By R. C. THOMAS

February 28 through March 4 has been designated "Public Schools Week" in Texas. In Winters, patrons will be invited to visit the schools and take part in observances which will focus more attention on our school system.

Which brings to mind one question: "What should our schools accomplish?" We think the following is partly the answer:

Provide all children with a knowledge of the traditionally accepted "fundamentals." These fundamentals were defined in the early elementary schools as reading, writing and arithmetic. As the pupil advances in school, these three R's should be accomplished by a study of such courses as higher mathematics, science, history, and English. Upon graduation from high school a student should have had specific training to do something—to go to work and be successful on a job—in the event he finds it impractical to continue his education.

Enable each child to develop the power to think constructively and critically, and to solve problems.

Provide citizenship education opportunities that emphasize the American heritage and include knowledge and acceptance of the responsibilities and privileges of citizenship. More effective training for citizenship usually results where the school, home, church and community work cooperatively.

Provide experiences for children and youth from which they learn self-direction and responsibility for their own behavior. This is one of the most important goals.

Assist in the development of moral and spiritual values, acceptable social skills and attitudes, and the ability to get along with others. With an ever-shrinking world confronting the youth of today, this facet cannot be over-emphasized.

Assist each youth in his efforts to make a place for himself in the community. Some students prepare themselves for higher education; others work upon leaving school and still others prepare for home-making. Programs of vocational education and of counseling and guidance are needed in achieving these goals.

Provide educational programs which take into account individual differences. Each child has the right to experience which will assist in his optimum growth and development within his capacity. This includes programs of enrichment for the gifted as well as opportunities for other exceptional children, including the mentally retarded.

Well, they've finally kicked the tar out of some of those fuzzy-brained tv commercials. Seems the Federal Trade Commission has asked the cigarette companies to cease their claims that their cigarettes contain "less tar" than other cigarettes. There ought to be a place for a comment there, but we've failed to come up with one.

We exchange with one newspaper which runs a "Do You Remember?" column, and find some startling items which were printed in the news columns in years gone by. For instance, in 1892, according to the "Do You Remember?" column, the ladies of a church were to give a necktie party. We're still wondering about that one!

We're still looking for persons whose birthdays fall on February 29. If you were a "Leap Year" baby, or know of one, let us know.

Included in all the junk mail and "news releases" the other day were three big 9 x 12 manilla envelopes, each containing a single sheet of paper with a mimeographed "press release." The three envelopes came from the same government agency, apparently mailed on the same day because they arrived at the same time. The contents of these envelopes, three flimsy sheets of paper, found their way to the wastebasket, evidence of, or perhaps even monuments to, an ever-increasing bureaucratic system of waste which has become so commonplace that it is now taken for granted.

Discounting the fact that perhaps some of the information contained in the "press releases" would have been of some value, there remains a question as to the manner in which these releases were mailed out. Don't know how many of these things were sent (Continued on last page)

Girl Scout Troops Will Hold Seventh Annual Cookie Sale February 19 - 27

"It's Cookie TIME again! Beginning February 19 and continuing through February 27 our local Girl Scouts will participate in their Seventh Annual Cookie Sale," Mrs. E. J. Booth, Girl Scout Cookie Chairman for Winters announced today.

"This is a project BY and FOR the Girl Scouts and it affords every Girl Scout an opportunity to assume responsibility while practicing sound business methods. The girls will not only add to their own Troop treasury, but will aid the Heart of Texas Girl Scout Council, of which Winters is a member, in bringing better camping to more girls.

"We are again asking the support of friends of Girl Scouts," Mrs. E. J. Booth continued, "in making this Annual Sale the best yet. Through proceeds of the annual Cookie Sale, it is possible for us to have a camping program second to none for girls of our council.

"Our goal for 1960 is to have every Brownie, Intermediate and Senior Girl Scout participate in the sale.

"Troop leaders have been busy for the past month in giving proper training to the girls on approaching people to make a sale on the importance of good grooming, in meeting the public, and in learning to handle a simple business transaction. This is indeed citizenship training in practice.

"The success of the Cookie Sale is vital to all of us," Mrs. E. J. Booth said, "and through the sale our daughters and all other Girl Scouts will benefit.

Blizzard Cagers Finish Season With 8-2 Record

By BILLY LYNN LITTLE

To the Cisco Lobos—congratulations on your fine performance Friday night—we are confident that you will represent District 7AA well, for you are good.

To the Winters Blizzards and Coach Jerry English—Thanks for giving us a typical Blizzard performance—for your sportsmanship, teamwork, and hustle, your desire to play, your never-say-die spirit, and your loyalty to your school and town, thanks—you are great.

Cisco's Lobos terminated Winters' basketball season with a 54-38 victory over the Blizzards in Cisco Friday night. It was a short, not-so-sweet dose of medicine for the Blizzards, who went into the game tied for the lead with the Lobos. The Blue led most of the first period, with Cisco pulling to an 11-10 lead at the end of the period. Things were nip and tuck in the first part of the second quarter, but mid-way through the period, the Blizzards were charged with a foul. The Cisco man's free throw bounced off, and when the two teams jumped for the rebound, Winters was ruled fouling. This same thing happened a second and a third time, before the Cisco player finally made the charity toss, thus automatically giving the Blue the ball.

This particular incident was only the beginning. Winters went on to be charged with 25 fouls, with Co-captain Jimmy Smith fouling 4 times in the second quarter, picking up his fifth personal midway in the third stanza, and Sammy Albro, James Williams, Walter Kraatz, and William Grissom each carrying four fouls when the game ended, while Jerry Dunn was charged with 3 and Jerry Dunn, 1.

The Lobos shot 41 charity shots, of which they made 20, while the Blizzards made 14 of 29 attempts.

Coach Don Edwards, whose "B" team was defeated for only the third time in district play, 44-38, molded the "B" teamers from last year's Junior High and this year's freshmen. Edwards built his team, after 8 straight losses at the start of the season, to one that was high among the leaders in the district.

So, it is all over—English and his Blizzards gave the home fans a (Continued on last page)

Runnels County Livestock Producers May Launch Bangs Control Program

Runnels County cattle owners are planning an all-out drive for a county-wide Bangs Control Program, according to C. T. Parker Jr., local County Agent. Parker points out that most every other county in the state has either started, or will start soon, on such a program. Some five counties have already been declared as being certified brucellosis free counties and as this number of counties grows, the more urgent it will become for this county to be certified as being Bangs free, Parker said.

The urgency of starting such a program became more evident last week when the following order was issued by Dr. Taylor, of the Texas Animal Health Commission:

"All cattle, except steers, spayed heifers, calves under six months of age and official brucellosis vaccinations under 30 months of age, leaving this market to premises in any county in which Type II brucellosis work is being conducted or has been completed, will have to comply with the following:

"Cattle originating in a modified certified brucellosis county or certified brucellosis fee herds and accompanied by a health certificate, when kept separate and apart from other cattle in clean pens used for that purpose only, can move without further tests.

Only two weeks remain in which interested persons may file as candidates in elections of particular interest to citizens of Winters and of the Winters school district.

Terms of office will expire this year for three members of the Winters city council, and for three members of the Winters school board.

Although the school board election will not be held until April 2, March 5 is the deadline for filing as a candidate for existing vacancies. Three candidates have already been filed for the school board. They are Henry Satterwhite, Wayne Roberts and John W. Norman. Norman will be up for re-election; he is presently serving as president of the board. James Glenn and W. F. Minzenmayer, the other two members of the board whose terms of office expire, have indicated they will not be candidates for re-election, according to information released this week.

Candidates for the school board must file in writing at the school business office not later than March 5.

Other members of the school board whose terms have another year to go are A. L. Mitchell, Jake Presley, Raymon Lloyd and Milton Jackson.

In the Winters City elections, terms of three members of the council will end this year. They are Elzie Cox, A. B. Spill and Lee Harrison.

Elzie Cox, who will complete his second term as a member of the city council, said this week he is "definitely not a candidate for re-election."

A. B. Spill, who also is completing his second term, said he is "not a candidate for re-election." Lee Harrison, whose first term as a city councilman expires this year, said this week he has no "intention now of filing for re-election."

Members of the city council whose terms have another year to go are Mayor Harvey D. Jones, Ralph Lloyd and B. G. Bryant.

Deadline for filing as a candidate in the city election is March 5.

The city election will be held in the fire station on April 5. C. S. Jackson will be election judge, and Mrs. Grover Davis and Mrs. J. L. Pope, clerks.

The school board election will be held in the Winters fire station on April 2, with W. I. Dixon election judge and Mrs. W. L. Graham and Mrs. Grover Davis, clerks.

Runnels County Livestock Producers May Launch Bangs Control Program

"Cattle from other modified certified counties accompanied by official health certificate showing negative to brucellosis test within 30 days, can be moved directly to owners' premises under quarantine, retested within 30 days, and if negative, released.

"Cattle that do not qualify with the above two paragraphs must be negative to a brucellosis test. They can then be moved to owner's premises, under quarantine, retested at his expense within 30 days, and if negative, released."

The order is effective at all terminal and auction markets. The new regulations will be posted at all auction sale facilities, as well as at the Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio terminals.

Dr. Taylor pointed out that this puts rules into effect regarding intrastate movements to the counties which now apply to interstate shipments.

The commission listed modified certified counties as Borden, Jeff Davis, Brewster, Crane, Presidio, Ward and Winkler. The counties in which testing is not completed, which are covered by the order are Pecos, Coleman, and Terrell.

This order simply means that as other counties clean up in Texas it will become much harder to sell or transport female cattle from one county to another. This could have a drastic effect upon (Continued on last page)

New Election Law Has Doomed Many Long-Standing Traditions

By Vern Sanford
 Texas Press Association

Democratic County Executive Committees will decide on March 14 whether to change the old custom of holding rural area precinct conventions in the daytime.

New election law passed last year has already doomed a number of Texas political traditions—like announcing when the dogwood comes out and serving watermelon at election rallies.

Primaries are now held the first weeks of May or June, instead of the last weeks of July and August, as before.

Another change is that a person who wishes to participate in a Democratic precinct convention must already have voted in the Democratic primary held the same day in order to have a poll tax stamped "Democratic."

City precincts won't be affected. There, customarily, the precinct conventions have been held after the polls close at 7 p. m.

In rural areas conventions usually have been held in the afternoon. This enabled people to come in, attend the convention, vote, buy their groceries, all in one trip, and get home in time to do the milking.

Now there is the necessity of giving everyone time to vote before the convention can be held.

State Democratic Chairman J. E. Connally has suggested county committees give thought to holding rural precinct conventions later—possibly not until after the polls close at 7 p. m.

LEGISLATIVE RACES

With 120 of the 150 House members making a bid for re-election, each of the two leading candidates for Speaker claims that half or more of these probable returnees is pledged to him.

Most active in the speaker's race are Reps. Wade Spilman of McAllen and James Turman of Gober. Some are predicting the race may be as long and hard as the last one between Waggoner Carr and Joe Burkett.

Thirty House members are either retiring from public life (including Burkett) or seeking another office (including Carr). Of the 120 who are running again for the House, 92 have opponents. This means there'll definitely be no decision on the speaker's race until after the primaries.

Neither Turman nor Spilman has an opponent for his House seat.

Of the 16 senators up for re-election, all are running again and ten have opponents.

Unless there should be an unusual number of "upsets," legislative turnover should be about the same or less than usual. "Normal" replacement is about one-third of the House (or 50 members) and a very small number of senators, usually not more than two or three.

TROJAN HORSE

Consideration of a federal aid to education bill in Washington has Texans reacting with mixed emotions.

It also adds new urgency to the efforts of those who want to see Texans shoulder school improvement responsibility through passage of the Hale-Aiken program.

Gov. Price Daniel said Texans should accept U. S. Senate passage of the federal aid bill as "fair warning" that Congress will step in if states don't take the necessary action.

If the states let in federal money, they will let in federal control of schools, the governor declared. He called "impossible" the idea of "federal money without strings attached."

Under the aid bill pending in Congress, Texas would receive $62,000,000, largest share of any state, from a $1,833,000,000 appropriation. Thus far, very few Texas school districts have refused to take the federal aid now available—for science teaching equipment, school lunches, etc.

STICK WITH GUNS

State Board of Insurance has announced five minor changes in the safe driving insurance plan, but in broad effort, the plan remains the same. Board stuck to its guns despite a barrage of criticisms.

Main change is that an insurance company cannot deny liability on a policy if false or inaccurate information is given by the policy holder. For instance, a person taking out a policy might, intentionally or unintentionally, fail to tell the insurance company how many accidents or traffic violations were on his driving record.

However, the company would be entitled to collect the higher premiums or damages from fraud if the policy holder had not admitted to his true driving record.

Premiums go up in proportion to the number of accidents and violations on a driver's record.

NEW PARTY LEADER

Albert B. Fay, Houston oilman, shipbuilder and rancher, succeeds Jack Porter of Houston as Texas Republican national committeeman. Porter came to power in the party in 1952 as an Eisenhower supporter when the "Old Guard"; HIGHLIGHTS 22 2 supporters of the late Sen. Robert Taft were swept aside. Porter stepped down this year because of his health.

Besides electing Ray, the GOP State Committee promised to field a challenger to Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson in the general election next fall. Johnson has no Democratic opponent for his senate post.

Republicans will nominate their candidates at a state convention May 30.

NO LOSS FOR FLU

Not the least of the worries in schools hard hit by influenza was that the district would lose a hunk of state aid money which is based on average daily attendance.

State Board of Education, however, has worked out an emergency "epidemic formula" to help ease the problem.

In flu-stricken schools, the average attendance for the epidemic period will be adjusted to reflect the percentage difference between actual attendance and attendance which would have been expected had there been no epidemic.

Fertilizer Sales Up For Fall 1959

Total tonnage of fertilizers sold during the fall of 1959 (July 1 to Dec. 1) was 4.8 percent over that sold during the same period in 1958 and 20 percent over the total sold in the fall of 1955. Sales of mixed goods in 1959 were practically the same as they were in 1958, but sales of materials were 8.0 percent higher, is the report of Dr. J. F. Fudge, state chemist. Mixed goods accounted for 35.9 percent of the total in 1959, compared with 39.5 percent in 1958.

Tonnage of primary components—nitrogen, available phosphoric acid and potash—was 2.8 percent higher than in 1958. A large part of this gain was due to the increase in sales of 16-20-0, urea and nitrogen solutions, although the average composition of mixed goods was higher than ever before, Fudge said. Sales of 10-20-10 accounted for 77 percent of the total for the 1-2-1 ratio and 55 percent of all mixed goods. Sales of the 1-2-1 ratio accounted for 71 percent of the mixed goods sold in East Texas, the principal user. The average composition of mixed goods sold in East Texas and in the entire state was almost a 10-20-10.

Sales of materials were 8.0 percent higher than a year ago with the increase due largely to a 40 percent increase in sales of 16-20-0 with some increases in sales of urea and nitrogen solutions. Sales of anhydrous ammonia were down 8 percent and of ammonium nitrate, 10 percent, the chemist reported. Total tonnage of anhydrous ammonia used in the six-month period was six times as great as in 1954. Anhydrous ammonia accounted for 27 percent of the tonnage of all materials, 66 percent of the total materials nitrogen and 57 percent of all nitrogen sold. Tonnage of ordinary superphosphate sold continued to decline and was only about one-fourth as high as in 1954, Fudge added.

Each Fisherman Has His Own Special Idea On How to Catch the "Big Ones"

A little conversation with a lot of fishermen always brings out a raft of ideas.

Nearly every fisherman has his own special opinion on "how to do it" when it comes to catching fish, especially big bass. Whether you agree with what he says or not, you must admit that if he is a successful bass fisherman there must be something to what he says.

This, even though his own thoughts may sometimes be in conflict with each other.

Yet, when you stop to think about it, fish themselves don't always follow the same pattern, strike the same bait, or act the same way, day in and day out.

Some anglers say you must think like a fish to catch fish. Others say you've got to out-think them.

One old-time fisherman contends that the big trouble with most fishermen is that they use the same bait that every other fisherman uses. Net result is that the bass become so familiar with that particular bait, or type of bait, that they just won't strike any longer.

In other words, every bass fisherman, by using the same method of bass fishing that the bass have seen for years, finally educates the finny creatures to the dangers of attacking such a lure. Result is spotty fishing.

On the other hand, there is the other type of fisherman who says that as soon as your partner lands one, switch to his identical lure. He figures his chance of success is greater when he offers the same attraction.

Another fisherman says that if you want to land the big ones, do you fishing from a boat. Fishing from a bank or wading in a lake, river or stream is okay in his opinion, but the far better method is from a boat.

Yet the largest fish ever hooked was while spin casting from a rocky bank in a narrow cove.

All of which might lead one to think that the fish doesn't care where his meal comes from, as long as it looks appetizing.

Now let's see what another fisherman has to say. Speaking of boats, this avid angler says that he prefers a 14-foot, flat-bottomed, wooden fishing boat, painted a dark gray or green. Better, yet, a black-bottomed boat.

His preference for the wooden boat is that it makes less noise than any other type manufactured. He absolutely will not use a metal boat. But he says fiberglass might be a close second choice to the wooden boat.

He contends that the drumming sound of the metal boat scares the fish away. He even argues that the splash of waves on the metal boat will echo so loudly that it scares them to other sections of the lake. He also contends that waves lapping up against the side of a metal boat make a drumming noise under water.

A fishing buddy chimed in to stress the importance of being quiet when fishing. Noisy use of the oars in paddling is just as bad as dropping a pair of pliers to the bottom of a metal boat, in his opinion.

His contention is that when rowing you never should take the oars out of the water. He says further — return it to forward position by bring it forward parallel to the boat, then row with a figure-8 motion, so as to get the greatest amount of power with the least disturbance of the water.

Also, if you must raise the oar out of the water, don't raise it more than a few inches above the surface. Then dip it straight down into the water and break the surface as lightly as possible.

A fishing guide at Falcon Lake tells us that one of the better ways to oar a boat quietly is to finish your stroke fully before lifting the oar out of the water. This, whether it is a pulling stroke or a back stroke.

Reason is, of course, that you are clear of the water you have generated and thereby eliminate the slushing of the stirred-up water against your own paddle.

In other words, avoid short, choppy strokes. Make them long and complete.

Every fisherman seems to agree on one thing. That is that you should approach your fishing spot quietly, with the least disturbance of the water, and with the slightest possible noise.

One ardent angler even recommends that you make no attempt to cast your line into the water for about five minutes. Just sit there and relax until the bass have become accustomed to the boat being around.

Needless to say, loose or broken seats that creak or squeak should be repaired before you take to the water.

Tackle boxes were the object of another angler's concern. He favors the wooden boxes over the fiberglass ones, and absolutely abhors the metal boxes.

Here again, metal is the most distracting thing in a boat.

What about clothing? That provokes a lot of conversation.

A man sticks up quite a way above the seat of a boat, says one angler. He warns that there should be no bright colors in the fisherman's clothing, or any colors that will reflect a lot of light. This eliminates gaudy apparel and white shirts or trousers.

Khaki seems to be about as fitting a garb for the fisherman as any, say most anglers. Second choice is GI fatigue clothing.

This is the end of our line today. Later we will pass on to you some comments of other fishermen we have contacted.

How To Catch the Big Ones!

By Vern Sanford

Want to catch big bass the year round?

Want to catch them when other fellows are going home empty-handed?

Here are some tips, relayed to us by experts, that may help you fill our your stringer with whoppers.

The average black bass fisherman gets his greatest thrill out of snagging a big black on a topwater lure.

Chances are he's going to catch some good bass on those surface plugs, all right. However, it will be mostly luck, rather than skill, unless he has made some kind of study of the bass and its feeding habits.

Fact of the business is, the black bass prefers deep water, and he would stay there all the time, except for two things.

One is that the bass must follow the minnows, small bream, shad and other food he eats. When the water temperature gets uncomfortable for these little fish down deep, they come to the top—so do the bass, naturally, in their search for food.

Also in relation to food, the bass will come to the surface when there is a chance for him to catch baby birds that fall out of nests, insects on top of the water, frogs, mice, and whatever else is available that suits his fancy.

Otherwise, the largemouth will seek shallow water, six to ten feet deep, only in spawning season, which might last for several weeks in the spring.

Now we've accounted for maybe five percent of the time when the big bass are within 10 feet of the surface. The rest of the time they're deeper, and if the fisherman wants to be successful, he's got to get down where they are. How deep?

Depends on the size bass you want. Conditions vary, of course, but as a general rule, you might say that in a suitable hole, there will be a school of small ones maybe 15 feet down. At 20 feet, there would be a school of 1 1/2 and 2 pounders. Go down to 25 feet and you'll find the three-pound fish. The lunkers are there—at 30 to 40 feet.

If a bass could select his own habitat, he would look for a place along a ledge, where the water drops off to 40 feet, and where there are tall weeds growing all the way to the bottom. He has a place to come up and feed along the bank where the minnows are, but most of the time he stays down, deep down, in his green weedy home.

So he's 30 feet down, and you're fishing with surface lures, and you get nothing.

You change to a "deep diving" lure, maybe one that has a spoon bill on the front to make it dig into the water while being retrieved. Well, that lure reaches a depth of 10 or 12 feet for a brief bit of its journey, but at no time does it get anywhere close to the big ones.

Okay, so they're deep, are they? You tie on a sinking lure, cast it out and give it time enough to reach the bottom. Then you begin retrieving. And nothing happens. You begin to wonder what's the trouble. You can think of lots of reasons, most likely, but the real one probably is this.

Even when you used that sinking lure, you didn't give it time enough to get really deep. It seemed like a long time, but you were a little impatient. And you thought about losing a lure along the rocky, weedy, brushy bottom, so you started reeling in too fast.

You remember what the experts told you about fishing with surface lures? Cast one over by an old stump and let it sit until all the ripples have disappeared. Give it a very slight twitch and forget about it for awhile. Work it slow. The same principle applies in deep water, and the experts know it. You must use the right technique.

Toss a good lure—black jig, black eel, spoon with pork chunk, lead-headed plastic worm—into good bass water and leave it alone until you get slack in your line, meaning that the lure is really and truly on the bottom. Now wait a while. If the bass is nearby, he'll be looking at the thing, speculatively or angrily or hungrily.

Give him time to speculate and get madder or hungrier. Give him lots of time. Then imagine the way a shad moves when he's just ambly along the bottom. Move your lure that way—slowly, just a foot or two, and let it rest. If nothing happens, repeat the performance, at long intervals.

Now you're jiggling along the bottom. You're fishing for bass, and if you don't catch more by using this method than you ever did any other way, you can sue 99 percent of the experts who ever expressed an opinion on the subject.

Diablo Dam Is Becoming Closer To Realization

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

Prospects for a dam on the Rio Grande, near Dell Rio, advanced last week with three days of hearings on my bill to authorize the project. The Diablo, of Amistad, dam would be built just below the confluence of the Devils river and the Rio Grande.

Popular interest in the project was evidenced by 17 witnesses from the Del Rio area, plus a greater number from Eagle Pass, Laredo and the lower valley.

Citing the loss of many lives (around 200) in the 1954 flood, and the high annual flood damage losses on the river, I urged the committee to approve the conclusion of negotiations with Mexico which would lead to early construction.

My bill was strongly endorsed by President Eisenhower in his annual budget message to Congress last month.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz is being honored in San Francisco on February 24, on the occasion of his 75th birthday, according to an invitation just received from Mayor George Christopher. It will be one of the big events of the year in the West. Even though not present, thousands of Texans, particularly in the Fredericksburg-Kerrville area, will be saying Happy Birthday! to a great Texan a great American. And many happy returns!

Biologists Kept Busy Last Year

Last year was a very busy year for the Texas Game and Fish Commission, according to the director of wildlife restoration. Biologists work with everything from bighorn sheep in the Trans-Pecos Mountains to white-winged doves in the Rio Grande Valley and Mexico, and turkey in East Texas. Some 38 restoration and wildlife research projects were in operation.

These included trapping bighorn sheep on the Kofa Desert Game Range in southwestern Arizona, developing brood stocks of deer and turkey in many Texas counties, trapping deer, turkey, and javelina on the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, surveying coastal waterfowl, and determining the status of the white-winged dove in Texas.

In 103 Texas counties technicians recorded game population trends. They made covey counts and studied wings sent in by hunters for quail estimates. Deer populations were estimated through herd counts and check stations.

A program of trapping in areas where surplus exists and transplanting to suitable locations where brood stock is needed, was carried out in nearly every part of the State. Some 287 deer, 46 turkeys and 13 javalinas were trapped on the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge and transplanted elsewhere. In addition, 236 deer, 197 turkeys and 25 javalinas were trapped on the King Ranch. About 140 turkeys were trapped on other private ranches, and used for restocking purposes.

Gray Gardner, student of Texas University in Austin, spent the weekend visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner.

Roger Babson Says

Municipal Bonds Rated Best Bond Buys In Order To Avoid Taxes

Babson Park, Pass, Feb. 18. — The wise investor is anxious to hedge against three main handicaps: (1) Inflation, (2) labor leaders, and (3) taxes. Let us consider, this week, hedging against taxes. These will surely be more serious each year.

Non-Taxable Bonds
All non-taxable bonds are cheaper than they have been for years. The "full faith" Municipals are rated best; but I think that most of the turnpike Revenue Bonds are fairly good at their current prices. If you buy them now and later do not like them, you can probably sell them at a profit. You need not keep them until maturity.

When loaning money on mortgage it is wise to make a fairly low rate of interest, plus your approximate income tax. Then your mortgage interest will be net. Certainly, in the case of rents you should insist that the tenant pay the taxes as part of the rent. This has many advantages and is fair to all parties. Of course, there is no way to hedge against "death taxes" except by giving money away before you die. I will discuss this later.

Duties On Imported Goods
Certain cities, such as Buffalo, offer opportunities to buy foreign goods that are selling at very low prices in Germany, Japan, and other countries. You must stay 48 hours outside the U.S.A and are limited to $200 in purchases at any one time; but you can make purchases as often as you wish. This is the only honest way to avoid import taxes.

Various other means can be found to save taxes on merchandise. These include "sales taxes," which can be avoided most easily by persons living near the borders of certain states. There also are allowances which your tax return permits you to make on doctors' bills, medical costs, hospital charges, benevolent gifts to churches, etc.; also exemptions for certain children, and other deductions. You can secure a list of these from your local bank.

National Federation of Independent Business
If you are an average businessman as well as an investor, you should at once join the National Federation of Independent Business, Inc. Its headquarters are at Burlingame, California. This Association has secured some helpful tax and other legislation from Congress. The host helpful man is C. Wilson Harder, President.

When the federal agents check your income tax payment, they will be absolutely honest as to the mathematics. If you have paid too much they will tell you so, just as they would if you had paid too little. But they will not tell you how you could have saved tax money. It therefore will pay every taxpayer to employ some accountant in his locality to make out his tax return. This will save the taxpayer money—the charge will not exceed $25.00 and will perhaps be less. Don't be "penny wise and pound foolish."

What About Death Taxes?
These are very hard to avoid if you are married and leave an estate of over $120,000 (if single $60,000), but the federal tax can be reduced in various ways. If you are young or middle-aged, give a certain amount to your heirs every year. You can give $3,000 annually free of tax. You also are allowed to give annually from 20 percent to 30 percent of your net income to religious, educational and scientific bodies. Such gifts I make regularly; this is really a joy.

The large investor, however, who misses this "joy of giving" and is trying to be the "richest man in the cemetery" has another means of cutting death taxes. Certain U. S. Government bonds can now be bought at a discount of about 15 percent or more which will be accepted at par in payment of death taxes. Hence by investing in such bonds to an estimated amount of your death taxes, you can save 15 percent or more by purchasing them now and holding them against your future death taxes. Everyone can hedge against taxes to a certain extent; but it requires care, thought, pre-planning, and the help of a tax expert.

Game Magazine Has Article On Safe Boating

"The force of wind - built waves should be treated with respect, their power never underestimated," warns F. A. Murray in his article "Storm Warnings," in the February issue of Texas Game and Fish.

"To know how to handle a boat in rough water, you should first know your boat and outboard motor as well as you know the operation of your car," advises the author. "Bad weather has a sneaky habit of appearing when you least expect it. A healthy puff of wind coursing over the surface of a lake can spell plenty of trouble for the careless boater."

Murray points out that most experts favor angling into waves when fighting the winds. However an inexperienced boatman traveling in a boat under 16 feet should head directly into the waves. This can be risky too if the weight of both passengers and equipment is not distributed properly.

Check with someone at the dock before leaving. An old timer or the weather bureau can give you some valuable advice. "If a big blow is forecast" writes the author "stay in port."

Charlton Heston (left) and Gary Cooper struggle to save the ill-fated freighter, Mary Deare, in a storm-tossed sea in MGM's exciting drama, "The Wreck of the Mary Deare," film version of Hammond Innes' best-selling novel. Much of the Cinema-Scope and color picture was shot on location in London, Southampton and the English Channel. Guest stars in an impressive cast include Michael Redgrave, Emyln Williams, Cecil Parker, Alexander Knox and Virginia McKenna.

We look to the advent of spring as something beautiful. But it's more than that.

Trees that bloom in the spring also produce food and shelter.

Much of Texas is rolling plains with some desert and mountainous areas. Fortunately for the outdoorsman, we still have millions of acres of trees throughout the state. And this timberland is as important to wildlife as are our mountains and our plains.

The average person doesn't realize the vast forest resources with in the boundaries of Texas.

For instance, Texas' forest lands cover 22,033,900 acres, more than 55 percent forested. Commercial forests in the state reach the staggering total of 12,171,900 acres, with a saw-timber volume of 27,239,300,000 board feet.

These Texas timberlands grow wood for some 1,000 mills and factories that provide fulltime jobs for 43,000 persons. They earn in excess of $138,000,000 per year and the goods they produce are valued at over a half billion dollars.

These are values in cold dollars and cents. Trees are a renewable resource. They continue to grow and new forests can be brought along to take the place of those consumed by the industry.

An interesting feature of this tremendous forest area is that Harris County has more than a million acres of forest land. Yet the largest city in the South — Houston—the county seat of Harris County, has more than a million population.

Houston County, in East Texas, is second in forest area with 88,400 acres.

Thus we have the picture that forests unfold in the economy of Texas. Too few, however, realize the great benefits to our wildlife which also is a renewable resource.

The East Texas forest land once was a haven for wildlife. There were plenty of deer, turkey, bear and smaller game. The Indians didn't destroy it. The white man did.

There were game outlaws throughout the forest lands of East Texas. They poached. They killed the game out of season. They killed more than the bag limit and were responsible for many other outrages against wildlife.

However, their's were not the only sins.

Many of the land owners, looking first to the dollar, with no eye on posterity, cut down hardwoods, to raise more pine.

As a result the crop of mast disappeared on thousands of acres of land. There was no food for the wildlife.

Unfortunately, some of these landowners were some of the major ones. They could see no possibilities in anything but tall pines.

And they weren't too particular about polluting the streams, either. They were responsible for the killing off of many fish.

It has been only within the last few years that many landowners have been sold on the idea that hardwood and pine can grow on the same area, without harming each other. Now there is a comeback in much of the hardwood area.

This is a result of work being carried on by the U. S. Forest Service, the State Forest Service and the Game & Fish Commission. None of it would have been possible, however, without the full cooperation of all the land owners.

More than two-thirds of all the forest land in Texas is held in tracts of less than 5,000 acres.

Farmers own some 21 percent of all the forest land in Texas. The governments, state and federal, own only about 7 percent. Forest industries own another 27 percent. All of which means that some 45 percent of the forest area is held by other private owners. Another tremendous hazard to wildlife of Texas forests is fire.

Experts estimate that more than 99 percent of all forest fires are man-made. Man will burn off thousands of acres of timber each year and in turn destroy a great deal of wildlife.

Unfortunately many of these fires are caused by carelessness. Others have been set by responsible persons, for one reason or another. Whatever the cause — wildlife suffers most.

It is much easier to grow a tree than it is to reproduce wildlife.

We can go to other areas and buy a thousand seedlings and re-store a piece of property. They will stay there and grow. But with wildlife it is entirely different.

Amusements Coming to Local Theatres

AT THE STATE THEATRE

"The Wreck of the Mary Deare"
With Gary Cooper and Charlton Heston starred, "The Wreck of the Mary Deare" is brought to the screen by Metro-Goldwyn Mayer as a powerful drama of conflict and suspense, set against a spectacular backdrop of storm-swept seas, shipwreck, mutiny and murder. Guest stars in an impressive cast include Michael Redgrave, Emyln Williams, Cecil Parker, Alexander Knox and Virginia McKenna.

The action picture, filmed in Cinema-Scope and color, is based on Hammond Innes' best-selling, telling the strange story of the freighter, Mary Deare, set afire and abandoned by its crew. When Gideon Patch (Gary Cooper), the only man aboard, is joined by John Sands (Charlton Heston), whose salvage boat has been rammed by the freighter on the storm tossed English Channel, the latter discovers that Patch is deliberately intent on wrecking the Mary Deare. At a London Court of Inquiry, Patch is faced by his accusers and the mystery of the Mary Deare becomes an international issue—a mystery which is not solved until the picture's climax in which Gideon Patch and John Sands undertake a dangerous adventure in swimming underwater to enter the sunken hold of the wrecked ship.

"The Oregon Trail"
In "The Oregon Trail," talented young producer Richard Einfield, undertook his biggest production in bringing the Cinema-Scope and color story of a band of people headed for the Oregon Territory in 1864 in a wagon train, to the motion picture screen.

The Twentieth Century Fox release, opening Friday and Saturday at the State Theatre, is a big story with a big cast. Fred McMurray, Nina Shipman, Floria Talbott, Henry Hull, and John Carradine star and such established actors and actresses as Elizabeth Patterson, John Dierkes, James Bell, John Sanford, Tex Terry and Arvo Ojala head a strong featured players list.

"The picture is about people, their hopes, fears and ambitions," Einfield says. "It happens to be laid in an era of covered wagons, Indians and outlaws but except for the costumes and modes of transportation, it is as modern a story as you could write today."

"The Oregon Trail" tells of the United States' efforts to protect its citizens who have undertaken the long trek to Oregon and of the government's negotiations with England over the area in determining which nation will control it.

"Imitation of Life"
When Lana Turner forsook glamour roles to play a mother in "Peyton Place," she never realized that switching to maternal characterizations would lead her back to the world of glamor bigger than ever.

Never in her fabulous screen career has Lana been accorded such glamor as Universal-International has bestowed upon her for her role as a mother in the modernized screen version of Fannie Hurst's powerful best-selling novel, "Imitation of Life." The picture shows Sunday and Monday at the State Theatre.

Electricity sparks the... 60s NATIONAL ELECTRICAL WEEK FEB. 7-13, 1960

"WHADDYA MEAN ELECTRICITY WILL BE A BARGAIN IN THE '60s?"

"Look at this bill. It's higher than it was last year, isn't it?"

Yes sir — it is. But let's see why. Do you have a new appliance, perhaps? A present for your wife?

"Well, yes. I got her a dishwasher and a new automatic washer last summer."

Lucky wife. Is there anything else?

"Well, yes. We've got a new TV set, too — and I guess we've been watching it a good deal."

Yes. In other words, you've been putting more electricity to work for you, and getting more value out of it than ever before?

"You're right. I guess we have. Never looked at it that way. Why, maybe electricity is a real bargain."

No doubt about it, sir. It is.

Electricity COSTS SO LITTLE — YOU CAN USE LOTS OF IT!

"First In War, First In Peace"

The inherent strength of all great men is in their character. Washington had the qualities which won confidence and which made him a leader. He had the will and courage to carry on in the face of difficulty. Fame came to him, but was never sought.

His public service did not end with his death. He left a lasting imprint on American institutions for he was ever a foe of despotism and a champion of liberty. He helped to frame the Constitution . . . that charter of freedom and equality which we value beyond price.

Help to preserve the American way of life . . . a heritage left to us by our forefathers.

Camels, Look to Your Laurels— There's a Long Dry Spell Ahead

Joan Roberts drew a puzzled expression from Sheba, a Bactrian (two humps) camel, when she pointed to the Corvair aluminum engine as the undisputed champion of machine or beast operating forever without water. Sheba, though passive, was content to relinquish the camel's historic endurance laurels to the new compact car's rear-installed air-cooled engine which never needs water. At any rate, the camel clan held the "no water" record until 1959 BC (before Corvair).

LONE STAR AGRICULTURE

The day may not be far off when nearly all of the heavy beef eaten in Texas will have been fattened, finished and processed in Texas—which is a complete reversal of a condition that has prevailed generally in the past.

Until recent years practically all of the heavy beef consumed in Texas, the nation's No. 1 cattle producing state, has come from feed lots in the mid-western corn belt. Texas cattle were sold as feeders to be shipped to the corn belt for fattening and processing, then shipped back at fancy prices in the form of U. S. Good, U. S. Choice and U. S. prime beef.

But the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research now reports a tremendous growth in Texas feeding operations during the past four years. On Jan. 1, 1955, there were only 61 listed commercial operations in Texas with a feeding capacity of 1,000 head or more each, carrying an aggregate capacity of 160,000 head. On Jan. 1, 1959, there were 94 such feed lots on record, with an aggregate capacity of 240,000 head, developing an increase of 50 per cent in capacity in the four years.

This growth is still going on. An example is the Luck T. Cattle Co. which operates just west of San Antonio on the Edwards Plateau, now expanding its capacity from around 8,000 head to 13,000 head, including a completely automatic feed mill capable of turning out from 250 to 300 tons of feed a day. Another is provided by Lewter, Inc. of Lubbock, which has expanded its feed lots to take care of 25,000 cattle at a time, along with a million-dollar beef slaughtering and processing plant. Construction is scheduled in 1960 in Houston of a $2 million livestock feeding plant to supply the new Armour and Co. beef processing plant there with from 400 to 1,000 cattle weekly.

This means, the Bureau of Business Research finds, that increased interest in feeding among farmers and ranchers plus the rapidly growing investment in feed lot facilities is evidence that Texas is becoming a major cattle feeding state.

Dividends Guard Against Loss Of GI Insurance

More than a million veterans who have GI life insurance policies are using their regular annual dividends to guard against the loss of their insurance, P. J. Mims, manager of the VA regional office in Waco said this week.

The VA recently announced that $253,500,000 in dividends would be paid during 1960 to more than five million veterans and servicemen who hold participating GI insurance.

GI policyholders may have the annual dividends held — with interest — by the agency as a credit to pay premiums monthly if the policyholders fail to pay them before the end of the 31-day grace period.

This procedure is followed automatically if the policyholders fail to pay them before the end of the 31-day grace period.

This procedure is followed automatically if the policyholder does not request other disposition of his annual dividends, Mims explained, but the policyholder has two other options.

He may use his annual dividends to pay policy premiums in advance, or he may request the VA to pay his dividends in cash.

Holders of permanent plan policies have a third option. They may authorize the VA to hold annual dividends on deposit with interest and subject to withdrawal on request. If not withdrawn, the money and accrued interest will increase the value of the policy, Mims added.

A policyholder who wishes to change his dividend option, should write to the VA district office which services his policy, making sure to include his insurance number and to state his new option.

This new Bangs Control movement all started as a result of a Bangs Control law passed during the last session of the Legislature. There is nothing compulsory about the law. In fact, 75 percent of the cattle owners must ask for the program before it is started in a county.

Briefly here is how the new law reads:

"75 percent of cattle owners, owning at least 51 percent of cattle as shown by tax rolls must petition to designate a county as control area.

"When Commission receives a petition it will issue a proclamation describing area and stating type of area, plus date regulation becomes effective. This date cannot be less than 90 days from issuing proclamation.

"A control area may contain additional or less area, in reasonable amount, than that encompassed by county boundary.

"A hearing will be held on each applying area at least 30 days after proclamation.

"Two types of Brucellosis control areas, petition must specifically designate which type is being requested.

"In Type II areas the Commission will conduct the test and vaccination and enforce the rules and regulations.

"An area will be certified when not more than 1 percent of the cattle in 5 percent of the herds are found to be infected.

"Prohibiting the Commission from adopting regulations that would interfere with free movement of vaccinates under thirty months of age from unquarantined herds in this state.

"Penalties for anyone moving cattle into or within control area without permit, except an owner can move cattle to contiguous pastures if not quarantined.

"Owners must submit cattle for test, vaccination, or identification or be subjected to penalty.

"Reactors must be fire branded with letter 'B'.

"Indemnities shall not be paid. Appeals to Civil Courts if dissatisfied with rulings of Commission.

Parker points out that petitions will be circulated by interested cattlemen during the next few weeks and everyone is urged to study the law and take part in the movement if he sees the value or need of such a program.

There will be a county-wide meeting Monday night, Feb. 22, on the third floor of the courthouse for the purpose of explaining the entire program to everyone who is interested. The meeting will begin at 7:30 and all cattle owners are urged to be present.

A meeting for the same purpose will be held in Winters Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 7:30. This meeting will be held in the Vocational Agriculture building and all cattlemen in this area are invited to attend. Dr. Henderson, of the Texas Health Commission, will explain the entire program and should be able to answer any questions local cattlemen might have.

Blizzard Cagers--

title contender, and a good hustling ball club.

Coach English took the remains of a team that finished with a mediocre season last year, and a "B" team that closed with a 10-10 record, and compiled a final standing of 13-9 for the season, and 8-2 for district play. The outlook for next year is bright, with 7 returning lettermen.

Thus has ended the 1959-60 basketball season—in the bleak, cold dressing room in Cisco's gym 5 seniors pulled of their battle suits for the last time, thinking of the many good times, hard times, and the narrow margin by which they missed winning the coveted district crown.

But, these boys had nothing to be ashamed of—they fought all the way, never giving up, and were gallant in defeat as well as in victory.

Heading the list of seniors are co-captains Jimmy Smith and Sammy Albro. It seems as though only yesterday Smith made his entrance as a Sophomore, thrilling home fans with his alert ball-hawking. Jim was marked then as a boy to watch—and this he was. He has many moments in the spotlight, but probably none so game-saving as in the Hamlin game, when he stole the ball with only seconds remaining and the Blue trailing by two points, dribbled down court, and made the tying basket as the buzzer sounded. The Blizzards won the game in overtime, 36-34, for their first win of the season. Some weeks later Smith sank the winning basket with only 5 seconds remaining to down the Lakeview Chiefs 45-43.

Albro's biggest moment by far came in the crucial Cisco game here, when, with less than 5 seconds remaining and the score tied, he was fouled. Sammy went to the free throw line, laughing and joking, and sank both free throws, crushing the Lobos 40-38. Jerry Dunnam, hampered by a leg injury, never was a high scorer, but, he, too, had a moment of glory. It was his two free throws that gave the Blizzards the 41-38 lead against the Eastland Mavericks in Eastland. The Mavs came back to sink two points, but Dunnam had piloted the victory for the Blizzards 41-40.

It was big Walter Kraatz whose jump shot gave the Blizzards a new life in the district race. Only three days before the big game with Cisco, Eastland's Mavericks came to Winters with upset on their minds, and upset they almost did, but Kraatz' basket won it 37-35, in the sudden-death third overtime.

There was, however, one Blizzards senior upon whom Lady Luck did not choose to smile. Little Gary Onken, who saw only limited action during the season, had his limelight glory taken away from him by sheer fate. Gary was fouled as the first overtime of the Eastland game ended—his free throw could win the game, or it could go into the second overtime. Onken shot, and the ball went into the basket, and popped out as though someone had slammed the door in Gary's face.

So, now I have come to the end of this, my last boys basketball story for The Enterprise—I have seen players come and go, and never before did I realize how fast time does move, but, along with the seniors that have passed on and those that will come after, I, too, must go.

It is with much regret that I turn over the books that I have cherished and kept for three years to someone else.

Throughout all my writing, I have tried to be for the team—I suppose in work like this you can't help but have favorites that hit a soft spot with you—but I can earnestly say that being able to work with the boys and their coach has meant more to me than anyone will ever know.

I suppose I'm just sentimental, but Winters, Texas, Winters High School, and the Winters Hi School Blizzards of 1957-60 and especially 59-60, will always be first with me.

Benson - Sharp Wedding Vows Repeated In Home Ceremony Saturday

In a pretty setting at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Benson, 310 South Arlington Street, Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, marriage vows were repeated, uniting Nancy Jo Benson and Thomas Reed Sharp of Anniston, Alabama. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Sharp, Sr., of Ovalo.

Officiating for the ceremony were the Rev. B. T. Shoemaker, pastor of the First Baptist Church and the Rev. Kenneth Benson of Ft. Worth, brother of the bride and pastor of the Pecan Grove Baptist Church.

Mrs. L. H. Henslee was organist and played traditional wedding music prior to the ceremony, including "Traumeri," "I Love You Truly," "Always," "Because," and as the couple entered she played "The Wedding March."

The couple stood before the fireplace where an improvised altar was formed by a sunburst arrangement of white gladiolus, pom poms and candy tuft extending across the full length of the mantle. The fire screen of wrought iron was entwined with lemon leaves, plumosa fern and covered with white pom poms. White candelabra holding cathedral tapers at either side were entwined with plumosa and white poms.

Mrs. Kenneth Benson of Fort Worth, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a blue chiffon creation over taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

Lieutenant Milton Sharp, Jr., of Laredo Air Force Base, served his brother as best man.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length princess style gown of white taffeta and aleon lace. The deep lace yoke featured a scalloped sabrina neckline outlined in sequins and the long lace sleeves came to a point at the wrist and fastened by tiny buttons. A lace panel at the back of the fitted bodice extending below the waistline was accented by a flat bow of taffeta.

Her veil of illusion was attached to a star-shaped cap studded with seed pearls. She carried atop a white Bible, a white orchid surrounded by feathered carnations with streamers of picoted white satin ribbon tied in love knots.

The bride was a junior in Winters high school, a member of the National Honor Society and had served as vice president of the student council, assistant drum major and sweetheart of the Winters Lions Club.

out from the agency, but we have to assume that they were sent to all the newspapers, and perhaps radio and tv stations, in the country. This must have amounted to an enormous pile of mail. And the cost of getting them to their destination—in this case the wastebasket—must have been staggering.

If the three sheets had been put in one single, small more economical, envelope, the bulk of this one mailing would have been reduced to at least one third, and the cost would have been reduced accordingly. For ease in figuring, if it took one civil service employee one hour to stuff and prepare for mailing one of these releases, simple arithmetic shows it would take three releases in the manner in which they were handled. If one mailman was required to move one batch of releases, it would take three mailmen to move the entire mailing of three pieces. And so it goes.

This is not an isolated case. Multiply this by the many government agencies, bureaus and branches which maintain their own publicity departments, and you can see what a staggering load the taxpayer has to bear to, putting it bluntly, keep a bunch of unneeded employees on the government payroll. That's where much of your tax dollar is going—into the wastebasket.
