With the Democratic Primary only a few weeks away, the political hoot and holler over the state has reached deafening proportions. Seems that every man and his dog has his own little particular itch he wants scratched, and is beating the bushes for some politician to do the scratching. And, according to the man on the street, some of them are going out of the way to get other people to furnish the votes to put their chosen scratcher in office.

It's usual practice, in legislative races, for organizations and groups to "endorse" candidates they think will do the most for them, regardless of the attitude and feelings of the people in the respective districts. We've heard more than a few people express dissatisfaction over this practice. Took a little drive out to Big Spring over the weekend, and returned quite impressed with the appearance of the whole section of the country, now well into a colorful spring. The wheat fields of the section give promise of another good crop, results resting on the kind of weather we have during the next few weeks. The rangelands look healthy, and the livestock we saw was mostly prime stuff.

It's amazing how quickly this part of West Texas can make a comeback and look so thriving after a drab, colorless winters.

Civil Defense Program Discussed At Meeting Monday

A Civil Defense program was discussed by a group of Winters preaching. citizens at a meeting Monday night at the chamber of commerce office.

A Civil Defense committee, headed by Fred Young, has been appointed by the Winters Lions Club, to investigate the possibilities of a civil defense program in Winters. This group met with mons. other citizens representing the Volunteer Fire Department, Win ters Public Schools, Chamber of Commerce, City Council, various churches and several businesses. The group voted to ask the City Council to pass a city ordinance authorizing the formation of a civil defense program in Winters and the surrounding area. The paramount concern of this group was not for possibilities of atomic warfare, they pointed out, but for an adequate organization which could function in time of tornadoes, severe windstorms, hailstorms, fires and any other Special concern to this group are the school children. If any disaster were to strike the schools. such as a tornado, explosion, or fire, there should be a plan of action which could be put into effect within minutes, they said. Otherwise, they said, many lives might be lost through mass confusion and hysteria.

If the City Council does pass an ordinance necessary for the im-plementing of a plan for civil defense in Winters, this group will ask everyone in Winters to support the actual formation of the program

Day or Night Including Sundays or Holidays!

WHEN DESIRED AIR AMBULANCE CAN BE ARRANGED ANY TIME! — ANY PLACE!

SPILL BROS. & CO. Winters, Texas

resourceful Texans have come up with their own version of this classic night-time sport.

Almost any moonlit fall or winter night you can hear the hounds running hot on the trail of some wily coon. And you may be sure, hard behind the hounds, roaring across the pastures, rocketing up and down the dry washes, and flattening the scrub growth, will come a jeepload of excited hunt-

Texans call this "jeeping for coons." It's more like a roundup. In one night you can cover five times the distance possible for a man on foot, or twice the territory that even a good horse could hope to navigate.

If you are one of those sportsmen who never has hunted the raccoon, or even if you are a veteran of the orthodox coon hunt, you will get a big kick out of a night spent in the brush, jeeping your way down the ringtail trails.

Ranch families in South Texas, down Westhoff way, have turned this jeeping for coons into an exact science. They each have a pack of four or five good hounds, and a rugged jeep that goes anywhere. They study coon signs by day so they know where to hunt at night.

All of us cannot be so exact, but you can scout around among the coon-hunting families in your neighborhood and almost surely in the process of getting acquainted, at least one family will invite you to go along on a hunt. If there doesn't happen to be such a hospitable family nearby-and you don't own any land of your own-your next best bet is to interest a land-

this method is more sporting.

Those who choose shooting should use nothing larger than a .22 rifle, or pistol. This calliber is amply large, and the smaller gun is safer and more easily carried. All you do is spotlight the coon in the tree and shoot him. It is that

"Jumping" your coon is some-what more difficult. Here, one member of the party must climb the tree in which your coon has taken refuge and dislodge him. For this the climber uses a long stick, for an angry coon can be a tough customer at close quarters.

When the coon jumps, the wating dogs pounce on him, triggering off a fierce, roaring battle. Sometimes the coon escapes, which provides the sporting chance mentioned.

This little drama is repeated over and over again, as often as you wish, only limited by the territory you can cover and the eagerness of your dog and companions . . . or your own physical ability to take it.

If, after reading this column you have formed the idea this is a cushy way to hunt coons, revise your notions.

"Jeeping for coons" is plenty rough, but you will enjoy it lots. When dawn lightens the sky, after clinging to the seat of a rocking, jarring, swaying jeep all night, you'll return to the ranch house craving plenty of rest to ease your weary, aching bones. And you will walkers, bareback riders, funny admit you've really had a hunt.

They talk the same language, Capt. Plunkett and his performing beauties, but watch the graceful four-footed equine stars waltzing around the circus rings you'd never guess that a word was being spoken. It isn't - not vocally, that is, for Plunkett works his "liberty" or free-running horses with cues from his hands, the position of his body and from the long which is used both as a directional guide and to snap the horses to attention. The JAMES - CHRISTY CIRCUS coming for afternoon and evening performances long has been famous for fine horseflesh. Dancing horses, the "liberty" groups, the fine bare-back riding steeds of Europe's foremost horsewoman, Alise Conti, the horses for romanstanding dot the thrill-packed circus performances and accelerate its tempo to a breath-taking pitch. Trained ponies, too, of especial interest to children and a clown's pet donkey highlight the four legged part of the show, coming to Winters, Texas, Saturday, April 23, North Main Street.
