

HOME TOWN Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

Although all of us should give much interest to our schools for 52 weeks of the year, it is needless to say that most of us do not even give a thought to the schools unless there is some incident or affair or event which involves us personally. We leave the running of the schools to the people employed to teach and administer its affairs, and then set aside a week of every year to take a cursory look at the operation.

It is hoped many will visit the Winters schools during "Public Schools Week," March 2-6; it is one way to gain an appreciation of the fine work being carried on up there.

Jim Nevins, superintendent of the Winters school system, has extended an invitation to all patrons to visit the classrooms and to eat in the cafeteria next week. He stressed the fact that visitors are invited to eat in the cafeteria any day of any week.

While we observe "Public Schools Week" next week, here is a question which we might ask ourselves: "What should our schools accomplish?"

The answer could include: Provide all children with a knowledge of the traditionally accepted "fundamentals." These fundamentals were defined in the early elementary schools as reading, writing and arithmetic. As the pupil advances in school, these three R's should be accomplished by a study of such courses as higher mathematics, science, history, and English. Upon graduation from high school a student should have had special training to do something—to go to work and be successful on a job—in the event he finds it impracticable to continue his education.

Enable each child to develop the power to think constructively and critically, and to solve problems.

Provide citizenship education opportunities that emphasize the American heritage and include knowledge and acceptance of responsibilities and privileges of citizenship. More effective training for citizenship usually results where the school, home, church and community work cooperatively.

Provide experiences for children and youth from which they learn self-direction and responsibility for their own behavior.

Assist in the development of moral and spiritual values, acceptable social skills and attitudes, and the ability to get along with others.

Assist each youth in his efforts to make a place for himself in the community. Some students prepare themselves for higher education; others work upon leaving school; and still others prepare for homemaking. Programs of vocational education and of counseling and guidance are needed in achieving these goals.

Provide educational programs which take into account individual differences. Each child has the right to experiences which will assist in his optimum growth and development within his capacity. This includes programs of enrichment for the gifted as well as opportunities for other exceptional children, including the mentally retarded.

Deadline Nears, Only One Candidate Filed For Election

With the deadline date for filing a little more than a week away, only one name has been filed as a candidate for one of the two vacancies on the Winters City Council.

The name of O. B. Raper, incumbent, was filed with the City Secretary, for re-election.

The terms of two councilmen and the mayor end this year. Mayor Poe has said he does not wish to run for re-election, and as of Thursday noon, no candidate had filed for the Mayor's post.

Bob Loyd, whose term as City Councilman ends this year, has said he will not be a candidate.

The deadline for filing as a candidate for either the City Council or for Mayor of the City of Winters is midnight, March 7. Election will be held April 7.

City To Spend $175,000 On Light Plant Expansion

The City of Winters is planning to spend as much as $175,000 on another engine and generator for the city-owned light and power plant, according to action taken in a special meeting of the City Council Wednesday morning.

The City Council, meeting at the City Hall, voted to issue a call for bids on the equipment. The call for bids, which is being published in legal form in this week's Enterprise, sets March 20 as the deadline for submitting bid proposals.

The City plans to pay all or a portion of the purchase price, up to $175,000, by the issuance of time warrants, bearing interest at a rate not to exceed five percent, with a maximum maturity date not later than December 15, 1979.

If this proposal is accepted by a manufacturer of such equipment, and the engine and generator is purchased by the City of Winters, it would require an addition to the present light and power plant building, according to E. Y. Buckner, superintendent of the plant. An addition, which would be built on the north end of the present building, would cost in the neighborhood of $5,000, and would extend about 18 feet past the present building. The building now housing the light and power plant on South Main Street was built in 1941 and occupied in 1946.

The City now owns four generators, with a 1900 kilowatt capacity. Advertised specifications for the engine and generator for the addition call for a dual fuel, 2 or 4 cycle engine, 2,000 Brake Horse Power, complete with all auxiliaries, delivered and erected at Winters. Manufacturers have until March 20 to submit bids to the City Secretary's office.

According to Buckner, another generator is needed to take care of present electricity demands and to meet anticipated future requirements.

All members of the City Council and the Mayor were present at the special meeting Wednesday.

Dobbins Named Top Farmer In '58

M. L. Dobbins of the Drasco Community has been selected as the Outstanding Conservation Farmer for 1958, according to H. Giesecke Jr., chairman of the Runnels Soil Conservation District.

Giesecke said that Dobbins' accomplishments in soil conservation work had been compiled and entered in the Fort Worth Press "Save the Soil and Save Texas" conservation awards contest.

Dobbins operates three farms consisting of 563 acres. Four years ago he developed a coordinated soil conservation plan on these farms, and at that time submitted the plan to the Runnels Soil Conservation district board for their review and approval. To date, he has completed 65 percent of his program.

The original plan, as drawn up by Dobbins, contained such practices as conservation crop rotation, contour farming, cover cropping, crop residue utilization, rotation, rotation hay and pasture, proper use, deferred grazing, range seeding and terracing.

The board, in making the selection for the award, considered two things: How well along the nominee is with his own conservation program, and how much effort he has put forth in furthering the overall soil, water and plant conservation program in his community.

In 1954, after many years of watching "gully washers" and "dusters" taking the soil from his North Runnels County farms, he requested assistance from the Runnels Soil Conservation District. With their help he developed a conservation plan to tie down the soil and make efficient use of the rainfall.

Out in the Drasco community, Dobbins' neighbors say that he practices conservation, and lives conservation. As a result, most of his friends and neighbors are conservation farmers.

"You are to be congratulated for the interest and support shown by the citizens of this school district in planning and paying for a school system that can adequately care for the youth of this area.

"The foundation and continuation of our way of life will be dependent upon the well-trained and well-disciplined youth of our community. Toward this goal the Winters school continues to work, with the realization that our school will be as good as the community wants it to be.

"We take this opportunity to thank you for your interest, your help, your suggestions and urge you to visit your schools next week, March 2 through the 6."

State Capitol Highlights:

No Indication On Where Legislature Will Get Money, Or How They Spend It

By VERN SANFORD

After nearly seven weeks in session, the Legislature has not yet given any clear indication of how it will solve its basic problem—how much to spend and where to get it.

State agencies still insist they need every cent they asked for—and need it bad. But those who would be "fall guys" of money-raising measures proposed thus far show no genial willingness to ante up.

Gov. Price Daniel is still pushing hard for his tax program. He suggested that critics would do better to stop sniping and start snooping—for a better way.

State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert called the governor's plan to gain $18,000,000 by a change in bookkeeping just "legalizing a false statement." Budget Board Director Vernon McGee termed it "unworkable."

Daniel also contends that his plan for the state to take over unclaimed bank accounts, abandoned property, etc., might help a lot of people, since the state first would advertise for rightful owners. But bankers and spokesmen for other affected industries called it "confiscation," said it would undermine public trust in their institutions.

Corporations continue to blast at a franchise tax raise they say would increase their burdens as much as 500 per cent. A two-thirds vote of each House would be necessary to put this into effect to help with the deficit this year. Many say chances are dim.

A Lubbock legislator, Rep. H. J. Blanchard, made a survey on tax and spending attitudes. About 60 per cent of those replying opposed a sales tax. Roughly the same percentage favored more spending for teacher pay, higher education, old age assistance, state hospitals and prisons.

GOTTA HAVE IT

Strong pitches for more spending are being made by spokesmen for three major state services.

"I don't see how higher education can be financed without some broad-based tax," said J. R. Sorrell, chairman of the University of Texas Board of Regents. "You will have the backing of this administration and this board in selling it to the people of Texas."

"We are absolutely broke, we don't have a dollar," said Prison System Director O. B. Ellis. "Riots that will cost more than the appropriation requested may result, if conditions aren't improved."

"You can chop off dollars, but you can chop off children," de-ever, the present Comptroller has not had any opposition in years.

SAFETY CONSCIOUS
 Traffic safety legislation is developing into a major issue this session.

Rep. Tom James of Dallas has introduced the uniform traffic ticket bill, which he says will make for more effective enforcement against violators. He also proposes setting up county courts of record to review corporation court cases and also city traffic appeals courts.

James said he would join Col. Homer Garrison Jr., Director of the Dept. of Public Safety, in asking better salaries for state highway patrolmen.

Garrison told a recent meeting that "if the present trend continues, every second child born in Texas today will be killed or injured in traffic accidents."

Speaker Waggoner Carr said he felt "the climate of opinion was more favorable than ever before" for safety legislation.

SHORT SNORTS

Texas is pouring millions in state tax money into "inadequate, unnecessarily small school districts," said Texas Research League Director Alvin A. Burger in a recent speech. . . . Maj. Gen. K. L. Berry has been reappointed state adjutant general by Governor Daniel. Brig. Gen. William H. Martin was renamed assistant adjutant general. . . . Texas started 1959 by paying out more for unemployment compensation than it did in '58, the "recession year."

Texas Employment Commission reported payments for January of this year were $5,613,664, compared to $4,918,511 a year ago. . . . In a generous gesture toward a new rival, a House resolution was proposed to fly the flag of Alaska beside the Texas flag when the new 49-star U. S. flag is first raised at the State Capitol.

Letters to the Editor

Editor:

It has been called to my attention that you have a number of persons living in your city, who are alcoholics. These people should be told, how they can know whether they are alcoholics. Also the alcoholics and their families should be given the information as to how this disease can be treated.

Alcoholism is an insidious disease. The alcoholic is a sick person. The alcoholic must have help to overcome this disease and deserves to be helped. Unlike non-contagious diseases alcoholism affects not only the person who has the disease but all members of the family become ill because alcoholism is a family disease.

What can be done about the disease of alcoholism? First find out if you are an alcoholic. This can be done by getting a list of questions from the nearest Council on Alcoholism or Alcoholic Anonymous group. After you have decided you are an alcoholic either one of these organizations can tell you and your family what treatment will conquer this health problem.

More and more people including doctors, clergymen, employers, social workers and etc. are becoming interested in this third largest health problem in the United States today. There is more help for the alcoholic and the alcoholic's family. All they have to do is ask for it.

We have started a Council on Alcoholism in Wichita Falls and are having an increasing number of the alcoholics, families, employers, doctors, clergymen coming to the office to get a greater understanding of this disease.

ROGER BABSON SAYS—

"Russia Figures If Big Three Withdraw Reds Can Get Berlin Without Fight"

I know Berlin. I had an office here before World War I. I also was a correspondent for the New York Times and my daughter Edith Babson Mustard and her mother lived in Lucerne, Switzerland, while I travelled throughout Europe. Later we owned a home in Washington, on 14th Street adjoining the Russian Embassy, where I saw much of the Germans.

Russia Determined to get Berlin

The Germans, at the instigation of Kaiser Wilhelm, pushed south to the Mediterranean Sea. (As a reminder of him, I have the steering wheel of his private yacht at my homestead at 58 Middle Street, Gloucester, Mass.) Soon after the Germans met defeat in World War I, Hitler rallied them again to fight for the same cause, "Pan-Germanism" as they called it, presumably with Russia's help.

But Russia has not only become a traitor to Germany, but has secured one-fourth of Germany and a large slice of Berlin itself. The Germans are determined to get this back. The Russians figure that if they can get England, France, and the United States to withdraw their troops, Russia can peacefully absorb Berlin, and perhaps later all of Germany. As a first step in this campaign, Mikoyan was recently sent to visit us.

Berlin Will Not Wait Too Long

Russia will want to postpone her recent Berlin ultimatum as long as she fears China at her "back door"; but the Germans will not wait too long. They are the bravest and strongest people in Europe. If World War III comes, it will be started from Berlin. The Germans believe that they will be backed secretly by Hungary, Bulgaria, the Czechs, and all the Slavic nations. Germany will fire her atomic bombs over these "buffer" countries, while Russia will not dare to destroy them. They may be the safest place to live during World War III, if or when it comes!

Russia pretends that her great enemy is the United States. Russia's talk about Capitalism is merely window-dressing. Russia would like to take us over by infiltration—and the help of a radical pro-labor party in the United States—but not by destroying us. I repeat: Russia fears Germany on the west and China on the east. Germany would like to get to the Persian Gulf and get indirect control of Turkey and India; but her main objective today is to win the Russian satellites—or buffer states, so called. This, Germany is preparing to do. Washington cannot talk about this, but those in authority know it. On the other hand, so long as Russia is able to destroy Germany with bombs, I cannot believe that Germany would attack Russia; but this I will discuss next week. All depends upon whether anti-missile missiles are available.

Berlin and the Stock Market

In a recent column, I stated that I am 60 percent bearish and 40 percent bullish on the stock market. My main reason for being 40 percent bullish is because I believe that the next World War will be between Russia and Germany—and with her allies, Germany would finally win. Wall Street believes that this would be the end of Communism for another 40 years. Although the United States would be in such a war, we would not bomb Russia unless Russia bombed us, but would be content to keep the Germans well supplied with atomic or hydrogen bombs and anything else they might need. We cannot forget Germany's hideous and barbarous crimes under the Hitler regime; but have the German people ever mind "double-crossed" us as have the Russians? I have this Berlin affair in mind when saying I am 40 percent bullish.

I am more than ever convinced since my recent visit to Africa, that the above is the Berlin program. This is why England retired gradually from India. And Great Britain is now in the process of turning seized Germany territory in Africa over to the native tribes, with her fingers crossed as to what the final results will be. Charles DeGaulle and Great Britain will be glad to aid Germany when she strikes. Republicans and Democrats in Washington should stop fighting between themselves; but watch Berlin and trust President Eisenhower, who knows Europe better than any of them.

Amusements Coming to Local Theatres

Friday and Saturday "The Blob," "I Married a Monster"
Sunday and Monday "Houseboat"

"The Blob"

It crawls! It creeps! It devours! It's "The Blob," creature of the imagination that comes menacingly to life in Paramount's science-fiction thriller of the same name, due to frighten and entertain filmgoers beginning Friday and Saturday at the State Theatre.

Filed in DeLuxe color, "The Blob" stars some talented screen newcomers headed by Steven McQueen, Aneta Corseaut and Earl Rowe, plus a group called The Teenagers in important featured roles.

The story told in "The Blob" will make the hottest blood run cold. It has to do with the landing on earth of what resembles a flaming shooting star but which turns out to be a voracious people-eater. An old man who releases it from its rock-case starts the cycle of horror that is discovered by a couple of teen-agers who try, in vain, to arouse the town to its danger. Before the young people can convince the police that no one is safe, they themselves face the monstrous thing of insatiable appetite. How they escape it and eventually stop it dead in its murderous tracks should give science fiction fans—and other thrill seekers—more than their money's worth of suspenseful entertainment.

"I Married a Monster From Outer Space"

According to Producer-Director Gene Fowler, Jr., whose new chiller-thriller "I Married a Monster From Outer Space" opens Friday and Saturday at the State Theatre, today's teen-agers aren't so different from their great-grandparents when it comes to flights of fancy. "Today's teen-agers think of flying saucers peopled with strange characters," says Fowler, who previously won his honors in horror by directing "I Was a Teen-Age Werewolf." Their great-grandparents got their kicks out of believing that witches flew through the sky on brooms. Today's horror movies are mostly a combination of the space-age and an age-old fascination with the supernatural.

In foreground is shown some of the tubes that will underlie rink ice, the first time in Olympic Games history that an artificial rink will be used.

"I Married a Monster From Outer Space," which stars Tom Tryon, Gloria Talbott, Ken Lynch, John Eldridge, Valerie Allen and Maxie Rosenbloom, is Fowler's latest contribution to satisfying the ever-growing demand for science fiction type entertainment. The Paramount release tells of a race of monster-like aliens from another planet who try to conquer earth. They take over a small town and, through some mysterious goings-on, inhabit the bodies of prominent citizens, in hopes of having children with earth women. Young Gloria Talbott becomes suspicious after her marriage to Tom Tryon and is terror-stricken when she sees him turn into a monster.

How the town rises to the threat of conquest by the outer space monsters ought to add still further to Mr. Fowler's excellent reputation as a master of movie monsters, at the same time that it increases the national supply of goose-pimples.

Houseboat"

A magnetic romantic team in the attractive and glamorous persons of Cary Grant and luscious Sophia Loren sparks Paramount's Technicolor comedy, "Houseboat" which is due to arrive Sunday and Monday at the State Theatre. The film, an original story by Mel Shavelson and Jack Rose, who authored the highly successful "Seven Little Foys," among other comedies, co-stars Martha Hyer and Harry Guardino and features Eduardo Ciannelli.

Modern Washington, D. C. and the colorful, historic Potomac River are integral parts of the light-hearted story about a lawyer's dilemma when he inherits his three children through the death of his wife, from whom he had been estranged for three years. He wants to be a good father to them, but they have ideas of their own that don't include him. The plot takes on uproarious proportions when he mistakes the glamorous runaway daughter of a visiting Italian symphony conductor for an experienced housekeeper and hires her to help him take care of the children.

The role of the sophisticated Washington attorney suddenly catapulted into domestic situations beyond his capabilities is made to order for Grant's comedy talents. Miss Loren as the "housekeeper" gives her first portrayal as a comedienne in an American-made film, and also further proves her versatility by singing too, scoring with "Bing! Bang! Bong!"

People who drive over 60 miles an hour should be sure to watch out for other idiots.

McMurry Students Presented Program At Thursday Tea

Music students of McMurry College in Abilene presented a program of foreign music at a tea Thursday in the Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church for members of the Literary and Service Club and guests.

Mr. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvan Lewis of Breckenridge, a music major, has given an annual solo recital at McMurry since coming there in 1955. Miss Deffebach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Deffebach of Ranger, a junior music major, is accompanist for the Chanters.

Mr. Benningfield, baritone, accompanied at the piano by Miss Deffebach, sang six vocal solos by the composers Schumann, Schubert, Mozart, Hahn, Barber and McGimsey.

Mr. Lewis played "Prelude and Fugue, B Flat Major" by Bach; "Rondo Capriccioso" by Mendelssohn and "Funerailles" by Liszt.

Mrs. English, Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Middlebrook greeted the guests and Mrs. Fredric Poe presided at the register.

The tea table laid with white cut-work linen was centered with an arrangement of pink carnations featuring a miniature violin. Mrs. Flathmann poured coffee from a silver service and other table appointments were of silver.

IT'S THE LAW—IN TEXAS

Are you hopelessly confused by court room procedure? Words such as "objections", "overruled", "sustained", "hearsay", "irrelevant" and "opinion" are meaningless to many persons.

The purpose of a trial is to settle disputes that the parties cannot settle by themselves. Before these disputes can be settled, the facts which give rise to them must be established. This sounds simple, but on the contrary it is a difficult task. If the parties agreed on the facts the job would be easy, but each side has its own version.

The trial court has the job of establishing the facts. This is accomplished by questioning witnesses and the introduction of physical evidence. This requires application of the rules of evidence.

Through the years the law of evidence has been established. The rules place restraints on what type of evidence is proper. They have the effect of protecting the rights of the parties by insuring a fair trial.

Hearsay is a word often heard during a trial. Hearsay may involve a statement by a third person of a conversation between two other persons. It would be hearsay if Jones were asked to tell the court what he overheard Smith tell Greene. With certain exceptions, evidence of this type is excluded because it is not reliable, and might open the door to false testimony.

A lawyer objects to evidence he does not believe is proper. If a lawyer objects to evidence because it is irrelevant, he means that the evidence is of such little importance that it has no bearing on the case, and if admitted it would bog down the trial so that the time needed doesn't justify its admittance.

Opinion evidence of one not an expert is not admissible since such opinion carries no weight.

When an objection is sustained by the judge the evidence is not received. Should the objection be overruled, the evidence is allowed to be presented.

The rules of evidence have been built up through many years of court trials. These rules are not arbitrary but are designed to see that justice is done in our courts. The judge is seeking to have the truth established and insure that all parties and witnesses in the trial are given a full and fair opportunity to present the facts.

Pedestrians Must Share Blame For Traffic Fatalities

"Pedestrians must accept their share of the responsibility, along with motorists, if we are to reduce the overall toll of traffic fatalities in 1959," J. O. Musick, general manager of the Texas Safety Association, said today.

"This is especially true during winter months," Musick said, "when a driver's visibility is frequently reduced to only the traffic directly ahead."

The safety expert pointed out that more pedestrian fatalities occur in urban areas during the winter months than in any other season. This is because winter months mean slippery streets, longer hours of darkness and poorer visibility.

"Pedestrians should observe extra caution in crossing streets, obey all traffic signs and signals and make sure they are seen by motorists as they step into the street," Musick warned. "And there should be no jaywalking or sudden exits from between parked cars."

Musick outlined five cardinal rules for safer wintertime walking:

1. Cross at intersections and obey all traffic signs.
2. Be wary of slippery streets and take your time in crossing.
3. At night wear or carry something light in color as a warning to approaching cars.
4. Be courteous and give the driver a break in winter weather.
5. Accept your responsibilities for keeping yourself alive.

EYES and VISION

By A. L. SPERRY, O. D.
Texas Optometric Association

MYSTERIES OF THE EYE

Did you know: That today's near-point tasks often are a cause of visual problems because your eyes were designed by nature for out-of-door distance seeing?

Many people consider their eyes as very common, ordinary, and simple bits of machinery—if you can judge by the care and treatment they give them.

This is true because we are prone to think too lightly of those things which we have always had—like the millionaire who shows his contempt for money he inherited by lighting his cigar with a $100 bill.

It may come as a surprise to the reader to learn the fact that of all the complex organs forming and controlling his body his eyes are the most complicated.

Some of you may say that you don't believe this is true since you have always heard that the brain is the most complicated and least understood part of the body. And you are absolutely right. The eye is actually a part of the brain.

The Optic Nerve is actually not a true nerve at all but a brain fiber tract—a group of nerve fibers connecting one part of the brain with another.

There are many things not completely understood about the eye and its functions. To name a few:

COLOR VISION—there are several theories on the causes but none proven and no generally effective treatment for color blindness.

NEAR SIGHTEDNESS—several theories on the causes but none proven and no proven treatment to stop its progression or cure it. Treatment with contact lenses is the latest and seemingly best method, but all the facts are still not known about this method of treatment and there is still much pro and con discussion among professional men.

SENILE CATARACT—we know what it is but not what causes it and there is no treatment other than surgical removal after it has been allowed to form.

GLAUCOMA—increased pressure inside the eyeball (glaucoma) is the largest single cause of permanent blindness. The exact cause of the condition is still largely unknown.

CROSS-EYES—anyone can see what happens, but there is still much speculation on why it happens at all and why to some people and not to others. It is not, in the majority of the cases, a "muscle weakness" as is so commonly believed by the layman. It is usually found associated with either considerable farsightedness, nearsightedness, or astigmatism and correction of these conditions with proper glasses followed by orthoptics treatments (visual training) is usually successful if started as soon as condition is noticed. Surgery AND glasses AND orthoptics may all be necessary in some cases but surgery is usually considered only after the combination of glasses and orthoptics have failed. Your optometrist will be able to advise you on the best course of treatment according to the individual case.

IN POSITION—Trailer-crane that hauls missile and holds it for positioning is shown, still attached to missile, as preparations for a shoot go on.

There are many other things about the eye which are not fully understood at the present. Research is constantly in progress so that all may have and keep the good vision which is so necessary to our daily living.

WHITE'S

THE HOME OF GREATER VALUES

By L. A. WILKE

During the bird hunting season a great many shooters lamented what seems to be the passing of the double barrel shotgun. The picture entirely, but it has been greatly displaced by the single tube guns, both pump and semi-automatic. There even has been an increase in the use of bolt action shotguns.

For a hundred years the double barrel shotgun was a favorite of shooters, both upland and for waterfowl. Perhaps the appearance of the double gun had much to do with this. It looked good and handled easily.

Then there was another very definite feature. It carried two fast shots, usually the right tube modified and the left full choke. This gave a scatter bore for the close in shots, with a tight pattern for long reach.

The first shotgun I ever fired was a double barrel muzzle loader. That was a half-century ago. After using it for a year and getting tired of pouring in the powder and tamping in the wad I was able to sell enough grain sacks and Coke bottles to horse trade for a double 12 gauge. It was second hand and the man told me the left barrel was full choke and would kill a duck at 50 yards. In those days we tested for choke by using a dime. If the dime entered the muzzle of the barrel, it was open. If the dime failed to go into the muzzle it was a full choke. Today we measure the construction differently.

The repeating shotgun already had come along. First there was the old lever-action Winchester. Following that was the still famous 97 model Winchester. Marlin and Remington also were out with good repeaters, although they too had doubles on the market.

Then in 1912 the ever-popular Model 12 arrived on the scene. Since that time automatics and pumps have been forging ahead in the field. The big spurt came, however, when variable chokes, like the Poly, were invented. With one of these chokes on an angle barrel, it was possible to have any degree of choke required for whatever hunting one might encounter.

This really pushed the double gun back.

One of the greatest early-day double gun manufacturers was Ithaca. A few years ago, however, this double gun disappeared from the market. Naturally a gun isn't dropped so long as there is a sufficient demand for it to be profitable. The Ithaca featherlight pump now has taken the place of the double.

There were many other fine old shotguns, too. Any outdoorsman 50 years old or over, has fond memories of the deluxe value of the old L. C. Smith and the Fox. The Fox remains today, produced by Savage.

Among other double guns still on the market are the Browning Superimposed, Marlin over-under, Winchester 21, J. C. Higgins, Stevens and Noble. The prices range from $66.50 to $2500 each for these doubles.

The doubles I have just listed include only the American made. There are many imports, however.

Some are good guns with unexcelled workmanship. Others aren't worth the metal in them. Unless you know your guns and know the maker behind them, it is best to leave foreign imports alone, shotgun, rifle or pistol.

A man can be proud of owning any one of the American made double barrel shotguns. They are safe, with reputable service behind them.

A great deal can be said on behalf of the double gun, whether the tubes are side by side, or over-under. They have accounted for considerable game in their time, with a minimum of ammunition, by comparison. Most persons using a three-shot gun will spend that third shot on empty air.

Many shooters will insist they can sight better down the rib of a double than on a single. I always have had my doubts about this, because usually in shotgun shooting, it is necessary to lead a bird a long ways. There is much more in your swing of a shotgun than in sighting. If you doubt this, try shooting at the lead goose in a formation sometimes. Chances are good you'll drop about the fourth or fifth one back.

All double guns today are hammerless, the old hammer gun now is a relic. In fact it was discontinued so long ago many of today's shooters never have had one in their hands.

Unfortunately most of the single barrel (one shot) guns are hammer guns. However, if you do want a single barrel hammerless there is one trap edition that sells for from $450 to $2500.

Most of the manufacturers provide these single barrel guns which are bought for boys just beginning their shooting. Many men today fondly remember a single barrel as the first gun they ever shot.

I can't keep from shedding a tear, however, for the double gun. I still have in my cabinet a very fine one, made more than a half-century ago.

I've owned numerous others. For the sake of old times I wish I had never parted with them. A double is indeed a good gun. They'll be made for many years because a lot of people still like them.

They are exceptionally good in resort shooting, especially in the O-U models, which are both attractive and effective.

They are fine for blind and field shooting. You don't waste as much ammunition and there is little that can go wrong with the gun.

My advice is if you have a good double, hold onto it. If you have an opportunity to get one, latch onto it.

down to earth to make Himself known. One was sure if his ignorance could be cleared away, and that if we could see God as He really is, our unbelief would vanish immediately. His idea was that unbelief is the result of lack of knowledge. The other man reminded him that God did once come down to earth in the person of Christ, and that when He tried to show men what God was like they nailed Him to a cross. Not ignorance, but self-will has brought the rejection of God's message and the refusal to receive Jesus.

Blizzardettes Win West Zone of District 7-AA

By BILLY LYNN LITTLE

The Winters Blizzardettes staged off a last-ditch effort by the Lakeview Maidens, to take the west zone of district 7AA, winning 71-68 at Blackwell Saturday night.

The Blackwell gym, newly constructed, held an overflowing crowd, which eyed one of the highest scoring girls' games played this year.

The Blizzardettes jumped to an early lead, and held undisputed control until late in the fourth period, when baskets by Lakeview's Sue Martin and Dorothy Williams put the Maidens trailing only 59-60 with 3 minutes and 20 seconds remaining. Fifteen seconds later Winters forward Carolyn Faubion fired home a bucket, increasing the lead to 62-59. Seconds later, Lakeview's Linda Wagner dropped a free throw making the score 60-62.

Carolyn then dropped another bucket and Winters led 64-60. Miss Williams returned with a bucket, and the score read 64-62. Winters ace Dorretha King, high with 41 points, banged another two, pulling to the 4 point lead once again. Lake View's Miss Martin came back with 2 making the score 66-64.

With one minute and 58 seconds left Blizzardette guard Jane Bryan stole the ball, and Dorretha dropped a field goal, and Winters led 68-64. Miss Martin promptly hit a basket, pulling to a 68-66 deficit. Just as things were beginning to look better for Lake View, Blizzardette forward Rita Walker hit a jump shot, and the score read 70-66 with a minute and 25 seconds left. Seventeen seconds later, Miss Williams hit two free throws, and the Blizzardette lead was cut once again.

Coach Freddie Gardner sent her Winters team into a stall, and Lake View got the ball. With 30 seconds left, Miss Williams, who had 23 points for the night, hit what would have been the tying points—if she had taken 2 steps instead of 3, in making it—traveling was called, and the Blizzardettes went into a stall.

With 17 seconds left, the Lake View coach called for a time-out which resulted in a technical foul. But fate played a mean trick on Lake View—Miss King missed the free throw alright, but the ball came down into the hands of Winters, and the ball was tipped right back to Dorretha.

Lake View's coach, with 7 seconds left, again went to strategy, as he sent an illegal substitute on to the court resulting in another technical. But this time luck did not ride the Maidens trail, for Dorretha dropped the free throw, sinking all Lake View hopes of a championship, for with such a short time left, trailing 3 points, Lake View's hopes were gone.

Dorretha King was high with 41, and Rita and Carolyn both had 15 for Winters. Sue Martin netted 34 for Lake View.

Attempted Theft Of Cattle Reported By W. R. Kennedy

Presumably an attempt of cattle theft was made at the farm of W. R. Kennedy, 3 miles northeast of Winters on Saturday night February 14, according to Mr. Kennedy. He had bought a white face yearling bull that day at Ballinger.

The yearling was brought to his farm and placed in a pen with two other yearlings and the gate to the enclosure was locked. On Sunday morning, Mr. Kennedy went out to the farm and found the lock broken on the gate.

He found auto tracks leading up to the pen where the cattle were and from every evidence lights from the car were set on the pen in an effort to capture the stock. As the bull was wild he had made several attempts to break out.

Mr. Kennedy believes the would-be cattle thieves were amateurs or some one who did not know how to handle stock. He reports this in an effort to warn stockmen who are interested in the safety of their cattle to be on the lookout for cattle thieves.

City Purchases Water Tanks, Motors, Pumps

The City of Winters has purchased a large water storage tank and other equipment, according to Mayor George W. Poe.

The tank and one water pump, a 125 HP electric motor and a gasoline engine, were purchased from government surplus for about $750, or about 40 percent of the salvage value, Poe said.

Also included in the purchase were eight 550-gallon underground tanks. The underground tanks will have to be dug up and moved at the expense of the City of Winters, Poe said. This equipment is located near Belton. Arrow Well Service is removing the equipment from its present location to Winters.

The big tank, with a capacity of about 139,000 gallons, will be erected at the water plant. The pumps probably will be installed between the water plant and the lake as boosters on the present water lines, the mayor said.

At the special meeting Wednesday, the City Council also decided to purchase a water purifying unit for the Municipal Swimming Pool.

Assistance Is Available For Soil Work

Is conservation being left out of your farm plans because of the cost involved? Would you include it in your plans if you could receive financial assistance and procedural advice?

If you answer "yes" to both of these questions you may be interested in some programs that can help make this increasingly important practice a part of your operations, suggests Lynn Pittard, extension assistant soil and water conservation specialist.

The Farmers Home Administration has money available to lend for soil and water conservation work, Pittard explains. As much as $25,000 may be borrowed and paid back in 20 years or less.

The Agricultural Conservation Program is a cost-share program which provides up to 80 percent assistance for conservation practices.

The Great Plains Conservation program, another cost-share program, provides assistance to 76 counties in the Great Plains area of Texas. It is administered by the Soil Conservation Service.

All of these programs are designed to encourage and assist farmers and ranchers in carrying out conservation work, Pittard points out. Information on these and other programs and facilities for which you might be eligible may be obtained from the office administering the program or from your local county agent.

Game Magazine Has Article On Beachcombers

"A Gift from the Gulf" is the subject of an interesting article in the January issue of TEXAS GAME AND FISH magazine. It presents a colorful picture of driftwood, its journey to the shores of Padre Island, and its value as a collector's item.

Cash Asher, author of the article, begins with the tale of a "wave-worn wooden shoe" that drifts upon the island shores. "In a way," he comments, "the shoe was typical of the many odd and interesting articles that the restless Atlantic Ocean currents ferry into the Gulf of Mexico and cast upon the beach of the long, spindling island."

From the island shores the author takes his readers into the homes and museums where strangely carved pieces of driftwood are used by "imaginative and ingenious beachcombers" who "often transfer their finds into lamps, wall vases, and other utilitarian objects, adding touches of the outdoors to their otherwise modern households."

Mr. Asher reports that "enthusiasm for driftwood is nationwide according to curio dealers, who handle it as a side-line." He gives a vivid description of how the many odd-shaped pieces of wood are arranged into artistic designs using a variety of materials for bases.

Then the author presents a short history of Padre Island, pointing out that the island emerged from the sea some 50,000 years ago. "The 'Great White Island,' as it was once called by the Indians, some day may be developed and its shape may change, but it always will be a depository for the ever-different gifts from the waves."
