LIONS HEAR SCOUT AND FARM TALKS TUESDAY LUNCHEON

MUSICAL NUMBERS FURISH THE ENTERTAINMENT.

Jno. W. Norman was in charge of the opening exercises at Tuesday's luncheon of the Lions Club, in the absence of C. L. Green, president.

Entertainment numbers were a piano solo by Mrs. L. T. Smith and two violin solos by Miss Sara Stevens, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Smith.

Talks on scouting were made by Ed Shumway, scout executive of Abilene, and A. Krauss, and plans are being made to reorganize the scout work here.

A. J. Barton, county agent, talked on his work in the county, and told his audience that the National farm program was shaping up now under three heads, which were, he said: First, maintain and increase soil fertility. Second, producing sufficient food and feed for both the farm family and livestock. Third, raising adequate cash crops to finance farm operations.

Rentals and soil building payments to Runnels county farmers to be paid during the months of December and January will total Mr. Barton said $340,000.

Thos. B. Hill, an assistant in the county agent's office, was also a visitor at the luncheon. E. D. Stringer was in charge of the program.

VICTORY RAISES QUOTA FOR DEMO. CAMPAIGN FUND

O. F. Turk, precinct chairman for the Victory box, in town Monday, informed The Enterprise that they had not only raised their quota for the National Democratic campaign fund, but had exceeded it.

In raising the Victory quota, Mr. Turk said that he intended to raise it if he had to donate the entire amount personally, however, this was not necessary.

The two Winters precincts have raised eighty some odd dollars on a quota of $109.50 and so far as known here Winters and Victory are the only two places in the county that have raised any money for the national campaign.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution to the national campaign fund for the reelection of President Roosevelt and Vice-President Garner may do so by calling at the Smith Drug Co., or seeing W. D. Meadows.

NEW TEACHER IS ELECTED FOR FIRST GRADE OF SCHOOL

726 PUPILS ARE ENROLLED IN ENTIRE SCHOOL SYSTEM.

Due to the crowded condition of the first grade which included ninety pupils, the school board recently elected, Miss Imogene Grady of Brownwood, as teacher in the primary grades. Miss Grady assumed her new duties Monday morning.

Miss Melba Read, high school English teacher, who had been ill since the opening of school, returned to her work also Monday morning.

All classes throughout the school are crowded, with the first grade topping the list with an enrollment of 90; second grade, 50; third, 63; fourth, 70; fifth, 55; sixth, 67; seventh, 64; eighth, 80; ninth, 82; tenth, 60, and eleventh, 45. Total enrollment of the entire school is 726.

The enrollment this year is short twenty-two pupils as compared to that of last year when 748 were enrolled to make the greatest number ever to attend the Winters high school. When the cotton picking season is fully ended it is expected that the number will increase and possibly reach the 1935 enrollment.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ballard and little son of Big Spring spent the past week-end in the home of her parents.

Sodded Terraced Outlet Channels Prove Valuable In Erosion Control

Inspection trips made after a recent 8.01 inch rain revealed that on farms near Waco under cooperative agreement with the Soil Conservation Service, sodded terrace outlet channels suffered no damage from excessive runoff waters, according to Frank Moore, technician in charge.

"All of the 11,448 linear feet of channel protected with Bermuda sod was in excellent condition after carrying the run-off from terraces. No repair work will be necessary on any of these channels," Moore's report says.

Despite some of the channels having been solid sodded for little more than a month there was no damage from the rain water. In one case where sod had been placed in an outlet channel with a drainage area of 42 acres there was no washing or scouring whatever, although the sod had been there only three or four weeks, proving that with solid sodding almost immediate protection can be secured.

The more expensive outlet channels, protected by mechanical structures, will require some maintenance work, the report stated. Damage to mechanically controlled channels was due to the water following dry weather cracks around the wing walls of structures.

Erosion on farm lands in the Waco area which were unprotected by erosion control measures was very severe following the recent heavy rains, Moore says. Gullies and deposits of topsoil in low places were evident on every hand. In comparison to this heavy damage, land on which the complete erosion control program of the Soil Conservation Service had been placed suffered practically no damage.

11,447 BALES OF COTTON GINNED HERE UP TO DATE

Figures gathered from local gins yesterday morning showed that there had been ginned in Winters, up to that time, 11,447 bales of cotton.

Most estimates of the total number of bales to be ginned in Winters this season run between 13,000 and 14,000 bales.

Cold, damp weather yesterday stopped gathering of the fleecy staple, and weather conditions will probably make a long, drawn-out affair of gathering the remnant of the crop.

CAR WRECK FRIDAY LANDS TRANSIENT IN JAIL

DRUNKEN DRIVING AND CAR THEFT ARE CHARGES.

A transient was arrested here last Friday night and lodged in the county jail Saturday morning, charged with driving a car while intoxicated and car theft, after a wreck on North Main street in which he ran into and damaged the automobile of Frank Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Miss Maurita Penny were driving north on Main street about 8 p. m. Friday when their car was struck from behind, damaging the Johnson car to the extent of some $50 to $75. The car doing the damage was an old Buick coupe, which had been stolen from the Brannon Auto Wrecking Co., and the driver, who is now in the county jail with two charges against him as stated above, gave his name in one instance as Donaldson and again as Parker. After hitting the Johnson car, the Buick crossed the street and ran up on the yards and finally stopped after crashing into the residence occupied by Alex Krauss, where it cracked the foundation and bursted weatherboarding of the house as well as breaking out all glass of the car. Mr. and Mrs. Krauss and son were listening to the radio at the time, and when the car struck the house, Mr. Krauss said he "thought the Spanish rebels were after him."

Donaldson, or Parker, interviewed Saturday morning, said that all he remembered was buying six or eight pints of whiskey; that he had no money, and that about all he could do would be to "plead guilty and take the rap."

$2,206 TO RUNNELS WHEAT PRODUCERS

Ballinger, Oct. 21.—First government payments on 1936 wheat acreage reduction in Runnels county were received this morning at the office of County Agent J. A. Barton. The checks, totaling 32, amounted to a total of $2,206.99.

The payments included all except four checks on the 32 county contracts. Four of the contracts provide checks for both tenants and landlords.

These are believed to be among the first checks issued in Texas under the 1936 wheat control program. Notices were mailed this afternoon to the respective recipients.

Dr. Brophy was accompanied by his wife who remained at his bedside. T. G. Herridge took them to San Antonio returning home the first of the week and reported the doctor stood the trip just fine.

Texas Guns

NINTH ENSTALMENT

SYNOPSIS . . . Silas Spelle, high-handed, low-principled cattle baron, is out to smash the local bank and force foreclosure on the small ranchers of the Kanab desert country so that he can seize their range lands. He is opposed by Ed. Starbuck, president of the Cattleman's Bank and by San Juan Delevan, prominent rancher who has been crippled by a fall from his horse. Tex Whipple and his partner, Johnny Clehoe, are cowpunchers employed by San Juan Delevan to fight the rustlers and protect his interests.

Johnny jumped from his blankets and scratched a match, and a moment later the smokey lamp of the big bunkhouse table threw out pale gleams of yellow light. Pink Crosby, one side of his cherubic face streaked with dried blood sighed with relief as he lowered the big, limp body of Pod Fortune on a bunk. Then he wobbled and would have fallen himself if Johnny had not leaped forward and steadied him. There was a partially emptied bottle of whiskey on a shelf and Johnny caught it down and gave Pink a long drink.

"What the hell happened?" he demanded.

Pink, steadied by the liquor, sank into a chair and stared at Johnny apathetically. "Spelle's crowd," he answered tonelessly. "Tried all afternoon in town to start somethin' with me an' Pod. We wanted to keep outa their way. They outnumbered us an' besides we didn't want no trouble Pod an' me ain't gun-fighters. Then come dark we started back to the ranch. Damned if the dirty skunks didn't dry-gulch us. We was ridin' along quiet an' easy an' all of a sudden from a heap o' sage came a streak o' fire an' the whang of a gun. Ole Pod grunted an' dropped. God! I heard a slug hit him. I went for my own hawg-laig but before I could turn it loose somethin' larruped me alongside the haid an' down I went.

"I wasn't out, but somehow I couldn't seem to move. Right away four or five hombres came ridin' out o' the brush an' scared our brones off. They was laughin' an' jokin'. One o' them says 'That pays fer Fair an' Donnelly, but we gotta get one more o' that damned gang to square it up fer Durbin.' Sounded to me like Montana Wade's voice. Then somebody else chimed in sayin' that the old man, meanin' Spelle I reckon, was figurin' on rushin' in the Box D an' cleanin' out on the whole caboodle.

"I was kinda driftin' off about that time a' I couldn't make much sense of the rest I heard. I did hear somebody mention Miss Ronny's name an' then they all laughed kinda nasty like. After that they haided back towards town. I musta laid there for an hour before I could get up. I went over to Pod an' found he was still alive. Then I had one hell of a time ketchin' our brones, which had run off quite a ways. I got 'em finally an' managed to pile pore ole Pod across his hull. Then I come on in. Tha's all—'ceptin' pore Pod. How bad is he hurt, Johnny?"

Johnny bent over Pod Fortune and unbuttoned his blood drenched shirt. There was a nasty wound, high up on his left breast. Johnny studied it closely for a moment. "Hard tellin'," he muttered. "Looks like a lung wound to me. Which ain't so good. Give him a little o' this liquor, Pink. I'll get the Chink up an' have him heat some water. Then you an him do what yuh can fer Pod. I'm haidin' fer town after Doc McMurdo."

Johnny jerked on his boots and buckled his gun belt around his hips. Then he went up to the rear where Chang slept and pounded on the door.

"Hey Chang," he called softly. "It's me—Johnny Clehoe."

Presently Chang opened the door and blinked sleepily at Johnny.

"Wassa malla?" he creaked. Johnny told him about Pod and what he was to do, then when Chang scurried quickly for the kitchen, Johnny went to the corral on the run and saddled up. A moment later he was pounding away through the darkness along the trail to Carillion.

While McMurdo dressed, Johnny related the paramount incidents of the night and the old Scotchman's frown deepened as he listened.

"'Tis a sneakin', crafty mon he is, that Spelle. And a pity that the law is but a farce."

"We've got law," was Johnny's pregnant answer, patting the gun at his hip.

"Ay, lad—tr-rue ye are. But 'tis a law of violence."

"Mebee," said Johnny briefly. "But it's the only law Spelle's kind can understand. All set, Doc?"

"Aye—ye'll be r-ridin' with me, lad?"

Johnny shook his head. "I'm hangin' around fer an hour or so. See yuh later, Doc."

When McMurdo rode away Johnny went down to the hash-house and had breakfast. Then, just as the sun peeped over the horizon he sauntered up to Jake Butterfield's store, to find that worthy opening up.

"Out kinda early, ain't yuh?" Jake gave his orthodx greeting. "Uh-huh, I want to get some smokin' Jake."

Johnny consumed a full hour over this meagre purchase, most of the time being spent as acting the interested listener to Butterfield's ponderous garrulousness.

"Some gents," stated Jake. "Shore want to hawg everything! Take Si Spelle for instance. Why he even tried to buy me out yestidday. He got wrothy as hell when I turned him down. He couldn't see my side of it a-tall. I'm plum satisfied here. I'm makin' a good livin' an' I wouldn't know what to do with myself if I had to leave. When I told Spelle that he champed on the bit fer awhile an' then—what d'yuh know—he offered me five hundred dollars cash if'n I'd refuse to sell any more supplies to Jim Delevan o' the Box D."

"No?" Johnny was interested now—very interested. "I suppose yuh told his to go to hell, Jake."

"Yore dang right I did," proclaimed Jake proudly. "Yessir, I shore did. Why Jim Delevan an' me are real friends. Jim's been buyin' his supplies off'n me fer goin' on sixteen years. I told him he wan't foolin' old Jake none. I told him I knowed he was figurin' on grabbin' off Jim's spread. An' here Jake paused to relieve himself of a mouthful of blackstrap juice and to lend dramatic effect to his words. "I told him I shore hoped Jim would lick him to a stem-windin' frazzle. Yessir that's what I told him. I—huh—ugh!"

Jake halted so suddenly he nearly swallowed his cud of tobacco. He was staring at the door, his pale eyes bagged out alarmingly.

John whirled, crouching. Two men had just entered the store. Johnny and Jake were at the rear of the counter where it was dusky and the two new arrivals were squinting and blinking to adjust their eyes to the gloom after facing the slanting sun rays outside. Johnny recognized the one in front as Montana Wade. The other was a stranger.

Jake moved forward diffidently "What'll it be gents?" he asked.

"Spelle wants all the .30-30 shells yuh got in stock, Butterfield," snapped Wade. "Trot 'em out here quick. My partner an' me got work to do. An' say—who in hell was yuh talkin' to jest now?"

"Me!" Johnny answered snapped out like the crack of a whiplash. He stepped forward. "What yuh gonna do about it, yuh damned, yellow dry-gulcher?"

For a moment Wade stood as one stunned. He teetered on his toes like an animal about to spring, peering at Johnny, the fingers of his right hand uncoiling like flexing claws. Hate flamed in his eyes.

"Spike," he snarled suddenly. "Here's one scalp Spelle wants—bad. He's one o' the two what did fer Fair an' Donnelly an' Durbin. Get him!"

With the words, Wade dropped to his knees, snatching at his gun.

He died, in that position slumping forward on his face. Johnny had been waiting for that movement and had gone into flaming action.

"Stay there," snapped Johnny. "Nother move an' yuh get it where Wade did. Jake—I'll take them .30-30 shells. Put 'em in a sack an' pile on five or six boxes o' .45s. Pronto now."

Jake Butterfield, stunned, awed, shivering; his loosely hung tongue cleaving to the roof of his mouth in terror, mover automatically to obey.

"Here 'tis," he croaked shakily, shoving a weighty sack across the counter. "Thirteen boxes o' .30-30s an' six o' .45s. That cleans me. W-won't have no more in 'till the end o' the week. Sh-hall I charge 'em?"

Johnny grinned in spite of himself, but his cold eyes never wavered from the wounded man at the door.

"Yeah, charge 'em—to Jim Delevan." Then, lugging the weighty sack in his left hand, Johnny advanced to the door and drove Masters into the street ahead of him.

"Fork yore brone an' git," snapped Johnny. "Yuh can tell Spelle fer me that if he's got any more gun-men he's yearnin' to get rid of to send 'em around. An' tell him we do our shootin' out in the open, not sneakin' around in the brush liked a damned side-winder. Get goin'."

When Johnny reached the Box D ranchhouse he found Jim Delevan, Ronny, Doc McMurdo and Pink Crosby in conference on the porch. As he rode up to the corral Ronny advanced to the head of the stairs where she waited until Johnny came clanking up, the sack of ammunition draped over one shoulder.

Johnny smiled at her cheerfully. "Now—now," he chided gently. "Chase those scary-scaries out yore pretty eyes, Miss Ronny. The sun's ashinin' an' I saw a blue-bird down the trail a piece."

Some of the hovering shadow left Ronny's eyes at this foolishness and she even managed a tremulous little smile.

"You should have come back with the Doctor," she accused. "We've been worried sick about you. I—I—" she gulped a little and winked fast.

Johnny sobered and caught her elbow with his free hand. "Don't huh," he pleaded. "Not because o' me. I'll allus come back—to you."

He squeezed her arm tightly and Ronny had the grace to blush. Johnny steered her to the porch to the others.

"How's Pod?" he demanded. "Vera, vera sick," rumbled McMurdo. "But yon's a brow mon Johnny complacently. Pod's too an' should cheat Death this time."

"I knew he would," answered doggoned onery an' tough to die, huh Pink?"

Pink Crosby, his rosy cheeks rather pale, grinned back in answer from beneath the shroud of a white bandage which circled his head. "Y'betcha," he nodded. "Ole Pod's one tough brone."

"How about you?" broke in Delevan impatiently. "Suppose yuh give an account o' yoreself, young feller. What'cha been doin' an' what'cha got in that sack? Looks purty damn heavy to me."

"Jest a few supplies," was Johnny's off-hand reply. "Say Ronny—how's chances fer a little grub? I ain't et since breakfast an' it's crowdin' two o'clock now. I'm all gaunted up."

Ronny smiled and scurried away kitchenward. "Humph," grunted Delevan. "Yuh shore got a way with yuh, yuh dangd young hellion. She never would hop that fast fer me. But yuh got somethin' to tell us. What's weighin' down yore mind?"

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

Blackheads caused very little worry in grandmother's day. They were accepted more or less as a matter of course. Now, however, we know that each blackhead is a potential pimple and therefore a cause of real concern. We're becoming educated. Today's specialists regard blackheads with grave suspicions and route them before they have a chance to become deeply imbedded.

Removing blackheads calls for more than the usual soap and water or even cream cleansing. We must throw the pores wide open first of all so that the blackheads can be removed without bruising or irritating the skin. Hot water accomplishes this best. First a thorough cleaning, the hot packs placed over the blackhead area to soften the skin. Packs of cotton dipped in a hot astringent oil, or hot castor oil, produces the best results and loosens the blackhead so that it can be gently pressed out. Always be gentle about this. Better to let it go and repeat the process the next evening rather than take a chance of bruising the skin if the blackhead is obstinate.

Once removed, pat the skin with a little skin tonic to close the pores and spread pore cream over the area to keep the pores refined. Guard against future blackheads by keeping the skin scrupulously clean. Keep the bowels open. Drink plenty of water. And be careful you diet is not overburdened with starches and sweets.

Although many of fashion's high priests claim that flats and low-heeled evening slippers are definitely out, they refuse to take the count according to the latest style news from Paris. Ladies of lofty stature who tower over most of their dancing partners are their staunchest champions.

Perfume should be a sort of aura that floats around you—a part of your personality, or something. And here are some tests in selecting a perfume that are fun to try. Notice the difference in smell of the same perfume on your handkerchief and on your skin. Try smelling a drop in the palm of your hand, and a larger quantity rubbed over the whole arm. Master perfumers point out that their products smell as differently on one person as on another as those two persons differ in chemical skin composition.

Corn meal makes an excellent substitute for a dry shampoo for removing excess oil and cleaning the hair. To be on the safe side, spread newspapers over the floor of the room where you do it, then take a cup of corn meal and brush thoroughly through the hair. After it is removed, carefully and completely, scented with a little perfume and press your waves in place.

Cleaning window shades is not a difficult or messy task if the following simple procedure is followed. Stretch them out on the porch, first having taken the precaution to spread down a clean sheet or other covering, dust thoroughly, then go over each with a wet cloth that has been rubbed with white soap. Rinse off the soap with a cloth squeezed out in clean water.

Household Hint: Soap which contains free alkali will injure, among other things, linoleum, paint, varnish, wool, silk and delicate fabrics.

DISTINCTIVE AFTERNOON FROCK

Pattern 8668: If you are looking for an afternoon frock that's not only fashionably styled but full of figure flattery as well, you'd better look twice at this frock. The larger woman is wise to pick a style which omits the belt and gives her an unbroken line through the waist, such as the slenderizing panel and waist yoke combined in this pattern.

Its tuck-fitted shoulders have the soft fullness so important this season, and the bit of real lace in the high V of the neck adds its quota of flattery. The long sleeves are interesting with the fullness held in by a tied wristband and the inset of lace to match the lace at the neck. The back repeats the panel but with a normal waistline.

For patterns, send 15 cents in coin (for each pattern desired), your Name, Address, Style Number and Size to Patricia Dow, Winters Enterprise Pattern Dept., 115 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Fruits of Labor

The only lasting benefits that can come from a prosperous harvest season are when the fruits of labor have been stored away against future need.

For the individual, there is no protection that can equal the accumulation of a Reserve Account in a strong bank. It provides working capital; makes possible the grasping of opportunities; it is an ever-present fund with which to weather seasons of sickness, accident or other adversities. In short, it is a bulwark of protection for the certainties of today and the uncertainties of tomorrow.

Because we know the blessings that attend the building of a strong Reserve Bank Account, we urge the people of this community to put something aside in a special reserve from each harvest deposit.

FEAR AND FAITH

Mankind's greatest enemy is fear. Fear is at the root of a high proportion of the ills of the human body, reports the famous experimental surgeon, Dr. Geo. W. Crile of Cleveland, after years of intensive study into the causes of heart disease, with its accompanying histories of high blood pressure and sudden death and all the other ailments which take such a heavy toll of lives in America every year. It is customary to attribute these and other diseases of civilization to the nervous tension in which a large part of the inhabitants of the modern world continually live and move. But the cause of nervous tension, Dr. Crile believes, is primarily fear.

It has long been known to physiologists that physical fear stimulates the action of the heart and causes tension of the blood vessels. It is Dr. Crile's belief that the same or similar results follow the various forms of fear which we speak of as worry, apprehension, jealousy and by other names all of which simmer down to the fact that we are afraid of something. This conclusion may point the way toward the reduction or elimination of the causes of premature old age, and of the infirmities due to the nervous disturbances.

Just how fear can be eliminated from the human subconsciousness Dr. Crile does not undertake to point out. There probably is no rule or remedy of universal application, and it is also probable that the habit of fearlessness is one which must be acquired in youth or childhood. The interesting conclusion can be drawn, however, from Dr. Crile's report, that there is sound foundation for the teachings of spiritual leaders that the physical and the spiritual life are inseparable, and that in the long run it is the spiritual nature which controls the physical body.

That this is true is the accepted belief today of the most advanced thinkers in the medical profession as well as of the foremost religious leaders. This conclusion still leaves us facing an unsolved mystery, but brings home the vital importance of faith as an element in human life.

LIBERTY

There is only one fundamental conflict in this world of turmoil which need give anyone any real concern. That is the conflict between human liberties and dictatorship. This is the conflict which is tearing the world apart. It is less acute in American than it is anywhere else.

Throughout the world great masses of people are surrendering their liberties of action, speech and thought to the tyranny of absolutist governments.

In return for what appears to be economic security, they consent to let their governments do their thinking, direct the conduct of their daily lives, even prescribe their religious observances and interfere, in some nations, with their most intimate domestic relations. People who live under governments so controlled from above tend to become less like human beings and more like driven cattle. And the experience in every instance has been that in return for their liberties which they have sacrificed they have never gained anything of value.

The greatest disillusionment in this respect has been that of the Russian people, who submitted to the autocratic control of a handful of Communist leaders and who find themselves today living in a condition of economic misery far more degraded than anything under the old Czarist rule. There is only one thing worth fighting for. That is the only thing for which free people have ever fought, individual human rights and liberties. It is to be hoped that the time will not come when the American people are again compelled to take up arms in defense of the right of every individual to live, act and think as he pleases so long as he does not interfere with the right of others to do the same.

We do not think that such a crisis in the affairs of this country is imminent, or that it is even foreshadowed. We base this belief upon our faith in the inherent commonsense of a nation of free men and women, who have thrived under the freest form of government that has ever existed and who are today better off economically, socially and in individual freedom than the people of any other nation in the world.

No government is perfect, since governments are composed of human beings and human beings are not perfect. But a government which is based upon the freely expressed will of a nation of free people not only comes nearer to being perfect than any other form of government can possibly be, but it contains within itself all of the forces necessary to bring about such changes as may be required to bring it still nearer to perfection.

So we Americans pin our faith upon the American system as we know it.

Inoculating cowpeas at planting time produced 6,486 pounds of green vines per acre for C. W. Duncan, Cass county farmer. This was 7,716 pounds more than was produced on a plot where the seed were not inoculated, reports the county agricultural agent.

MERCHANTS AND TRADE

If all the articles that have been written about trading at home were stretched, end to end, they would reach around the universe and back home again.

The idea that it pays citizens to patronize home industry is such simple truth that some "smart" people believe that there is a catch in it, and they prefer to be 'wise' and send off for something that the 'foolish' town boosters miss.

This paper has heretofore urged its readers to buy everything possible in their home town, because a town or city has a money balance just as vital to progress as any individual budget. The more trading done in this city the more profits there will be and the more prosperity, and besides those who have faith enough to open up business here are entitled to the patronage of their community.

However, let's keep the argument on a sound basis, and to do this we must consider the merchant's obligation. He is not entitled to the trade of local citizens unless he is really a merchant and not a mere storekeeper, content to pluck random profits of desultory trade. Local merchants to merit local patronage must be modern in their methods, up-to-date in their appearance and efficient in business. They cannot, and should not expect a community to support incompetency through mis-guided home spirit.

Having said so much about our merchants let us point out that our town, like other places, has efficient as well as inefficient merchants. We have reliable and honest business houses, and, we regret to say, a few that are not above taking the profit and forgetting the true principles of modern business. Readers are urged to be discriminating in their patronage and support merchants who are public-spirited, of known honesty and of apparent efficiency in business. In so doing you will not lose anything.

OAK CREEK CLUB ELECTS NEW OFFICERS FOR YEAR

Mrs. A. D. Dudley was re-elected president when the Oak Creek Home demonstration club met Tuesday October 13, at the home of Mrs. Claude Rowland.

The outstanding feature of the short business meeting was the election of officers. Including the president the other officers elected were vice-president, Mrs. Maude Phillips; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Claude Rowland; reporter, Mrs. Marvin Phillips; council member, Mrs. John McGown; bedroom demonstrator, Mrs. Claude Rowland and yard demonstrator, Mrs. A. D. Dudley.

At the conclusion of the business meeting dainty refreshment plates were passed to those present.

SEEK OLD TREASURES

Bethlehem, Pa.—With an old map, Lt. Harry A. Adams, U. S. N., retired, and his son, plan to set out soon in a two-masted schooner, seeking a sunken Spanish galleon, loaded with gold, silver and jewels. The ship was wrecked during a storm 400 years ago and is believed to be about where it went down in the Caribbean Sea. Adams believes the treasure to be worth at least $7,000,000.

From the Caribbean, they plan to go to the Canary Islands where they say is a buried treasure of Spanish silver dollars—$2,000,000 worth.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington.—One definite forecast can be made at this time in regard to the presidential election on November 3. That is, that the total vote for all presidential candidates will be greatly in excess of the number of ballots cast in any previous election.

Both of the major parties have been concentrating a great deal of their energies upon seeing to it that every one of their prospective voters was registered, and the result so far has been a surprising increase in the total registration.

In New York State, for example, the registration is nearly a million in excess of the number who voted in the 1932 presidential election. The increased registration is proportionately somewhat less heavy in other states, but on the whole it is a safe bet that there are around 15 percent more citizens in the nation qualified to vote this year than ever before.

The effort to get out the vote does not end, of course, with seeing that all possible voters are registered. From now until the morning of election day the most vigorous efforts will be made to see to it that not only those newly registered but all of the previously qualified voters, in states where annual registration is not required, actually go to the polls. That will not be such a difficult task as it has been in many previous elections. The proverbial apathy of the American voters seems to be a minus quality this year. Certainly not since 1916 has partisan spirit run such a high temperature and penetrated so deeply into the mass of voters.

Expect Heaviest Vote While there are no exact figures of the total number of persons qualified to vote in the entire nation, there are somewhere about 60,000,000 citizens who have reached the age of 21 and who can vote if they have been duly registered.

The heaviest vote ever cast was in 1932 when 39,816,522 citizens went to the polls. That the popular vote will run closer to 50,000,000 than 40,000,000 this year is the expectation of all of the best informed political observers.

All of the political signs point not only to a heavy vote, but to a much closer division of the vote between the major parties than at any time within the past 20 years. That is one of the reasons why it is so difficult to forecast the outcome with confidence. At this stage in almost every previous presidential campaign, the experienced political forecasters have been able to say with great certainty which party would win. There have, as a matter of fact, been very few close elections in the history of America since 1860.

Few Close Elections Mr. Lincoln had a close shave in his campaign for reelection in 1864. In 1876 the presidential contest was so close that the election was thrown into the House of Representatives to determine between Mr. Tilden and General Hayes. In 1884 it was also an extremely close thing, Mr. Cleveland carrying the State of New York by less than 2,000 plurality.

There was no other really close elections until 1916, when Charles E. Hughes, now Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, went to bed on election night satisfied that he had been elected President over Mr. Wilson. It was two days before the belated returns from California gave the state to Mr. Wilson and reelected him President.

There has not been a single close election since 1916. All the rest of them have been in the nature of landslides. Popular sentiment has been so preponderantly upon one side or the other that it took no particular skill for impartial observers to foretell by the middle of October which party would win. Mr. Hardin's election in 1920, Mr. Coolidge's in 1924, Mr. Hoover's in 1928 and Mr. Roosevelt's in 1932 were foregone conclusions almost from the beginning of those respective campaigns.

This years such doubts as there are arise from two factors which have not been present in previous presidential campaigns and for which there is no experience to serve as a guide in trying to estimate their weight. All of the nation-wide polls upon which the public and the politicians have been accustomed to rely since 1920 point in one direction only. That direction is toward Gov. Landon, who has a comfortable margin in these "straw votes." Likewise, in the matter of newspaper support, not more than a small handful of influential newspapers outside of the South are supporting Mr. Roosevelt.

But when it comes to predicting the election outcome those who approach the question with the most open minds hesitate because of two factors whose value it is impossible to determine.

Relief and Labor Vote Those two factors are the re-

AFTER FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

The official ending of Fire Prevention Week—which was observed between October 4th and 10th this year—should certainly not bring an end to the public interest and enthusiasm the Week created.

We should regard the Week relief vote and the labor vote. The general assumption is that the relief vote will go preponderantly for the reelection of Mr. Roosevelt. There is no way of determining what proportion of the beneficiaries of the Administration's relief measures have been in the habit of voting the Democratic ticket anyway.

Much of the same situation exists in regard to the labor vote. Organized labor and the families of members of labor unions may account for a possible total of 5,000,000 presidential votes. But, again, the question arises as to what proportion of these 5,000,000 has been in the habit of voting the Democratic ticket in previous elections. Nobody knows.

While it is the general belief that a higher proportion of the organized workers in trade and industry, and a higher proportion of those who occupy the lower economic strata, will vote for Mr. Roosevelt this year than have voted for the Democratic candidates in previous years, there is no way of finding out what percentage of the relief vote and the labor vote will go to either of the major candidates.

In other words, all of the signs of the times point to an extremely close election, for the first time in 20 years.

not as a seven-day matter, but as a fit starting point for a personal campaign, participated in by every citizen, that will run the 365 days of the year. Only if that is done can the Week produce real and permanent good results.

In a number of past years, fire loss has dropped sharply during the Week and for a short period thereafter. Then it has risen again to the "regular" level. In other words, we applied the lessons learned when they were fresh in our minds—but forgot them almost as soon as New Year's Resolutions. So long as that situation continues, our national fire loss will remain at disgracefully high levels.

Every property-owner can easily carry on a year-round campaign against fire. At regular intervals he should inspect his heating plant and electric wiring. He should not permit the accumulation of old newspapers, clothes and general debris. He should pay constant attention to the storage of inflammable liquids, paints, varnishes and similar articles which present a fire hazard. In case he does some building or rebuilding, he should personally make certain that a high standard of fire-resistant construction is attained.

There is certainly nothing difficult about such a program. It takes little time and costs next to nothing in money. And it may save your home and your life.

A household motto should read: "Regard every week as Fire Prevention Week."

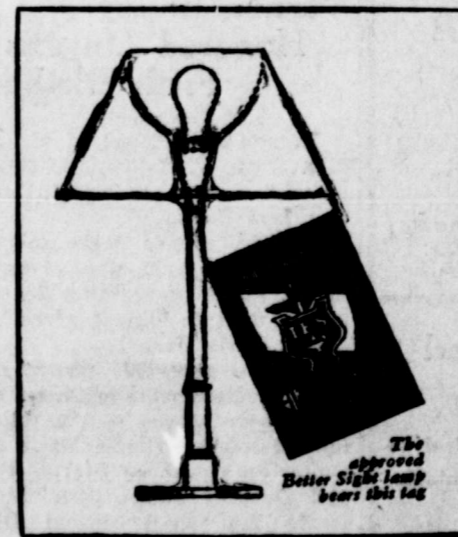

One comfort in hitting the bottom is that you can't go lower.

On Texas Farms

College Station.—Twenty Texas counties will have the crop acreages with which the Agricultural Conservation program is concerned measured from aerial photographs, as Caldwell county acreages were measured in 1935. These counties are: Burleson, Caldwell, Cass, DeWitt, Franklin, Fort Bend, Gonzales, Harrison, Hopkins, Hunt, Karnes, Limestone, Rains, Robertson, Rusk, Smith, Titas, Upshur, Van Zandt, and Washington.

Measurement of land from aerial photographs is considered the most accurate method of determining acreages, except where the measuring is done on the ground by competent engineers using precise instruments, according to M. R. Bentley, Extension agricultural engineer.

"Developments during recent years in the methods of producing aerial photographs have made this the lowest cost method of making reasonably accurate surveys of land," Bentley says.

"Small unavoidable errors in aerial surveys are consistent, and where a producer is shown to have slightly too much of the soil-depleting crops, he is also shown to have slightly too much of the soil-conserving crops.

"Measurements from aerial photographs are especially helpful in determining the acreages in fields with irregular boundaries, since this way it is nearly as easy to measure an irregular field as it is to measure a square field.

"Aerial pictures are taken from an airplane flying at a height of about two and one-half miles. The pictures thus taken are brought to a scale to suit the using agency by scaling the photos from known distances on the ground.

"Some measurements of crop boundaries are made in the field, reduced to a suitable scale and drawn in on the pictures. After the field supervisor has retouched the aerial photos so that the fields as they exist at the time of the supervisor's inspection are shown, the measurements of the acreages of the various crops are calculated with a planimeter or a totometer in the county agricultural agent's office.

"No technical education or training is required in order to be able to do the necessary work in the field, or to use the planimeter. But careful, accurate work is needed to get a satisfactory measuring job done.

"It is already apparent that the cost of measuring from aerial photos is less with pictures taken recently than where they were made five or six years ago, indicating improved and cheapened methods."

Bonham.—"It pays to market home-grown feed through livestock when prices are fair," Jess A. Smith of Fannin county told V. J. Young, county agricultural agent, recently. Smith has just completed a demonstration on 21 head of beef calves that gave him a net profit of $217.00.

Smith purchased the 21 head of Hereford calves on November 30, 1935 at a cost of $380.62. At that time they had a total weight of 5,250 pounds. The calves were fed hay and cake for 80 days. The next 120 days the calves were put on small grain and native pasture with the cake continued. Then they were fed hulls, meal, and ground maize heads for 50 days. They were finished for a period of 50 days on ground corn and cottonseed meal.

The calves were sold on September 25. Their total weight was 13,503 pounds, representing a gain of 8,252 pounds over a period of 300 days. They sold for $1,012.72, which left a profit of $317.00.

Marlin.—A yield of 44 bushels of corn per acre from a one-acre corn demonstration has been reported to W. I. Ross, Falls county agricultural agent, by Howard Haug, 4-H club boy. Howard sold the corn for 80 cents per bushel, making a total of $35.20 return on the acre.

Howard used yellow dent seed corn, selected from the barn from corn grown on the farm in 1935. After careful selecting and shelling the seed was treated to insure a better stand. The corn was grown on black land that had been terraced and was given good deep plowing in the fall, followed by clean level cultivation after the corn was up.

Archer City.—At a cost of 50 cents for cleaning and pressing, Mrs. Wallace Bedford of Archer county has made an attractive tailored suit from a man's discarded suit, according to Miss Georgia Mae Evans, home demonstration agent.

"I didn't even take the labels off. I just ripped up the sides of the coat and removed the sleeves," Mrs. Bedford said. "After fitting the coat, I cut the sleeves to fit and replaced them. The skirt was made from the trousers by using the cuff end at the waistline and sloping the sides gradually."

Canton.—"It is worth $50 to me to have running water in and drainage out of my kitchen," says Mrs. Bob Gregory, kitchen cooper of the New Hope home demonstration club in Van Zandt county.

In her kitchen improvement work, Mrs. Gregory also added a sink and a new stove, papered the kitchen, refinished the woodwork and gave the linoleum a new coat of paint.

"I now have a clean attractive workshop. Since I spend a large part of my time in the kitchen, I am enjoying working in an attractive one," she told Miss Beulah Blackwell, home demonstration agent.

Lubbock.—A 7x10x12 cellar dug under the kitchen will provide an adequate storage for a winter supply of food for T. A. McClure and sons of Lubbock county according to Miss Norfleet Grimes, home demonstration agent. Heretofore the food has been stacked on the floor in the corner of the dining room, destroying food values and causing hours of extra work.

The kitchen floor made the ceiling of the cellar. The walls were ceiled with heavy boards, and the cellar was calcimined white throughout.

Home demonstration county councils—which represent home demonstration club women in their county-wide activities—certainly do varied and interesting things as revealed by the reports of home demonstration agents.

The Wilson county council reported a recreational encampment for home demonstration club women at Sutherland Springs with all expense paid and $11.06 left in the treasury.

In the meeting of the McLennan county council it was reported that 14 home demonstration clubs in the county had a total of 59 stories in the paper; and that a reporters' training conference had been held with 14 clubs represented by their duly appointed reporters.

The Childress county council reported that the editor of the Childress County News had given a picnic for his rural correspondents and that 50 per cent of the home demonstration club reporters attended.

The Leon county council reported that 98 4-H club girls and boys and home demonstration women went to the Texas Centennial on Leon county day; three county school buses furnished the transportation for the two-day educational trip which was sponsored by the council.

The Parmer county council approved the plans of its recreation committee for a 4-H club encampment and a county-wide all-day picnic for home demonstration club women; it also approved the plans of its exhibit committee to enter a bedroom improvement exhibit at the South Plains fair.

The El Paso county council went in for community booths showing home demonstration exhibits at the Harvest Festival.

Agricultural Conservation Payments To Start Soon

College Station.—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has announced that initial payments under the 1936 Agricultural Conservation program will soon be started to producers in Texas and the other states of the Southern region, according to A. L. Smith, secretary of the State Conservation Committee.

There are two classes of these payments, Class I to be made on acreage diverted from soil-depleting crops, and Class II to be made on certain soil-building crop and practices. It is estimated that the payments in Texas will amount to approximately $37,322,435, though, because of incomplete figures on compliance at this time the final payments may vary from this amount.

Producers in the Southern region will receive 90 per cent of the Class I payments and 100 per cent of the Class II payments, H. R. Tolley, A. A. A. administrator, states. An additional payment will be made after the exact extent of participation is determined.

Cotton picking for 1936 will soon be a thing of the past in our community.

"Complete information on participation will not be available for several weeks," Mr. Tolley said, "although it is known that the number of farmers taking part in the program is in the neighborhood of 4,000,000. This is substantially in excess of participation for any one year under the old crop reduction.

"From the standpoint of sound business procedure, therefore, it was deemed advisable to take advantage of the safeguards provided by the program in order to avoid possible deficits, and, at the same time, avoid holding up a large share of the applications for payments until all of them are completed."

Mother, I can't Study—My head hurts!

AS A USUAL THING, he is "such a regular guy." He comes home from school full of pep and energy. Of course you want him that way always. But are you protecting his health and safety during the few short months of winter when he must spend his evenings indoors?

That uncomfortable "stuffy" feeling . . . dullness . . . lowered vitality . . . headache—these are some of nature's ways of complaining against improper heating and insufficient ventilation. These are the warning signals that America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, has found another fertile field in which to attack. For your health's sake and that of your loved ones do not wait for these definite signs of warning that the air indoors has become stale. Keep the air you breathe constantly purified with fresh oxygen through adequate ventilation in every room in the house.

Without oxygen man cannot live. Without oxygen, fuel cannot burn. Therefore, if your family "huddles" in one or two rooms around an open flame heater during cold weather with the doors and windows tightly closed, you are violating all the rules of nature, good health and good heating. Sooner or later the occupants of the room and the burning fuel reduce the oxygen content to the point where the room air becomes stale. Without adequate ventilation and circulation the air indoors may become as foul and unhealthy as that of the tenement slums of large cities, even though your home may be the most beautiful in the neighborhood.

A simple and easy method of providing a constant circulation of fresh air is found by opening a window in each room slightly. Connecting doors left open between adjoining rooms when the entire house is adequately heated provide a natural circulation of pure warm air from one room to another.

Guard the health of your loved ones with adequate heat and proper ventilation of pure, warmed air in every room in the house.

See Chaplin Flame?

LOS ANGELES... It's the social saint during play hours that starts Hollywood predicting, so the more and more Paulette Goddard (above) is seen as Charley Chaplin's companion (as at recent tennis matches) the surer all are that the love flame burns.

FRIENDS... Mark Bennitt Nearly 45 years ago I walked into the office of a Buffalo newspaper and asked the managing editor for a job. He put me to work, and I have been a newspaper man ever since. Also, Mark Bennitt and I have kept up the friendship which began back there in 1891.

Mark, still active at 77, came East last week on a motor tour from his home in Oakland, Cal. He happened to catch me in New York, and nearly wore my feet out showing him the sights of the town.

The older I grow, the more valuable old friendships become. Any man is fortunate who still has contacts with loyal friends of his youth, after he has passed 60 especially if they still have their eyes turned to the future instead of the past. Mark Bennitt was full of enthusiasm for a new irrigation project in which he is just embarking—at 77! Years mean nothing so long as enthusiasm remains.

AGE... questioned When I hear men in the 40's complain that they can't find work because they are so old that nobody will hire them, I am inclined to be skeptical.

The other day a friend who is 62 dropped in at my office. He was just back from a trip which took him into 29 cities. After three years without a job he had landed one at $100 a week. He looked ten years younger than when I had last seen him.

Age, so far as it touches a man's earning capacity, is too often a fiction created in one's own mind.

JOBS... to be had The state of New York has had to suspend work on one of its new state prisons because the contractor cannot find enough capable bricklayers, carpenters and other building workers who are willing to work for union wages.

A friend brought me work the other day from the South that was finding in Georgia builders are doing it equally difficult to hire competent men. He was in the North looking for workers at high wages on a big building job.

An automobile company executive told me recently that his company was having great difficulty in filling jobs which it has open for skilled workers.

It seems to me that most of the folks who claim they cannot find work are not really looking for work but are looking for someone who will pay them for not working.

UNIONS... then and now I carried a working card in the typographical union more than I like to remember. I have watched the development of organized labor for fifty years and I am satisfied that, on the whole, it has been beneficial to both the employer and employees.

I confess, however, that I don't understand the bitter antagonism which has been lately so often expressed toward so-called "company unions." If the workers in a particular business prefer to organize themselves on a basis which lets in nobody but employees of that particular company, I don't see why anybody else should feel aggrieved.

Of course, the opposition is based upon the belief that some company unions are controlled by the management for the purpose of keeping wages down. The ones I know most about work just the other way. It is my observation and fixed belief that a prime objective of every intelligent corporation management in these days is to distribute to the work-

IN MEMORY OF MRS. DICK PARTLOW

We are thinking now of one so dear, Whose place no one can fill, Her name is music to our ears Tho her voice is still.

To know her beautiful, untouched by time, We can only think of her smile divine, And as we think of her in later years, Will be to see her through a mist of tears.

Her faith in God had stronger grown In trials care, had stood the test, And every one who her had known, By her pure life had each been blest.

She loved her God, her friends, her home, And always served with love supreme Not serving in her strength alone, But guided by a hand unseen.

But now on earth her work is done And here no more her steps shall roam, And now in Heaven her crown she's won, That guiding hand has led her Home. —Mrs. I. C. Raley.

ers in wages and salaries the largest proportion of the company's income that the business will stand.

CLASSES... developing I hope that we in America are not approaching any such condition of class conflict as exists in Europe.

Every attempt in the past to organize a "working class" or Labor party in politics has failed. Now, as a result of the depression, just that kind of a movement is under way.

Class antagonism is based upon the theory that in some way or other one group or class of people is depriving another class or group of its rightful share of the nation's wealth. I have been watching the world go by for a long time. I have seen a few individual instances of injustice and robbery, whose perpetrators always got their punishment in one way or another. But on the whole, I have seen and known of very few instances in which any man or group got either more or less than his or their ability, industry and honesty warranted.

A short program was rendered which was preceded by the organization of P.-T. A. The officers elected were W. W. King, president; Mrs. E. L. King, vice president; and Miss Mildred Berry, secretary-treasurer and reporter. The first meeting will be held Nov. 5. All patrons are urged to attend each meeting and cooperate and make our P.-T. A. a success.

Our community was in deep sorrow Friday morning when the news was spread of the death of Mrs. Raymond Phillips. Mrs. Silva Lucas Phillips, age 21, passed away at the Hendricks Memorial Hospital at Abilene Friday morning, Oct. 16, following an illness of almost two weeks. Funeral services were conducted at the Crews Baptist church Saturday afternoon. Bro. H. B. Carraway conducted the services, assisted by Bro. Hamon of Winters.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to thank our friends for the many deeds of kindness, words of sympathy, and the beautiful floral offering during the illness and death of our loved one, and may God's richest blessings rest with each of you.—Mr. C. W. Partlow, Bonnie Lee, Myron J., Ila, Avanelle and family.

Many summer visitors to New York still visit the Woolworth Tower, in spite of the fact there are now several taller buildings on Manhattan. But Woolworth Tower's view is still among the best to see the lower harbor and the ships that come slipping up the stream.

One of the most amusing features of the French Line's Normandie is the fact that special life preservers for dogs, one over each kennel, is a part of standard equipment.

Queer people, these human beings... Thousands flee the heat of Manhattan and other thousands come to New York to spend their vacations.
