, Frances Alleene and Mary Ruth Boone of Woodboro, and Miss Bendena Spill. Members of the house party wore corsages of pastel shades to match each individual dress.

The living room suite was given an attractive floral decoration of nasturtiums, sweetpeas, and gladioli. Sweetpeas surrounded by smilax gave the centerpiece for the table in the dining room. The breakfast menu consisted of cream chicken in pastry cups, individual wedding cake iced in green and white, coffee and mints.

Guests present besides members of the house party were Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Patrick of Ballinger, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henslee, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Thornton, Imogene Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Terry, Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Brophy, John Q. McAdams,

The hostesses were assisted in serving by Misses Anita and Mary Maddox, and Frances Lyle. Miss Anita Maddox, accompanied by Miss Anna Lee Cobb, sang "Pale Moon," by Logan. VETERANS Let's Spend Wisely

We, at the Winters State Bank, want to increase our deposits, we want a greater volume of business and the return of prosperity, but we refuse to subscribe to the present day hysterical, high-pressure clamor for the immediate distribution of funds. We do not believe we should purchase today's joy with tomorrow's sorrow. Let's take our time; don't just spend for the sake of spending; don't blow in the "nest egg"; don't cash your bonds unless for necessity or to get out of debt.

If money is to be spent, let's spend wisely and get the utmost for every dollar; let's give serious thought to saving rather than spending.

This bank owes its success to integrity plus thrift; that's why The Winters State Bank is considered one of the safest banks in the land.

Hold on to your bond money if you can.

ENTERTAIN AT BALLINGER'S CELEBRATION

Pictured above is the Tickville Band, of Ranger, well known organization, which will entertain visitors to the Golden Anniversary celebration at Ballinger June 29. The band is being brought there by the First National Bank of Ballinger.

Bank to Present Tickville Band as Feature at Ballinger's Golden Anniversary Celebration Mon.

One of the most important entertainment groups which will appear in Ballinger on June 29 is the Tickville Band, of Ranger. This band is well known in Texas and several other states after years of public appearances in which it has scored numerous hits.

A number of years ago the band was organized by the Carl Barnes Post of the American Legion at Ranger. It still is sponsored by the Legion and plays only for clubs and welfare entertainments. At first the band made trips wherever its services were called but its popularity grew so rapidly that it was necessary to charge for out-of-town engagements and still it is constantly sought for programs presented at a great distance from Ranger.

When R. G. Erwin, cashier of the First National Bank began planning the bank's cooperation in Ballinger's Golden Anniversary celebration he wanted to offer something that would help with the entertainment and at the same time have good representation for the bank, so he decided to try to book the Tickville Band. A contract was signed two weeks ago which will bring this band to Ballinger for the entire day.

Mr. Erwin stated that this group would be the bank's parade entry, and that it would help to entertain the pioneers at their program Monday noon and would be held over for a preliminary number at the pageant Monday evening. Three years ago this group attended Ballinger's birthday celebration and was such a hit that it was called for at every gathering during the day.

Dr. Harry A. Logsdon is director and manager of the organization which is composed of ten musicians. The players work in "rube" make-up and have perfected many original stunts. The red-headed lad who plays the washboard, sings, tells jokes and pantomimes, is still with the band and will be featured.

Recently the Tickville Band attended the American Gas Association convention at Dallas and was a part of the floor show presentation at the executives' banquet and practically stopped the show. The band's popularity commenced at American Legion conventions in West Texas where it appeared in humorous programs.—Ballinger Ledger.

The Goose Woman

for what you've done for the dreadful change that has come over you. I don't even reproach you. I only pity—"

"I don't want pity!" the woman cried, furiously. The gin she had drunk earlier in the evening had failed this time to stupefy; it had merely deadened what was gentle in her and roused what was savage and hateful. Emotionally she was in turmoil. The truth of Gerald's accusations had engendered blind resentment and a fierce impulse to defend herself, to fight back to hurt him as he had hurt her. A rat will bite when crushed.

"I had something in mind to tell you the last time I came out," the boy was saying, "but you were in no mood to listen. I must tell you now, in view of what has happened this week. I've been working hard and getting ahead slowly. It won't be long, I hope, until I can make a home for both of us—for all three of us. I'm going to—get married."

Mary Holmes stared at him dully. Here was another shock—to think of Jerry as no longer a boy, but as a man old enough to consider marrying. "You can't get married. Who'd marry you, the 'goose woman's son?" she inquired.

"That's what I'm getting at. I don't propose to be known as the 'goose woman's son. I propose to take you out of this if you'll let me. I propose to have you come and live with us and leave all this behind, if—"

"Then you've picked out the girl?"

Gerald nodded. He flushed, and his sensitive, eager face was slowly illuminated, glorified by an expression his mother had never seen it wear. It was an expression, by the way, that caused the years to roll back and remembrance to smite her. He was, for the moment, the living image of his father.

ROBERT INMAN WRITES OF STATE SCHOOL FOR DEAF

SCHOOL ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1865 WITH 11 PUPILS.

Robert Inman, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Inman of this city writes a brief history of the Texas School for the Deaf. Robert has attended the school for several years and is in the sixth grade.

"The Texas School for the Deaf is the 2nd largest school for the deaf in the United States. It was established in 1856. When the school first started, there were eleven pupils and two teachers. The school grew very slowly for thirteen years, because the roads were bad and all traveling was done on horseback or in wagons. There were few newspapers and people did not know about the school. Texas was poor then and did not have much money.

The first superintendent was Professor Jacob Van Nostrand. He was superintendent nineteen years.

The first building was what is now a dormitory for girls. It had three rooms, but now it is much larger. The teachers and pupils slept in this building. There were three log cabins and a smoke house. One of the log cabins was used for the kitchen. The smoke house was used for the schoolroom.

In 1887 part of the Administration building was built. It was two stories and had four rooms and a hall on each floor. It is now a very large building which is centrally located. In this building are the superintendent's apartment, offices, dormitories for the girls and small boys, hospital for the girls, dining rooms, bakery and kitchen. Other buildings on the campus are the Main School buildings, boys' dormitory, boys' hospital, the girl's industrial building, the boys' industrial building, the auto mechanics building, the laundry, the power plant and the gymnasium. The last two buildings were recently erected by our present superintendent, Mr. Scott.

While Mr. Gus Urbrankte was superintendent the primary school was built. It is 3 blocks south of the administration building and is for the younger children. They sleep, have their meals, and go to school there.

The enrollment of our school is five hundred and four.

Mr. Scott has been here twelve years and has done a great deal for the school. He is the thirteenth superintendent. He loves us and we love him. Both he and his wife are kind loving and thoughtful and we hope they will be with us many years."

facilities and considers her appointment a recognition of the 36,000 teachers in the city schools. In announcing her appointment Mayor La Guardia said that he had decided that many of the problems of the Board of Education were teachers' problems and that it would be very helpful to have a teacher on the board.

Success in angora rabbit farming seems to depend to some extent on whether you love and understand the raising of these animals. For instance, Mrs. Mary Allen of Englewood, Colorado, has raised several hundred rabbits from her original stock and has sold them all over the country. She has one of the most successful rabbit farms. The demand for the soft wool in the United States far exceeds the supply as about 200,000 pounds are imported annually.

Probably our greatest feminine hiker is Mrs. Jessie B. Douthit, of Georgia, who has just reached Australia. Hiking has been her hobby for years. She says she has traveled on foot in every continent.

From London comes word that a woman who holds a Master of Arts degree of Edinburg University, Miss A. B. Constable, has joined the regular force of women police in Great Britain. Men with Oxford and Cambridge degrees have graced the profession in the past, but this is the

Going Forward With Runnels County

It is pleasing to look back for a moment upon the trail which this bank and this community have traveled together through the years—years of steady growth and faithful service, of community progress and mutually helpful association.

The history of this bank has been bound up closely with the prosperity of this community. The story of our growth is written in a volume of many pages—each page bearing the story of some individual depositor's success in which we have had a part.

This is a strong home bank, devoted to the welfare and development of this community. We are old in experience but young in our enthusiasm and in our conviction that our best years of service are still before us.

You will find in this old, safe institution just that quality of friendly, helpful service which will be most valuable to your own progress. Our officers are more than just experienced bankers, long familiar with local condition; they are friends and neighbors whose interests are the same as your own.

to cause severe damage in a number of cases, to early cotton at this time. Cotton that is generally infested will have few squares if any and from appearance is growing rapid in height to a whip-like stalk. Small squares from a quarter of an inch on down can be found dried up and sticking to the stalk. The flea hopper itself is a pale green, ish-white fly about one eighth inch long. The young immature fleas are without wings and can be usually found in the terminal bud clusters. When cotton is disturbed the adult flea can be seen flying away from the stalk in an irregular manner.

Fleas destroy the first squares, which usually make cotton and for this reason is the all-important cause why they should be controlled.

The U. S. and Texas Experiment Stations have been working for over twenty-years on the control of the cotton flea and their recommendation is for the use of finely ground, conditioned sulphur, which has given satisfaction when properly applied with suitable dusting machinery.

Unless the infestation is severe 2 to 5 applications at weekly intervals will be sufficient to assure control.

From 12 to 20 pounds per acre should be used for each application, depending upon the size of the cotton, the severity of the infestation and the lateness of the season.

Good sulphur can usually be obtained from 3 to 3 1-2 cents per pound. In application a tractor cart duster, a power cart duster, all can be used to good advantage. However, a dust gun of any kind when in operation gives a good strong dust fog will be all right.

A demonstration is now in progress on the H. W. Lynn farm, 2 miles south of Norton, where H. E. Hillyard lives.

FARM POPULATION INCREASES DURING PAST FIVE YEARS

1935 CENSUS SHOW ONE AND A THIRD MILL-ION INCREASE.

Over one and a third million more persons were living on farms in the United States on January 1, 1935 than on April 1, 1930, according to the U. S.
Summary of the 1935 Federal Farm Census, released by Director William L. Austin of the Bureau of Census.

The nation's farm population of 31,800,907 on January 1, 1935 was the largest ever recorded by a census and exceeds the farm population of April 1, 1930 by 1,355,557 persons.
The gain in farm population may have been greater if the 1935 enumeration had been made on April 1, instead of January 1. The number of persons on farms in 1935 exceeded that of 1920 when 31,614,269 persons lived on farms.

Since the enumeration of persons living on farms is made only at five-year periods, the data available do not indicate the annual changes in the country's farm population within the five-year period between censuses.
Hence the number may have been higher for one of the years between censuses.

Gains during the five-year period in the number of persons living on farms occurred around industrial centers, mining sections, and in areas often designated as "subsistence farming." This increase in farm residents reflects, in a major degree, the back-to-the-farm movement of over two million persons and the checking by the depression of the flow of farm folks to the cities.

During these five years, thousands formally employed in factories, mines and other industries moved to unoccupied farms or returned to the farm homes of their parents or relatives. Farms abandoned during years when industry prospered have been resettled, and unoccupied farm houses located on going farms have been reoccupied.

The total farm population of 31,800,907 on January 1, 1935 was composed of 27,058,851 white persons (including Mexicans) and 4,742, 056 colored persons (negroes, Indians, Chinese, Japanese and other non-
