Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

It's hard to realize, in this near-100-degree-weather, that summer is about gone. But a drive up around the football field is a good convincer.

Coach Stapler and staff are camped out with 26 of the 1959 Blizzard football team this week, working off some of the summer sluggishness and preparing for the season which opens Saturday, Sept. 5, when they play Crane on the local field.

Looking at the lineup, it's not the heaviest in the world—with a pre-season weight average of about 153 pounds. But we learned long ago that weight does not mean everything in high school football. A lot of lard can swing the balance in some games, of course, but it also can be a disadvantage, when opposed to lightness, agility and speed.

Usually, a football coach is either overly optimistic or overly pessimistic — seldom middle of the road. So it's hard to figure one who's noncommittal. Stapler has not expressed himself one way or another. He has said there is a lack of depth, lack of size and lack of experience on the 1959 squad. But he also said there is an overall desire to play football, and a small but scrappy team may be capable of some upsets around the circuit this fall.

The coach figures Brady to be the toughest non-district opponent this year, with Cisco and Balingier the toughest district games.

Something which may make for a little more excitement on the fields this year is one of the rule changes. The goal posts have been spread apart, and are now 23 feet 4 inches, instead of the 18 feet 6 inches of former years. There hasn't been much emphasis on field goals in years past, but the coming season may see a change in that. However, it may take a while to get used to the idea and get kickers trained. But it could mean some odd-looking scores, if some coaches start stressing field goals and get an early start on practice.

Some changes have been made in the time-out and substitution rules, too, which may seem confusing to the average fan until he gets used to the idea. Some observers seem to think that the two-platoon system is on the way back.

This is as good a time as any to point out that reserved seat tickets will go on sale at the school business office Monday morning.

We've been trying to train our dog to be something besides just a setter, but so far we've discovered he'd rather just set and not be bothered with all that human foolishness such as "hup," "fetch," etc. We even got a couple of magazines with articles about dog training, but instead of paying attention to the suggestions, he just chewed up the books.

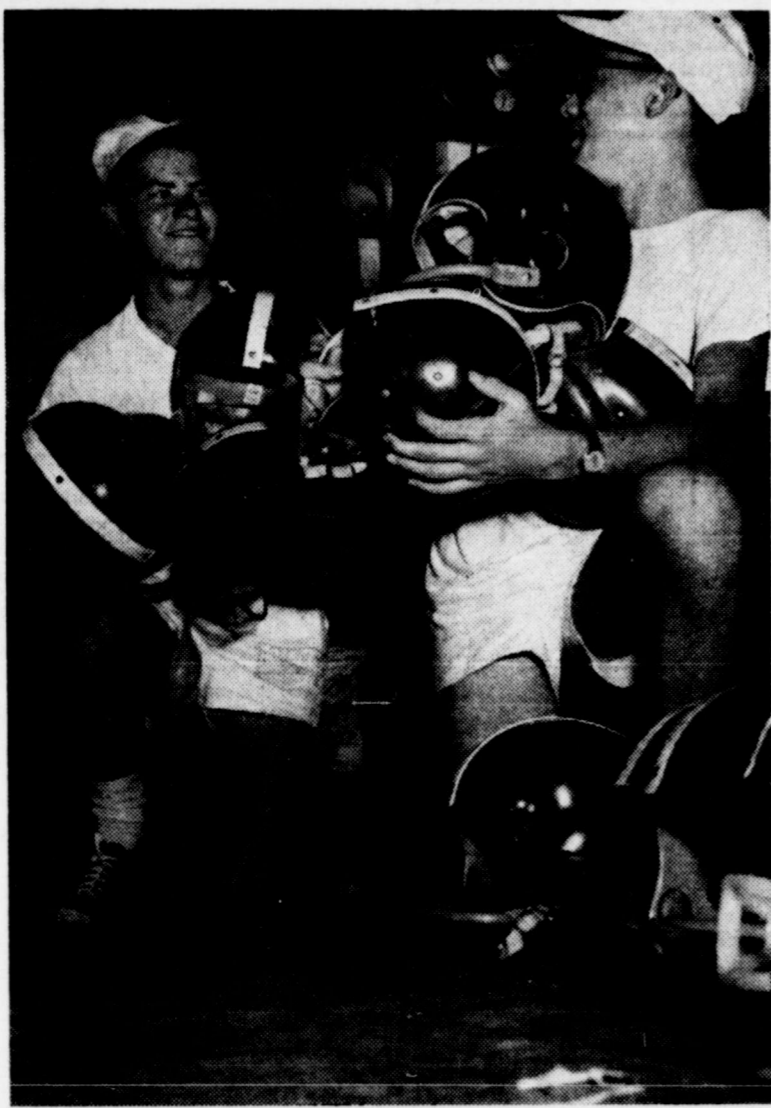

Guess we haven't got the patience of the fellow — believe it was out Wingate way — who had a bulldog, and decided to make a bird dog out of him. The old bulldog got to thinking he was a bird dog, and on a hunt, would stop in a three-legged stance, with one front foot up, and make as beautiful a point as any blooded pointer.

Nor do we have the patience of the fellow we heard of who was given a hound, but thought it was a bird dog. For months he worked with the hound, trying to get him to flush birds and retrieve. Finally, the old hound, out of sheer desperation, decided it would be better to go along with the idea, so his trainer would quit hounding him, and he turned out to be the best bird hunting dog in the area.

Just goes to show you can't tell a bird dog by his feathers.

Another dog story we like is the one about the colored fellow in East Texas who had a retriever who was given up to be the best in the country. One day he took the dog for a walk through some swamp land where workers were blasting stumps with dynamite. To keep from having to wade into the water, the blasters would light the fuse, and toss the dynamite at a stump in the water.

Well, the colored boy and his dog happened upon the scene about the time one of the blasters tossed a stick of dynamite into the water, and the dog broke loose from his master and took out after the thrown high

TEAM MANAGERS—Seldom in the headlines, but just as necessary to a football club as the quarterback, the team managers play an important role during the gridiron season. Sorting

Blizzard Football Squad Practicing

The Winters High School Blizzard football team opened the '59 season Sunday, with 26 boys reporting for two weeks of pre-school camping and training.

Coach W. T. Stapler said only 12 of the 26 are returning lettermen, with the others up from the B team and Junior High teams.

With only three weeks to go before the first game, with Crane Saturday, Sept. 5, the coaching staff started putting the team through a tough daily schedule of training. The football boys and coaches are camping at the stadium, and taking all meals in the school cafeteria. The daily grind starts with workouts at 6 o'clock in the morning, followed by breakfast. Another hard workout is held in the afternoon at 3:30, with the time in between used for theory and skill practice.

All boys attending the camp are under strict supervision at all times, Stapler said, and are not allowed to leave the camping and training area except for business or important personal matters.

Camping with the team are Coaches Stapler, Don Edwards, Ed Cheek, and Jerry English.

The first week of training took its toll, with three boys receiving slight injuries, Coach Stapler said. Robert Marks received a hairline fracture of the right arm, and will be out of commission for about four weeks. Jerry Dunnam is troubled by a pulled leg muscle, but should be back by the end of the week. Carol Sharp has had a light attack of appendicitis, but probably will be back in action in a couple of weeks.

Pre-season scrimmage has been scheduled for next Monday afternoon at 3:30. The Blizzards will scrimmage against Lake View and Sonora at the Lake View Stadium.

The team will scrimmage against Stamford Saturday, Aug. 29, at 9 a. m. at McMurry Stadium in Abilene. Stapler said he was trying to arrange another scrimmage for the middle of next week.

For the second week of the football camp, the B team members and ninth graders are asked to report to the field house Monday, August 24, at 7 a. m. Returning lettermen are: James Williams, 185, end, junior, one-year letterman, starter last year. Lettered in basketball and track.

David Burton, 153, tackle, senior, one-year letterman. Chosen on 1958 all-district second team, all-area second team.

Donald McWright, 150, tackle, one-year letterman, started last 5 games last year in place of Sam Ballock who was injured.

Louis Dietz, 140, senior, guard, two-year letterman; 1958 defensive starter, little offense experience.

Stanley Bolden, 155, senior, guard, lettered at center in 1958, moved to guard this year.

George Scott, 168, senior, center, one-year letterman, honorable mention on all-district last year.

Jerry Dunnam, 155, senior, quarterback, started eight games last year, honorable mention all-district.

J. B. Guy, 150, senior, halfback, two-year letterman, defensive starter last year; will probably be used for kick-off this year.

Joel Butts, 145, sophomore one-year letterman. First freshman to letter in Winters in several years; runs 100 yards in 10.5.

William Grissom, 160, junior, halfback, one-year letterman, defensive starter last year. He broke a finger in the first game against Crane, and broke a leg against Cisco last year.

First of 1959 Maize Coming In To Winters

The first of the bumper 1959 crop of maize has started coming in to Winters elevators. However, according to the elevator operators, it will be about a week before the harvest hits full stride.

According to one elevator operator, this 1959 crop of maize is the best in many, many years, with the highest yield, and the best quality.

Many boxcars have been spotted on the sidings at the elevators, in anticipation of the big movement of grain from Winters, once the harvest is well underway. It has been estimated between 400 and 500 carloads of maize will be shipped from Winters this year.

ROGER BABSON SAYS—

"Old Furniture Stored In Attic And Forgotten May Be Valuable"

Babson Park, Mass. — Many of my readers will be visiting their old homesteads during the summer. I urge them to go up into the attic and see what it contains in the way of discarded furniture. There may be something of value which was brought from New England by your grandparents or great-grandparents.

Story of a Poor Teacher

When I first met Miss Helen Temple Cooke she had borrowed $1,000 to start a small private school for girls in Wellesley, Mass. which she named "Dana Hall." Around that time I started a small school of boys in Wellesley. Miss Cooke and I became very good friends, helping each other in many ways. She came to me one day and asked if I had any ideas about investments for a "poor school teacher." She added that she had been thinking of buying old furniture, of the proper periods, believing that this would gradually become more valuable. I agreed that her plan seemed wise. Thereupon she started to put her savings of a few hundred dollars a year into carefully selected old mahogany furniture secured from old attics, auction rooms, and wherever she could find something which could be properly restored.

Some two years ago Miss Cooke passed on to a better world and left this furniture to Dana Hall (which has become a very well known institution). As the school is now raising money for new buildings, the Trustees have decided to auction off this old furniture and other treasures—for which Dana Hall should get around $100,000.

Stuffed Furniture of No Value
 The fact that a thing is old does not necessarily make it valuable. Stuffed furniture—however old—is of little value; old books, in general, sell at auction for perhaps 20 cents each; and old pictures have little value. But if the furniture is made of mahogany and is of the right period, it makes little difference how badly it may be broken. An antique dealer can usually replace a missing part.

Another thing to look for is old glass. Unfortunately, copies have been made by modern glass makers which are now sold in the dime stores. Almost every grandmother, however, has a few pieces of actual Sandwich glass. A set of half a dozen of these goblets should be valuable even if your grandmother is still using them in her kitchen.

Certain kinds of old-fashioned jewelry have a good market, but such items should be appraised by an accredited jeweler. Any diamonds acquired over 50 years ago would have to be recut in order to be salable today. Old gold and silver, however, always have a value, selling by weight. An antique dealer is usually interested also in old broaches even if they did not cost much at the time. Modern costume jewelers have not copied all of these broaches because of the labor involved.

Stamp Collections May Have Value

Many young people collect postage stamps. I saw an album the other day which had only two stamps of any worth out of a collection of five thousand, but these two stamps are valued at several hundred dollars each. Foreign stamps are not often worth much. The World Wars have upset foreign countries; furthermore, some of the newer countries are constantly printing new issues in order to sell them to collectors, and this disturbs the foreign market.

I advise interested young people to confine their collection to U. S. stamps. Old letters found in attics may have some old United States stamps on them that could be sold at a good price to an honest dealer. Probably your public library has a stamp catalogue which will give you a price quotation for each of these U. S. stamps.

What Causes Inflation?

The government can always print more money. Therefore money in the bank or elsewhere is not a good hedge against inflation as it may become slowly but constantly of less value. An inflation hedge should be something whose supply cannot be increased—such as oceanfront property and underground resources. The same principle applies to old mahogany furniture, Sandwich glass, and old U. S. Postage stamps. This is a good test to apply when buying anything for your home.

There is no cosmetic for beauty like happiness.

To carry care to bed is to sleep with a pack on your back.

Howard Baldwin Died Sunday In Winters Hospital

Howard Baldwin, 79, resident of Runnels County since 1894, died at 6:30 a. m. Sunday in Winters Municipal Hospital. He had been in ill health for nine years and seriously ill for ten days.

A native Texan, Mr. Baldwin was born November 10, 1879 in Navarro County and moved with his parents the following year to Erath County, where the family lived for ten years. They then moved to Bronte and when Mr. Baldwin was 15 they moved to Runnels County, living first at Crews then at Token, both farming communities east of Winters.

Mr. Baldwin married Emma Lee Burson in 1900 and she died Sept. 21, 1907, and on December 7, 1909 he was married to Maude May Tippet. The family moved to Winters in 1911 where he was associated with his brother, Lonnie and the late Joe Carter in the grocery business for four years.

Mr. Baldwin continued to operate a farm and served as city alderman for 12 years. He also served on the Municipal Hospital Board and the board of stewards of the Methodist Church in Winters. He was a Sunday School teacher for several years in the Methodist Church.

Mr. Baldwin's second wife died March 7, 1937 and he was married March 16, 1943 to Mrs. Mae Cox of Ballinger. He retired from farming in 1950 after suffering a stroke.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the First Methodist Church, with the Rev. E. L. Craig, pastor, officiating. Burial was in the Fairview Cemetery.

Survivors include his wife, one son Coy of Winters; four daughters, Mrs. R. W. Allen of New Braunfels, Mrs. E. V. Ray of Corpus Christi, Mrs. C. C. Hailey and Mrs. C. W. Prewitt, both of Abilene; three step-children, Mrs. Dick Ayres and Mrs. J. T. Gregory, both of Ballinger and Douglas Cox of Brownfield, two brothers, Lonnie Baldwin of Winters and Miller of Abilene; ten grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Floyd Smith, W. L. Pratt, T. A. Smith, Victor White, Raymon Lloyd, Buford Baldwin, J. S. Bourn and Carl Baldwin.

signed to impress people with U. S. Naval power and the growth of our country, a sort of muscle-flexing operation.

Now it is proposed to launch a new mission, a new Great White Fleet, unarmed, loaded with good will, doctors, technicians and nurses, which would carry mercy missions around the world, ready to put into harbors where emergencies develop and disaster occur—but always only on invitation. It would symbolize America as a nation with a soul, ready to help the unfortunate and relieve distress.

Tentatively, it is planned to finance such a venture by public subscriptions. Already a generous response of interest is coming in from all over the country.

As a sort of "trial run," a ship is presently being equipped with equipment and supplies, financed by voluntary contributions, to perform such a mission in the Far East. Called "Project Hope," the ship will be ready to sail perhaps next January.

'Great White Fleet' Being Planned For Disaster Cruises

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

A modern-day Great White Fleet idea is being seriously considered in Congress. The plan, spearheaded by LIFE Magazine, envisions the U. S. placing a half dozen mercy ships on the high seas around the world, laden with food for the hungry, medical facilities for the sick and injured, and technicians to help underprivileged people improve their lot.

The momentum of the idea (President Eisenhower endorsed it at a recent news conference) prompted Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Service Committee to appoint a sub-committee composed of myself and eight others, to investigate the feasibility of the proposal and make recommendations. I was named chairman of the committee.

It was 52 years ago that President Theodore Roosevelt sent 16 battleships on the historic cruise, called "The Great White Fleet." Fully armed and painted white, the cruise around the world was de-

A challenging statement by the President of the American Bankers Association

"There's the peace of the world; the freedoms we enjoy; the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of individual happiness that are endangered now.

"The American Bankers Association has again pledged vigorous support to the U. S. Savings Bonds program, declaring that at no time since World War II has this thrift program meant so much to Americans.

"Thrift is the basis for personal security and economic progress. Savings are the only source of real capital, needed to keep our economy growing and thriving. And a strong economy is essential to national defense.

"All these familiar facts add up to this: it is more important than ever to realize that part of every American's savings belongs in U. S. Savings Bonds, where it will help to protect our priceless American heritage as well as safeguard the value of our dollars earned and saved."

Think it over. Are you buying as many Bonds as you might?

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kraatz of Winters and Mr. and Mrs. N. W. White of Abilene.

Miss Emma Henniger, organist, played traditional wedding music and accompanied Erwin Henniger, soloist, who sang "Oh Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Ronald Kraatz, brother of the bride, and Patsy White of Abilene, sister of the groom, were candlelighters. Joe Kraatz, brother of the bride, and Edward White of Abilene, brother of the groom, were ushers.

Janice Frick was matron of honor and Bobby Phillips of Hamby served as best man.

Miss Frick wore blue taffeta dress designed with a round neckline, brief cap sleeves and a flounce edged fitted bodice. Her flowers were white carnations with ribbon trim.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown fashioned with a fitted bodice and a scalloped neckline of lace over organza. The lace panelled skirt of silk organza was over taffeta. Her waist length veil of illusion fell from a bandeau of lace and organza and she carried a white orchid with lilies of the valley atop a white Bible. The bride also wore an heirloom bracelet which belonged to her grandmother and pearls which were a gift of the groom. The bride's dress was designed and made by her mother.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the basement of the church. Mrs. Erwin Ueckert served cake and Jerry Helen Deike and Elaine Hoppe ladeled punch.

For a wedding trip to south Texas, the bride wore a fitted navy linen dress with a white collar.

The bride, a 1958 graduate of Winters High School attended Draughon's Business College in Abilene and at the present time is employed at U. S. Time Corp. in Abilene.

PARK IN THE SHADE AND TRADE

BY VERN SANFORD

Catching fish or killing wild game is important to quite a few only for the deed of doing.

I sometimes worry about the tragic waste of meat. Some of it is through pure carelessness. Others don't know how to keep it. Some just don't care.

Somehow I can't quite appreciate or understand the catching of many fine fish, or for that matter, the shooting of wild game, and not making use of it.

You wouldn't believe it unless you saw it, but many tons of fish are left to spoil along the coast of Texas just because the men who catch them don't want them. Of course, not all the fish caught are edible. But many pounds of ling, king, redfish, and even trout are allowed to go to waste.

An outstanding example of waste is to be found during fishing tournaments. When a fisherman goes out just for points, he brings the fish in to the weighing place.

Then, in many cases, when he takes them off the scales they are left on the dock in the hot sun until they have spoiled.

At one tournament two years ago on the Texas coast, king mackerel were piled like cordwood on the dock and left there for 22 hours. The stench became so bad the city dump truck had to move them away.

Not everyone likes to eat kings. Enough do, however, that some arrangements should be made to care for these fish.

Many bass fishermen are almost as bad. Stand around any fishing dock in the late evening when the bass are hitting good and you'll see what I mean. Many fishermen just walk off and leave their strings of fish.

In the case of bass usually there is someone around who will take them. Fewer fresh water fish spoil than salt water fish.

Some people have never learned to take care of their fish. I know one fellow who does. When he goes out in a boat, he takes along an ice chest. When he catches a keeper bass, he immediately cleans it and tosses it into the ice box. When he has all the fish he wants, he heads for home.

At most of the docks there are convenient places for cleaning fish. Most fishermen know how to fillet a fish. Also how to care for them. They clean, fillet, place them in a plastic bag, put ice around them, and take them home.

Others just gut their fish, douse them into the water a time or two, toss them in the bottom of the boat and trail them back home. Or they put them in the ice box, head and all. This means when they get home they must finish cleaning the fish.

That's a habit easy to get into when you dock your boat after a tired day of fishing. On the other hand, if you want to enjoy your fish after they've been caught, it is worth it to clean 'em thoroughly while you're at it.

I like the idea of cleaning fish just as soon as the trip is finished. You can do this best either while you are in the boat, or at the cleaning table where you dock.

It's always a good idea to take along a plastic bag or two. By putting your fish in these bags, they will not become water-logged when the ice in your cooler melts down.

When you clean the fish or game thoroughly in the field, they are ready for the deep freeze or cooking when you get home. Fish that are properly cleaned take very little room in the ice chest. They also require a minimum of ice to keep them in top condition.

Properly iced down, fish will keep for several days. On the other hand, if you have the opportunity to freeze them, which you should do if you have a long distance to travel, then you should pack them in dry ice.

Dry ice can be bought in almost any town, especially around a fishing area. Usually a half-dollar's worth of dry ice will get your frozen game home in good condition. When you buy it, be sure not to handle it with your bare hands. It will burn you dangerously. Wrap it in an old newspaper and place it over the frozen fish. Then fasten down the chest lid tightly. Dry ice will last indefinitely.

This also is a good way to bring back frozen shrimp when you go to the coast.

Remember, though, don't thaw frozen fish or shrimp and then refreeze. After either is cooked, however, it can be frozen safely. So if you bring home a package of frozen shrimp, you can boil them and then freeze them again after they have been processed.

I have a friend who does a lot of fishing and catches a great many fish. Unless he knows where and how he can dispose of his fish back at the dock, he releases them carefully after they are netted.

He likes fish. He usually has several nice messes in his freezer. He fishes many distant points and he likes to land 'em. But he doesn't waste his fish. If he has no need for them, or doesn't know someone who will appreciate fish, he releases them to be caught again.

He says he's also learned that if you give fish to the average person they should be cleaned first. A lot of people will take fish in the front door just to be polite. They go right out the back door into the garbage can or the cat's plate unless they are first cleaned.

That's the reason he releases most of the fish he catches.

LONE STAR AGRICULTURE

TEXAS FIGHTS THE KHAPRA BEETLE

The Khapra Beetle, native of India, Ceylon, and Malaya, and new to the United States, has at last invaded Texas. The invasion was first discovered in El Paso County in March of this year.

This destructive grain pest is capable of causing great damage to our stored grain. Losses of stored barley and various seeds have ranged from two percent to total destruction. The beetle has a prodigious rate of reproduction, and the surface of bulk-stored grain literally crawls with it during a heavy infestation.

The insect apparently gained entry into California during World War II, but because of its similarity to the domestic black carpet beetle it was not brought to official attention until 1953. Its habit of congregating in cracks and crevices of bricks, masonry, and wood structures gives it the name "khapra," a word in an East Indian dialect meaning "brick." Since the godowns or storehouses of India are commonly made of mud bricks the insect comes naturally by its name of "brick beetle."

The female adult of the khapra beetle is a nondescript light-to-dark-brown beetle measuring about one-eighth of an inch long, a little longer than a flea. The male is about one-third smaller. The beetle depends upon man to spread it from place to place. Considering the large movement of grain, seed, sacks, and other materials that might be infested by the khapra beetle, few countries have better facilities for its transportation than the United States.

In March the Texas Department of Agriculture discovered 19 infested grain elevators and feed mills in El Paso County, two in Hudspeth County and one in Presidio County. All but two of these have been treated. This quick action has saved feed mills and stores thousands of dollars.

For complete eradication, all infested properties have to be covered completely with plastic covers and filled or injected with methyl bromide gas. This method costs approximately $20 per cubic foot and is paid by the Texas Department of Agriculture and the Federal government on a 50-50 basis. One treated mill had a total of 300,000 cubic feet, bringing the cost to $6,000.

The real problem came in checking out each of the mill's 300 customers. And some of these customers had customers of their own which had to be checked.

By keeping a strict control on the khapra beetle, State and Federal officials prevented the situation from pyramiding.

Life runs as fast as a chariot's wheel.

IT'S THE LAW- IN TEXAS

DIVISION OF ESTATES EXPLAINED

The death of an intestate person (one who has made no will) may give rise to many problems regarding distribution of his separate estate. In the preceding column we investigated the manner of dividing the community estate upon the death of a husband or wife. Now we shall see that, where separate property is involved, a completely different set of rules applies in determining heirship and apportioning the estate among the rightful claimants.

It may be well to recall that the separate estate of a husband or wife included property owned by either before marriage, and that which is acquired after marriage by gift or inheritance. Any other property acquired after marriage is presumed by law to be community property until the contrary is clearly proved.

Now, here is a general idea as to how your separate property will be divided if you do not make a will with contrary provisions prior to your death.

If your husband or wife survives and if, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of children and their descendants immediately obtain a full (fee) title in two-thirds of the real estate involved. The surviving spouse receives a life interest in the remaining one-third of the real property which passes on to the children and their descendants upon the death of the spouse.

The rule for distributing personal property, cash, stocks, bonds, furniture, or any other items not constituting real estate, is different. Here the surviving spouse gets full ownership of one-third, and the children and their descendants inherit the balance.

Now suppose your husband or wife survives, but there are no surviving children or their descendants. In this case the surviving spouse inherits all of the personal property involved.

With regard to real estate, the survivor obtains full title to one-half, and the other half is divided between your mother and father, if both survive you. If only one of them survives, he or she receives only half of this portion, and the other half (or one-fourth of the entire real estate) will be divided among your brothers and sisters (and their descendants) who survive. If there are no surviving brothers and sisters and their descendants, then the one surviving parent inherits the full one-half.

Where no parent survives, but there are brothers and sisters and descendants, the full one-half is divided among these survivors.

And, if there are no parents or brothers and sisters (and their descendants) surviving, then the surviving husband or wife inherits all of the real estate.

Life is ten percent what you make it, and ninety percent how you take it.

BRADSHAW NEWS

"Best social security any person can have is that page in his Bible which marks the Sermon on the Mount."—Oren Arnold.

The Dewitt Bryans of Norton and the Lelon Bryans of Abilene attended the Church of Christ Sunday morning.

Rev. Max Browning of Westbrook was a visitor at the Methodist church Sunday morning.

At the Moro Baptist church Sunday morning were Ronnie, Rita and Loleat Grun of Odessa.

Visitors Sunday morning at the Drasco Methodist church were Mrs. Marvin James of Chatfield and Pammella and Phyllis Smith of Pumphrey. Rita Walker of Moro and Edna Mayfield of Winters were night visitors. Representative A. J. Bishop was back from his duties in Austin to be with his Sunday School class—the Young People.

Pleading for Forgiveness is the subject for next Sunday's Sunday School lesson. "There is an old story, quite possible a legend, which tells of a mother who came to Napoleon to plead for her son who was condemned to death for twice going to sleep on watch. Napoleon stated firmly that justice demanded his death.

"But sir," pleaded the woman, "I ask mercy, not justice."
"He does not deserve mercy," retorted the emperor.
"Quite so," replied the mother;

but if he did, it would not be mercy. The story goes that the boy was pardoned. It is upon the same basis that we must appeal to God, except that we come through Christ by faith."

Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Hudson visited Sunday afternoon at Coleman with Uncle Bob Smith who is ill. The Hudsons also visited with the John Braswells at Glen Cove. Mr. and Mrs. Billie McCasland, Mrs. Barney Gibbs, Mrs. Odas Claxton and Mrs. Lena Reid visited Friday afternoon at Anson at the Claude Mayfields.

In town Saturday were B. H. Prichard of Shep; B. H. Jr., of Mostrose, Colo.; Truett Prichard and Cathy of Chaula Vista, Calif.; Wayne Prichard of Fairfield.

New Angora Goat Publication Out

"Texas Angora Goat Production" is the title of a new bulletin released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service which should be of interest to both present and prospective raisers, as it discusses Angora goats from the time you select your breeding stock to the marketing of mohair and goats.

Texas has 90 percent of the Angora goats produced in the United States, says J. A. Gray, extension husbandman and author of the bulletin. They are very useful in helping to clear types of brushy land and help to control sprouts on some types of cleared land.

Angora goats can use many kinds of pasture. They are adapted to high, rough land, since they are excellent climbers and good travellers, Gray says. They need a good water supply and year-round browse. If they have access to green browse or green grass, their fleeces will be heavier and contain more natural oil. If year-round browse is not available, goats may require supplemental feeding during the winter, he adds.

Controlling sprouts on cutover, bulldozed or chained brush country with goats has become popular in certain sections. Wether goats are more popular for controlling sprouts because they usually are larger, stronger and can withstand more cold after shearing than does and kids. The ranchman who is interested in controlling brush many times is not interested in breeding goats, he says.

Producers recognize the importance of size and good conformation in Angora goats. They still differ about the types of fleeces. Differences in type of fleece are associated mainly with types of lock. Three principal types of lock are ringlet or C type, flat lock or B type and the web lock.

The Angora goat, Gray adds, is seasonal in its breeding habits. The does come in season in the fall and kid in the spring. This seasonal breeding characteristic is so well established that many ranchmen leave the bucks with the does the year round.

State Capitol Highlights:

Governor Daniel Will Call January Session For Teachers' Pay On Demand

BY VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

None of the money-raising bills that failed to pass the Legislature during the past seven months were put away to gather dust.

They'll be on parade again if a fourth special session is held to raise money to increase public school teachers' salaries.

Gov. Price Daniel has said he will call the session if the public demands it. Texas State Teachers Association has its campaign rolling to create this demand.

TSTA's goal is a program that could cost $63,000,000 over a two-year period. Of this, $56,000,000 would go for a $405 increase in annual base pay for teachers.

This would bring teachers' base pay up to $3,610 a year. Hale-Aikin Committee recommended a minimum of $3,800 a year plus a number of other school improvements that would have totaled some $200,000,000 for a two-year period. But TSTA decided that getting that big a tax bill would be too tough. For the time being, the 70,000-member teacher lobby will settle for a package one-third this size with emphasis on the item it wants most—pay raises.

Time most discussed for the new special session is the politically crucial month of January. This will give the teachers, scattered in summer, time to get organized. It also is the month for poll tax paying, with Jan. 31 as the deadline. (Governor Daniel said, "January or February would be the time.")

Next year, for the first time, January will be the month for candidates for office to make their announcements. New law makes Feb. 1 the deadline for filing for state primaries.

There's talk that Governor Daniel will announce for a third term if teacher raises are turned down. On this the governor says, "I'm not closing any doors."

Privately, many legislators are glum at the prospect of being boxed in by another round of tax-and-spend pressures, particularly right before their campaigns begin. They expect to get a lot of static anyway, from the tax measures they've already voted.

But few will oppose teachers openly. As one said, "If you're against teacher raises, they'll say you're against good schools and little kids and motherhood—it's suicide."

WATCH FOR NEW LAWS

Scores of new laws passed during the regular Legislative session ending May go into effect this month.

From here on, anyone convicted of four moving traffic violations within 12 months will be classed as a "habitual violator," subject to drivers license suspension for any period up to a year. Same rule applies to anyone convicted of 7 or more violations committed within a 24-hour period.

New, tightened laws are in effect on the waterways, too. Now against the law are: operating a boat or skiing while under the influence of liquor, skiing at night and "reckless or negligent" boating and skiing.

Now required by law are: a life preserver for every passenger on a boat and a lighting system, according to size, for every boat. Boat registration fees will not be required until next April.

Another new law makes taking a ride in someone else's car without his permission a felony offense. Previously, it was hard to get more than a misdemeanor conviction for car stealing.

Ranchers and farmers will be required to fence along state and U. S. highways to prevent cattle from roaming on the road. Law does not apply to farm-to-market roads.

Retail merchants no longer may advertise goods at "wholesale" prices. Only firms that sell only to retailers may claim wholesale selling.

Other new laws won't be noticed until later. For example, the new "stick with the party" law requires that a poll tax holder have his receipt stamped "Republican" or "Democrat" the first time he participates in a primary or convention. From then on, in effect, he's stuck with the party stamped on his tax receipt—until he gets a new poll tax.

A new program to inspect for cattle disease at livestock auctions was authorized, but is expected to be very small scale for the first two years, at least. It was given only a fraction of the money supporters said was necessary.

WOULD-BE SPEAKERS BUSY
One of next year's campaigns is already going strong with two of the candidates claiming victory.

Rep. Wade Spilman of McAllen declares he has "more than a majority" of the present House members pledged to elect him as next speaker. Rep. James Turman of Gober claimed enough pledges "to practically assure my election."

Victory statements are a common campaign technique for speaker candidates since House members are prone to join a winner's bandwagon to get good committee assignments.

Actually, the speaker can't be officially elected until January, 1961, when the 57th Legislature convenes. A big turnover of House members in the primaries could upset the apple cart by removing many of the speaker candidates' pledged supporters from office.

Amusements Coming to Local Theatres

"Island of Lost Women"

"Island of Lost Women," a delightful comedy-drama about a scientist and his three daughters on a South Pacific island and of two handsome bachelors who stumble into the tropical paradise, opens Friday only at the Fiesta Drive-In Theatre.

Jeff Richards, Venetia Stevenson, John Smith, Diane Jergens, June Blair and Alan Napier star in the Jaguar Production for Warner Bros.

Life's peaceful tranquility is replaced by biological urges, while the scientist fights to keep his lonely island a secret.

"Island of Lost Women" was produced by Albert J. Cohen and directed by Frank W. Tuttle from a screenplay by Ray Buffum.

"Ten Days to Tulara"

The adventure story of an American pilot forced to escort a group of desperate bandits on a trek across South America, makes up the exciting plot of "Ten Days to Tulara," a United Artists release opening Saturday only at the Fiesta Drive-In Theatre.

Sterling Hayden stars in the film with Grace Raynor and Rodolfo Hoyos. The screenplay was scripted by Laurence Mascott. The picture was produced by George Sherman and Clarence Eurlit. George Sherman directed.

A highlight of the film is one of the longest chases in screen melodrama. Filmed in Mexico, the picture takes Sterling Hayden, a "hostage" of Rodolfo Hoyos and his gang, on an airplane chase, and a chase across a long, arid desert.

In the film, Hayden's son is being held captive in order to force Hayden to escort Hoyos to Tulara and the sea from whence he can escape.

"Damn Yankees"
"Damn Yankees," starring Tab Hunter, Gwen Verdon and Ray Walston in Warner Bros.' big screen version of the fabulously successful Broadway musical comedy, will premiere Sunday and Mon. at the Fiesta Drive-In Theatre.

George Abbott and Stanley Donen, who co-produced and co-directed the fast-paced film, not only utilized the best elements of the stage production, but took advantage of the panoramic scenes made possible by the wide-screen motion picture process.

Abbott, who wrote the screenplay, co-authored the Broadway play with Douglass Wallop, from Wallop's best-selling novel, "The Year the Yankees Lost the Pennant."

The story revolves around a middle-aged businessman who makes a deal with the Devil, whereby he is transformed into a youth. Helping the Devil keep him in line is a glamorous, seductive dancer who is really a 172-year-old witch transformed.

Besides all the original songs from the Broadway show, including such hit numbers as "You've Got to Have Heart," "What Lola Wants—Lola Gets," and others, one new song has been added, "The Empty Chair," a torchy ballad sung by Shannon Bolin. This was written specially for the screen version by Richard Adler, who co-authored the original songs with the late Jerry Ross.

"The Legend of Tom Dooley"
Based on the hit song, "Tom Dooley," sung by the Kingston Trio, Columbia Pictures' "The Legend of Tom Dooley," opens Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Fiesta Drive-In Theatre. Reportedly as poignant and as exciting as the tune itself, the film stars Michael Landon, Jo Morrow, Jack Hogan and Ken Lynch.

Tom Dooley is played by Landon, a youthful newcomer who attracted attention with his performance in the title role of "I Was a Teenage Werewolf." Miss Morrow appears as the girl he met "on the mountain," and Hogan plays Grayson, who keeps Tom Dooley from riding home to Tennessee.

In "The Legend of Tom Dooley," Landon is seen as a Confederate officer who stages an ambush of Union soldiers, unaware that a week earlier, facing a murder charge, he remains in the area to be with his girl, Miss Morrow. He is captured, escapes and is recaptured.

"Warlock"
When the whip-fast gunmen of "Warlock," Twentieth Century-Fox's CinemaScope, DeLuxe color film which comes Saturday and Sunday at the State Theatre, march onto the screen and into a series of deadly gunfights, audiences will be seeing what may well become the classic Western cast in the all-time classic Western Picture.

Starring Richard Widmark, Henry Fonda, Anthony Quinn, Dorothy Malone and Dolores Michaels, the picture tells the tale of a lawless town which employs an infamous gunfighter to become its marshal, and gets far more than it bargains for.

Widmark, as the badman turned sheriff, Fonda, as the hired gunslinger with the golden-handled colts, and Quinn, as the strange, twisted sidekick of Fonda, infuse "Warlock" with the same vitality and excitement their individual performances have brought in other films.

In "Warlock," however, these film greats come together to create one of the most electrifying action stories ever filmed.

thousands of dog heads and even a nutria head a short while ago. Among the strangest was a deer head. It proved to be negative, but the man who brought it in insisted the horns be cut off. The technician was convinced the hunter just wanted a cheap way to get those horns.

Winter and early spring see a slight rise in the number of positive findings of rabies in State Health Department laboratories. More effort is needed to inform and educate the public about the dangers of rabies and the means of controlling outbreaks.

Last year there were 491 laboratory cases of rabies plus 163 clinical cases in animals. In the past two years vaccine for rabies was distributed by the State Health Department.

In 1955 a state law made it possible for county commissioners' courts to enact legislation for control measures during a rabies emergency. These measures can be carried from year to year as a sustained program to keep rabies at the lowest possible level.

Well-trained personnel from the Texas State Department of Health are available to counties and other local health jurisdictions to help launch their own rabies control programs.

The rabies battle is a year round fight. A let-up in any particular season may mean an outbreak later on. Everyone should have his dogs and cats vaccinated, especially if they are often on the loose.

Rabies control is a necessary and interesting program even if you don't get a lion's head in every day.

Life is like a school of gladiators, where men live and fight with one another.

Health Letter
Rabies is serious business, but there is a lighter side. Early this month for instance, the laboratory technician whose duty it is to prepare the brain tissue for microscope scrutiny on suspect rabies cases was enjoying a game of dominos during the noon hour.

He was interrupted and informed that there was a "head" outside, but desiring to finish the hand he said he'd be out in a second. He would have forgotten the game had he known what kind of head.

Because two ladies were waiting with a real genuine African lion's head. It seems that the lion had been raised from a cub, but lately turned on its master and had to be destroyed.

There was little chance of rabies, but it pays to be sure about any suspect case. So the head was sent to Austin for examination. It was negative.

Lab technicians have examined fox heads, skunk heads, cat heads,

Top hands on high-country hauls!

Ask any trucker who's been over Wolf Creek Pass, 10,850 feet up in the San Juans: a 9-mile pull to the summit and low gear all the way down. Mr. C. H.
