HOME TOWN Talk

J. W. (Bill) Moore, of Ballinger, candidate for State Representative, 77th District, said this week he had not sought nor is "planning to seek," outside help in his race for the state office. He said his political campaign would be based solely "on my own record."

Moore's statement was in answer to reports within the past few days that a group from Dallas had pledged their support to certain candidates in an attempt to unseat several state legislators who are making bids for re-election. Moore, who is in the race against incumbent Rep. A. J. Bishop, Jr., of Winters, had been chosen for support by the lobbyist group, according to reports.

The Ballinger candidate said this week that he had not been contacted by anyone outside the district, and that he did not know the group supposedly preparing to back him in his campaign. According to stories in the daily press, the Dallas group is headed by a Dallas attorney, Preston A. Weathered, who is said to have sent out a plea to other lobbyists over Texas who represent various associations, asking their help in defeating incumbent representatives, and electing candidates who would be more "conservative."

According to the releases, Weathered wrote letters to other lobbyists asking them to go to bat with their members to win 20 elections in rural areas. Weathered wrote that the only way conservative control of the House of Representatives and Senate can be maintained is by electing or defeating the 20 lawmakers of whom he approves or disapproves, the report said.

Rep. Bishop, who considers himself a conservative, indicated last week that the only reason he has drawn fire from the lobbyists is that "I have voted against a sales tax every time it came up." He said he was "surprised to find myself listed in the other camp."

Moore said this week that he is against a sales tax and also against any form of state income tax. He emphasized that he was not seeking any outside help in his attempt to unseat Bishop.

It's still going on, this face-lifting of buildings in downtown Winters. If the present trend continues, most of the buildings in the business district will receive new fronts, paint jobs and the like.

Over on Main Street, the front of the building housing the Main Radio-TV and Jo Baker's Barber Shop is receiving a new front. On West Dale, the front of McMillan Cleaners is being remodeled. On North Main, the building formerly occupied by the Blossom Shop, which moved north a few doors, is being completely remodeled for some occupant.

On the corner of Main and Dale, the ladies in Thelma & Vernie's Gift Shop are in completely new surroundings, after being closed for several days for remodeling.

Reports are that the displays of Winters manufacturers "stole the show" at the San Angelo Industrial Exposition last week in the San Angelo Coliseum. The many

School Board Voting Set Record In Heavy Turnout

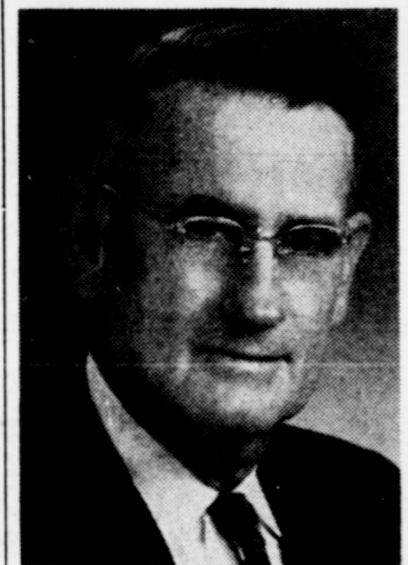

An unexpected turnout of voters in the Winters Independent School District trustee election Saturday caused election officials to hastily prepare additional ballots. According to officials, 429 voters cast ballots, the greatest number in any school election locally in many years.

Elected to fill the three positions were John Norman, incumbent and present board president; Homer Hudgins and Henry Satterwhite. Satterwhite led the voting with 377 votes; Norman received 339; and Hudgins got 232.

A last-minute flurry of write-in voters cast 120 votes for J. W. Bahlman, whose name was not on the ballot. Other candidates on the ballot were George Briley, 73; and Wayne Roberts, 135.

In the Runnels County School Board election, incumbent W. T. Billups received 428 votes. He was unopposed.

An organization meeting for the new board will be held Tuesday, April 12, in the school business office, at which time officers will be named.

W. T. Billups Named Top Conservation Farmer In County

W. T. Billups, farmer and rancher in the Harmony community, was honored Friday noon at a weekly luncheon of the Ballinger Lions Club as the outstanding conservation farmer of 1959 in the Runnels Soil Conservation District.

Billups was presented a plaque, provided by the Fort Worth Press in its state-wide conservation program. The presentation was made by Woodrow Hoffman, work unit conservationist.

Also, recognition was given to Mrs. Billups, who is chairman of the soil and water conservation committee of District 6 of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs. She was referred to by her husband as a partner in the conservation program that has been in operation on the Billups' 2,000-acre ranch 8.5 miles northeast of Winters for years.

Billups was selected by the board of supervisors of the Runnels SCD "not only for the conservation work that he has carried out on his ranch but for the conservation leadership that he has displayed in his community," said Hoffman, who was chief speaker at the conservation program.

Billups was born and reared on the ranch, located on Elm Creek and the level plain just below the hills which mark the beginning of the Callahan Divide. His father, the late J. T. Billups, established the ranch in 1900. His father was former publisher of a Ballinger newspaper. He came to Runnels County shortly after the county seat town was laid out.

Billups has developed a water system that is a miniature of a small watershed flood control district, Hoffman said. He has constructed seven water detention structures, six of which have "draw-down" tubes which he designed and which permit him to regulate the flow of run-off along a branch of Elm Creek.

The seven structures impound about 125 acre feet of water. One of them, located near the ranch headquarters, impounds water for use at the house and barns. The other six are so designed that they ultimately can be drained into this reservoir.

In addition to water conservation, Billups is, through the Great Plains Conservation Program and the Conservation Reserve, turning

Roger Babson Says

Government Bonds Are the Best Buy For the Small Investor

Babson Park, Mass.—I am often asked what are the best types of investments for those whose funds are limited and who need a steady income to help with their living expenses or to provide a major part of such expenses. Here is my answer to these people and to others in similar circumstances:

U. S. Government Bonds Are a Buy
Among the best investments from the point of view of safety of principal and continuity of income are U. S. Government Bonds. These are available in different series and maturities to accommodate different types of investors, and are selling not far above their low prices for the past 20 years. The longer maturities now return a yield of over 4 percent, which is more than you can get by leaving your money in a savings bank.

The full faith and credit of the United States is behind these government bonds, and I am sure Uncle Sam will never default on these obligations. It is entirely possible, however, that the money in which you will one day be repaid may purchase less than it does now, but that is a risk which you must take with almost any investment you make. Of course, government bonds are taxable, but there are comparatively few investments you can make which are not taxable.

Don't Overlook Municipal Bonds
Many of the bonds of cities and towns throughout the country pay well today and should be safe investments. A further advantage is that income derived from these municipals is non-taxable. I suggest, however, that you choose your municipal bonds carefully. It is desirable to know something about the financial affairs and tax income of the city or town whose bonds you buy; otherwise you should employ an investment counselor.

Usually, the best municipal bonds are those of localities of substantial size, though under 100,000 population. Avoid bonds issued by the larger cities. The risks in holding them are too great and too numerous, especially for people of moderate means and income. I also prefer bonds of interior cities which would probably not be bombed in case of World War III.

Advantages of Turnpike Issues

In my opinion, the bond issues of most of the larger turnpike authorities should prove to be safe investments for those who are really dependent on their investment income for their living expenses. These roads provide the safest and fastest mode of auto and truck transportation we have yet developed. The medium-term future of the better turnpike bonds would be excellent as far as earnings are concerned.

Some of these turnpikes may get into financial trouble because of competition with each other, or from airplane and helicopter facilities, but at present most of them are doing well. Of course, their income would be adversely affected in case of war, particularly if such a conflict should force a return to gasoline rationing.

Some Other Good Investments

Government, turnpike, and municipal bonds are not, by any means, the only investments today which offer safety of principal plus a good return. Most Mutual Funds offer good opportunities for income. They provide diversity for those whose limited savings would not permit them to buy many different stocks. Remember, however, that these Mutual Funds are only as good as the judgment of their managements.

Do not put all your investment funds into any one basket, whether it be individual Bonds, Stocks, or Mutual Funds. Also, do not forget that one of the better investments for a retired person or for one with limited income is to buy a two-family house in a good residential area and to live personally in one half while renting the other half. This house should have a backyard with two or three trees.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to friends and neighbors who were so kind and thoughtful while I was in the hospital and since I have returned home. Your cards, flowers, visits and food that was brought was deeply appreciated. Mrs. Ray Hornbuckle. Itp

Prevent Cotton Seedling Disease For More Profit

From $15 to $20 net profit an acre may be expected when in-furrow fungicides are used at cotton planting time to control seedling disease, says Harlan E. Smith, Texas A. and M. College Extension Plant Pathologist.

The value of seed treatment to prevent seed rot has been known for many years. However, seed treatment does not prevent seedling disease, Smith says. This disease, more commonly known as "soreskin" or "damping-off," each year takes its toll of cotton seedlings and thus reduces stands and yields later in the year. It is caused by fungi which live in the soil and attack young seedlings from the time of germination until true leaves begin to appear on the young cotton plants.

In 1953 research was started by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station on the use of fungicides in the furrow and covering soil at planting time. From this work, a new method of control for seedling disease was developed. The method helps reduce risks and helps take guess-work out of cotton farming. Cotton growers who have fields where seedling disease in the past has been a problem should consider the practice.

The purpose of using in-furrow fungicides at planting time is to provide disease protection for the young sprout before and after it comes through the soil, Smith pointed out. A combination of captan, zineb and PCNG is suggested for general use in all areas. This combination can be applied as a spray or dust. Nabam is applied as a spray and can be used where soils have a pH of 7.3 or below, he said.

Here are other practices which are also helpful in reducing seedling disease. Plant high quality seed which have been properly treated; plant in a good seedbed at proper depth and rate for the area; use recommended fertilizer placement and plant when soil temperature and moisture are favorable.

Local county agents can supply detailed information on the in-furrow method and also on other subjects related to cotton production and disease control.

In double ring ceremonies at the First Baptist Church in Stamford, April 2, Miss Joyce Lucille Grimm of Abilene became the bride of Douglas Blaine (Doug) Smith, also of Abilene. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Robert Grimm of Stamford and parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith of Winters.

The Rev. Carrol Herring, pastor of the Tuxedo Baptist Church, officiated for the ceremony before and altar decorated with two baskets of white gladioli flanked by candelabra with tapers and upright palms. The prie dieu was also decorated with white gladioli and emerald foliage.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. Ernest Cowger, organist, and Mrs. Jack Southerland, soloist.

Miss Cheryl Randolph of Abilene and Larry Wayland Grimm of Stamford, brother of the bride, were candlelighters. Miss Kathryn Horton of Abilene was flower girl and Walter Burnett of Abilene was ring bearer.

Dave Horton of Abilene was best man and ushers were Jimmy Smith of Winters, brother of the groom, and Albert Brown of Winters, cousin of the groom.

Mrs. Clifford C. Erwin of Abilene, matron of honor, wore a dress of blue lace over cotton satin designed with scooped neckline, brief sleeves and a full skirt. Her headdress of self material held a small circular veil.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a ballerina length gown of white lace over satin fashioned with a scoop neckline outlined with lace flowers appliqued with iridescent sequins. Long tapered sleeves extended to a point at the wrist and featured satin covered buttons. The bouffant skirt of white illusion was covered in front with lace ruffles trimmed with seed pearls. She wore white lustrous pumps trimmed with tiny rhinestones and carried an arrangement of white gardenias atop a white Bible. Her waist length veil of illusion dotted with rhinestones fell from a tier of seed pearls.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church with Mrs. Harry Burnett of Abilene and Mrs. Benny Parnell of the Tuxedo community serving at the refreshment table. Mrs. Baize of Stamford registered guests.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans, La., parts of Mississippi, and Mobile, Ala., the bride chose a sheath dress of ivory linen with matching jacket trimmed in lace of the same color.

The bride is a 1958 graduate of Hamlin High School where she was a member of Future Homemakers of America and the National Honor Society. She has been employed at the First National Bank in Abilene for the past two years.

562 Miles of New Highways Have Been Built In Texas in Last 4 Years

By Vern Sanford

Texas Press Association
Texas leads all other states in the building of new interstate highways since the beginning of the program four years ago.

To date, 562 miles have been completed in Texas, says State Highway Engineer DeWitt C. Greer and 355 more miles are under construction. Cost so far: $460,400,000. Target for the State is to have 3,030 miles in this main, heavy-duty trunk system.

These roads, Greer points out, have built-in safety features and are three times as safe as ordinary highways.

Features that enable these roads to cut the traffic toll by one death a year for each 10 miles of length are:

1. Dividing of traffic to eliminate head-on collisions.
2. Grade separations to cut out intersection accidents.
3. Wide lanes with surfaced shoulders to provide ample room for passing.
4. Controlled access entrances and exits to ease cars on and off the highway.

But the super-roads are only a fraction of the program in the state with more miles of public roads than any other in the country.

In the less elaborate divided highways not in the interstate system, Greer says the state now has 1,029 miles of divided highways, with a goal of at least 2,700 miles by 1975.

Most Texas mileage is in the farm-to-market system, now up to 30,156 miles.

NEW INDUSTRY SEEKING

Reorganized Texas Industrial Commission is setting out toward some tall goals with a short stick.

Commission, with a staff of one man plus a secretary, is after a Texas-sized share of new industries for the state. Its appropriation for the year is only $23,750.

Other agencies of government have assisted, however, with research. Questionnaires already have been sent to Texas cities to build up a permanent file of data on potential sites.

NO WIDE OPEN SPACES

As Texas prairie gives way to subdivisions, more and more Texans are getting in each other's way.

Problems growing out of the population explosion and rapid urbanization of Texas were the subject of a two-day Austin conference for newspapermen, civic leaders and planners.

Texas newspapers were commended by Steve Matthews, executive director of the Texas Municipal League, for their efforts in keeping the reading public informed on complex and changing city problems.

Conferees pondered how to plan orderly, pleasant communities for the two million additional residents expected to be added to Texas cities in the next ten years. Also, how to correct the all-too-prevalent bane of "acres of hot asphalt and cold stone," congested streets and the "grotesque suburban sprawl."

ONE WORD MAKES DIFFERENCE

Because of a slip of the tongue or typewriter in Potter County, Court of Criminal Appeals dismissed appeals in three cases mistakenly addressed to the Court of Civil Appeals.

A court order from the district court in Amarillo said the defendants had given notice of appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals, Austin.

Since the cases were criminal cases—driving while intoxicated, contributing to the delinquency of a minor—the civil court could not handle them.

And since they were appealed to the civil court, the criminal court could not handle them.

TRINITY PERMIT GRANTED

After the longest and probably most patience-straining hearing in State Water Board history, Trinity River Authority and the City of Houston were granted permission to build a $40,000,000 dam at Livingston.

Also authorized was a $5,000,000 salt water barrier at nearby Wallisville.

Conclusion of the matter was a near-miracle of compromise and appeasement. Initially Houston alone had sought a permit with stiff opposition from the Trinity people. They got together and agreed on a joint project with a 70-30 split on costs and water use, with Houston taking the larger portion. But when the hearing came before the Water Board, the San Jacinto River Authority, the North Texas Municipal Water District and affected landowners protested.

SJRA dropped its opposition when Houston agreed to use Trinity water for industry only and to step up buying of San Jacinto water for domestic use. Water Board order provided that the rights of upstream users in North Texas should not be cut into by the new dam. That left only the landowners to satisfy—probably in court.

HOME HELD UP

Highly controversial $100,000-plus home for the Sam Houston State College president will not be built unless the governor and legislative budget board give the green light.

Henry Sears, chairman of the board of regents for teachers' colleges, made this promise to the Senate cost of government committee. If budget board opinion follows that of many legislators' recent comments, it will take a dim view of the project.

Senators told Sears they were irked with the teachers' college board for what they regarded as a "complete breach of faith" and an apparent by-passing of legislative intent to keep a check-rein on college building programs.

TOURIST REVENUE FALLS

Texas had a $100,000,000 slip in tourist spending between 1957 and 1959.

State Highway Department's 1959 Tourist Industry report shows for 1957, 10,300,000 visitors, $531,000,000 spent; for 1959, 9,600,000 visitors, $431,000,000 spent.

Texas Highway Commission Chairman Herbert C. Petry Jr. said competition for tourists is strenuous. He said he hoped the new state advertising program, due to begin soon, would help to expand the crop.

Use Blue Panic For Pasture, Hay

By Vern Sanford

"Several cooperators of the Runnels Soil Conservation District are using blue panic for rotation hay and pasture," according to Glen Green of the local Soil Conservation Service. Those who have planted grass for hay and pasture in the Ballinger area are Monroe Dierschke, E. H. Forgy, and David Batts. Others include M. A. Dusek, Valley View; S. J. Brevard, Crews, and M. L. Dobbins of Drasco.

Green stated that blue panic will furnish hay or pasture while improving the physical condition of the soil. When properly managed it also provides needed protection against wind and water erosion.

Green pointed out that grasses should be allowed to make seed before the first grazing season begins. Thereafter, enough leaves should be left at the end of each period for the plants to make fast regrowth.

Other grasses used in this area for hay and pasture are sideots grama, K. R. Bluestem, perennial sudan and sorghum alum.

FROM MIDLAND

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Bryant and children, Don and Jan of Midland, were weekend visitors in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Bryant.

One-third of all auto accidents are due to fatigue.

Journey to the Center of the Earth, opening Sunday at the State Theatre, shapes up as one of the truly world-wide pictures of the era with locations at Edinburgh, Scotland; Carlsbad Caverns, New Mexico; Arbo Crater and Sequit Point, Calif. Additional story locales in the picture include a city and volcano in Iceland; the volcanic island of Stromboli; the lost city of Atlantis and sundry other subterranean settings.

By Vern Sanford
Nearly everyone who fishes does a bit of jettty fishing at one time or another.

In fact, a looksee at the jetties along the Gulf Coast of Texas causes one to feel that jettty fishing is just about the most popular type. Thousands of persons—men, women and children—fish the many jetties along the Texas coast every day, month in and month out, summer and winter.

Bad weather seems to be the only deterrent. It's a difficult kind of fishing because waves splash over the huge rocks to ice the tops in winter and to slick the mossy surface in the summertime.

It's invigorating fishing and a challenging sport for the fisherman who likes to eat drum, ling, whiting, gafftop, speckled trout, redfish, Spanish mackerel, jewfish and to battle with an occasional tarpon, shark, or other members of the salt-water species.

Thanks to more recent methods of jettty construction, these huge bulkheads now are being made with rocks laid flat. Some tops have been concreted for the convenience of the fishermen, as well as to strengthen the construction. This makes walking easier and lessens the danger of a crippling fall on the razor-sharp edge of these huge hunks of granite.

Once a jettty is built, it isn't long before marine life begins to attach itself to the big boulders. Moss, seaweed, and algae clinging to the rocks make good food for small fish, shrimp, mullet, eel, sand bugs and crab. At the same time the crevices between the rocks are excellent hiding places for these same salt water residents. But they have to venture forth occasionally—and that's when the larger fish move to for the kill.

So the bait used by the jettty fishermen is usually shrimp, cut bait, mullet, squid, crabs and, of course, artificial imitations of the smaller marine life. Off-used are plugs and spoons with bucktails.

A sturdy surfcasting rod with a heavy line and a strong reel, is the usual equipment. You never know what size fish will take the bait.

A cast of 30 to 40 feet is customary. Either the fish are feeding in close, or they are not interested, or are not there at all.

A light rod that's not too flexible will, of course, provide more fun, as it gives the fish a fighting chance. You'll lose some nice fish too!

Spinning reels are ideal. Our preference is the Norseman closed-faced spinning reel with its adjustable drag and 15 lb. test monofilament line, of the Mitchell 300 reel. Both reels invariable accompany us to the Gulf for our bay fishing expeditions anyway.

However, a conventional reel equipped with star drag and 36-lb. test braided line is the choice of many. Its greatest asset is the confidence it provides in the stronger line.

Most any reel that's not too heavy, yet strong enough to do the job, will serve your purpose.

If it's your first trip, take along your heaviest fresh-water rig and try it. Then if you want to go in for heavier gear, you'll have a better idea of your needs.

In jettty fishing, as in surf fishing, the places where the surf and the shallow water meet, you're in the most likely spot. It is in these areas, and where the currents come swirling around, that the big fish lie in wait for food to be washed to them.

But don't try to wait 'em out. Move around until you find them—trying one spot after another until success comes.

Your bait should be the natural bait of the area—or artificial lures similar in appearance or action. Here again we urge you to seek the advice of local tackle and bait shops. They know what the fish are hitting at the moment, and you'll save time by following their advice. It's usually very sound.

If you use live bait, put on a 3-0 or 4-0 hook, with a 2-foot wire leader attached to a 3-way swivel. Add a small sinker just large enough to enable you to drag the bottom lightly, and heavy enough to keep the current from moving it about too fast. Keep a tight line at all times.

If you use artificial bait, try jigs and spoons with bucktails, or hardware that resembles mullet or squid, and finally artificial eels. Artificial such as Doug English makes in Corpus are good bait.

Old timers start fishing the minute they reach a jettty, going up one side and down the other, casting a few times from one spot, then moving to another and another. This way they figure they cover nearly every rock or crevice where fish may be feeding.

Also they carry along a long-gaff for use where the waves are heavy and are splashing high on the rocks. But first they let the fish run until exhausted—holding the rod high to keep him out of the rock crevices. A lot of people lose fish by attempting to drag them onto the rocks. So work your way to the water and carry a gaff or a big stick.

For safety's sake—be sure your shoes are rubber-soled and rubber heeled. Those who fish the jetties at night are not so numerous—but they land some whoppers.

If you go in for night fishing, get one of those miner's hats with lamp attached—or one of the new battery powered electric head lamps. The Empire Headlight Lantern, made by the Metal Ware Corp., of Two Rivers, Wis., is ideal. It frees your hands for other uses than carrying a lantern. Best of all, the headlamp always shines where you're looking. And that's mighty important when you're feeling your way around moss-covered rocks.

If no luck—go try a little pier fishing. It's safer anyway, and a lot easier.

Group Soils For Proper Planning

"Soils can be grouped into land capability classes to help plan their use properly," says James Barnhill, of the local Soil Conservation Service.

A soil survey is made of each acre of land to show the soils' desirable features and its shortcomings. This in turn, determines its capability for growing crops successfully.

Of the eight capability classes, classes I through IV are suited for cultivation. Capability Class II land is nearly level, is usually deep and high in water storage capacity. A soil in this capability class can grow crops successfully with very little soil loss by erosion. Capability Class IV land may be steep and shallow, and therefore erode easily. Row cropping on this land is difficult and often unprofitable.

As soon as possible after a farmer or rancher becomes a co-operator with the Runnels Soil Conservation District, a soil survey of the farm or ranch will be made. Such features as depth, texture, permeability, slope and erosion will be recorded on an aerial photograph. A soils and capability map will then be prepared from the soil survey. With the aid of a capability map and other conservation guides, a farmer or rancher can determine the different ways each acre of land can best be used and treated. Additional information and assistance is always available from the local Soil Conservation office.

There were only 200 automobiles made in the U. S. in 1898.

Cotton Progress To Be Told In Meeting Here April 18th

The story of progress in the expansion of cotton's markets will be told at a meeting of the National Cotton Council here April 18 in the Agriculture Building at Winters High School. The meeting will begin at 8 p. m., and is being co-sponsored by the Runnels County Farm Bureau.

Gene Woodman, field representative of the National Cotton Council, will use color slides to show how research and sales promotion are strengthening cotton's competitive position in the battle for textile markets.

Another meeting is scheduled in Rowena on April 19.

"The National Cotton Council is the central rallying point where the raw cotton industry including producers, ginners, cottonseed oil mills, merchants, warehousemen and spinners combine and coordinate their efforts to increase cotton consumption," Woodman said.

In addition to describing how industry funds are utilized in the development of greater domestic and export outlets for cotton, the speaker will also outline other research and promotional activity which has been harnessed from groups outside the industry.

This is a meeting for the general public but especially for cotton producers who are interested in taking advantage of this opportunity to learn first hand what the cotton council is attempting to do to better the cotton markets and insure a more lucrative and financially stable future for the cotton producer.

Ice Capades Will Appear In Angelo Coliseum April 26

The all new 19th Edition of John H. Harris's "Ice Capades" will soon appear in San Angelo at the San Angelo Coliseum, opening Tuesday, April 26 for a five night engagement.

Produced at a cost of one million dollars, the new show puts the emphasis on good music, elaborate costumes, comedy and skating skill.

The nine big production numbers include a short but complete version of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," a finale featuring the Dagenham Pipers of England's Black Watch and a precision skating number entitled "Anchors A-way."

The colorful opening number is "Les Sylphides," with stars and line skaters gliding over the ice to the music of Chopin's famed ballet. Another number called "Operama" is four productions in one with skaters costumed in the rich garments of four operas, "La Boheme," "Faust," "Samson & Delilah," and "Pagliacci."

The biggest production of all is the "Cavalcade of Hits" with practically every star of the show performing to some of the greatest music ever written.

Stars of this year's show are Aja Zanova, twice-world's champion, the dynamic Alan Konrad, U. S. Eastern Champion Shirley Linde, Peter Voss, German National Champion, and funnyman Willie Kall.

Newcomers to the show are pint-sized Paul Castle, Freddie Trenker, Helga Neff, the Emanuel and the team of Rika Schropp and Lucien Boyer.

There are 125 persons in the troupe, 96 in the skating lines known as the Ice Capets and Ice Cadets.

Evening performances will be at 8 p. m. Tuesday through Friday and 8:30 on Saturday. Matinees on Saturday at 2:30 p. m. and on Sunday at 1:30 p. m. and 5:30 p. m.

Tickets are now on sale in San Angelo at the B. C. D. Building daily. To order by mail, send check or money order to Ice Capades, San Angelo Coliseum, P. O. Box 1110, San Angelo, stating number of seats, price and performance desired. Prices from $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00. Enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope for quick ticket return.

The subject for next Sunday's Sunday School lesson is: The Power of Humility. Meditation: "For long months Adoniram Judson, the great missionary was in a Burmese prison. He kept with him constantly a hard and ugly pillow, so unattractive that no jailer was tempted to steal it. Nobody guessed that under that humble covering was Judson's most precious possession, the manuscript of his translation of the New Testament into Burmese. It was to bring the blessings of gospel to countless Burmese in the years to come, and would transform their lives. In an age when greatness was measured by royal pomp and military might, men could not accept Christ's teaching of humility. They hailed Him with joy when He rode in triumph to Jerusalem, but they rejected the Man who was meek and lowly. They did not guess that under that humble exterior was the Savior of all mankind. Let us not fail to receive the King, just and having true salvation, as He comes to us today."

Closed Season On White Bass Not Necessary

Under present conditions there is no need for a closed season on white bass (sandies), according to the director of inland fisheries of the Game and Fish Commission.

"We consider it a conservation measure to permit the catching of whites," the director said.

During white bass runs fishermen take hundreds of thousands of these fish from Texas lakes each year.

"White bass were originally introduced into the fresh waters of Texas 30 years ago, when 28 were transplanted from Lake Caddo to Lake Dallas," he said. "From that start we have been able to stock not only all the waters of Texas, but to provide brood stock for many other southwestern states. As long as we have as many as 28 whites left there isn't much danger of man catching out all the fish."

The director points out that the life span of the white bass is short, and unless they are caught they die off and are of no value.

He says any shortage in white bass for a season is because of unfavorable spawning conditions and not from heavy catches. The fish swim upstream in fast moving water for their spawning. The current then distributes the eggs and they adhere to rocks in the lake or stream and hatch. As a result, there usually is a tremendous spawn each year. If conditions are unfavorable in any one year, there is a shortage the next, but not enough to justify apprehension.

Quail Hunting Depends Upon Work Done Now

Landowners who expect to harvest a quail crop for the 1960 hunting season will do well to begin work immediately, according to the assistant executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

"To have a good quail crop plenty of cover and feed are required," he said. "This can be developed, along with other crops. Many landowners planted multi-flora roses last fall. Others will provide food crops along fence rows, or suitable cover on their pasture lands."

He said present indications point to a heavy carry-over of brood stock from last year. In many places the 1959 season was the best for quail in years. Although many were killed by hunters, there were no heavy freezes or bad weather to kill off a great number of the carry-over birds.

Quail also will be available from the State hatchery this year, he said. Application should be made to the Austin office for these birds. They will be sold to landowners at 50 cents each, which is about half the production cost.

Before a landowner gets the birds, however, a warden must first inspect his place to see if he has sufficient cover and a good probability of feed.

"If we get a favorable weather season this year, we'll have another bountiful crop," he said.

A criticism sometimes does an individual more good than a compliment.

Former Resident Of Winters Retires As Rural Route Carrier

L. T. Smith of San Saba, former resident of Winters and rural route carrier out of the local post office for 13 years, retired from his duties for Uncle Sam on March 31, having completed 41 years in the postal service, according to an item appearing in the San Saba Star.

Mr. Smith entered the postal service in 1919 after attending Toby's Business College at Waco and Texas A. & M. College. He came to Winters in 1926 as a route carrier and the family lived here for 13 years. It was in 1939 that he transferred to San Saba. Mrs. Smith taught piano while they lived in Winters.

Asked about his future plans, Mr. Smith told the reporter at San Saba that he had no plans but his wife had enough plans to last a lifetime.

CHEAPER BY THE DOZEN...

Your electric service—the more you use it, the bigger the bargain—as you put more and more electricity to work in your home, you actually pay less per kilowatt hour.

While today, you are getting more work saving, time saving conveniences out of your electric service than before, your bill is likely to be higher than it used to be. But, remember while you are using so much more electric service, the cost per kilowatt hour is actually 18% less than it was in 1950.

LONE STAR AGRICULTURE

REALISTIC POLICY ON CHEMICALS

Not long ago Rep. Henry A. Dixon (R-Utah), who was an agricultural expert before he became a congressman, delivered a speech to the house in Washington in which he strongly implied that the present policy of the U. S. Food and Drug Administration toward use of chemicals in agriculture is downright ridiculous.

Rep. Dixon traced this policy to the administration's interpretation of the Delaney amendment to the food additive bill in the last session of Congress. The Delaney amendment prohibits in food any carcinogen residue — a chemical which ingested under any conditions can produce cancer in animals or humans.

"The original Delaney amendment," said Rep. Dixon, "was opposed by the Food and Drug Administration and had been rejected in committee as being too sweeping. However, there was little opportunity for debate and on the floor House members were made to feel they would be voting for cancer if they opposed the Delaney amendment. So it passed in a breeze, as it also did in the Senate."

"The Food and Drug Administration takes the position that the Delaney amendment prohibits even the most minute trace of any carcinogen in human food, even though it requires heavy and sustained dosages to produce cancer in an animal. This has aroused the Farm Bureau, Farmers Union, and virtually all other farm organizations to an unprecedented fury.

"Farmer groups want to use these needed chemicals and protect public health through designation of safe, low, tolerances of chemicals established by the National Academy of Science, or a commission of scientists. They fear that the present interpretation of the Delaney amendment could virtually wreck U. S. agriculture as well as worsen rather than improve public health."

Rep. Dixon quoted the Food and Drug Commissioner, George Larrick, as having pointed out that "cancers can be produced in test animals by repeated injections of sugar solutions in the muscle tissue or peanut oil or cotton seed oil or lard or tannic acid."

chemicals in agriculture is essential the congressman insisted, because "so much publicity has been given to the cancer scare that even routine Food and Drug actions are now causing financial losses to farmers, merchants and companies."

Before becoming a congressman, Rep. Dixon was president of the Utah State Agricultural College.

Home Town Talk—

 thousands who visited the event during the three days were "more than impressed" with the exhibited evidence of Winters' progress.
 Loyd Roberson, who spent a lot of time at the exposition and who at times acted as representative of all six of the Winters manufacturers who had displays, said many people were surprised that so many products are being manufactured in a town of this size.
 We heard that some of the visitors asked Roberson how many people live in Winters, and he replied that he didn't rightly know. "They're all so busy it's been hard to get them settled down long enough to get counted. The Federal government finally had to send out census takers to count noses!"

The rattlesnake stories are still coming in. Charles Dry and Don Emmert dropped by the office last week with a sackful of snake which had been caught in the hills near Novice by Carl Parker of Novice. This rattler measured about 55 inches long, and 10 inches around, and had 14 rattles. This snake was dead, or we never would have hung around long enough to find out how long he really was. Parker had caught 24 rattlers in three days in the Novice hills.

Roots go deep in West Texas. Herman Frick of northwest of town came by the other day with a mesquite seedling he had pulled up on his place. The seedling measured 7 inches—but the root was 42 inches long.

 most of the 650 acres in cultivation back to native grass.
 He has established a good cover of sorghum alnum, johnsongrass and others on 380 acres. He also is eliminating all the mesquite on the ranch.
 Billups hopes to convert the ranch into a beef production enterprise. He runs a herd of Hereford cows.
